19 The LORD proclaims: Go buy a clay jar from a potter in the presence of the elders of the people and the priests. 2 Then go out to the Ben-hinnom Valley at the entrance of the gate called Broken Pots and proclaim there the words I will tell you. 3 Listen to the LORD's word, you kings of Judah and those of you living in Jerusalem: This is what the LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, says: I'm going to bring such disaster upon this place that it will shock all who hear of it. 4 They have deserted me and degraded this place into a shrine for other gods, which neither they nor their ancestors nor Judah's kings have ever known. And they have filled this place with the blood of the innocent. 5 Yes, they have built shrines to Baal, to burn their sons and daughters in the fire, although I never commanded or ordered such a thing, nor did it ever cross my mind.

6 So now the time is coming, declares the LORD, when people will no longer call this place Topheth or Ben-hinnom Valley but Carnage Valley. 7 I will foil the plans of Judah and Jerusalem in this place and will have them fall in battle before their enemies, before those who seek their lives. I will give their corpses as food to the birds and the wild animals. 8 I will make this city something that sounds horrible; all who pass by it will be shocked at its pain. 9 And when their enemies lay siege to the city, seeking their lives, they will resort in desperation to eating the flesh of their sons and daughters, and to devouring the flesh of their neighbors.

10 Then you should shatter the clay jar in the sight of the people who are with you, 11 and you should say to them: This is what the LORD of heavenly forces says: Just as one smashes the potter's piece beyond repair, so I will smash this people and this city. And they will bury the dead in Topheth until there's no room left. 12 That is what I will do to this place and its residents, declares the LORD: I will make this city like Topheth. 13 The houses of Jerusalem and those of Judah's kings will become as foul as Topheth—all the houses on whose roofs they made offerings to the heavenly force and poured out drink offerings to other gods.

14 When Jeremiah returned from Topheth where the LORD had sent him to prophesy, he stood in the court of the LORD's temple and said to all the people: 15 The LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: I am about to bring upon this city and its surrounding towns every disaster that I have pronounced against them, because they have been stubborn and wouldn't obey my words.

20 When the priest Pashhur, Immer's son, the officer in charge of the LORD's temple, heard Jeremiah prophesying these words, 2 he beat the prophet and detained him in confinement at the upper Benjamin Gate in the LORD's temple. 3 The next day, when Pashhur released Jeremiah from confinement, Jeremiah said to him, "The LORD has changed your name from Pashhur to Panic Lurks Everywhere. 4 The LORD proclaims: I'm going to strike panic into your heart and into the hearts of your friends. You will watch as they fall in battle to their enemies. I will hand over all Judah to the king of Babylon, who will exile some to major stakeholders: priests, sages, and prophets. They are correct. Jeremiah threatens the nation and its leading power structures. But his opponents fail to recognize that God has appointed Jeremiah to take apart Judah's old world (Jer 1:10).

19:1–20:6 The longest narrative in the first half of the book (Jer 1–25) is held together by the potter-clay image (see Jer 18:1–12). The allusion to Topheth or the

Ben-hinnom Valley (19:6)—the site associated with the sacrifice of children to Baal and Molech (see Jer 7:31–33; 2 Chron 33:6)—serves to justify the severity of divine judgment. The temple official Pashhur (20:1) can't tolerate Jeremiah's attack on the nation, so he has the prophet held in custody and beaten, perhaps in accordance with the Instruction (Deut 25:2–3; see also Amos 7:10–17). Jeremiah is perceived as an enemy of the state.

Babylon and slaughter others. <sup>5</sup>I will hand over all the wealth of this city, all its goods and valuables, including the treasures of the kings of Judah, to their enemies, who will ransack and pillage and carry it all off to Babylon. <sup>6</sup>And you, Pashhur, and all those in your household, will go into captivity. You will be deported to Babylon where you will die. There you will be buried with all your friends to whom you prophesied falsely.”

Total despair

<sup>7</sup> LORD, you enticed me, and I was taken in.

You were too strong for me, and you prevailed.

Now I'm laughed at all the time;
everyone mocks me.

<sup>8</sup> Every time I open my mouth, I cry out and say, “Violence and destruction!”

The LORD's word has brought me nothing but insult and injury, constantly.

<sup>9</sup> I thought, I'll forget him;

I'll no longer speak in his name.

But there's an intense fire in my heart, trapped in my bones.

I'm drained trying to contain it; I'm unable to do it.

proclaim, yes, let's proclaim it ourselves!”

All my friends are waiting for me to stumble:

“Perhaps he can be enticed.

Then we'll prevail against him and get our revenge on him!”

<sup>11</sup> But the LORD is with me like a strong defender.

Therefore, my oppressors will stumble and not prevail.

They will be disgraced by their own failures.

Their dishonor will never be forgotten.

<sup>12</sup> The LORD of heavenly forces tests the righteous and discerns the heart and the mind.

Let me see your retribution upon them, for I have committed my case to you.

for he has rescued the needy from the clutches of evildoers.

<sup>14</sup> Cursed be the day that I was born.

May the day my mother gave birth to me not be blessed.

<sup>15</sup> Cursed be the one who delivered the news to my father,

“You have a son!”—filling him with joy.

<sup>16</sup> May the bearer of that news be like the cities that the LORD destroyed without mercy.

May he hear screams in the morning, and the battle cries at noon,

<sup>17</sup> because he didn't kill me in the womb and let my mother become my grave, her womb pregnant forever.

20:7-18 This final confession of Jeremiah is actually two distinct laments (20:7-13, 14-18). Both are related to his prophetic mission and the fierce opposition it engenders (see especially 20:1-6). Accordingly, Jeremiah's suffering isn't only personal suffering. It has always been suffering he endures for God's sake. The first lament pushes the literary form to its limits. Some scholars say that Jeremiah uses language of sexual violence to convey his sense of powerlessness. In support of this argument, the words enticed and You were too strong for me (20:7) are used elsewhere for seduction (Exod 22:16) and rape (Deut 22:25). Others suggest that the language is more appropriate to prophetic deception (see, e.g., Ezek 14:9; 1 Kgs 22). Either represents a daring expression of prayer. Jeremiah feels overwhelmed by God's purposes, yet still acknowledges God's presence and protection (20:11). The Hebrew phrase translated here as Panic Lurks Everywhere (20:10) also appears in Jer 6:25; 20:3 (Pashhur's new name); 46:5; 49:29; Ps 31:13. The language of 20:7—“enticed” and “prevailed”—reappears in 20:10, although now it is Jeremiah's friends who seek him harm. The prophet presents his legal case (or cause) to God (20:12; see Jer 12:1). Even though 20:13 may appear out of place, the vast majority of laments in the Psalms end with praise. Representing the bleakest point in the prophetic experience—and perhaps the failure of prophecy itself—the second lament (20:14-18) is a death wish or a self curse, similar to Job 3. Jeremiah grieves all the suffering he has had to endure. It's important to note that Jeremiah's laments complicate logical and predictable understandings of human suffering, particularly the belief in clearly defined consequences for the righteous and the wicked. This acknowledgment of innocent suffering or suffering for God's sake, is particularly important to survivors of war and captivity.

Verdict against king and city

21 Jeremiah received the LORD's word when King Zedekiah sent Pashhur, Malchiah's son, and the priest Zephaniah, Maaseiah's son, to him with an appeal: 2"Speak to the LORD on our behalf because Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar<sup>a</sup> is attacking us. Perhaps the LORD will perform one of his mighty deeds and force him to withdraw from us."

3Jeremiah answered them: This is what you should tell Zedekiah: 4"The LORD, the God of Israel, says: I'm going to turn your own weapons against you, yes, the weapons you are using to fight the king of Babylon and the Babylonians<sup>b</sup> who have surrounded you! I will round them up in the center of the city. 5Then I myself will fight against you with an outstretched hand and strong arm in fierce anger and rage. 6I will strike down those within this city—both people and animals—and they will die of a terrible plague. 7Afterward, declares the LORD, I will deliver Judah's King Zedekiah, his servants, and those in this city who have survived plague, war, and famine to Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar<sup>c</sup> and to their enemies who seek to do them harm. He will put them to the sword without pity, mercy, or compassion.

8This is what you should tell this people: The LORD says: I'm setting before you the way of life and the way of death. 9Whoever stays in the city will die by the sword, famine, and disease. But whoever leaves the city and surrenders to the Babylonians<sup>d</sup> will live; yes, their lives will be spared. 10I have set my face against this city for harm and not for good, declares the LORD; it will be delivered to the king of Babylon, who will set it on fire.

21:1–24:10 End of the nation's leaders and their culture of self-interest. The final unit of the first half of the book confronts Judah's leadership, particularly its Davidic kings and its prophets. The section begins with a warning to King Zedekiah and a life-or-death directive to the Judean people (21:1–10). Following this narrative, Jeremiah accuses Judah's final kings of crimes committed against their own people. This is an assault on the belief in the unconditional nature of the Davidic dynasty (21:11–23:8). Like the temple, covenant, land, and election tradition, the ancient promise to David (2 Sam 7:1–19) comes under scrutiny in the first part of prophetic performance (Jer 1–25). The text is adamant that none of Israel's sacred pillars of faith would protect the people from disaster. This gives voice to a reality all too tangible for exilic readers. Judah's kings might have negotiated the many political hazards had they fulfilled their duty as custodians of justice and defenders of the poor (22:1–3). But their track records testify against them, as survivors would clearly recognize. Jeremiah argues that Jehoahaz, Jehoiakim, and Jehoiachin in particular are guilty of injustice, abuse of power, and repression. And Judah's prophets (and priests) are no better. They, too, are corrupt and self-serving (23:9–40). The section concludes with a brief narrative that contrasts the fate of Judeans deported to Babylon with Jehoiachin and those left in the land under Zedekiah's rule.

21:1–10 One of the few texts in the first half of the book with a historical allusion: The narrative is set during the reign of King Zedekiah (597–586 BCE) when Nebuchadnezzar and his Babylonian forces were waging war against Jerusalem. During this time, Zedekiah sends a delegation to Jeremiah to seek counsel and aid from the Lord. His envoy Pashhur, who isn't the same person mentioned in Jeremiah 20 (see, however, Jer 38:1), and the priest Zephaniah (Jer 29:25, 29; 52:24) ask Jeremiah to intercede on the king's behalf. Such a request for God's help has strong historical precedent. The Bible is full of stories in which God comes to the aid of people in distress (see Gen 18:14; Exod 3:20; Pss 31:21; 107:8, 15, 21). But the Lord refuses to be Zedekiah's savior (21:3–7). God is intent on delivering the king into the clutches of Nebuchadnezzar. The people, moreover, are urged to leave the city and surrender to Babylon in obedience to God. The phrase the way of life and the way of death (21:8) recalls the choice afforded to Israel on the plains of Moab (Deut 30:19; see Josh 24:15). In contrast to their ancestors, however, the way of life no longer involves living in the land but living outside the land under Babylonian captivity. "Life" now involves mere survival.

21:11–14 The oracle can be read as part of the response to Zedekiah's plea for divine help or as a general statement addressed to Judah's Davidic kings. It says that the king's and who say, "Who will come down to attack us?

Who will breach our fortresses?"

- <sup>11</sup>I will punish you based on what you have done, declares the LORD.
I will set your<sup>7</sup> forests on fire;
the flames will engulf everything around you.<sup>8</sup>

Oracles against the kings

22 The LORD proclaims: Go down to the palace of the king of Judah and declare this message: <sup>2</sup>Listen to the LORD's word, king of Judah, you who sit on David's throne—you and your attendants, and all those who go through these gates. <sup>3</sup>The LORD proclaims: Do what is just and right; rescue the oppressed from the power of the oppressor. Don't exploit or mistreat the refugee, the orphan, and the widow. Don't spill the blood of the innocent in this place. <sup>4</sup>If you obey this command, then through the gates of this palace will come kings who occupy the throne of David, riding on chariots and horses along with their entourage and subjects. <sup>5</sup>But if you ignore these words, I swear by myself, declares the LORD, that this palace will become a ruin. <sup>6</sup>The LORD proclaims concerning the palace of the king of Judah:

Though you are like Gilead to me, like the summit of Lebanon,
I will turn you into a desert—uninhabited cities.

- <sup>7</sup>I will summon destroyers against you, who will use their weapons to cut down your finest cedars and hurl them into the fire.

<sup>8</sup>People from many nations will pass by this city and ask each other: "Why has the LORD treated that great city like this?" <sup>9</sup>And the answer will be, "Because they abandoned the covenant with the LORD their God and worshipped and served other gods."

- <sup>10</sup>Don't weep or lament for the dead king.<sup>9</sup>

Weep instead for the one who has gone away, for he will never return to see his native soil.

<sup>11</sup>This is what the LORD says about Shallum son of Judah's King Josiah, who succeeded his father Josiah as king but who is now gone from this place: He will never return! <sup>12</sup>He will die where he's been exiled and never see this land again.

- <sup>13</sup>How terrible for Jehoiakim, who builds his house with corruption and his upper chambers with injustice, working his countrymen for nothing, refusing to give them their wages.

- <sup>14</sup>He says, "I'll build myself a grand palace, with huge upper chambers, ornate windows, cedar paneling, and rich red decor."

- <sup>15</sup>Is this what makes you a king, having more cedar than anyone else?
Didn't your father eat and drink and still do what was just and right?
Then it went well for him!

- <sup>16</sup>He defended the rights of the poor and needy;
then it went well.

Isn't that what it means to know me? declares the LORD.

fundamental role is to be the custodian of justice. Rulers must protect and care for their people, especially those who are disadvantaged and deprived of justice (e.g., Isa 1:16-17; 11:1-9; see also Deut 17:14-20). your forests: likely refers to the royal palaces and their grounds (1 Kgs 7:2; 10:17, 21).

22:1-9 The future of the Davidic dynasty—understood by many as sure and unending—depends on obedience to the divine mandate to do what is just and right. The Lord's charge to an unidentified Judean king and the royal house of David in general exposes the failure of the monarchy and explains (to survivors and neighbors) what led to the nation's ruin.

22:10-30 A series of oracles that condemn specific Judean kings. These harsh accusations often take the form of a funeral song. The text expresses the profound sadness and rage of the surviving Judean community.

22:10-12 The series begins with a brief poem that speaks of the fate of Shallum (Jehoahaz) as more distressing than the death of his father, Josiah (2 Kgs 23:28-30; see also 2 Kgs 23:31-35).

22:13-19 Next in line for critique and mourning is Jehoiakim. Portrayed as the antithesis of the good king, this ruler is accused of corruption and injustice, cruelty and oppression (see also 2 Kgs 23:36-24:7). The relative clause who builds his house is usually taken as an allusion to the royal residence, especially in light of the parallel verse, and his upper chambers. But the poet may also be imagining the empire itself, built, as many believed, on the backs of fellow Judeans (see 1 Kgs 5:13; 11:28; Deut 24:14-15). In your lovers taken off to exile.

 Then you will be embarrassed and humiliated by all your wickedness.

 who will pity you<sup>b</sup> when you are overcome in pain, like that of childbirth?

<sup>24</sup> As surely as I live, declares the LORD, even if Coniah,<sup>c</sup> King Jehoiakim's son from Judah were a signet ring on my right hand, I would still remove you from there. <sup>25</sup> I would hand you over to those who seek to kill you, those you dread, even Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar and his army. <sup>26</sup> I will banish you and your mother who bore you to a land far from your native soil, and there the two of you will die. <sup>27</sup> You<sup>e</sup> will never return to the land you<sup>f</sup> long to go back to.

 Why then have he and his children been hurled out and cast into an unfamiliar land?

 Mark this man as childless;
 he will not prosper during his lifetime.

None of his children will sit on David's throne and rule again in Judah.

Promise of restoration

23 Watch out, you shepherds who destroy and scatter the sheep of my pasture, declares the LORD. <sup>2</sup>This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, proclaims about the shepherds who "tend to" my people: You are the ones who have scattered my flock and driven them away. You haven't attended to their needs, so I will take revenge on you for the terrible things you have done to them, declares the LORD. <sup>3</sup>I myself will gather the few remaining sheep from all contrast to Jehoiakim, who shows little regard for God's people or God's word, stands King Josiah, whose fame isn't derived from amassing wealth and erecting massive arrangements but by practicing justice and defending the poor (22:15-16). When Josiah cares for the poor and needy, he knows the Lord.

22:20-23 a somewhat obscure poem addressed to an unknown female figure. These verses are likely included here because they refer to shepherds (kings) and cedar (Jer 22:7, 14, 15), which brings to mind the extravagant building projects of kings.

22:24-30 The last king to be censured is Coniah (or Jehoiachin), who reigned for only three months in Jerusalem in 597 BCE (2 Kgs 24:8-12). Because of an intensive prophetic effort, many people believed that Jehoiachin would return from exile and restore the kingdom. But the Lord resolves through a solemn pledge to banish Coniah and the queen mother (Nehushta) to a distant land, never to return to Jerusalem (22:24-27). The judgment oracle (22:28-30) kills any hope for Coniah or his descendants to sit on David's throne. The exact form of the Hebrew word translated childless in 22:30 appears in Genesis 15:2. Unlike the barrenness of Abram (and Sarai), however, the childlessnessness of Coniah (i.e., the lack of heir to the throne) symbolizes the end of the line. There is no hope for his royal aspirations or for the continuation of the kingship as it was long known in Judah.

23:1-8 Three brief comments punctuate the collection on kings or shepherds, as they are frequently called (23:1-4, 5-6, 7-8). The first denounces shepherds for failing to care the countries where I have driven them. I will bring them back to their pasture, and they will be fruitful and multiply. <sup>4</sup>I will place over them shepherds who care for them. Then they will no longer be afraid or dread harm, nor will any be missing, declares the LORD.

Promise of a righteous and just king

<sup>5</sup>The time is coming, declares the LORD, when I will raise up a righteous descendant<sup>6</sup> from David's line, and he will rule as a wise king. He will do what is just and right in the land. <sup>6</sup>During his lifetime, Judah will be saved and Israel will live in safety. And his name will be The LORD Is Our Righteousness.<sup>h</sup>

<sup>7</sup>So the time is coming, declares the LORD, when no one will say, "As the LORD lives who brought up the Israelites from the land of Egypt." <sup>8</sup>Instead, they will say, "As the LORD lives who brought up the descendants of the people of Israel from the land of the north and from all the lands where he<sup>1</sup> has banished them so that they can live in their own land."

Oracles against the prophets

<sup>9</sup>As for the prophets:

My heart inside me is broken; my body aches.<sup>1</sup>

I stagger like a drunk who has had too much wine to drink, because of the LORD and because of God's holy words.

<sup>10</sup>Because the country teems with adulterers, because of them,<sup>h</sup> yes, because their might isn't right and their way is evil,
the land dries up, and the grazing areas in the wilderness wither.<sup>1</sup>

I even find their evil in my temple, declares the LORD.

<sup>12</sup>Therefore, they will find themselves on slippery ground and will be thrust into darkness, where they will collapse.

I will bring disaster upon them, when their time comes, declares the LORD.

They prophesied by Baal and led astray my people Israel.

They commit adultery and tell lies.

for the flock (cf. Ezek 34:1-10) and then imagines God, the ideal shepherd (see Ps 23; Ezek 34:11-16), restoring the flock to safe pastures. God will see to it that the sheep are fruitful and multiply, recalling the divine blessing at creation (Gen 1:28), and live without fear of harm. Then God promises to raise up a wise and just king from David's lineage who will fulfill the duties of kingship (23:5; cf. Jer 22:3). The name of this ideal king is The Lord Is Our Righteousness (23:6), which is a play on and contrast to the disappointing King Zedekiah (see Jer 33:16; Isa 11:1-5). The next comment speaks of homecoming from exile (23:7-8). Like the second exodus out of Babylon in Isaiah (Isa 43:14-21; 51:9-11), the people's deliverance from exile—their new exodus and return to their homeland—is spoken of as an extraordinary event that eclipses the memory of the great exodus out of Egypt. This is one of the few passages in Jeremiah 1-25 in which the term north is used for future deliverance (see also Jer 3:12, 18; 16:15). It is significant that in this segment the characteristics of ideal rulers/kings pertain to domestic affairs—how the kings treat their own people—and not foreign affairs.

23:9-40 The longest discussion of prophecy—or more precisely the failure of prophecy—in the Bible. It can be broken down into the following parts: a brief introduction (23:9a), a lament of Jeremiah that turns into a divine charge (23:9b-12), an announcement of judgment against prophets from Samaria and Jerusalem (23:13-15), an admonition to readers not to listen to the prophets proclaiming peace and well-being (23:16-24), a warning concerning the dreams of the prophets (23:25-28b), the Lord's clear-cut stand against the prophets (23:28c-32), and a play on the Hebrew word for message or "burden" of the Lord (23:33-39). These sharp condemnations reflect deep tensions in the surviving community over divine authority. The collection of oracles serves to prove Jeremiah's authenticity as God's spokesperson over against the words of his opponents.

23:9a As for the prophets: a title for the section, a rare occurrence in Jeremiah. Here and elsewhere in this section, prophets are never referred to as "false prophets," but simply as prophets without authority to speak God's word. Such prophets speak falsely.

23:9b-12 Jeremiah is grief-stricken over the failure of the prophets. Their failure takes an enormous toll on him physically and on the land. The fallout of godless prophets and priests is thus personal, social, and ecological. As suggested by his drunken state, Jeremiah is also deeply wounded (or driven mad) by God's holy words.

23:13-15 prophets of Samaria: the capital of the former northern state of Israel. prophets of Jerusalem: the capital of southern Judah. This is a wholesale condemnation of the prophetic enterprise. Jerusalem prophets are lumped with those who speak in the name of the Canaanite god Baal. Both stand under God's judgment, as the allusion to Sodom and Gomorrah drives home.

23:16-24 The community isn't to be taken in by prophets who promise national well-being and security (e.g., Haniah and others in Jer 28-29). Their vision of the future is attractive, but it doesn't derive from God: They haven't stood in the LORD's council (23:18, see 1 Kgs 22; Ps 82; Job 1-2; the divine council is usually understood as the heavenly court over which the Lord presides). The critique doesn't consider the motivation or intentions of these prophets. Nor does it comment on their sincerity or morality. It only says that God hasn't sent them, so their words and visions lack divine authority. Jeremiah is capable of prophesying peace as well (see Jer 30-33), but his oracles of hope are an outgrowth of a radical program of destabilizing Judah's entire social and theological value systems (Jer 1:10). Jeremiah's honesty, however painful, makes peace and survival possible. God isn't a domesticated, local deity but a God who fills heaven and earth (23:23-24).

23:25-28b a development of the previous accusation with a focus on prophetic dreams. The motives of lying prophets now come under scrutiny. They are accused of scheming (like Jeremiah's adversaries noted in Jer 11:9; 18:18) and are said to be treacherous. How long (23:26) is a painful question often posed in laments (Pss 6:3; 74:10; 80:4; Isa 6:11; Hab 1:2; Jer 12:4). Here it is asked by God. 23:28c-32 In the strongest and most plain language thus far, this poem impresses on the reader the difference between prophetic messages that derive from the Lord (my

With their reckless lies, they lead my people astray.

I didn't send them;

I didn't commission them.

They are completely useless to these people, declares the LORD.

<sup>33</sup>When these people or a prophet or a priest asks you, "What is the LORD's message?"<sup>n</sup> say to them, "What message? I will cast you off, declares the LORD." <sup>34</sup>I will punish anyone, including prophet or priest, who says, "This is the LORD's message." <sup>35</sup>This is what you should ask each other: "What has the LORD said?" "What has the LORD declared?" <sup>36</sup>But you are no longer to mention the LORD's message, because everyone thinks they have received a message from the LORD. You destroy the very word of the living God, the LORD of heavenly forces, our God. <sup>37</sup>So this is what you should say to the prophet: "What has the LORD said to you?" "What has the LORD declared?" <sup>38</sup>But if you insist on saying, "This is the LORD's message," the LORD says to you: Because you have made this claim—this is the LORD's message—when I told you not to proclaim the LORD's message, <sup>39</sup>I will lift you up<sup>o</sup> and cast you out of my presence, together with the city that I gave to your ancestors. <sup>40</sup>I will make you an object of disgrace and enduring shame that no one will ever forget.

Good and bad figs

24After Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar had deported Judah's King Jeconiah, King Jehoiakim's son, and the Judean officials, as well as the craftsmen and metalworkers from Jerusalem to Babylon, the LORD showed me two baskets of figs set in front of the LORD's temple. <sup>2</sup>One basket was filled with fresh and ripe figs; the other basket was filled with rotten figs—too rotten to eat. <sup>3</sup>And the LORD asked me: "What do you see, Jeremiah?" I replied: "Figs! Some good ones and others very bad—so bad that they can't be eaten."

<sup>4</sup>Then the LORD said to me: <sup>5</sup>The LORD, the God of Israel, proclaims: Just as with these good figs, I will treat kindly the Judean exiles that I have sent from this place to Babylon. <sup>6</sup>I regard them as good, and I will bring them back to this land. I will build them up and not pull them down; I will plant them and not dig them up. <sup>7</sup>I will give them a heart to know me, for I am the LORD. They will be my people, and I will be their God, for they will return to me with all their heart. <sup>8</sup>And just like the rotten figs that are so bad that they can't be eaten, the LORD says, I will do to Judah's King Zedekiah and his officials, as well as the remaining few in Jerusalem and those who are living in Egypt. <sup>9</sup>I will make them an object of horror and evil to all the kingdoms of the earth. Wherever I scatter them, they will be disgraced and insulted, mocked and cursed. <sup>10</sup>I will send the sword, famine, and disease against them until they vanish from the fertile land that I gave to their ancestors.

word like fire and like a hammer in 23:29) and those that don't (i.e., prophets who steal my words in 23:30); a difference no less blatant than that of straw and wheat. Note the first-person condemnations (I'm against in 23:30, 31, 32) and then the negation, I didn't send... I didn't commission (see also "I didn't send... I didn't speak to them" in Jer 23:21). Also note the repeated use of the phrase declares the LORD (23:28, 29, 30, 31, 32 [twice]). At stake here is nothing less than the future character of the Judean community.

23:33-40 A play on the double meaning of the phrase, "the LORD's message/burden." The Hebrew word massa' means either "burden" or "message" ("oracle"). Initially addressed to Jeremiah (23:33-34), God instructs Jeremiah to respond to inquiries by the people, prophets, or priests with an unmistakable message of judgment. God addresses the people, prophets, or priests (23:35-39) and demands that they no longer prophesy in the LORD's name. Their messages destroy the very word of the living God (23:36). When they disobey and prophesy, they become a "burden" that God will lift... up (a play on the same Hebrew word massa') and cast away.

24:1-10 Dated to the period shortly after the relocation of King Jeconiah (Jehoiachin) and many of the leading citizens to Babylon (between 597 and 587 BCE), this simple vision report is similar to Jeremiah's call (see Jer 1:11-18; see sidebar, "Prophetic Beginnings" at Jer 1). two baskets of figs: Compare with Amos 7:7-9; 8:1-3. These baskets of figs symbolize the fate of two groups of Judeans: the Jeconiah group exiled to Babylon and the Zedekiah group left in the land. The oracle concerning the former employs the encouraging language of the call narrative: God promises to build them up and not pull them down... plant them and not dig them up (24:6; cf. Jer 1:10). God regards the exiles as good, and promises to bring them back to the land and give them a heart to know the Lord (24:7). The oracle concerning the latter also employs familiar language, but it is language of death (24:9-10; see Jer 15:4; 25:9, 18; 29:17, 18; 34:17; 38:2; 49:13). The vision turns ordinary expectations upside down: The fate of exile is a covenant blessing, and

A summary of Jeremiah's message

25 Jeremiah received the LORD's word concerning all the people of Judah in the fourth year of Judah's King Jehoiakim, Josiah's son. This was the first year of Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar. <sup>2</sup>The prophet Jeremiah addressed all the people of Judah and all those living in Jerusalem. <sup>3</sup>From the thirteenth year of Judah's King Josiah, Amon's son, to this very day—twenty-three years—the LORD's word has come to me. I have delivered it to you repeatedly, although you wouldn't listen. <sup>4</sup>In fact, the LORD has tirelessly sent you all his servants, the prophets, but you wouldn't listen or pay attention. <sup>5</sup>They said, "Each one of you, turn from your evil ways and deeds and live in the fertile land that the LORD gave you and your ancestors for all time. <sup>6</sup>Don't follow or worship other gods and don't anger me by what you make with your hands. Then I won't bring disaster upon you." <sup>7</sup>But you wouldn't listen to me, making me angry by what you do and bringing disaster upon yourselves, declares the LORD.

<sup>8</sup>Therefore, this is what the LORD of heavenly forces says: Because you haven't listened to my words, <sup>9</sup>I am going to muster all the tribes of the north and my servant King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, declares the LORD, and I will bring them against this country and its residents as well as against all the surrounding nations. I will completely destroy them and will make them an object of horror, shock, and ruins for all time. <sup>10</sup>I will silence the sounds of joy and laughter and the voices of the bride and the bridegroom. Yes, I will silence the millstones and snuff out the lamplight. <sup>11</sup>This whole country will be reduced to a wasteland, and these nations will serve the king of Babylon for seventy years. <sup>12</sup>When the seventy years are over, I will punish the king of Babylon and his nation for their wrongdoing, declares the LORD. I will reduce the land of the Babylonians to a wasteland for all time. <sup>13</sup>I will unleash upon that land everything I decreed, all that is written in this scroll, which Jeremiah prophesied against all the nations. <sup>14</sup>Yes, many great nations and powerful kings will enslave them, and I will pay them back in full for what they have done and made with their hands.

<sup>15</sup>This is what the LORD, God of Israel, said to me: Take this seething cup of wine from my hand and make all the nations gulp it down where I'm sending you. <sup>16</sup>They will drink and stagger about half-crazed because of the sword that I am sending against them.

<sup>17</sup>So I took the cup from the LORD's hand, and I made all the nations drink from it where the LORD had sent me: <sup>18</sup>Jerusalem and the towns of Judah, its kings and officials. This was to make them a wasteland, an object of horror, shock, and cursing, as it is today; <sup>19</sup>Pharaoh, Egypt's king, his attendants and officials, and all his people, <sup>20</sup>including the foreigners<sup>P</sup> living there; all the kings of the land of Uz; all the kings of the land of the Philistines—Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and what's left of Ashdod; <sup>21</sup>Edom, Moab, and the Ammonites; <sup>22</sup>all land occupation is a covenant curse. Jeremiah's sympathies lie with the Judean survivors living in Babylon, so he insists that Israel's future is in their hands.

25:1-38 A world uprooted and overthrown. The final chapter of the first half of the book of Jeremiah. It summarizes 23 years of Jeremiah's prophetic ministry as a period of sin and judgment and concludes with the prophet's oracles against the nations in fulfillment of his call (Jer 1:4-10). The chapter has three parts: a sermon that encapsulates the first stage of Jeremiah's prophetic ministry (25:1-14), the cup of divine wrath that the nations must drink (25:15-29), and images of the cosmic disaster (25:30-38).

25:1-14 The historical allusion is full of symbolic meaning: the year 605 BCE, the first year of Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar, signals the beginning of the end for Judah. Henceforth, Judah will live under Babylonian control. The thirteenth year of Judah's King Josiah (25:3; see Jer 1:2) is the beginning of Jeremiah's prophetic activity. The sermon imitates many of the great speeches in the Bible, especially key addresses in the Deuteronomistic History (i.e., Deut-2 Kgs; see, e.g., 2 Kgs 17:13-23). The Lord sends prophets to warn Israel and urge a change in behavior (25:4-6). Israel doesn't heed their message (25:7). God therefore brings judgment in the form of disaster, or more precisely Israel brings disaster on itself (25:7). The words wouldn't listen or haven't listened occur four times in the sermon (25:3, 4, 7, 8), demonstrating that God's people have rejected frequent invitations to return (25:8-14). The language of sin and judgment makes the traumatic events rationally manageable for survivors. It says that suffering isn't arbitrary. Finally, the sermon both vindicates Jeremiah as a true prophet and emphasizes his role as God's voice to the nations (25:13-14). In the Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible, the collection of oracles against the nations found in the Hebrew text of Jeremiah 46-51 follows Jeremiah 25:13 (although the oracles themselves aren't in the same order as they appear in the Hebrew text). Note also that it is uncertain whether the allusion to seventy years (25:11, 12; see also Jer 29:10; Isa 23:15, 17; Dan 9:2; Zech 7:5) is literal or metaphorical. It may symbolize a normal human life span (cf. Ps 90:10).

25:15-29 Oracles against the nations are common in the prophetic literature (e.g., Isa 13-23; Jer 46-51; Ezek 25-32; Amos 1-2; Zeph 2:4-15). This relatively brief text takes the form of a symbolic action in which God instructs Jeremiah to make the nations drink from the cup of divine wrath.

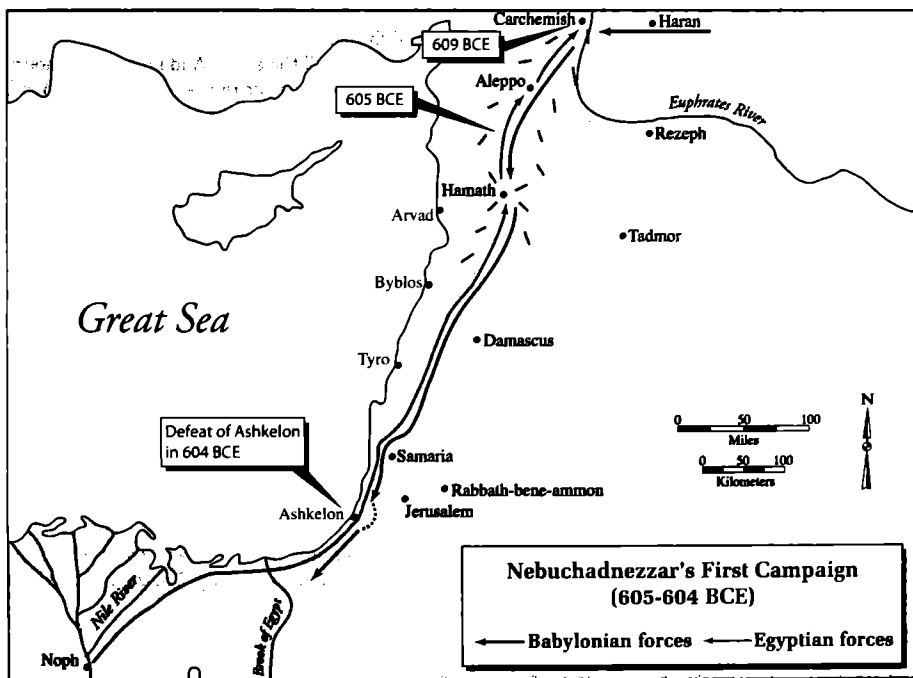

the kings of Tyre and Sidon, and the kings of the coastlands across the sea; <sup>23</sup>Dedan, Tema, Buz, and all those who cut the hair of their foreheads; <sup>24</sup>all the kings of Arabia and the nomadic tribes, <sup>25</sup>all the kings of Zimri, <sup>26</sup>Elam, and Media; <sup>26</sup>all the kings of the north, those nearby and those faraway, one after another, all the empires on the earth will drink from this cup. <sup>27</sup>And after them the king of Sheshach<sup>a</sup> will drink from it.

<sup>27</sup>Then say to them: The LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: Drink this seething cup of wine and get drunk. Vomit and collapse and don't get up again because of the sword that I'm thrusting into you. <sup>28</sup>If they refuse to take the cup in your hand and drink from it, tell them: This is what the LORD of heavenly forces says: You must drink! <sup>29</sup>Look! I'm bringing disaster upon the city that bears my name; how then will you escape unpunished? You will not! I'm summoning the sword against everyone on earth, declares the LORD of heavenly forces.

The LORD roars on high;
 from his holy place he thunders.
 He roars fiercely against his flock, like the shouting of those who tread on grapes, against everyone on earth.

The image of the cup (of punishment and comfort) is common in the Bible (see Jer 16:7; 49:12; 51:7; Lam 4:21; Ezek 23:31-33; Hab 2:16; Pss 16:5; 23:5; Gen 40: 44). Judgment oracles against the nations often imply salvation and survival for Israel. But in this case Jerusalem and the towns of Judah, along with their leaders, are the first to drink from the cup. the king of Sheshach: a cryptic allusion to Babylon's ruler (25:26), perhaps employed in this form because an explicit denunciation of the empire would be too dangerous for subject peoples. The core theological claim of this distasteful narrative is that the Lord, and not Babylon or any other political power, is in control of world events, however chaotic they might be. 25:30-38 This concluding section takes up the theme of a world under divine judgment. Although no particular crimes are listed, the nations are guilty before the Lord. So

A World Under Divine Judgment The first half of the book of Jeremiah, chapters 1–25, is distinctive in several respects: (1) it introduces readers to the prophetic hero who suffers ridicule, abuse, and rejection on account of his mission as God’s spokesperson; (2) It is full of explosive and passionate poetry that the sermons attempt to tame; (3) it urges the people of Judah to return to God in faithfulness and obedience; (4) it claims that God’s people have rejected God’s persistent appeals; (5) It envisions the entire world under divine judgment, with the family of God first in line to drink from the cup of God’s wrath; and therefore (6) It presents a strong defense of God’s justice. Jeremiah 25 functions as a hinge text that unites the two parts of the book. It brings to a close Jeremiah’s prophetic activity from its beginning in 627 BCE to the threatening fourth year of King Jehoiakim in 605/4 BCE—also the first year of King Nebuchadnezzar’s reign—and it declares in no uncertain terms that the divine work of “digging up and pulling down, destroying and demolishing” is well under way. This frightful tearing down of the world precedes God’s program of “building and planting,” which begins to take shape amid the wreckage in Jeremiah 26–52.

 because the LORD is bringing a lawsuit against the nations.
 He’s entering into judgment with all people, sentencing the guilty to death, declares the LORD.

<sup>32</sup> The LORD of heavenly forces proclaims:
 Look! Disaster travels from nation to nation.
 A terrible storm comes from the far ends of the earth.

<sup>33</sup> At that time, those struck down by the LORD will fill the earth. And no one will mourn for them or prepare their bodies for burial. They will become like refuse lying on the ground.

 Roll in the dust, you masters of the flock!
 The day of your slaughter has arrived.
 You will fall and shatter like a fragile vase.

 the masters of the flock can’t escape.

 and the sobbing of the masters of the flock, because the LORD is ravaging their pasture.

 because of the LORD’s fierce anger.

 and the land is reduced to nothing, because of the fierce sword,<sup>v</sup> because of his fierce anger.

Jeremiah arrested and sentenced to death

26 Early in the rule of Judah’s King Jehoiakim, Josiah’s son, this word came from the LORD: <sup>2</sup>The LORD proclaims: Stand in the temple courtyard and speak to all the people of the towns of Judah who have come to the temple to worship. Tell them everything:

God enters into judgment with all people (25:31). Familiar legal terminology is employed for God’s action: the Lord brings a lawsuit (or a dispute) against the nations. (The Hebrew word rib, translated as lawsuit here, appears also in Jer 2:9, 29; 11:20; 12:1; 20:12; 50:34; 51:36; see sidebar, “The End of the Covenant” at Jer 12). Accordingly, divine justice lies behind much of what is envisioned here. The Lord roars like a lion ready to pounce on nations (25:30; cf. Amos 1:2); the sounds of war echo throughout the world (25:31); a violent storm destroys all in its path (25:32–33); the slain of war fills the earth (25:33). Perhaps most terrifying is the eerie silence of a world reduced to nothing (25:37, 38). This deathscape brings to a close the first half of the book (Jer 1–25). Although the world is in total disorder,

God is still in control, and God’s word spoken by Jeremiah isn’t silenced.

26:1–52:34 Making sense of national tragedy. The second act of the prophetic drama tells the tragic story of the nation’s final days, which cover Nebuchadnezzar’s conquests, failed Judean revolts, and Gedaliah’s failed government. The book as a whole ends on a sad note with a summary: of the fall of Jerusalem, the burning of the temple, and the relocation of Judeans (Jer 52).

26:1–24 A new beginning: Jeremiah’s (second) temple sermon. This short temple sermon (see Jer 7:1–8:3 for the long version) focuses on the nation’s reaction to Jeremiah’s prophetic challenge regarding the fate of the temple and city. Factions of Judah’s leadership accuse Jeremiah of:

I command you; leave nothing out. <sup>3</sup>Perhaps they will listen and each will turn from their evil ways. If they do, I will relent and not carry out the harm I have in mind for them because of the wrong they have done. <sup>4</sup>So tell them, The LORD proclaims: If you don't listen to me or follow the Instruction I have set before you—<sup>5</sup>if you don't listen to the words of the prophets that I have sent to you time and again, though you haven't listened, <sup>6</sup>then I will make this temple a ruin like Shiloh, and this city I will make a curse before all nations on earth.

<sup>7</sup>The priests, the prophets, and all the people heard Jeremiah declare these words in the LORD's temple. <sup>8</sup>And when Jeremiah finished saying everything the LORD told him to say, the priests and the prophets and all the people seized him and said, "You must die! <sup>9</sup>Why do you prophesy in the LORD's name that 'this temple will become a ruin like Shiloh, and this city will be destroyed and left without inhabitant'?" Then all the people joined ranks against Jeremiah in the LORD's temple.

<sup>10</sup>When the officials of Judah heard these things, they went up from the royal palace to the LORD's temple and took their places at the entrance of the New Gate of the LORD's temple. <sup>11</sup>The priests and the prophets said to the officials and all the people: "This man deserves to die for prophesying against this city as you have all heard firsthand."

<sup>12</sup>Jeremiah said to all the officials and to all the people, "The LORD sent me to prophesy to this temple and this city everything you have heard. <sup>13</sup>So now transform your ways and actions. Obey the LORD your God, and the LORD may relent and not carry out the harm that he's pronounced against you. <sup>14</sup>But me? I'm in your hands. Do whatever you would like to me. <sup>15</sup>Only know for certain that if you sentence me to death, you and the people of this city will be guilty of killing an innocent man. The LORD has in fact sent me to speak everything I have said to you."

<sup>16</sup>Then the officials and all the people said to the priests and the prophets, "This man doesn't deserve to die, for he has spoken to us in the name of the LORD our God."

<sup>17</sup>A few of the community elders got up and addressed the whole crowd: <sup>18</sup>"Micah of Moresheth, who prophesied during the rule of Judah's Hezekiah, said to all the people of Judah, 'The LORD of heavenly forces proclaims:

Zion will be plowed down like a field,
Jerusalem will become piles of rubble, and the temple mount will become an overgrown mound.'

Glimmers of Hope Despite Jeremiah's demanding interaction with the Judean people and their leaders, glimmers of hope become apparent in the second part of the book. Jeremiah is still scolded and rejected by God's people, but now certain defenders emerge and come to Jeremiah's aid. These defenders include a number of ranking officials, community elders, and temple personnel, as well as Ahikam, Ebed-melech, and Baruch. In this way, the story of Jeremiah's suffering and the nation's losses is unexpectedly sprinkled, perhaps overlaid, with hope. We witness these signs of hope not only in (1) the presence of supporters who dare to speak and act on Jeremiah's behalf but also in (2) the scroll of comfort (Jer 30–31; 33), which imagines a world beyond war and exile, the restoration of land and king, and the prospect of a new covenant and a reunited nation; and in (3) the stunning and long-awaited announcement of Babylon's fall (Jer 50–51).

prophesying falsely (see Deut 18:20) and seek to put him to death. The narrative, however, emphasizes Jeremiah's deliverance and the courageous figures who prevent a miscarriage of justice. The narrative recaps Jeremiah's earlier prophecies while introducing themes that shape the second half of the book: Jeremiah's assault on the belief in the invincibility of Jerusalem and its temple, the mounting efforts by power brokers to silence Jeremiah, the guilt of the nation's leadership, the emergence of a faithful few, the influential role played by written prophecy, the sustained testimony of Jeremiah's truthfulness, and the survival of the prophet.

26:1–11 Jeremiah's sermon and sentence. The narrative is set at the beginning of King Jehoiakim's reign (608 BCE). This association with Jehoiakim, a reckless Judean ruler, is more than a historical reference. It is also a code word for moral failure and looming danger. Jeremiah's lengthy temple sermon of Jeremiah 7:1–8:3 is reduced to a warning about the consequences of disobedience: If the nation doesn't obey God, the capital city and its central shrine will be destroyed. Jeremiah's opponents can't tolerate his message, and they seek to have him killed (cf. Amos 7:10–17). Judean officials are alerted and assemble at the entrance of the New Gate (unknown location) of the temple for Jeremiah's hearing.

26:12–24 Jeremiah insists that he is speaking as a true prophet of God and is even willing to die at the hands of his accusers. For the first time in the book, supporters rally around Jeremiah. A few of the community elders appeal to written prophecy in Jeremiah's defense: Micah prophesied against Jerusalem (Mic 3:12) and was recognized as a true prophet. In fact King Hezekiah heeded his <sup>20</sup>There was another man who prophesied in the LORD’s name: Uriah, Shemaiah’s son from Kiriath-jearim. He prophesied the same things that Jeremiah did about this city and against this land. <sup>21</sup>When King Jehoiakim and all his warriors and officials heard his words, the king sought to kill him. Uriah heard of this and fled in fear to Egypt. <sup>22</sup>But King Jehoiakim dispatched Elnathan, Achbor’s son, and others to Egypt. <sup>23</sup>They brought Uriah back from Egypt to the king who had him killed, and his body was thrown into the common burial ground.

Submit to the king of Babylon and live

27Early in the rule of Judah’s King Zedekiah,<sup>w</sup> Josiah’s son, this word came to Jeremiah from the LORD: <sup>2</sup>This is what the LORD said to me: Make a yoke of straps and bars and wear it on your neck. <sup>3</sup>Then send word<sup>a</sup> to the kings of Edom, Moab, Ammon, Tyre, and Sidon through their representatives who have come to Jerusalem to Judah’s King Zedekiah! <sup>4</sup>Tell them to say to their masters: The LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: Say this to your masters:

<sup>5</sup>By my great power and outstretched arm, I have made the earth and the people and animals that are on it. I can give it to anyone I please. <sup>6</sup>Now I hand over all these countries to my servant King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon. I even give him the wild animals as subjects. <sup>7</sup>All nations will serve him, his son and grandson, until the time for his land arrives; then many nations and great kings will conquer him.

message and averted disaster. Jeremiah’s defenders point out another (otherwise unknown) prophet to strengthen his case: Uriah, Shemaiah’s son from Kiriath-jearim delivered a similar message in the Lord’s name against this city and . . . this land. Although King Jehoiakim had Uriah killed for his prophecy, his testimony lives on and functions here as historical example. Indeed, multiple witnesses (cf. Deut 17:6)—textual and historical—bear out Jeremiah’s innocence. Despite this persuasive evidence, Jeremiah’s life is still in grave danger—innocent prophets are still murdered—until Ahikam, Shaphan’s son, comes to his aid. The Shaphan family supported King Josiah, allies of Jeremiah, and leaders in Judah after the exile of 587 BCE (see 2 Kgs 22:3, 8-10; 25:22; Jer 29:3; 36:10-14; 40:5, 9, 11; 41:2). 27:1-28:17 Prophetic conflict over Babylonian rule. Linked by the yoke motif and the reference that same year (28:1), these chapters are set in the period between the first relocation of Judeans to Babylon (597 BCE) and the fall of Jerusalem (587). The Babylonian armies had invaded Judah, plundered the Jerusalem temple, and deported many of Judah’s leading citizens to Babylon. Within a decade, the temple would be burned to the ground, and other Judeans would be relocated in the east. During the in-between years, priests, prophets, and people in Judah struggle to come to grips with the unfolding events and their implications for national life. What does the military invasion mean politically and theologically? Will the Lord deliver as in days past? What will become of the Judean refugees as well as the temple treasures hauled off to Babylon? How long must the community endure foreign control? Perhaps fueled by unrest in Babylon and political developments in Egypt, an international coalition of nations emerges that resists Babylonian power. At the same time a strong ideological rift surfaces in Judah. Some, including King Zedekiah and the prophet Hananiah, encourage rebellion. Jeremiah, in contrast, promotes submission to Babylon in preparation for long-term captivity. Both perspectives claim divine authority. And both hold serious ramifications for the future of the Judean community: 27:1-11 The text is dated Early in the rule (or at the beginning) of Judah’s King Zedekiah. God commands Jeremiah to wear a yoke of straps and bars (27:2), an instrument ordinarily used across the neck of oxen to pull heavy loads! Here the yoke symbolizes servitude to Babylonian rule. Jeremiah is to deliver the Lord’s message to a delegation of foreign ministers who are in Jerusalem to meet with King Zedekiah. God’s word through Jeremiah is extremely disturbing. The prophet insists that the ambassadors persuade their kings to surrender unconditionally to Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, as if to God. Resistance to Babylonian rule will result in further destruction. Submission, or putting their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, will lead to life or survival. Although one could make this argument on regional and political grounds alone—resistance to the empire is doomed to failure—Jeremiah’s claims are rooted in God’s authority <sup>12</sup>I delivered the same message to Judah's King Zedekiah: If you want to live, put your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon and serve him and his people. <sup>13</sup>Why should you and your people die by sword, famine, and disease, as the LORD pronounced against any nation that won't serve the king of Babylon? <sup>14</sup>Pay no attention to the words of the prophets who encourage you not to serve the king of Babylon, for they are lying to you. <sup>15</sup>I haven't sent these prophets, declares the LORD; they are prophesying falsely in my name. If you listen to them, I will drive you out, and you will perish, both you and your prophets!

<sup>16</sup>Then I spoke to the priests and all this people: This is what the LORD says: Don't listen to the words of the prophets who are prophesying to you, "In a short while, the temple equipment will be brought back from Babylon." They are prophesying a lie to you. <sup>17</sup>Don't listen to them; serve the king of Babylon and live. Otherwise, this city will be reduced to ruin. <sup>18</sup>If they are really prophets and have the LORD's word, let them intercede with the LORD of heavenly forces not to let the equipment left in the LORD's temple and in the royal palace of Judah and Jerusalem be carted off to Babylon.

28 That same year, early in the rule of Judah's King Zedekiah, in the fifth month of his fourth year, the prophet Hananiah, Azzur's son from Gibeon, spoke to me in the LORD's temple before the priests and all the people. <sup>2</sup>He said: "The LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon. <sup>3</sup>In two years I will restore to this place all of the temple equipment that Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar carted off to Babylon. <sup>4</sup>I will also restore to this place Judah's King Jeconiah, Jehoiakim's son, along with all the exiles from Judah who were deported to Babylon, for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon, declares the LORD."

<sup>5</sup>Then the prophet Jeremiah responded to Hananiah in the presence of the priests and all the people who were standing in the LORD's temple. <sup>6</sup>The prophet Jeremiah said: "Indeed. May the LORD do just as you have said! May the LORD fulfill the words that you have prophesied and bring back from Babylon the equipment of the LORD's temple and all the exiles to this place. <sup>7</sup>However, listen closely to what I have to say to you and all the people: <sup>8</sup>The prophets who came before you and me long ago prophesied war, disaster, and disease against many lands and great kingdoms. <sup>9</sup>So the prophet who prophesies peace is recognized as one who is actually sent by the LORD only when that prophet's message is fulfilled."

27:12-22 Jeremiah tells the same message to King Zedekiah (27:12-15): Judah's survival depends on submission to Babylonian rule. Resistance will lead to further bloodshed. Zedekiah must not be fooled by prophets who suggest otherwise. God hasn't sent these prophets. They are prophesying falsely in [the Lord's] name. Then Jeremiah addresses the priests and all this people (27:16-22). They also must submit to Babylon and not be fooled by prophets who promise the speedy return of the looted temple treasures. God states through Jeremiah that the remaining treasures from the temple and the royal palace will soon be carried off to Babylon (27:19-22; see 2 Kgs 25:13-17), but eventually they will be returned to Jerusalem (see Ezra 1:7-11).

28:1-17 This story develops the theme of prophetic conflict over how the nation should respond to Babylonian control. the fifth month of his fourth year: 593 BCE (28:1). Hananiah, Azzur's son from Gibeon: the Greek version (LXX) of the Hebrew Bible refers to Hananiah as a false prophet, but he isn't identified this way in the Hebrew text. Hananiah is a genuine prophet. His name means "the Lord is gracious." He speaks in the Lord's name, and he is authorized to prophesy in the temple. He uses customary prophetic language and symbolic actions, and his message is similar to Isaiah's: God will save Jerusalem and its king from their enemies. All this complicates a story that paints Hananiah in the worst possible light (e.g., Jer 27:16-17; cf. Deut 18:20).

28:1-4 Hananiah directly challenges the Lord's word proclaimed by Jeremiah. King Jeconiah: known also as Jehoiachin.

28:5-9 Jeremiah's response, Indeed (or "Amen") is difficult to interpret. It could be a cynical reaction to Hananiah's stance, or it could be an expression of hope that God will "indeed" intervene on Judah's behalf. Jeremiah's even prays that such will be the case. Nevertheless, Jeremiah has serious doubts for two reasons: as a rule prophets deliver messages of doom, and on the rare occasion they <sup>10</sup>Then the prophet Hananiah took hold of the yoke that was on the prophet Jeremiah's neck and broke it. <sup>11</sup>He said before all the people, "This is what the LORD says: Just as this yoke has been broken, I will break the yoke of Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar from the neck of all the nations within two years." Then the prophet Jeremiah walked away.

<sup>15</sup>Then the prophet Jeremiah said to the prophet Hananiah: "Listen, Hananiah! The LORD hasn't sent you. All you are doing is persuading these people to believe a lie. <sup>16</sup>Therefore, the LORD proclaims: I'm going to send you somewhere—right off the face of the earth! Before the year ends, you will die since you have incited rebellion against the LORD." <sup>17</sup>The prophet Hananiah died in the seventh month<sup>b</sup> of that year.

Disturbing hope: Settle down in Babylon

29 The prophet Jeremiah sent a letter from Jerusalem to the few surviving elders among the exiles, to the priests and the prophets, and to all the people Nebuchadnezzar had taken to Babylon from Jerusalem. <sup>2</sup>The letter was sent after King Jeconiah, the queen mother, the court officials, the government leaders of Judah and Jerusalem, and the craftsmen and smiths had left Jerusalem. <sup>3</sup>It was delivered to Babylon by Elasah, Shaphan's son, and Gemariah, Hilkiyah's son—two men dispatched to Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar by King Zedekiah.

deliver a message of peace, their prophecy is recognized as true only when it is fulfilled (a deviation from Deut 18:9-22).

28:10-11 Hananiah breaks the wooden yoke on Jeremiah's neck to show that God will break the iron grip of Babylon on all the nations and to demonstrate the superiority of his message to Jeremiah's message.

28:12-14 Jeremiah reenters the fray with an iron yoke to symbolize the certainty and power of Babylon's monopoly over the nations.

28:15-17 With the fulfillment of Jeremiah's prediction of Hananiah's death, the story comes to an end. The final word serves to confirm the truthfulness of Jeremiah's prophecy, especially from a Deuteronomist perspective (Deut 18:15-22, especially 18:20).

29:1-32 Jeremiah's disturbing hope: put down roots in Babylon. Jeremiah 29:1-32 is often read in conjunction with Jeremiah 27:1-28:17 since it also addresses matters related to the period between the first relocation of Judeans to Babylon (597 BCE) and the fall of Jerusalem (587). The three chapters concentrate on the controversy over the length and the meaning of the exile for survivors. Because of the word the Lord entrusted to him, Jeremiah is convinced that the exile will be long and have profound implications for the ongoing character of community life. Jeremiah's opponents expect the exile to be brief and have few long-term consequences. They champion belief in Judah's continued nationhood after a brief interlude of Babylonian control. Their perspective is rooted in God's commitment to David and the Jerusalem temple, as God's everlasting dwelling place. And they are willing to risk their lives in support of an anti-Babylonian stance. At issue is Judah's posture towards the empire, whether it should resist or submit to Babylonian rule. At stake is the very survival of God's people. These conflicting views come to the fore in Jeremiah 29 in letters written by Jeremiah (29:1-23) and Shemaiah (29:24-28), and they are given further emphasis by Jeremiah's condemnation of Shemaiah as a false prophet (29:29-32).

29:1-23 Jeremiah writes or sends a letter to Judean exiles in Babylon. Letters are common in the NT, but they are rare in the OT (see 2 Sam 11:14-15; 1 Kgs 21:8-10; Ezra 7:11-26). Rarer still are letters written or dictated by prophets (2 Chron 21:12-15). The writing of scrolls, however, plays an important role in Jeremiah (see Jer 25:13; 30:1-2; 36:1-32; 45:1; 51:59-64).

29:1-3 The letter is full of details, including Jeremiah's location (in Jerusalem), the recipients of his letter (elders . . . people), the time of delivery (after King Jehoiachin [Jeconiah]; the queen mother, Nehushta; and others had left Jerusalem), and the couriers (Elasah and Gemariah).

29:4-14 The letter provides God's instruction's for life in Babylon: The Judean refugees in Babylon are to settle down and attend to the needs of family and community. They are to promote the welfare of Babylon (not Jerusalem!) and refrain from engaging in violence against the empire (see Deut 20:1-9). God promises the exiles a hopeful future, including eventual homecoming (seventy years, i.e., a long time or a lifetime; see Jer 25:11). But this future is unsettling since it destabilizes their old and settled world.

<sup>8</sup>The LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: Don't let the prophets and diviners in your midst mislead you. Don't pay attention to your dreams. <sup>9</sup>They are prophesying lies to you in my name. I didn't send them, declares the LORD.

<sup>10</sup>The LORD proclaims: When Babylon's seventy years are up, I will come and fulfill my gracious promise to bring you back to this place. <sup>11</sup>I know the plans I have in mind for you, declares the LORD; they are plans for peace, not disaster, to give you a future filled with hope. <sup>12</sup>When you call me and come and pray to me, I will listen to you. <sup>13</sup>When you search for me, yes, search for me with all your heart, you will find me. <sup>14</sup>I will be present for you, declares the LORD, and I will end your captivity. I will gather you from all the nations and places where I have scattered you, and I will bring you home after your long exile," declares the LORD.

<sup>16</sup>This is what the LORD proclaims concerning the king sitting on David's throne and all the people who live in this city, that is, those among you who didn't go into exile: <sup>17</sup>The LORD of heavenly forces proclaims: I'm going to send the sword, famine, and disease against them. I will make them like rotten figs that are too spoiled to eat. <sup>18</sup>I will pursue them with the sword, famine, and disease; and I will make them an object of horror to all nations on earth and an object of cursing, scorn, shock, and disgrace among all the countries where I have scattered them, <sup>19</sup>because they wouldn't listen to my words, declares the LORD, which I sent them time and again through my servants the prophets. They<sup>d</sup> wouldn't listen, declares the LORD.

<sup>20</sup>But now, all you exiles I deported from Jerusalem to Babylon, listen to the LORD's word. <sup>21</sup>This is what the LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims concerning Ahab, Kolaiah's son, and Zedekiah, Maaseiah's son, who are prophesying lies to you in my name: I will hand them over to Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar, and he will slay them before your very eyes. <sup>22</sup>Because of them, all the Judean exiles in Babylon will use this curse: "The LORD make you like Zedekiah and Ahab, who were burned alive by the king of Babylon." <sup>23</sup>They committed a horrible scandal in Israel—adultery with their neighbors' wives and deceit spoken in my name, with which I had nothing to do. Yet I'm still aware of it and am witness to it, declares the LORD.

Although God's intentions for them are gracious (29:11), the Judean refugees must contend with displacement and loss. Jeremiah 29:13 is a modified quotation of Deuteronomy 4:29.

29:15-23 The text moves with little warning from disturbing salvation (Jer 29:4-14) to disturbing judgment (29:15-19), and then to a denunciation of two otherwise unknown prophets (29:20-23). The focus shifts initially from the Judean exiles in Babylon to King Zedekiah and people with him in Jerusalem (i.e., who don't go into exile). The Jerusalem contingent will suffer the terrible consequences of war because it doesn't heed the word of God spoken by the prophets (to submit to Babylon). As in Jeremiah 24, the king and those left in Judah are likened to rotten figs. Such language supports the Judean exiles in Babylon (and specifically the exiles who return to Judah years later) as heirs of God's promises. With them—and not the remnant in Judah—rests the future of Israel. Jeremiah 29:16-20, the condemnation of those who remain in Judah, are a later interpretive comment that is absent in the LXX. Ahab and Zedekiah: otherwise unknown prophets.

29:24-32 Shemaiah: a prophet in Babylon who writes the deputy priest Zephaniah and demands that he fulfill his priestly duty (as guardian) and deal with Jeremiah for his subversive letter to the exiles (29:28 summarizes Jer 29:4-14, see especially 29:5). According to Shemaiah, Jeremiah is a madman (29:26) who must be locked up and silenced. And it's Zephaniah's responsibility to do so (see also Jer 21:1; 52:24). Zephaniah reads Shemaiah's letter to Jeremiah, and in response Jeremiah sends another letter to he convinced you to believe a lie, <sup>32</sup>I will punish Shemaiah the Nehelamite and his descendants, declares the LORD. Not one member of this people will be around to see the good that I have in store for my people, declares the LORD, for he incited rebellion against me.

THE SCROLL OF COMFORT

Healing and restoration for my people

30 Jeremiah received the LORD's word: <sup>2</sup>The LORD, the God of Israel, proclaims: Write down in a scroll all the words I have spoken to you. <sup>3</sup>The time is coming, declares the LORD, when I will bring back my people Israel and Judah from captivity,<sup>4</sup> says the LORD. I will bring them home to the land that I gave to their ancestors, and they will possess it. <sup>4</sup>Here are the words that the LORD spoke concerning Israel and Judah:

Then why do I see every man bent over in pain,<sup>i</sup> as if he's in labor?

Why have all turned pale?

<sup>7</sup>That day is awful, beyond words.

A time of unspeakable pain for my people Jacob.

But they will be delivered from it.

<sup>8</sup>At that time, I will break the yoke off their<sup>j</sup> necks and remove their<sup>k</sup> shackles. Foreigners will no longer enslave them, declares the LORD of heavenly forces. <sup>9</sup>They will serve the LORD their God and the king whom I will raise up for them from David's family.

<sup>10</sup>So don't be afraid, my servant Jacob, declares the LORD, Don't lose hope, Israel.

I will deliver you from faraway places and your children from the land of their exile.

My people Jacob will again be safe and sound, with no one harassing them.

<sup>11</sup>I am with you and will rescue you, declares the LORD.

I will put an end to all the nations where I have scattered you.

But I won't put an end to you.

I won't let you remain unpunished:

I will discipline you as you deserve.

30:1–33:26 Healing and hope: the Book of Comfort. These are the most hopeful poems and prose passages in the book. It is as if, for a moment, the solemn tone of Jeremiah disappears. A closer look, however, reveals that despair and hardship have shaped the background for the words of comfort. Even images of restoration draw heavily on painful memories of the past (e.g., yoke in 30:8; wilderness in 31:2; north in 31:8; Ramah in 31:15, and the motto of the book in 31:28). Consequently, the reader won't encounter a utopian world here but rather a world of grace and truth rooted deeply in human brokenness and pain. God grants a war-torn and exiled community a future when none seems possible. Some read this section as the centerpiece of Jeremiah, while others consider its many expressions of comfort muted by a larger context of misery. In either case, it's a wondrous theological expression of hope for suffering people.

30:1–4 God commands Jeremiah to record the divine words on a scroll (see also Jer 25:13; 36:1–32; 45:1; 51:60, 63). These words must be preserved in writing because they refer to future restoration. Furthermore, the very act of writing is a pledge of restoration that bears witness to life beyond captivity. Written prophecy rises above the limitations of the spoken word of the prophet. Written prophecy can go where prophets can't go and can endure all types of attacks (see Jer 36).

30:5–11 The background of the scroll of comfort is the horror of war. Jacob: Israel (30:7). That day: This may refer to "the day of the Lord"—that is, to God's reign on earth, a time when God breaks into history to establish justice and judgment for those who committed evil, and salvation for broken and needy people. The word yoke (burden or oppression) links this text with the previous symbolic actions of Jeremiah and Hananiah (see Jer 28:2, 4, 14). Now Jeremiah voices what Hananiah had predicted prematurely, that God will liberate God's people from their oppressors. Rather than serving their tormenters, they will serve the Lord and a ruler from David's dynasty. Jeremiah 30:10–11 are words of assurance that recall Jeremiah's call (Jer 1:19; see sidebar, "Prophetic Beginnings" at Jer 1). They're also related to the prophetic reassurance given to Jacob in Jeremiah 46:28. God's declaration—don't be afraid... I am with you—is affirmed throughout the Bible.

- <sup>12</sup>This is what the LORD says:
Your injury is incurable;
your illness is grave.
- <sup>13</sup>No one comes to your aid;
no one attends to your wound;
your disease is incurable.
- <sup>14</sup>All your lovers disregard you;
they write you off as a lost cause, because I have dealt harshly with you as an enemy would, because your guilt is great and your sins are many.
- <sup>15</sup>Why cry out for relief from your pain?
Your wound is incurable.
I have done these things to you, because your guilt is great and your sins are many.
- <sup>16</sup>Yet all who ravage you will be ravaged;
all who oppress you will go into exile.
Those who rob you will be robbed, and all who plunder you will be plundered.
- <sup>17</sup>I will restore your health, and I will heal your wounds, declares the LORD, because you were labeled an outcast, "Zion, the lost cause."
- <sup>18</sup>The LORD proclaims:
I will restore Jacob's tents and have pity on their birthplace.
Their city will be rebuilt on its ruins and the palace in its rightful place.
- <sup>19</sup>There will be laughter and songs of thanks.
I will add to their numbers so they don't dwindle away.
I will honor them so they aren't humiliated.
- <sup>20</sup>Their children will thrive as they did long ago, and their community will be established before me.
I will punish their oppressors.
- <sup>21</sup>They will have their own leader;
their ruler will come from among them.
I will let him approach me, and he will draw near.
Who would dare approach me unless I let them come? declares the LORD.
- <sup>22</sup>You will be my people, and I will be your God.
- <sup>23</sup>Look! The LORD's anger breaks out like a violent storm, a fierce wind that strikes the heads of the wicked.
- <sup>24</sup>The LORD's fierce anger won't turn back until God's<sup>1</sup> purposes are entirely accomplished.
In the days to come, you will understand what this means.

30:12-17 The poem portrays Zion's condition in the bleakest of terms, but God pledges to save Zion and restore her to health. God's motive (30:17) is the nations' scorn for Daughter Zion. All your lovers: likely refers to political allies (30:14).

30:18-31:1 The Hebrew word shub, found often in Jeremiah and translated here as restore (30:18) and turn back (30:24), brackets this passage. In doing so, it brings together salvation and judgment, planting and uprooting (note the inverted order). Jacob's (=Israel's) restoration involves a rebuilt city (Jerusalem), a safe and secure place for children to thrive, political independence, and the reinstatement of the broken covenant relationship, indicated by the covenant expression, You will be my people, and I will be your God (30:22). This vision of the future is incomplete without the restoration of moral order. So the Lord's anger breaks out against oppressors (30:20) and other evildoers (30:23-24) in order to execute the divine purposes, which readers will understand In the days to come (30:24). God's campaign against miscarriages of justice will lead to the reunion of all the dispersed clans of Israel—northern and southern—in a renewed covenant relationship (31:1). Compare 30:23 with Jeremiah 23:19 and 30:24 with Jeremiah 23:20.

31:2-7 In this section, Jeremiah draws from Israel's great statements of faith, especially the exodus of Egypt, the wilderness wandering, the Sinai covenant, and the promise of land. In fact, the lines between past and present blur. For example, who are the people who find grace in the wilderness (31:2): Israel past (delivered from Egypt) or Israel present and future (delivered from Babylon)? This ambiguity is probably deliberate: Israel's ancient traditions structure Israel's understanding of the present and its vision of the future. The nation's deliverance from slavery in Egypt (survived the sword) and its years in the wilderness are recalled (31:2-3). Whereas some view the wilderness period as a time of disobedience, others see it through a more positive interpretive lens: The people found grace in the wilderness (31:2), the LORD appeared to them from a distance: perhaps an allusion to the Sinai (e.g., Exod 16:10; Num 14:10). God's unending love (31:3) draws Israel to God and forms the basis for constructions of newness. Israel is no longer faithless Israel but now virgin Israel. Whereas the imperative, "Get ready," earlier summoned the nation to war (e.g., Jer 6:4, 5), now it's a call to worship: "Get ready! We're going up to Zion to the LORD our God!" (31:6). Like Isaiah of the exile, Jeremiah calls the community to sing joyfully because of God's acts of salvation (31:7; Isa 44:23; 49:13). The remaining few (31:7): a term also used in other prophetic books to convey the destruction of God's people, acknowledges both the toll of war and hope of survival.

31:8-14 Images of homecoming and boundless joy: quiet streams and smooth paths, as well as the portrait of God as Israel's father and Israel as God's oldest child. The nations that once mocked Zion (Jer 30:17) are now summoned to witness God's gracious acts of kindness on behalf of God's people (31:10). A poetic sequence of verbs expresses God's bountiful grace (31:10-11): gather, keep, shepherd, rescue, and deliver. The last two verbs recall liberation from Egyptian control (Exod 6:6; Deut 7:8; 9:26; Pss 74:2; 77:15). The central confession of faith says that God will rescue the weak from the clutches of the powerful (31:11). Note the use of this poetic language elsewhere in the Bible: shouting for joy (31:12; Isa 26:19); lush garden (31:12; Isa 58:11); mourning into laughter (31:13; Ps 30:11); I will comfort them (31:13; Isa 40:1-2; 49:13; 51:3; 52:9).

31:15-26 Ramah: a town five miles north of Jerusalem. Rachel: In the Bible, Rachel is Jacob's favored wife, the mother of Joseph and grandmother of Ephraim (Gen 29-30), a name subsequently used for the northern state of Israel. Interjecting his own voice into the dialogue, Ephraim, Rachel's (grand)son and now the personification of the wayward nation, acknowledges his wrongdoing and expresses his longing to return to God (31:18-19). And like the waiting father of the lost son (Luke 15:11-32), Ephraim's (=Israel's) father (31:20; see also Jer 31:9) doesn't hesitate to lavish his much-loved son with affection. After consoling mother Rachel and her (grand)son Ephraim, the Lord addresses the daughter of the same broken family. Like her brother, virgin Israel represents the refugee community that God invites home. Unlike her brother, she is reluctant to return home. Despite her unwillingness, which may represent the reluctance of many families to leave Babylon for their homeland, God's plan won't be frustrated. God resolves to do something completely new on earth (cf. Isa 43:19): heal and restore the broken and dysfunctional family of God (31:22b-25). The mysterious

The New Covenant Jeremiah 31:31-34 has probably generated more interest than any other in Jeremiah (and perhaps in the entire Bible). For Christians the promise of a new covenant is of central importance, especially since it is quoted at crucial junctures in the NT (Luke 22:20; 1 Cor 11:25; 2 Cor 3:5-14; Heb 8:8-12; 9:15; 10:16-17; cf. 2 Cor 3:14). The designation of the Second Testament itself, as the "New Testament," can be traced back to this passage. Some have interpreted the new covenant text as a prophecy that predicts the replacement or overthrow of God's covenant with Judaism. This view is called "supersessionism," and those who hold it interpret Christians as the sole heirs of the new covenant relationship with God. But Jeremiah is absolutely clear that the new covenant has to do in the first place with "the people of Israel and Judah" (Jer 31:31). When this influential text is read in its literary and historical contexts, it serves as an essential part of God's program of hope and new life—"building and planting"—for Judeans who suffered the destruction of war and captivity. Christians enjoy a wondrous relationship with God through Jesus Christ, but their participation in the new covenant in no way excludes the initial recipients and their heirs.

meaning of 31:22 includes the translation note—a woman surrounds a man, which can be interpreted in various ways, including the claim that virgin Israel will embrace her divine husband, or mother Rachel will finally embrace her wayward Ephraim. God's word comes to Jeremiah in a deep sleep from which he awakes (31:26; see Gen 28:16; cf. Ps 127:2).

31:27-30 The first of three prophecies introduced by the phrase, The time is coming, declares the Lord (31:27, 31, 38; Jer 31:35 introduces an oracle with "The Lord proclaims"). God will repair, replenish, and repopulate a ravaged land and war-torn community. This ecological renewal signals the end of a time of judgment and suffering and the promise of newness and hope for survivors. Jeremiah's call narrative organizes this shift in fortunes (Jer 1:10, 11-13; see also Jer 44:27). The rejection of the ancient proverb in the present literary context (cf. Ezek 18:2) is a response to survivors and their children who feel that they have suffered enormous hardship as punishment for the sins of previous generations (31:29). To dispute these misgivings about divine justice, Jeremiah maintains that in the restored community every person will be accountable to God for their own actions (31:30).

31:31-34 covenant: a committed relationship between two or more parties (31:31). covenant I made with their ancestors: a reference to the Sinai covenant (see Exod 19-24; the book of Deuteronomy). They broke that covenant: to break the covenant is to break the relationship. The core relationship is expressed in the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:1-17; Deut 5:6-21), and the principal expectation of the commandments is loyal love toward God (monotheism). their husband: or "lord," is a translation of the Hebrew word baal, and an allusion to the broken marriage between God and Israel (see Jer 3:1-4:4), which is now repaired.

32 Jeremiah received the LORD's word in the tenth year of Judah's King Zedekiah, which was the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar's rule. <sup>2</sup>At that time, the army of the Babylonian king had surrounded Jerusalem, and the prophet Jeremiah was confined to the prison quarters in the palace of Judah's king. <sup>3</sup>Judah's King Zedekiah had Jeremiah sent there after questioning him: "Why do you prophesy, 'This is what the LORD says: I'm handing this city over to the king of Babylon, and he will occupy it; and Judah's King Zedekiah will be captured and handed over to the king of Babylon; he will speak to the king of Babylon personally and see him with his very own eyes.' <sup>4</sup>And Zedekiah will be carried off to Babylon to live out his days until I punish him, declares the LORD. If you make war against the Babylonians, you will fail."

<sup>6</sup>Jeremiah said, The LORD's word came to me: <sup>7</sup>Your cousin Hanamel, Shallum's son, is on his way to see you; and when he arrives, he will tell you: "Buy my field in Anathoth, for by law you are next in line to purchase it." <sup>8</sup>And just as the LORD had said, my cousin Hanamel

Jeremiah's covenant is new in several key respects (31:32). First, it reunites the northern and southern kingdoms as one people in covenant relationship with God. God brings old hostilities to an end. Second, God engraves the divine Instruction on the hearts of God's people (31:33). Third, there is full knowledge of God for everyone. This inclusive vision of life imagines every member of the community enjoying a new relation with God and living justly (see Jer 22:16). Finally, sin no longer hinders God's relationship with God's people. God's unconditional forgiveness forms the basis for full restoration and healing (31:34).

31:35-37 This poem shifts focus from God's role as covenant maker (Jer 31:31-34) to God's role as creator. In a reversal of the breaking up of the world (Jer 4:23-28) and the rejection of Israel (e.g., Jer 15:1-4; 18:1-12), God the creator ensures the future of God's people for the duration of the world. The created order itself is a sign of God's enduring commitment to Israel.

31:38-40 The time is coming (see also Jer 31:27, 31) speaks of a future era that is fundamentally unlike the present. The wide-ranging vision of newness in the scroll of comfort (which includes survival, deliverance from oppression, boundless joy, a new covenant, homecoming, and the reestablishment of Israel's election) is incomplete without reference to a rebuilt Jerusalem. So the text outlines the boundaries of the new city, most probably the four corners of the New Jerusalem—the Tower of Hananel, the Corner Gate, the Gareb Hill, and Goah (cf. Neh 3:1; 12:39; Zec 14:10; 2 Kgs 14:13; 2 Chron 25:23; 26:9). Places once contaminated by horrific crimes will be set apart for the Lord, and the city will remain forever (cf. Ezek 47:13-48:35).

32:1-15 This chapter builds on the theme of restoration in a narrative that outlines Jeremiah's purchase of family property in Anathoth (see Jer 1:1). The story serves as a sign of God's resolve to transform a land destroyed by war into livable space. It shows God's intent to bring Judean refugees back home after years of Babylonian captivity.

32:1-5 It is the tenth year of Zedekiah's reign, the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar's rule, 588 BCE. Jerusalem is occupied by Babylonian troops, and Jeremiah is a political prisoner under house arrest, accused of treason by King Zedekiah. While Jeremiah is in prison, the Lord informs him that his cousin Hanamel will soon arrive with a request that he buy back ancestral property in keeping with the teaching about redemption (Jer 32:6-9). As set down in Leviticus 25:25-28, when a family member has to sell part of the family land, it can be reclaimed by a family showed up at the prison quarters and told me, “Buy my field in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin, for you are next in line and have a family obligation to purchase it.” Then I was sure this was the LORD’s doing.

16After I had given the documents to Baruch, Neriah’s son, I prayed to the LORD: 17LORD God, you created heaven and earth by your great power and outstretched arm; nothing is too hard for you! 18You act with mercy toward thousands upon thousands, but you also bring the consequences of the fathers’ sins on their children after them. Great and mighty God, whose name is the LORD of heavenly forces, 19marvelous are your purposes, and mighty are your deeds. You are aware of all the ways of humanity, and you reward us for how we live and what we do even now. 20You have performed signs and wonders in the land of Egypt as you do to this very day in Israel and everywhere else. That’s why you are so renowned. 21With a strong hand, an outstretched arm, and with awesome power, yes, with signs and wonders, you brought your people Israel out of the land of Egypt. 22You gave them this land that you promised to their ancestors, a land full of milk and honey. 23They entered and took possession of it, but they didn’t obey you or follow your Instruction. In fact, they didn’t do anything you commanded them. So you brought upon them this disaster. 24Now the siege ramps are in place to take the city. And the Babylonians are about to capture it by war, famine, and disease. What you have pronounced is now happening, as you can see. 25So why tell me, LORD God, Buy the field for money and make sure there are witnesses, when the city is under Babylonian control?

26Then the LORD’s word came to Jeremiah: 27I am the LORD, the God of all living things! Is anything too hard for me? 28Therefore, the LORD proclaims: I’m handing this city over to the Babylonians and King Nebuchadnezzar, who will capture it. 29They will enter the city, set it on fire, and burn it down—including the houses on whose roofs offerings have been made to Baal and drink offerings to other gods, which made me especially angry. 30The people of Israel and Judah have done nothing but evil in my eyes since their youth; the people of Israel and Judah have done nothing but anger me by the work of their hands, declares the LORD. 31This city has enraged me from the day it was built to this very day, and so it must be removed from my sight—32because of all the evil done by the people of Israel and Judah to make me angry—they, their kings and officials, their priests and prophets, the men of Judah, and those who live in Jerusalem. 33They turned their backs to me and not their faces; and though I taught them over and over, they wouldn’t accept my correction.

member in order to keep the property in the clan. As predicted, Hanamel turns up, and Jeremiah, aware that the encounter is “the LORD’s doing,” fulfills his duty as next of kin and purchases the field.

32:10-15 It’s important to preserve the documents for future generations, since they pertain to the future of God’s people. This is the first reference to Jeremiah’s scribe Baruch, who serves here as witness to the transaction.

32:16-25 Jeremiah recites God’s marvelous deeds of salvation and judgment. He confesses that God’s power is unrivaled, and God’s purposes are astonishing. Jeremiah is aware that God has acted mercifully and mightily in creation, in the exodus, and in the promise of land. He even understands the national crisis as divine judgment for Israel’s misdeeds (32:23-24). What the prophet can’t grasp in light of the grim circumstances is God’s instruction to buy a piece of land occupied by enemy forces (32:25).

32:26-44 God restates Jeremiah’s affirmation, “nothing is too hard for you” (Jer 32:17), in the form of a query, Is anything too hard for me? (32:27). The rhetorical question demands a “No!” A similar construction is found in Genesis 18:14—“Is anything too difficult [hard] for the LORD?”—when God promises Abraham and Sarah a child, though Abraham is old and Sarah is childless and beyond child-bearing years. Luke may have this language in mind when speaking of the wondrous birth of Jesus (Luke 1:37). God’s reply to Jeremiah gives the reasons for Judah’s crisis. The long list of sins exonerates God of injustice, it upholds a morally coherent world, and it ultimately helps postwar readers cope with their plight by placing their suffering within a context of meaning. Finally, the divine speech moves from judgment to hope (32:36-44). God responds to Jeremiah’s questions about the future, that is, whether a future is possible for war-torn Judah. And the answer is <sup>34</sup>They set up their disgusting idols in the temple that bears my name and violated it; <sup>35</sup>and they built shrines to Baal in the Ben-hinnon Valley, where they sacrifice their sons and daughters to Molech, though I never commanded them—nor did it even cross my mind—that they should do such detestable things, leading Judah to sin.

<sup>36</sup>You have been saying, “This city will be handed over to the king of Babylon through sword, famine, and disease.” But this is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: <sup>37</sup>I will gather them from all the countries where I have scattered them in my fierce anger and rage. I will bring them back to this place to live securely. <sup>38</sup>They will be my people, and I will be their God. <sup>39</sup>I will give them one heart and one mind so that they may worship me all the days of their lives, for their own good and for the good of their children after them. <sup>40</sup>I will make an everlasting covenant with them, never to stop treating them graciously. I will put into their hearts a sense of awe for me so that they won’t turn away from me. <sup>41</sup>I will rejoice in treating them graciously, and I will plant them in this land faithfully and with all my heart and being.

<sup>42</sup>The LORD proclaims: Just as I brought this great disaster on this people, so I will bring on them all the good I promised them. <sup>43</sup>Fields will be bought in this land, a land you have said is bleak and uninhabited and in the possession of the Babylonians. <sup>44</sup>Fields will be bought, and deeds will be signed, sealed, and witnessed in the land of Benjamin and in the outlying areas of Jerusalem, in the towns of Judah and in the highlands, in the towns of the western foothills and the arid southern plain; for I will bring them back from their captivity, declares the LORD.

Restoration of Judah and Israel

33 While he was still confined to the prison quarters, the LORD’s word came to Jeremiah a second time: <sup>2</sup>The LORD proclaims, the LORD who made the earth,<sup>a</sup> who formed and established it, whose name is the LORD: <sup>3</sup>Call to me and I will answer and reveal to you wondrous secrets that you haven’t known.

<sup>4</sup>This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, proclaims about the houses of this city and the palaces of the kings of Judah that were torn down to defend against the siege ramps and weapons<sup>b</sup> of the invading Babylonians.<sup>c</sup> They will be filled with the corpses of those slain in my fierce anger. I hid my face from the people of this city because of all their evil deeds,<sup>d</sup> but now I will heal and mend them. I will make them whole and bless them<sup>e</sup> with an abundance of peace and security. <sup>7</sup>I will bring back the captives of Judah and Israel, and I will rebuild them as they were at first. <sup>8</sup>I will cleanse them of all the wrongdoing they committed against me, and I will forgive them for all of their guilt and rebellion. <sup>9</sup>Then this city<sup>f</sup> will bring me great joy, praise, and renown before all nations on earth, when they hear of all the good I provide for them. They will be in total awe at all the good and prosperity I provide for them.

<sup>10</sup>The LORD proclaims: You have said about this place, “It is a wasteland, without humans or animals.” Yet in the ravaged and uninhabited towns of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem, <sup>11</sup>the sounds of joy and laughter and the voices of the bride and the bridegroom will again be heard. So will the voices of those who say, as thank offerings are brought to the LORD’s temple, “Give thanks to the LORD of heavenly forces, for the LORD is good and his kindness lasts forever.” I will bring back the captives of this land as they were before, says the LORD.

a resounding “Yes.” God will create new beginnings out of the rubble of a crumbling world. God will act decisively to rescue the scattered exiles, reestablish a deep and meaningful relationship with them—an everlasting covenant (32:40)—treat them graciously forever, and plant them in this land (32:41, see Jer 1:10) with all God’s heart and being (see Deut 6:5). Despite the wreckage, therefore, life will one day return to normal, that is, a new normal!

33:1-13 The final chapter of the scroll of comfort is connected to its larger context by the allusion to the Lord’s word coming to Jeremiah a second time while he remains under house arrest and Judah is still under siege (32:2). God’s promise of restoration is ironically linked to Jeremiah’s and Judah’s bleakest hours. The work of Israel’s future, moreover, is anchored in God’s creation as creator (33:1-2). God invites Jeremiah to discover certain divine mysteries (33:3), which include spectacular transformations of Judah’s circumstances. God will turn its ecological wasteland into a place of abundance, and God will overturn its sentence of death and estrangement. In a long string of first-person constructions, God pledges to heal, bless, rebuild, cleanse, and forgive (33:6-8). This reversal of fortunes includes the restoration of human emotions and basic societal structures (the voices of the bride and the bridegroom) abolished by God in wartime (33:10-13; see Jer 16:1-9). The word good appears twice in 33:9 to express

God's Word Jeremiah is noted for its detailed attention to the prophetic scroll: its production, destruction, and survival. Written prophecy, and in particular the prophetic scroll, emerges as a more than adequate stand-in for the actual prophet. Jeremiah can be silenced, but the prophetic scroll cannot. Jeremiah can be barred from the temple, but the scroll is free to move about. Like all prophets, Jeremiah is confined physically and temporally, but the scroll has no such restraints. And even if the scroll is destroyed, others can be made. At critical turning points of the book, we encounter the transition from spoken to written prophecy (see Jer 25:13; 26:17-18; 29:1-23; 30:1; 45:1; 51:59-64). But in Jeremiah 36 the transformation from speech to the written word plays a central theological role. Written prophecy—that is, the written word—takes priority over spoken prophecy. Indeed this narrative asserts that the Lord's word endures forever.

<sup>14</sup>The time is coming, declares the LORD, when I will fulfill my gracious promise with the people of Israel and Judah. <sup>15</sup>In those days and at that time, I will raise up a righteous branch from David's line, who will do what is just and right in the land. <sup>16</sup>In those days, Judah will be saved and Jerusalem will live in safety. <sup>23</sup>Then the LORD's word came to Jeremiah: <sup>24</sup>Aren't you aware of what people are saying: "The LORD has rejected the two families that he had chosen"? They are insulting my people as if they no longer belong to me.† <sup>25</sup>The LORD proclaims: I would no sooner break my covenant with day and night or the laws of heaven and earth <sup>26</sup>than I would reject the descendants of Jacob and my servant David and his descendants as rulers for the children of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. I will restore the captives and have compassion on them.

33:14-26 This passage is absent from the 2nd-century BCE Greek translation (LXX), and is considered by many scholars to be one of the latest parts of the book. It is distinctive in several respects. First, it portrays the restoration of the king and the priest. Under the leadership of a royal figure from David's dynasty (see 2 Sam 7; 23:5; Ps 89; 1 Kgs 8:22-26; 9:1-9), Judah will be saved, and its capital city will be secure. Judah's ideal king will embody the most admirable virtues and will appropriately be named, The Lord Is Our Righteousness, (33:16) in contrast to Judah's disappointing King Zedekiah, whose life contradicts the meaning of his name, "The Lord Is Righteousness" (see Jer 23:5-6). As mediators, the levitical priests will make offerings and present sacrifices to God on behalf of the people (see Lev 18:1-5; Num 18). Second, God's covenant with the Davidic King and the Levites can't be dissolved (33:19-23). To convey God's faithful pledge to king and priest, the writer employs language of divine promise to the ancestors (33:22; cf. Gen 15:5; 22:17). Third, God asks Jeremiah if he is aware of the insults that people have hurled upon two families (i.e., Judah and Israel). God refutes their claims by reaffirming enduring divine support and boundless mercy for children of the covenant (33:23-26).

34:1-35:19 Choices and consequences. The common theme in these chapters is the contrast between faithful and unfaithful living. Although this theme isn't new in Jeremiah, it is presented here with a strange twist. Those who should know better, the Israelites, behave badly, while a fringe group (the Rechabites) receives praise for its devotion. Put differently, insiders act like outsiders and outsiders like insiders. The Bible is full of such reversals: for instance, when Tamar is deemed more righteous than Judah (Gen 38), when Jethro the priest of Median recites what Israelites should (Exod 18:10-12), when Ruth the Moabite acts more nobly than her companions (Ruth 1-4), and when a Samaritan shows more compassion than a priest and Levite (cf. Luke 10:25-37). The Rechabites' loyalty to their founder Jonadab son of Rechab serves as a biting contrast to Judah's unfaithfulness to God. After an introduction (34:1-7), the chapters divide into parallel parts: a description of the bad behavior (34:8-11) and good behavior (35:1-11), denunciation for bad behavior (34:12-16) and praise for good behavior (35:12-16), and the consequences of their choices (34:17-22; 35:17-19).

Lessons on obedience and disobedience

34 Jeremiah received the LORD's word when Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar and his army, and all the countries and people he ruled, were attacking Jerusalem and all its towns. <sup>2</sup>The LORD, the God of Israel, proclaims, Go and speak to Judah's King Zedekiah and say to him: The LORD proclaims, I'm handing this city over to the king of Babylon, and he will burn it down. <sup>3</sup>You won't escape but will be captured and handed over to him. You will see the king of Babylon with your very own eyes and speak to him personally, and you will be taken to Babylon. <sup>4</sup>Even so, hear the LORD's word, King Zedekiah of Judah: This is what the LORD proclaims about you: You won't die in battle; <sup>5</sup>you will die a peaceful death. As burial incense was burned to honor your ancestors, the kings who came before you, so it will be burned to honor you as people mourn, "Oh, master!" I myself promise this, declares the LORD.

<sup>8</sup>Jeremiah received the LORD's word after King Zedekiah had made a covenant with all the people in Jerusalem to proclaim liberty for their slaves: <sup>9</sup>everyone was to free their male and female Hebrew slaves and no longer hold a Judean brother or sister in bondage. <sup>10</sup>So all the officials and people who entered into this covenant agreed to free their male and female slaves and no longer hold them in bondage; they obeyed the king's command<sup>a</sup> and let them go. <sup>11</sup>But afterward they broke their promise, took back the men and women they had freed, and enslaved them again.

<sup>12</sup>Then the LORD's word came to Jeremiah: <sup>13</sup>The LORD, the God of Israel, proclaims: I made a covenant with your ancestors when I brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slavery. <sup>14</sup>I said that every seventh year each of you must free any Hebrews who have been sold to you. After they have served you for six years, you must set them free. But your ancestors didn't obey or pay any attention to me. <sup>15</sup>Recently you turned about and did what was right in my sight; each of you proclaimed liberty for the other and made a covenant before me in the temple that bears my name. <sup>16</sup>But then you went back on your word and made my name impure; each of you reclaimed the men and women you had set free and forced them to be your slaves again.

<sup>17</sup>Therefore, the LORD proclaims: Since you have defied me by not setting your fellow citizens free, I'm setting you free, declares the LORD, free to die by the sword, disease, and famine! And I will make you an object of horror for all nations on earth. <sup>18</sup>I will make those who disregarded my covenant, violating its terms that they agreed to in my presence, like the calf they cut in two and then walked between the halves of its carcass. <sup>19</sup>The officials of

34:1-7 During Nebuchadnezzar's assault on Jerusalem, Jeremiah tells Zedekiah that the Lord is waging war against Jerusalem and will hand over the city and its king to Babylon. Zedekiah, however, is assured that even though he will be captured, his life will be spared (see, however, Jer 21:1-10; 1 Kgs 25:5-7). Lachish and Azekah: fortified cities located about 30 miles and 18 miles southwest of Jerusalem, respectively (34:7).

34:8-11 Zedekiah issues an edict (i.e., makes a covenant) that everyone in Jerusalem should free their Hebrew slaves in compliance with the Deuteronomic teaching, which demands the release of debt slaves (i.e., persons who become slaves to repay debts) at the beginning of their seventh year of service (Deut 15:1-16; Exod 21:1-11; Lev 25:39-55). The narrative is silent as to Zedekiah's motivation. Perhaps he hopes to appease God and alter the course of events, or perhaps he intends to secure more soldiers in Jerusalem's defense. The people comply with the king's declaration only to change their minds and take back their slaves. The Hebrew word used in 34:11 to describe their breach of covenant is shub (took back), which is often translated "turn" or "return." Jeremiah repeatedly calls God's people to "turn" or "return" to God, but their only turning is away from the Lord. The same Hebrew word is used in Jeremiah 34:15, 16 (twice), 22 (see also Jer 35:15).

34:12-16 At the core of this charge is the contention that God's people should know better. When the Israelites were slaves in Egypt, God delivered them from their oppression. Indeed, the exodus is the basis for the teaching requiring the freedom of Hebrew slaves every seventh year (see Deut 15:15). Thus the memory of God's liberation from Egyptian control makes Israel's broken promise (shub) an even more serious breach of covenant loyalty (34:16). Those who were once oppressed have now become the oppressors.

34:17-22 These verses describe the punishment for the crime. Traditional language from the exodus and covenant traditions is employed to stress the severity of the offense and God's resolve to hold both king and people accountable for their actions. The prophetic announcement of judgment plays on two words: "set free" (or "liberate"), associated with God's gracious act of deliverance from slavery in Egypt, and "cut," the term for making a covenant.

Judah and Jerusalem, the eunuchs and priests, and all the people who passed through the pieces of the calf <sup>20</sup>I will hand over to their enemies who seek to kill them. And their corpses will become food for birds and wild animals. <sup>21</sup>I will hand over Judah's King Zedekiah and his officials to their enemies who seek to kill them: namely, the army of Babylon's king, which has just withdrawn from you. <sup>22</sup>I'm about to issue orders, declares the LORD, that the army of Babylon return to this city. They will wage war against it, capture it, and burn it down along with other Judean cities. I will make Judah a wasteland, without inhabitants.

35 Jeremiah received the LORD's word during the rule of Judah's King Jehoiakim, Josiah's son: <sup>2</sup>Go to the Rechabite family and invite them to come to one of the rooms of the LORD's temple. When they arrive, offer them some wine to drink. <sup>3</sup>So I took Jaazaniah, Jeremiah's son and Habazziniah's grandson, and his brothers and all his sons, and the whole Rechabite family. <sup>4</sup>I brought them to the room in the LORD's temple assigned to the sons of Hanan, Igdaliah's son, the man of God. The room was next to the one used by the chief officers and right above the room of Maaseiah, Shallum's son, the temple doorkeeper. <sup>5</sup>Then I set bowls full of wine before the Rechabites, along with several cups, and I said to them, "Have some."

<sup>6</sup>But they refused: "We don't drink wine because our ancestor Jonadab, Rechab's son, commanded us, 'You and your children are never to drink wine; nor are you to build or own houses or plant gardens and vineyards; rather, you are always to dwell in tents so you may live a long time in the fertile land you pass through.' <sup>8</sup>We have obeyed everything our ancestor Jonadab, Rechab's son, commanded us. No one in our household, including our wives and children, has ever had wine. <sup>9</sup>And we haven't built houses to live in or had vineyards, fields, or crops. <sup>10</sup>We have lived in tents and done everything our ancestor Jonadab commanded us. <sup>11</sup>But when Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar invaded the country, we said, 'We better go to Jerusalem to escape the Babylonian and Aramean armies.' That's why we're here in Jerusalem."

<sup>12</sup>Then the LORD's word came to Jeremiah: <sup>13</sup>The LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: Go and tell the people of Judah and those who live in Jerusalem: Can't you learn a lesson about what it means to obey me? declares the LORD. <sup>14</sup>Jonadab, Rechab's son, commanded his descendants not to drink wine, and to this very day they have not drunk wine, obeying their ancestor's instruction. But I have spoken to you again and again, and you haven't listened to me. <sup>15</sup>I have sent you all my servants, the prophets, time and again, saying, "Each of you, turn from your evil ways and reform your actions; don't worship or serve other gods. Then you may live in the fertile land I gave to you and your ancestors." But you haven't paid attention or listened to me. <sup>16</sup>The descendants of Jonadab, Rechab's son, have thoroughly obeyed their ancestor, but this people have not listened to me. <sup>17</sup>Therefore, this is what the LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, says: I'm going to bring upon the

In the first play on words, God no longer liberates or sets Israel free from the burden of slavery but permits them to become enslaved. Because God's people didn't set their Hebrew slaves free, as their ancestors were once set free, the Lord will free them to die by the sword, disease, and famine (34:17). The second play on the word "cut" is even more alarming. The people who cut or made a covenant to free their slaves and then broke their promise will suffer the same fate as a sacrificial animal that is cut in half during covenant rituals (see Gen 15:1-20). The image derives from the ancient Near Eastern covenant rites in which the interested parties would walk between the slaughtered animal and pronounce a similar fate on themselves if they should violate the conditions of the covenant.

35:1-11 To find a fitting contrast to the faithlessness of the people of Jerusalem, the narrator leaves the reign of Zedekiah for the time of King Jehoiakim (609-598 BCE), a decade or so earlier. The theme is more important than chronological order. God commands Jeremiah to visit the Rechabite family, a small nomadic group that had taken up residence in Jerusalem in an emergency measure after Nebuchadnezzar invaded the country. Much of what we know about this community derives from the story itself. Apparently this small religious group strictly followed the teachings of its founder Jehjonadab, Rechab's son, whose efforts to eliminate service to the god Baal from the borders of Israel had become famous (see 2 Kgs 10:15-17). The Rechabites lived in tents and practiced a form of faith that was frozen in the distant past before Israel settled in Palestine. They likely considered this "simple life" uncontaminated by the fertility religion of Baal and by the values and practices of the dominant society. Their abstinence from wine symbolized their rejection of life lived in one place (cf. the nazirite vow not to drink wine in Num 6:1-21). Jeremiah offers wine to Jaazaniah and the whole Rechabite family in one of the temple chambers, but they refuse in compliance with their founder's teaching.

35:12-16 The Rechabites' faithfulness to the founder's teachings serves as an object lesson. The fringe counter-cultural group epitomizes the values of faithfulness and loyalty, whereas the people of Judah, who should know better, disregard the prophetic plea to listen to and obey people of Judah and all those who live in Jerusalem the disaster I pronounced against them, because they wouldn't listen to me or respond when I called.

<sup>18</sup>Then Jeremiah said to the Rechabite family: The LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: Because you have obeyed all Jonadab's instructions and you have done everything he commanded you, <sup>19</sup>the LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel proclaims: Jonadab, Rechab's son, will always have a descendant that stands before me.

Enduring word of God

36 In the fourth year of Judah's King Jehoiakim, Josiah's son, this word came to Jeremiah from the LORD: <sup>2</sup>Take a scroll and write in it all the words I have spoken to you concerning Israel, Judah, and all the nations from the time of Josiah until today. <sup>3</sup>Perhaps when the people of Judah hear about every disaster I intend to bring upon them, they will turn from their evil ways, and I will forgive their wrongdoing and sins. <sup>4</sup>So Jeremiah sent for Baruch, Neriah's son. As Jeremiah dictated all the words that the LORD had spoken to him, Baruch wrote them in the scroll. <sup>5</sup>Then Jeremiah told Baruch, "I'm confined here and can't go to the LORD's temple. <sup>6</sup>So you go to the temple on the next day of fasting, and read the LORD's words from the scroll that I have dictated to you. Read them so that all the people in the temple can hear them, as well as all the Judeans who have come from their towns. <sup>7</sup>If they turn from their evil ways, perhaps the LORD will hear their prayers. The LORD has threatened them with fierce anger." <sup>8</sup>Baruch, Neriah's son, did everything the prophet Jeremiah instructed him: he read all the LORD's words from the scroll in the temple.

<sup>9</sup>In the ninth month of the fifth year of Judah's King Jehoiakim, Josiah's son, all the people in Jerusalem and all those who had come from Judean towns observed a fast for the LORD in Jerusalem. <sup>10</sup>Then Baruch read Jeremiah's words from the scroll to all the people in the LORD's temple; he read them in the chamber of Gemariah, Shaphan the scribe's son, in the upper courtyard near the entrance of the New Gate of the LORD's temple. <sup>11</sup>When Micaiah, Gemariah's son and Shaphan's grandson, heard all the LORD's words from the scroll, <sup>12</sup>he went down to the scribes' chamber in the royal palace. There he found all the officials meeting together: Elishama the scribe; Delaiah, Shemaiah's son; Elnathan, Achbor's son; Gemariah, Shaphan's son; Zedekiah, Hananiah's son, and all the other officials. <sup>13</sup>Micaiah told them all the words he heard Baruch read from the scroll before the people.

So Baruch, Neriah's son, took the scroll and went to the officials. <sup>15</sup>They said to him, "Sit down and read it to us." So Baruch read it to them. <sup>16</sup>When they heard all its words, they were alarmed and said to Baruch: "We must at once report all this to the king!" <sup>17</sup>Then they asked Baruch, "Tell us, how did you write all these words? Did they come from Jeremiah?"

<sup>19</sup>The officials then said to Baruch, "You and Jeremiah had better go and hide. And don't let anyone know where you are."

the Lord. The Hebrew word for "listen" or "obey" occurs seven times in 35:13-18 and 14 times in Jeremiah 34-35. Together the two chapters call (exilic) readers to faithful and obedient living, but not necessarily to emulate the Rechabite lifestyle.

35:17-22 The consequences of the Rechabites' faithfulness and Judah's unfaithfulness are as different as the acts themselves. Faithful living leads to blessing and survival. Unfaithfulness leads to death and disaster.

36:1-32 The enduring word. This story of the rejection and triumph of God's word has three main parts: an introduction that sets the stage and tone (36:1-8); the plot that pits king against scroll (36:9-26); and the resolution in which the scroll, God's word, survives the most brutal of assaults by royal power (36:27-32). The narrative plays a key role in the structure of the book, although this role is disputed. Some scholars highlight its parallels with Jeremiah 25, the end of the first half of the prophetic book. Some emphasize similarities with Jeremiah 26, the beginning of the second half of the book. Others argue that Jeremiah 36 and 45 function as bookends to the so-called Baruch narrative (Jer 36-45). Still others read Jeremiah 36 as a bridge between Jeremiah 26-35 and 37-45. Clearly Jeremiah 36 exhibits strong ties to key sections of the book, however defined, as seen by its attention to: (1) the malevolence of Jehoiakim (Jer 26; 36), (2) the menacing fourth year of Judah's King Jehoiakim (Jer 25; 36; 45), (3) the spoken and/or written prophecies of Jeremiah (Jer 25; 26; 36; 45), (4) Baruch as a central character (Jer 36; 45), (5) the temple locale (Jer 26; 36), and (6) the call to turn back to the Lord (Jer 25; 26; 36). 36:1-26 The narrative is set in the fourth year of Judah's King Jehoiakim (605 BCE) when Nebuchadnezzar defeated the Egyptians at Carchemish, a major city in northern Syria. This date not only serves as a historical reference but also as a symbol for the end of Judah's freedom and its once stable world. It marks the onset of Jeremiah's prophecies of "digging up and pulling down, destroying and demolishing" (Jer 1:10). Jeremiah dictates the prophecies to his scribe, Baruch, and instructs him to read the words in the temple, since Jeremiah is no longer permitted temple

<sup>20</sup>After leaving the scroll in the room of Elishama the scribe, they went to the king's court and told him everything. <sup>21</sup>The king sent Jehudi to take the scroll, and he retrieved it from the room of Elishama the scribe. Then Jehudi read it to the king and all his royal officials who were standing next to the king. <sup>22</sup>Now it was the ninth month,<sup>b</sup> and the king was staying in the winterized part of the palace with the firepot burning near him. <sup>23</sup>And whenever Jehudi read three or four columns of the scroll, the king would cut them off with a scribe's knife and throw them into the firepot until the whole scroll was burned up. <sup>24</sup>Neither the king nor any of his attendants who heard all these words were alarmed or tore their clothes. <sup>25</sup>Elnathan, Delaiah, and Gemariah begged the king not to burn the scroll, but he wouldn't listen to them.

<sup>26</sup>The king commanded Jerahmeel, the king's son, along with Seraiah, Azriel's son, and Shelemiah, Abdeel's son, to arrest the scribe Baruch and the prophet Jeremiah. But the LORD hid them.

<sup>27</sup>The LORD's word came to Jeremiah after the king had burned the scroll containing the words written by Baruch at Jeremiah's dictation: <sup>28</sup>Get another scroll and write in it all the words that were in the first scroll that Judah's King Jehoiakim burned. <sup>29</sup>Then say to Judah's King Jehoiakim: The LORD proclaims: You burned that scroll because it declared that the king of Babylon will come and destroy this land and eliminate every sign of life from it. <sup>30</sup>Therefore, this is what the LORD proclaims about Judah's King Jehoiakim: He won't have any heirs to occupy the throne of David, and his dead body will be cast out and exposed to the heat of the day and the frost of the night. <sup>31</sup>I will punish him and his family and his attendants for their wrongdoing. I will bring upon them, as well as the residents of Jerusalem and the people of Judah, every disaster I pronounced against them. But they wouldn't listen.

<sup>32</sup>So Jeremiah took another scroll and gave it to the scribe Baruch, Neriah's son, who wrote at Jeremiah's dictation all the words in the scroll burned in the fire by Judah's King Jehoiakim. Many similar words were added to them.

Jeremiah falsely accused and imprisoned

37 Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar appointed Zedekiah, Josiah's son, to succeed Coniah, Jehoiakim's son, as king of Judah. <sup>2</sup>Neither Zedekiah, his attendants, nor the people of the land listened to the LORD's words spoken by the prophet Jeremiah.

<sup>3</sup>Nevertheless, King Zedekiah sent Jehuchal, Shelemiah's son, and the priest Zephaniah, Maaseiah's son, to Jeremiah the prophet with this plea: "Please pray for us to the LORD our access. The private reading takes place in the chamber of Gemariah (36:10), who is one of the sons of Shaphan, the renowned legal scholar in Josiah's court (2 Kgs 22:3) and the brother of Ahikam, who rescued Jeremiah from priests and prophets who sought to put him to death (Jer 26:24). Micaiah is part of this family as well (36:11). Eventually the scroll reaches as far as the king himself, where it was always intended. Jehudi reads the scroll to Jehoiakim, who cuts it up with a scribe's knife and burns it. Note the play on words. The story contrasts Jehoiakim's response to the reading (Heb. qr) of the scroll (the word) with that of his righteous father, Josiah (2 Kgs 22:8-11; see also Jer 22:13-19). Whereas Josiah ripped/cut (qr) his clothes in mourning when hearing the words of the scroll, Jehoiakim cut (qr) the scroll into pieces in open rebelliousness. Whereas Josiah listens to the Lord's word, Jehoiakim won't even listen to his advisers (36:25). Jehoiakim demonstrates further rebellion by giving orders to arrest Jeremiah and Baruch. The narrator concludes with their miraculous escape (36:26; see also Jer 26:24).

36:27-32 Jehoiakim's display of contempt and political muscle doesn't have the last word. The king's actions are condemned. Moreover, God instructs Jeremiah to dictate another scroll with the same words as well as additional ones. Once again the prophetic summons to change and avert disaster goes unheeded.

37:1-45:5 The "Baruch narrative." Jeremiah 37-45 is often referred to as the "Baruch narrative" because Baruch, Jeremiah's scribe, is thought to be the author. This is based largely on the role that Baruch plays in the second half of the book, especially in Jeremiah 36 and 45, which serve as bookends to the section.

37:1-38:28 Jeremiah imprisoned and released. The first section of the Baruch narrative recounts the final months of Judah before Nebuchadnezzar captures Jerusalem. It emphasizes Jeremiah's ill treatment and King Zedekiah's growing lack of power. Like Jehoiakim (in Jeremiah 36), Zedekiah (37:2) rejects the Lord's word given by Jeremiah. Unlike Jehoiakim, Zedekiah emerges as a sympathetic figure who seeks Jeremiah's counsel but can't muster the courage to accept it. State officials, the real power brokers, display no such indecision! They seize Jeremiah, beat him, and imprison him for treason (deserting to the Babylonians, 37:13). The king's secret meetings with Jeremiah and his unsuccessful attempts to improve the prophet's situation reveal his waning influence. Although Zedekiah's efforts on Jeremiah's behalf are frustrated, Ebed-melech's (38:7) efforts are not. This Ethiopian figure saves Jeremiah's life. Throughout the episode Jeremiah insists that the Babylonian forces won't retreat and that Judeans will survive only if they surrender.

37:1-10 In 37:1-2, we learn that Judah is already a subject people of Babylon, and Nebuchadnezzar has appointed Zedekiah as the Judean ruler in place of Coniah

37:16 Jer 38:6,
Jer 38:10

The Baruch Story Jeremiah 36–45 is the longest continuous narrative in the book. Unlike others, it exhibits a degree of chronological order, recounting Judah's final days from the Babylonian siege of Jerusalem and the fall of the temporary government of Gedaliah to the departure and settlement of certain Judeans in Egypt. Jeremiah is taken to Egypt by a group of Judeans who leave their war-torn country for fear of Babylonian reprisals. While the Baruch narrative focuses on the destruction of Jerusalem and the desperate conditions in Judah that ensue, it pays particular attention to the suffering and persecution of Jeremiah. In this way, it functions as a complex theodicy (an answer to the problem of suffering). In this role, it presents the dismantling of Judah's world as a result of the rejection of God's word and God's messenger, and so it defends God from charges of injustice and powerlessness. At the same time, the text emphasizes Jeremiah's innocent suffering and survival, which serves to sustain all those who suffer innocently and for God's sake. Consequently, the Baruch narrative is both disaster and survival literature.

God." (4)Now Jeremiah hadn't been imprisoned yet, so he was free to come and go among the people. (5)Pharaoh's army had recently<sup>c</sup> set out from Egypt; when the Babylonians who were attacking Jerusalem learned of the Egyptian advance, they withdrew from Jerusalem.)

(6)Then the LORD's word came to Jeremiah the prophet: (7)The LORD, the God of Israel, proclaims: Tell the king of Judah who sent his emissaries to seek advice from me: "Pharaoh's army that came to assist you is heading back to Egypt. (8)The Babylonians will return and attack this city. They will capture it and burn it down."

(9)The LORD proclaims: Don't let yourself be deceived into thinking that the Babylonians will withdraw for good.<sup>d</sup> They won't! (10)Even if you were to crush the entire Babylonian army that's attacking you and only the wounded in their tents remained, they would rise up and burn this city down.

(11)Now when the Babylonian army had withdrawn from Jerusalem due to Pharaoh's advance, (12)Jeremiah set out for the land of Benjamin to secure his share of the family property.<sup>e</sup> (13)He got as far as the Benjamin Gate in Jerusalem when the guard there named Irijah, Shelemiah's son and Hananiah's grandson, arrested the prophet Jeremiah, saying, "You are deserting to the Babylonians."

(14)"That's a lie," Jeremiah replied. "I'm not deserting to the Babylonians." But Irijah wouldn't listen to him. He arrested Jeremiah and brought him to the officials, (15)who were furious with him. They beat him and threw him into the house of the scribe Jonathan, which had been turned into a prison. (16)So Jeremiah was put in a cistern, which was like a dungeon, where he remained a long time.

(17)Later King Zedekiah sent for him and questioned Jeremiah secretly in the palace: "Is there a word from the LORD?"

"There is," Jeremiah replied. "You are going to be handed over to the king of Babylon." (18)Then Jeremiah asked King Zedekiah, "What have I done wrong to you or your attendants or this people that you should throw me into prison? (19)Where are your prophets now who prophesied that the king of Babylon wouldn't attack you and this land? (20)Now, my master and king, I beg you, don't send me back to the house of Jonathan the scribe, or I'll die there." (21)So King Zedekiah gave orders that Jeremiah be held in the prison quarters and that he

37:11-21 Jeremiah leaves Jerusalem to attend to family matters in the territory of Benjamin (see Jer 32:6-15). The action of the Judean guard Irijah in 37:12-16 is a calculated response of the monarchy to Jeremiah's presumed pro-Babylonian activities. To protect the rulers, Jeremiah must be imprisoned and silenced. Despite his imprisonment, Zedekiah secretly sends for Jeremiah, so desperate is he for a good word. The prophet can't give Zedekiah what he desires, but he uses the opportunity to plead for relief from his harsh circumstances (37:18-20). As conditions disintegrate, one wonders who is in control: Egypt, Babylon, Judah, Zedekiah, the military, or the royal court? Zedekiah apparently realizes that the situation is slipping out of his control. So like the Pharaoh in the exodus story, he begs Jeremiah, a prophet like Moses, for help (see Exod receive a loaf of bread daily from the street vendors<sup>f</sup>—until all the bread in the city was gone. So Jeremiah remained in the prison quarters.

38 Shephatiah, Mattan's son; Gedaliah, Pashhur's son; Jucal, Shelemiah's son; and Pashhur, Malchiah's son heard what Jeremiah had been telling the people: <sup>2</sup>The LORD proclaims: Whoever stays in this city will die by the sword, famine, and disease. But whoever surrenders to the Babylonians will live; yes, their lives will be spared. <sup>3</sup>The LORD proclaims: This city will certainly be handed over to the army of Babylon's king, who will capture it.

<sup>4</sup>Then the officials said to the king: "This man must be put to death! By saying such things, he is discouraging the few remaining troops left in the city, as well as all the people. This man doesn't seek their welfare but their ruin!"

<sup>5</sup>"He's in your hands," King Zedekiah said, "for the king can do nothing to stop you." <sup>6</sup>So they seized Jeremiah, threw him into the cistern of the royal prince Malchiah, within the prison quarters, and lowered him down by ropes. Now there wasn't any water in the cistern, only mud, and Jeremiah began to sink into the mud.

<sup>10</sup>Then the king commanded Ebed-melech the Cushite, "Take thirty men from here and take Jeremiah the prophet out of the cistern before he dies." <sup>11</sup>So Ebed-melech took the men and returned to the palace, to an underground supply room, where he found some old rags and scraps of clothing.

Ebed-melech lowered them down the cistern by the ropes <sup>12</sup>and called to Jeremiah, "Put these old rags and scraps of clothing under your arms and hold on to the ropes." When Jeremiah did this, <sup>13</sup>they pulled him up by the ropes and got him out of the cistern. After that Jeremiah remained in the prison quarters.

<sup>14</sup>King Zedekiah ordered that the prophet Jeremiah be brought to him at the third entrance of the LORD's temple, where the king said to Jeremiah, "I want to ask you something, and don't hide anything from me."

<sup>15</sup>Jeremiah replied, "If I do, you'll kill me! And if I tell you what to do, you won't listen to me!"

<sup>16</sup>So King Zedekiah swore to Jeremiah behind closed doors, "As the LORD lives, who has given us this life, I won't put you to death and I won't hand you over to those who seek to kill you."

<sup>17</sup>So Jeremiah said to Zedekiah: "The LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: If you surrender to the officers of the king of Babylon, you and your family will live, 9:28). Zedekiah apparently discerns that the Lord is in control despite the coming of darkness.

38:1-6 Shephatiah, Mattan's son and Gedaliah, Pashhur's son are mentioned only here. Jucal, Shelemiah's son is the royal emissary mentioned in Jeremiah 37:3 (as "Jehucal"), and Pashhur, Malchiah's son may be the grandson of King Zedekiah (38:6; see Jer 21:1). This section is out of sync with the events in Jeremiah 37. But if one reads these individual scenes together as a unified story, the level of danger and desperation increases exponentially: Jeremiah's survival is in peril, the nation is on the verge of collapse, and Zedekiah is crippled by fear. Yet Jeremiah continues to preach the same message while confined to the prison compound: Babylon's victory is as sure as Jerusalem's fall! The only possibility for Judean survival is surrender to Babylon. As before, Judean officials consider Jeremiah to be an enemy of the state. King Zedekiah can do little to prevent his own officials from mistreating Jeremiah.

38:7-13 Ebed-melech enters the narrative unannounced. The narrator tells us practically nothing about this foreign dignitary apart from his courageous acts on Jeremiah's behalf. When the African court official learns of Jeremiah's situation, he leaves the comforts of the palace to come to the prophet's aid (38:8). Ebed-melech is the second person to save Jeremiah's life (see also Jer 26:24; 36:19). The city gate is where legal disputes are settled, so note the irony of an innocent prophet wasting away in prison, sinking into the mud (38:6), while the king is attending to matters of justice at the Benjamin Gate (38:7; see also Jer 37:13; cf. Jer 20:2). A courageous Ebed-melech approaches King Zedekiah when court is in session to champion the cause of Jeremiah, a victim of the state. Zedekiah grants Jeremiah a stay of execution, although the prophet remains in the prison quarters (38:13).

38:14-28 Once again Zedekiah calls on Jeremiah and tries to squeeze a good word out of him, and once again the prophet won't comply. The secret meeting exposes the utter desperation of king and prophet, both portrayed as victims of forces beyond their control. Yet Zedekiah can still find a way out, even at the eleventh hour. God will

<sup>19</sup>King Zedekiah said to Jeremiah, "I'm afraid that I will fall into the hands of the Judeans who have defected to the Babylonians, and they will torture me."

<sup>20</sup>"That won't happen," Jeremiah replied, "if you obey the LORD, whose message I bring. <sup>24</sup>Zedekiah said to Jeremiah, "No one is to know about these matters or else you will die. <sup>25</sup>If the officials find out that we met, and they come and say to you, 'Tell us what you said to the king. Don't hide anything from us; otherwise, we'll kill you. So what did the king say to you?' <sup>26</sup>you should say to them, 'I was begging the king not to send me back to the house of Jonathan to die there.'

<sup>27</sup>Then all the officials approached Jeremiah to question him. And he responded exactly as the king had instructed him. So they stopped interrogating him because the conversation between the king and Jeremiah<sup>a</sup> hadn't been overheard. <sup>28</sup>Jeremiah remained in the prison quarters until Jerusalem was captured.

Fall of Jerusalem

39 In the ninth year and the tenth month of Judah's King Zedekiah, Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar and his entire army came against Jerusalem and surrounded it. <sup>2</sup>In the eleventh year of Zedekiah, on the ninth day of the fourth month, they broke through the city walls. <sup>3</sup>Then all the commanding officers of the king of Babylon—Nergal-sharezzer, Samgar-nebo,<sup>b</sup> Sarsechim the chief officer, Nergal-sharezzer the field commander—entered it and took their places at the middle gate with the rest of the officials of the king of Babylon.

spare him and his country if he surrenders to Babylon. But Zedekiah's fear and self-interest prevent him from acting on behalf of his country (38:19). As the narrator forewarned (37:1-2), the king refuses to obey the Lord's word delivered by Jeremiah. As a result, Zedekiah and his royal court will suffer humiliation and defeat (38:20-23). Sworn to secrecy by the king, Jeremiah remains in prison until the fall of Jerusalem.

39:1-40:6 The fall of Jerusalem. In many respects the entire book thus far anticipates, indeed dreads, this moment. From Jeremiah's call in Jeremiah 1, Jerusalem's impending destruction casts a shadow over every prophecy, prayer, poem, and symbolic act in the book. The national crisis represents the climax and fulfillment of Jeremiah's prophetic mission: to dig up and pull down, to destroy and demolish. Yet when the disaster finally occurs, when Jerusalem is set aflame, and when its king is tortured, and Judeans are deported to Babylon (Jer 39:1-10), the narrator employs matter-of-fact language. The report occupies less space and time than one might expect. The telling of Jerusalem's fall includes little commentary, motive, or theological explanation, except for the words of Nebuzaradan, the head of Babylon's special guard (40:2-5).

This section can be divided into four parts: (1) the Babylonian capture of Jerusalem (39:1-10), (2) Nebuchadnezzar's kind treatment of Jeremiah (39:11-14), (3) God's promise to rescue Ebed-melech (39:15-18), and (4) Jeremiah's release and decision to remain in the land (40:1-6). Note that immediately following the description of the great national tragedy come three stories of hope, as if to punctuate the "digging up and pulling down" with "building and planting."

39:1-10 The description of the Babylonian capture and destruction of the city also appears in Jeremiah 52 and in 2 Kings 25 (see also 2 Chron 36:17-21). After an 18-month siege, from January 588 to July 587, the city falls. Babylonian officers take their seats at the middle gate to signal their control of Jerusalem. Zedekiah and his entourage attempt to escape to the south, but they are caught and taken to Nebuchadnezzar's headquarters at Riblah, in the children at Riblah before his very own eyes, and the king of Babylon slaughtered all the officials of Judah. <sup>7</sup>Then he gouged out Zedekiah's eyes, bound him in chains, and dragged him off to Babylon.

<sup>15</sup>The LORD's word came to Jeremiah when he was still confined to the prison quarters: <sup>16</sup>Go and say to Ebed-melech the Cushite that the LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: I'm about to fulfill my words concerning this city, for harm and not for good. You will witness it for yourself on that day. <sup>17</sup>But on that day, declares the LORD:

I will rescue you;
you won't be handed over to those you dread.

<sup>18</sup>I will defend you;
you won't die in battle.

You will escape with your life, because you have trusted in me,
declares the LORD.

Jeremiah's release

40 Jeremiah received the LORD's word after Nebuzaradan the captain of the special guard had released him from Ramah. He had been bound in chains there along with all the other detainees from Jerusalem and Judah who were being sent off to Babylon. <sup>2</sup>The captain of the special guard located Jeremiah and said to him, "The LORD your God declared that a great disaster would overtake this place. <sup>3</sup>Now the LORD has made it happen. He has done just as he warned because all of you have sinned against the LORD and haven't obeyed him. That's why this has happened to you. <sup>4</sup>But I'm setting you free from the chains on your hands. If you would like, come with me to Babylon, and I'll take care of you. If you would rather not come with me, that's fine too. Now, the whole land lies before you; go wherever region of Hamath (39:5) to the north, where the Judean king is put on trial and tortured. After the city is destroyed, Nebuzaradan rounds up the people and exiles many of them to Babylon. However, he leaves behind some of the poor and gives them land to cultivate (cf. Jer 52:15-16; 2 Kgs 25:11-12). Jeremiah 39:4-13 isn't found in the Greek translation (LXX) of the Hebrew.

39:11-14 Jeremiah's situation improves under Babylonian occupation, perhaps further confirmation to some that the prophet is a Babylonian sympathizer. Nebuchadnezzar treats Jeremiah with more goodwill than Jehoiakim or Zedekiah (see also Jer 40:1-6). Nebuchadnezzar's military commanders free the prophet from prison and entrust him to the care of Gedaliah, whom the Babylonian king eventually appoints as governor of Judah (see Jer 40:1-41:18; 2 Kgs 25:22-26). Gedaliah is a member of a prominent family with strong ties to King Josiah (2 Kgs 22) who was a key ally of Jeremiah (Jer 26:24).

39:15-18 Despite the national upheaval, Ebed-melech's acts of kindness on Jeremiah's behalf don't go unnoticed. Jeremiah tells Ebed-melech that God will reward him for his trust in the Lord (39:18). I will rescue you (39:17) are the same words of assurance given to Jeremiah in 15:21. escape with your life conveys a sense of barely surviving (this language is used for Baruch in Jer 45:5). Jeremiah, Baruch, and Ebed-melech—and the faithful few whom they represent—will survive war and exile, although not unscathed.

40:1-6 Nebuzaradan has Jeremiah released from confinement in Ramah and offers him the option of going to Babylon or staying in the land under Gedaliah's care. This account is likely a variant of the same story told in Jeremiah 39:11-14, though some scholars think that it may describe Jeremiah's later release from confinement in Ramah after Babylonian troops had mistakenly detained him. Nebuzaradan's speech echoes language from other books of the Bible. For examples, the LORD your God (throughout Deuteronomy), a great disaster (1 Kgs 9:9; Ezek 6:10), just as he warned (throughout Deuteronomy and Joshua), sinned against the LORD (Num 32:23; Deut 9:16), haven't obeyed him (Deut 9:23; Judg 2:2; 6:10), and the whole land lies before you (Gen 13:9).

Nebuzaradan Nebuzaradan is the high-ranking military figure responsible for destroying Jerusalem and relocating hundreds of Judeans to Babylon. In Jeremiah 40:1-6, however, he is presented in a positive light. This discrepancy in character has been the source of many interpretations. One scholar has suggested that Nebuzaradan is a righteous Gentile who deals humanely with Jeremiah. The positive portrait of Nebuzaradan, a complete outsider, may serve as a foil to draw attention to the shortcomings of insiders, God's people who should have obeyed Jeremiah and treated him well. The Bible tells numerous stories of insiders becoming outsiders and outsiders becoming insiders, no doubt to blur these hard and fast lines. It's also possible that the positive portrayal of the Babylonian military officer functions to emphasize God's authority over all powers and principalities, not unlike Jeremiah's portrait of Nebuchadnezzar as the Lord's servant (Jer 25:9; 27:6). However, Nebuzaradan's kindness and theological claims may merely serve as a tactic of the empire to win influence over its subject people.

you want. <sup>5</sup>If you decide to remain here,<sup>1</sup> stay with Gedaliah, Ahikam's son and Shaphan's grandson—the Babylonian appointee in charge of the cities of Judah. Stay with him and the people he rules or go wherever you want." Then the captain of the special guard gave him ample provisions and let him go. <sup>6</sup>Jeremiah went to Gedaliah, Ahikam's son at Mizpah, and he stayed with him and the people who remained in the land.

Gedaliah's provisional government

<sup>7</sup>Some of the army officers and their troops were still hiding out in the countryside when they heard that the king of Babylon had appointed Gedaliah, Ahikam's son, over the region, responsible for the men, women, and children who were the poorest in the land and who hadn't been deported to Babylon. <sup>8</sup>So they went out to meet Gedaliah at Mizpah: Ishmael, Nethaniah's son; Johanan and Jonathan, Kareah's sons; Seraiah son of Tanhumeth; the sons of Ephai the Netophathite; Jezaniah son of the Maacathite; and their troops. <sup>9</sup>Gedaliah, Ahikam's son and Shaphan's grandson, firmly assured them all: "Don't be afraid of serving the Babylonians. Remain in the land, serve the king of Babylon, and all will go well for you. <sup>10</sup>But me? I will stay at Mizpah so I can speak on your behalf when the Babylonians arrive. But you? Settle down in the towns you have taken; harvest the grapes, the summer fruits and figs, and then store them in your containers."

40:7-41:18 Post-disaster Judah: Plots and bloodshed. Initially the portrait of life in Judah after the fall of Jerusalem is unexpectedly tranquil. In the previous scene, Jeremiah is released from confinement in Ramah. He casts his lot with Gedaliah, Ahikam's son (see Jer 40:1-6), who is installed as governor in "Mizpah" (40:6), a city about eight miles north of Jerusalem. Unlike Jehoiakim and Zedekiah, Gedaliah is depicted as a kind leader and a man of peace. He forms a temporary government that is responsive to the needs of the people, including the poorest in the land. The newly appointed governor offers assurances of welfare and amnesty to nationalists who had resisted Babylonian rule. This was no time for reprisals but for rebuilding a wrecked country. Before long, however, this setting is shattered by conspiracy, assassination, and mass murder. This narrative excludes God and God's prophet Jeremiah. 40:7-16 Gedaliah's temporary government. The narrator sympathizes with Gedaliah and his postwar efforts. In fact one can detect clear echoes of Jeremiah's earlier prophecies in the governor's appeal (e.g., serve the king of Babylon, and all will go well for you in 40:9; cf. Jer 27:12, 17). The reader might even see Gedaliah's postwar government as the fulfillment of Jeremiah's oracles of restoration. The gathering of large amounts of grapes and summer fruits (40:12) only reinforces such hopes. Judean resistance fighters hear of Gedaliah's caring government and come out of hiding. And the governor offers them assurances for their loyalty to the empire. Although this involves certain concessions, it comes with the prospect of limited Judean independence in the land. The scene has an almost peaceful quality until Johanan, Kareah's son, and other military leaders approach Gedaliah with news that the Ammonite king has conspired to kill him. Ishmael, Nethaniah's son, a member of the royal family (see Jer 41:1), is about to execute his kill Ishmael, Nethaniah's son; no one needs to know about this matter. Otherwise, he'll kill you, and all the Judeans who have gathered around you will be scattered, and the few who are left will perish."

<sup>16</sup>But Gedaliah son of Ahikam told Johanan, Kareah's son, "Don't do such a thing, for what you are saying about Ishmael is wrong."

Mutiny and murder

41 In the seventh month,<sup>m</sup> Ishmael, Nethaniah's son and Elishama's grandson, who was from a royal family and who was one of the chief officers of the king, came with ten men to Gedaliah, Ahikam's son, at Mizpah. While they were eating a meal together, <sup>2</sup>Ishmael, Nethaniah's son, and the ten men got up and struck down Gedaliah, Ahikam's son and Shaphan's grandson, with the sword. They murdered him because he had been appointed over the region by the king of Babylon. <sup>3</sup>Ishmael also murdered all the Judeans who had rallied around Gedaliah at Mizpah as well as the Babylonian soldiers who were posted there.

<sup>8</sup>But there were ten men among them who begged Ishmael, "Don't kill us; we have wheat, barley, oil, and honey hidden in a field." So he stopped and didn't kill them along with the rest.

<sup>10</sup>Ishmael captured the rest of the people who were at Mizpah, including the daughters of the king and all those assigned to Gedaliah, Ahikam's son, at Mizpah by Nebuzaradan the captain of the special guard. Then Ishmael, Nethaniah's son, set out to cross over to the Ammonites with the hostages.

plot. Gedaliah dismisses the intelligence report as wrong (40:16), which is the same Hebrew word used by Jeremiah to describe the message of his prophetic opponents (see Jer 27:10, 14, 16; 28:15; 29:21). Gedaliah rejects any covert operation to assassinate Ishmael.

41:1-18 On 41:1 see 2 Kings 25:25. Gedaliah's refusal to believe Johanan costs him his life. The reference to Ishmael's royal ancestry (41:1) might suggest that he and his company are patriots seeking to reestablish an independent Judean state. eating a meal together is an act of hospitality and peace, but Ishmael fools his host. He kills Gedaliah and the Judeans who rallied around him at Mizpah as well as the Babylonian soldiers posted there (41:1-3). A group of worshippers from the northern cities of Shechem, Shiloh, and Samaria en route to Jerusalem (41:4-7) also fall victim to Ishmael's brutality. The shaved beards, torn clothes, and gashed bodies (41:5) are signs of mourning, likely for the destruction of the temple. Apparently some form of worship continued at the temple site after 587 BCE. Although Ishmael murders Gedaliah for his pro-Babylonian loyalties (41:2), his motives for the massacre of the innocent worshippers are unknown. King Asa's construction of a cistern to ward off Israel's King Baasha (41:9) isn't mentioned elsewhere. Ishmael takes hostages and tries to escape to Ammon before Johanan and his military unit intervene (41:10-15). the great pool in Gibeon (41:12) was the site of an earlier conflict between Judah and Israel (2 Sam 2:12-17). Now it's the setting for a skirmish between Johanan and Ishmael, who manages to avoid capture and flees to Ammon. Johanan gathers Ishmael's captives and heads Ishmael, Nathaniah's son, had killed Gedaliah, Ahikam's son, whom the king of Babylon had appointed over the region.

Don't go to Egypt!

42 Then all the army officers, including Johanan, Kareah's son, and Jezaniah, Hoshaiah's son, and the rest of the people, from the least to the greatest, approached <sup>2</sup>Jeremiah the prophet and said to him, "We have something to ask you: Please pray to the LORD your God for us, this small group, for as you can see we were once many but now are very few. <sup>3</sup>May the LORD your God show us where we should go and what we should do."

<sup>4</sup>The prophet Jeremiah replied, "Yes, I'll pray to the LORD your God as you have asked. And I'll tell you whatever the LORD says; I won't hide anything from you."

<sup>5</sup>Then they said to Jeremiah, "May the LORD be a true and faithful witness against us if we fail to do everything that the LORD your God tells us through you. <sup>6</sup>Whether we like it or not, we will obey all that the LORD our God says. We will obey the LORD our God, to whom we're sending you, so it may go well for us."

<sup>7</sup>Ten days later Jeremiah received the LORD's word. <sup>8</sup>So he called Johanan, Kareah's son, and all the army officers with him and the rest of the people, from the least to the greatest, <sup>9</sup>and he said to them: You have sent me to present your plea to the LORD, and this is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: <sup>10</sup>If you live in this land, I will build you up and not pull you down. I will plant you and not dig you up because I grieve over the disaster I have brought upon you. <sup>11</sup>You don't have to be afraid of the king of Babylon, whom you now fear. You don't have to be afraid of him anymore, declares the LORD, for I will be with you to save you and rescue you from his hand. <sup>12</sup>I will be merciful to you, and he will be merciful and return you to your land.

<sup>13</sup>But if you say, "We won't live in this land," you will disobey the LORD your God. <sup>14</sup>And if you insist, "No, we're going to live in Egypt, where there's no war, battle alarms, or hunger, and there we will stay," <sup>15</sup>then listen to the LORD's word, you remaining Judeans. The LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: If you are determined to go to Egypt and you then go and live there, <sup>16</sup>then the war you fear will seize you in the land of Egypt; and the famine you dread will hunt you down in Egypt, and there you will die. <sup>17</sup>Every one of you who is determined to go and live in Egypt will die by the sword, famine, and disease. No one will escape the disaster that I will bring upon them there.

<sup>18</sup>The LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: Just as my fierce anger was poured out on the people of Jerusalem, so it will be poured out on you if you go to Egypt. You will become an object of cursing, scorn, shock, and disgrace. And you will never see this south for Egypt for fear of Babylonian reprisals (41:16-18). This sets the stage for Jeremiah 42-44. Again it should be noted that God and Jeremiah are entirely absent in this narrative. The militants may have thought they were acting in God's name, but God and God's prophet are far removed from this brutality and deception. Divine silence calls attention to the horror of the violence, whether done in the name of patriotism, religion, or ideological purity.

42:1-44:30 What to do and where to go? The question of Egypt. The final chapters of the Baruch narrative focus on two major incidents: (1) Johanan and his military officers rejecting the prophetic word and departing to Egypt, taking with them the surviving Judeans, including Jeremiah and Baruch (Jer 42:1-43:7); and (2) Jeremiah, now in Egypt, continuing his accusations against the people, mostly for their idolatry and opposition to God's word (Jer 43:8-44:30). The two scenes belong together sequentially and thematically. They describe the events that lead to a Judean presence in Egypt, they make a strong case that going to Egypt is against God's will, and they charge the Judeans with disobeying God's will. In fact, the people's solemn pledge to obey the LORD (42:6) and their choice to disobey the LORD (42:13-15, 21; 43:4, 7; 44:5, 16, 23) hold the narratives together. Judah's opposition to God's will serves at least two purposes: (1) it blames the people for the disasters that took place (see, e.g., 44:2-6; see, however, 42:10), clearing God of charges of injustice or impotence; and (2) it suggests that the exiles in Babylon, not the Judean contingent in Egypt, are heirs of God's promises.

42:1-6 Jeremiah reenters the story as the key figure. Although the survivors associated with Johanan seem intent on going to Egypt (Jer 41:16-18), they approach Jeremiah and ask for prayer and divine guidance. Please pray to the Lord your God for us (42:2): God has forbidden Jeremiah to intercede for the people (Jer 7:16; 11:14; 15:1), but now God allows him to do so as before (see Jer 37:3-10; 38:14-23). The small group we encounter here is only a shadow of Israel of the past, but its meeting with the prophet—and especially its solemn promise—recalls covenant ceremonies at key times in Israel's history (Exod 19:1-13; 24:3-4; Josh 24:1-28).

42:7-22 All, including Jeremiah, must wait for a divine response, and it comes Ten days later. God gives the people a life-and-death decision. If they remain in the land, God will build [them] up and not pull [them] down... plant [them] and not dig [them] up (42:10; see Jer 1:10), and the king of Babylon will be merciful to them (42:11-12). If they return to Egypt—the place where their ancestors were enslaved—they will not only face disaster but their fears will be realized (42:13-17). The prophetic word is a terrible place again. <sup>19</sup>You who survive from Judah, the LORD has told you: Don't go to Egypt. Know without a doubt that I have warned you this day. <sup>20</sup>You are putting your lives at risk<sup>p</sup> by sending me to the LORD your God, saying, "Pray for us to the LORD our God; tell us everything the LORD our God says, and we'll do it." <sup>21</sup>Today I have told you, but you still haven't obeyed all that the LORD your God has sent me to tell you. <sup>22</sup>So know without a doubt that you will die by war, famine, and disease in the place you yearn to go and live.

Off to Egypt with Jeremiah and Baruch

43 When Jeremiah finished telling the people all the words of the LORD their God—he didn't omit anything the LORD sent him to convey—<sup>2</sup>Azariah, Hoshaiah's son, and Johanan, Kareah's son, and all the arrogant men said to Jeremiah, "You're lying to us! The LORD our God didn't send you to tell us not to go to Egypt to live. <sup>3</sup>It's Baruch, Neriah's son, who put you up to it so that we end up in the hands of the Babylonians, who will either kill us or deport us to Babylon."

warning and a passionate appeal. God grieve[s] over the disaster (God has) brought upon them (42:10; see also Gen 6:7). And God urges Johanan and his company neither to fear Babylon (42:11-12) nor to consider Egypt's help a good solution (42:13-17). Although Egypt may look as if it is an alternative to Babylon, to go there to live would be an act of rebellion and a dreadful political mistake (cf. Isa 31:1; see also Deut 17:16). sword, famine, and disease: a phrase (42:17) used often to denote divine judgment (see Jer 14:12, 13; 24:10; 27:8, 13; 29:17, 18; 32:24), as are the phrases my fierce anger (42:18; see also Jer 7:20), an object of cursing, scorn, shock, and disgrace (42:18; see Jer 29:18; 44:12), and war, famine, and disease (42:22; see Jer 27:13; 29:18; 38:2; 44:12, 13). The prophet speaks as if the people's decision has already been made (42:18-22; see Deut 31:24-29; Josh 24:19-25; cf. 1 Sam 8:10-18).

43:1-7 The moment Jeremiah concludes the prophetic message, Azariah, Johanan, and other commanders reject it. Jeremiah often accuses his opponents of lying (Jer 8:8, 10; 14:14; 23:25, 26; 27:10). Now he is charged with fabricating God's word. Grasping at straws, the Judean officers claim that Baruch, who hasn't been mentioned since Jeremiah 36, has put Jeremiah up to betraying them. Baruch has played a relatively minor role in the book. He aids Jeremiah in a business transaction/symbolic action (Jer 32), he transcribes Jeremiah's words on a scroll (Jer 36), and he is the recipient of a prophetic message (Jer 45). Now he is transformed into the secret source behind Jeremiah's words. The narrative collapses a whole range of partisan issues—that is, pro-Babylonian and pro-Egyptian rivalries—into a sweeping claim: The small group of Judeans in the land wouldn't obey the LORD (43:7). Their guilt increases when they force all the survivors, including Jeremiah and Baruch, to go with them to Tahpanhes, an Egyptian city in the northeast Nile Delta.

43:8-13 In this first narrative set in Egypt, sometime after 582 BCE, Jeremiah takes several large stones and buries them under a pavement in front of the palace in Tahpanhes. This symbolic act demonstrates that the king of Babylon will establish his throne there. The reference to the king of Babylon as my servant King Nebuchadnezzar (43:10; see Jer 25:9; 27:6) focuses on the Lord's dominion in human history. That is, Babylon's impending defeat of Egypt isn't only political but also a theological reality (see Ezek 29:19-20; 30:10-19). those marked for disaster, to disaster (43:11; cf. Jer 15:2 referring to Jerusalem). Babylon's victory has military and religious consequences: Nebuchadnezzar will dismantle Egypt's entire religious world. Such language is a reminder of the exodus story and the utter defeat of the Egyptian gods. The image of wrapping

Rom 9:27Jeremiah's final words to Judeans in Egypt

44 Jeremiah received the LORD's word for the Judeans living in the land of Egypt, those living in Migdol, Tahpanhes, and Memphis and in the land of Pathros. <sup>1</sup>The LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: You have seen the disaster I brought on Jerusalem and the towns of Judah. They are now a wasteland with no one left <sup>2</sup>because of their evil ways. They have angered me by making offerings and worshipping other gods that neither they nor you nor your ancestors knew. <sup>3</sup>Yet time and again I sent you all my servants the prophets, saying, "Don't do these detestable things that I hate." <sup>4</sup>But they wouldn't listen or pay attention or turn from their evil ways. They continued making offerings to other gods. <sup>5</sup>So my fierce anger poured out and blazed against the towns of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem. And they were reduced to an utter wasteland, as they are today.

<sup>7</sup>Now the LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: Why are you committing this huge mistake that will cost you your lives? Every man, woman, child, and infant will be eliminated from the midst of Judah, and no one will be left. <sup>8</sup>Why do you anger me by what you do: by burning incense to other gods in the land of Egypt where you have come to live? You will be eliminated and become an object of cursing and disgrace among all the nations of the earth. <sup>9</sup>Have you forgotten the sins of your ancestors and the sins of the kings of Judah and their wives? <sup>10</sup>Have you forgotten the sins that you and your wives committed in the land of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? <sup>11</sup>To this day you<sup>w</sup> haven't shown any sorrow for what you have done. And you haven't revered me or followed my Instruction and my laws that I set before you and your ancestors.

<sup>12</sup>Therefore, the LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: I'm determined to bring disaster on you, to eliminate all of Judah. <sup>13</sup>I will take the few remaining Judeans who were determined to go to the land of Egypt to live. They will all perish there. They will fall by the sword and perish due to famine. The least to the greatest will die by the sword and by famine. They will become an object of cursing, scorn, contempt, and disgrace. <sup>14</sup>I will punish those who live in the land of Egypt, just as I punished Jerusalem with war, famine, and disease. <sup>15</sup>From the few remaining in Judah, no fugitive or survivor who came to live here in the land of Egypt will be able to return to the land of Judah. Even though they want to return and live there, they won't be able to return, except for some fugitives.

<sup>16</sup>Then all the men who knew that their wives had made offerings to other gods, along with the great crowd of women who were present, as well as the people living in Pathros in the land around oneself as a shepherd wraps his garment around himself (i.e., carrying his loot away) conveys a sense of crushing the enemy. The same Hebrew text has also been translated as a shepherd "picking lice off his clothes," perhaps denoting victory with little opposition (43:12), the sacred pillars in the temple of the sun: may refer to sacred monuments ("sacred pillars" or "obelisks") in Heliopolis—a city seven miles northeast of modern Cairo—which was the center of the worship of the sun-god, Re.

44:1-30 Jeremiah's final words for Judeans living in Egypt. His three statements (44:1-14, 20-23, 24-30) explain the results from the fall of Judah and Jerusalem for those living in Egypt. The central point of Jeremiah's speeches is that worship of foreign deities is a serious violation of the covenant. Such a breach of the covenant's principal demand—"You must have no other gods before me" (Deut 5:7)—carries the gravest of consequences. The people insist on worshipping the queen of heaven. This drives home the people's guilt and collective responsibility (notice the word all in 44:15 [twice], 20, 24 [twice]).

44:1-14 The multiple settlements of Judean communities in Egypt (44:1) suggest the passage of time since the Johanan group left Judah (Jer 43:4-13). Jeremiah addresses Judeans who are now settled in Migdol, Tahpanhes, and Memphis and in the land of Pathros. Migdol was a city in northern Egypt. Tahpanhes: See Jeremiah 43:1-7. Memphis:

(or Noph) See Jeremiah 2:16; south of modern Cairo, Memphis was the ancient capital of Egypt. Pathros denotes Upper Egypt. In this first of Jeremiah's three speeches in this chapter, he accuses the people of disobeying God and worshipping other gods. These offenses explain the fall of Judah and Jerusalem. And if the Judeans living in Egypt continue to worship other gods, they will suffer a similar fate. Jeremiah's sermon reflects the language and theology of Deuteronomy and the Deuteronomistic History (Deut-2 Kgs). Similar to 2 Kings 17:5-23 (see also Jer 25:3-10), for instance, Jeremiah proclaims: (1) the Lord sends the prophets to warn the people, (2) God's people reject their message, and (3) as a result, they suffer divine judgment, that is, God brings upon them war, famine, and disease. This passage says that the nation's tragic circumstances don't occur outside the scope of God's power and purposes. It also makes the case that Israel—whether at home or living outside the land of Judah—is obligated to be God's faithful covenant people. And finally its accusations against the Judean survivors in Egypt support the interests of the Judeans living in Babylon who later receive support from the Persian government for the rebuilding of Judah and Jerusalem. This latter group probably put together an early form of the book.

44:15-19 The people reject the prophetic word—We're not going to listen to a word you have said to us in the Lord's the land of Egypt, all answered Jeremiah: <sup>16</sup>“We’re not going to listen to a word you have said to us in the LORD’s name! <sup>17</sup>No, we’re going to do exactly what we want: We’re going to burn incense to the queen of heaven and pour out drink offerings to her, as we and our ancestors, our kings and our officials, have done in the towns of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem. Then we had plenty to eat and we were thriving; we didn’t have any troubles. <sup>18</sup>But ever since we stopped burning incense to the queen of heaven and pouring drink offerings to her, we have been destroyed by the sword and by famine.”

<sup>20</sup>Jeremiah said to all the people, men and women alike, in fact everyone who had spoken this way: <sup>21</sup>“Do you really think the LORD was unaware of what you were up to in the towns of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem? Don’t you think the LORD knew that you and your ancestors were making offerings to other gods†—along with your kings and officials, and the people of the land? <sup>22</sup>It got so bad that the LORD could no longer bear your evil and shameless acts; it was at that point that your land was reduced to an utter wasteland and a curse, as it is today. <sup>23</sup>The current dire situation occurred because you made offerings to other gods‡ and sinned against the LORD—because you wouldn’t obey the LORD or follow the LORD’s instruction, laws, or warnings.”

<sup>24</sup>Then Jeremiah said to all the people, including the women: Listen to the LORD’s word, all you Judeans in the land of Egypt. <sup>25</sup>The LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel, proclaims: You and your wives have done exactly what you said you would do. You said, “We will definitely fulfill our promise to burn incense to the queen of heaven and pour out drink offerings to her.” Go ahead and keep your promises! <sup>26</sup>But listen to the LORD’s word, all you Judeans who live in the land of Egypt. I swear by my great name, says the LORD, that no one from Judah living in Egypt will utter my name again, even in the solemn pledge: “As surely as the LORD God lives.” <sup>27</sup>I’m watching over them for harm and not for good. Everyone from Judah who is living in the land of Egypt will die by the sword and by famine, until all are gone. <sup>28</sup>Those who actually survive war and return from Egypt to the land of Judah will be very few. Then the few remaining Judeans living in Egypt will know for certain whose word is true—mine or theirs! <sup>29</sup>And this will be a sign for you, declares the LORD: I will punish you here so that you know my threats against you will surely be fulfilled. <sup>30</sup>The LORD proclaims: I will hand Pharaoh Hophra, Egypt’s king, over to his enemies who seek to kill him, just as I delivered Judah’s King Zedekiah over to his enemy King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, who sought to kill him.

A final word for Baruch

45 In the fourth year of Judah’s King Jehoiakim, Josiah’s son, Baruch was writing in a scroll the words that Jeremiah was dictating to him. Jeremiah the prophet told Baruch, Neriah’s son: <sup>2</sup>This is what the LORD the God of Israel proclaims about you, Baruch:

*Syr; MT lacks and the women added. †Heb lacks to other gods. ‡Heb lacks to other gods.

name! (44:16)—and affirm their allegiance to the queen of heaven (44:17; see also Jer 7:18), likely a reference to Ishtar, the Mesopotamian goddess of fertility and war. They defend their position: when they worshipped the queen of heaven, all went well—perhaps an allusion to the period before Josiah’s reform (2 Kgs 22–23).

44:20–23 The prophet refutes the people’s basic interpretation of life and death, reward and punishment. Their circumstances are a direct consequence of disobedience to the Lord, not the queen of heaven.

44:24–30 With biting irony, Jeremiah grants that the people have fulfilled their solemn promises (Jer 42:4–6), but not to the Lord! Consequently, God swears to fulfill God’s own solemn pledge to bring further disaster (44:26). I’m watching over them (44:27) employs the same verb as in Jeremiah’s call narrative (Jer 1:11–12), as if to remind the reader that God has been attentive all along. Although God’s attention (watching) can lead to building and planting (as in Jer 31:28; see also Jer 1:10), it serves the Judean remnant in Egypt for harm and not for good (see also 21:10; 39:16). This is a reversal of God’s assurance given to the Babylonian exiles: God has plans for their good, not for harm (Jer 29:11). Moreover, God promises to “treat [them] kindly” (i.e., do good) and “regard them as good” (Jer 24:5–6). Jeremiah declares that Pharaoh Hophra (known as Apries, who ruled 589–570 BCE) will be handed over to his enemies. The allusion to Pharaoh Hophra’s death as a sign (Jer 44:29) again brings to mind the exodus story, which begins with a sign for Moses (Exod 3:12). The sign for Moses, however, confirmed God’s liberation of Israel, whereas the sign of Pharaoh Hophra’s death confirms the community’s death sentence in Egypt.

45:1–5 Survival promised Baruch. An individual oracle of comfort. Like Jeremiah’s confessions, Baruch cries out to God, the source of his distress and his only hope for relief from it. He can no longer cope with his circumstances,

The End of the Baruch Narrative God's brief word of assurance to Jeremiah's secretary concludes the Baruch narrative (Jer 36–45). It's significant that the beginning and the end of this narrative refer to the prophetic scroll that Baruch writes at Jeremiah's dictation. The Baruch narrative is organized around the production of the scroll in the year 605 BCE, the "fourth year of Judah's King Jehoiakim, Josiah's son" (Jer 36:1; 45:1). God's words uttered by Jeremiah are now preserved in authoritative written form. Much of Judah's world is now shattered. The land is ravaged, the temple is razed to the ground, the Davidic king is exiled in Babylon, the Gedaliah experiment has failed, Jeremiah and Baruch are taken to Egypt, and God's people are suffering the traumatic violence of war. But the scroll remains intact. And even though King Jehoiakim has it shredded and burned, Baruch creates another one as Jeremiah dictates "all the words in the scroll burned in the fire by Judah's King Jehoiakim" (Jer 36:32). One of the great themes of the Baruch Narrative is the resilience of God's word as it changes from spoken to written form.

<sup>3</sup>You have said, "I can't take it anymore! The LORD has added sorrow to my pain. I'm worn out from groaning and can find no rest." <sup>4</sup>This is what you should say to him: "The LORD proclaims: I'm breaking down everything I have built up. I'm digging up that which I have planted—the entire land. <sup>5</sup>You seek great things for yourself, but don't bother. I'm bringing disaster on all humanity, declares the LORD, but wherever you go I will let you escape with your life."

ORACLES CONCERNING THE NATIONS

46 This is what the LORD told the prophet Jeremiah concerning the nations.

Prophecy against Egypt

Polish your spears; put on your armor!

as he can find no rest (45:3). In response to his lament, Jeremiah delivers a disconcerting response: Baruch's situation can't be divorced from the dangerous times in which he lives, when God is breaking down everything [God has] built up . . . [and] digging up that which [God has] planted—the entire land (45:4). Once again we encounter language from Jeremiah's call (Jer 1:10). The Hebrew word translated as land is often rendered "earth." Accordingly, the crisis may refer to national, regional, or even global disaster (see, however, 45:5). Baruch expects a reward for his service, but in moments of great upheaval, even modest expectations must give way to more realistic forms of hope: mere survival. God won't grant Baruch's petition for great things for himself (45:5), but assures him that he will survive the perilous times. escape with your life: a phrase also found in Jeremiah 39:18 with reference to Ebed-melech, another faithful servant of God. Survival, not reward, is the operative word in times of war.

46:1–51:64 Jeremiah's mission as prophet to the nations. The final collection of prophecies in Jeremiah is commonly called the "oracles concerning (or against) the nations." The countries spoken of in this concluding section include Egypt (46:2–28), Philistia (47:1–7), Moab (48:1–47), Ammon (49:1–6), Edom (49:7–22), Damascus (49:23–27), Kedar and Hazor (49:28–33), Elam (49:34–39), and Babylon (50:1–51:64). The prophecies differ in substance and length, but most are announcements of divine judgment. Collections of oracles against the nations are common in the prophetic literature (see Amos 1–2; Isa 13–23; Ezek 25–23). Jeremiah's oracles against the nations begin with a denunciation of Egypt, Israel's first oppressor, and conclude with a lengthy judgment oracle against Babylon, its present nemesis. The enormous space and time given to the latter suggests that the predicted fall of Babylon represents the climax and culmination of the oracles against the nations. God's decisive action against oppressive powers and principalities signals hope and the promise of restoration for God's mistreated people.

The placement of the oracles against the nations in Jeremiah is significant. In the Greek text (LXX) the collection of oracles appears at the end of the first half of the prophetic drama (25:13a)—in many respects a more natural literary setting—followed by a terrifying text in which Jeremiah charges the nations to drink God's cup of judgment. Thus, the oracles against the nations bring to a close the first half of the book with universal judgment: the nations, including Judah and its capital city, Jerusalem, drink from the Lord's cup of wrath. No one escapes divine judgment; no one eludes disaster. Indeed, judgment begins with the household belonging to God.

The oracles against the nations function very differently in the Hebrew Bible. The collection of oracles appears at the end of the book, emphasizing the entire prophetic performance with God's dramatic defeat of those who commit injustice and brutality. God won't let governing authorities get away with murder, a fact that conveys hope for

it's a day of reckoning,

The sword will devour until it has had its fill of blood.
The LORD God of heavenly forces is preparing a sacrifice in the north

fensive of Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar against the land of Egypt:

their victims. God's people have endured enormous hardship, and now God resolves to punish oppressors, dismantle arrogant world powers, and bring peace. Furthermore, the placement of the oracles against the nations at the end of the book rounds out the mission of Jeremiah as a "prophet to the nations" (Jer 1:5, 10). At the start, God appoints Jeremiah "over nations and empires, to dig up and pull down, to destroy and demolish, to build and plant" (Jer 1:10). Now at its close, his international mission comes to fruition. Moreover, it becomes clear that God's purposes on earth extend far beyond the scope of Judah's borders.
Finally, the different internal arrangement of the poems in the Hebrew emphasizes Babylon's downfall. Unlike the internal order of the oracles against the nations in the LXX, Babylon appears in the final and climactic position, as if all other oracles serve as a prelude to God's victory over Judah's archenemy. The broader setting of the oracles against the nations in the Hebrew text as well as the internal arrangement of the poems affirm that God reigns on earth, that evildoers won't skirt God's justice, and that the historical losers will one day be vindicated.

46:1-28 Prophecy against Egypt. The prophecy concerning Egypt has three parts (46:2-12, 13-24, and 25-28), each introduced by an historical allusion (46:2, 13, 25-26). Jeremiah 46:1 serves as an introduction to the oracles against the nations.

46:2-12 The prophecy against Egypt is set in the year 605 BCE when Babylon defeated Egypt at Carchemish, which ended Egyptian control of Judah. As noted previously (see Jer 25:1; 36:1; 45:1), this particular date has historical and symbolic significance. The reference to the fourth year of Judah's King Jehoiakim, Josiah's son marks the onset of King Nebuchadnezzar's reign and Babylon's control of Judah. Elsewhere in Jeremiah this allusion conveys a deep sense of anxiety at the prospect of the pulling apart of Judah's old world. In this instance, however, the year 605 signals the defeat of Egypt, which may signal more positive prospects for Judah. Military troops are to prepare for war (46:3-9). Panic lurks at every turn: or "everywhere" (46:5; see also Jer 6:25; 20:3, 10; 49:29), which portrays the situation of the Egyptian soldiers. I will arise and cover the earth: conveys Egyptian arrogance and aggression, which seem silly in light of regional political realities and God's military campaign (46:10-12). Cush is Ethiopia, and Put is likely Libya (46:9; see the translation note). Employing funeral speech, Egypt's defeat is described as divine judgment, that is, a day of reckoning, a bloody sacrifice (46:10), the futile search for healing and help (46:11-12). For the association of Gilead with balm (46:11), see Jeremiah 8:22.
46:13-24 A brief note introduces the second scene
(46:13): Jeremiah's prophetic message is about Babylon's advance on Egypt. The prophet portrays both the political and symbolic downfall of mighty Egypt—the nation that once defied the king, whose name is the LORD of heavenly forces (46:18). Migdol, Memphis, and Tahpanhes: See notes on Jeremiah 43:1-7; 44:1-14. The prophetic call to prepare for war is actually a taunt against Israel's ancient foe, long associated with its bondage. Insults are hurled at the Egyptian gods (your mighty in 46:15; the Greek reads "Apis," the fertility god), warriors, and king, who is called a wind-bag with Nothing But Hot Air (46:15-17). Such empty talk contrasts with real power wielded by the heavenly king. A series of striking images continues the parody on Egypt (46:19-24): heifer, horsefly from the north (for the theme of danger from the north, see Jer 1:13-15; 4:6; 6:1, 22), well-fed calves, and a snake hissing; its adversaries are likened to woodcutters and locusts. The reversal of power structures, which includes defeated gods, blundering kings, conquered warriors, and exiled Egyptians, would no doubt delight war-torn Judeans under foreign control.

46:25-28 The prose (46:25-26) serves as a literary bridge to the next prophetic scene. It comments on and clarifies the previous oracles of judgment and introduces an element of hope for Egypt and Judah. Egypt's downfall is now spelled out. The God of Israel will punish everything Egyptian: Amon, the sun god whose temple was in Thebes, its (other) gods, and kings, as well as Pharaoh and all who rely on him (46:25). The latter may be an oblique reference to Judeans who sought refuge in Egypt. Babylon is still God's instrument of judgment, but now it takes military action against Egypt, not Judah. Divine judgment against Egypt is unqualified, but it isn't the final word

Prophecy against Philistia

47 The LORD's word to the prophet Jeremiah concerning the Philistines before Pharaoh conquered Gaza.

Waters are rising from the north and turning into a raging flood.

They will engulf the land and everything in it, the towns and those living in them.

The people cry out;
 all who live there scream.

<sup>3</sup> At the pounding of the stallions' hooves, at the deafening roar of the chariots' wheels, parents abandon children, so paralyzed are they with fear.

 for cutting off from Tyre and Sidon anyone who might try to save Gaza,<sup>i</sup> because the LORD will destroy the Philistines,

 silence will cover Ashkelon, the few left in their valley.
 How long will you gash yourselves in grief?<sup>k</sup>

<sup>6</sup> You sword of the LORD, how long until you are silent?
 Return to your sheath; rest and be still!

 to attack Ashkelon and the coast line?

Prophecy against Moab

48 Concerning Moab:
 The LORD of heavenly forces,
 the God of Israel, proclaims:

How awful for Nebo; it lies in ruins.

Kirathaim is captured and shamed;
 the fortress is disgraced, reduced to rubble.

(46:26; cf. Jer 48:47; 49:6, 39). Moreover, in 46:27-28 (a text that is virtually identical to Jer 30:10-11), Jeremiah urges Israel and Judah not to fear.

47:1-7 Prophecy against Philistia. A people located on the southern Mediterranean coast, often referred to as "Sea Peoples," the Philistines were one of Israel's earliest rivals (see Judg 13-16; 1 Sam 4-7; 13-14; 17). Although their power had long since waned, they were likely included in the oracles against the nations because of their symbolic role as archenemy of Israel. Pharaoh conquered Gaza: perhaps a cryptic reference to Pharaoh Neco II's military campaign in 609 BCE, which came from the south. This is at odds with an assault on Philistia from the north (47:2). The poetry creates a picture of a small country, like Judah, crushed between two superpowers. The image of the north and the deafening roar of the chariots' wheels in 46:2-3 elicit dread of impending chaos, as does the intensity of raging flood. Consider the terrifying image of the sea: "the deep sea" (Gen 1:2), the "floodwaters" (Gen 6:17; 7:6), "massive waves" (Ps 42:7), "waters roar[ing] and rag[ing] . . . surging waves" (Ps 46:3), the "deep water" (Ps 144:7), all symbolize powers of chaos that jeopardize the very structure of life. The Philistines' dilemma is far more than political: the Lord is the architect of Philistia's doom (46:4). No wonder great mourning follows (47:5-7). Tyre and Sidon: Phoenician cities that may have been allies of Philistia (46:4). The island of Caphtor: or Crete, which is identified as the ancestral home of the Philistines in Amos 9:7. In the final verses of the poem, the victims of the invasion cry out in pain and plead for mercy (46:6-7). Even the enemy's cries must be heard.

48:1-47 The prophecy against Moab. The longest oracle of judgment in the Bible against Israel's ancient neighbor to the east of the Dead Sea (see also Isa 15-16; Ezek 25:8-11; Amos 2:1-3; Zeph 2:8-11). Although Israel had kinship ties to Moab (Gen 19:37-38), many of its interactions were hostile from the time of the exodus to that of Ezra (Num 22-25; 1 Sam 14:47; Ezra 9:1; Neh 13:1, 23). In the post-exilic period, however, the Moabite Ruth came to serve as an exemplar of love and loyalty. This Moabite woman, an outsider in the extreme, became part of King David's family tree (Ruth 4:18-22) and Matthew's genealogy of Jesus (Matt 1:5-6). The sections are repetitive, disorganized, and are at times made up of quotations from other parts of the Bible (e.g., Jer 48:43-44; Isa 24:17-18; 48:29-39; 15-16). 48:1-9 The first poem is a divine lament over Moab's ruin. Its fallen cities and fortresses evoke expressions of alarm. The words cries, cry, and sobs (48:3-5), translations of the same Hebrew word, emphasize the ravages of war, especially upon the vulnerable (its young). Nebo is remembered elsewhere as the mountain upon which Moses viewed the land of Israel from a distance (Deut 34). Kirathaim is a Moabite city whose location is unknown, although it is listed on the Moabite Stone. Heshbon is an Amorite stronghold captured by the Israelites en route to the promised land (Num 21:21-31). The location of Horonaim is uncertain (Jer 48:3, 5, 34; see 2 Sam 13:34; Isa 15:5), as is Luhith's (see Isa 15:5). Chemosh is the chief god of Moab (see Num 21:29; Jdg 11:24; 1 Kgs 11:7). 48:10-17 Moab's undoing is portrayed in terms of crime and punishment. Its undoing is seen as the LORD's work, and those engaged in this work are scolded for their lack of diligence. Moab's complacency is likened to wine jars that haven't been moved and have been allowed to settle.

The Lord, however, will disturb Moab's stability by sending people (i.e., Babylonians) to pour out the Moabites (48:12). Moab's idolatry and arrogance will then be exposed, as demonstrated by its fallen war heroes (48:14) and shattered scepter (48:17).

48:18-28 Dibon: an important city in central Moab along the major trade route through the Transjordan. Aroer: a reference to a fortified settlement southeast of Dibon. The Amon River ran through central Moab to the Dead Sea from the east. The towns of the central plateau are listed in 48:21-24. horn and the arm: symbols of power. Moab's drunkenness is an image of its humiliation and God's judgment (48:26). Jeremiah 48:27 reveals deep hostility for Moab's mistreatment of Israel. Proud Moab will finally get its due.

48:29-39 Although Moab's arrogance is still center stage, the Lord grieves over Moab's sad condition. Throughout the book of Jeremiah, God suffers with suffering people, especially the people of Judah (e.g., Jer 8:22-9:3). Now God weeps over suffering Moab. The intensity of God's grief is clear in the string of verbs: God wails, cries, sobs, and weeps (48:31); God's heart wails for Moab . . . [God's] heart wails for the people of Kir-heres (48:36). Although the text celebrates the humiliation of the proud, the Lord takes no delight in their suffering. The text paints a dreadful picture of the wreckage of war. the destroyer has come: war ravaged the land (48:32). The result is drought, devastation, and death. Shaved heads, cut beards, slashed hands, and mourning clothes are conventional expressions of grief (48:37).

the final word, even for Israel's ancient nemesis. As is the case for Egyptians (46:26), Ammonites (49:6), and Elamites (49:39), divine mercy awaits the people of Moab.

49:1-6 The prophecy against Ammon. The Ammonites were neighbors (and kin; see Gen 19:38) of Israel and Judah, located east of the Jordan and north of Moab. Political relations between the nations were often hostile (e.g., Deut 23:3). Biblical stories recall their frequent battles (e.g., Judg 3:12-14; 10:6-18; 1 Sam 11:1-11). During Jeremiah's time, the Ammonites were part of an anti-Babylonian alliance (Jer 27) and helped overthrow Gedaliah's government (Jer 40-41). Their country was destroyed in the 6th-century Babylonian invasion. The prophecy against Ammon has three parts. It opens with an accusation of wrongdoing (49:1). The prophet accuses Ammon of taking land that isn't its own (e.g., Judg 10:6-12:7; see also Amos 1:13-15). Under the auspices of their patron god Milcom (49:3, see 1 Kgs 11:5, 33), the Ammonites dispossess the people of Gad and settle in their towns. The point is that the disputed territory belongs to Israel because Israelites still live there. The second part of the oracle spells out the punishment for the crime (49:2-5): Those (=Ammon) who have taken the land from Israel will become the dispossessed, and the once-dispossessed people of Gad will repossess their land. The Lord sounds the battle alarm, signaling divine judgment against Ammon, and then calls the people of Heshbon to lament. Yet Ammon, like its neighbor to the south, Moab, boasts of its strength and trusts in its treasures. Such arrogance doesn't impress the Lord, who will terrify [Ammon] from every side (49:5). Even so, the brief oracle ends with God's promise to restore the Ammonites (49:6).

49:7-22 The prophecy against Edom. Edom is the target of more denunciations than any other nation (see, e.g., Ps 137; Isa 34:1-17; Ezek 25:12-14; 35:1-9; Amos 1:11-12; Obad; Mal 1:2-5). Edom, a country located in the Transjordan south of Moab, was another continuing foe of Israel. Their tumultuous relationship is often spoken of as though they were brothers at war with each other (Esau=Edom and Jacob=Israel). The Edomites are considered children of Jacob's brother Esau (see Gen 36; Obad; Mal 1:2-5). This ancient hostility (Num 20:14-21; 1 Sam 14:47; 1 Kgs 11:14-17) reaches new heights in the 6th century when Edom joins Babylon in the destruction of Jerusalem (Ps 137; Lam 4:21-23; Ezek 25:12-14) and thereafter takes over southern parts of Judean territory (Ezek 35:1-5; 36:5; Obad 11-14). Such acts go unmentioned here. Edom's only transgression noted is pride (49:16). The poet uses an array of images, biblical citations, and literary devices to portray the destruction of Edom. Like the preceding text, the oracle against Edom opens with rhetorical questions. The questions focus on its loss of wisdom, all the more biting since Edom was famous for its wisdom (many scholars place Job's home of Uz in Edomite territory). Teman is a principal city in Edom traditionally known for its sages (49:7; see Job 2:11). Dedan is a well-known commercial city in north-west Arabia (49:8). The destruction of Edom is described as its day of reckoning (49:8). Jeremiah 49:9-10 is similar to Obadiah 5-6, which depicts the full extent of Edom's destruction. Amid the wreckage, concern is expressed for the most vulnerable in the society (49:11). At the same time, the image of divine judgment as drinking] the cup (49:12) heightens the threatening tone of the oracle (see

Hamath and Arpad lose heart when they hear the bad news.

They are trembling with fear, like the raging sea, which can't become quiet.

she tries to flee, but panic overwhelms her.

She's gripped by anguish and pain, like a woman in labor.

and her soldiers will be silent on that day, declares the LORD of heavenly forces.

<sup>27</sup> I will set fire to the walls of Damascus;
it will burn up the fortresses of Ben-hadad.

Prophecy against Kedar and Hazor

<sup>28</sup> Concerning Kedar and the kingdoms of Hazor, which Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar defeated, the LORD proclaims:

Get ready to attack Kedar; destroy the people from the east!

Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar has taken counsel and devised a plan against you.

one without barred gates that lives by itself.

their many cattle will be pillaged.

I will scatter to the winds those who are clean-shaven,<sup>i</sup> and I will bring disaster on them from every side, declares the LORD.

No one will live there;
no human will dwell in it.

<sup>g</sup>Vulg; MT Not forsaken <sup>h</sup>Or They will seize . . . they will take off <sup>i</sup>Or those who have temples that are shaved

Jer 25:15-29), as does the fate of the fortified city Bozrah (49:13) and the portrait of God as a hungry lion (49:19; cf. Jer 4:7). Jeremiah 49:14-16 is similar to Obadiah 1-4. With stinging satire, God counsels the wise Edomites to prepare for destruction (49:20-22).

49:23-27 The prophecy against Damascus. Damascus is the ancient capital of Syria (Aram). This is a brief announcement of judgment (see also Isa 17:1-6; Amos 1:3-5). Syria was another enemy of Israel, especially during the 9th and 8th centuries BCE (see Isa 7:1-8:4). The Assyrians defeated Syria in 732, but Aramean/Syrian raiding parties continued to harass Judah well into the reign of Nebuchadnezzar (2 Kgs 24:1-2). The oracle against Syria doesn't include a setting or description of guilt. Rather, it describes the grief of Hamath and Arpad, two city-states north of Damascus, at the report of imminent disaster. Damascus, which is called the city of [the Lord's] delight (49:25), is portrayed as a pregnant woman in labor (49:24). Its warriors fall in battle, its walls are set on fire, and its strongholds are destroyed (see Amos 1:4). Ben-hadad: the name of two Aramean kings (49:27, see 1 Kgs 15:18-20; 2 Kgs 13:24).

49:28-33 The prophecy against Kedar and Hazor. Kedar is a seminomadic people located in the Arabian Peninsula east of the Dead Sea. It is mentioned several times in the Bible: as a descendant of Ishmael (Gen 25:13), as warriors who would soon fall in battle (Isa 21:16-17), as a distant land whose flocks would one day be gathered to Zion (Isa 60:7), as a place of diaspora (Ps 120:5), as traders (Ezek 27:21), and as a far-away western boundary marker (Jer 2:10). Little is known of the Arabian tribal groups of Hazor, which shouldn't be mistaken for the ancient Palestinian city (Josh 11:1-13). Based on the heading (49:28), these people from the east had become casualties of the Babylonian military machine. Why Kedar and Hazor are included in oracles against the nations isn't clear. As far as we know, Israel or Judah had little contact with these tribes. And the oracle gives no explicit reason for the divine judgment, although they are described as feeling safe and secure with no need for barred gates as protection (49:31).

God directs the destroyer to attack the Kedemites, to seize their tents, animals, and goods (49:28-30). In this instance, the destroyer is identified: Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar (49:30). The people of Hazor are warned to flee, even though attempts to do so are futile. The phrase Panic Lurks Everywhere (49:29) appears also in Jeremiah 6:25; 20:3, 10; 46:5 (see also Ps 31:14). The effects of the invasion are similar to those suffered by Israel or Judah (49:32-33; see Jer 9:11; 10:22; 15:13; 18:17; 21:9; 31:10).

Prophecy against Elam

I'm going to break the bow of Elam, the backbone of its military might.

<sup>36</sup>I will bring against Elam four winds from the four corners of heaven, and I will scatter them to the winds.
Those banished from Elam will migrate to every nation.

<sup>37</sup>I will terrify Elam before their enemies, before those who seek to kill them.

I will bring disaster upon them, my fierce anger, declares the LORD.
I will send the sword to attack them until I have destroyed them all.

<sup>38</sup>I will establish my rule in Elam and dispose of its king and officials, declares the LORD.

<sup>39</sup>But in the days to come I will bring back the captives of Elam, declares the LORD.

Prophecy against Babylon

50 This is what the LORD said concerning Babylon and the land of the Babylonians through the prophet Jeremiah:

<sup>1</sup>Tell the nations; proclaim it far and wide!

Set up a flag; proclaim it far and wide!

Hold nothing back; just shout it:

"Babylon is captured;

Bel is shamed;

Marduk is panic-stricken.

Her images are shamed;

her idols are panic-stricken."

It will decimate her land, and no one will live in it.

Every living thing will flee.

49:34-39 The prophecy against Elam. Elam was an ancient country east of Babylon and north of the Persian Gulf whose capital was Susa (see the book of Esther). There are a few references to it in the Bible. The table of nations lists Elam as a descendant of Shem (Gen 10:22; see 1 Chron 1:17). Two kings of Elam are mentioned among Abram's heroic campaign (Gen 14:1, 9). God promises to rescue the scattered Judeans from far-away Elam (Isa 11:11). Elam and Media are called on to wage war against Babylon (Isa 21:2). Elam is involved in the invasion and siege of Judah (Isa 22:6). "The kings of Zimri, Elam, and Media" (Jer 25:25) are listed among those who must drink the cup of divine wrath. The Elamites are among the slain who have gone down to the underworld (Ezek 32:24-25). And Daniel has a vision in the "walled city of Susa in the province of Elam" (Dan 8:2). The presence of Elam in the oracles against the nations may emphasize the extensive reach of Babylonian control, demonstrating that none can escape the judgment that God is "bringing on all humanity" (Jer 45:5). The oracle is distinctive in several respects. First, it opens with a heading that relates the speech to the beginning of King Zedekiah's reign (597 BCE). Second, it is organized around a series of one-sided declarations of divine judgment. Employing several first-person singular pronouns, the divine warrior, the Lord of heavenly forces, declares all-out war on Elam. There is no intermediate party, no regional instrument of war, no directives to the Elamites. The divine assault is apparently cosmic, not regional (e.g., four winds from the four corners of heaven in 49:36; see also Ezek 37:9; Dan 8:8). Divine speech and action eclipse human initiative and resolve. As a result, the language is metaphorical. Third, no explanation is given for God's fierce anger (49:37). And Elam's crimes are never mentioned. Divine constraint isn't distinctive in the prophecy against Elam. Once again God's mercy interrupts, if not trumps, judgment (49:39). The promise of restoration has the last word.

50:1-51:58 The prophecy against Babylon. This message is by far the longest of the oracles against the nations, comprising almost half of its space. This disproportionate attention suggests that the condemnation of Babylon is the climax of the collection. There is an unmistakable logic in bringing the oracles against the nations to completion in this way. Babylon and its ambition for world dominance lies behind almost every prophetic word and action in the book, including the foe from the north, the destruction on the horizon, and Judah's forfeiture of hope, as well as the text's ethos of danger and vulnerability. Jeremiah speaks of Babylon in cryptic as well as clear terms, as a worldwide historical empire and as the Lord's political instrument of judgment in the region. The prophet urges Judah's kings to submit to Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar as if to God, insisting that Babylonian control represents the divine will. Not to submit to Babylon's rule is the same thing as rebellion against the Lord. Until this point in the book, Jeremiah seldom denounces the superpower. In Jeremiah 50-51, all that changes. Babylon, once God's servant, is now targeted as God's archenemy (50:21-32). God attacks Babylon for its rebellion, cruelty, and injustice. Babylon becomes the embodiment of evil, the symbolic representation of human

- <sup>4</sup>In those days and at that time, declares the LORD, the people of Israel and Judah will come out of Babylon<sup>l</sup> together; with weeping they will leave as they seek the LORD their God.
- <sup>5</sup>They will search for Zion, turning their faces toward it.
They will come<sup>h</sup> and unite with the LORD, in an everlasting covenant that will never be forgotten.
- <sup>6</sup>My people were lost sheep;
their shepherds led them astray;
they deserted them on the mountains, where they wandered off among the hills, forgetting their resting place.
- <sup>7</sup>All who found them devoured them;
and their attackers said, "It's not our fault, because they have sinned against the LORD, the true pasture,<sup>1</sup> the hope of their ancestors—the LORD."
- <sup>8</sup>Now wander far from Babylon.
Get out of that country.
Like rams of the flock, lead the way home.
- <sup>9</sup>I'm stirring up against Babylon a coalition of mighty nations.
It will mobilize in the north, and from there she will be captured.
Their arrows are like those of an expert archer who does not return empty-handed.
- <sup>10</sup>Babylon will be defeated;
its attackers will carry off all that they want, declares the LORD.
- <sup>11</sup>Sure, you gloat and rejoice, you plunderers of my possession.
Sure, you dance around like a calf and neigh like a stallion.
- <sup>12</sup>But Mother Babylon<sup>m</sup> will be humiliated;
the one who bore you will be disgraced.
She will become the least of the nations:
a wilderness, a desert, and parched land.
- <sup>13</sup>Because of the LORD's anger, no one will live there;
she will be reduced to total ruin.
All who pass by Babylon will be shocked;
they will gasp at all her injuries.
- <sup>14</sup>Take up your positions around Babylon, all you archers;
now shoot at her; save none of your arrows, because she's sinned against the LORD.

arrogance and oppressive human power. Consequently, when the prophetic book ends with the defeat of Babylon, it actually celebrates God's world-changing victory over the forces of chaos and the arrival of divine justice. God rights the wrongs of the world and crushes the powers of evil. The routing of Mother Babylon (50:12) signals hope for all nations, especially spirted Judah. The final scene in the oracles against the nations showcases Jeremiah as "a prophet to the nations" and God as one who digs up and pulls down, destroys and demolishes, and builds and plants (Jer 1:5, 10).

The oracle against Babylon may be outlined as follows: the overthrow of Babylon and the liberation of God's people (50:1-20), God's weapons against Babylon and redemption of God's people (50:21-34), Babylon as a wasteland (50:35-46), God's judgment against Babylon for its cruelty (51:1-19), Babylon's repayment (51:20-33), God's concern for the cries of the innocent (51:34-44), God's call to the exiles to return home (51:45-51), and the final victory of the Lord of heavenly forces (51:52-58). These units are often made up of small poems that place divine judgment against Babylon side by side with the promise of salvation for Judean refugees.

50:1-20 The oracle announces that Babylon and its god (Bel is an alternate name for Marduk or Merodach) have fallen to an enemy from the north. Earlier in the prophetic drama, God had stirred up an enemy from the north to wage war against Judah (see Jer 4-6). Now God enlists a northern power—perhaps an allusion to Persia—to punish Babylon. Babylon's downfall is so certain that the prophet presents it as already accomplished (50:2-3). The defeat of Babylon creates the conditions for the people of Israel and Judah to return home (50:4-7). Long held captive, they can leave Babylon for Zion and unite with the Lord in an everlasting covenant (50:5; see also Jer 32:40). Jeremiah blames the kings (=shepherds) of Judah and Israel for their nation's suffering, as well as the kings of Assyria and Babylon (50:6, 17-18). The image of the Israelites as scattered sheep (50:17) is also found in Ezekiel 34:5-6, 12. The good shepherd king, however, will restore God's people and pardon their sin (50:19-20; see also Ezek 34:11-16). To graze on Carmel and Bashan as well as in highlands of Ephraim and Gilead, all fertile agricultural regions in Israel, represents the abundant provision of the good shepherd (50:19).

50:21-34 Preparations for war intensify. The divine command to attack Merathaim and Pekod is a play on words (50:21). Merathaim means "double rebellion" and Pekod means "punishment." These names of minor regions in Babylonia are used here to indict the country as a whole. To destroy (50:21) is a technical term for devoting to God everything captured in battle. Nothing is to be spared without incurring divine wrath (see 1 Sam 15). The implications are clear. The attackers summoned to destroy Babylon are to show no mercy. Babylon's crimes are shocking and universal in scope: This regional powerhouse has not only "sinned against the LORD" (Jer 50:14) but is the hammer of the whole earth (50:23). It has set a trap for others (50:24), defied the LORD (50:24), destroyed God's temple (50:28), and "acted arrogantly toward the Lord, the holy one of Israel!" (50:29). Indeed, abusive Babylon is the arrogant one in the extreme (50:31-32) and consequently! God musters all God's forces to destroy and humble this cruel military machine (50:25-34). The day of reckoning is

Theological Language of Violence Images of war and violence organize the prophecy against Babylon. Battle cries, commands to attack, pleas to destroy, descriptions of weapons, and horrific pictures of the wreckage don't endorse war or other forms of physical violence. Rather, this language must be read as theological speech. While such language is still problematic, the oracle against Babylon serves in the first place to strengthen the spirits of a captive community of Judeans likely residing in Babylon. These readers are the historical losers who have access only to words and poetry, imagination and worship, not to military weapons. Consequently, the violent language, perhaps uttered and performed within a context of worship, says something about survival and hope. God, they confess, is concerned about the suffering of people. God will right the wrongs of the world. Oppressive governments won't get away with murder. Raw political power isn't ultimate power. In other words, the politics of arrogance and abuse won't have the final say. Suffering people can find hope and comfort in the true king, the Lord of heavenly forces, whose power utterly surpasses that of human empires. Consequently, the oracle against Babylon doesn't authorize war or any form of physical violence. The violence it authorizes is, perhaps, the violence of poetry or the violence of worship. Put differently, this oracle as well as the preceding ones depict God's reign on earth, God's kingdom.

- <sup>27</sup> Destroy all her bulls; prepare them for slaughter.
How terrible for them!
Their time has come, the day of reckoning.
- <sup>28</sup> A voice of fugitives and refugees, from the land of Babylon, declaring in Zion the retribution of the LORD our God because of what has been done to his temple.
- <sup>29</sup> Send the archers against Babylon, all who draw the bow!
Surround her and let no one escape.
Pay her back for her deeds;
do to her what she's done to others.
She has acted arrogantly toward the LORD, the holy one of Israel!
- <sup>30</sup> Therefore, her soldiers will fall in the streets;
all her warriors will be silenced on that day, declares the LORD.
- <sup>31</sup> I'm against you, you arrogant one! declares the LORD God of heavenly forces.
Your day has come, your time of reckoning.
- <sup>32</sup> The arrogant one will stumble and fall, and no one will help her up.
I'll set your cities on fire, and it will consume all that's around her.
- <sup>33</sup> The LORD of heavenly forces proclaims:
The people of Israel were oppressed, together with the people of Judah.
Their captors held them and refused to let them go.
- <sup>34</sup> Yet their redeemer is strong;
the LORD of heavenly forces is his name.
He will surely defend their cause and give them rest in the land.
But he will unsettle the people of Babylon.
- <sup>35</sup> A sword against Babylon and its people, declares the LORD, along with its officials and sages.
- <sup>36</sup> A sword against its diviners so that they become fools.
A sword against its warriors so that they are terrified.

the day of the Lord, which denotes the critical moment in history when God punishes evil and saves the righteous (50:27, 31; see Jer 46:10; 49:8; 51:6, 11). The moment of judgment has arrived for Babylon, as has salvation for God's people, who have suffered much under the cruel government (50:33-34). Language of justice and mercy is prominent here, as seen in the description of God as Israel's redeemer (50:34). The notion of redemption plays a key role in the exodus story (see, e.g., Exod 6:6; 15:13) as well as in the promise of a second exodus in Isaiah 40-55 (Isa 41:14; 43:14; 44:6; 24; 49:26).

50:35-46 Judgment against Babylon now takes shape in the series of statements about the sword against Babylon and its people, diviners, warriors, weapons, and economic systems (50:35-40). Some scholars see echoes of the exodus plagues against Pharaoh. Both texts refer to sages (50:35; Exod 7:11), horses and chariots (50:37; Exod 14:9, 23; 15:19), and water (50:38; cf. Exod 14:21-22). addition, the Hebrew word for mercenaries (50:37; see also Jer 51:2) and “swarms” (of insects in Exod 8) are strikingly similar. But more importantly, both the “sword” poem and the exodus narrative are resistance literature designed to empower the powerless to imagine the defeat of their oppressor. The result of the sword is the empire’s utter destruction, symbolized by the ancient towns of Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen 19:23-28; see Isa 1:10; Jer 49:18; Amos 4:11; cf. Ezek 16:49-50). The final poem of this chapter (50:41-46) repeats, at times almost verbatim, prophetic sayings found elsewhere in Jeremiah. The reference to an enemy advancing from the north towards Babylon (50:41-43) repeats the threatening language used against Judah in Jeremiah 6:22-24. And God as devouring lion (50:44-46) draws on the image employed against Edom in Jeremiah 49:19-21. The effect of these images—regional and larger-than-life forces from the northern wasteland and the lion God lunging to kill its prey—would bring delight to a refugee community held captive by the empire. The three rhetorical questions in 50:44 emphasize the Lord’s power and resolve to overthrow oppressive human power structures 51:1-19 This section is made up of four short poems in 51:1-6, 7-10, 11-14, and 15-19. The main theme is God’s plan for the destruction of Babylon and the liberation of Israel. The Lord rouses a violent wind against Babylon and those who live in Leb-qamai (51:1). Leb-qamai means “those intent to rise up against me” and functions as a cryptic reference to the Chaldeans (Babylonians). Babylon is a sure sign of God's faithfulness to Israel and Judah (51:5, 10). The cup image refers to Babylon. Elsewhere in Jeremiah, the Lord compels the nations to drink from the divine cup of wrath (Jer 25:17-29), but here the Lord punishes Babylon, a gold cup in the Lord's hand (51:7), for making the whole earth drunk. The crime includes the whole world and more, as does God's sentence: Babylon will be shattered into pieces (51:8) and is beyond help (51:9); Her punishment reaches to heaven (51:9), and her cities will be filled with armies (51:14). The allusion to kings from Media (51:11) intensifies the dread of the divine warrior. 2 Chronicles and Ezra speak of God "stirring up the spirit of Persia's King Cyrus" (Ezra 1:1; see 2 Chron 36:22). Persia and its king, Cyrus, defeated Babylon in 539 BCE.

- 16 At the sound of God's voice, the heavenly waters roar.
God raises the clouds from the ends of the earth.
He makes lightning for the rain and sends the wind from his treasuries.
- 17 Everyone is too foolish to understand;
every smith is shamed by his idols, for their images are shams; they aren't alive.
- 18 They are a delusion, a charade;
at the appointed time they will be ruined!
- 19 But the portion of Jacob is utterly different, for he has formed all things, including his very own tribe;
the LORD of heavenly forces is his name!
- 20 You are my hammer, my weapon of war.
With you I will crush the nations.
With you I will destroy kingdoms.
- 21 With you I will crush horse and rider.
With you I will crush chariot and driver.
- 22 With you I will crush men and women.
With you I will crush old and young.
With you I will crush young men and young women.
- 23 With you I will crush shepherds and flocks.
With you I will crush farmers and oxen.
With you I will crush governors and officials.
- 24 I will repay Babylon and all its inhabitants for the terrible things they have done to Zion in your sight, declares the LORD.
- 25 I'm against you, you mountain of destruction, declares the LORD, you destroyer of the whole earth!
I will reach out against you;
I will topple you from your heights;
I will turn you into a rubbish heap.
- 26 They will never remove a cornerstone or a foundation stone from you.
You will be a wasteland forever, declares the LORD.
- 27 Set up a flag in the land;
sound the alarm among the nations!
Prepare them for war against her;
summon kingdoms against her—Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz.
Appoint a commander against her;
call up the troops, like swarms of locusts!
- 28 Prepare the nations for war against her,
the kings of Media, its governors, all its officials, and all the countries they rule.
- 29 The earth quakes and trembles because the LORD's plans against Babylon are fulfilled:
to reduce Babylon to a wasteland, with no one left in it.
- 30 Babylon's warriors quit fighting;
they hide in their fortifications.
Their strength is worn out;
their courage is gone!
Babylon's houses are burned down, and its gates are smashed.

The section concludes by celebrating the Lord's power and wisdom and mocking the idols and images as a delusion, a charade (51:17, 18; see Jer 10:12-16). 51:20-33 In the previous chapter (Jer 50:23) Babylon is called the "hammer of the whole earth." The same image is used in 51:20-23, but the identity of the Lord's hammer isn't clear: You are my hammer. Who is the you referenced here? We are uncertain as to whether Babylon is the Lord's instrument of judgment or the object of its punishment: If the latter, then the Lord commands a new destroyer—to perhaps Persia—to punish Babylon (and the nations).<sup>14</sup> Flags and alarms (51:27) warn the people of invading armies. The regions of Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz (51:27);<sup>15</sup> located northwest of Babylon and part of the Median Empire, are summoned to take part in war against Babylon.<sup>16</sup> For the image of troops as swarms of locusts, see 51:14, 27.<sup>17</sup>

The defeat of Babylon is unmistakably a theological and political event that fulfills the LORD's plans (51:29). her harvest: (i.e., Daughter Babylon's) refers to divine judgment. 51:34-44 This section begins with a lament by the inhabitants of Zion. This is the first time the Judean refugees have their own voice. God will defend the cause of God's suffering people and dry up the sea of the empire (51:36). This is another allusion to the exodus story and the defeat of Israel's first enemy, Egypt. Sheshach is a cryptic reference to Babel or Babylon (see Jer 25:26). The Lord will cause the Babylonian god Bel to vomit the nations it has consumed (51:44). 51:45-51 Now that the monster is slain (see Jer 51:41-44), God calls Babylon's victims to escape. The oppressive regime's defeat is cause for joy. It dispels any lingering doubts about God's power and justice. Babylon must fall to honor the dead in Israel, [as well] as the dead of all the earth (51:49). And yet this grand celebration still evokes painful memories (51:51). The violation of the temple is a cause for great concern (51:50-51; see also Jer 50:4-5, 28). 51:52-58 The time is coming: The text moves back and forth between Babylon's defeat as an accomplished fact and as yet to happen. For the prophet and poet, however, the distinction is artificial. God has declared the empire's doom and so it is! In response to the lament of God's people (51:51), God pledges to crush Babylon. The Hebrew word for destroy occurs three times (51:53, 55, 56; see also Jer 51:48). The assault on Babylon isn't only a political fact (the empire will fall to Cyrus in 539 BCE), but also a demonstration of the just judgment of an exacting God who repays in full (51:56). Furthermore, it is a sure sign of the Lord's victory as true king, whose name is the LORD of heavenly forces (51:57). In sum, the oracle against Babylon claims that the oppressive superpower won't endure God's scrutiny, that raw political power isn't ultimate power, and that God's power and justice will eventually answer the harsh situation of suffering people. 51:59-64 The oracles against the nations conclude with a brief story of Jeremiah writing down God's words against Babylon in a scroll (cf. Jer 36). The prophet then entrusts happen to Babylon—all these things concerning Babylon. <sup>61</sup>Jeremiah said to Seraiah: When you get to Babylon, see to it that you read all these words. <sup>62</sup>Then say, “LORD, you declared that this place will be destroyed and nothing will remain in it—neither human nor animal; that it will forever be a wasteland!” <sup>63</sup>When you finish reading the scroll, tie a stone to it and throw it into the Euphrates River. <sup>64</sup>Then say, “In the same way, Babylon will sink and never rise again because of the disaster I’m bringing against it.”

Jeremiah’s words end here.

Rule of Zedekiah and the fall of Jerusalem

52 Zedekiah was 21 years old when he became king, and he ruled for eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Hamutal; she was a daughter of Jeremiah from Libnah. <sup>2</sup>He did evil in the LORD’s eyes just as Jehoiachin had done. <sup>3</sup>It was because the LORD was angry against Jerusalem and Judah that he thrust them out of his presence. Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon.

<sup>4</sup>In the ninth year, the tenth month, and the tenth day of the month, Babylon’s King Nebuchadnezzar attacked Jerusalem with all of his army. He camped beside the city and built a siege wall around it. <sup>5</sup>The city was under siege until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah. <sup>6</sup>On the ninth day of the fourth month, the famine in the city reached a point that no food remained for the people. <sup>7</sup>The enemy entered the city, and all the soldiers fled by night along the gate between the two walls by the royal gardens. So the Babylonians surrounded the city while the soldiers fled toward the desert plain. <sup>8</sup>However, the Babylonian army chased down Zedekiah and caught him in the plains of Jericho. (His entire army had fled from him.) <sup>9</sup>They arrested the king and brought him before the king of Babylon at Riblah in the land of Hamath. And he pronounced sentence on him. <sup>10</sup>The king of Babylon slaughtered Zedekiah’s children before his very own eyes, and he slaughtered all Judah’s officers at Riblah. <sup>11</sup>Then he gouged out Zedekiah’s eyes and bound him in chains. The king of Babylon dragged him off to Babylon and put him in prison, where he remained until he died.

the scroll to Seraiah, apparently Baruch’s brother (see Jer 32:12; 36:4), who is to (1) read it aloud in Babylon, (2) pray to God for its fulfillment, and (3) tie a stone to the scroll and throw it into the Euphrates to symbolize Babylon’s drowning. These are daring acts of resistance in the face of a massive and menacing Babylonian enterprise. In fact they function like liturgical theater, which reimagines dominant power structures in light of the concerns of the historical losers. The oracles against the nations celebrate the fall of Babylon in word, prayer, and public worship. This brief narrative of Babylon’s collapse marks the end of Jeremiah’s words (51:64).

52:1-34 Epilogue: The fall of Jerusalem. There are multiple endings to Jeremiah, as if the book doesn’t want to conclude: Jeremiah’s final prophecies to the Judeans in Egypt (Jer 44:1-30), Jeremiah’s last word to Baruch (Jer 45:1-5), the oracles against the nations (Jer 46-51; esp. Jer 51:64, “Jeremiah’s words end here”), and the historical epilogue, which details the end of Judah as a royal-temple state (52:1-34). The very last words of the book (Jer 52) confirm the truthfulness of Jeremiah’s prophecies concerning Judah and its capital Jerusalem.

Jeremiah 52 duplicates 2 Kings 24:18–25:30, although it doesn’t mention Gedaliah and his failed government (see 2 Kgs 25:22-26; see, however, Jer 40:1–41:18), and it includes the three Judean relocations to Babylon, specifying the number of exiles in each relocation (52:28-30). 52:1-30 See 2 Kings 24:18–25:30, 2 Chronicles 36:11-21; Jeremiah 39:1-10. Zedekiah is described here as one who did evil in the LORD’s eyes just as Jehoiachin had done (52:2). This way of portraying the king, drawn from 2 Kings 24:18-20, reveals little of the king’s tortured indecision and secret meetings with Jeremiah (see Jer 37–38). In the end, however, the king rejects Jeremiah’s warnings and rebels against Babylon. Jeremiah 52:1-3 provide a theological rationale for the siege of Jerusalem (52:4-11), the destruction of the temple (52:12-23), and the executions and exile (52:24-30). For 18 months, from January 588 to July/August 587 BCE—although these dates are disputed—Jerusalem is under siege (52:4-11). Zedekiah attempts to escape to Bookends Together the prologue (Jer 1:1-3) and the epilogue (Jer 52:1-34) function as bookends to the complex and at times shapeless book of Jeremiah. They transport the reader from Anathoth and Jerusalem (Jer 1:1-3) to Babylon (Jer 52:31-34). They frame the text's messy chronology, beginning with the thirteenth year of Josiah, 627 BCE (Jer 1:1), and ending with the thirty-seventh year of the captivity of King Jehoiachin of Judah in 560 BCE. The prologue and epilogue surround the prophetic drama in trauma and loss. The prologue anticipates national crisis and the exile of the people of Jerusalem (Jer 1:3), and the epilogue relates the fall of Jerusalem and the successive Judean relocations to Babylon. Despite these references to war and violence, foreshadowed and fulfilled, the final words of the epilogue offer a glimmer of hope. In recounting the release and kind treatment of Judah's King Jehoiachin, the final scene may foreshadow the survival, and even restoration, of Judah and its Davidic king. If so, Jeremiah joins the prophetic chorus whose final song is almost always hopeful.

the basins, and the offering bowls. <sup>20</sup>There was too much bronze to be weighed: two columns, the bronze Sea and the twelve bronze bulls that held it up, and the stands, all of which Solomon had made for the LORD's temple. <sup>21</sup>Each column was about twenty-seven feet high and eighteen feet around. They were hollow, but the bronze was about three inches thick. <sup>22</sup>Each had a capital of bronze above it that towered seven and a half feet high, and each had an ornate design of bronze pomegranates around it. The second column was the same, also with pomegranates. <sup>23</sup>There were ninety-six pomegranates on the sides, a total of one hundred pomegranates around the ornate design.

Jericho but is chased down and captured by Babylonian troops. Nebuchadnezzar takes the Judean king to Riblah, a city in Hamath in northern Syria, for sentencing. There Zedekiah is tortured, his sons and officers are executed, and he is eventually removed to Babylon as a prisoner of war. A month after Jerusalem falls in 587, Nebuchadnezzar's military commander Nebuzaradan destroys the temple and royal complex, along with other important structures in the capital city (52:12-16). Nebuzaradan then relocates a number of Judeans to Babylon, but leaves behind the poorest farmers to care for the land. The desecration of the temple, the Lord's house, receives much attention and is clearly of focal concern (52:17-23). On sheer political terms, plundering the loser's treasures is part and parcel of war. But for the first writers and readers of the account, it represents the miserable humiliation of God's people. Nebuzaradan arrests the high priest Seraiah (not the Seraiah mentioned in Jer 40:8 or Jer 51:59) and the deputy priest Zephaniah (see 21:1; 29:24-32; 37:3), along with key royal and military personnel, over 70 individuals, and at Nebuchadnezzar's direction has them executed at Riblah (52:24-27). And Judah went away from its land into exile (52:27). Jeremiah 52:28-30 delineates the number of Judeans exiled (cf. 2 Kg 24:13-17). Thus these final verses in the book describe in relatively matter-of-fact terms the most painful and influential events in the history of Israel: the destruction of Jerusalem, the burning of the temple, and the exile to Babylon.

52:31-34 Focus on Jehoiachin's exile to Babylon and his release from prison in 560 BCE. The Babylonian king Awil-merodach treats Jehoiachin kindly, granting him a status higher than that of other captive kings. This final scene is sometimes read as a cryptic sign of hope for the continuation of the Davidic line.

LAMENTATIONS

The book of Lamentations is the most tragic in the Bible. The language is blunt and graphic. The images are violent and brutal. Lamentations describes the historical event of the destruction of Jerusalem at the hands of the Babylonians (see the narrative report of the event in 2 Kgs 25). It presents the immense suffering, agony, and pain of Jerusalem's people. Readers of the book are called to stand at ground zero and witness the collapse of the city around them, to hear the anguished cries of its inhabitants.

The central concern of the book is theological. In general, Lamentations shares the larger theological dilemma of the exile: how God could allow the promised land to be destroyed and God's people sent away in exile. Lamentations asks, "Where is God in the midst of the people's suffering?" God is viewed as having permitted this terrible situation to occur. The speakers repeatedly call on God for mercy and compassion. They beg God to see their grief and shame. But God doesn't respond. God's silence in the face of the people's despair is never resolved. The book doesn't include traditional ideas of optimism, hope, or comfort. Brief expressions of hope at the book's center are drowned out by the conclusion. Any end to the people's suffering, any healing of the community's brokenness, seems very far away indeed.

The entire book is poetry. As poetry, information and emotion are often portrayed through images and metaphor. Lamentations includes five poems, each represented by a separate chapter. Each poem has a different tone and character. The poetry is difficult, containing many rare words and odd grammar, and the arrangement of verses doesn't always seem to make sense. It's written in what is called "qinah" meter, a poetic rhythm in which the lines are unbalanced. This type of rhythm is often seen in laments and other solemn literature, and it gives a sense of order breaking down into emotion.

There are several voices that speak throughout the book. They include the narrator, Daughter Zion, an individual resident, and the community at large. These various voices represent persons who stand in different locations with regard to the city's destruction. A change in speaking voice represents a change in point of view. At some places, however, these voices blend into each other, and it becomes difficult to tell who's speaking.

The structure of Lamentations is a pattern based on the alphabet, called an "acrostic." In the first four chapters, each line begins with a different letter, in the order of the alphabet (Lam 3 has three lines for each letter). Though chapter 5 doesn't follow the alphabet, it has 22 verses, the same number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet, so it also fits the pattern. Alphabetic acrostic patterns are seen elsewhere in the OT (e.g., Pss 25, 34, 119; Prov 31:10-31). But the book of Lamentations stands out as the most highly developed example of this form. It gives the sense that the poems provide a complete picture of the event, including everything "from A to Z."

In some ways, the book of Lamentations is like other Hebrew literature. Most particularly, there are other poems of lament in the book of Psalms, spoken both by individuals and the community. Lamentations shares some, though not all, of the elements of these biblical lament psalms. Funeral songs were also sung to grieve the deaths of persons (e.g., 2 Sam 1). In ancient Mesopotamian literature, centuries before Lamentations was written, we find laments for cities and temples that had been destroyed. The book of Lamentations adopts some of the features of these other types of literature, yet it differs in many other ways. Therefore, it should be seen as a unique composition.

Because Lamentations describes the devastation of Jerusalem in such thorough and vivid language, it is usually claimed that these poems were written soon after the Babylonian destruction in 587 BCE. The author (or authors) may have been an eyewitness of the event, who survived and remained in the land after the catastrophe. But because it sometimes takes many years after a traumatic situation to be emotionally able to speak about it, Lamentations may instead have been written by later generations who were attempting to understand that event in their national history. Perhaps the poems were used in public rituals of mourning and remembrances of times of tragedy, such as we see in Jeremiah 41:5, Esther 9:31, and Zechariah 7:1-7. It's possible that the five poems were written by different authors and later grouped together. It's just as possible, however, that one author wrote them all, using different points of view for each poem.

Ancient tradition connected Jeremiah, who is sometimes called the "weeping prophet," with the book of Lamentations, even (mistakenly) thinking that he was its author. That's why the Christian order of books in the Bible, which is followed by the CEB, places Lamentations with the prophetic books, right after the book of Jeremiah. The Jewish tradition, which goes back to ancient Hebrew manuscripts, instead places Lamentations with the Five Scrolls (Song of Songs, Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes, Esther) in the Writings section of the Hebrew Bible. Lamentations has a rich theological tradition within faith communities. In Christianity, it's included as part of worship services during Holy Week. In Judaism, it's read on the Ninth of Ab, a holiday that remembers the destructions of both the first temple (587 BCE) and the second temple (70 CE), and other more recent catastrophes, including the Holocaust that occurred during World War II. Used in these ways, the book of Lamentations creates space for the recognition, and even the healing, of painful situations for individuals and for the community.

Jerusalem's suffering

- 1 <sup>a</sup>Oh, no!
She sits alone, the city that was once full of people.
- κ Once great among nations, she has become like a widow.
Once a queen over provinces, she has become a slave.
- ζ <sup>2</sup>She weeps bitterly in the night, her tears on her cheek.
None of her lovers comfort her.
All her friends lied to her; they have become her enemies.
- ι <sup>3</sup>Judah was exiled after suffering and hard service.
She lives among the nations; she finds no rest.
All who were chasing her caught her—right in the middle of her distress.
- τ <sup>4</sup>Zion's roads are in mourning; no one comes to the festivals.
All her gates are deserted. Her priests are groaning, her young women grieving. She is bitter.
- π <sup>5</sup>Her adversaries have become rulers; her enemies relax.
Certainly the LORD caused her grief because of her many wrong acts.
Her children have gone away, captive before the enemy.
- ρ <sup>6</sup>Daughter Zion lost all her glory.
Her officials are like deer that can't find pasture.
They have gone away, frail, before the hunter.
- σ <sup>7</sup>While suffering and homeless,
Jerusalem remembers all her treasures from days long past.
When her people fell by the enemy's hand, there was no one to help her.
Enemies saw her, laughed at her defeat.
- τ <sup>8</sup>Jerusalem has sinned greatly; therefore, she's become a joke.<sup>b</sup>
All who honored her now detest her, for they've seen her naked.
Even she groans and turns away.
- υ <sup>9</sup>Her uncleanness shows on her clothing;
she didn't consider what would happen to her.
She's gone down shockingly; she has no comforter.
"LORD, look at my suffering—the enemy has definitely triumphed!"

<sup>a</sup>Four of the five chaps of Lamentations are alphabetically structured (acrostic) poems. Each verse in chaps 1, 2, and 4 begins with a consecutive letter of the Hebrew alphabet. Chap 3 is a triple acrostic: three verses in a row use the same letter before moving to the next letter. The acrostic form is not used in chap 5, though it does contain twenty-two verses, the same number as chaps 1, 2, and 4. <sup>b</sup>Or she's become unclean.

1:1-11 b The voice of the narrator, describing the scene of destruction and reporting what has happened to Jerusalem. There's a huge contrast between how Jerusalem used to be in its glory days and its current wretched circumstances. Throughout the book the city is spoken about as if it were a person.

1:1 Oh, no! This expression, which is a single word in Hebrew, is an exclamation of astonishment and horror (cf. Lam 2:1; 4:1). It's often used in funeral songs. widow: In ancient Israel, a woman's husband was her only financial support. Widows were usually poor, vulnerable, and without family.

1:2 her lovers: or "those who love her." It means friends and family, and not necessarily romantic partners (cf. Lam 1:19). It refers to Israel's political allies, who didn't help when the Babylonians attacked.

1:4 The gates are typically the social hub of a city where people would gather for business and public activities (cf. Lam 5:14). They and the roads to Jerusalem should be very busy places.

1:5 because of her many wrong acts: The narrator emphasizes that Daughter Zion bears some responsibility for her current situation. Her children have gone away: The suffering of her children is one of Daughter Zion's greatest heartaches (see Lam 1:16; 2:11-12, 19, 20, 22; 4:2, 4, 10).

1:8 naked: In ancient Israel, it was shameful for people, and especially women, to be seen naked (e.g., Gen 9:22-23; Exod 20:26; Ezek 16:37-39). The imagery is of Jerusalem's public humiliation and visible mocking by her enemies.

1:9 uncleanness: menstrual bleeding (cf. Lam 1:17). Menstruation is a time of ritual impurity (Lev 15:16-24).

Daughter Zion has been completely abandoned. No one takes any pity on her in her distress. The fact that she has no comforter is repeated frequently throughout the poem (see Lam 1:4, 7, 16, 17, 21). LORD, look at my suffering: Here Daughter Zion interrupts, addressing God directly.

1:10 treasures: The sacred objects the Babylonians stole from the temple. enter her sanctuary: Just as a woman is raped and violated, the temple has been violated.

1:11b-22 The voice of Daughter Zion. She briefly speaks directly to God (1:11c, 20-22) but mostly to human on-lookers (all you who pass by, 1:12), explaining how it feels to suffer her losses and asking for sympathy. She’s emotional and desperate, in contrast to the more distanced description of the narrator.

1:11 LORD, look and take notice: Daughter Zion speaks in a strong commanding tone, insisting on God’s attention.

She repeatedly demands witnesses of her pain (cf. Lam 1:9, 12, 20).

1:12-14 God’s actions are violent, even brutal, as God acts out of fierce anger. They are similar to the enemies’ actions in lament psalms (e.g., Pss 10:9; 57:6; 102:3).

1:13 devastated may have a double meaning, indicating both a destroyed city (e.g., Lev 26:33; Isa 1:7; Jer 12:11) and a raped woman (e.g., 2 Sam 13:20).

1:17 Here the narrator interrupts. a piece of garbage: The Hebrew here refers to “a menstruating woman” (cf. Lam 1:9). In her state of ritual impurity, no one wants to have relations with Daughter Zion.

1:18-19 In the siege of Jerusalem, some people were taken away in exile, and others, even the city’s leaders, died of starvation.

1:18 The LORD is right: may be either a sincere confession

7<sup>20</sup> Pay attention, LORD, for I am in trouble. My stomach is churning; my heart is pounding inside me because I am so bitter.
In the streets the sword kills; in the house it is like death.

7<sup>21</sup> People heard that I was groaning, that I had no comforter.
All my enemies heard about my distress;
they were thrilled that you had done this.
Bring the day you have announced so they become like me!

7<sup>22</sup> Let all their evil come before you.
Then injure them like you've injured me because of all my wrong acts;
my groans are many, my heart is sick.

God's anger toward Jerusalem

2 Oh, no!

7 In anger, my Lord put Daughter Zion under a cloud;<sup>g</sup>

7 he threw Israel's glory from heaven down to earth.
On that day of wrath, he didn't consider his own footstool.

7<sup>2</sup> Showing no compassion, my Lord devoured each of Jacob's meadows; in his wrath he tore down the walled cities of Daughter Judah.
The kingdom and its officials, he forced to the ground, shamed.

7<sup>3</sup> In his burning rage, he cut off each of Israel's horns; right in front of the enemy, he withdrew his strong hand;
he burned against Jacob like a flaming fire that ate up everything nearby.

7<sup>4</sup> He bent his bow as an enemy would;
his strong hand was poised like an adversary.
He killed every precious thing in sight;
he poured out his wrath like fire on Daughter Zion's tent.

7<sup>5</sup> My Lord has become like an enemy. He devoured Israel; he devoured all her palaces; he made ruins of her city walls.
In Daughter Judah he multiplied mourning along with more mourning!

7<sup>6</sup> He wrecked his own booth like a garden; he destroyed his place for festivals.
The LORD made Zion forget both festival and sabbath; in his fierce rage, he scorned both monarch and priest.

7<sup>7</sup> My Lord rejected his altar, he abandoned his sanctuary; he handed Zion's palace walls over to enemies.
They shouted in the LORD's own house as if it were a festival day.

or a sarcastic statement about God's injustice, as Jeremiah uses the same phrase (Jer 12:1).

1:20-22 My stomach is churning; my heart is pounding. . . my groans are many, my heart is sick: Daughter Zion's physical and emotional symptoms are combined. Her suffering is on many levels at the same time.

1:22 injure them like you've injured me: She asks that Israel's enemies would suffer as she's suffering. She's not just being vindictive but asking that God would act with justice and put things in their right order again.

2:1-12 The narrator's voice is heard throughout most of this second poem. Chapter 2 repeats many of the same ideas and vocabulary of Lamentations 1. The focus, however, shifts from the victim to the perpetrator. The speakers see God as the cause of the city's destruction. The numerous references to anger (2:1), wrath (2:1, 2, 4), and burning rage (2:3), along with the many very strong and violent actions, suggest that God is out of control.

2:1 Oh, no! See note on Lamentations 1:1. his own footstool: the temple (e.g., Pss 99:5; 132:7; 1 Chron 28:2).

2:3-4 God's strong hand (or "right hand") that should protect Israel has instead been used to attack Jerusalem (cf. Exod 15:6; Isa 41:10). God is acting like an enemy.

2:3 horns are symbols of a people's power and reputation (see also Lam 2:17; cf. Jer 48:25; Ps 77:10).

2:6 his own booth: the temple. It's shocking that God would destroy even the most holy place of worship.

<sup>h</sup>Heb Torah <sup>1</sup>Or How can I warn you? or To what could I liken you?; Heb uncertain

2:8-9 That God's actions to destroy Jerusalem were planned, rather than spontaneous, is even more disturbing. A measuring line was typically used for constructing a building, not demolishing one (Amos 7:7-9). Walls, barricades, gates, and bars were to protect a city, but they can't withstand God's attack.

2:9 The Instruction (Torah) was the foundation of Israel's faith and practice. A vision of the prophets guided Israel at times of crisis. The lack of these things highlights God's abandonment of the people.

2:9-10 king, officials, prophets, elders, young women: All members of society—from high to low, from old to young—have been affected. To sit on the ground, put dust on one's head, and wear mourning clothes are traditional actions in times of sadness and mourning (e.g., Job 2:12-13; Jer 4:8; 6:26).

2:11-12 The image of mothers unable to feed their dying children is especially heartbreaking. Not only are the children the most vulnerable members of a community; they also represent the future generation of Israel, which now will be lost.

2:11 The narrator, who was emotionally detached in chapter 1, has now become as distressed as Daughter Zion herself (see Lam 1:16, 20). The narrator now enters into her pain.

2:13-19 The narrator now speaks to Daughter Zion directly, beginning with a series of questions. The narrator tries to understand her suffering. But they are questions that can't be answered. There's no way to comprehend or to measure hurt... as vast as the sea. Her pain is infinite in scope.

2:14-16 One by one, all those who might possibly comfort Daughter Zion instead act against her. She had earlier called to All who pass by on the road (Lam 1:12), clap their hands... open wide their mouths... whistle: actions that show scorn and hatred (cf. Jer 19:8; Ps 22:13; Zeph 2:15). We have devoured! repeats God's actions described earlier (see Lam 2:2, 5, 8). Perfect Beauty, the Joy of All the Earth: descriptions that are elsewhere used for Jerusalem (e.g.,

Daughter Zion The title “Daughter Zion” and similar phrases are used many times throughout the book of Lamentations. The term “Zion” is a synonym for the city of Jerusalem. Calling the city “Zion” shows its importance in the theology of the OT as the place for God’s special care and concern.

It is significant that the city of Jerusalem—Zion—is represented by a female image. In the ancient Near East, the goddess of a city was sometimes seen as the partner of the city’s primary male god. Moreover, in times of war the women of an attacked city were especially in danger of rape and other violent acts. Perhaps these ancient understandings lie behind the use of Daughter Zion in Lamentations.

Referring to something as “daughter” was a term of endearment. Instead of “Daughter Zion,” we might say “Precious Zion” or “Dearly Loved Zion.” “Daughter” is used a great deal throughout the five poems of Lamentations. Though the most frequent term is “Daughter Zion” (Lam 1:6; 2:1, 4, 8, 10, 13, 18; 4:22), there’s also “daughter of my people” (Lam 3:48; 4:3, 6, 10), “young woman Daughter Judah” (Lam 1:15), “young woman Daughter Zion” (Lam 2:13), and “Daughter Jerusalem” (Lam 2:13, 15). By using these affectionate titles for the inhabitants of Jerusalem and Judah, the poet is making the situation of the city and its people seem much more emotional and heartbreaking. How much harder to see the suffering and pain of someone you hold dear—especially of a “daughter”!

י<sup>17</sup> The LORD did what he had planned.

He accomplished the word that he had commanded long ago.

He ripped down, showing no compassion.

He made the enemy rejoice over you; he raised up your adversaries’ horn.

make your<sup>2</sup> tears run down like a flood all day and night.
Don’t relax at all; don’t rest your eyes a moment.

פ<sup>19</sup> Get up and cry out at nighttime, at the start of the night shift;
pour out your heart before my Lord like water.
Lift your hands up to him for the life of your children—the ones who are fainting from hunger on every street corner.

ק<sup>20</sup> LORD, look and see to whom you have done this!
Should women eat their own offspring, their own beautiful babies?
Should priest and prophet be killed in my Lord’s own sanctuary?

ר<sup>21</sup> Young and old alike lie on the ground in the streets;

On the day of your anger, you killed;
you slaughtered, showing no compassion.

On the day of the LORD’s anger, no one escaped, not one survived.
The children that I nurtured, that I raised myself, my enemy finished them off.

Pss 48:2; 50:2). The passersby use these phrases to mock her instead.

2:17 A further affirmation that Jerusalem wasn’t destroyed by chance but by God’s plan. With no compassion, it’s clear that God won’t come to help Daughter Zion.

2:19 night shift: Guards kept watch in the city during the night (cf. Song 3:1-3; 5:7). for the life of your children: If anything can move God to compassion, we might think that it would be the suffering of innocent children.

2:20-22 Daughter Zion speaks up and addresses God. She demands the same response from God as in the first poem, to look and to see (see Lam 1:9, 11, 20). But her speech is much briefer here. to whom you have done this!: Rather than emphasizing her own pain, she now lists all the people who have been harmed—women, babies, priest, prophet, young people, old people, young women, young men. Their misery is the human consequence of God’s actions.

2:20 Women eating their own children is the most extreme situation of famine and desperation. The cannibalism of babies is an unthinkable horror.

2:21 showing no compassion: Daughter Zion echoes the narrator’s opinion about the extent of God’s cruelty (see Lam 2:2, 17).

2:22 no one escaped, not one survived: The destruction is complete. The second poem ends with a vision of utter devastation and hopelessness.

An individual's complaint

3 I am someone<sup>m</sup> who saw the suffering caused by God's<sup>n</sup> angry rod.

2 He drove me away, forced me to walk in darkness, not light.

n 3 He turned his hand even against me, over and over again, all day long.

4 He wore out my flesh and my skin; he broke my bones.

5 He besieged me, surrounding me with bitterness and weariness.

6 He made me live in dark places like those who've been dead a long time.

7 He walled me in so I couldn't escape; he made my chains heavy.

8 Even though I call out and cry for help, he silences my prayer.

9 He walled in my paths with stonework; he made my routes crooked.

10 He is a bear lurking for me, a lion in hiding.

11 He took me from my path<sup>o</sup> and tore me apart; he made me desolate.

12 He drew back his bow, made me a shooting target for arrows.

13 He shot the arrows of his quiver into my inside parts.

14 I have become a joke to all my people, the object of their song of ridicule all day long.

15 He saturated me with grief, made me choke on bitterness.

16 He crushed my teeth into the gravel; he pressed me down into the ashes.

17 I've<sup>p</sup> rejected peace; I've forgotten what is good.

18 I thought: My future is gone, as well as my hope from the LORD.

19 The memory of my suffering and homelessness is bitterness and poison.

20 I<sup>q</sup> can't help but remember and am depressed.

21 I call all this to mind—therefore, I will wait.

22 Certainly the faithful love of the LORD hasn't ended;<sup>r</sup> certainly God's compassion isn't through!

23 They are renewed every morning. Great is your faithfulness.

24 I think:<sup>s</sup> The LORD is my portion! Therefore, I'll wait for him.

3:1-66 The third poem introduces a new voice, an individual survivor. He describes the situation from his experience. This poem includes the only expression of hopefulness in the book.

3:1 I am someone: or, "I am the strong man." This figure, who is also identified by the same term in Lamentations 3:27, 35, 39, may be a soldier. He's an anonymous character, an "everyman." The strong man gives a male perspective throughout Lamentations 3, balancing the female perspective of Daughter Zion in Lamentations 1-2. saw the suffering: He answers Daughter Zion's pleas that someone would see her distress (see Lam 1:12, 18). angry rod: He also testifies that the destruction that fell on Jerusalem was because of God's wrath.

3:2-16 The images throughout this section are violent. Most of the verbs are strong and are often used to describe physical attacks.

3:3-4 He turned his hand even against me... He wore out my flesh and my skin; he broke my bones: God's hand against humans often causes them to be physically ill (e.g., 1 Sam 5:6-12; Job 19:20-21).

3:5-9 surrounding me... walled me in... walled in my paths... made my routes crooked: God has trapped the strong man, like in a prison, and made it impossible to escape.

3:6 dark places represent the netherworld, a form of death. 3:10-13 God is the hunter, and the speaker is the prey. bear and lion: Enemies are often imagined as animals (e.g., Pss 7:2; 17:8-12). inside parts (kidneys) are the location of a person's emotions (see also Lam 1:20; 2:11; 5:17).

3:17-20 The speaker turns to reflective thoughts, which taste like bitterness and poison. His memories make him feel discouraged and hopeless.

3:21-42 These verses sound more like an intellectual essay about God than reflection on personal experience. The speaker faces a theological dilemma: What do you do when your experience doesn't match what you have been taught about God? He chooses to embrace hope in God's goodness, a hope arrived at through internal struggle. In situations of tragedy, people can often feel despair and hope at the same time.

3:21 Though they may seem abrupt, such sudden transitions in attitude from despair to hope are common in lament psalms.

3:22-23 faithful love... compassion... faithfulness: characteristics frequently used to describe God (e.g., Exod 34:6-7).

25 The LORD is good to those who hope in him, to the person<sup>a</sup> who seeks him.

3:25-30 These statements reflect the wisdom tradition in the OT. They urge patience and submission during times of suffering. carry a yoke... mouth in the dirt... offer his cheek for a blow: Actions similar to the imprisonment and injury the strong man described in Lamentations 3:1-16.

3:31-33 won't reject forever: the hope that God will change God's mind, that God's compassion will overcome God's anger.

3:36 doesn't my Lord see all this? Like the Daughter Zion, the strong man emphasizes the importance of God seeing injustice and pain (see Lam 1:9, 11, 20; 2:20). They both face the same contradiction: God is the cause of their affliction, yet God is the only one who can take it away.

3:37-39 With these rhetorical questions, the speaker suggests that it's people's own fault if they suffer.

3:40-42 The strong man includes others, with the communal language of we, in encouraging self-examination and turning away from sin. hearts and hands: inward sincerity as well as outward actions.

3:42 But you, God, have not forgiven: The strong man turns to speak to God rather than just about God. At this point he seems to give up on waiting for God to show mercy.

3:43-66 The man continues to speak to God, accusing God of mistreatment. His hope has disappeared, and he is again overwhelmed by pain and suffering.

3:44 In the story of the exodus, a cloud protects and leads Israel to safety (cf. Num 9:15-23; Ps 105:39). Here a cloud is viewed negatively instead. It's a barrier between God and the people, making God inaccessible.

3:48-49 The strong man shifts to speaking personally, out of his own experience. He can't stop crying until God responds.

3:53-55 a pit and water flowed over my head are images of the netherworld and death.

The people's suffering

4 Oh, no!

Gold is tarnished;<sup>a</sup> even the purest gold is changed.

5 Sacred jewels are scattered on every street corner.

6 Zion's precious children, once valued as pure gold—oh no!—now they are worth no more than clay pots made by a potter.

7 Even jackals offer the breast; they nurse their young.
But the daughter of my people has become cruel, like desert ostriches.

8 The baby's tongue sticks to the roof of its mouth, thirsty.
Children ask for bread, beg for it—but there is no bread.

9 Those who once ate gourmet food now tremble in the streets.
Those who wore the finest purple clothes now cling to piles of garbage.

10 Greater was the punishment<sup>b</sup> of the daughter of my people than Sodom's penalty,<sup>c</sup> which was quickly overthrown without any hand-wringing.<sup>d</sup>

11 Her nazirites were purer than snow; they were more dazzling than milk.
Their limbs were redder than coral; their bodies were sapphire.

12 But their appearance grew darker than soot; they weren't recognized in the streets.
Their skin shriveled on their bones; it became dry like wood.

3:55-66 This section includes typical elements of lament psalms: address to God (3:55-56), request for God to help (3:57-60), and a description of enemies' mistreatment (3:60-66). An expression of trust in God, which is also a common element, is missing from the strong man's prayer.

3:57 Don't be afraid: God often says this when coming near to human beings (e.g., Gen 15:1; Isa 41:13).

4:1-16 In this fourth poem, the speaking voice may be the same as the narrator in the first two poems (Lam 1-2). This voice, however, speaks less passionately. The poem stresses the contrast between how things used to be and how they are now.

4:1-2 Everything that was valuable has become worthless.

Gold and Sacred jewels (perhaps from the temple), and even precious children are now thrown away like broken clay pots. Oh, no!: See note on Lamentations 1:1.

4:3 jackals and ostriches: animals known for neglecting their young.

4:4-8 The physical effects of famine during the siege and destruction: clamped mouth, trembling, shriveled skin. The bright and beautiful colors of health faded and grew darker than soot with the people's starvation.

4:6 The city of Sodom is the ultimate example of sinfulness, causing God to destroy it (Gen 19:1-28). Here and in Lamentations 4:9, the narrator argues that a quick death would have been preferable to the slow suffering experienced during the siege.

- 9 Things were better for those stabbed by the sword than for those stabbed by famine—those who bled away, pierced, lacking food from the field.
- 10 The hands of loving women boiled their own children to become their food during the destruction of the daughter of my people.
- 11 The LORD let loose his fury; he poured out his fierce anger.
 He started a fire in Zion; it licked up its foundations.
- 12 The earth's rulers didn't believe it—neither did any who inhabit the world—that either enemy or adversary could enter Jerusalem's gates.
- 13 It was because of her prophets' sins, her priests' iniquities, those who shed righteous blood in the middle of the city.
- 14 People wandered blindly in the streets, polluted with blood.
 No one would even touch their clothing.
- 15 "Go away! Unclean!" was shouted at them, "Go away! Away! Don't touch!"
 So they fled and wandered around.
 The nations said, "They can't stay here anymore."
- 16 It was the LORD's presence that scattered them;* he no longer notices them.
 They didn't honor the priests' presence; they didn't favor the elders.
- 17 Our eyes continually failed, looking for some help, but for nothing.
 From our watchtower we watched for a nation that doesn't save.
- 18 Our steps were tracked; we could no longer walk in our streets.
 Our end had drawn near; our days were done—our end had definitely come.
- 19 Our hunters were faster than airborne eagles.
 They chased us up the mountains; they ambushed us in the wilderness.
- 20 The LORD's chosen one, the very breath in our lungs, was caught in their traps—
 the one we used to talk about, saying,
 Under his protection we will live among the nations."
- 21 Rejoice and be happy, Daughter Edom, you who live in the land of Uz.
 But this cup will pass over to you too.
 You will get drunk on it. You will be stripped naked.

4:10 See note on Lamentations 2:20. As loving women, they acted not out of cruelty but because they had no other choice.

4:11 This is the first mention of God in the poem. God's fury and fierce anger reflect the angry violence of God described in Lamentations 1–3.

4:12 Traditional theology held that Jerusalem, or Zion, couldn't be destroyed. The city was the dwelling place of God, and God would always keep it from harm. But the unthinkable has occurred, and it has shocked the rulers of surrounding nations.

4:13–15 The prophets and priests were to promote ritual purity. Instead, they themselves have become impure. Persons with a scaly skin disease (it was not leprosy) were to shout "Unclean!" so that no one would touch them (Lev 13:45–46). The people of Jerusalem are now as contaminated and isolated as a person with a skin disease.

4:17–20 A shift to the voice of the community as a whole.

There's a contrast between the city's inhabitants, who actively watched and could no longer walk, and the speed and agility of their enemies. It was inevitable that they would be caught.

4:17 It's not fully clear which nation was hoped to provide some help during the siege. Perhaps Egypt (cf. Jer 37:5–10)? Perhaps Edom (cf. Lam 4:21–22)?

4:20 The Lord's chosen one, the very breath in our lungs, and Under his protection are all traditional titles for kings. Zedekiah, who was captured by the Babylonians, is probably the king in mind (2 Kgs 25:1–7; Jer 39:1–7).

4:21–22 Daughter Zion returns (see Lam 1–2), along with Daughter Edom. Edom was a traditional enemy of Israel. It is shameful to be stripped naked and exposed (see note on Lam 1:8). What happened to Jerusalem will also happen to Edom.

4:21 this cup: The cup of God's wrath (e.g., Jer 25:15–29; Isa 51:17–22).

But he will attend to your punishment,

The people's complaint

5 LORD, consider what has become of us; take notice of our disgrace. Look at it!
2 Our property has been turned over to strangers;
our houses belong to foreigners.
3 We have become orphans, having no father;
our mothers are like widows.
4 We drink our own water—but for a price;
we gather our own wood—but pay for it.
5 Our hunters have been at our necks;<sup>g</sup> we are worn out, but have no rest.
6 We held out a hand to Egypt and to Assyria, to get sufficient food.
7 Our fathers have sinned and are gone, but we are burdened with their iniquities.
8 Slaves rule over us; there is no one to rescue us from their power.
9 We get our bread at the risk of our lives because of the desert heat.<sup>h</sup>
10 Our skin is as hot as an oven because of the burning heat of famine.
11 Women have been raped in Zion, young women in Judah's cities.
12 Officials have been hung up by their hands;
elders have been shown no respect.
13 Young men have carried grinding stones;
boys have stumbled under loads of wood.
14 Elders have left the city gate;
young people stop their music.
15 Joy has left our heart;
our dancing has changed into lamentation.
16 The crown has fallen off our head.
We are doomed because we have sinned.
17 Because of all this our heart is sick;
because of these things our glance is dark.
18 Mount Zion, now deserted—only jackals walk on it now!
19 But you, LORD, will rule forever; your throne lasts from one generation to the next.
20 Why do you forget us continually;
why do you abandon us for such a long time?

5:1-22 The fifth, and shortest, poem continues the voice of the community. It's much like a communal psalm. The poem gives a picture of Jerusalem after the Babylonians took possession of the city. The structures of civil society have disintegrated.

5:1 The speakers call out to God right away, demanding that God pay attention to their need. This poem is more of a prayer than the other four poems. The details of our disgrace are described in Lamentations 5:2-18.

5:2-3 Family life was the center of Israelite society, but it has been broken apart. widows: See note on Lamentations 1:1.

5:4-5 Daily life is a struggle. Items that used to be plentiful are now expensive.

5:7 Though it was the past generation who sinned, the current generation is still paying the price for their sin.

5:8 The people used to have their own king (see Lam

5:17). But now they are being ruled by Slaves, low-level Babylonian administrators.

5:9-13 Food is scarce and difficult to get. The people have been pressed into hard labor. Daily life is unsafe, including dangers of rape, heatstroke, and even execution (hung up, 5:12).

5:14-17 Joy has left our heart... our heart is sick: All of these struggles have ultimately had a negative impact on the people's spirits. They no longer engage in pleasurable social activities. city gate: See note on Lamentations 1:4.

5:18 jackals live in destroyed places (cf. Isa 34:11-17; Jer 9:11; Lam 4:3). Once populated by God's chosen people, only wild beasts live in Zion now.

5:19 A brief statement of about God's authority, common in lament psalms (see Lam 3:21-42).

5:20-22 The people's final plea is for a return to a good relationship with God. But God still doesn't answer them. It seems that God is still angry with them and continues to reject them. God hasn't healed their suffering. The people are as abandoned as they were at the beginning. The book ends tragically, with disappointment and hopelessness.

"This was how the form of the LORD's glory appeared" (Ezek 1:28). With this halting, nervous statement, the prophet Ezekiel sums up his first encounter with God, and in so doing states the thesis for his prophecies. The scroll containing his prophetic speech is controlled by this experience, because each of Ezekiel's prophecies, in some way, relates to the issue of God's presence with God's people. These prophecies were written long ago, in a culture filled with images and worship practices quite strange to the modern reader. They were written by a priest for a highly educated audience. Each prophecy requires literary and theological knowledge that is difficult for us to understand today. As we study the ancient expressions of Ezekiel, we attempt to mentally transport ourselves to a distant intellectual, historical, and cultural setting to appreciate Ezekiel's encounter with God.

Though known to readers as a prophet, Ezekiel was first and foremost a priest in the Lord's temple in Jerusalem. As a temple priest, he belonged to a select, privileged, educated class in Judah's ancient society. His prophecies show familiarity with the literature and theological symbols of his day. In Ezekiel 28, for example, he not only refers to the story of the garden of Eden but he toys with it. His learning was a function of his call to minister before God's presence in the temple. He helped God's people distinguish between holy things and ordinary things. To make this distinction he followed the authoritative traditions of Jerusalem's temple on Mount Zion. This meant for Ezekiel that God was enthroned in the most holy place, and priests approached the Lord on behalf of the nation through long-established rituals that ensured purity.

As someone trained to approach God's presence, Ezekiel felt God's absence deeply. Since the death of King Josiah in 609 BCE, the tiny nation of Judah had been caught in the trap of international politics. Immediately after Josiah's death, his successor King Jehohaz was taken into captivity to Egypt. In 605, Babylon defeated Egypt at the battle of Carchemish, which moved Judah and the whole region under the authority of Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar (605–562 BCE). The royal court in Judah debated whether to remain loyal to Babylon, or to ally with Egypt and make a bid for self-rule. King Jehoiakim (608–598 BCE) decided for rebellion, which failed, resulting in the first Babylonian exile (597 BCE). In its quest for a more controlled, compliant Judah, Babylon took the educated and powerful officials from Judah, hauling them away to refugee camps southwest of Babylon. With this first wave of exiles, Ezekiel was welcomed to his new home, where he saw visions of God, predicted judgment and hope, and most likely lived out the remainder of his life.

Back in Jerusalem, however, life continued, as did also the political dilemma, even though the royal house had been transformed. Jehoiakim died before he saw the consequences of his decision, leaving his son King Jehoiachin (598–597 BCE) to be taken into captivity. In his place, King Zedekiah (597–587 BCE) was placed on the Jerusalem throne, having solemnly promised to serve King Nebuchadnezzar. Still the internal conflict continued on several fronts. The initial defeat and the continuing Babylonian threat raised theological questions about God's presence in the temple, the implications for the people's covenant with their God, and who might now be considered God's elect people. On the political front, questions of loyalty to Babylon or aid from Egypt continued. Such questions were felt just as deeply by Ezekiel and his fellow exiles in Mesopotamia, with all of these questions focused on whether, given the separation from and possible destruction of the temple, God's presence could ever be encountered again. Eventually Zedekiah rebelled once more. In 587 Jerusalem fell, the temple was destroyed, and Jerusalem and Judah lay in ruins. Some effort was made to maintain a governmental presence, initially led by Gedaliah (cf. Jer 40–41). But Babylon generally left the land to its "sabbath" (cf. 2 Chron 36:21), underdeveloped and chaotic, until Persian rule during the last quarter of the 6th century BCE. This physical state was a mere reflection of the much more serious rip in the cosmos left by the absence of Israel's national God, Yahweh.

Ezekiel confronted these issues directly and bluntly. Today, Ezekiel's prophecies are delivered to us in a handy book form, progressing from oracles mainly judging the house of Israel (Ezek 1–24), to a mediating section of oracles against foreign nations (Ezek 25–32), followed by oracles dominated by messages promising restoration (Ezek 33–48). This organization creates the appearance of a well-mannered, highly structured composition. This neat package, however, is the creation of editors. Ezekiel, as can be seen from the different dates attached to many of his oracles, prophesied his oracles over some 20 years, dating from 593 to 571 BCE. Though his prophecies carry a single thesis and relate ultimately to a longing to encounter God's presence, each passage speaks to a specific situation and has an integrity all its own. Later editors collected the individual pieces, treasured them, and strung them together to form the book we read today.

As we approach the book, we find Ezekiel and his community believing that they no longer have access to God's presence. They had been expelled from Jerusalem and the temple. Their access and service to the presence of the enthroned God had ended. They truly were "completely finished" (Ezek 37:11) or "cut off" from the land and from any experience of the Lord. On a dark day such as this, in the midst of his hopelessness, God startled Ezekiel.

First vision

1 In the thirtieth year, on the fifth day of the fourth month, I was with the exiles at the Chebar River when the heavens opened and I saw visions of God. <sup>2</sup>(It happened on the fifth day of the month, in the fifth year after King Jehoiachin's deportation. <sup>3</sup>The LORD's word burst in on the priest Ezekiel, Buzi's son, in the land of Babylon at the Chebar River. There the LORD's power overcame him.)

<sup>4</sup>As I watched, suddenly a driving storm came out of the north, a great cloud flashing fire, with brightness all around. At its center, in the middle of the fire, there was something like gleaming amber. <sup>5</sup>And inside that were forms of four living creatures. This was what they looked like: Each had the form of a human being, <sup>6</sup>though each had four faces and four wings. <sup>7</sup>Their feet looked like proper feet, but the soles of their feet were like calves' hooves, and they shone like burnished bronze. <sup>8</sup>Human hands were under their wings on all four sides. All four creatures had faces and wings, and <sup>9</sup>their wings touched each other's wings. When they moved, they each went straight ahead without turning. <sup>10</sup>As for the form of their faces: each of the four had a human face, with a lion's face on the right and a bull's face on the left, and also an eagle's face. <sup>11</sup>The pairs of wings<sup>a</sup> that stretched out overhead touched each other, while the other pairs covered their bodies. <sup>12</sup>Each moved straight ahead wherever

1:1-3 As is typical of prophetic books (e.g., Isa 1:1; Jer 1:1; Amos 1:1; Hos 1:1), the heading of the book introduces the prophet by name, the general era of the prophecies, and Judah's king. The heading is written in both first and third person, indicating that the community later added to the heading. This may have happened after circumstances had demonstrated that Ezekiel truly was a prophet (cf. Ezek 2:5; 33:33).

1:1 In the thirtieth year: The initial date of the thirtieth year seems most likely to refer to Ezekiel's age. This would be the age at which, if Ezekiel were still in Jerusalem, he would have been fully initiated as a priest and able to serve in God's presence (Num 4, 3, 23, 30), with the exiles at the Chebar River: The Chebar River is identified roughly along the stretches of the lower Euphrates, southeast of Babylon, and may have been a part of the Babylonian canal systems, by which they diverted water for irrigation. Fragments of ancient Near Eastern documents mentioned a canal with a similar name as a location where refugees were enslaved to build the Babylonian infrastructure. Harsh labor, verbal and physical abuse, and shaming of both the exiles and their God can be assumed (cf. Ps 137). visions of God: Although much of the material in the prophetic book isn't a reported vision, the visions of Ezekiel 1, 8-11, and 40-48, each deal with God's presence and carry the theme of the prophetic message.

1:2 fifth year: This second date clarifies the initial date, anchoring it this time, not in the prophet's life but in the life of the exiles. The fifth year was 593 (in August), a time when the nation was wrestling with whether to remain passive subjects of Nebuchadnezzar, or to seek help from Egypt and attempt to break away (cf. Jer 27-28). Only one other time does the book present a second, clarifying date formula: Ezekiel 40:1, which introduces God's final grand vision.

1:2 Jehoiachin: Jehoiakim's son and Josiah's grandson reigned only three months after the death of his father before being carried into exile in 597 BCE. The fact that he names Jehoiachin (and not his successor in Jerusalem, Zedekiah the youngest son of Josiah), reveals Ezekiel's loyalties and ideas about who was the legitimate ruler.

1:3 The LORD's word... on the priest Ezekiel, Buzi's son: The shift to third-person speech provides important biographical information not known outside of Ezekiel's immediate audience. the Lord's power: Compare with Exodus 9:3; Joshua 4:24; 1 Samuel 5:6, 9. In Ezekiel's prophecies, the phrase refers to the means by which the prophet sees visions and has the strength to deliver God's message (cf. Ezek 3:14, 22; 8:1; 33:22; 37:1; 40:1).

1:4-28 Ezekiel's encounter with God's presence in exile. The prophet describes his vision progressively, moving from a description of the four creatures (1:5-14), to the wheels (1:15-21), then to a dome (1:22-25), which separated what was below from what was above, and finally, the climax, a sapphire throne with the Lord's glory seated above it (1:26-28a). Ancient Hebrew tradition included a prophet being met by God as a part of their commission (cf. Isa 6; Jer 1:4-19).

1:4 a driving storm: This is typical OT language of theophany, which is an appearance that communicates God's power (cf. Exod 19:16; 20:18; Deut 4:11; 5:22-24; Ps 18:11-15; 46:1-3; 68:7-8; Nah 1:3-5; but compare with 1 Kgs 19:11-12). came out of the north: In ancient Israelite tradition, God lived on a mountain in the north (sometimes left untranslated, "Zaphon"). Mount Zion, the location of the temple in Jerusalem, was believed to grant spiritual access to this mountain (cf. Job 26:7; Isa 14:13; Ps 48:2).

1:5 four living creatures: As will be seen, these are composite beings, common in the religious images of the ancient Near East (cf. Isa 6:1-3; see sidebar, "The Living Creatures"). These fearsome and powerful beasts did the bidding of the deity in ancient Near Eastern thought. To Ezekiel, they signaled the Lord's entourage. forms of: This language separates Ezekiel and his audience from God's presence. The sense is that the vision is too amazing to describe in words.

1:6 four faces: The creatures' faces were trained on the points of the compass, as faithful guardians.

1:9, 12, 20 each went straight ahead without turning: emphasizing the right of God to move anywhere and in any direction.

1:11 covered their bodies: The creatures are sensitive not to insult God by uncovering their nakedness (cf. Isa 62; but also Exod 20:26; 28:42 in regard to priests).

1:12, 17, 20 wherever the wind propelled: The Hebrew word here translated "wind" is the same word translated

The Living Creatures The four creatures of Ezekiel 1 are composite beasts, human in form, but with body parts from different animals: for example, the legs of a calf, faces of a lion, bull, and eagle, and wings. While strange and speculative to us, such imagery was a regular part of the theological speech of the ancient world and in Israel (cf. 1 Kgs 7:27-39) when depicting heavenly beings.

The inner sanctuary of a temple excavated at Ain Dara in Syria had a floor plan very similar to that of the temple in Jerusalem. In that sanctuary, on a row of basalt stones, a series of images show composite beasts surrounding a mountain god. Each figure has wings, and the faces of lions, bull-men, and eagles, corresponding to the creatures in Ezekiel 1.

Ezekiel 1:22-28 describes an appearance of an enthroned figure, seated above a dome or a sky platform. Again, this image would be recognizable to the prophet's audience. Archaeologists have found ancient tiles depicting a god seated on a throne that rests on a platform, which is itself above a resting composite beast.

In Ezekiel 1:9, 12, 20, reference is made to the four beasts transporting a litter (or sedan), which carried royalty in the ancient world. In a basalt sculpture from Carchemish (northern Syria), two lions, being led by an eagle-headed human, carry a litter, with the god enthroned above it.

While strange to the modern reader, and surprising to Ezekiel and his compatriots as well, we can all know what Ezekiel saw: the glory of God, enthroned and being carried by a heavenly entourage, coming to the exiles in Babylon.

the wind propelled them; they moved without turning. <sup>13</sup>Regarding the creatures' forms: they looked like blazing coals, like torches. Fire darted about between the creatures and illuminated them, and lightning flashed from the fire. <sup>14</sup>The creatures looked like lightning streaking back and forth.

<sup>15</sup>As I looked at the creatures, suddenly there was a wheel on the earth corresponding to all four faces of the creatures. <sup>16</sup>The appearance and composition of the wheels were like sparkling topaz. There was one shape for all four of them, as if one wheel were inside another. <sup>17</sup>When they moved in any of the four directions, they moved without swerving. <sup>18</sup>Their rims were tall and terrifying, because all four of them were filled with eyes all around. <sup>19</sup>When the creatures moved, the wheels moved next to them. Whenever the creatures rose above the earth, the wheels also rose up. <sup>20</sup>Wherever the wind would appear to go, the wind would make them go there too. The wheels rose up beside them, because the spirit<sup>b</sup> of the creatures was in the wheels. <sup>21</sup>When they moved, the wheels<sup>c</sup> moved; when they stood still, the wheels stood still; and when they rose above the earth, the wheels rose up along with them, because the spirit<sup>d</sup> of the creatures was in the wheels.

"storm" in Ezekiel 1:4, and sometimes "breath" elsewhere. It appears 32 times in Ezekiel. As seen in 1:4, the spirit almost has a life of its own, though it always works in loyal obedience to God. In 1:12, the spirit directs the movement of the creatures. The spirit lifts up Ezekiel and moves him around the earth (Ezek 2:2; 3:12, 24; 8:3; 11:24; 37:1; 43:5). Similarly, the spirit is the force that gives life to the dry bones (Ezek 37:5, 6, 9, 10; cf. Gen 2). The east wind sinks the ship Tyre in the midst of the chaotic waters (Ezek 27:26; cf. Exod 14:21; 15:8-10).

1:13 blazing coals: a common image accompanying an appearance of God (Ps 18:8, 12 // 2 Sam 22:9, 13). Burning coals also appear in the vision in Ezekiel 10:2, where they serve a purifying purpose. torches: The Hebrew indicates specific torches that were moving. This suggests that this image would have had some specific meaning for Ezekiel's audience. Note that torches pass between the offerings at the covenant sealing ceremony in Genesis 15:17.

1:15 a wheel... corresponding to all four faces of the creatures: The addition of wheels implies a ceremonial cart being ushered in by the creatures, or perhaps a four-wheeled chariot.

1:16 as if one wheel were inside another: reflects the practical construction of wheels in the ancient world. An inner spoke-wheel was supported by an outer rim made of wood and metal, which bore the punishment of the road or terrain (cf. Ezek 1:18). As the rim wore out, it would be replaced without having also to remake the inner wheel.

1:18 eyes all around: Although this phrase may refer to the sparkling nails holding together these wheels made of precious materials, omniscience (that is, "knowing everything") is more likely the point.

1:22 a dome: This platform separates the sacred from the ordinary, the heavenly from the earthly. In Genesis 1:6-8, the same term refers to the means by which the chaotic waters are kept away from the life-giving created order.

1:24 the Almighty: a name for an appearance of God, sometimes left untranslated: "El Shaddai" (Gen 17:1; 28:3; 35:11; 48:3; Exod 6:3; Num 24:4, 16; and Ezek 10:5). Ancient tradition seemed to have held that appearances of their wings when they moved forward. It was like the sound of mighty waters, like the sound of the Almighty,<sup>f</sup> like the sound of tumult or the sound of an army camp. When they stood still, their wings came to rest. <sup>25</sup>Then there was a sound from above the dome over their heads. They stood still, and their wings came to rest.

Ezekiel's commissioning

2The voice said to me: Human one, stand on your feet, and I'll speak to you. <sup>2</sup>As he spoke to me, a wind<sup>g</sup> came to me and stood me on my feet, and I heard someone addressing me. <sup>3</sup>He said to me: Human one, I'm sending you to the Israelites, a traitorous and rebellious people. They and their ancestors have been rebelling against me to this very day. <sup>4</sup>I'm sending you to their hardheaded and hard-hearted descendants, and you will say to them:

The Dates in the Book of Ezekiel Few other prophetic books use dates as extensively and purposefully as Ezekiel. Thirteen dates introduce prophetic passages in the book (Ezek 1:1; 8:1; 20:1; 24:1; 26:1; 29:1, 17; 30:20; 31:1; 32:1, 17; 33:21; 40:1), which follow a regular form. Prior to Ezekiel, date formulas weren't commonly associated with prophecies. Instead, the context of an oracle or vision was identified by an event or a year in a king's reign (e.g., Isa 6:1; Amos 1:1; Jer 27:1). The dates in Ezekiel generally follow chronologically, though there are departures (e.g., Ezek 29:17). They are clumped heavily around the fall of Jerusalem, which is certainly the critical event for Ezekiel. The dates serve to archive Ezekiel's prophecies, certifying when a prophecy was spoken for a later reader, who knows how things turned out (cf. Isa 8:16). The recognition of Ezekiel as a prophet was an important theme (Ezek 2:5; 33:33), and the archiving of prophecies allows for the truth of the prophetic word to be evaluated (cf. Deut 18:15-22). In contrast to his predecessors, who interceded with God to affect events in their own day (e.g., Jer 26:3; Joel 2:12-14), Ezekiel wrote in part to reveal the will of God for a later audience, one that lived in the future, restored nation.

the Almighty could be accompanied by powerful sounds, such as thunder or the roar of the ocean.

1:26 in the form of a throne: The description of the vision nears its climax, and the mention of a throne shows the reader that God still reigns, even in exile (cf. Isaiah's call at Isa 6:1).

1:28 a rainbow ... on a rainy day: In Genesis 9:12-17, the rainbow signals God's promise to humankind that God will guard the created order. In ancient Near Eastern culture, a warrior's bow, hanging down, signified the end of war—peace. Up to this point, the prophet may not have known why God was coming to Babylon; perhaps it was to finish off him and his exilic compatriots. This final detail shows Ezekiel and his readers that God intends peace for the exiles. the LORD's glory: This sentence closes out the vision, stating for the first time that Ezekiel encountered God's glory (see sidebar, "The Lord's Glory" at Ezek 10).

2:1-3:27 The vision ends in 1:28a, and Ezekiel hears God's assignment for him. This section has five parts (2:1-3:3; 3:4-11; 3:12-15; 3:16-21; 3:22-27), with the center serving as a pause, when the prophet sits stunned for seven days, allowing readers to catch their breath. Afterward, his attention is turned away from God and toward his community.

2:1 Human one: The title given to Ezekiel throughout the prophecies, occurring over 90 times. The point is to contrast the prophet, who represents humanity (cf. Gen 2:7) before God, with God and all that is divine. In Ezekiel 34:31; 36:37-38, God's "flock," the remaining few elected by the Lord for restoration, are identified as "human."

2:3 the Israelites: This is Ezekiel's broadest category for all of the people, without distinction, whether from Judah or Israel, in exile or still in the land, righteous or unrighteous. This category didn't include people of other nations whose national deities were not Israel's Lord. they and their ancestors: In Ezekiel's prophecies, there is never a time when the people are righteous before God. Any salvation that the nation experienced was a product of God's concern for God's own reputation and presence on the earth (cf. Ezek 20; 36:22-23).

2:4 The LORD God proclaims: a standard prophetic phrase, designed to emphasize a quoted message from God (modeled after the speech of messengers used in the ancient world to deliver diplomatic messages, cf. 1 Kgs 20:2, 13). The repetition of the phrase here and in Ezekiel 3:11; 3:27 helps to shape the passage. LORD God: This is Ezekiel's most important name for the people's national God, appearing over 210 times in the book, and fewer than 100 times elsewhere in the OT. In particular, Ezekiel seems to have chosen this name for God over against the name "Lord of heavenly forces," the name typically applied to God by the Jerusalem priests. Such a shift in terminology implies that for Ezekiel, the exile and the glory's later

The LORD God proclaims. <sup>5</sup>Whether they listen or whether they refuse, since they are a household of rebels, they will know that a prophet has been among them.

<sup>6</sup>And as for you, human one, don't be afraid of them or their words. Don't be afraid! You possess thistles and thorns that subdue scorpions. <sup>b</sup>Don't be afraid of their words or shrink from their presence, because they are a household of rebels. <sup>7</sup>You'll speak my words to them whether they listen or whether they refuse. They are just a household<sup>1</sup> of rebels!

<sup>8</sup>As for you, human one, listen to what I say to you. Don't become rebellious like that household of rebels. Open your mouth and eat what I give you. <sup>9</sup>Then I looked, and there in a hand stretched out to me was a scroll. <sup>10</sup>He spread it open in front of me, and it was filled with writing on both sides, songs of mourning, lamentation, and doom.

3 Then he said to me: Human one, eat this thing that you've found. Eat this scroll and go, speak to the house of Israel. <sup>2</sup>So I opened my mouth, and he fed me the scroll. <sup>3</sup>He said to me: Human one, feed your belly and fill your stomach with this scroll that I give you. So I ate it, and in my mouth it became as sweet as honey.

<sup>4</sup>Then he said to me: Human one, go! Go to the house of Israel and speak my words to them. <sup>5</sup>You aren't being sent to a people whose language and speech are difficult and obscure but to the house of Israel. <sup>6</sup>No, not to many peoples who speak difficult and obscure languages, whose words you wouldn't understand. If I did send you to them, they would listen to you. <sup>7</sup>But the house of Israel—they will refuse to listen to you because they refuse to listen to me. The whole house of Israel is hardheaded and hard-hearted too. <sup>8</sup>I've now hardened your face so that you can meet them head-on. <sup>9</sup>I've made your forehead like a diamond, harder than stone. Don't be afraid of them or shrink away from them, because they are a household of rebels.

<sup>10</sup>He said to me: Human one, listen closely, and take to heart every word I say to you. <sup>11</sup>Then go to the exiles, to your people's children. Whether they listen or not, speak to them and say: The LORD God proclaims!

<sup>12</sup>Then a wind lifted me up, and I heard behind me a great quaking sound from his place. Blessed is the LORD's glory! <sup>13</sup>The sound was the creatures' wings beating against each other and the sound of the wheels beside them; it was a great rumbling noise. <sup>14</sup>Then the wind picked me up and took me away. With the LORD's power pressing down against me I went away, bitter and deeply angry, <sup>15</sup>and I came to the exiles who lived beside the Chebar River at Tel-abib. I stayed there among them for seven desolate days.

2:5 a prophet has been among them: shows Ezekiel as a prophet, which is an important theme in his prophecies (cf. Ezek 12:21-28; 20:49; 33:30-33). His prophetic role is bound together with his purpose as a lookout (Ezek 3:16-21; 33:1-9) and his inability to speak (Ezek 3:26-27; 33:22). Ezekiel accepts that the process of testing prophecies in order to prove they are true doesn't have immediate results. This delay leads to the later study and reflection of his message, and then an understanding of the nature and will of God (cf. Isa 8:16-18; see sidebar, "The Dates in the Book of Ezekiel"). This principle is found in the instruction concerning the prophets in Deuteronomy 18:15-22.

2:8 open your mouth: Some have connected this expression to a Mesopotamian ceremony in which an idol is made alive with the spirit of the deity. Similarly, Ezekiel is made alive with God's message, representing God before the people of Israel.

2:9-10 a scroll... words of mourning, lamentation, and doom: God's message to the people was fixed. Their fate—that is, their judgment—had already been determined, without any possibility of turning the nation around. Contrast this message with Jeremiah (Jer 26:3-6) or with the story of Jonah (Jon 3:10-4:5).

3:1 house of Israel: Ezekiel often parallels this phrase with "rebellious house." It describes the people as those who violate the covenant and thereby deserve God's justice. Sometimes the "house of Israel" is distinguished from the house of Judah (cf. Ezek 4:4-8; 9:9), but more often it includes Hebrews from the northern kingdom Israel and the southern kingdom Judah/Jerusalem (cf. Ezek 8:6, 10-11; 11:5, 15). Rarely (Ezek 20:40; 28:25; 36:10; 37:11) is "house of Israel" used positively.

3:3 in my mouth it became as sweet as honey: A surprising turn, but God's word, no matter its content, is contrasted with the words of the "rebellious house"; it's like sweet honey, in contrast with briars, thorns, and scorpions (Ezek 2:3-7; cf. Jer 15:16).

3:7-10 hardheaded and hard-hearted: Ezekiel's forehead counters the house of Israel's forehead (3:8). His receptive heart is contrasted with their stubborn hearts (3:10).

3:12-13 Blessed is the LORD's glory... a great rumbling noise: The Lord's glory now departs from Ezekiel. God's spirit (cf. Ezek 1:12, 17, 20) remains to direct Ezekiel, now that his initial encounter with God has ended. See sidebar, "The Lord's Glory" at Ezekiel 10.

3:14 the LORD's power pressing down: Ezekiel's expression for divine strength (cf. Ezek 1:3). Here it empowers him to move to the exiles at Tel-abib. bitter and deeply angry: With feelings of anger, Ezekiel must return to his former, ordinary world, separated from God's presence.

3:15 I came to the exiles... at Tel-abib: "Tel" means mound, and "abib" in Akkadian, the language of Babylon, refers to <sup>16</sup>At the end of the seven days, the LORD's word came to me: <sup>17</sup>Human one, I've made you a lookout for the house of Israel. When you hear a word from me, deliver my warning. <sup>18</sup>If I declare that the wicked will die but you don't warn them, if you say nothing to warn them from their wicked ways so that they might live, they will die because of their guilt, but I will hold you accountable for their deaths. <sup>19</sup>If you do warn the wicked and they don't turn from their wickedness or their wicked ways, they will die because of their guilt, but you will save your life.

<sup>20</sup>Or suppose righteous people turn away from doing the right thing. If they act dishonestly, and I make them stumble because of it, they will die because you didn't warn them of their sin. Their righteous deeds won't be remembered, and I will hold you accountable for their deaths. <sup>21</sup>But if you do warn the righteous not to sin, and they don't sin, they will be declared righteous. Their lives will be preserved because they heeded the warning, and you will save your life.

<sup>22</sup>The LORD's power overcame me, and he said to me: Get up! Go out to the valley, and I'll speak to you there. <sup>23</sup>So I got up and went out to the valley. Suddenly, the LORD's glory stood there, like the glory that I had seen at the Chebar River, and I fell on my face. <sup>24</sup>When a wind came to me and stood me on my feet, he spoke to me and said: Go, shut yourself up inside your house. <sup>25</sup>Look at you, human one! They've now put cords on you and bound you up so that you can't go out among them. <sup>26</sup>I'll make your tongue stick to the roof of your mouth and take away your ability to speak. You won't be able to correct them, because they are a household of rebels. <sup>27</sup>But whenever I speak to you, I'll open your mouth, and you will say to them: The LORD God proclaims. Those who hear will understand, but those who refuse will not. They are just a household of rebels.

a flood. This location may indicate that Babylon settled a group of exiles on a mound of an ancient ruined town, located in the middle of a flood plain. This community of exiles was apparently not where Ezekiel himself had been settled. seven desolate days: In Leviticus 8:33, seven days marked the period of time when a priest was ordained for service to the people, as a part of the preparation for a visit by the Lord's glory (Lev 9:6). The process is reversed in Ezekiel. After already seeing the Lord's glory, and instead of sitting in the meeting tent, as in Leviticus, Ezekiel is in the unholy land of the Chaldees. Ezekiel is shocked because as a priest he expects the Lord's glory to be in the temple. 3:16 LORD's word: This phrase marks a subtle change in the text. While Ezekiel was in the presence of the Lord's glory, God speaks directly to Ezekiel (Ezek 1:28b, 2:1; 3:1; 3:4). With the glory departed, Ezekiel now receives God's word, seemingly independent of the Lord.

3:17 lookout: The OT often portrays the prophet as a lookout (cf. Isa 21:6-9; Jer 6:17; Hos 9:8; Hab 2:1). This role is assigned to Ezekiel here and again in Ezekiel 33:1-9. This instance starts Ezekiel's prophetic mission before the fall of Jerusalem, while the symbol in 33:1-9 restates Ezekiel's mission as his ministry addresses the situation after the fall of the monarchy in 587 BCE. This role as lookout coincides with the other time Ezekiel is recognized as a prophet (cf. Ezek 2:5; 33:33), as well as with the lifting of his muteness (Ezek 33:22; cf. 3:26-27).

3:18-21 Four conditional sentences present four hypothetical cases. The point of these case studies is to press Ezekiel to deliver God's message. Only his fate hangs in the balance, as stated in each hypothetical situation. The content of the scroll (cf. Ezek 2:10) indicates that the fate of the people is already sealed, and a change of heart isn't an option.

3:23 to the valley... like the glory... at the Chebar River: This valley is a new location, different from where Ezekiel was met by the Lord's glory in Ezekiel 1:4-3:11. The definite article the implies a certain location, and indeed this particular valley doesn't appear again in the book until Ezekiel 37:1-14, where Ezekiel sees this valley filled with dry bones. the LORD's glory: The glory has returned to meet Ezekiel (cf. Ezek 1:4-28a), speaking to him directly. Ezekiel responds as he did when he first met God's glory (cf. Ezek 1:28b).

3:24-27 Go, shut yourself up inside your house: This time, when the glory speaks to Ezekiel, the prophet receives a command that contradicts the earlier commands. Instead of being sent to the people of Israel (2:3-4), he is confined to his house and tied up with cords. Moreover, God is shutting Ezekiel's mouth. This is a difficult turn of events, but the overall effect is to isolate the prophet from the people. Ezekiel is in his own house (3:24b), separate from the house of Israel (Ezek 3:1, 4, 5, 7). After eating God's word, Ezekiel doesn't need to open his mouth again. Throughout Ezekiel's prophecies, delegations come to Ezekiel's house (Ezek 8:1; and probably also Ezek 14:1-3; 20:1). The symbolic action in Ezekiel 12:1-7 seems to take place in Ezekiel's home.

3:26 I'll make your tongue stick: This theme is linked with the fall of Jerusalem, when the prophet's mouth is opened (Ezek 24:27; 33:21; cf. the note on Ezek 2:5). Ezekiel's God-imposed silence functions as a powerful sign (Ezek 3:27; see Ezek 24:27), perhaps to cut off any sense that the people could plead with God for mercy (see the notes on Ezek 2:9; 10; 3:17-21). The text is difficult to interpret because the prophet clearly communicates before the fall of the city, at times commanded by God to speak to the people (Ezek 12:10; 12:23; 13:17-18; 14:4; 16:3). Nevertheless, symbolic actions play an important role in the prophecies of Ezekiel (Ezek 4:1-3; 4:4-8; 4:9-12; 5:1-4; 12:1-7; 12:17-20; 24:15-24). Many of his prophecies have a literary quality about them. He may have written them to be read rather than spoken aloud. The prophet may have been muted.

3:27 The LORD God proclaims: This repetition of the messenger speech closes out Ezekiel's call narrative (cf. Ezek 2:4).

Jerusalem's siege

4 You, human one, take a brick. Put it in front of you and draw the city of Jerusalem on it. 2 Prepare the siege: Build a wall, construct ramps, set up army camps, and place battering rams all around. 3 Take an iron plate and set it up as an iron wall between you and the city. Face it directly. When it is under siege like this, press hard against it. This is a sign for the house of Israel.

4 Now, lie on your left side, and set the guilt of the house of Israel on it. For the length of time that you lie on your side, you will bear their punishment. 5 I appoint to you three hundred ninety days, one day for each year of their guilt. So you will bear the punishment of the house of Israel. 6 When you have completed these days, lie on your right side to bear the guilt of the house of Judah. I appoint forty days to you, one day for each year. 7 With your arm stretched out, face the siege of Jerusalem directly and prophesy against it. 8 I've now bound you with cords so that you can't turn from one side to the other until you have completed the days of your siege.

9 You, gather some wheat and barley, beans and lentils, and millet and spelt. Put them in a bowl and make your bread from them. Eat it during the three hundred ninety days that you lie on your side. 10 At fixed times you will eat your food by weight, fourteen ounces

4:1-5:17 This section contains four symbolic actions: Ezekiel 4:1-3; 4:4-8; 4:9-17; and 5:1-17, all addressing the siege of Jerusalem (see note on Ezek 5:2). A symbolic action is a public performance that contains a prophetic message. In many ways similar to extended metaphors (or parables), performed prophecy was a common and powerful type of prophetic communication in ancient Israel. The symbolic actions are seen in the work of many of Israel's prophets, some simple and direct, some elaborate and involved (Isa 20; Jer 19; Hos 1-3). This collection of four enacted prophecies was based closely on the treaty curses of Leviticus 26:14-39.

4:1-3 This first symbolic action shows the certainty of the Babylonian siege of Jerusalem. Note the exiles' continuing interest in the fate of Jerusalem and their nation. Because Jerusalem was the location of the temple and the place where they approached God, its fate was theologically meaningful.

4:1 human one: See note on Ezekiel 2:1. a brick: Mud bricks were large and used everywhere in the ancient world. Although shapes and sizes of mud bricks varied, a typical square mud brick was about 12 to 15 inches on a side and 4 to 6 inches in height. Before being dried in the sun, a mud brick could provide an excellent means of sculpting a city. Wall reliefs in Assyrian palaces showed processions in which tax payments and plunder were brought to the Assyrian king. In these processions, models of the conquered cities, most probably made of clay and roughly the size of a mud brick, were also presented to the king. So, for Ezekiel's audience a model of Jerusalem as a city would be a well-known though threatening symbol.

4:3 an iron plate: perhaps a cooking griddle. Its placement between the prophet, God's representative to the people ("human one," Ezek 4:1), and the mud brick/city symbolizes that the city is cut off from both God and God's help (cf. Lev 26:19). Face it directly: As a common expression in Ezekiel, it is the posture that God commands him to take toward the subject of God's judgment (cf. Ezek 6:2; 13:17; 14:8; 15:7; 20:46; 21:2; 25:2; 28:21; 29:2; 35:2; 38:2; and also Jer 21:10). It is also listed among the curses found in Leviticus (cf. Lev 26:17; but elsewhere in Lev 17:10; 20:3, 5, 6).

4:4-8 The second of this set of performed prophecies explains the guilt of the nation.

4:4 set the guilt... bear their punishment: The same Hebrew word is translated both as guilt and punishment; the Hebrew doesn't distinguish between the two but rather binds them together as a whole. The guilt of the people is the reason for the curses in Leviticus (cf. Lev 26:39). house of Israel: This is one of the few passages where the house of Israel is distinguished from Judah (see the note on Ezek 3:1). left side: Since the ancient world was oriented toward the east, the northern kingdom of Israel would be to the left side and Judah would be to the right (Ezek 4:6).

4:5-6 three hundred ninety days... forty days: These numbers are theological in nature, and do not conform precisely to any historical period. They total 430 years, which according to ancient Judahite priests was how long Israel was in Egypt (Exod 12:40-41). Forty years is the length of the wilderness wanderings, which was a time for purification of the people, cleansing them of the generation that rebelled in the wilderness (Num 14:20-25, 33-34). The period of 390 years may refer to the time from Solomon's building of the temple to the fall of Jerusalem. If we read the numbers theologically, then Ezekiel seems to be saying that neither the northern nor the southern kingdoms have experienced God's salvation by living obediently in the land. They have lived for 390 years in guilt, and the exodus from captivity and into salvation is still in the future. This denial of the history of the nation in the land is an important theme in Ezekiel (see sidebar, "The Dates in the Book of Ezekiel" at Ezek 2).

4:9-17 Ezekiel's third symbolic action emphasizes a severe lack of food and drink during the siege, one of the promised curses of Leviticus (Lev 26:26). It also emphasizes impurity and distance from God. Ezekiel's audience had already experienced the exile, and this prophecy about the fate of the people remaining in Judah and Jerusalem was important to them.

4:9 wheat... spelt: Wheat and barley were common ingredients in ancient bread, but weren't commonly mixed into one loaf. Barley was the bread of poorer families. To add beans, lentils, millet, and spelt (a kind of unhusked wheat) emphasized further how far a person had to go to make a single loaf of bread. Instructions in Leviticus 19:19 and Deuteronomy 22:9 prohibit sowing together in one field different species of seeds, so the cooking together of different cereals and vegetables may carry not only a message of starvation but also a sense of improper sacrifice practices.

a day.<sup>11</sup> You will also ration your water by measure, drinking a sixth of a hin<sup>12</sup> at fixed times each day. <sup>12</sup>Eat it like barley bread, and bake it on human excrement while they watch. <sup>13</sup>The LORD says: In this same way the Israelites will eat their unclean bread among the nations where I am scattering them.

<sup>14</sup>And I said: "Ah, LORD God! I've never been unclean! From my childhood until now I've never eaten anything that wasn't properly slaughtered,<sup>1</sup> and no unclean meat has ever entered my mouth!"

<sup>15</sup>He answered me: "Then I'll let you use cow dung instead of human excrement. You can make your bread over that."

<sup>16</sup>Then he said to me: Human one, I'm destroying the food supply in Jerusalem. They will anxiously ration and eat their food, and in dismay they will dole out and drink their water.

<sup>17</sup>When their food and water dwindles away, everyone will be horrified, and they will waste away because of their guilt.

5 You, human one, take a sharp sword. Use it like a razor and shave your head and beard. Then use scales to divide the hair. <sup>2</sup>At the end of the siege, burn one-third of it in the city. Strike another third with the sword left and right. Then scatter one-third to the wind and let loose<sup>m</sup> the sword after it. <sup>3</sup>From that third, take a few strands and hide them in your garment. <sup>4</sup>From that hair, take yet another batch and throw it into the fire and burn it up. From there, fire will spread to the whole house of Israel.

<sup>5</sup>The LORD God proclaims: This is Jerusalem! I have set her in the middle of the nations and surrounding countries. <sup>6</sup>But she rebelled against my case laws and my regulations with greater treachery than these nations and surrounding countries, who also rejected my case laws and didn't follow my regulations. <sup>7</sup>Therefore, the LORD God proclaims: You have become more turbulent than these nations around you because you haven't obeyed my regulations or followed my case laws. You haven't even followed the case laws of the nations around you! <sup>8</sup>So now the LORD God proclaims: I myself am now against you! I will impose the case law penalties on you in the sight of the nations. <sup>9</sup>Because of you, I will do what I've never done before and will never do again—all because of your detestable practices. <sup>10</sup>Therefore, parents among you will eat their children, and children will eat their parents. I will impose penalties

4:12 human excrement: Using animal dung as fuel was common in ancient Israel, but human dung was repulsive (cf. Deut 23:12-14).

4:14-15 Ah LORD God!: In addition to this instance, Ezekiel protests against God three other times: Ezekiel 9:8; 11:13; 20:49. Here his protest revolves around his purity, by which he was allowed to stand in God's presence. God makes allowances for Ezekiel's priestly sensibilities, but the point remains. The siege involves not only severe suffering for the people but also defilement that puts distance between them and God (cf. Ezek 5:3).

5:1-17 This fourth symbolic action proclaims the death or disbanding of nearly all of the people of Jerusalem resulting from the siege. This punishment is promised in Leviticus 26:14-45 (cf. 5:9).

5:1 divide the hair: The purpose of the division isn't to distinguish between wicked and righteous hair, but to provide the prophet with a way to show the various types of gruesome outcomes awaiting the people.

5:2 At the end of the siege: The four symbolic actions were meant to be read one after the other. The first announces the siege; the second justifies it; the third identifies the severity and impurity of the siege. Now, at the end of the siege, the outcome of the people is announced. burn one-third . . . scatter one-third to the wind: Three outcomes are portrayed here, each of which was all too real in the ancient world, and well known to Ezekiel's fellow exiles. The curses promised in Leviticus are reflected here as well: death by the sword (Lev 26:25, 33) and flight into exile (Lev 26:33), and the burning of a city (Lev 26:30-31), a standard part of siege warfare.

5:3-4 from that third, take a few strands: A telling exception that reveals Ezekiel's biases toward the exiles, since only from the exiles will any small number of the nation survive. According to Ezekiel, his exilic community will form God's elect (cf. 11:1-21; 20:33-38; Lev 26:40-45). from that hair . . . burn it up: Still, even from the exiles who escape the final destruction of Jerusalem, some will die (cf. Ezek 20:38; Lev 26:36-39).

5:5 in the middle of the nations: This statement claims that Jerusalem is the source of life (Ps 46:4; and the concept ultimately reflects the promise of Abraham, Gen 12:1-3). Jerusalem also has the attention of the nations, and thus divine honor is tied to the city's success (Pss 48; 72; see Ezek 5:14-15).

5:6 my case laws and my regulations: These two terms, common in teaching contexts, include all of the requirements for keeping a covenantal relationship with God. Ezekiel and Leviticus especially pair these two terms together (Lev 18:4, 5, 26; 19:37; 20:22; 25:18; 26:15, 43; Ezek 11:20; 18:9, 17, 19, 21; 20:11, 13, 19, 21, 24; 36:27; 44:24).

5:9, 11 detestable practices: a common term occurring over 40 times in Ezekiel. It refers to acts that so thoroughly defile the person that the covenantal relationship with the Lord is broken (Ezek 6:11; 7:3, 4, 8, 9, 20; 8:6, 9, 13, 15, 17; 16:2, 22, 36, 43, 47, 50, 51, 58; 23:36; 33:26; 43:8).

5:10 parents . . . will eat their children: See Leviticus 26:29.

from case laws on you and scatter all that is left of you to the winds. <sup>11</sup>Therefore, as surely as I live, this is what the LORD God says: Because you made my sanctuary unclean with all your disgusting practices and detestable things, I myself will shave you. I will not shed a tear. You will have no compassion, even from me. <sup>12</sup>One-third of you will die of plague and waste away by famine among you. One-third will fall by the sword all around you. And one-third I will scatter to all the winds, letting loose a sword to pursue them. <sup>13</sup>My anger will be complete. I will exhaust my wrath against them and take my revenge. Then they will know that I, the LORD, have spoken against them in my zeal and consumed them in my wrath. <sup>14</sup>I will turn you into a desolation to the ridicule of the nations all around you, in the sight of all who pass by. <sup>15</sup>You will become an object of ridicule, a mockery, and a horrifying lesson to the nations all around you, when I impose penalties from case laws against you in anger, wrath, and overflowing fury. I, the LORD, have spoken. <sup>16</sup>When I launch my deadly arrows of famine against you, I have released them for your destruction! I will add to your famine and completely cut off your food supply. <sup>17</sup>I will send famine and wild animals against you, and they will leave you childless. Plague and bloodshed will come to you, and I will bring the sword against you. I, the LORD, have spoken.

Against the mountains of Israel

6 The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, face Israel's mountains, and prophesy to them. <sup>3</sup>Say:

Hear the LORD God's word, mountains of Israel!

The LORD God proclaims to the mountains and hills, to the valleys and their deepest ravines:

I'm about to bring a sword against you and destroy your shrines.

<sup>4</sup>Your altars will be destroyed, your incense altars broken.

And I'll make your slain fall in front of your idols.

and I'll scatter your bones all around your altars.

5:11 made my sanctuary unclean: This specifies the guilt, mentioned in the second symbolic action (Ezek 4:4). It will be taken up again in Ezekiel 8:6. The temple and its worship practices and ceremonies are the source of the people's relationship with God, so this verse touches on the critical issue of the book of Ezekiel: the Lord's presence with the people.

5:14-15 to the ridicule of the nations: Ancient civilizations were based on a system of honor and shame. The honor of the individual, family, tribe, nation, and ultimately the national god was most important. Elaborate steps were taken either to raise one's own honor or to shame an opponent. The Lord placed Jerusalem in the middle of the nations (Ezek 5:5) to bring honor to the city (Ezek 16:9-14), but instead, the nations now see its shame. Jerusalem's shame reflects on the Lord, and the shame brought on God by the fall of Jerusalem and its temple is the problem (cf. Ezek 20:9, 14, 22, 44; 36:6-7, 16-21, 22-36; and cf. Num 14:13-20; Deut 32:26-27; Josh 7:6-9).

6:1-14 Three passages judge the land of Israel (6:1-7; 8-10; and 11-14; cf. the note on Ezek 35:1-15; 36:1-38). The subject matter is the land and its ruin on account of the worship of idols and unacceptable shrines (cf. Deut 12:2-3; 1 Kgs 12:31; 14:23; 2 Kgs 17:9, 11, 32; 23:8; Jer 19:5; Ezek 16:16). This passage justifies the siege of Jerusalem, described immediately before, in Ezekiel 4-5. In the background are psalms that refer to the Lord's control over and the praise of the mountains, hills, and valleys of Israel (Pss 95; 104; 114; 121).

6:3 your shrines: This is a reference to worship centers outside of the Jerusalem temple. Such shrines are condemned by Ezekiel. The mountains, hills, valleys, and ravines are poetic allusions to these shrines. Though unacceptable from the perspective of a Jerusalem priest, they were a traditional part of the people's worship, a way for ordinary people to access God. While some were dedicated to other gods (2 Kgs 17:7-17; Jer 7:31; 19:5; 32:35), archaeological evidence from Arad shows that some were dedicated to the worship of the Lord, and allowed during some periods by the priesthood in Jerusalem.

6:4 altars . . . incense altars: Altars varied in size, materials, and design. A four-horned altar (cf. Exod 27:1-8; 38:1-3; Lev 4:18; 8:15; 9:9) excavated at Beersheba was made of cut limestone, and measured about 5 feet square, as well as in height. In contrast, the altar excavated at Arad, about 20 miles away, was made of fieldstones and mud (cf. Exod 20:24-25; 27:5-6; Josh 8:30-31), with a flat stone slab on its top, and measured seven feet, two inches by seven feet, ten inches, and about five feet in height. Incense altars also varied in size; one from Tanaach measured 19 inches in height. Incense altars found at Arad measured 15 and 19 inches in height, respectively. The incense burner from Tanaach was constructed with window-like openings and elaborately decorated, while the two incense altars at Arad were cut from limestone (cf. Exod 37:25).

6:4 I'll make your slain fall: This is a judgment on ancestor worship, known to have been practiced by the ancient Hebrews. Ezekiel 32:17-32 provides a rare glimpse into traditions about the role of dead ancestors.

6:5 I'll throw the Israelites' corpses . . . bones all around your altars: Corpses and bones (that is, Death) violate sacred shrines, which were built in the ancient world to ensure

The Recognition Formula The expression “Then you will know that I am the Lord” appears in some form over 70 times in Ezekiel, so much so that it characterizes the book, and to a large extent, carries its message. This expression, known as the recognition formula, appears in the conclusion of prophecies, serving as the lesson to be learned. But what is the content of this lesson? What is to be recognized about God from divine action, whether in judgment or when bringing salvation?

Apparently, humans are expected to see God’s power and respond by showing the Lord the proper honor. In Ezekiel 36:22-26, the Lord offers grace to the Lord’s people, not for their own sake but rather “for the sake of my name” (cf. Ezek 20:9, 14, 22, 44). This offer is concluded with the recognition formula. The recognition formula appears sparingly outside of Ezekiel, but always in connection to powerful interventions into human affairs. Most notably, the recognition formula explains the Lord’s response to Pharaoh’s question prior to the exodus: “Who is this Lord whom I’m supposed to obey?” (Exod 5:2; cf. Exod 7:3-5; 14:18).

turned into utter ruin.

Your altars will be punished and then broken down.

Your idols will be demolished, your incense altars shattered, and all your works wiped out.

<sup>7</sup>The slain will fall among you, and you will know that I am the LORD.

<sup>8</sup>But I will spare a few.

Some of you will escape the nations’ swords when you are scattered throughout the lands.

<sup>9</sup>Your fugitives will remember me in the nations to which they’ve been banished, how I was crushed when their roving hearts turned away from me, and their roving eyes went after their idols.

They will loathe themselves for their treacherous acts and detestable practices, <sup>10</sup>and they will know that I am the LORD.

Not in vain have I threatened to bring this evil against them.

<sup>11</sup>The LORD God proclaims: Clap your hands, stamp your feet, and cry “Horror” over all the detestable practices of the house of Israel. They will fall by the sword, famine, and plague.

<sup>12</sup>Whoever is far off will die of plague, whoever is nearby will fall to the sword, and whoever finds refuge will die of famine. I’ll satisfy my wrath against them! <sup>13</sup>They will know that I am the LORD when their slain appear among their idols and around their altars, wherever they offered up pleasing aromas for all their idols, on every high hill and mountaintop, and under life and fertility. Perhaps the best example of this is the unnamed prophet’s prediction of such a violation of the shrine at Bethel (1 Kgs 13:1-3), later fulfilled by Josiah (2 Kgs 23:5, 15-16).

6:7 you will know that I am the LORD: The content of the knowledge to be recognized through the Lord’s various actions and by the various audiences is an acknowledgment of God’s honor (cf. Ezek 36:22-23 with Ezek 20:9, 14, 22; see sidebar, “The Recognition Formula”).

6:8-10 I will spare a few. . . they will know that I am the LORD: The point is to explain the role of these fugitives, which is to uphold the honor of the Lord among the nations.

6:11 sword, famine, and plague: standard curses for breaking God’s covenant (Lev 26:25-26; Ezek 5:12, 17; 7:15; 12:16; 14:21; 33:27).

6:14 Riblah desert: perhaps a reference to where Zedekiah, after having been captured, was blinded (Jer 39:5-7; 52:9).

7:1-27 This chapter is divided into three sections—7:1-4, 5-9, 10-27—organized by the threefold appearance of the recognition formula (7:4, 9, 27; see sidebar, “The Recognition Formula” at Ezek 6). These sections work together to announce the end (7:2) and the day, meaning the Day of the Lord (7:10). In Ezekiel’s day, the end of human history isn’t intended but rather the end of an era in Israelite history. So Ezekiel proclaims here that the siege of Jerusalem will bring one chapter of history to a close (cf. Ps 137:7). The Day of the Lord may have had its roots in military traditions, where God fought for God’s people, and God’s intervention brought salvation (cf. Josh 10:8-15). Well before Ezekiel’s time, the prophet Amos had turned this idea on its head, using it as a day of judgment for the wicked, disobedient nation (Amos 5:18, 20; 8:1-3; Joel 1:15-18; 2:1-11; Zeph 1:7-18).

7:2 land of Israel: Consistent with Ezekiel 6, the Hebrew indicates that the soil or dirt of Israel is intended, not the political boundaries. Ezekiel later promised the dry bones in Ezek 37:1-14 that they would stand on the soil of Israel (cf. Ezek 37:12-14). The end has come: The definite article the marks this end as a unique event (as does Ezek 7:5-7). The same phrase is found in Amos 8:2, alongside the mention of “that day.” This appears to be a comment on Amos’ text. 7:10 The staff blossoms: Aaron’s staff blossomed in the every lofty tree and leafy oak. <sup>14</sup>Wherever they live, I will direct my power against them. I will turn the land into a greater wasteland than the Riblah desert. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

The end

<sup>7</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>You, human one, this is what the LORD God proclaims to the land of Israel:

An end! The end has come to the four corners of the earth!

<sup>3</sup>Even now the end is upon you!

I'll send my anger against you,

I'll judge you according to your ways,

and I'll turn all your detestable practices against you.

<sup>4</sup>I won't shed a tear for you or show any pity.

Instead, I'll turn your ways against you, and your detestable practices will stay with you.

Then you will know that I am the LORD.

<sup>5</sup>The LORD God proclaims:

Disaster! A singular disaster! Look, it comes!

<sup>6</sup>The end has come! Oh, yes, it has come!

It has come to you! Look, it's here!

<sup>7</sup>You who live on the earth, you are finally caught in your own trap!

The time has come; the day draws near.

On the hills panic, not glory.

<sup>8</sup>And now it's near!

Against you I will pour out my wrath, and my anger will be satisfied.

I'll judge you according to your ways, and turn all your detestable practices against you.

<sup>9</sup>I won't shed a tear or show any pity when I turn your ways against you, and your detestable practices stay with you.

Then you will know that I, the LORD, am the one who strikes you!

Doom has arrived! The staff blossoms, and pride springs up!

It isn't from others or their armies or their violence.

It hasn't loomed up because of them.

<sup>12</sup>The time is coming! The day draws near!

No buyer should rejoice, and no seller should mourn, because wrath overcomes the whole crowd.

<sup>13</sup>The seller will never get back what was sold, even if both of them survive.

The vision concerns the whole crowd.

It won't be revoked.

And the guilty ones—they won't even be able to hang on to their lives.

<sup>14</sup>They have blown the horn, and everything is ready, but no one goes to battle, because my wrath overcomes the whole crowd.

<sup>15</sup>Outside, the sword! Inside, plague and famine!

Whoever is out in the field will die by the sword.

Whoever is in the city, plague and famine will consume them.

<sup>16</sup>And those who flee?

They will turn up on the hills like valley doves, all of them moaning, those guilty ones.

desert as a sign of his election (Num 17:1-13). Ezekiel seems to recall that scene here, but promises doom for the elect.

7:15 sword... plague... famine: Compare with Ezekiel 6:11. out in the field... in the city: a common prophetic expression of no escape (cf. 1 Kgs 14:11; 16:4; 21:24; Jer 14:18).

- 17 Every hand will hang limp;
urine will run down every leg.
- 18 They will put on mourning clothes, and horror will cover them.
On every face, shame;
on all their heads, baldness.
- 19 They will hurl their silver into the street, and their gold will seem unclean.
Their silver and their gold won't deliver them on the day of the LORD's anger.
They won't satisfy their appetites or fill their bellies.
Their guilt will bring them down.

- 20 From their beautiful ornament, in which they took pride, they have made horrible and detestable images!
Therefore, I've declared it an unclean thing for them.
- 21 I'll hand it over to foreigners as loot taken in war, to the earth's wicked ones as plunder—they will defile it!
- 22 When I hide my face from my people, foreigners will defile my treasured place.
Violent intruders will invade it; they will defile it!

- 23 Make a chain!
The earth is full of perverted justice,
the city full of violence.
- 24 I'll bring up the cruelest nations, and they will seize their houses.
I'll break their proud strength, and their sanctuaries will be defiled.

- 25 Disaster! It has come!
They seek peace, but there is none.
- 26 One disaster comes after another, and rumor follows rumor.

They seek a vision from the prophet.
Instruction disappears from the priest, and counsel from the elders.

- 27 The king will go into mourning,
the prince will clothe himself in despair, and the hands of the land's people will tremble.
When I do to them as they have done and judge them by their own justice, they will know that I am the LORD.

7:20 their beautiful ornament: description of the Jerusalem temple, which in priestly tradition was beautiful because it was the doorway to God's throne room (Pss 46; 48:2; Lam 2:15; Ezek 16:14; 20:6, 15; 24:16, 21). It refers to the temple (Ezek 7:20-22). have made horrible and detestable images: Compare with Ezekiel 8:3-5, 10-12.

7:23 make a chain: referring to the taking of captives, which will happen after the siege (Ezek 7:27).

7:26 vision from the prophet . . . instruction disappears from the priest . . . counsel from the elders: to be read ironically, with Ezekiel's commission echoing in the background (cf. Ezek 2:1-3:3). Ezekiel reports his visions (Ezek 1:4-3:11; 8:1-11:25; 37:1-14; 40:1-48:35), and as a priest, he instructs the people through his prophecies (but also, see his "instructions for the temple," Ezek 43:12; 44:24). Note that the elders come to him for counsel (Ezek 8:1, 14:1; 20:1).

7:27 they will know that I am the Lord: The knowledge of God is contained wholly in the judgment. This formula justifies and explains the purpose of the end. In other words, the siege of Jerusalem is a defense of God's honor: (See Ezek 7:4, 9.)

8:1-11:25 With this second vision, Ezekiel explains the exile as the justice of God, placing the blame on the detestable practices of the house of Israel (cf. 8:6). This large unit divides into three parts: a vision of the detestable practices (8:1-18), the execution of Jerusalem (9:1-11), and the departure of the Lord's glory (10:1-11:25). The last section subdivides further, to include an oracle judging the leaders who remain in Jerusalem (Ezek 11:1-21).

8:1-18 After introducing the reader to the setting in the Jerusalem temple (8:1-3a), four exhibits present evidence against the house of Israel (8:3b-6; 7-13; 14; 15-18). In each, a different detestable practice is being performed by a different set of worshippers, in locations increasingly closer to the throne of God in the most holy place.

8:1 In the sixth year, on the fifth day of the sixth month:

Temple vision

8In the sixth year, on the fifth day of the sixth month, I was sitting in my house, and Judah's elders were sitting with me, when the LORD God's power overcame me. <sup>2</sup>I looked, and there was a form that looked like fire. Below what looked like his waist was fire, but above his waist it looked like gold, like gleaming amber. <sup>3</sup>He stretched out the form of a hand and picked me up by the hair of my head. A wind lifted me up between earth and heaven, and in a divine vision it brought me to Jerusalem, to the north-facing entrance of the gate to the inner court. That was where the pedestal was for the outrageous image that incites outrage. <sup>4</sup>There I saw the glory of Israel's God, exactly like what I had seen in the valley. <sup>5</sup>He said to me: Human one, look toward the north. So I looked north, and there, north of the altar gate, was this outrageous image in the entrance. <sup>6</sup>He said to me: Human one, do you see what they are doing, the terribly detestable practices that the house of Israel is doing here that drive me far from my sanctuary? Yet you will see even more detestable practices than these.

<sup>7</sup>Then he brought me to the court entrance. When I looked, I saw a hole in the wall. <sup>8</sup>He said to me: Human one, dig through the wall. So I dug through the wall, and I discovered a doorway. <sup>9</sup>And he said to me: Go in and see what wicked and detestable things they are doing in there. <sup>10</sup>So I went in and looked, and I saw every form of loathsome beasts and creeping things and all the idols of the house of Israel engraved on the walls all around. <sup>11</sup>The seventy elders of the house of Israel were standing in front of them, and all of them were holding September 592, a little over a year after his first vision of God's glory (cf. Ezek 1:1), and about five years before the final fall of the city.

8:1 in my house: Compare with the note on Ezekiel 3:24; and also Ezekiel 14:1-3; 20:1; 33:31. Judah's elders: These would have been other officials from Judah, captured alongside Ezekiel by the Babylonians in 597. Elsewhere, the elders sitting before Ezekiel are described as "elders of Israel" (Ezek 14:1; 20:1). It isn't clear here what counsel they are seeking from Ezekiel, but the text doesn't indicate conflict between the elders of Judah and Ezekiel, as it does in the other two passages. The condemnation in Ezekiel 8-11 concerns the Lord and the people and leaders remaining in Jerusalem. LORD God's power: See Ezekiel 1:3; 3:14, 22; 33:22; 37:1; 40:1.

8:2-3 a form ... fire ... gleaming amber: The Lord's glory appears to Ezekiel again (cf. Ezek 1:4-28; 3:22-27). The Lord's glory speaks to Ezekiel and leads him on his visionary tour of the violation of the temple. the form of a hand: Compare with Ezekiel 1:8. A wind: See Ezekiel 1:12, 17, 20; 2:2; 3:12, 24; 11:24; 37:1; 43:5. north-facing entrance of the gate to the inner court: The temple was divided into areas of ever-increasing holiness, from an outer to an inner court, leading to the temple itself, and eventually to the most holy place, the doorway to the divine king's throne room (see sidebar, "The Temple Plan" at Ezek 40). The first station on Ezekiel's guided tour would have been the entrance most accessible to a common person (cf. Ezek 40:38-43).

8:3, 5 the pedestal ... for the outrageous image that incites outrage: This is a roundabout way of describing some type of a worship image or perhaps a small, uncarved pillar. Such standing stones were common in Israel. Shrines in gates, including standing stones, were common in ancient Israel and Judah, excavated, for example, at Dan and et-Tell (ancient Geshur). Dan's city gate featured four sets of pillars that were a little more than a foot in height. Seven were discovered at Bethsaida's gate area, which also featured a stepped platform with a small basin to receive offerings for a nicely carved image of a god (over four feet in height), perhaps a moon god.

8:6 that drive me far from my sanctuary: In this simple question is the theological center of all Ezekiel's prophecies.

The temple was the Lord's residence (Pss 2:6; 68:15-16; 78:68-69; 132:13-14), who was the great king (Ezek 47:2; 48:2; 83:18; 97:8-9), and his invisibly enthroned presence there (cf. Isa 6:1-3; Ps 9:7-12) was believed to guarantee the covenant relationship with the king and nation (Pss 2:7-8; 78:67-72; 89:3-4, 19-20, 27; 132:11-18), as well as protection (Pss 46:1; 48:3; 76:3-6) and prosperity (cf. Ps 46:4; Ezek 47:1-12). The abandonment of the temple, described in Ezekiel 10-11, ended that relationship and all of its benefits. With the Lord absent from Jerusalem's temple, the elders before Ezekiel understood that the city was defenseless, doomed, and that the end (cf. Ezek 7:2ff.) was inevitable. According to the first vision, when the Lord's glory met Ezekiel in exile, the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple wasn't the final word (see Ezek 37:20-28; 43:1-9; 48:35). For these reasons, Ezekiel plays with the concept of presence and abandonment throughout Ezekiel 8:1-11:25 (cf. 9:9; 11:15). See sidebar, "Divine Abandonment."

8:7 court entrance: The exact location isn't known, but the second station leads the prophet further into the temple precinct. Temple compounds in the ancient world were filled with many rooms used for archiving, warehousing treasures, storage, and priestly preparations.

8:8 dig through the wall ... a doorway: Ezekiel is led to a hidden doorway, where he finds a small group of elders.

8:10 loathsome beasts and creeping things ... all the idols: categories of animals that were unclean, especially to eat (Gen 1:25; 6:7, 20; 7:8, 23; Lev 11), and certainly excluded from proper worship (Deut 4:18). The Hebrew term translated as idols refers to the balls of fecal matter pushed around by dung beetles. The prophet used this word throughout his prophecy (over 35 times).

8:11 seventy elders: A symbolic number that refers to the people's representatives at the banquet with God on Mount Sinai (Exod 24:9-11). Jaazaniah, Shaphan's son: a different person from the Jaazaniah mentioned in Ezekiel 11:1. Shaphan may be the highly regarded official under Josiah (2 Kgs 22). In addition to moving the evil thing further into the temple compound, Ezekiel refers to even greater wickedness by moving from the general population to the secular leaders, and by moving from one image in a gate to a gallery of images of unclean animals.

Divine Abandonment Ezekiel finds himself in familiar company by suggesting that the reason for Jerusalem and its temple's demise is God's abandonment. When bad things happen, priests and preachers often declare that God has abandoned the nation. The theme of divine abandonment was common and understood in the ancient Near East. One parallel from the ancient world is the Poem of Erra. This text explained internal turmoil that befell Babylon from roughly 1100 to 750 BCE. The poem linked this chaotic state with Marduk, the chief god of the city, stepping down from his throne for a period of time. Order was restored when Marduk returned. In another example, the destruction and restoration of Babylon at the hands of Assyria led to literature that employed the motif of divine abandonment. In the early decades of the 8th century BCE, Sennacherib destroyed Babylon. The people and priests thought that Marduk had left the city and gone up to heaven because he was angry with the sins of the Babylonians. Eleven years later, Sennacherib's son and successor, Esarhaddon, for his own purposes restored the city. The Babylonian literature explained this reversal as Marduk's change of heart, who out of his mercy forgave his people, reducing the punishment from 70 to 11 years. The restoration of this deity, his reinstatement in his sanctuary, signaled his return and a new future for Babylon.

censers in their hands. Jaazaniah, Shaphan's son, was standing right there with them, and the scent of the incense cloud rose up. <sup>12</sup>He said to me: Human one, do you see what the elders of the house of Israel are doing in the dark, every one of them in their rooms full of sculptured images? They say, "The LORD doesn't see us; the LORD has abandoned the land." <sup>13</sup>He said to me: You will see them performing even more detestable practices. <sup>14</sup>He brought me to the entrance of the north gate of the temple, where women were sitting and performing the Tammuz lament.

<sup>15</sup>He said to me: Human one, do you see? Yet you will see even more detestable practices than these. <sup>16</sup>He brought me to the inner court of the LORD's temple. There, at the entrance to the LORD's temple, between the porch and the altar, were twenty-five men facing toward the east with their backs to the LORD's temple. They were bowing to the sun in the east. <sup>17</sup>He said to me: Do you see, human one? Isn't it enough that the house of Judah has observed here all these detestable things? They have filled the land with violence, and they continue to provoke my fury. Look at them! They even put the branch to their noses! <sup>18</sup>I will certainly respond with wrath. I won't spare or pity anyone. Even though they call out loudly to me in my hearing, I won't listen to them.

9 Then in my hearing he called out loudly: Draw near, you guardians of the city, and bring your weapons of destruction! <sup>2</sup>Suddenly, six men came from the Upper Gate that faces

8:12 The LORD doesn't see us; the LORD has abandoned the land: The irony is the people's assumption that they can behave in wicked ways because God has abandoned the land (cf. Ezek 9:9; 11:1-21). The reverse is true. The Lord's constant question to Ezekiel, "do you see?" (Ezek 8:5, 6, 9, 10, 12, 13, 15, 17; 9:9; 11:1) shows that God isn't absent. The reality is that their terrible practices drive the Lord away from God's sanctuary (cf. Ezek 8:6).

8:14 north gate: In the third station of Ezekiel's guided tour of the house of Israel's sins, the prophet is now inside the north gate leading from the outer court to the inner court, a higher level of holiness. women: For the women to be there, they must be people who serve in the temple by performing rituals and ceremonies for the worship of the Lord (Ezek 13:17-23; 32:16; Lam 2:10). Having just left the secular leadership, Ezekiel now encounters sacred servants. performing the Tammuz lament: Tammuz was a Mesopotamian god of the harvest. Worship of Tammuz involved women acting out mourning rituals in order to assure a stable agricultural cycle.

8:16 inner court... between the porch and the altar: The fourth station of Ezekiel's tour brings him to the front of the temple and to the dreadful end of his survey of temple violations. twenty-five men: In this location, these could only be priests. The fact that Ezekiel didn't identify them as priests was part of his criticism of these men; they weren't worthy of the title. east... backs to the LORD's temple... bowing to the sun: The temple was oriented on an east-west axis, with the Lord's throne room, the most holy place, to the west of the altar. Located between the altar and the porch of the temple, the 25 priests must turn eastward for the altar and their sacrifices to be in front of them. This means that their backs were turned to the most holy place, which is a physical example of betraying the covenant.

8:17 branch to their noses: Clearly an offensive gesture to God, but one whose meaning has been lost.

9:1-11 Having described the detestable practices of the nation, which have violated God's sanctuary, Ezekiel turns to the Lord's response to these practices. In his first response (9:1-11), God orders the execution of the citizens of Jerusalem, who have now made themselves his enemies. <sup>9:1</sup> guardians of the city: heavenly beings, similar to the four creatures seen in Ezekiel 1, assigned by the Lord to guard the city against all enemies (see the note on Ezekiel 8:16). Given the violation of the temple detailed in Ezekiel 8, the citizens of Jerusalem are now God's enemies. These four creatures are therefore transformed from being protectors into executioners.

9:2 another man... dressed in linen: a seventh figure serving the Lord, perhaps one assigned priestly duties (cf. Ezekiel 10:2; Exod 28:1-43; Lev 16:4; Ezek 44:17-18; Dan 10:5). I north. All of them were holding weapons of destruction. Among them was another man who was dressed in linen and had a writing case at his side. When they came in and stood beside the bronze altar, <sup>3</sup>the glory of Israel's God rose from above the winged creatures<sup>o</sup> where he had been and moved toward the temple's threshold. The LORD called to the man who was dressed in linen with the writing case at his side: <sup>4</sup>Go through the city, through Jerusalem, and mark the foreheads of those who sigh and groan because of all the detestable practices that have been conducted in it. <sup>5</sup>To the others he said in my hearing: Go through the city after him, and attack. Spare no one! Be merciless! <sup>6</sup>Kill them all, old men, young men and women, babies and mothers. Only don't touch anyone who has the mark. Begin at my sanctuary. So they began with the men, the elders in front of the temple. <sup>7</sup>He said to them: Make the temple unclean! Fill the courts with the slain! Go! And they went out and attacked the city.

<sup>8</sup>While they were attacking, I was left alone. I fell on my face, and I cried out, "Oh, LORD God! When you pour out your wrath on Jerusalem, will you destroy all that is left of Israel?"

<sup>9</sup>He said to me: "Judah and the house of Israel are very, very guilty. The land is filled with blood, and the city is full of injustice. They have said, 'The LORD has forsaken the land; the LORD sees nothing.'<sup>10</sup>I most definitely won't spare or pity anyone! I will hold them accountable for their ways."

<sup>11</sup>Just then the man who was dressed in linen with the writing case at his side returned and said, "I've done just as you commanded."

10At that moment I saw a form of a throne in the dome above the heads of the winged creatures. It appeared above them, and it looked like lapis lazuli. <sup>2</sup>He said to the man clothed in linen: Go in between the wheels under the winged creatures. <sup>3</sup>Fill your hands with fiery coals from between the winged creatures, and scatter them over the city. As I watched, he went in. <sup>3</sup>Now the winged creatures were standing to the right of the temple when the man went in, and the cloud filled the inner courtyard. <sup>4</sup>Then the LORD's glory rose from above the winged creatures<sup>4</sup> and moved toward the temple's threshold. The temple was filled with the cloud, and the courtyard was filled with the brightness of the LORD's glory. <sup>5</sup>The sound of the winged creatures' wings could be heard as far as the outer courtyard. It was like the sound of God Almighty<sup>7</sup> when he speaks. <sup>6</sup>When he instructed the man clothed in linen to take fire from between the winged creatures and their wheels, the man went and stood next to the wheel. <sup>7</sup>Then one of the winged creatures stretched a hand between the winged writing case: it would have held inks and writing tools (stylus), or perhaps brushes. bronze altar: the altar for entirely burned sacrifices to the Lord (Exod 27:1-7; 38:1-2). Again, the change in vocabulary is telling, for the prophet now merely describes a structure. Its function as an altar in service to the Lord has been lost.

9:3 moved toward the temple's threshold: An important part of the dynamic of this vision is the movement of the Lord's glory eastward out of the temple. The text makes it a point to mark its location at the temple's threshold. From this platform, the glory commands the Lord's heavenly army and the man in linen.

9:4 mark the foreheads: Literally, place the Hebrew letter tau on their foreheads, which at that time looked like the English letter x. Potters in ancient Israel commonly marked certain pots with "taus."

9:7 Make the temple unclean! Fill the courts with the slain! Just as the Lord would defile the unorthodox shrines of the Israelites (see the note on Ezek 6:5), so now the Lord defiles the Jerusalem temple with the corpses of the slain. An end has come to this period of service as the doorway to the Lord's throne room (see the note introducing Ezek 7:1-27).

9:8 Oh, LORD God! See the note on Ezekiel 4:14-15.

9:9 The LORD has forsaken the land; the LORD sees nothing: See note on Ezekiel 8:12.

9:11 "I've done just as you commanded": It isn't clear whether the man in linen found anyone who "sigh[s] and groan[s]" on account of all of the detestable practices (9:4). Ezekiel's objection in 9:8 suggests that he didn't.

10:1-11:25 In God's second response to the violation of his sanctuary, the Lord's glory leaves the temple, moving eastward. This scene recalls Ezekiel 1:4-28.

10:1 form of a throne . . . lapis lazuli: See Ezekiel 1:26-27. winged creatures: This vision identifies these creatures slightly differently from the creatures of Ezekiel 1, where they were stated to be "living creatures." Ezekiel 10:15, 20-22 make this connection clear.

10:2 man clothed in linen: Compare with Ezekiel 9:2. fiery coals: Compare with Ezekiel 1:13, where the coals accompanied the theophany, or divine appearance, of God. Burning coals were also used by priests in rituals before God's presence in the temple. In this setting, they seem to have been related to purification (cf. Lev 16:12; Isa 6:6). scatter them over the city: In preparation for the eastward departure of the glory, the coals purified the defilement of the city.

10:3-4 The temple was filled with the cloud . . . and the brightness of the Lord's glory: signaling the movement of the glory (cf. Ezek 1:4).

10:5 sound of God Almighty when he speaks: See Ezekiel 1:24.

The Lord's Glory The Lord's glory was an important theological concept in the ancient world, representing God's presence. To imagine how the ancients conceived of the deity's glory, think of a visible aura, something like the sun's rays shining out from behind a cloud. An Assyrian drawing of the glory of their god, Assur, depicts the glory flying alongside the king. Below the waist of the glory of the god is something that looks like rays of light, perhaps representing flashing fire (Ezek 1:27). Streaming beams of light encircle the figure. The figure has drawn his bow, aiming it at the enemies.

In Ezekiel, the location and movement of the Lord's glory is an important part of Ezekiel's prophecies. In Ezekiel 1, the appearance of God's glory by the Chebar River represents God coming to be with the exiles outside of the land. In Ezekiel 10–11, the movement of the glory out of the temple represents God's abandonment of Jerusalem's temple, signaling the Lord's judgment. But then in Ezekiel 43, when the glory again reenters the future temple, the prophet proclaims that the day will come when God's presence with God's people will be restored. This is a visionary statement of the theological confession bound up in the new name of the city, given at the book's conclusion, "The Lord Is There" (Ezek 48:35).

creatures into the fire that was between them, and he drew out some of it and set it in the palm of the one clothed in linen. He took it and went out. <sup>9</sup>It appeared that the winged creatures had the form of a human hand under their wings.

<sup>9</sup>Suddenly, I saw four wheels next to the winged creatures. There was a wheel next to each winged creature, and the appearance of the wheels was like sparkling topaz. <sup>10</sup>It appeared that there was one shape for all four of them, as if one wheel were inside another. <sup>11</sup>When they moved in any of the four directions, they moved without swerving. Whichever way the leading one faced, they moved in that direction without swerving. <sup>12</sup>Their whole body—backs, hands, and wings—as well as their wheels, all four of them, were covered with eyes all around. <sup>13</sup>It was these wheels that were called "the wheels" in my hearing. <sup>14</sup>Each winged creature had four faces. The first face was that of a winged creature, the second face was that of a human being, the third that of a lion, and the fourth that of an eagle. <sup>15</sup>The winged creatures rose up, the same creatures that I had seen at the Chebar River. <sup>16</sup>When the winged creatures moved, the wheels moved beside them. When the winged creatures lifted their wings to ascend above the earth, the wheels remained beside them without swerving. <sup>17</sup>When they stood still, the wheels stood still; when they rose up, they rose up with them, because the spirit<sup>a</sup> of the living creatures was in them. <sup>18</sup>Then the LORD's glory went out from above the temple's threshold and it stood over the winged creatures. <sup>19</sup>While I watched, the winged creatures raised their wings and rose from the ground to leave, with their wheels beside them. They stopped at the entrance to the east gate of the temple, and the glory of Israel's God was up above them. <sup>20</sup>These were the same living creatures that I saw underneath Israel's God at the Chebar River, and I realized that they were winged creatures. <sup>21</sup>Each had four faces and four wings, with the form of a human hand under their wings. <sup>22</sup>The forms of their faces were the same faces that I saw at the Chebar River. Their appearance was also the same. All four of them moved straight ahead.

11 A wind lifted me up and brought me to the east gate of the LORD's temple. There at the entrance to the gate were twenty-five men, and I saw that two officials of the people, Jaazaniah, Azzur's son, and Pelatiah, Benaiah's son, were with them.

10:9-17 wheels...covered with eyes...four faces...the spirit: All of these images connect this vision with the first (cf. Ezek 10:15, 20-22).

10:18-19 from above the temple's threshold... at the entrance to the east gate of the temple: another stage in the departure of the Lord's glory, a pause just at the exit from the temple.

11:1-21 As the Lord's glory exited the temple area, Ezekiel encounters 25 men. Here Ezekiel reveals that God's election will rest with the community in exile, and not with the few who are left in the land (cf. 24:17, 23; 33:24-29). The passage disputes two claims by these 25 men (Ezek 11:3, 15), both claiming that the remaining few have inherited the land.

11:1 twenty-five men: Based on differences in location and function in the text (civic leaders [Ezek 11:2] versus religious leaders), this group seems to be different from those in the temple (Ezek 8:16), though we can't be sure. Jaazaniah, Azzur, Benaiah, were known to Ezekiel's audience, and are found elsewhere in biblical texts (e.g., 2 Kgs

<sup>8</sup>Therefore, the LORD God proclaims: The city is the cooking pot, and the ones you have slain in it are the meat. But you will be taken out of it. <sup>9</sup>You fear the sword, so I will bring the sword against you. This is what the LORD God says! <sup>10</sup>I will lead you out of the city, hand you over to foreigners, and execute judgments against you. <sup>11</sup>You will fall by the sword! At Israel's borders I will judge you, and you will know that I am the LORD. <sup>12</sup>The city won't be your cooking pot, and you won't be the meat in it. At Israel's borders, I will judge you. <sup>13</sup>You will know that I am the LORD, whose regulations you didn't observe and whose case laws you didn't follow. Instead, you followed the case laws of the nations around you.

<sup>14</sup>While I was prophesying, Benaiah's son Pelatiah dropped dead. I fell on my face, and I wailed and said, "Oh, LORD God! Are you finishing off even the Israelites who are left?"

<sup>15</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>16</sup>Human one, when the people living in Jerusalem said, "They've gone far from the LORD, and we've been given the land as an inheritance," they were talking about your family, your nearest relatives, the whole house of Israel, all of it.

<sup>17</sup>Therefore, say, The LORD God proclaims: Even though I made them go far away among the nations and caused them to scatter throughout the earth, I've provided some sanctuary for them in the countries to which they've gone.

<sup>18</sup>Therefore, say, The LORD God proclaims: I will gather you from the nations, assemble you from the countries where you were scattered, and I will give you Israel's fertile land. <sup>19</sup>They will enter the land, and they will remove from it all its disgusting and detestable things. <sup>20</sup>I will give them a single heart, and I will put a new spirit in them. I will remove the stony hearts from their bodies and give them hearts of flesh <sup>21</sup>so that they may follow my regulations and carefully observe my case laws. They will be my people, and I will be their God. <sup>22</sup>As for those whose hearts continue to go after their disgusting and detestable things, I will hold them accountable for their ways. This is what the LORD God says!

25:23; Jer 28:1; 35:3). Many of these very names have also been found on seals and seal impressions from this era (cf. the note on Ezek 11:14).

11:3 The nearest relatives aren't building houses: Property rights were kept in the family in ancient Israel and Judah. If a property wasn't passed down to the head of the household, then a close relative—a "redeemer"—would have the first right of refusal (Lev 25:25; Jer 32:6-15). If the property wasn't claimed, "squatter's rights" would prevail (see Lev 25:29-30). The city is the cooking pot, and we are the meat: Set side by side with the first saying, the officials claim to be the choicest meat, not the parts of the stew thrown out (i.e., the exiles). In another prophecy (Ezek 24:1-14), Ezekiel turns this boast on its head, saying that the meat in the pot will be consumed by fire.

11:6-7 fill its streets with the slain . . . are the meat: God disputes the men's claim. Instead of their being the meat, the slain (recall Ezek 9) are so named—and the men are to blame.

11:11 The city won't be your cooking pot . . . Israel's borders: A further reversal of the men's claim. These officials will suffer by not being buried with honor in the family tomb, but at the edge of the land, most probably without burial, which is a shameful death.

11:13 while I was prophesying . . . dropped dead: an immediate fulfillment of Ezekiel 11:8 (cf. Deut 18:15-22; Jer 28:12-17). Benaiah's son Pelatiah: A stamp seal belonging to a certain Pelatiah was excavated in a tomb of a wealthy family just outside of the ancient borders of Jerusalem, and dating to about this period. However, it remains pure speculation whether we should connect that grave with this Pelatiah. Structurally, Pelatiah's death closes this first dispute over possession of the land.

11:15 They've gone far from the LORD: the exiles. we've been given the land: the 25 men. The officials claim the land (cf. Ezek 33:24) on their supposed nearness to the Lord by means of the temple. Ezekiel crafts this statement to be ironic, which contrasts with the true summary, stated in Ezekiel 8:6.

11:16 sanctuary: not a safe haven or protection for the exiles but rather a place of worship, a place to encounter God. This sentence affirms the Lord's presence with the exiles, which helps the reader remember the theology of the vision in Ezekiel 1. In the ancient world, God's presence was linked to the election of a people and the land provided to these elect; it was a whole.

11:17-20 This passage is the first of several that promise the restoration of the people, land, and covenant. See also Ezekiel 16:59-63; 20:33-44; 34:20-30; 36:16-38; 37:20-28.

11:19-20 heart . . . spirit: The pairing of a new heart and spirit is necessary to replace the heart and spirit that will melt and faint at the news of Jerusalem's fall (Ezek 21:7). This pairing of heart and spirit is inseparable from loyal love through the covenant with the Lord (cf. Jer 31:31-34; 32:36-41; Deut 6:4-5). Sometimes "heart of flesh" is contrasted with "heart of stone" to symbolize covenantal <sup>22</sup>Then the winged creatures raised their wings. The wheels were next to them, and the glory of Israel's God was above them. <sup>23</sup>The LORD's glory ascended from the middle of the city, and it stopped at the mountain east of the city. <sup>24</sup>And a wind lifted me up and brought me to the exiles in Chaldea, through a vision with a divine wind. <sup>25</sup>When the vision I had seen left me, <sup>25</sup>I spoke to the exiles about everything the LORD had shown to me.

Baggage for exile

12The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, you live in a household of rebels. They have eyes to see but they don't see, ears to hear but they don't hear, because they are a household of rebels. <sup>3</sup>But you, human one, prepare a backpack for going into exile. In the daytime while they watch, go into exile; while they watch, go out from your place to another. Even though they are a household of rebels, perhaps they will understand. <sup>4</sup>In the daytime while they watch, carry your backpack as if for exile. At twilight while they watch, go out like those who are led out to exile. <sup>5</sup>While they watch, dig a hole through the wall and take your backpack out through it. <sup>6</sup>While they watch, shoulder your backpack and carry it out in the dark. Cover your face so that you can't see the land, because I'm making you a sign for the house of Israel. <sup>7</sup>So I did as I was commanded. I carried out my backpack like an exile's backpack in the daytime. At night I dug a hole through the wall with my hands. In the darkness, I shouldered my backpack and carried it out while they watched.

<sup>8</sup>In the morning, the LORD's word came to me: <sup>9</sup>Human one, has the house of Israel, that household of rebels, asked you, "What are you doing?" <sup>10</sup>Say to them, The LORD God proclaims: This concerns the prince in Jerusalem, along with the entire house of Israel in it. <sup>11</sup>Say: I'm your sign. Just as I have done, so it will be done to them. They will go into captivity in exile. <sup>12</sup>Their prince will shoulder his backpack at night and go out. They will dig through the wall to lead him out through it, and he will cover his face so that his eyes won't see the land. <sup>13</sup>But I will spread my net over him, catch him in my trap, and bring him to Babylon, to the land of the Chaldeans. He won't see it, but he will die there. <sup>14</sup>As for all those who are in league with him, I will scatter his helpers and all his troops to the winds and let the sword loose after them. <sup>15</sup>They will know that I am the LORD when I disperse them among the nations and scatter them throughout the lands. <sup>16</sup>But I will preserve a few of their number from the sword, famine, and plague, so that they may confess all their detestable practices among the nations where they go. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

loyalty or disloyalty (Ps 37:31; cf. also Ezek 3:7; 36:26). The pair covers the ancient Israelites' understanding of human nature. The heart signified the will or desires of a person, and the spirit signified a person's actions, or that which makes a person alive. They will be my people, and I will be their God: This is a statement of the covenant (Lev 26:44-45; Jer 24:7; 31:33; 32:38; Ezek 14:11; 34:30; 37:23, 27; Hos 4:12; Zech 8:8). The exilic community will be the recipients of the new covenant.

11:23 The LORD's glory ascended: The glory continues its exit out of the barren space once occupied by the holy ground of the temple. the mountain east of the city: today known as the Mount of Olives, this was ancient Jerusalem's eastern horizon. In the time of the monarchy, Aza-zel's goat, carrying the sins of the people, left from this mountain and headed into the wilderness, the unclean regions of the cosmos (cf. Lev 16:6-10). This station and the glory's departure signify the end of this period of the election of Jerusalem's temple. Later in Ezekiel's prophecies, the glory reverses its path (cf. Ezek 43:1-9).

12:1-20 This section features two symbolic actions, both of which announce the exile after the fall of the city (12:3-16, 17-20). These enacted prophecies close out the section begun by those of Ezekiel 4. Ezekiel also continues with his ironic pronouncements, continuing the play with God's presence or abandonment of the temple and city (Ezek 8:1-11:25).

12:2 eyes to see but they don't see: Compare with Ezekiel 8:12. The Hebrew word here translated "see" is translated "understand" in 12:3. The wordplay anticipates the blinding of Zedekiah, and emphasizes the peoples' need to understand God's actions.

12:4-7 while they watch: The people must see Ezekiel perform his sign, continuing the play on (not) seeing/(not) understanding. daytime... twilight... dark: This symbolic action seems to have lasted for a full day (cf. Ezek 12:8), a statement of length of the exile. The symbolic action concludes in the dark, with Ezekiel covering his eyes, continuing the play on sight and understanding.

12:10 the prince in Jerusalem, along with the entire house of Israel in it: Though unnamed, his audience knows that Ezekiel means Zedekiah. The sting of this judgment oracle isn't directed toward the prophet's exilic audience but targets the survivors in Jerusalem. Ezekiel intentionally avoids using Zedekiah's name throughout his prophecies (see the note on Ezek 1:2). Jeremiah (Jer 39:1-7; 52:1-11) records that Zedekiah and the soldiers escaped at night (Jer 39:4; 52:7), but he was captured and eventually blinded at Riblah (Jer 39:5-7; 52:7; cf. Ezek 6:14). The message buried into this reference to a blinded king (12:10-12) would not be lost on his audience, who perhaps might see (cf. Jer 12:2-3).

12:15, 16 Then they will know that I am the Lord: Their knowing or "seeing" the honor due the Lord will come

Fulfillment of prophecy

<sup>21</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>22</sup>Human one, what is this proverb of your people concerning Israel's fertile land? They say, "The days go by, and every vision vanishes." <sup>23</sup>Therefore, say to them, The LORD God proclaims: I'll put an end to this proverb! It will never again be uttered in Israel. Tell them instead: The days are coming soon for the fulfillment of every vision. <sup>24</sup>Never again will there be any worthless vision or deceptive divination in the house of Israel. <sup>25</sup>I am the LORD! The word that I speak is the word that I will speak! It will happen and be delayed no longer. In your own days, household of rebels, I speak a word and make it happen. This is what the LORD God says!

<sup>26</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>27</sup>Human one, the house of Israel is now saying, "The vision that he sees is for distant days; he prophesies about future times." <sup>28</sup>Therefore, say to them, The LORD God proclaims: It will be delayed no longer. Every word of mine that I've spoken is certain, and it will happen. This is what the LORD God says.

Against the prophets

13 The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, prophesy to Israel's prophets who prophesy from their own imaginations. Say, Hear the LORD's word! <sup>3</sup>The LORD God proclaims: Doom to the foolish prophets who follow their own whims but see nothing. <sup>4</sup>Israel, your prophets have been like jackals among ruins. <sup>5</sup>You haven't gone up into the breach or reinforced the wall of the house of Israel, so that it might withstand the battle on the day of the LORD. <sup>6</sup>They saw worthless visions and performed deceptive divinations. Even though the LORD didn't send them, they said, "This is what the LORD says" and expected their word to stand. <sup>7</sup>Didn't you see worthless visions? And didn't you report deceptive divinations and say, "This is what the LORD says," even though I didn't speak?

in their judgment (see the sidebar, "The Recognition Formula" at Ezek 6).

12:17, 19 eat your bread in trembling, and drink your water in anxious agitation: building on the imagery of the third symbolic action in Ezekiel 5:9-17.

12:19 the land's people: perhaps identifying an influential political group (see note on Ezek 22). land will be emptied: Ancient priestly traditions held that land had to remain fallow for a time for it to be cleansed and prepared for people to live on it. See Leviticus 25 regarding the sabbatical and jubilee years (see notes on Ezek 40:1; 2 Chron 36:21).

12:21-28 These verses introduce material challenging opposition to Ezekiel with two disputations (cf. Ezek 11:1-21). This issue relates to Ezekiel's reputation as a true prophet (cf. Ezek 2:5; 20:49; 33:33).

12:22 The days go by, and every vision vanishes: This proverb represents the views of Ezekiel's opponents. God's pronouncement in Ezekiel 12:25 contradicts it. Ezekiel's vision now found in chapters 8-11 dates to fall 592 (Ezek 8:1), and Zedekiah didn't rebel until 588. Therefore, sufficient time had passed for the public to gain a sense of security. Moreover, Nebuchadnezzar experienced a setback in 591, permitting optimism. Circumstances such as these would have prompted Ezekiel "to archive" his prophecies (cf. Isa 8:16; see sidebar, "The Dates in the Book of Ezekiel" at Ezek 2).

12:27 The vision that he sees is for distant days; he prophesies about future times: This second saying now tries to take advantage of Ezekiel's practice of archiving his prophecies by claiming that the envisioned disaster won't affect them. Nearly the same wording as in Ezekiel 12:25 announces God's counterclaim.

13:1-23 Prophetic conflict came with the role in ancient Israel and Judah (cf. 1 Kgs 21:1-28; Jer 27-28), and indeed in the entire ancient world. Ezekiel 13 accuses further prophetic opposition to Ezekiel of being false, contrasting their "word" (13:6) and "visions" (13:7, 8) with the Lord's or Ezekiel's "word" (cf. Ezek 12:21-28). The chapter divides into two sections, 13:1-16, addressing male prophets, and 13:17-23, addressing female prophets.

13:3 Doom: Stated here and in Ezek 13:18, this sentence is given to both male and female prophets (cf. Ezek 2:10; 34:2).

13:4-5 jackals among ruins... into the breach or reinforced the wall: In ancient Judah and Israel, a prophet was likened to a sentinel (cf. note on Ezek 3:17-22), and thus actively strengthening the defenses associated with the city wall. In contrast, these prophets have been jackals. In the ancient world, more than defending against a military attack, city walls protected the citizens and livestock against wild animals such as lions and jackals. Such animals represented chaos, those forces opposing life. Ezekiel's complex metaphor, then, pits his prophetic opponents against the Lord and all that supports life.

13:6-7 This is what the Lord says: Compare with the command to Ezekiel to announce, "The LORD God proclaims" (cf. Ezek 2:4; 3:11, 27).

<sup>8</sup>Therefore, the LORD God proclaims: Because you spoke worthless things and had false visions, I'm against you. This is what the LORD God says! <sup>9</sup>I'll wield my power against the prophets, those seers of nothingness and diviners of lies. They won't be included in my people's council, or recorded in the house of Israel's official records, or enter Israel's fertile land. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

<sup>10</sup>Without a doubt, they led my people astray, saying "Peace" when there was no peace, and "He is building a wall" when they were the ones who laid on the plaster. <sup>11</sup>Say to those who laid on the plaster that it will fall. When the flooding rains appear and I send hailstones, it will collapse, and the storm winds will break it apart. <sup>12</sup>The wall will certainly fall. Won't it be said about you, "Where is your plaster now?"

<sup>13</sup>Therefore, the LORD God proclaims: In my fury I will make a storm wind break out, and in my anger there will be flooding rains and hailstones in consuming wrath. <sup>14</sup>I will tear down the wall on which you laid plaster. I will raze it to the ground and expose its foundation. When it falls, you will be destroyed with it, and you will know that I am the LORD. <sup>15</sup>I will exhaust my fury on the wall and on those who laid plaster on it. Then I will say to you, "Where is the wall?"<sup>w</sup> and "Where are those who plastered it, <sup>16</sup>those prophets of Israel who prophesied to Jerusalem and envisioned peace when there was no peace?" This is what the LORD God says!

<sup>17</sup>You, human one, face the daughters of your people, those women who prophesy from their imaginations. Prophesy against them <sup>18</sup>and say, The LORD God proclaims: Doom to the women who sew bands on every wrist and make veils for heads of all sizes to entrap human lives. Will you ensnare my people's lives but preserve your own? <sup>19</sup>When you degrade me to my people for handfuls of barley and bread crumbs, you mislead my gullible people, and you bring about the death of those who shouldn't die and keep alive those who shouldn't live.

<sup>20</sup>Therefore, the LORD God proclaims: I'm against the bands that you use to trap human lives.<sup>e</sup> I will tear them from your arms, and I will set free the lives that you've trapped like birds. <sup>21</sup>I will tear off your veils and snatch my people out of your clutches. They will be prey in your clutches no longer. Then you will know that I am the LORD. <sup>22</sup>You hurt the righteous with slander—I didn't wound them!—and you strengthened the hands of the wicked so that they survived without changing their evil ways! <sup>23</sup>Therefore, you will no longer see empty visions or perform divinations. I will rescue my people from your clutches, and you will know that I am the LORD.

False devotion

14 When some of the elders of the house of Israel came to sit in my presence, <sup>2</sup>the LORD's word came to me: <sup>3</sup>Human one, these men decide on their own to set up their idols, so the cause of their downfall is right in front of them. Why should I allow them to ask me

13:9 my people's council, or recorded in the house of Israel's official records: In ancient theocracies such as Judah's, many prophets were royal advisors, a part of the governmental administration. Here, the divine king removes Ezekiel's adversaries from office!

13:10 saying "Peace": an announcement that a sentinel might make. In Hebrew, peace carries the sense of whole or complete, not just the absence of conflict. He is building a wall: The false prophets accuse Ezekiel of creating divisions among the people, of building walls within the nation.

13:11-12 plaster: City walls were made with mud bricks covered with plaster, which in turn was made out of burned limestone. The mud brick interior provided the strength of the wall, and the plaster coating protected the mud from rain and hail. Ezekiel argues that his opponents are creating a facade that hides structural weaknesses (also Ezek 13:14). Here, Ezekiel freely toys with the metaphor he began in Ezekiel 13:5, and with it, mocking his adversaries (cf. Ezek 22:28).

13:13 storm wind... flooding rains... hailstones: images of God at war against the forces of chaos (cf. Judg 5:4-5; Pss 18:11-15; 68:7-10; Nah 1:3-8).

13:17-23 Ezekiel now turns his wrath against prophetesses. It was common for women to serve as prophetesses in the ancient world (Miriam, Exod 15:20; Deborah, Judg 4:4; Huldah, 2 Kgs 22:14; Isaiah's wife, Isa 8:3). Letters from ancient Mari (ca. 1775 BCE) reported of "shockheads," or ecstatic female prophetesses.

13:18 bands on every wrist... veils for heads: These accessories seem to have been given out with the promise of protection.

13:19 handfuls of barley and bread crumbs: payment for the bands and veils. Prophets were customarily paid for their services (cf. 1 Sam 9:7; 2 Kgs 5).

14:1-11 Ezekiel brings one more prophetic word against false prophets, but this time there is a twist—the Lord himself caused these prophets to speak falsely!

14:1 elders of the house of Israel: Again Ezekiel uses the title he has given for all who are breaking God's covenant (cf.

anything? <sup>4</sup>Therefore, speak to them and tell them, The LORD God proclaims: If anyone from the house of Israel decides on his own to set up his idols and puts the cause of his downfall right in front of him, but then comes to the prophet, I, the LORD, will require an answer from him through his many idols. <sup>5</sup>So I'll seize the hearts of the house of Israel, whose idols have made them all strangers to me.

<sup>6</sup>Therefore, say to the house of Israel, The LORD God proclaims: Come back! Turn away from your idols and from all your detestable practices. Turn away! <sup>7</sup>Or anyone of the house of Israel or any immigrant in Israel who becomes estranged from me by deciding on their own to set up their idols and puts the cause of their downfall right in front of them, but then comes to the prophet to ask me something through him, I, the LORD, will require an answer. <sup>8</sup>I will confront that one. I will set them up as a sign and an object lesson, and I will cut them off from my people. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

<sup>9</sup>As for the prophet who was seduced into speaking a word, even though it was I, the LORD, who seduced that prophet, I will use my power against him and cut him off completely from my people Israel. <sup>10</sup>The prophet and the inquirer alike will bear their guilt, <sup>11</sup>so that the house of Israel won't stray away from me again or make themselves impure with any of their sins. They will be my people, and I will be their God. This is what the LORD God says!

Failed request

<sup>12</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>13</sup>Human one, suppose a land sins against me by acting faithlessly, so that I use my power against it, break off its food supply, let famine run rampant, and eliminate both humans and animals. <sup>14</sup>If these three men, Noah, Daniel, and Job, lived there, their lives alone would be saved because they were righteous. This is what the LORD God says. <sup>15</sup>Or suppose I allow wild animals to roam through the land, and it becomes so wild that no one can live there or even travel through it on account of the wild animals. <sup>16</sup>If these three men lived there, as surely as I live, proclaims the LORD God, they wouldn't be able to rescue even their sons or daughters. They alone would be rescued, but the land would become a ruin. <sup>17</sup>Or suppose I bring a sword against that land and command the sword to pass through and eliminate both humans and animals. <sup>18</sup>If these three men lived there, as surely as I live, proclaims the LORD God, they wouldn't be able to rescue even their sons or daughters. They alone would be rescued. <sup>19</sup>Or suppose I send a plague against that land and pour out my fury on it. With great bloodshed I would eliminate both humans and animals. <sup>20</sup>If Noah, Daniel, and Job lived there, as surely as I live, proclaims the LORD God, they wouldn't be able to rescue either sons or daughters. But they would save their lives because they were righteous.

<sup>21</sup>The LORD God proclaims: How much more if I send all four of these terrible acts of judgment—sword, famine, wild animals, and plague—against Jerusalem, to eliminate both humans and animals? <sup>22</sup>Yet a few survivors will be left. Sons and daughters will be brought out to you. When you see their ways and their deeds, you will be consoled for the evil that I Ezek 3:1). This is the second time that people come to Ezekiel for advice (cf. Ezek 3:24; 8:1; 20:1; 33:31), an indication of Ezekiel's prestige in the community.

14:4 to set up his idols: See note on Ezekiel 20:32, but then comes to the prophet, I, the LORD, will require an answer from him: Prophets in ancient Israel and Judah were not lone, spiritually sensitive people, announcing private revelations from God. They were public advisors, helping to direct the government. Officials and others came to a prophet to ask questions of God (cf. 1 Sam 28:3-25; 1 Kgs 22:1-38). The same was true in Mesopotamia, where kings and others asked their gods for a prophetic word, which involved elaborate ceremonies through which they would ask their idols. The prophet or priest would conduct these rituals and would in turn speak for the deity.

14:7 any immigrant: Ezekiel considered such immigrants welcome (Ezek 47:23) and deserving of protection (Ezek 22:29), but they were also expected to abide by the obligations of the covenant with the Lord.

14:9 even though it was I, the LORD, who seduced that prophet: In Ezekiel's theology, the Lord could be a source of goodness and blessings, or malicious when angered (cf. Ezek 20:25; and also 1 Sam 16:14; 1 Kgs 22:22).

14:12-23 Ezekiel again judges the land (cf. Ezek 6) and initiates several judgments against the key components of God's elect (continuing through chapter 24). The oracle is structured around the four covenantal curses (cf. Lev 26:14-39): food supply (14:12-14); wild animals (14:15-16); sword (14:17-18); and plague (14:19-20), recalling the content of Ezekiel 6 once more. Noah, Daniel, and Job were figures of legendary righteousness known from the literature of the day. As such, Ezekiel repeatedly mentioned them to emphasize the certainty of the judgment on the land, not as a promise of salvation to righteous individuals (cf. Jer 5:1-9).

14:22 Sons and daughters will be brought out to you: The remaining few of the elected nation will become exiles; nobody will be found in the land (cf. Ezek 11:1-21).

14:22-23 you will be consoled . . . will bring you some consolation: The Hebrew term denotes the sense of accepting the justice of a sentence (cf. Ezek 16:63; 20:43; 36:31; 43:10-11).

The vine's wood

16:17 Eze 7:20,
Eze 16:11

15 The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, how is the vine's wood better than the wood of all the trees in the forest? <sup>3</sup>Can you make anything useful from its wood? Can you make a peg from it and hang objects on it? <sup>4</sup>If not, can it be used as firewood? Fire would consume its two ends, but its middle part would only get charred. So is it useful for anything? <sup>5</sup>Look, even when it was whole, it was worthless. Now that the fire has consumed it, and it is charred, it's even more useless.

So also have I decreed for those who live in Jerusalem, <sup>7</sup>and I have confronted them. They may try to go out from the fire, but the fire will consume them. You will know that I am the LORD, because I confronted them. <sup>8</sup>I will turn the land into a ruin because they acted faithlessly, proclaims the LORD God.

Your father was an Amorite, your mother a Hittite. <sup>4</sup>This is how you were treated on the day you were born: Your umbilical cord wasn't cut, you weren't washed clean with water or rubbed with salt, and you weren't wrapped in blankets. <sup>5</sup>No one took pity or cared enough to do any of these things for you. You were despised on the day of your birth and thrown out on the open field. <sup>6</sup>When I happened to come by, I saw you flailing about in your blood. I said to you while you were still bloody, "Live!" <sup>7</sup>I helped you to flourish like a young plant in the field, and you grew tall and became wonderfully endowed. 15:1-8 In this brief metaphor, Ezekiel identifies the inhabitants of Jerusalem (15:6) with the wood of a vine, which is only good for a bonfire (15:2-5; cf. Judg 9:7-21; Ps 80:8-9). and it is charred: perhaps referring to the first siege of Jerusalem (597 BCE) and the deportation of Jehoiachin, Ezekiel, and their fellow exiles. those who live in Jerusalem: Ezekiel again targets those remaining in Jerusalem (possibly the 25 men of Ezek 11:1), in contrast to his exilic community.

16:1-63 In an extended metaphorical depiction of Jerusalem as a prostitute, Ezekiel says again that the exile was deserved because of Jerusalem's offenses. The portrayal separates into four main sections. First, God graciously delivers the city from squalor, bringing life to her, and marrying her at the appropriate age. Second is a description in offensive sexual imagery of Jerusalem's breach of covenant. Third, Jerusalem will be shamed before her lovers. Fourth, a promise of a new covenant completes the metaphor.

16:2 show Jerusalem her detestable practices: The subject of the metaphor is Jerusalem, the city as a whole. Cities were commonly depicted in the ancient world as wives to their patron god.

16:3 you are from the land of Canaan: Historically, Jerusalem wasn't originally incorporated into the tribal league (Josh 15:63; Judg 1:21), but only became a part of Judah when David took the city and made it the seat of his kingdom (cf. 2 Sam 5:6-16), and then centralized the worship of the Lord there (2 Sam 6). Theologically, Ezekiel understood the Israelites to be outsiders (i.e., the house of Jacob, coming from Egypt; cf. Ezek 20:5), elected to come into the land. Linked as it is with Canaan (Gen 9:25-27), Ezekiel identifies Jerusalem as being unclean.

16:4-7 God cares for Jerusalem, prior to being mature, that is, before David's conquest.

16:4 Your umbilical cord wasn't cut... weren't washed clean... rubbed with salt: Ancient priests believed that both mother and child were defiled and in need of purification because of the blood that accompanies childbirth (Lev 12:1-8; Lev 17:10-14; see note on Ezek 22:3-4). Ezekiel uses this tradition in an interesting way. God never cleanses the child Jerusalem of her defiling blood, but only provides for her to live (16:6).

16:8-14 Jerusalem, covenanted to the Lord, i.e., as the location of the temple.

16:8 You were ready for love: explicitly, sexual intercourse (cf. Ezek 23:17; Prov 7:16; Song 4:10; 7:13). I spread my cloak over you: a gesture of marriage (Ruth 3:9). a solemn promise: See Ezekiel 20:5, 6, 15, and 28. a covenant: To Ezekiel's audience, these words express the divine side of the covenantal clause, "You will be my people; I will be your God" (see the discussion of Ezek 11:19). you became mine: Jerusalem's side of the formula.

16:9 I washed you... poured oil on you: Jerusalem is being cleansed for her wedding day (cf. Esth 2:9-12; Ezek 36:25).

a ring in your nose, earrings in your ears, and a beautiful crown on your head. <sup>13</sup>I adorned you with gold and silver, and your garments were made of the finest linen and brocade. You ate the finest flour, honey, and oil. You became very beautiful, fit for royalty. <sup>14</sup>Among the nations you were famous for your beauty. It was perfect because of the splendor that I had given you. This is what the LORD God says.

<sup>23</sup>After all your wickedness—doom, doom to you, proclaims the LORD God—<sup>24</sup>you built a pavilion for yourself and set up platforms in every square. <sup>25</sup>At every crossroad you built your platform and degraded your beauty by spreading your legs to all comers. And so you encouraged even more promiscuity. <sup>26</sup>You prostituted yourself with the Egyptians, your neighbors with the large sexual organs, and as you added to your seductions, you provoked me to anger. <sup>27</sup>So I used my power against you, cut off your allowance, and gave you up to the passions of the Philistine women who had been confounded by your infamous ways and had rejected you. <sup>28</sup>Still not satisfied, you prostituted yourself to the Assyrians, but they weren't enough for you either. <sup>29</sup>So you prostituted yourself with the Babylonians, the land of traders, but again you weren't satisfied. <sup>30</sup>How sick was your heart—the LORD God proclaims—that you could do all these things, the deeds of a hardened prostitute. <sup>31</sup>But you weren't like an ordinary prostitute! When you built your pavilion at the head of every street and made your platform in every square, you refused to be paid. <sup>32</sup>You are like an adulterous wife: you take in strangers instead of your husband. <sup>33</sup>Ordinary prostitutes are given gifts, but you gave your gifts to all your lovers. From every direction you even bribed them to come to you for your sexual favors. <sup>34</sup>As a prostitute, you were more perverse than other women. No one approached you for sexual favors, but you yourself gave gifts instead of receiving them. You are perversion itself! <sup>35</sup>Therefore, you prostitute, hear the LORD's word!

16:14 Among the nations: In the ancient world, honor before the public is crucial (see the discussion of Ezek 5:14-15). you were famous for your beauty. It was perfect: This language echoes descriptions of Jerusalem as the seat of the Lord's throne (cf. Ps 48:2; Lam 2:15).

16:15 To indict the city for breaking the covenant, Ezekiel graphically describes Jerusalem's sexual encounters in the following verses. Jerusalem's sin was not that she was erroneously proud of her beauty. Her beauty was good, a gift of God (Ezek 16:8-14). Her sin was that she misused it in making political treaties.

16:20-21 These verses reference the practice of child sacrifice, which the Lord abhors and Ezekiel condemns (cf. Ezek 20:26, 31; Deut 12:31; Jer 19:4-6; 32:35).

16:23-35 The text condemns a litany of political alliances. Egyptians: In Hezekiah's attempts to break free of the Assyrians in the late 8th century BCE, and again in the late 7th and early 6th century, Judah formed alliances with Egypt, something forbidden for Judah's kings (Deut 17:16). passions of the Philistine women: Philistia also formed political alliances, in attempts to repel the Assyrians and Babylonians over time. Ezekiel accuses Jerusalem of exceeding Philistia in these alliances. Assyrians: In 735-732, Ahaz allied with Assyria during his conflict with Syria and the northern kingdom, Israel (cf. 2 Kgs 15:29-16:20; 2 Chron 28:1-27; Isa 7-8). Babylonians: Hezekiah is remembered as welcoming the Babylonians into the temple treasuries (2 Kgs 20:12-19; Isa 39). you gave your gifts to all your lovers: These alliances were secured by the payment of tribute to the protecting nation.

16:37-41 The metaphor now draws on public trials against women caught in adultery, which involved public humiliation at the city gates and stoning (cf. Lev 20:10; your pavilion and destroy your platforms. They will strip you of your garments, take your beautiful jewels, and they will leave you completely naked. <sup>40</sup>They will bring an army against you, pelt you with stones, and slaughter you with their swords. <sup>41</sup>They will burn down your houses and execute judgments against you in the sight of many women. I will bring an end to your prostitution; indeed, you will never again give payment. <sup>42</sup>When I've satisfied my anger, and my rage has turned away from you, I will be calm and no longer angry. <sup>43</sup>Because you didn't remember your youthful days, and infuriated me with all these things, I will hold you accountable for what you've done. This is what the LORD God says.

Have you not added bad reputation to all your detestable acts? <sup>44</sup>Now everyone who speaks in proverbs will say this about you: "Like mother, like daughter." <sup>45</sup>You are your mother's daughter! She loathed her husband and also her children. You are just like your sisters too! They also loathed their husbands and children. Your mother was a Hittite, and your father was an Amorite. <sup>46</sup>Your older sister is Samaria, who lives with her daughters in the north. Your younger sister is Sodom, who lives with her daughters in the south. <sup>47</sup>You didn't follow in their ways or engage in their detestable practices in any small way. You were far more destructive. <sup>48</sup>As surely as I live, says the LORD God, not even your sister Sodom and her daughters did what you and your daughters have done! <sup>49</sup>This is the sin of your sister Sodom: She and her daughters were proud, had plenty to eat, and enjoyed peace and prosperity; but she didn't help the poor and the needy. <sup>50</sup>They became haughty and did detestable things in front of me, and I turned away from them as soon as I saw it.

<sup>51</sup>Samaria didn't sin even half as much as you did. You've so outstripped her in multiplying your detestable practices, with all the detestable things you've done, that you've even made your sisters seem innocent. <sup>52</sup>Bear your disgrace, which has actually improved your sisters' position. Because your sins and detestable acts were greater than theirs, they are now more righteous than you. Be ashamed, and bear the disgrace of making your sisters righteous! <sup>53</sup>I will improve the circumstances of Sodom and her daughters and the circumstances of Samaria and her daughters. And what's left of your fortune will go to them, <sup>54</sup>so that you will bear your disgrace and be humiliated by all that you've done to make them feel better. <sup>55</sup>Then your sister Sodom and her daughters will return to their former state, and your sister Samaria and her daughters will return to their former state. You and your daughters will return to your former state, <sup>56</sup>but you will no longer talk about your sister Sodom as in your haughty days <sup>57</sup>before your wickedness was exposed. You are now the reproach of all the daughters of Edom<sup>a</sup> and all those around her, including the daughters of the Philistines. They mock you on every side. <sup>58</sup>You alone must bear your bad reputation and your detestable ways. This is what the LORD says.

<sup>59</sup>The LORD God proclaims: I will do to you just as you have done, despising solemn pledges and breaking covenants. <sup>60</sup>Nevertheless, I will remember my covenant with you when you were young, and I will establish an everlasting covenant with you. <sup>61</sup>And you will remember your ways and be ashamed, when in spite of your covenant I<sup>a</sup> take your big sisters and little sisters from you and give them back to you as daughters. <sup>62</sup>I myself will establish my covenant with you, and you will know that I am the LORD. <sup>63</sup>Then you will remember and be ashamed, and you won't even open your mouth because of your shame, after I've forgiven you for all that you've done. This is what the LORD God says.

Deut 22:22-24). Other prophetic metaphors convicting Jerusalem of infidelity also mention exposing nakedness (cf. Hos 2:13; Nah 3:5; Jer 13:26-27). The theme of honor and shame (see the discussion of Ezek 5:14-15) plays an especially strong role.

16:43-58 Continuing the theme of publicly shaming Jerusalem, Ezekiel restates Jerusalem's ancestry (16:3, 45). Samaria, the capital of the northern kingdom, was destroyed by the Assyria's King Sargon II in 720 BCE, and will again share the spotlight with Jerusalem in Ezekiel 23. Sodom was a prophetic byword for sin and destruction of legendary proportions (cf. Gen 19:1-28; Isa 1:9; Jer 23:14; 50:40; Lam 4:6).

16:59-63 The reader is almost shocked to encounter one of the most concise statements of deliverance in the entire book. No reason, such as changed hearts and lives (see the note on Ezek 2:9-10), is given for the Lord remembering the covenant with Jerusalem (16:60); it will be entirely an act of God.

16:60 everlasting covenant: The future covenant with Jerusalem is variously described in Ezekiel's prophecies as "everlasting" (16:60), "covenant bond" (Ezek 20:37), and a "covenant of peace" (Ezek 34:25; 37:26).

16:63 ashamed, and you won't even open your mouth: Jerusalem knows its punishment is deserved (cf. Ezek 14:22-23; 20:43; 36:31; 43:10-11).

Sexual and Marital Metaphors in Ezekiel Ezekiel was known for his eloquence (Ezek 33:32). Perhaps his rhetorical skill is best displayed in his many elaborate metaphors (chapters 15, 16, 17, 19, 23, 27, 28:11-19). However, Ezekiel 16 and 23, in which Jerusalem and Samaria are portrayed as prostitutes, are filled with disturbing words. Readers will disapprove of the insulting portrayal of women shown here. The prophet used vulgar language, unparalleled in the OT (e.g., Ezek 16:25-26; 23:20). He did so intentionally, because Ezekiel aimed to offend his audience. Sexual and marital metaphors were familiar to Ezekiel's audience (cf. Hos 1-3; Isa 1:21; Jer 2:1-4:4). At the heart of these prophecies for Hosea, Jeremiah, Isaiah, and Ezekiel was the accusation of covenantal infidelity to the Lord. Viewed historically, Ezekiel intended the metaphors of chapters 16 and 23 to convict the people and explain the justice of the destruction of Jerusalem and its temple. Whether or not his language is accepted as covered by the artistic license for prophetic outrage, Ezekiel meant to shock and offend his audience.

Transplanted cedar

17 The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, compose a riddle and a parable about the house of Israel. <sup>3</sup>Say, The LORD God proclaims: The great eagle with great wings, long feathers, and full, colorful plumage came to Lebanon and took the top branch of the cedar. <sup>4</sup>He plucked a twig from the cedar's crown, brought it to the land of traders, and set it down in a city of merchants. <sup>5</sup>He took a native seed and planted it in a prepared field, placing it like a willow beside plentiful water. <sup>6</sup>It grew and became a low-spreading vine. Its foliage turned toward him, and its roots developed under him. And so it became a vine, and it produced branches and sent out its shoots.

<sup>7</sup>Now there was another great eagle with great wings and much plumage. This vine bent its roots and turned its branches toward him so that it might draw more water from him than from its own bed, <sup>8</sup>a good field with plentiful water where it was planted to grow branches, bear fruit, and become a splendid vine. <sup>9</sup>Say, The LORD God proclaims: Will it thrive? Won't he tear out its roots, strip its fruit, and cause all the leaves of its branches to wither? It will dry up, and no one will need a strong arm or a mighty army to uproot it. <sup>10</sup>Though it is planted, will it thrive? When the east wind touches it, won't it completely wither? On the bed in which it was planted, it will wither away.

<sup>11</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>12</sup>Say now to the rebellious household: Don't you know what these things mean? Say: The king of Babylon came to Jerusalem and carried its king and its officers away with him to Babylon. <sup>13</sup>Then he took a prince from the royal line, made an agreement with him, and made him take a solemn pledge of loyalty. He also took away the land's officials. <sup>14</sup>Thus it would be a lowly kingdom, not asserting its own interests but observing the agreement so that it would survive. <sup>15</sup>But the prince rebelled against him and sent messengers to Egypt to supply him with horses and a great army. Can such a person succeed? Can one who does these things escape? Can he overturn the agreement and escape capture? <sup>16</sup>As surely as I live, says the LORD God, he will die in Babylon, in the place of the king who gave him the authority to rule, whose solemn pledge he scorned and whose agreement he overturned. <sup>17</sup>Pharaoh won't help him. There will be no strong force or mighty army in battle when siege ramps are set up and towers are built to eliminate many lives.

17:1-24 The third in this string of extended metaphors, this time judging Zedekiah and the officials left in Jerusalem. The passage draws the reader in with its riddle and parable (17:3-10), and then follows with the interpretation (17:11-21). A final section promises a new restored shoot from the cedar (17:22-24).

17:1-21 The prophet's allegorical images in 17:3-10 emphasize his theological biases, hardly needing the interpretations (17:11-21). The great eagle: Nebuchadnezzar (17:12). top branch of the cedar: Jerusalem's officers (17:12). a twig from the cedar's crown: Jehoiachin, the king (17:12; see the note on Jehoiachin at Ezek 1:2). the land of traders . . . city of merchants: Babylon (17:12). a native seed: Zedekiah, a prince (17:13). another great eagle: Pharaoh (Psammetichus II) and his Egyptian army (17:15-17), with whom Zedekiah had allied himself in 594 BCE. True, the prophet recounts Jerusalem's history post-597, but by employing allegorical imagery, the prophet more powerfully engages the reader's imagination.

17:5, 8 plentiful water: a theological image indicating divine nourishment and fruitfulness sent from God (cf. Ezek 27:26; 31:7; 47:1-12).

17:10 east wind: another theologically loaded term, indicating God at war (cf. Ezek 27:26; Exod 14:21; 15:8).

17:13-21 a solemn pledge of loyalty: cf. 16:8. Though the pledge is with Nebuchadnezzar, Zedekiah is expected to honor his promise. Pledges were sworn on the life of the Lord (cf. 1 Sam 14:39, 45; 19:6; 20:21; 2 Sam 12:5). The punishment for breaking a pledge, that is, taking the name of the Lord in vain, is death (see Exod 20:7; Deut 5:11). When God makes a pledge, God forfeits his own life (17:16) if he breaks the pledge. Here, Ezekiel turns the tables on <sup>18</sup>He scorned the solemn pledge and overturned the agreement! Even though he made a promise, he did all these things, and he won't escape capture. <sup>19</sup>So now the LORD God proclaims: As surely as I live, it was my solemn pledge that he scorned and my agreement that he overturned, and I will hold him accountable. <sup>20</sup>I will spread my net over him, and he will be caught in my trap. I will bring him to Babylon, and I myself will enter into judgment with him there for rebelling against me. <sup>21</sup>All his elite fighters<sup>b</sup> along with all his troops will fall by the sword, and those who are left will be scattered to the winds. Then you will know that I, the LORD, have spoken.

<sup>22</sup>The LORD God proclaims: I myself will take one of the top branches from the tall cedar. I will pluck a tender shoot from its crown, and I myself will plant it on a very high and lofty mountain. <sup>23</sup>On Israel's mountainous highlands I will plant it, and it will send out branches and bear fruit. It will grow into a mighty cedar. Birds of every kind will nest in it and find shelter in the shade of its boughs. <sup>24</sup>Then all the trees in the countryside will know that I, the LORD, bring down the tall tree and raise up the lowly tree, and make the green tree wither and the dry tree bloom. I, the LORD, have spoken, and I will do it.

Sins of parents and children

18The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>What do you mean by this proverb of yours about the land of Israel: "When parents eat unripe grapes, the children's teeth suffer"? <sup>3</sup>As surely as I live, says the LORD God, no longer will you use this proverb in Israel! <sup>4</sup>All lives are mine; the life of the parent and the life of the child belong to me. Only the one who sins will die.

<sup>5</sup>People are declared innocent when they act justly and responsibly. <sup>6</sup>They don't eat on the hills or give their attention to the idols of the house of Israel. They don't defile the wives of their neighbors or approach menstruating women. <sup>7</sup>They don't cheat anyone, but fulfill their obligations. They don't rob others, but give food to the hungry and clothes to the naked. <sup>8</sup>They don't impose interest or take profit. They refrain from evil and settle cases between people fairly. <sup>9</sup>They follow my regulations, keep my case laws, and act faithfully. Such people are innocent, and they will live, proclaims the LORD God.

<sup>14</sup>But suppose he has a child who sees all the sins that his father committed. He becomes alarmed and doesn't do them. <sup>15</sup>He doesn't eat on the mountains or pay attention to the Zedekiah, having the Lord make a promise that assures Zedekiah's death on account of his breaking his pledge with Nebuchadnezzar.

17:22 one of the top branches: The text doesn't promise that the restored Davidic leadership will be Jehoiachin, or even one of his sons. a tender shoot: The text promises that the dynasty will continue (cf. Ezek 37:24), but the role of the future leader is diminished elsewhere in Ezekiel's prophecies, reducing him to a patron of the future temple service (Ezek 44:2-3; 45:7-9, 17, 21-25; 46:1-18; 48:21-22; see sidebar, "The Demotion of the King in Ezekiel" at Ezek 34).

17:23 a mighty cedar. Birds of every kind will nest in it: The image of a primeval, world tree (see Ezek 31), set on the high mountain of God (cf. Ps 48:1-2), nourishing all of life, communicated the prosperity that stemmed from the Lord through the wise rule of a righteous king.

18:1-31 In disputing a proverb popular among the people (18:1; cf. Ezek 12:22, 16:44), the text remains within the realm of extended metaphors, begun in Ezekiel 15. The chapter divides into three parts: a hypothetical illustration of three generations (Ezek 18:1-24); challenges to the theological charge behind this proverb (Ezek 18:25-29); and finally, the prophet urging the people to turn to a renewed covenant (18:30-31). The message is that God's ways are just, and that God has remained true to the covenant.

18:2 When parents eat unripe grapes, the children's teeth suffer: Jeremiah disputed the same proverb (Jer 31:29-30). This proverb meant that God had mistreated the people.

18:5-9 In his description of the first generation of the people, Ezekiel presents the principles on which God will judge the people to be righteous or wicked. A combination of worship (e.g., idolatry) and immoral deeds (e.g., cheating and stealing) form the list of offenses. They are identified with God's expectations (18:9), which identify all of the regulations and case laws necessary to maintain the covenant with God (cf. Lev 18:4, 5, 26; 19:37; 20:22; 25:18; 26:15, 43; and the note on Ezek 5:6).

18:10-13 The second generation, represented by the image of a violent child, departs from the righteous acts of the previous generation. Most of the offenses listed in 18:5-9 are repeated.

18:14-18 The third generation again embodies righteousness, using the same list of deeds seen in 18:5-9. case laws ... regulations: See Ezekiel 18:9.

Individual Retribution In ancient Israel, and throughout the ancient Near East, identity was formed through communal, family relationships. An individual defined himself or herself by membership in their extended family, clan, and tribe. The same principle applied to sin and righteousness, shame and honor. Thus a person in ancient Israel understood the sins of an individual to express the moral character of the clan (cf. Josh 7:16-26). Ezekiel 18 is often regarded as a new revelation of individual responsibility. However, a closer look shows that Ezekiel still thought communally; that is, in terms of the family, clan, and tribe. In this prophecy, he indicted the present generation as a collective whole, which he calls the "house of Israel" (Ezek 18:25, 29). While the language sounds as though individuals may be singled out, this oracle designates itself as a "parable" (Ezek 18:1), that is, an extended metaphor referring to the house of Israel (cf. other extended metaphors in Ezek 15, 16, 17, 19, 23, 27, 28:11-19). Ezekiel's separation of a son's sins from those of his father must be read as a parable about Israel. Ezekiel thought that his own generation must take responsibility for the fall of Jerusalem. Ezekiel 18 disputed the protests of the prophet's own generation, and declared God's punishment to be just (Ezek 18:25-29).

idols of the house of Israel. He doesn't defile his neighbor's wife. <sup>16</sup>He doesn't cheat anyone, either by seizing collateral for loans or committing robbery. He gives his food to the hungry and clothes to the naked. <sup>17</sup>He refrains from oppressing the poor by taking neither interest nor profit. He observes my case laws and follows my regulations. He won't die because of his father's guilt. He will surely live. <sup>18</sup>As for his father: If he exploited the weak or committed robbery, or did anything else that wasn't good for the people, he will die because of his own guilt.

<sup>21</sup>But if the wicked turn away from all the sins that they have committed, keep all my regulations, and act justly and responsibly, they will surely live and not die. <sup>22</sup>None of the sins that they committed will be held against them, but they will live because they do the right things. <sup>23</sup>Do I take pleasure in the death of the wicked? says the LORD God. Certainly not! If they change their ways, they will live.

<sup>24</sup>If those who do the right thing turn from righteousness and engage in the same detestable practices that the wicked committed, can they do these things and live? None of their righteous deeds will be remembered. They will die because of their treacheries and sins. <sup>25</sup>But you say, "My Lord's way doesn't measure up." Listen, house of Israel, is it my ways that don't measure up? Isn't it your ways that don't measure up? <sup>26</sup>When those who do the right thing turn from their responsible ways and act maliciously, they will die because of it. For their malicious acts they will die. <sup>27</sup>And when the wicked turn from their wicked deeds and act justly and responsibly, they will preserve their lives. <sup>28</sup>When they become alarmed and turn away from all their sins, they will surely live; they won't die. <sup>29</sup>Yet the house of Israel says, "My Lord's way doesn't measure up." Is it my ways that don't measure up? Isn't it your ways that don't measure up, house of Israel? <sup>30</sup>Therefore, I will judge each of you according to your ways, house of Israel. This is what the LORD God says. Turn, turn away from all your sins. Don't let them be sinful obstacles for you. <sup>31</sup>Abandon all of your repeated sins. Make yourselves a new heart and a new spirit. Why should you die, house of Israel? <sup>32</sup>I most certainly don't want anyone to die! This is what the LORD God says. Change your ways, and live!

18:21-24 if... turn: The verb used here commonly refers to turning to follow God in the OT. The imagery is that of following the Lord on a path, and not straying (cf. Deut 5:32; Gen 18:19; Prov 10:29; 11:4, 20; 14:12; Jer 5:4-5).

18:25 My Lord's way: The Hebrew word translated "Lord" here is probably shorthand for Lord God, seen elsewhere in Ezekiel. The possessive pronoun "My" alludes to the covenantal clause "they will be my people; I will be their God" (see the note on Ezek 11:19). The implication is that if God is found to be unfair, God is in breach of the covenant, releasing the people from its obligations.

18:31 a new heart and a new spirit: As seen earlier, this is covenantal language (see note on Ezek 11:19; 36:26). As with Ezekiel 16 and 17, this oracle ends with a new relationship promised for the future.

What a lioness among lionesses was your mother!

She bedded down among the strong young lions and reared her cubs.

he learned to tear flesh and devour humans.<sup>4</sup>When the nations heard about him, they caught him in their trap

So she took another of her cubs and set him up as a strong young lion.

They cast their nets over him and caught him in their trap.

They brought him with nets to the king of Babylon so that his voice would no longer be heard on the mountains of Israel.

The proud mother<sup>10</sup>Your mother was like a vine in a vineyard<sup>d</sup> planted beside the waters;
she bore lush fruit and foliage because of the plentiful water,<sup>11</sup>and she produced mighty branches, fit for rulers' scepters.

She grew tall, and her crown went up between the clouds.

Because of her height and thick growth, she became conspicuous.

<sup>12</sup>So she was struck down in anger, thrown down to the ground.

The east wind dried her out and destroyed her fruit;

it sapped the branch of its strength, and fire consumed it.

<sup>13</sup>So now she is planted in the desert, in a parched and thirsty land,<sup>14</sup>and fire has gone out from her branch and consumed her foliage and fruit, leaving her no strong branch or ruler's scepter.

This is a lamentation, and it will serve as a lamentation.

19:1-14 Two laments are now added to this collection of extended metaphors, one dealing with a lioness and her two cubs (19:2-9), and the second returning to the vine imagery (19:10-14). As laments, these passages don't actually judge their subjects but rather they merely acknowledge their downfall.

19:1 lament: Ezekiel used laments as means of taunting the fall of his subjects (see Ezek 26:15-18; 27:1-36; 28:11-19; 32:1-16, 17-32). Laments celebrate the grandeur of their subjects and mourn their loss. They weren't sung to condemn the dead, and the reader should take the first part of the lament that emphasizes the beauty of the subject seriously. Indeed, the lions had much of which to be proud (see the discussion of honor and shame in the note on Ezek 5:14-15).

19:2 lioness . . . was your mother: Within the context of the other subjects of Ezekiel's metaphors, the mother seems to be Jerusalem, though the queen mother, Hamutal (2 Kgs 23:31; 24:18), could be Ezekiel's intended target.

19:3-4 one of her cubs . . . to the land of Egypt: Lions symbolized strength, domination, and honor in the ancient world, and thus were commonly used to describe kings and nations (cf. Gen 49:9; Num 23:24; 24:9; Jer 4:7; Mic 5:8). This metaphor refers to Jehoahaz, who was captured by Egypt after Josiah's death in 609 BCE (2 Kgs 23:31-35//2 Chron 36:1-4; Jer 22:11-12). This metaphor would have had the effect of maintaining some degree of interest in Egypt as an ally among Jehoahaz's supporters in Jerusalem. Ezekiel's opposition to Egypt (cf. Ezek 29-32) would have, then, been the motivating factor in singling out this king.

19:5-9 another of her cubs . . . to the king of Babylon: This image could represent either Jehoiachin or Zedekiah, since both were finally led before Nebuchadnezzar. But since Ezekiel seems to have favored Jehoiachin (cf. Ezek 1:2; 17:4-6, 22-24), while he repeatedly denounced Zedekiah, more likely this passage references Jehoiachin.

19:10 Your mother was like a vine: As in Ezekiel 19:2-9, the figure behind the metaphor is Jerusalem, a shift from Ezekiel 15, where the vine stood for the inhabitants or officials of Jerusalem.

19:11 grew tall . . . between the clouds: The source of this image is the idea of the world tree (cf. Ezek 17:23; Ezek 31).

19:12 struck down in anger . . . The east wind: Typical of laments, the text turns suddenly and without explanation, from describing the grandeur of the vine to its withering in the desert.

History of rebellion

20In the seventh year, on the tenth day of the fifth month, some of Israel's elders came to inquire of the LORD. As they were sitting with me, <sup>2</sup>the LORD's word came to me: <sup>3</sup>Human one, speak to Israel's elders and say to them, The LORD God proclaims: Have you come to petition me? As surely as I live, I reject your petitions. This is what the LORD God says! <sup>4</sup>Will you judge them, human one, will you judge them? Then expose to them the detestable practices of their ancestors. <sup>5</sup>Say to them, The LORD God proclaims: On the day I chose Israel, I swore a solemn pledge to the descendants of Jacob's household. When I made myself known to them in the land of Egypt, I swore a solemn pledge: I am the LORD your God. <sup>6</sup>On that day I swore that I would lead them out of the land of Egypt to a land that I would show them, a land full of milk and honey, the most splendid of all lands. <sup>7</sup>And I said to them, Every one of you must cast away your disgusting things. Don't let yourselves be defiled by Egypt's idols. I am the LORD your God. <sup>8</sup>But they rebelled against me and refused to listen to me. No one cast off their disgusting things or abandoned their Egyptian idols. So I declared that I would pour out my wrath on them and satisfy my anger against them in the land of Egypt. <sup>9</sup>But I acted for my name's sake, so that it wouldn't be degraded in the sight of the nations among whom they lived, and in whose sight I made it known that I would lead them out of the land of Egypt.

<sup>10</sup>So I led them out of the land of Egypt and brought them into the desert. <sup>11</sup>I gave them my regulations and made known to them my case laws, which bring life to all who observe them. <sup>12</sup>I also gave them my sabbaths as a sign between us that I, the LORD, have set them apart for my purpose. <sup>13</sup>But the house of Israel rebelled against me in the desert. They didn't follow my regulations and rejected my case laws, which bring life to all who observe them. They completely degraded my sabbaths. So I declared that I would pour out my anger against them and destroy them in the desert. <sup>14</sup>But instead, I acted for the sake of my name so that it wouldn't be degraded in the sight of the nations who saw me lead them out of Egypt. <sup>15</sup>So in the desert I swore another solemn pledge, that I wouldn't bring them to the land that I had given to them, a land full of milk and honey, a land more splendid than any other, <sup>16</sup>because they rejected my case laws, didn't follow my regulations, and degraded my sabbaths. They had their hearts set on their idols. <sup>17</sup>But I had too much compassion to destroy them, so I didn't put an end to them in the desert.

<sup>18</sup>In the desert, I said to their children, Don't follow your parents' regulations or observe their case laws or become defiled by their idols. <sup>19</sup>I am the LORD your God! Follow my regulations! Observe my case laws and do them! <sup>20</sup>Make my sabbaths holy, and let them be a sign between us that I am the LORD your God. <sup>21</sup>But the children rebelled against me. They didn't 20:1-44 Ezekiel 20 gives a complex theological argument by Ezekiel, one in which he describes the nation's history as one of continually violating the covenant. The conclusion, however, must have surprised his audience, for the prophet ultimately reenvisioned the exile as the completion of the exodus (see sidebar, "The Exile as Exodus," and cf. Ezek 37:1-14).

20:1 In the seventh year, on the tenth day of the fifth month. The third dated passage in the book (cf. Ezek 1:1; 8:1). August 14, 591—about a year since the temple vision in Ezekiel 8:1, and about four years before the fall of Jerusalem. some of Israel's elders: Compare with Ezekiel 8:1; 14:1; the location is probably the prophet's home (cf. Ezek 3:24; 8:1; 14:1-3; 33:31).

20:3 petition me. The text doesn't state the petition, though it is possible that Ezekiel 20:32 states the petition. In addition, around this time, there were indications of Babylonian weakness (Jer 28:1-4), and Pharaoh Psammetichus II was touting his strength to the kingdoms in the region near Judah. Perhaps the elders sought a sign of an early return from exile.

20:4 detestable practices. See the note on Ezekiel 5:9.

20:5 I chose Israel: language of election for the purpose of a covenantal relationship (cf. Deut 4:37; 7:6, 7; 10:15; 12:5; 14:2). solemn pledge. The Hebrew idiom expresses how a pledge is made ("I lifted up my hand") and denotes a covenantal promise to bring Israel into the land (Exod 6:8; Num 14:30; and cf. Ezek 16:8). descendants of Jacob's household: Jacob appears in Ezekiel as the ancestor to whom the Lord promised the land (cf. Ezek 28:25; 37:25; and see the note on Ezek 47:14). I am the LORD your God: covenantal language (see the note on Ezek 11:20).

20:6 a land full of milk and honey: a common expression of fruitfulness (Exod 3:8, 17; 13:5; 33:3; Lev 20:24; Num 13:27; 14:8; Deut 6:3; 26:9, 15).

20:9 acted for my name's sake: an expression of God's honor on the world stage (Exod 9:16; 1 Kgs 8:41 // 2 Chron 6:32; Isa 48:9; Jer 14:7, 21; and similarly, Josh 7:9; Mal 1:11; and cf. Ezek 36:20-23), related to the formula "then you will know that I am the Lord" (see sidebar, "The Recognition Formula" at Ezek 6).

20:11 regulations . . . case laws: encompassing the whole covenantal instruction; see the discussion on Ezekiel 5:6.

follow my regulations or observe my case laws, which bring life to all who observe them. They also degraded my sabbaths. So I declared that I would pour out my wrath on them and satisfy my anger against them in the desert. <sup>22</sup>But I restrained myself and acted for the sake of my name so that it wouldn't be diminished in the sight of the nations who saw me lead them out of Egypt. <sup>23</sup>And I swore yet another solemn pledge in the desert, that I would disperse them among the nations and scatter them throughout the earth, <sup>24</sup>because they didn't observe my case laws, they rejected my regulations, and they degraded my sabbaths while they kept looking to their parents' idols. <sup>25</sup>I also issued regulations that were not good and case laws by which they could not live. <sup>26</sup>I defiled them with their very gifts when they offered up all their oldest children. They were supposed to be so horrified that they would acknowledge that I am the LORD.

<sup>27</sup>Therefore, human one, speak to the house of Israel and say to them, The LORD God proclaims: Yet again your ancestors defamed me by rebelling against me! <sup>28</sup>I brought them into the land that I swore to give to them. But when they saw all the high hills and lofty trees, there they made their sacrifices: irksome offerings here, pleasing aromas there, and drink offerings elsewhere! <sup>29</sup>I said to them, What shrine are you going to now? So it's called Shrine<sup>f</sup> to this very day.

<sup>30</sup>So now say to the house of Israel, The LORD God proclaims: Will you defile yourselves as your ancestors did, and will you prostitute yourself after their disgusting things? <sup>31</sup>When you offer up your gifts and make your children pass through the fire, you defile yourselves with all your idols to this very day. Should I let you seek me out, house of Israel? This is what the LORD God says: As surely as I live, I won't let you seek me. <sup>32</sup>What is in your minds will never happen! You've been saying, "Let's be like the nations and the clans of the lands in the service of wood and stone." <sup>33</sup>This is what the LORD God says: As surely as I live, with a strong hand, an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out, I will be your king! <sup>34</sup>I will lead you out from the peoples and gather you from the countries where you've been scattered—yes, with a strong hand and an outstretched arm and with wrath poured out! <sup>35</sup>I will march you out to the wilderness nations, and there I will judge you face-to-face. <sup>36</sup>Just as I judged your ancestors in the desert of the land of Egypt, so will I judge you. This is what the LORD God says. <sup>37</sup>I will make you walk under the rod, and I will bring you into the covenant bond. <sup>38</sup>I will remove from among you those who rebel and transgress against me. I will lead them out from the land where they lived as immigrants, but they won't enter Israel's fertile land. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

reflects the priestly idea that the Sabbath was symbolic of the covenant. See Exodus 20:8; 31:31; Leviticus 19:3, 30; 23:2-4; Deuteronomy 5:12.

20:25-26 regulations that were not good and case laws by which they could not live: This verse is confusing. Elsewhere, however, Ezekiel's theology allowed for God to sabotage the nation (cf. Ezek 14:9).

20:31 pass through the fire: another reference to child sacrifice. See the note on Ezekiel 16:20.

20:32 The idolatrous interests of the elders shouldn't surprise us (cf. Ezek 14:4). The exiles had just been defeated by a king who worshipped other gods. Ezekiel himself predicted the destruction of the Lord's temple in Jerusalem in the near future. Other texts from this time (Pss 115; 135:15-18; Isa 40:18-20; 41:6-7; 44:9-20; 45:16, 20-46:13; Jer 10:1-16) indicate that the Israelites were attracted to worship of other gods in addition to the Lord, but exclusive covenantal fidelity was required (Deut 6:4-5).

20:33 I will be your king!: This is the only time that Ezekiel specifically says the Lord is king over the nation. But the idea of the Lord as the divine king is fundamental in the concept of covenant, and a strong theme in his prophecies (cf. Ezek 1:27-28; 34:1-31; 43:7).

20:34 out from the peoples and gather you from the countries: an expression of restoration after exile (cf. Ezekiel 11:17; 34:13). This promise reverses what is in the minds of the elders, to be like the nations in which they are exiled (Ezek 20:32).

20:34 strong hand... outstretched arm: An expression of the Lord's might (Deut 11:2; Ps 44:3; 98:1; Ezek 30:22), particularly regarding the creation (Pss 89:13; 136:12), and the exodus (Deut 4:34; 7:19; 26:8; Jer 32:21).

20:37-38 walk under the rod: a shepherd's staff that separates certain sheep out from the rest of the flock (cf. Lev 27:32).

20:40 On my holy mountain, on the high mountain in Israel: two parallel designations for Mount Zion, the location of the temple in Jerusalem (Pss 48:1-2; 78:54; 99:9; Ezek 40:2). 5

The Exile as Exodus Ezekiel 20 stands as an amazing recital of ancient Israel's history, unique in the OT. Other histories can be found, both long (Joshua through 2 Kings) and short (Pss 105–106). Ezekiel 20 stands apart by presenting a wholly negative view of Israel's past, one lacking in either righteousness on the part of the people, or peace granted by God. But Ezekiel hasn't lost confidence in God's power or intention to save the people, because the exile itself is actually portrayed as the last stage in the exodus, after which a promise of a new covenant is assured. Ezekiel begins his march through Israel's history with the first generation located in Egypt (Ezek 20:5–9). Upon their rebellion, the prophet moves this generation to a new location, the wilderness (Ezek 20:10–22), replacing them with the second generation. Ezekiel's diatribe against the second generation (Ezek 20:15–26) overlaps the setting of the wilderness, but in the end, they go into exile (Ezek 20:23–26). After an interlude (the mention of the land, Ezek 20:27–29), one section announces covenant and judgment all in the same breath (Ezek 20:30–38), followed by a concluding prediction of service to the Lord in the land (Ezek 20:39–44). This renewed service in the Lord's presence foreshadows Ezekiel's final vision (Ezek 40–48).

their finest gifts, and all their holy things. <sup>41</sup>When I bring you out from the nations and gather you from the countries where you are scattered, I will accept you as a pleasing aroma. Through you I will be made holy in the sight of the nations. <sup>42</sup>Then you will know that I am the LORD, when I bring you to Israel's fertile land, to the land that I swore to give to your ancestors. <sup>43</sup>There you will remember how your ways and all your wicked deeds defiled you, and you will loathe yourselves for all the wicked things that you've done. <sup>44</sup>Then, house of Israel, you will know that I am the LORD, when I deal with you for the sake of my name and not according to your wicked ways and ruinous deeds. This is what the LORD God says.

Fire in the southern plain

their offerings, their finest gifts, and all their holy things: priestly worship of the Lord in the Jerusalem temple. The renewal of worship in the temple summarizes what will be described in Ezekiel 40–48.

20:41 you as a pleasing aroma: While rejecting child sacrifice (cf. Ezek 20:31 and 16:20), the Lord will accept Israel as an entirely burned offering (cf. Gen 8:20–22; Lev 1:9, 13, 17; 2:2, 9, 12; 3:5, 16; 4:31; 6:15, 21; 8:21, 28; 17:6; 23:13, 18; Num 18:17). Even while predicting restoration, Ezekiel doesn't relent from promising death and horror. I will be made holy in the sight of the nations: Compare with Ezekiel 28:22, 25; 36:22–23; 38:16.

20:43 you will remember how your ways . . . defiled you: According to Ezekiel, exile taught and corrected the people, and wasn't simply a product of God's anger (cf. Ezek 14:22–23; 16:63; 36:31; 43:10–11).

20:45–49 Turmoil is coming in southern Judah from Babylon's army, and it is coming because of God's judgment on Judah.

20:46 Teman: A term for the southerly direction or side (cf. in regard to the Lord's mobile dwelling: Exod 26:18, 35; 27:9; 36:23; 38:9; in regard to the wilderness encampment: Num 2:10; 3:29; 10:6; and in Ezekiel, the southern border of the land: Ezek 47:19; 48:28). In this context, all of Judah may be in focus, but in light of the oracle against Ammon (Ezek 21:28–32), perhaps the southern region near Judah. Theologically, God's tool of punishment comes from the north and moves southward (cf. Ezek 1:4; and Jer 1:13–14; 4:6; 6:1, 22; 10:22; but the tables are turned in Ezek 38–39).

20:47 I'm about to set a fire in you: Fire as a metaphor for God's judgment is a theme in this section (cf. Ezek 21:31; 22:20, 21, 31; and see also Jer 5:14–17; 17:27; 21:14).

20:49 maker of metaphors: Another indication that Ezekiel was recognized for his eloquence, but not for his prophecy (cf. Ezek 12:21–28; and 33:30–33; but not by all—e.g., certain elders! Cf. Ezek 8:1; 14:1; 20:1; 33:31). His desire to be recognized as a prophet was important to Ezekiel (see the note on Ezek 2:5).

21:1–17 This section is unified by the motif of God's sword, which stands for the Babylonian army as the tool of the Lord's punishment of Jerusalem. After the general announcement (21:1–5), two symbolic actions follow: Ezekiel groans with sorrow (21:6–7), and an imaginative description of the sword flashing to and fro (21:8–17).

21:2 face Jerusalem: A common formula in Ezekiel,

LORD proclaims: I'm now against you! I will draw my sword from its sheath and cut off both the righteous and the wicked from you. <sup>4</sup>In order to cut off the righteous and wicked from you, my sword will go out from its sheath against everyone from south to north. <sup>5</sup>And everyone will know that I, the LORD, have taken my sword out of its sheath. It won't be put away again.

<sup>6</sup>You, human one, groan in their sight; groan bitterly with trembling knees. <sup>7</sup>If they ask you why you're groaning, say to them, "Because of the news." When it comes, every heart will despair, every hand will hang lifeless, every spirit will be listless, and urine will run down every leg. It's coming! It will happen! This is what the LORD God says.

The sword dance

A sword! A sharp and polished sword!

<sup>10</sup>For utter slaughter it is sharpened, polished to flash like lightning.

Let's not rejoice, because no one will escape the purge.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>11</sup>He appoints it for polishing, to seize in the hand.

The sword is sharpened, it is polished;
it is ready for the destroyer's hand.

for it comes against my people, against all of Israel's princes, handed over to the sword along with my people.

Therefore, strike your thigh. <sup>13</sup>He's testing.

When even the rod rejects, will it not certainly happen?*

<sup>14</sup>And you, human one, prophesy!

Strike hand to hand.

Let the sword strike twice, three times!

It's a deadly sword, a great deadly sword.

It whirls around them <sup>15</sup>to make hearts shudder, to make many stumble and fall.

I've set the slaughtering sword against all their gates.

Oh! It's crafted to flash like lightning, polished for slaughter!

I'll satisfy my wrath! I, the LORD, have spoken.

expressing God "facing off" against his opponent, the object of God's judgment (cf. Ezek 4:3, 7; 6:2; 13:17; 25:2; 28:21; 29:2; 35:2; 38:2). In this section, the prophet is commanded to set his face against the southern region (Ezek 20:45) and against Jerusalem.

21:3 my sword: a symbol of God's aggression, often combined with fire imagery (Gen 3:24; Pss 7:13; 17:13; Isa 66:16; Amos 4:10; 7:9; 9:1; Nah 2:13; 3:15).

21:6-7 groan in their sight... with trembling knees: Ezekiel shows the fear that will accompany the coming siege. Because of the news: See Ezekiel 24:26-27; 33:21. This symbolic action describes the exiles' reaction, not what will take place in Jerusalem, a switch from the subject of Ezekiel 4-5. every hand will hang lifeless: Compare with Ezekiel 7:17. It's coming: Compare with Ezekiel 7:5, 6, 10, 12.

21:12 my people: The possessive signifies a covenantal relationship (see the note on Ezek 11:17). Israel's princes: Compare with Ezekiel 12:10, 12; 19:1; 22:6. During the wilderness period, the princes were tribal leaders who reported to Moses (Exod 16:22; Num 1-2; 13:2; 17:21).<sup>1</sup> This is the term Ezekiel will use to designate the new royal figure, demoting him to the role of patron of the temple (see sidebar, "The Demotion of the King in Ezekiel" at Ezek 34). strike your thigh: a sign of lamentation (cf. Jer 31:19).

21:13 even the rod rejects: The text is obscure. Perhaps: the mention of the rod should be read in context with; Ezekiel 20:37.

21:14 Strike hand to hand: gestures accompanying prophetic denunciations (cf. Ezek 6:11 and Ezek 22:13).

Guilt remembered

<sup>18</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>19</sup>You, human one, mark two roads for the coming of the sword of the king of Babylon. They should diverge from a single country. Where the road to the city begins, set up a sign, <sup>20</sup>and point out the way for the sword to come: "To Rabbah of the Ammonites" or "To Judah in its stronghold Jerusalem." <sup>21</sup>The king of Babylon stands at the fork in the road where the two roads begin and performs his divinations. He shakes the arrows, consults the divine images, and inspects the liver. <sup>22</sup>On his right side appeared the omen for Jerusalem: to put battering rams in place, to proclaim war and raise the alarm, to place battering rams against the gates, and to set up siege ramps and build towers. <sup>23</sup>It seems to them like a lying divination, because solemn pledges had been sworn to them. But he will remind them of their guilt, and they will be captured.

<sup>24</sup>So the LORD God proclaims: Now that you have remembered your guilt and your treacheries are exposed, your sins can be seen in everything you do. Because you have brought your guilt to light, you will be captured! <sup>25</sup>But you vile, wicked prince of Israel whose day has come, the time of final punishment, <sup>26</sup>this is what the LORD God says: Remove the turban, take off the crown! Nothing will be as it was. Bring down the exalted, and exalt the lowly. <sup>27</sup>A ruin, ruin, ruin, I'll make it! Such a thing has never happened! Even before the rightful judge comes, I've handed it over to him.

Avenging Ammon's disgrace

21:18-27 In another symbolic action, Ezekiel says that it is the Lord who directs Nebuchadnezzar's sword toward Jerusalem and away from Ammon.

21:18-20 mark two roads: This is a symbolic action, in which, much like modeling a city out of a brick (cf. Ezek 4:1-3), Ezekiel models roads and direction markers in the dirt all the while remaining in Babylon.

21:20 Rabbah: the capital city of the Ammonites. In the early 6th century BCE, the Ammonites apparently rebelled against Babylon, perhaps at the same time as Judah's rebellion. The report in Jeremiah 41 indicates that the Ammonites supported the coup against Gedaliah, the Babylonian appointed governor of the land.

21:21 shakes the arrows, consults the divine images, and inspects the liver: These were all common, established forms of predicting future events (known as divination) in the ancient Near Eastern world, but were generally rejected as unacceptable in ancient Israel (Deut 18:10, 14; 1 Sam 15:23; 2 Kgs 17:17; Isa 6:2). In this instance, however, Ezekiel says that the Lord of Israel will speak through such practices.

21:23 It seems to them: It's unclear who "them" refers to, but it may mean Israel's princes (Ezek 21:12, 25). solemn pledges: could be those made by Zedekiah with Babylon or newer pledges with Egypt (cf. Ezek 17:13). he will remind them: Nebuchadnezzar will remind those still in the land of their guilt (in Ezek 21:24-25; and cf. Ezek 14:22-23; 16:63; 20:43).

21:26-27 Nothing will be as it was: another expression of the future stated in Ezekiel 7. ruin, ruin, ruin: recalls Jeremiah's speech against the Jerusalem temple (Jer 7:4), in which he compares it to the ruined sanctuary of Shiloh (Jer 7:12-15; 26:9). the rightful judge: Nebuchadnezzar (Ezek 21:21).

21:26 Remove the turban: This headdress identified holders of high offices in ancient Israel (cf. Exod 28:4; 29:6; Lev 8:9; 16:4; and Ezek 24:17, 23; 44:18).

21:28-32 Multiple interpretations of these verses are possible, because it isn't clear to whom the pronouns and descriptive phrases refer. Verse 28 directs this prophecy against Ammon, so perhaps Ezekiel announces that while God has chosen Nebuchadnezzar to be his sword against Jerusalem and Judah, Ammon wasn't selected in their place. The prophet will return to this subject in Ezekiel 25:1-7.

21:29 False visions and lying divinations: The divinations given to Nebuchadnezzar (Ezek 21:21) were true and only seemed like "lying divinations" to Israel's princes (Ezek 21:23), but Ezekiel says the divinations given to the Ammonites are false. vile, wicked men: These must be the princes and people (Ezek 21:12, 25). Ezekiel doesn't relent from his condemnation of the inhabitants of Jerusalem; indeed, they deserved their defeat. Still, only the Babylonians, not the Ammonites, were preferred by the Lord to implement this just sentence.

21:32 you will no longer be remembered: This is a statement of extinction (cf. Ezek 27:36; 28:19). In the ancient Near East, the dead lived on through memorial stones, on which their names were inscribed. Though it isn't the prophet's focus here, he spares the exiles, the remaining few of God's elect, this fate (cf. Ezek 37:1-14).

22The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>You, human one, will you judge? Will you judge the bloody city? Then explain all her detestable practices to her. <sup>3</sup>Say, The LORD God proclaims: City, self-destructive blood-letter, self-defiling idol maker: <sup>4</sup>All the blood that you've shed is your punishment, and all the idols that you've made are your defilement. This is how you've shortened your days and hastened the end<sup>m</sup> of your years! For this reason I've given you over to the ridicule of nations and the derision of every land. <sup>5</sup>Those from near and far will mock your infamous name and great chaos. <sup>6</sup>Look, Israel's princes, every one of them, have joined forces to shed blood in you. <sup>7</sup>In you they treat father and mother with contempt. In you they oppress immigrants and deny the rights of orphans and widows. <sup>8</sup>You despise my holy things and degrade my sabbaths. <sup>9</sup>In you slanderers show up to shed blood. In you they eat on the mountains. In you they do obscene things. <sup>10</sup>In you a father's nakedness is uncovered. In you menstruating women are violated. <sup>11</sup>Every man engages in detestable practices with his neighbor's wife, every man defiles his daughter-in-law with obscene acts, and every man violates his sister, his own father's daughter. <sup>12</sup>In you they take bribes to shed blood. You collect interest and fees, you profit by extorting your neighbor, and you neglect even me! This is what the LORD God says.

<sup>13</sup>I now strike my hands over your ill-gotten gain and blood that's been shed in you. <sup>14</sup>Will your strength and courage endure when I deal with you? I am the LORD: I speak, and I act! <sup>15</sup>I will scatter you among the nations and disperse you throughout the lands, and so I will remove your uncleanness from you. <sup>16</sup>When you are degraded<sup>n</sup> like this in the sight of the nations, then you will know that I am the LORD.

<sup>17</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>18</sup>Human one, the house of Israel has become a waste product for me. They are all copper, tin, iron, and lead. In the furnace, they've become the waste product of silver. <sup>19</sup>So this is what the LORD God says: Because you've all become a waste product, I'm now gathering you into the middle of Jerusalem. <sup>20</sup>Just as silver, copper, iron, lead, and tin are collected and placed in a furnace to fan the flames under them and melt them down, so in my anger and rage I will collect you, put you in, and melt you down. <sup>21</sup>I will gather you, fan the flames of my wrath under you, and melt you down in the middle of it. <sup>22</sup>As silver is melted in a furnace, so you will be melted in it. You will know that I, the LORD, have poured out my rage on you.

22:1-31 This chapter preserves three of Ezekiel's oracles, loosely collected around the theme of burning and purging. The first oracle (22:1-16), judges the city of Jerusalem for worship practices and defilement. A word targeting the house of Israel follows (22:17-22), and was constructed on the theme of a cooking pot. The final prophecy (22:23-31) is hurled against the land, said to be unclean, due to the practices of its leaders.

22:2 will you judge?: a command in the form of a question. Compare with Ezekiel 8:6; 20:4; 23:36; 37:3.

22:3-4 blood: Blood played a special role for priests. It was believed to contain a person's life (Gen 9:1-6; Lev 17:11; Deut 12:23), which made it a powerful marker of life and death, order and chaos (cf. Exod 12:7, 13, 22-23). This gave blood its power in reconciling the people with God through sacrificial services (Lev 1:4-5; 3:2, 8, 13; 4:4-5, 15-16, 24-25, 29-30). In this chapter, however, the unlawful shedding of blood made it into a defiling agent (cf. Lev 12:1-8; 20:18; Num 35:33-34; and in regard specifically to murder, cf. Gen 4:10; Deut 21:1-9; 2 Sam 16:8; for Jerusalem as a city of murderers, see Isa 1:21).

22:4-5 the end of your years: Again, a reference to the end of an age for Jerusalem. See the note on Ezekiel 7:1-27. ridicule of nations: Punishment involves the shaming of the nation (cf. Ezek 5:14-15; 36:22-23).

22:7-12 Ezekiel runs through a catalog of sins (cf. Ezek 18:5-9; Amos 2:7-8), some of which involve unauthorized use of blood, but all of which are covenantal instructions father and mother. Compare with Exodus 20:12; Deuteronomy 5:16. immigrants . . . orphans and widows: These three classes of persons were the most vulnerable because they weren't protected by patriarchal relationships (cf. Deut 14:29; 24:19-22; 26:12-13; Jer 7:6; 22:3; Amos 2:7). Together with the reference to father and mother, Ezekiel presents all of the citizens as being mistreated by the powerful princes (Ezek 22:6).

22:9 eat on the mountains . . . do obscene things: A two-sentence restatement of Ezekiel 16:1-58 and Ezek 23.

22:10-11 See Leviticus 18 for a list of sexual prohibitions which Ezekiel says have been violated.

22:12 bribes . . . interest and fees . . . extorting your neighbors: financial corruption (cf. Exod 22:25; Lev 25:36-37; Deut 16:19; 23:19-20; Amos 2:8).

22:17-22 Ezekiel updates the image of Jerusalem as a cooking pot with choice meat within (cf. Ezek 11:2-12, 24:1-14). This oracle is directed against the house of Israel (22:17; cf. Ezek 11:5; and see the note on Ezek 3:1), which may refer to the city leaders, who are in view in Ezekiel 11 and in the following passage. In any case, the house of Israel is identified as dross that is consumed in the fire that melts the pot, Jerusalem (22:19, and cf. Ezek 11:3). The point is that the cooking pot is destroyed, not that it is purified or that any part of it remains to be refashioned into a new utensil.

Two sisters

23 The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, there were two women, daughters of one woman. <sup>3</sup>When they were girls in Egypt, they began to prostitute themselves by allowing their young and nubile breasts to be touched and fondled. <sup>4</sup>The older sister was named Oholah, and the younger sister was named Oholibah. They became mine and gave birth to sons and daughters. Now Oholah is Samaria, and Oholibah is Jerusalem. <sup>5</sup>But Oholah became unfaithful to me and lusted after her lovers the Assyrians: <sup>6</sup>warriors dressed in fine blue cloth, governors and officers, charioteers and horsemen, all of them the most handsome of men. <sup>7</sup>She sought them out to seduce them, all of them men of the highest rank of Assyria. She defiled herself by everyone she lusted after and also by all their idols. <sup>8</sup>But she never gave up her promiscuities with the Egyptians, who had slept with her in her girlhood and fondled her nubile breasts, and who continued to seduce her. <sup>9</sup>Therefore, I handed her over to her lovers, to the Assyrians for whom she lusted. <sup>10</sup>They stripped her naked, took her sons and daughters, and killed her with the sword. And she became notorious among women for the punishments they enacted against her.

22:23-31 These lines declare the reason the land is suffering (cf. Ezek 6). It is unclean because of the conspiracy of its leaders: princes (22:25), priests (22:26), officials (22:27), prophets (22:28), and "important people of the land" (22:29). Their failures correspond roughly with the list of sins in Ezekiel 22:7-12.

22:28, 30 whitewashed everything... to repair the wall: These two verses pull together all the ways that Ezekiel has confronted opposing prophets and defended his own prophetic calling (cf. Ezek 2:5; 3:11, 26; 13:6-7, 12).

22:29 important people of the land: The "people of the land" is a proper noun in the OT for a group of leaders, perhaps a class of influential officials. At times, they were viewed favorably, such as when they installed Josiah as king (2 Kgs 21:24 // 2 Chron 33:25). They were not, however, viewed favorably by Ezekiel (cf. Ezek 7:27). In the post-exilic period, this term designated a party that opposed Ezra and his fellow priests (Ezra 4:4).

23:1-49 A second set of extended metaphors depicting Jerusalem as a prostitute. This time Samaria, the capital of the northern kingdom (cf. Jer 3:6-11), is also included. After a brief introduction (23:1-4), the chapter presents two metaphorical depictions. The first (23:5-36) accuses and judges first Samaria (Oholah; 23:5-10) and then Jerusalem (23:11-35). A second metaphor paints another scathing portrait of the two sisters together (23:36-45), followed by God's judgment (23:46-49). The metaphors here focus on political alliances. The mention of Samaria, a city long destroyed by Ezekiel's day, serves only a rhetorical function, underscoring the fate of Jerusalem, not in any way as a prophetic word for the northern capital.

23:3 When they were girls in Egypt: Ezekiel locates the origins of Jerusalem and Samaria in Egypt, recalling the revised history narrated in Ezekiel 20. The metaphor of Ezekiel 16 restricted Jerusalem's heritage to Canaan.

23:4 Oholah: The name means "her tent." Oholibah: the name means "my tent is with her." The divine dwelling is in some texts associated with the "meeting tent" (e.g., Exod 26; 31:7; Lev 14:11; Num 16:19; 20:6), perhaps endowing these feminine names with the sense of God's sanctuary. Oholah may imply that Samaria set up its own meeting tent, without regard to the Lord's presence there. Oholibah may suggest that the Lord's sanctuary was in Jerusalem. On the other hand, the names are similar in sound, and the point of the story is the promiscuity of both cities, so perhaps names were selected merely to join the two sisters together.

23:5-10 This section is about the political alliances that the northern kingdom had with Assyria (23:5-7) and Egypt (23:8), which ended in 720 BCE, when Assyrian kings besieged Samaria and removed its citizens to various regions across its territory (Ezek 23:9-10; cf. 2 Kgs 17:1-6).

seductions. <sup>12</sup>She lusted after the Assyrians, governors and officers, warriors richly clothed, charioteers and horsemen, all of them the most handsome of men. <sup>13</sup>I saw that she too defiled herself. Both had the same tendencies, <sup>14</sup>but she was even more promiscuous. She saw men carved in wall reliefs, images of Chaldeans outlined in vermilion, <sup>15</sup>wearing only loincloths around their hips and flowing headbands on their heads. All of them had the appearance of warriors of the third rank, the likeness of Babylonians whose native land is Chaldea. <sup>16</sup>Aroused just by looking at them, she sent messengers to them in Chaldea. <sup>17</sup>The Babylonians came to her to lie down and make love with her, defiling her with their seductions. But once she had defiled herself with them, she recoiled from them in disgust. <sup>18</sup>When her seductions became known and her nakedness exposed, I recoiled from her just as I had recoiled from her sister. <sup>19</sup>But she added to her promiscuities, bringing to mind her youthful days when she was a prostitute in the land of Egypt. <sup>20</sup>She lusted after their male consorts, whose sexual organs were like those of donkeys, and whose ejaculation was like that of horses. <sup>21</sup>She relived the wicked days of her youth, when the Egyptians touched and fondled her young and nubile breasts.

<sup>22</sup>So Oholibah, the LORD God proclaims: I'm now inciting your lovers against you, all those from whom you recoiled, and I will bring them against you from all around—<sup>23</sup>Babylonians and all the Chaldeans, Pekod and Shoa and Koa, all the Assyrians with them, the most handsome young men, all of them governors and officers, career officers and conscripts, all of them on horseback. <sup>24</sup>They will come against you with weapons,<sup>p</sup> chariots, and wagons, and with a great army, with shield, buckler, and helmet; and they will surround you. I will hand your punishment over to them, and they will judge you according to their laws. <sup>25</sup>I will direct my passion against you, and they will deal with you in wrath. They will cut off your nose and ears, and those who are left will fall by the sword. They will seize your sons and daughters, and those who are left will be burned with fire. <sup>26</sup>They will strip your clothing from you and remove your beautiful crown. <sup>27</sup>That's how I will put an end to your lewdness and your Egyptian-styled promiscuity. Never again will you stare at them, and you won't remember Egypt anymore. <sup>28</sup>The LORD God proclaims: I'm now handing you over to those whom you hate and from whom you recoil. <sup>29</sup>They will deal hatefully with you: They will seize your pay and leave you completely naked. Your promiscuity, betrayal, and seductions will be exposed. <sup>30</sup>This will be done to you because you sold yourself to the nations and became defiled by their idols. <sup>31</sup>You followed in your sister's path, so I have put her cup into your hand.

Deep and wide is your sister's cup. Drink!

Appointed for abuse and scorn, it overflows.

<sup>33</sup>You will be filled with drunken sadness.

A cup of devastation and dismay is the cup of your sister Samaria.

<sup>34</sup>Drink it, drain it dry, break it into pieces, and tear off your breasts, for I have spoken.

This is what the LORD God says.

<sup>35</sup>So now the LORD God proclaims: Because you forgot me and turned your back on me, you alone will bear the consequences of your betrayal and promiscuities.

<sup>36</sup>Then the LORD said to me, Human one, judge Oholah and Oholibah, and make known her seductions: The point of the narrative is to emphasize Jerusalem's infidelities over Samaria's. For this reason, the prophet went into greater detail in his accusation (Ezek 23:11-21), as well as his judgment (23:22-35).

23:12-13 Assyrians: Judah first asked for Tiglath-Pileser III's military assistance to protect them from a Syrian-Israel alliance in the mid-to-late 730s (cf. Isa 8:5-8). Assyrian presence was felt in the land until that nation's downfall in 612 BCE. With this presence, in varying degrees, elements of the Assyrian worship practices existed in the Jerusalem temple (cf. 2 Kgs 21:1-9).

23:14-18 Chaldeans . . . Babylonians: Hezekiah is reported to have invited Babylonian envoys into the temple, revealing its wealth (cf. 2 Kgs 20:12-19 // Isa 39:1-8).

23:20-21 Egyptians: Alluding to the pro-Egyptian sentiment prominent in the politics of the final decades of Judah's history, which resulted in the alliance with Egypt in 588-587 BCE.

23:25-26 They will cut off our nose and ears: This, and what follows, is a double entendre. On the one hand, the beautiful Oholibah is made ugly, stripped, and shamed. It is also precisely what happened in siege warfare, boastfully portrayed on the wall reliefs of Mesopotamian palaces.

23:32-34 your sister's cup. Drink! Ezekiel depicts God's punishment as a poisonous brew (cf. Pss 11:6; 75:8; Jer 25:15-29; 49:12; 51:7; Hab 2:15-17).

23:36-49 This second parable treats Oholah and Oholibah together (23:36, 44).

their detestable practices to them. <sup>37</sup>They committed adultery, so now blood is on their hands. They committed adultery with their idols, and they even took their children whom they had borne to me and offered them up to be consumed for them. <sup>38</sup>They also did this to me: On the same day, they made my sanctuary unclean and made my sabbaths impure. <sup>39</sup>When they slaughtered their children for their idols, they came into my sanctuary and made it impure on that very same day. They actually did this inside my temple. <sup>40</sup>They even sent for men who came from a great distance. No sooner than a messenger was sent, they arrived! For these men you bathed, you painted your eyes, and you put on your jewelry. <sup>41</sup>You took your place on a splendid couch with a richly set table in front of it, and you set my incense and my oil on it. <sup>42</sup>The sound of a noisy crowd was around her. Men from the common multitude, drinkers of wine, were brought from the desert. They put bracelets on their wrists and beautiful crowns on their heads. <sup>43</sup>Then I thought, For a foolish woman they become adulterers! Incited by her seduction, they prostitute themselves—for her!<sup>9</sup> <sup>44</sup>They come as if coming to a prostitute, first to Oholah, and then to Oholibah, those traitorous women. <sup>45</sup>But men who do the right thing will judge them, and they will be punished as adulterers and murderers, because they are in fact adulterers, and blood is on their hands.

The useless pot

24 In the ninth year, on the tenth day of the tenth month, the LORD's word came to me: <sup>1</sup>Human one, write down today's date, because today the king of Babylon has set up camp at Jerusalem—today! <sup>2</sup>Compose a parable for the rebels' household and say to them, The LORD God proclaims:

Put on the pot, set it on, and fill it with water.

With shoulder and thigh, the meatiest bones, fill it up.

arrange the wood<sup>f</sup> beneath it.

Bring it to a rolling boil, and cook its bones in it.

23:37-39 inside my temple: These verses carry the same content as the detailed vision of Ezekiel 8.

23:45 men who do the right thing: Most interpreters take these men to be the very men with whom the sisters have committed adultery (likewise Ezek 16:37). Ancient Israelite law held men caught in adultery accountable alongside women (Deut 22:22-29). The point seems to be that their judgment will be justified by the inappropriate sexual behaviors of the sisters.

23:46-49 Bring up an assembly: The final judgment again draws upon a public trial and execution of the sisters (see the note on Ezek 16:37-41; and cf. Lev 20:10; Deut 22:22-24).
24:1 ninth year, on the tenth day of the tenth month: January 15, 588 BCE; the day when Nebuchadnezzar began his siege of Jerusalem (cf. 2 Kgs 25:1; Jer 39:1).

24:3 Compose a parable: Compare with Ezekiel 17:2; 18:3; and recall Ezekiel 21:49. rebels' household: Compare with Ezekiel 2:1-3:27; 12:2, 9, 25.

24:4-5 The ceremony described here is the preparation of a sacrificial meal by a priest (cf. Exod 29:17, 31; Lev 1:6, 12; 8:20). Ezekiel may have acted this prophecy out, but his offering has an ironic twist. The meat being sacrificed is the house of Israel (cf. Ezek 20:41).

24:6-8 The offering (the house of Israel) is rejected because of defilement, found both in the corrosion of the pot and the blood in the meat (see the note on Ezek 22:3-4). Once deemed defiled, the offering must be abandoned to scavengers. To bury it properly would have defiled those already properly buried. This image would have expressed to Ezekiel's audience the failure to bury the corpses after the fall of Jerusalem, which was a curse (cf. 1 Kgs 14:11; 21:23-24; 2 Kgs 9:34-37; Jer 16:4; 34:19-20; Ezek 37:1-14; 39:11-20), since it cut off the dead from continued association with both the ancestors and living descendants (see the sidebar, "Death and Afterlife in the Ancient Near East" at Ezek 32). bare rock: The temple stood on the

Ezekiel's wife dies

<sup>15</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>16</sup>Human one, I am about to take the delight of your eyes away from you in a single stroke. Don't mourn or weep. Don't even let your tears well up. <sup>17</sup>Sigh inwardly; be deathly still. Don't perform mourning rites, but bind on your turban and put your shoes on your feet. And don't cover your upper lip or eat in human company.

<sup>18</sup>I spoke with the people in the morning, and by evening my wife was dead. The next morning I did as I was commanded. <sup>19</sup>The people asked, "Won't you tell us what your actions mean for us?"

<sup>20</sup>So I said to them, The LORD's word came to me: <sup>21</sup>Say to the house of Israel, the LORD God proclaims: I'm about to make my sanctuary impure, the pride of your strength, the delight of your eyes. Your heart's desire, the sons and daughters you left behind, will fall by the sword. <sup>22</sup>You will do as I have done. You will neither cover your upper lip nor eat in human company. <sup>23</sup>Your turbans will be on your heads, your sandals on your feet. You won't mourn or weep. You will waste away in your guilt, all of you groaning to each other. <sup>24</sup>Ezekiel is your sign. You will do everything that he has done. When this happens, you will know that I am the LORD God.

<sup>25</sup>And you, human one: On the day that I take from them their proud stronghold—their crowning joy, the delight of their eyes—and their sons and daughters, whose fate weighs on them, <sup>26</sup>on that day, a refugee will come to you so that you yourself will hear the news. <sup>27</sup>On that day your mouth will be opened to the refugee, and you will speak and no longer be silent. You will be their sign, and they will know that I am the LORD.

Against the neighboring nations

25 The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, face the Ammonites and prophesy against them. <sup>3</sup>Say to the Ammonites: Hear the LORD God's word! The LORD God proclaims:

top of Mount Zion, a rocky outcropping that can still be seen today within the Dome of the Rock. Ezekiel's expression here denies any holiness to Mount Zion, relegating it instead to ordinary ground. For a more detailed, explicit portrayal of the temple serving as a morgue, see Ezekiel 9. 24:14 It's coming: recalling Ezekiel 7, a reference to the end of this era of Jerusalem's service as the location of God's presence.

24:15-27 Ezekiel's wife dies in this passage, by which God illustrates the death of God's wife, Jerusalem (cf. Ezek 16:8; 23:4). The prophecies of Ezekiel pivot around this passage, because at the very point when Ezekiel receives his prophetic voice (24:25-27; 33:21-22), he begins to see a future with hope of God's blessings (cf. Ezek 37:1-14; 37:26-28; 43:1-7; 47:1-12; 48:35).

24:17 Don't perform mourning rites: Mourning for the dead was performed publicly, and not to do so insulted the dead as well as the living (cf. 1 Kgs 14:13; Jer 16:4, 6; 22:18; 25:33; 34:5; Ezek 26:15-18; 27:30-32; 32:16). Such rituals, lasting varying lengths of time (cf. Gen 50:10; Num 20:29; Deut 34:8; 1 Sam 31:13; 1 Chron 10:12), involved behaviors otherwise deemed asocial, such as the tearing of clothing, shaving, and smearing one's self with dirt or ashes (Job 1:20; 2:12). Ezekiel is specifically commanded to refrain from performing any of these behaviors, thereby shocking his audience, because his own self becomes a symbolic action (Ezek 24:24, 27).

24:23 turbans will be on your heads: This act contrasts with the removal of the prince's turban in Ezekiel 21:26. Ezekiel counseled the demotion of the prince (see sidebar, "The Demotion of the King in Ezekiel" at Ezek 34) and the Jerusalem officials in general. By wearing their turbans, the community continued in their offices (cf. Ezek 44:18). At the center of this symbolic action was the announcement that the new leadership for the next era would come from exile (see the note on Ezek 11:1-21).

24:26-27 a refugee: This is an explicit reference to Ezekiel 33:21. At that time, Ezekiel was recommissioned as a sentinel (Ezek 33:1-9), his mouth was opened (cf. Ezek 33:22), all of which combine to create a pivot in Ezekiel's prophecies (cf. the note on Ezek 2:5; and cf. Ezek 3:16-21, 26-27).

25:1-17 The first set of oracles against the nations (see

You laughed when my sanctuary was degraded, when Israel's fertile land was laid waste, and when the house of Judah went into exile; <sup>4</sup>therefore, I'm handing you over to people in the east for them to take possession. They will set up their encampments against you, establish residence, devour your fruit, and drink your milk. <sup>5</sup>I'll make Rabbah into pastureland for camels and Ammon a resting place for flocks. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

<sup>6</sup>The LORD God proclaims: Because you clapped your hands and stamped your feet when you rejoiced with utter contempt for Israel's fertile land, <sup>7</sup>I'm about to overpower you. Nations will plunder you. I will cut you off from the peoples, remove you from the lands, and utterly destroy you. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

<sup>12</sup>The LORD God proclaims: Edom acted with excessive force against the house of Judah. The Judeans were guilty, but Edom's vengeance was excessive. <sup>13</sup>So the LORD God now proclaims: I'll overpower Edom, eliminate all living creatures, and make it a wasteland from Teman to Dedan. They will fall by the sword. <sup>14</sup>I will execute my vengeance in Edom through

Oracles Against the Nations In most of the prophetic books in the Bible, oracles are directed against nations or kingdoms other than Judah or Israel. Ezekiel made great use of this genre in chapters 25–32 and 35, targeting Ammon, Moab, Edom, Philistia, Tyre, Sidon, and Egypt—but never Babylon! No one from any nation against which Ezekiel prophesied could have heard his prophetic declarations: Ezekiel prophesied to the exiles by the Chebar River, which is in Babylon. Within these oracles against other nations, Ezekiel was actually delivering a message about the fate of Jerusalem, Judah, and his own people. The key to hearing these oracles is to understand the role that the stated nations played in the events surrounding the fall of Jerusalem. Prior to the fall, when Egypt seemed to have promised protection from Babylon, Ezekiel prophesied the defeat of Egypt. After 587 BCE, Edom sought to profit from Judah's downfall. So when Ezekiel constructed a message of restoration, he singled out this desert nation for condemnation. By knowing the situation and relationship to the fall of Jerusalem and the temple, Ezekiel's audience would have had no difficulty understanding the judgment speech targeting the nations.

sidebar, "Oracles Against the Nations") are addressed to Judah's closest neighbors, Ammon (25:1-7), Moab (25:8-11), Edom (25:12-14), and Philistia (25:15-17). All four are formulaic, with an accusation, an announcement of judgment, and concluding with a statement that the nations will recognize the honor due the Lord (see sidebar, "The Recognition Formula" at Ezek 6), except in the case of Edom (Ezek 25:14). The real point behind these oracles is the Lord's, and thus Israel's (constituted by the exilic community), rightful claim to the land, and the Lord's honor tied up with the nation's peaceful and prosperous possession of it (cf. Ezek 35:10, 12, 13; 36:4, 5). As such, these all proclaim restoration to the exiles.

25:1-7 Ezekiel levels two oracles against Ammon (25:2-5, 6-7; cf. Jer 49:1-6; Ezek 21:28-32; Amos 1:13-15; Zeph 2:8-11), Judah's eastern neighbor, located in the transjordanian highlands. The biblical tradition remembers Ammon as a vassal kingdom under David and Solomon (cf. 2 Sam 10:2), but Ammon supported the coup against Gedaliah after the fall of Jerusalem (cf. Jer 40:14). Ezekiel's oracle here may reflect these events, as well as the memory of the Davidic dynasty's theological claim on Ammon.

25:3, 6 You laughed: The issue is the sanctuary's honor in the international community (see the note on Ezek 5:14-15). my sanctuary: Compare with Ezekiel 8:6; 23:38-39;

24:21. This oracle promises reclamation and cleansing of the Lord's sanctuary (cf. Ezek 37:26-28; 43:1-9; 48:35). clapped your hands and stamped your feet: gestures of celebration over the expansion of the Ammonites' territory to the west (cf. Ezek 6:11; Ps 47:1; Lam 2:15; Nah 3:19).

25:4 people in the east: referring to nomadic tribes that traveled the desert of the Saudi Arabian peninsula. Assyrian texts also mention trouble from such tribes, who would raid settled lands.

25:8-11 Ezekiel next targets the nation of Moab, a land just south of Ammon, and across the Dead Sea from Judah (cf. Isa 15:1-16:13; Jer 48:1-47; Ezek 35:1-15; Amos 2:1-3; Zeph 2:8-11). Though often dominated by Israel, Moab's King Meshah boasted of winning his independence from the Omrides. The accusation (25:8) challenges the joy felt by the belief that Israel, now in exile, has been absorbed into Babylon and Mesopotamia (cf. Ezek 20:32). Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon, and Kiriathaim all sat northeast of the Dead Sea.

25:8 Seir: a mountain region in Edom, southeast of the Dead Sea. Some evidence associates it with ancient, pre-Israelite worship of the Lord (cf. Deut 33:2; Judg 5:4; Ezek 35). 25:12-14 As hate-filled as Ezekiel's oracles against the other nations are, he reserved special bitterness for Edom (see also Ps 137; Isa 34:1-17; Jer 49:7-22; Ezek 35:1-17; Amos 1:11-12; Obad). Edom appears to have either joined my people Israel's power. They will act in Edom according to my anger and fury, and they will know my vengeance. This is what the LORD God says.

Against Tyre

26 In the eleventh year, on the first day of the month, the LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, because Tyre laughed at Jerusalem:

"The gate of the peoples is broken, she lies open before me,
she is destroyed, but I will succeed!"

<sup>3</sup>The LORD God now proclaims:
Tyre, I'm now against you!

Just as the sea hurls up its waves,
I will bring many nations up against you.

<sup>4</sup>When they destroy the walls of Tyre and throw down its towers,
I will scrape off all its dirt and make it into a bare rock, <sup>5</sup>a place for drying nets in the middle of the sea.

I have spoken! This is what the LORD God says.

It will become prey for the nations,

<sup>6</sup>and its towns around it will be put to the sword.
Then they will know that I am the LORD.

<sup>7</sup>The LORD God proclaims:

I'm bringing Nebuchadrezzar against Tyre, the king of Babylon from the north, the greatest of all kings, with horses, chariots, and charioteers, an assembly, a great army.

<sup>8</sup>The towns around you he will destroy with the sword.

Then he will build towers against you, erect siege ramps against you, and set up shields.

<sup>9</sup>He will pound his battering ram against your walls;
with crowbars he will tear down your towers.

forces with Babylon, or at least profited when Babylon emptied the southern regions of Judah. Archaeological and textual evidence agree that Edom invaded the arid southern plain in the late 7th or early 6th centuries BCE.

25:15-17 Philistia may actually have fallen before Jerusalem did, and thus this oracle may offer theological reflections from the time of Saul and the rise of David rather than historical insult. Such a situation only emphasizes Ezekiel's theological interests behind these oracles—to announce the Lord's restoration of Israel in the land.

26:1-28:19 More than any other prophet, Ezekiel poured out his anger against Tyre (cf. Isa 22; Amos 2). Tyre was an island city, which provided it with a natural defense against any enemy. Not until Alexander the Great (332 BCE) built a causeway out to it was it defeated (see the note on Ezek 29:17-21). During the siege of Jerusalem, Tyre remained neutral, so it isn't clear why Ezekiel was so angry. Whatever the reason, Ezekiel clearly viewed Tyre as a theological threat for his exilic community. Its demise would have been viewed in some respect as God's salvation to the exiles.

26:1-21; 27:1-36 The prophecies against Tyre are a complex four-part literary piece. The first part (26:1-21) is a judgment oracle directed against the city. A lament over the city, metaphorically presented as a sunken ship, is paired with this judgment oracle (27:1-36).

26:2 because Tyre laughed: Its mockery of fallen Jerusalem is the basis for the prophet's judgment of Tyre. So stated, the issue touches again on honor and shame. The gate of the peoples: though clear to Ezekiel's audience, this reference has now been lost. I will succeed!: Competition over prestige, commerce, or perhaps mere survival was at the heart of Tyre's joy over Jerusalem's fall.

26:3-5 as the sea hurls up its waves... in the middle of the sea: Ezekiel used the sea here in a cosmic sense; the sea represented all the chaotic forces (cf. Ps 74:13-14; Isa 27:1).

26:4, 14 bare rock: The same fate met by fallen Jerusalem (cf. Ezek 24:7).

26:7-14 Tyre was supported by dependent towns on the shore, which supplied food to the island city. In focus here is Nebuchadrezzar's attempt to starve Tyre by destroying its sister-cities on the shore. For similar imagery of an invading army, see Nahum 2:1-10.

<sup>10</sup>The dust from all his horses will cover you when he enters your gates as one who enters a breached city.
Your walls will quake at the thundering of the charioteers and chariot wheels.

<sup>11</sup>His horses' hooves will trample all your courtyards;
he will cut down your people with the sword, and the monuments to your strength he will bring down<sup>f</sup> to the ground.

<sup>12</sup>They will destroy your wealth, plunder your goods, tear down your walls, and raze your fine houses.
Your stone, lumber, and rubble they will dump into the sea.

<sup>13</sup>I will bring an end to your cacophonous songs;
the sound of your lyres will never be heard again.

<sup>14</sup>I will make you into a bare rock, a place for drying nets, and you will never be rebuilt.
I, the LORD, have spoken.
This is what the LORD God says.

A lament for Tyre

<sup>15</sup>The LORD God proclaims to Tyre: Won't the coastlands quake at the news of your downfall, when the wounded groan, and when the slaughter in your midst goes on and on? <sup>16</sup>All the princes of the sea will come down from their thrones, remove their royal robes, and strip off their fine garments. They will be clothed only in terror as they sit on the ground. They will be so terrified, they won't stop shuddering because of you. <sup>17</sup>They will sing a lament for you, and they will say:

How you have perished, queen of the sea, city once praised, who once dominated the sea, she and her rulers, who spread their terror abroad, every one of them.

Your expulsion horrifies the islands of the sea.

<sup>19</sup>The LORD God proclaims: When I turn you into ruins like uninhabitable cities, when the deep sea washes over you and the raging seas cover you, <sup>20</sup>I will lead you down into the pit, to the everlasting people. I will install you in the world below,<sup>g</sup> in the everlasting ruins, with those who go down to the pit. And so you will neither rule nor radiate splendor in the land of the living. <sup>21</sup>I will terrify you, and you will disappear. You will be sought but never found again. This is what the LORD God says.

Tyre, the ship of state

27The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>You, human one, sing a lament for Tyre. <sup>3</sup>Say this about Tyre, who sits enthroned at the entrance to the sea, the people's agent for trade throughout the coastlands. The LORD God proclaims:

Tyre, you say,
"I'm perfectly beautiful!"

<sup>f</sup>LXX, MT it will fall <sup>g</sup>Or the land of the lowest places

26:15-21 A brief lament over Tyre (cf. Ezek 19:1-14; 27:1-36; 28:11-19; 32:1-16, 17-32), followed by a concluding summary of the judgment on Tyre.

26:16-17 princes of the sea . . . queen of the sea: The princes are Tyre's trade partners; Tyre is exalted over them. All rule over the sea, which is a double entendre. On the one hand, it is the Mediterranean Sea, but at the same time it represents the chaotic forces opposing the Lord who created ordered living space (cf. Gen 1). As queen of the sea, Ezekiel draws a parallel with Jerusalem, the wife of the Lord (Ezek 16 and 23). But the power to whom Tyre is married—chaos—opposes life, absorbing it into nonexistence, which finally will also be Tyre's fate (cf. 26:19-20).

27:1-36 Laments over the destruction of a city filled the literature of Ezekiel's day. See now the book of Lamentations, but also the lamentations over the ancient city of Ur (3rd millennium BCE). Throughout his prophecies, Ezekiel uses this genre sarcastically.

27:3 enthroned at the entrance to the sea: As an island and port city, Tyre literally sat at the entrance to the Mediterranean, but Ezekiel also intends to mock Tyre. Only God has the power to hold back the chaotic sea from ordered space (Gen 1:6-10; Job 38:4-11; 74:12-17), and so here, Ezekiel derisively sets Tyre on the throne of God. I'm perfectly beautiful: Ezekiel attributes to Tyre speech that should only properly be said of Jerusalem (Ps 48:2; Lam 2:15),

and it's your builders who made you beautiful.

To make your mast, they took cedar from Lebanon.

They made your hull, inlaid with ivory, of boxwood from the coasts of Cyprus.

it became your emblem.

Your awning was made of blue and purple cloth from the coasts of Elishah.

<sup>8</sup>The princes of Sidon and Arvad were your oarsmen. Your own wise men were in you as your helmsmen. <sup>9</sup>The elders and wise men of Gebal were in you, patching up your leaks. Every seagoing ship and its sailors came to do business with you. <sup>10</sup>Paras, Lud, and Put were the warriors in your army. By hanging their shields and helmets on you, they made you radiant. <sup>11</sup>The men of Arvad and Helech were stationed on your walls all around; the men of Gamad were in your towers. They hung their weapons on your walls all around. They were the ones who completed your beauty.

<sup>12</sup>Tarshish was your procurer of great wealth. For your wares, they exchanged silver, iron, tin, and lead. <sup>13</sup>Javan, Tubal, and Meshech were your agents in human trafficking. They gave you bronze vessels for these wares of yours. <sup>14</sup>Beth-togarmah traded horses, warhorses, and mules for your wares. <sup>15</sup>Islanders from Rhodes<sup>w</sup> were your agents. By contract they procured ebony and ivory for you from many coastlands. <sup>16</sup>Aram was your agent for many products. They traded turquoise, purple cloth, colorful brocades, linen, coral, and rubies for your wares. <sup>17</sup>Judah and the land of Israel were your agents, trading the finest wheat,<sup>w</sup> millet,<sup>x</sup> honey, oil, and balm for your wares. <sup>18</sup>For many of your finished products, Damascus traded out of its great wealth the wine of Helbon and white wool. <sup>19</sup>Vedan and Javan from the region of Uzal traded with you. They exchanged wrought iron, cinnamon, and spices for your wares. <sup>20</sup>Dedan was your agent for saddle blankets. <sup>21</sup>Arabia and all the princes of Kedar traded for you. They procured lambs, rams, and goats for you. <sup>22</sup>They were your agents in Sheba and Raamah. For your wares they exchanged the finest spices, every kind of precious stone, and gold. <sup>23</sup>Haran, Canneh, and Eden were your agents,<sup>y</sup> and also Assyria and Chilmad. <sup>24</sup>They procured fine finished goods for you, garments of purple and brocade, and plush carpets rolled up and securely tied with ropes, among your acquisitions. <sup>25</sup>The ships of Tarshish carried your goods.

You were filled to capacity and heavily laden in the middle of the sea.

an east wind sank you into the sea's depths.

<sup>27</sup>Your goods, your wares, your wealth, your sailors, your helmsmen, those patching your leaks, your merchants, all your warriors in you, and all the company that is with you—they also sank into the sea's depth on the day of your demise.

the troubled waters seethe.

All sailors and helmsmen seek footing on the shore.

which points to competition between Tyre and Jerusalem as the motive driving the prophet's condemnation of the island state (cf. Ezek 26:2).

27:4-11 Only luxury and exotic imported materials were used to construct the ship, Tyre. Likewise, the sailors staffing the Tyre ship's decks come from far and wide, and not every location can be identified today. Paras, Lud, and Put: Paras refers to Persia, located in modern Iran. Lud could be either an area south of Egypt or in west-central Turkey. Put is identified with Libya. These regions symbolize the extent of the known world in Ezekiel's day, and may have also been vague to the prophet and his exilic audience (cf. Jer 46:9; Nah 3:8).

27:12-25a A trade list adds texture to Ezekiel's depiction of Tyre. Tarshish: Perhaps Spain, but symbolizing the ends of the earth (cf. Ps 72:10; Jer 10:9; Jon 1:3).

27:26 east wind: a tool of the Lord when fighting the forces of chaos, such as the sea during the time of the exodus (cf. Exod 14:21 and 15:1-19). into the sea's depths: In contrast to Ezekiel 27:2, 4, references to Tyre's throne, here the city sinks into the chaotic waters of the sea.

27:27-29 The portrayal of the sinking of the ship.

- <sup>30</sup> Loudly they cry, bitterly they wail,
and they put dust on their heads and cover themselves with ashes.
- <sup>31</sup> They cut off all their hair and put on mourning clothes.
In despair they weep for you, and bitterly perform the mourning rites.
- <sup>32</sup> In their lamentation they raise a lament for you;
they sing lamentations over you:
"Who was like Tyre, silenced in the middle of the sea?"
- <sup>33</sup> When your wares came out from the seas, you satisfied many people.
Your abundant wealth and merchandise enriched the kings of the earth.
- <sup>34</sup> Now you are shattered by the seas;
your cargoes, as well as everyone in your company, are sunk into the water's depths.
- <sup>35</sup> Now the inhabitants of the coastlands shudder on account of you.
And as for their kings, their hair stands on end; their faces betray their horror.
- <sup>36</sup> The merchants for the peoples hiss because of you.
You have become a terror;
from now on you are nothing.

Prince of Tyre

28 The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, say to the prince of Tyre, The LORD God proclaims: In your arrogance, you say, "I am God, and as God I rule the seas!" Though you claim to have the mind of a god, you are mortal, not divine. <sup>3</sup>You are certainly wiser than Daniel; no secrets are hidden from you. <sup>4</sup>By your wisdom and discernment, you made yourself rich, and you filled your storehouses with silver and gold. <sup>5</sup>Through your shrewd trading you multiplied your riches. But then you became proud of your riches.

<sup>6</sup>So now the LORD God proclaims: Because you claim to have the mind of a god, <sup>7</sup>I'll bring foreigners, the most ruthless nations, against you. They will let loose their swords against your fine wisdom, and they will degrade your splendor. <sup>8</sup>They will hurl you to destruction, and you will die, murdered, on the high seas. <sup>9</sup>When you face your murderers, will you still say, "I'm God"? In your killers' hands, you are mortal, not divine. <sup>10</sup>You will die as the uncircumcised do, at the hands of foreigners. I have spoken. This is what the LORD God has said.

27:30-32 The mariners carry out public lamentation rituals over Tyre's ruin (see the note on Ezek 24:9-10).

28:1-10, 11-19 The pairing of judgment and lament in Ezekiel 26-27, focused on the city, is matched by another pairing of judgment and lament over the city's leader (28:1-10, a judgment against the prince; 28:11-19, a lament over the king).

28:2-5 "I am God": The accusation against Tyre's leader is that of excessive pride (also 28:6), a mortal claiming the position of God, and an accusation rarely found in the OT (cf. Gen 3; Isa 14:12-13).

28:3 You are certainly wiser than Daniel: Wisdom was a quality by which the Lord created the ordered cosmos (cf. Job 38:36-37; 39:26; Ps 104:24; Prov 8:22-31; Isa 29:13-16), and so exhibiting wisdom moved a person toward the divine, according to the ancient mind-set. But true wisdom was incompatible with excessive pride (Prov 8:13). In this instance, Daniel represents legendary wisdom. Compare with Ezek 14:14, 20, where Daniel was a legendary figure of righteousness.

28:9 you are mortal, not divine: The punishment for excessive pride isn't merely death, rather mortality abstractly understood (cf. Gen 3:22-24; Isa 14:9-11, 15-21).

28:12-13 image of perfection... finely crafted pendants and engravings were prepared: The Hebrew is very difficult to understand here, but the image on a stamp seal, set among other stones, dominates the metaphor. In the ancient world, stamp seals carried the authority of their owner, even in his or her absence, just as signatures on notarized legal documents do today. In the theocracies of the ancient world, the earthly king was understood to be the seal of the divine king, the Lord (cf. Jer 22:24; Hag 2:24). The lament in Ezekiel 28:11-19 connects with the lament over the ship in Ezekiel 27, for just as a king was a signet seal for the divine king in a theocracy, so, too, did the king's seal authorize all of the transactions of an ancient trade ship.

28:13 Similar lists of stones made up the high priests' breastplate (cf. Exod 28:15-22; 39:10-14).

28:13-16 You were in Eden... in God's holy mountain:

29:4 2K1 19:28;

carneian, topaz, and moonstone; beryl, onyx, and jasper; lapis lazuli, turquoise, and emerald. On the day that you were created, finely crafted pendants and engravings were prepared. <sup>14</sup>You, a winged creature, were installed as a guardian. I placed you in God's holy mountain where you walked among the stones of fire. <sup>15</sup>From the day you were created until injustice was found in you, your ways were assured. <sup>16</sup>But because of your trade, your oppressive business practices piled up, and you became impure. So I expelled you from God's mountain. I removed you, winged creature, guardian, from among the stones of fire. <sup>17</sup>You exalted yourself because of your beauty and corrupted your wisdom for the sake of your splendor. I will cast you down to the earth in the sight of kings, and I will make a spectacle of you. <sup>18</sup>Because of your corrupt trade, which surpassed your many other sins, you made your sanctuaries impure. Therefore, I will bring fire from your midst. When it has consumed you, I will turn you into dust on the earth in the sight of all who see you. <sup>19</sup>Everyone among the peoples who knows you will be appalled because of you. You will become a terror. From that time on, you will be nothing.

Against Sidon

<sup>20</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>21</sup>Human one, face Sidon, prophesy against it, <sup>22</sup>and say, The LORD God proclaims: I'm against you, Sidon, and I will manifest my glory in you. When I've executed judgment against it and through it have manifested my holiness, they will know that I am the LORD. <sup>23</sup>I will hurl plague against it, and blood will run in its streets. When the sword comes against it from all sides, the slain will fall within it. Then they will know that I am the LORD. <sup>24</sup>The house of Israel will no longer suffer from the pricking thorn or painful briar of any of its neighbors who hold it in contempt. And they will know that I am the LORD God.

<sup>25</sup>The LORD God proclaims: When I gather the house of Israel from the peoples among whom they've scattered, and I demonstrate my holiness through them in the sight of the nations, they will live on their fertile land, which I gave to my servant Jacob. <sup>26</sup>They will live on it in safety. They will build houses, plant vineyards, and live in safety. When I execute judgments against all who hold them in contempt on every side, they will know that I, the LORD, am their God.

Against Egypt

29In the tenth year, on the twelfth day of the tenth month, the LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, face Pharaoh, Egypt's king, and prophesy against him and against all of Egypt. <sup>3</sup>Speak and say, The LORD God proclaims:

Ezekiel applies human attributes to the divine image, and places it in God's first garden. While this mixing of metaphors seems strange to modern audiences, in the ancient world, precious stones, Eden, and the primeval human were all a part of the same theological idea about creation, and thus available to Ezekiel to mold to his own purposes. 28:16 you became impure: Impurity couldn't dwell on God's mountain, where Eden was located. Just as the primeval man and woman were cast out of the garden in Genesis 3, so too here is the winged guardian expelled on account of its sin. The metaphor restates the judgment of mortality (28:19; cf. Ezek 27:36) leveled against the king in Ezekiel 28:7-10.

28:20-26 As a powerful coastal city, Sidon sat to the north of Tyre and was often mentioned in the ancient literature, with Tyre to signify all of Phoenicia. Beginning in the late 8th and continuing into the 7th centuries BCE, Sidon was a target of Assyrian aggression, one more easily besieged than the island of Tyre. By Ezekiel's day, Sidon had been dishonored by Nebuchadnezzar, making it a ready subject for this oracle. Ezekiel's purpose here is to announce restoration for the house of Israel (28:25) for the purpose of demonstrating God's power (28:22) on the international stage (28:24, 25; cf. Ezek 20:41; 38:16). No mention of any sin on the part of Sidon is listed.

29:1-32:32 The oracles against Egypt are set in context by their dates, which place these words in the period leading up to (Ezek 29-31) and then after (Ezek 32) the fall of Jerusalem. As outlined in the introduction, the fate of Egypt and Judah were tied together in opposition to Babylon. Since Nebuchadnezzar and his Babylonian sword were tools of the Lord (cf. Ezek 21), doom to Egypt was synonymous with the judgment of God on Zedekiah and Jerusalem. Once Jerusalem fell, however, Ezekiel's pronouncements of doom on Egypt became good news for the exiles, because doom to Egypt promised the restoration of honor due to the Lord and God's people.

29:1-16 A series of oracles based on the image of a crocodile lurking in the Nile curses and shames Egypt.

29:1 In the tenth year, on the twelfth day of the tenth month: January 587 BCE and a year after the beginning of the siege according to Ezekiel 24:1.

29:3 great crocodile: This image operates on several different levels. As a metaphor, Pharaoh is a crocodile, and Ezekiel then proceeds to describe how the crocodile will be captured and killed. Egyptian iconography also presented the god Sobek as a crocodile. Elsewhere, the Hebrew term used here represents the chaos monster the Lord battled against (cf. Job 7:12; Ps 74:13; 148:7; Isa 27:1). Ezekiel thus places the Lord's battle against Egypt, and against

I'm against you, Pharaoh, Egypt's king, great crocodile lurking in the Nile's canals, who says, "The Nile is all mine; I made it for myself!"

<sup>4</sup>I will set hooks in your jaws;

I will make the fish from the Nile's canals cling to your scales.

I will drag you out of the Nile's canals, and also all the fish from the Nile's canals clinging to your scales.

<sup>5</sup>I will fling you out into the desert, and also all the fish from the Nile's canals.

You will fall on the open ground, and won't be gathered or retrieved.

I've given you to the beasts of the earth and the birds in the sky for food.

<sup>6</sup>Everyone living in Egypt will know that I am the LORD.

Because they were a flimsy crutch for the house of Israel—<sup>7</sup>when they took you in hand, you would splinter and make their shoulders sore; when they leaned on you, you would break, bringing them to their knees—<sup>8</sup>now the LORD God proclaims: I'm bringing a sword against you, and I will cut off from you human and beast. <sup>9</sup>The land of Egypt will be turned into a wasteland and ruins. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

Because you<sup>a</sup> said, "The Nile is mine; I made it," <sup>10</sup>I'm against you and against the Nile's canals. I will make the land of Egypt into an utter ruin, a wasteland, from Migdol to Syene and as far as its boundary with Cush. <sup>11</sup>No foot, animal or human, will walk across it, and it won't be inhabited for forty years. <sup>12</sup>I will make the land of Egypt the most desolate of wastelands and its cities the most devastated of ruined cities. It will be a wasteland for forty years, and the Egyptians will be scattered among the nations and dispersed throughout the lands.

<sup>13</sup>The LORD God proclaims: At the end of forty years, I will gather the Egyptians from among the nations where they are scattered. <sup>14</sup>I will improve their circumstances and bring them back to the land of Pathros, the land of their origin. Egypt will be a lowly kingdom there. <sup>15</sup>Out of all the kingdoms, it will be the lowliest. It will never again exalt itself over the nations, and I will make it small to keep it from ruling the nations. <sup>16</sup>The house of Israel will never again bring guilt on itself by faithlessly turning to Egypt for help, for they will know that I am the LORD God.

<sup>17</sup>In the twenty-seventh year, on the first day of the first month, the LORD's word came to me: <sup>18</sup>Human one, Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar made his army labor very hard against Tyre. Every head was scraped bald, and every shoulder was rubbed raw, yet he got nothing from Tyre for himself or for his army for any of his efforts against it. <sup>19</sup>So now the LORD God proclaims: I'm going to give the land of Egypt to Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar. He will carry off its wealth, he will plunder and loot it, and it will be the wages for his army. <sup>20</sup>I will give him the land of Egypt as payment for his laboring for me. This is what the LORD God says.

<sup>21</sup>On that day I will give new strength<sup>a</sup> to the house of Israel, and I will open your mouth among the great. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

Judah since they were allied, on a cosmic plane. The Nile is all mine; I made it for myself. The Nile river served as the source of life for Egypt (cf. Ps 46:4; Ezek 47:1-12). Ezekiel is playing with this image by separating Pharaoh from this life-giving source (Ezek 29:4-5).

29:4-5 all the fish from the Nile's canals: a reference to allied kingdoms, such as Judah, linked with Egypt (cf. Ezek 30:6, 8).

29:5 open ground: a curse (see the note on Ezek 24:6-8; and sidebar, "Death and Afterlife in the Ancient Near East" at Ezek 32). I've given you to the beasts of the earth and the birds in the sky for food: a part of the reversal of Pharaoh's claim (Ezek 29:3), but also looking ahead to Ezekiel 31:6, 13. Ezekiel's mocking irony is on full display. Instead of being a life-giving force through military might, Egypt's king will provide life in the decomposition of his corpse. 29:6 a flimsy crutch: a literary allusion to 2 Kings 18:21//

Isaiah 36:6, and the memory of Egypt's failure to help during Assyria's assault on Judah in the late 8th century BCE. 29:10 Migdol to Syene... Cush: all of Egypt from north to south (cf. Ezek 30:6). Migdol was a northern fortress, Syene a fortress on the southern stretch of the Nile, and Cush is identified with southern Egypt or northern Ethiopia.

29:13-16 A curious promise of Egyptian restoration (cf. Isa 19:24-25). forty years: a symbolic number, defining Egypt's exile as an exodus—a new creation. Egypt will be a lowly kingdom: The new creation, however, won't be one that tempts the house of Israel, and so Ezekiel's promise for Egypt has its own set of purposes.

29:17-21 These few verses offer an amazing look into ancient prophetic practice. This oracle is the latest dated prophecy in the book, dating to 571 BCE. Babylonian sources record a 13-year siege of Tyre, which ended around this time with a king loyal to Nebuchadnezzar

31:1 Jer 52:5;
Eze 30:20

30 The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, prophesy and say, The LORD God proclaims:

How! Horror for the day!

<sup>3</sup>The day is coming, the day of the LORD comes, a day of clouds: the nations' time has come.

<sup>4</sup>A sword will come into Egypt, and trembling will overcome Cush, when the slain fall in Egypt, its wealth carried away, and its foundations razed.

and the people from the allied country<sup>b</sup> with them will fall by the sword.

When Egypt's helpers fall, its proud strength will decline.

From Migdol to Syene they will fall by the sword.

This is what the LORD God says.

<sup>7</sup>Of all the lands laid waste, it will be the most desolate; of all cities, the most ruined. <sup>8</sup>They will know that I am the LORD. On the day that I set fire to Egypt and all its helpers are broken, <sup>9</sup>messengers in ships will go out from me to startle the complacent Cushites. Anguish will overcome them on Egypt's day. It's certainly coming.

<sup>10</sup>The LORD God proclaims:

I will bring an end to the hordes of Egypt through the power of Babylon's King Nebuchadrezzar.

<sup>11</sup>He and his people with him, the most terrible of the nations, will be brought in to destroy the land.

They will draw their swords against Egypt and fill the land with the slain.

<sup>12</sup>I will dry up the Nile canals;

I will sell the land to evildoers.

With the help of foreigners I will lay waste to the land and everything in it.
I, the LORD, have spoken.

<sup>13</sup>The LORD God proclaims:

I will destroy the idols and bring an end to the images in Memphis.

Never again will there be a prince from the land of Egypt;
so I will kindle fear in the land of Egypt.

<sup>14</sup>I will turn Pathros into a desolation, set fire to Zoan, and execute judgments in Thebes.

<sup>15</sup>I will pour out my anger on Pelusium, the stronghold of Egypt, and I will cut down pompous Thebes.

<sup>16</sup>I will set Egypt on fire;

Pelusium will writhe in travail,

Thebes will be split open,

Memphis assaulted in broad daylight.

<sup>17</sup>The elite troops of On and Pi-beseth will fall by the sword, and the cities themselves will go into captivity.

being placed on this Phoenician throne. But this outcome didn't seem to satisfy the total devastation Ezekiel had envisioned. In the face of this disappointment, Ezekiel added to his oracles against Tyre, promising riches from Egypt as compensation for the expense and effort against the island fortress. Not every prophetic oracle had to come true (cf. Hag 2:23)

30:1-12 Drawing upon vocabulary and images elsewhere applied to Judah, this judgment oracle against Egypt subtly yet clearly connects Egypt's fate with Judah's.

30:2 Horror: Compare with Ezekiel 24:6, 9.

30:3 The day is coming: Compare with Ezekiel 7:7, 10, 12, 19; 21:25. time has come: Compare with Ezekiel 7:7, 12; 21:25, 29.

30:4 A sword: Compare with Ezekiel 21:1-17.

30:5 Cush, Put, and Lud: Compare with Ezekiel 27:9.

30:6 Egypt's helpers: Compare with Ezekiel 30:8; 29:5. Migdol to Syene: Compare with Ezekiel 29:10.

30:12 The curses on the land of Egypt are similar to the curse on the land of Israel in Ezekiel 6.

30:13-19 Just as Ezekiel combined images of fire and sword in the punishments upon Judah (cf. Ezek 20:45-49; 22:1-31), here, too, the prophet proclaims that fire will follow the sword. The various cities mentioned

<sup>18</sup>At Tephnehes the day will go dark when I break Egypt's yoke and bring an end to its proud strength. A cloud will cover it, and the towns around it will go into captivity. <sup>19</sup>I will execute judgments in Egypt, and they will know that I am the LORD.

<sup>20</sup>In the eleventh year, on the first day of the seventh month, the LORD's word came to me: <sup>21</sup>Human one, I've broken the arm of Pharaoh, Egypt's king, and it hasn't been set so that it might heal, nor has it been braced or wrapped up so that it might be strong enough to grasp a sword.

<sup>22</sup>So now the LORD God proclaims: I'm against Pharaoh, and I will break his arms, both the sound one and the broken one, and I'll make the sword fall out of his hand. <sup>23</sup>I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations and disperse them throughout the earth. <sup>24</sup>I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and I will put my sword into his hand. When I break the arms of Pharaoh, he will groan like a dying man in his presence. <sup>25</sup>I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, but the arms of Pharaoh will fall. They will know that I am the LORD, when I put my sword into the hand of the king of Babylon and he uses it against the land of Egypt. <sup>26</sup>When I scatter the Egyptians among the nations and disperse them throughout the earth, they will know that I am the LORD.

Egypt is not Assyria

31 In the eleventh year, on the first day of the third month, the LORD's word came to me:

With whom do you compare in your greatness?

beautiful branches, dense shade, towering height;
indeed, its top went up between the clouds.

<sup>4</sup>Waters nourished it; the deep raised it up, because its streams flowed around the place where it was planted.
From there, water trickled down to all the other trees of the field.

<sup>5</sup>And so it became higher than all the trees of the field.
Its branches became abundant; its boughs grew long.

Because of the plentiful water, it grew freely.

<sup>6</sup>All the birds in the sky made nests in its branches;
all the beasts of the field gave birth under its boughs, and in its shade, every great nation lived.

<sup>7</sup>It became beautiful in its greatness and in its lush foliage, because it took root in plentiful water.

<sup>8</sup>No cedar was its equal in God's garden.

The fir trees didn't have anything like its branches, and the plane trees had nothing like its boughs.

None of the trees in God's garden could compare to it in its beauty.

were prominent cultural, political, and religious centers in Egypt.

30:20-26 Dated to late April 587, this oracle addressed a critical point in the siege of Jerusalem, after which the fall of the city became inevitable. I've broken the arm of Pharaoh: The arm of a king or a deity represented military power (cf. Ezek 20:33-34; and Deut 4:34; 7:19; 11:2; 26:8; Pss 44:3; 89:13; 98:1; 136:12; Jer 32:21). Apparently, Babylonian forces had repelled Egypt once, based on the reference to a broken arm (30:21), and Ezekiel predicted that the final defeat of Egyptian forces would come (the sound one, 30:22), which would spell certain doom for Jerusalem. Jeremiah 37:11 describes a time when Babylonian forces withdrew from Jerusalem to meet Pharaoh in battle.

31:1-18 Ezekiel now returns to crafting magnificent metaphors. This time Egypt is cast as a mythical world tree. Ezekiel's exilic audience understood that a world tree carried the image of life-giving prosperity, by which all of the animals of creation were nourished, a concept carried by the tree of life in Genesis 3. In this chapter, the prophet cuts down the tree, condemning it to the underworld (31:17).

31:1 The date is May 587, merely two months after Ezekiel 30:20-26. Perhaps this marks the time when Egypt's "sound" arm was broken (cf. Ezek 30:22).

31:2-3 With whom do you compare...? Assyria, a cedar of Lebanon: The metaphor is built on a multilayered comparison. On one level, Ezekiel compares Egypt to Assyria, which had been the mightiest and most feared empire of the ancient Near Eastern world but was finally defeated in 612 BCE, and so was an extinct nation in Ezekiel's day. Another layer depicts Egypt as a cedar. Lebanon was renowned for its thick forests of tall, mighty cedar trees, used for building (cf. 2 Sam 5:11; 7:2; 1 Kgs 5:8, 10; 6:9, 10, 15, 16; Ezek 27:5), but which also made them symbols of strength and wealth (cf. Judg 9:15; Ps 104:16; Isa 2:13; Ezek 17:3).

31:4 Waters nourished it: The reference is to primeval, mythical waters (cf. Ezek 31:7; and also Ezek 1:24; 17:5, 8; 43:2).

31:6 All the birds in the sky: a reference to the concept that the world tree provides life to all (cf. Ezek 29:5; 32:4).

<sup>9</sup>As for its beauty—I made it so, with its abundant foliage.
All the trees of Eden envied it, all that were in God's garden.

<sup>10</sup>So now the LORD God proclaims:
Consider the fate of those who tower high
When it allowed its branches to reach up among the clouds, it became arrogant.

<sup>11</sup>So I handed it over to the most powerful nation, who continually acted treacherously against it.
I banished it!

<sup>12</sup>Foreigners, the worst of the nations, cut it down and left it to lie among the hills.
All its branches fell among the valleys, and its boughs were broken off in the earth's deep ravines.
All the earth's peoples departed from its shade and abandoned it.

and on its boughs lie all the beasts of the field.

<sup>14</sup>All this has happened so that no other well-watered tree would tower high or allow its branches to reach among the clouds. Nor would their leaders achieve the towering stature of such well-watered trees. Certainly, all of them are consigned to death, to the world below,<sup>c</sup> among human beings who go down to the pit.

<sup>15</sup>The LORD God proclaims: On the day that it went down to the underworld,<sup>d</sup> I caused mourning. I blocked off the deep sea against it. I dried up its rivers and restrained the mighty waters. I made Lebanon go into mourning for it, and all the trees of the field languished on its account. <sup>16</sup>When it was felled, the nations quaked at the sound. When I cast it down into the underworld, with those who go down to the pit, all the trees of Eden were comforted in the world below, the choicest and the best of Lebanon, all the trees that depended on water. <sup>17</sup>His allies,<sup>e</sup> those among the nations who lived under his shade, these also went down with him to the underworld, to those who are slain by the sword.

<sup>18</sup>Are you like any of these in glory or greatness among Eden's trees? Then you too will go down with Eden's trees to the world below. You will lie among the uncircumcised, with those who are slain by the sword. This is Pharaoh and his entire horde. This is what the LORD God says.

Egypt the crocodile

32 In the twelfth year, on the first day of the twelfth month, the LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, sing a lament for Pharaoh, Egypt's king. Say to him:

You consider yourself a young lion among the nations, but you are like the sea monster!
You thrash about in your rivers, you roil the waters with your feet, and you muddy your<sup>f</sup> rivers.

Implied by Ezekiel, however, are Judah and perhaps other nations who as allies hoped to benefit from Egypt's might. 31:10-17 The fate of the world tree is described in past tense, and thus the focus remains on fallen Assyria. The most powerful nation is a not-so-veiled reference to Babylon, which with the Medes defeated Assyria in 612 BCE, slightly more than two decades before this oracle. The world would have still been astonished at Assyria's surprising and precipitous downfall. Verse 18 then applies this lesson from history to Egypt.

31:13 all the birds... all the beasts: a reversal of Ezekiel 31:6; compare with Ezekiel 29:5.

32:1-16 In the fourth dated oracle against Egypt, Ezekiel buries the nation of the Nile by means of a public lament (32:16; cf. Ezek 19:1-14; 26:15-18; 27:1-36; 28:11-19; and the note on Ezek 19). The oracle dates to March 585 BCE, or about one year and nine months after the last dated oracle in Ezekiel 31. This period was after the fall of Jerusalem, and after the report of Jerusalem's destruction by the refugee (cf. Ezek 33:21). This oracle, then, doesn't carry with it a judgment upon Judah but perhaps something new. At some point, Ezekiel's exilic audience would have surely read this oracle in context with Ezekiel 37:1-14, which promises that the Lord's fallen elect would experience renewed life on their own land. Hence, in this oracle, Ezekiel shamed Egypt, which brought with it a message of restoration and honor to the Lord and his exilic audience.

32:2 You consider yourself a young lion: A desirable image of a king and nation's power (cf. Ezek 19:3-4), but you are like the sea monster: once again as the embodiment of chaos (cf. Ezek 29:3).

<sup>3</sup>The LORD God proclaims:

In the company of many peoples I will spread my net over you, and I will haul you up in my dragnet.

<sup>4</sup>I will cast you out on the earth and throw you on the open ground.

I will cause all the birds in the sky to settle on you, and all the beasts of the earth to devour you.

<sup>5</sup>Your flesh I will set upon the mountains, and I will fill the valleys with your gore.

<sup>6</sup>With your blood I will soak your irrigated land,<sup>g</sup> and the streambeds will be filled with you.

<sup>7</sup>When you are snuffed out, I will cover the sky, and I will darken the stars.

I will cover the sun with a cloud, and the moon won't radiate its light.

<sup>8</sup>As for the shining lights of the heavens,
I will make them dark over you,
and set darkness over your land.

This is what the LORD God says.

<sup>9</sup>I will trouble the hearts of many peoples when I bring about your destruction with nations from lands you didn't know.

<sup>10</sup>I will make many peoples appalled because of you.
Their kings will shudder violently on your account when I brandish my sword before them.

They will tremble for their lives again and again on the day of your downfall.

<sup>11</sup>The LORD God proclaims: The sword of the king of Babylon is coming against you! <sup>12</sup>I will make your hordes fall by the swords of mighty men, the most terrifying of the nations, all of them. They will bring an end to Egypt's pride, and all of its hordes will be destroyed. <sup>13</sup>I will remove all its livestock from beside the plentiful waters so that neither human foot nor livestock's hoof will trouble it again. <sup>14</sup>At that time, I will allow the waters to run clear, and make its rivers flow like oil. This is what the LORD God says. <sup>15</sup>When I turn the land of Egypt into a wasteland and the land is deprived of all that fills it, and when I strike down those who live there, then they will know that I am the LORD. <sup>16</sup>This is a lament, and it will be sung as a lament. The daughters of the nations will lament for Egypt, and they will also lament for Egypt's hordes. This is what the LORD God says.

Send Egypt down with the mighty nations subject<sup>i</sup> to it, to the world below,<sup>j</sup> among those who go down to the pit.

<sup>19</sup>Whom do you surpass in beauty?

Go down and take your bed with the uncircumcised,

A sword is appointed, and all his hordes will carry him off. <sup>21</sup>The mighty chieftains, those who once came to his aid, will speak to him from the middle of the underworld,<sup>k</sup> for the uncircumcised have gone down and have lain down, slain by the sword.

32:4 all the birds in the sky ... all the beasts of the earth: recalls Ezekiel 29:5; 31:6, 13.

32:17-32 Ezekiel reveals in this passage an amazing glimpse into ancient Israel's beliefs about death and the afterlife (see sidebar, "Death and Afterlife in the Ancient Near East"). Whereas Ezekiel 32:1-16 lamented the fact of Egypt's death, now Ezekiel mockingly narrates the placement of Egypt in the society of dead nations. The shaming of Egypt in this dirge implies a contrast to the honor coming to a revitalized Judah (cf. Ezek 37:1-14).

32:17 on the fifteenth day of the first month: The spring of 587 BCE, shortly after the fall of Jerusalem.

32:19 Whom do you surpass in beauty? Compare with Ezekiel 31:2, 18. The question addresses the proper association for Egypt in the netherworld. The following list of nations mocks Pharaoh and his nation by placing them in the lowest reaches of the pit, far away from the honorable heroes (Ezek 32:27).

32:21 mighty chieftains: ancient, mythical leaders who now hold places of honor and leadership among the

Vanished glory

<sup>22</sup> Assyria is there, and all its assembly round about his grave, all of them slain, fallen by the sword,

<sup>23</sup> who were assigned graves in the deepest region of the pit.
His assembly surrounded his grave, all of them slain, fallen by the sword, who caused terror in the land of the living.

all of them slain, fallen by the sword, who went down uncircumcised to the world below,<sup>1</sup>
who caused terror in the land of the living.
They bore their shame like those who go down to the pit.

with all her hordes round about her grave,
all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword,
for they caused terror in the land of the living.
They bore their shame like those who go down to the pit;
in the midst of the slain she<sup>m</sup> was placed.

all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword,
for they caused terror in the land of the living.

<sup>27</sup> They don't lie with the mighty men fallen among the uncircumcised. When they went down to the underworld<sup>n</sup> with their weapons of war, they put their swords under their heads and their shields<sup>o</sup> over their bones. The terror of the mighty men is in the land of the living.

<sup>28</sup> But you, you will be broken among the uncircumcised, and you will lie with those who are slain by the sword.

<sup>29</sup> Edom is there, its kings and all its princes, who, though strong, were put with those slain by the sword.
They lie with the uncircumcised, like those who go down to the pit.

<sup>30</sup> All the princes of the north are there, and all the Sidonians who went down with the slain;
in spite of the terror of their strength, they were disgraced.
They lie uncircumcised with those slain by the sword.
They bore their shame like those who go down to the pit.

he will be sorry for all his hordes who are slain by the sword—Pharaoh and all his army.
This is what the LORD God says,

dead nations. They will determine Egypt's proper setting and associations among the dead. uncircumcised . . . slain by the sword: Egypt's compatriots in the underworld are those excluded from acceptance by God (cf. Gen 17:14; 34:14; Exod 12:48; Josh 5:7; Ezek 28:10; 44:7, 9) and cursed (cf. Lev 26:7-8; Num 14:3, 43; 2 Sam 3:29; Job 36:12; Ps 74:64; Isa 3:25; 14:19; Jer 14:12, 18; 16:4). Historically, Egypt practiced a form of circumcision.

32:22-30 Moving through a list of vanquished and dishonored nations, Ezekiel identifies Egypt's proper relations in Sheol, the underworld, beginning with the former imperial power, Assyria (32:22-23), now long vanquished. 32:24 Elam: located to the east of Babylon. The Assyrian king, Ashurbanipal (669-627), devastated this nation in 647-646 BCE.

32:26 Meshech and Tubal: independent kingdoms from Asia Minor. This pair were also victims of Assyrian violence in the 8th and 7th centuries BCE.

32:27 mighty men: soldiers who died honorably, and who were thus allowed to be buried with their weapons. As a matter of practicality, if a soldier was defeated in battle, his shield, sword, and other weapons would be taken, if possible, and his corpse would be left to decompose in the open air. But if a soldier was victorious in battle, he returned with his weapons, and could be buried with them in the family tomb.

32:29 Edom: See the note on Ezekiel 25:12-14.

32:30 princes of the north . . . Sidonians: For Sidon, see the note on Ezekiel 28:20-26. The "princes of the north" were probably rulers over a network of northern, related towns to Sidon.

32:31 he will be sorry: The text anticipates Pharaoh's

Death and Afterlife in the Ancient Near East The ancient Near Eastern world, including Israel, had various understandings of an afterlife. However, belief in a final judgment—leading to eternal life in paradise or to punishment after death—did not develop until late Persian and early Greek periods (see the only OT example at Dan 12:4, which dates to early Greek times). Nevertheless, ancient Israel did have a view of existence after life. Ideally, and for wealthy families, the deceased would be buried in the family tomb, where earlier generations had been buried. After decaying, the dry bones would be gathered into a repository that contained the bones of past ancestors. Gifts of food and other goods were brought to their dead family members, though the exact practices have been lost to time. Conceptually, the deceased were believed to enter into the netherworld, where they would continue to advocate before the patron god of the family on behalf of the living. With the passing of time, an ancestor may have even become deified (e.g., the Rephaim in Deut 2). Thus the netherworld was its own society where the rules of honor and shame applied. Ezekiel's oracles reflect these ancient beliefs about how life continued after death: (1) his description of Pharaoh and Egypt in the netherworld (Ezek 32); (2) his vision of the valley of dry bones (Ezek 37); and (3) his mention of the insult caused by the king's graves being too close to the Lord's most holy place (Ezek 43:8-9).

The lookout

33 The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, speak to your people and say to them: Suppose I bring a sword against a country, and the people of the land take a certain person from their assembly and make him their lookout. <sup>3</sup>When he sees the sword coming against the land, he blows the trumpet and warns the people. <sup>4</sup>If they hear the sound of the trumpet but don't heed the warning, when the sword comes and they are taken away, they are responsible for their blood. <sup>5</sup>They heard the sound of the trumpet but didn't heed the warning, so their blood is on them. If they had paid attention to the warning, they would have saved their lives. <sup>6</sup>If the lookout sees the sword coming but doesn't blow the trumpet to warn the people, when the sword comes and takes away any of them, they are taken away in their sin, but I'll hold the lookout responsible for their blood.

<sup>7</sup>You, human one, I've made you a lookout for the house of Israel. Whenever you hear me speaking, you must give them warning from me. <sup>8</sup>If I pronounce a death sentence on wicked people, and you don't warn them to turn from their way, they will die in their guilt, but I will hold you responsible for their blood. <sup>9</sup>But suppose you do warn the wicked of their ways so that they might turn from them. If they don't turn from their ways, they will die in their guilt, but you will save your life.

<sup>10</sup>You, human one, say to the house of Israel: This is what all of you are saying: "How our transgressions and our sins weigh on us! We waste away because of them. How can we live?"

<sup>11</sup>Say to them, This is what the LORD God says: As surely as I live, do I take pleasure in the death of the wicked? If the wicked turn from their ways, they will live. Turn, completely turn from your wicked ways! Why should you die, house of Israel?

<sup>12</sup>You, human one, say to your people: The righteousness of the righteous doesn't rescue them when they begin to sin. Nor does the wickedness of the wicked make them stumble if they turn from their wickedness. If the righteous sin, their righteousness won't protect reaction to his new surroundings among the uncircumcised and the fallen in the netherworld (cf. Ezek 14:22-23; 16:63; 20:43).

33:1-33 This collection of oracles restarts and restates Ezekiel's prophetic ministry. Five sections pick up themes already seen earlier in the book, but at times pointing them in new directions.

33:1-9 Ezekiel is again called to be the sentinel (cf. Ezek 3:17-21). As in Ezekiel 3, the point of these case studies is not to show various possible outcomes for the people but to compel Ezekiel to deliver God's message.

33:10-20 The text now shifts from the role of the prophet in announcing God's warning to the role of the house of Israel in responding to the warning. The listeners might recall the principles of the disputation in Ezekiel 18 (cf. Ezek 18:27-29). Just as Ezekiel 18 explained God's justice in relation to covenantal faithfulness, implied in the possibility of life is loyalty to the covenant.

33:10 How can we live? As in Ezekiel 18:2, this passage disputes a saying of the people. Here, however, he challenges Israel not to give in to death—by charting out a conditional course for life.

33:11 do I take pleasure in the death of the wicked? Compare with Ezekiel 18:23. Why should you die? Compare with Ezekiel 18:31.

33:12-16 Compare with Ezekiel 18:5-24.

them. <sup>13</sup>Even if I've told the righteous they will live, none of their righteous deeds will be remembered if they trust in their righteousness and do wrong. They will die because of their evil deeds. <sup>14</sup>And even if I have pronounced a death sentence on the wicked, if they turn from sin and do what is just and right—<sup>15</sup>if they return pledges, make restitution for robbery, and walk in life-giving regulations in order not to sin—they will live and not die. <sup>16</sup>None of the sins they've committed will be remembered against them. They've done what is just and right, and they will live.

<sup>17</sup>Yet your people say, "My Lord's way doesn't measure up." Isn't it their ways that don't measure up? <sup>18</sup>When the righteous turn from their righteousness to do wrong, they will die because of it. <sup>19</sup>And when the wicked turn from their wickedness to do what is just and right, it is for that reason they will live. <sup>20</sup>Yet you say, "My Lord's way doesn't measure up." I judge each one of you according to your ways, house of Israel!

News from Jerusalem

<sup>21</sup>In the twelfth year, on the fifth day of the tenth month of our exile, a survivor from Jerusalem came to me and reported, "The city has fallen!" <sup>22</sup>The LORD's power was with me in the evening before the survivor arrived, and just before he arrived in the morning, God opened my mouth. So my mouth was opened, and I was no longer speechless.

<sup>23</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>24</sup>Human one, those who live among those ruins in Israel's fertile land are saying, "Abraham was just one man, and he inherited the land. We are many, so certainly the land has been given to us as an inheritance."

<sup>25</sup>So say to them, The LORD God proclaims: You eat with the blood, you lift your eyes to the idols, and you shed blood. Should you inherit the land? <sup>26</sup>You live by the sword, you observe detestable practices, and every one of you commits adultery.<sup>a</sup> Should you inherit the land?

<sup>27</sup>Say to them, The LORD God proclaims: As surely as I live, those in the ruins will fall by the sword, those in the countryside I will give to the wild beasts to consume, and those in the strongholds and caves will die of plague. <sup>28</sup>I will make the land an uninhabitable waste. Its proud strength will come to an end, and Israel's highlands will become so deserted that no one will cross through them. <sup>29</sup>They will know that I am the LORD when I make the land an uninhabitable waste because of all their detestable practices.

A fickle audience

<sup>30</sup>As for you, human one, your people talk about you beside the walls and in their doorways. One by one, they say to each other, "Let's go hear what sort of message has come from the LORD." <sup>31</sup>So they come to you as people do, and they sit before you as my people. They listen to your words, but they refuse to do them. Though they speak of their longing<sup>a</sup> for me, they act out of their own interests and opinions. <sup>32</sup>To them you are like a singer of love songs with a lovely voice and skilled technique. They listen to your words, but no one does them. <sup>33</sup>When this comes—and it is certainly coming—they will know that a prophet has been among them.

The good shepherd

34 The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, prophesy against Israel's shepherds. <sup>3</sup>Prophesy and say to them, The LORD God proclaims to the shepherds: Doom to 33:15 return pledges, make restitution for robbery... life-giving regulations: an abbreviation of the list found in Ezekiel 18:6-9, which themselves stood for instruction about covenant behavior.

33:17, 20 My Lord's way doesn't measure up: Compare with Ezekiel 18:25, 29.

33:21-22 The closing of Ezekiel's mouth is reversed, signaling a new direction in both the role of the prophet and his message. twelfth year, on the fifth day, of the tenth month: January 585. The city has fallen!: the critical event and the culmination of all of Ezekiel's earlier prophecies. God opened my mouth: Compare with Ezekiel 24:25-27 (see the note on Ezek 2:5; and cf. Ezek 3:16-21, 26-27).

33:23-29 Abraham was just one man... the land has been given to us as an inheritance: Once again, Ezekiel addresses the important issue of who will inherit the land, by countering a claim by those remaining in the land (cf. Ezek 11:3, 15). fall by the sword... give to the wild beasts... die of plague: recalling the curses that the survivors in the land were convicted of earlier (cf. Lev 26:21-26; Ezek 5:12, 17; 6:11; 7:15; 12:16; 14:21; 33:27). uninhabitable waste: Compare with Ezekiel 6:6, 14; 12:20; but also see Ezekiel 36:10, 33.

33:30-33 This time, the Lord defends Ezekiel as a prophet whose clear call should be heeded rather than dismissed (33:33; cf. Ezek 2:5; 12:21-28; 33:30-33). they sit before you: Compare with Ezekiel 3:24; 8:1; 14:1; 20:1.

34:1-31 Ezekiel restarted his prophetic ministry after the fall of Jerusalem. This section is a statement about the Israel's shepherds who tended themselves! Shouldn't shepherds tend the flock? <sup>3</sup>You drink the milk, you wear the wool, and you slaughter the fat animals, but you don't tend the flock. <sup>4</sup>You don't strengthen the weak, heal the sick, bind up the injured, bring back the strays, or seek out the lost; but instead you use force to rule them with injustice. <sup>5</sup>Without a shepherd, my flock was scattered; and when it was scattered, it became food for all the wild animals. <sup>6</sup>My flock strayed on all the mountains and on every high hill throughout all the earth. My flock was scattered, and there was no one to look for them or find them. <sup>7</sup>So now shepherds, hear the LORD's word! <sup>8</sup>This is what the LORD God says: As surely as I live, without a shepherd, my flock became prey. My flock became food for all the wild animals. My shepherds didn't seek out my flock. They tended themselves, but they didn't tend my flock.

<sup>9</sup>So, shepherds, hear the LORD's word! <sup>10</sup>The LORD God proclaims: I'm against the shepherds! I will hold them accountable for my flock, and I will put an end to their tending the flock. The shepherds will no longer tend them, because I will rescue my flock from their mouths, and they will no longer be their food.

<sup>11</sup>The LORD God proclaims: I myself will search for my flock and seek them out. <sup>12</sup>As a shepherd seeks out the flock when some in the flock have been scattered, so will I seek out my flock. I will rescue them from all the places where they were scattered during the time of clouds and thick darkness. <sup>13</sup>I will gather and lead them out from the countries and peoples, and I will bring them to their own fertile land. I will feed them on Israel's highlands, along the riverbeds, and in all the inhabited places. <sup>14</sup>I will feed them in good pasture, and their sheepfold will be there, on Israel's lofty highlands. On Israel's highlands, they will lie down in a secure fold and feed on green pastures. <sup>15</sup>I myself will feed my flock and make them lie down. This is what the LORD God says. <sup>16</sup>I will seek out the lost, bring back the strays, bind up the wounded, and strengthen the weak. But the fat and the strong I will destroy, because I will tend my sheep<sup>f</sup> with justice.

monarchy and the people. Beginning with an indictment of the failure of Israel's shepherds (i.e., kings; 34:2-8), followed by a judgment (34:9-10), Ezekiel proclaims that God will take control and himself shepherd the flock (34:11-16). This won't be universally good for all of the flock, however, because the Lord will also judge the members of the flock who have ruined the land (34:17-20). A new covenant will be established with the elect of the flock, led by a descendant of David (34:22-31).

34:2 Israel's shepherds: The image of the king as the good and faithful shepherd is common in the OT (cf. 2 Sam 5:2; 7:7; Ps 74:70-72; Isa 44:28; Zech 13:7), and was a standard royal metaphor in the ancient Near East generally. The metaphor was also used to describe the role of the Lord as the divine king over the nation (cf. Gen 49:15, 24; Num 27:17; Pss 23:1; 27:9; 80:1; Isa 40:11; Jer 31:10; Mic 7:14). Ezekiel 34 plays upon the application of this image to both the divine and earthly king, since the Davidic king was understood to be the Lord's earthly ruler.

34:2b-3, 8 tended themselves! . . . tend the flock?: The metaphor addresses the injustice built into the monarchy. Royal leaders grabbed wealth for themselves, not prosperity for the citizens (cf. 1 Sam 8:1-18).

34:4 The prophet lists ordinary duties of a shepherd that the shepherds didn't fulfill. Later (Ezek 34:16), God will be committed to these tasks.

34:5 Without a shepherd: Ezekiel takes a swipe at the reign of Zedekiah (cf. Ezek 1:3). my flock was scattered: referring to the exiles. wild animals: an abbreviation for the covenantal curses (cf. Lev 26:22; see the note on Ezek 4:1-5:17). 34:10 I will rescue my flock: The same Hebrew verb is used in regard to David rescuing one of his flock from the mouth of a lion (1 Sam 17:35, 37; Amos 3:12), but also of the Lord in regard to the exodus (cf. Gen 32:12, 31; 37:21-22; Exod 3:8; 6:6; 18:8-10), or delivering the people from the midst of other nations (cf. 1 Sam 7:3, 14; 2 Kgs 18:29-35; Ps 18:1, 18, 49).

34:11-16 God, in the role of shepherd, goes out to find and gather the scattered flock (cf. Num 27:17; Jer 23:2, 4), a clear metaphor for the exiles.

34:13-14 The Hebrew text uses several theologically loaded terms for the land, which convey holiness, security, and prosperity (cf. Exod 15:13; 2 Sam 15:25; Pss 23:2; 79:7; Jer 10:25).

34:16 The tasks of a shepherd, which God will fulfill (in contrast to the nation's kings, Ezek 34:4).

34:17-31 Ezekiel turns his attention to a future covenant with the chosen few of the flock, which clearly means the exiles.

34:17-19 God will elect selected sheep to be his flock. good pasture . . . clear water: referring to the land of Israel (cf. Ezek 34:13-14). trample and muddy what is left: indicating that the subjects being judged are the survivors in the land (cf. Ezek 11:1-15; 33:23-29).

The Demotion of the King in Ezekiel Ezekiel envisioned a radical political realignment for the restored, future nation. During the time of Judah's monarchy, the Davidic king had been viewed as the earthly representative of the Lord, the divine king of the theocracy (cf. Pss 2, 89:1-37). Ezekiel stands with many other voices (cf. Ezek 34; 45:9; 1 Sam 8) that were disappointed with the Davidic dynasty. In his future vision, Ezekiel demotes the king to the position of prince. Only in Ezekiel 37:24 does Ezekiel say that the Lord will once again place David as king over his people, but even there, he describes the role of shepherd, recalling the powerful diatribe of Ezekiel 34, in which David is titled "prince" (cf. Ezek 34:24). The prince's role in the future will be limited to patron to the temple. He will have a large tract of land (cf. Ezek 45:7-8; 48:21-22), with which to supply the temple sacrifice with livestock and produce (cf. Ezek 45:18-25). As patron, the prince is given a place of honor in the east gate (cf. Ezek 44:3; 46:1-3), but still his duty is to deliver offerings (cf. Ezek 45:16), and he must be counted among the people of the land when entering the inner court (cf. Ezek 46:9-10). These are all positions of servitude to the temple officials, and nowhere in the text is the prince assigned to a position of authority, such as military leader or judge.

<sup>20</sup>So the LORD God proclaims to them: I will judge between the fat and the lean sheep. <sup>21</sup>You shove with shoulder and flank, and with your horns you ram all the weak sheep until you've scattered them outside. <sup>22</sup>But I will rescue my flock so that they will never again be prey. I will even judge between the sheep! <sup>23</sup>I will appoint for them a single shepherd, and he will feed them. My servant David will feed them. He will be their shepherd. <sup>24</sup>I, the LORD, will be their God, and my servant David will be their prince. I, the LORD, have spoken. <sup>25</sup>I will make a covenant of peace for them, and I will banish the wild animals from the land. Then they will safely live in the desert and sleep in the forest. <sup>26</sup>I will give them and those around my hill a blessing by sending the rain in its season. They will be rains of blessing. <sup>27</sup>The trees in the field will bear fruit, and the earth will yield its harvest. They will be safe on their fertile land, and they will know that I am the LORD when I break the bars of their yoke and deliver them from those who enslaved them. <sup>28</sup>The nations will no longer prey on them, and wild animals will no longer devour them. They will live in safety, with no one to trouble them. <sup>29</sup>I will establish for them a place famous for what it grows. No longer will they experience famine in the land, nor will they bear the disgrace of the nations. <sup>30</sup>They will know that I, the LORD their God, am with them, and they, the house of Israel, are my people. This is what the LORD God says. <sup>31</sup>You are my flock, the flock of my pasture. You are human, and I am your God. This is what the LORD God says.

Against Edom

35 The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, face Mount Seir, and prophesy against it. <sup>3</sup>Say to it, The LORD God proclaims:

34:21 The Hebrew text makes it clear that the sheep being judged are the fat sheep, which are the same sheep defiling the land in Ezekiel 34:18-19. The flock has been abandoned without a shepherd (Ezek 34:5), so that the remaining leadership are cast as fat sheep, not shepherds. The lean sheep, the exiles, make up the Lord's flock, those scattered outside of the land.

34:24 David will be their prince: one of only two mentions of David in Ezekiel's prophecies (cf. Ezek 37:24-25). The text doesn't use the term "king," but instead prince, implying a demotion for the Davidic line (see sidebar, "The Demotion of the King in Ezekiel").

34:25 covenant of peace: Peace carries with it the sense of completion, as when God had completed creation at the end of the sixth day, and so had nothing more to do on the seventh. As a unique expression in the OT, Ezekiel envisions a future covenant that is complete (cf. Ezek 16: 60, "everlasting covenant"; Ezek 20:37, "covenant bond"; Ezek 34:25 and Ezek 37:26, "covenant of peace").

34:26 my hill: In contrast to "every high hill" (Ezek 34:5; also Ezek 6:3, 13; 20:28), "my hill" clearly refers to Mount Zion, the location of the temple (cf. Ezek 40:2). rain in its season: For this and the following blessings, see the gifts promised if the covenant is kept in Leviticus 26:4-6; and cf. Ezekiel 47:1-12.

34:29 a place famous for what it grows: Compare with Psalm 46:4; Ezekiel 36:13-15; 47:1-12.

34:30-31 I, the Lord their God... they... are my people: covenantal language binding the Lord and Israel together (cf. Lev 26:44-45; Jer 24:7; 31:33; 32:38; Ezek 14:11; 37:23, 27; and the discussion on Ezek 11:19). You are my flock... You are human: Compare with Psalm 80:1; Ezekiel 2:1; 36:10, 37:38.

35:1-15 Chapter 35, an oracle against Edom's central mountain range, works in tandem with Ezekiel 36 to promise renewal to the land, which reverses the curse pronounced in chapter 6. The repetition of mountains, hills, watercourses, and valleys in Ezekiel 6:3, 35:8, and 36:4, which are parts standing for the whole land, link these passages together. These chapters share themes and also show how the prophet's message changed after the fall of Jerusalem.

35:2 Mount Seir: a holy mountain in Edom. See the notes on Ezekiel 25:8 and Ezekiel 25:12-14. Chapter 35 is an oracle against Edom, with special attention given to its land and national cult. It promises salvation for the holy land of Israel.

I'm against you, Mount Seir!
 I will use my power against you.
 I will make you into a desolate wasteland, 4I will turn your cities into ruins, and you will become a desolation.
 Then you will know that I am the LORD.

10You said, "These two nations and these two territories are mine. We will take possession of them even if the LORD is there." 11Therefore, the LORD God proclaims: As surely as I live, I will act according to the anger and zeal you displayed when you dealt with them so hatefully. When I judge you, I will make myself known to them, 12and you will know that I am the LORD. I've heard the lies and libels that you uttered against Israel's highlands when you said, "They are laid waste. They've been given to us to consume." 13With your mouths you exalted yourselves against me and spoke your words against me. I myself heard it!

14The LORD God proclaims: As the whole world rejoices, I will turn you into a desolation. 15Just as you rejoiced over the house of Israel's inheritance because it became desolate, so I will deal with you. Mount Seir, you will become a desolation, with all of Edom, all of it. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

Mountains of Israel

36 You, human one, prophesy to Israel's mountains and say, Hear the LORD's word, mountains of Israel! 2The LORD God proclaims: The enemy mocked you and said, "The ancient heights belong to us." 3Therefore, prophesy and say, The LORD God proclaims: When the surviving nations pressed in and ravaged you from all around to lay claim to you, you became an object of the people's slander and derision. 4Hear the LORD God's word, mountains of Israel! The LORD God proclaims to the mountains and the hills, the watercourses and the valleys, the desolate ruins and the abandoned cities that were contemptuously looted by the surviving nations all around you.

5So now, says the LORD God, I will speak in my fiery passion against the surviving nations and against Edom, all those who gleefully and spitefully took my land for themselves as a possession only for plunder. 6Prophesy concerning Israel's fertile land, and say to the mountains and to the hills, to the ravines and to the valleys, The LORD God proclaims: Because you endured the ridicule of the nations, my passion and fury lead me to speak. 7So now the

35:3-4 desolate wasteland... cities into ruins... desolation: All judgments borne by the land of Israel (cf. Ezek 6:14; 13:4; 33:24-27; 36:4, 10, 33).

35:5 an ancient grudge: The nature of the hatred isn't clear to the modern reader. Later verses mention land claims and honor (Ezek 35:10, 12, 13; 36:2) as a part of this grudge. If Seir was an ancient site where the Lord was worshipped, from Ezekiel's perspective, the Lord's election of Jerusalem as his holy habitation would be just cause for an ancient grudge.

35:10 These two nations: Judah and Israel (cf. Ezek 37:15-28; 47:13-48:29). The Lord is there: Compare with Ezekiel 48:35.

35:13 you exalted yourselves against me: Again, central to Ezekiel's theology is the honor of the Lord on the world stage (cf. Ezek 5:14-15; 20:9, 14, 22, 44; 36:22-36).

36:1-15 Following the condemnation of Mount Seir, a metaphor for Edom, Ezekiel addresses an oracle of promise to the mountains of Israel. This passage clearly states the other side of Ezekiel 35, and serves further to reverse the curses upon the land first announced in Ezekiel 6.

36:2 enemy: The Hebrew terms used link this enemy with the "ancient grudge" in Ezekiel 35:5. "The ancient heights belong to us": In this instance, the enemy (i.e., Edom) is looking to acquire the traditional land of Israel (cf. Ezek 35:35:10, 12; for other places with the sense of acquiring new land, see Exod 6:8; Deut 33:4; Ezek 11:15; 25:4, 10; Obad 17).

36:4 mountains and the hills, the watercourses and the valleys: Compare with Ezekiel 34:6; 6:3, 35:8. desolate ruins... abandoned cities: See the note on Ezekiel 35:3-4. surviving nations all around you: See the note on Ezekiel 25:1-17.

36:6 the ridicule of the nations: Compare with Ezekiel 5:14-15.

LORD God proclaims: I myself swear that the nations round about you will themselves suffer ridicule. <sup>8</sup>But you, mountains of Israel, will extend your branches and bear your fruit for my people Israel, because they will come home very soon. <sup>9</sup>Look, I'm here for you, and I will turn toward you, and you will be farmed and sown. <sup>10</sup>I will populate you with human beings, the whole house of Israel, all of them. The cities will be inhabited, the ruins rebuilt. <sup>11</sup>When I make people and animals increase on you, they will multiply and be fruitful. I will cause you to be inhabited as you were before. I will do more good for you than in the beginning, and you will know that I am the LORD. <sup>12</sup>I will let people walk through you, my people Israel! They will lay claim to you, you will be their inheritance, and you will no longer deprive them of anything.

<sup>13</sup>The LORD God proclaims: Because people say, "You are a devourer of human beings" and "You are depriving your nation," <sup>14</sup>therefore, you will no longer devour human beings or deprive your nation of anything. This is what the LORD God says. <sup>15</sup>You won't have to listen anymore to the taunts of the nations or endure the scorn of the peoples. And you will no longer deprive your nation of anything. This is what the LORD God says.

A new heart

<sup>16</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>17</sup>Human one, when the house of Israel lived on their fertile land, they polluted it with their ways and deeds. Their ways before me were polluted like the blood of menstruation, <sup>18</sup>and so I poured out my fury on them for all the blood they had poured out on the land and for all the defilement of their idols. <sup>19</sup>When I scattered them to the nations and dispersed them into other lands, I judged them according to their ways and deeds. <sup>20</sup>But then when they entered the other nations, they degraded my holy name because it was said of them, "These are the LORD's people, yet they had to leave his land." <sup>21</sup>So I had compassion on my holy name, which the house of Israel degraded among the nations where they had gone.

<sup>22</sup>Therefore, say to the house of Israel, The LORD God proclaims: House of Israel, I'm not acting for your sake but for the sake of my holy name, which you degraded among the nations where you have gone. <sup>23</sup>I will make my great name holy, which was degraded among the nations when you dishonored it among them. Then the nations will know that I am the LORD. This is what the LORD God says.

When I make myself holy among you in their sight, <sup>24</sup>I will take you from the nations, I will gather you from all the countries, and I will bring you to your own fertile land. <sup>25</sup>I will sprinkle clean water on you, and you will be cleansed of all your pollution. I will cleanse you of all your idols. <sup>26</sup>I will give you a new heart and put a new spirit in you. I will remove your stony heart from your body and replace it with a living one, <sup>27</sup>and I will give you my spirit so that you may walk according to my regulations and carefully observe my case laws. <sup>28</sup>Then you will live in the land that I gave to your ancestors, you will be my people, and I will be your God. <sup>29</sup>I will save you from all your uncleanness, and I will summon the grain and make it grow abundantly so that you won't endure famine. <sup>30</sup>I will make abundant the orchards'

36:9-12 farmed and sown: signifying inhabited, cultivated land, and in opposition to land left fallow and open to defilement (cf. Deut 21:4). I will populate you with human beings: a fulfillment of the covenant (cf. Ezek 34:38;33:31; see Gen 17:6, 20; Lev 26:9; Ps 105:24; Jer 23:3). they will multiply and be fruitful: signs of the Lord's blessings, what should and will happen when all is right with creation (cf. Gen 1:27-28; 8:17; 9:1, 7). walk through you... their inheritance: language affirming God's gift of the land to the people as a part of God's covenant with Israel (Deut 26:1, 9; Josh 11:16-23; 13:6-7; 14:1-5; 21:43-45; Ezek 35:15; 47:13; 48:29). 36:13-14 You are a devourer of human beings... You are depriving your nation: The subject is the land, which should produce prosperity (cf. Ps 46:4; Ezek 34:26-29; 47:1-12), and the taunts come from the other nations surrounding the land.

36:16-38 Alongside Ezekiel 20 and the constant repetition of the recognition formula (see sidebar, "The Recognition Formula" at Ezek 6), this passage makes one of the strongest statements of the Lord's defenses of his own honor (36:20-23), which was damaged by exile of the nation (36:21). Here, Ezekiel places on full display the divine purpose of his prophetic message.

36:16-23a Israel's sin poses a dilemma for God. Both the defilement of the land and God's just punishment of the nation shamed the Lord before the other nations. God's restoration, then, isn't the result of any righteousness on the part of the Lord's people, but the people will benefit solely because God acts in order to restore God's own honor (cf. Ezek 20:9, 14, 22, 44).

36:22-23 my holy name: here, the Lord's honor is meant (cf. Lev 20:3; 22:2, 32; Pss 106:47; 145:21; Ezek 5:14-15; 20:39, 41; 38:16; 43:7-8; Amos 2:7; and sidebar, "The Recognition Formula" at Ezek 6).

36:23b-32 Ezekiel anticipates God's restoration of the people on the land, where God will purify the people who were defiled (Ezek 36:16-19).

36:25 I will sprinkle clean water on you: preparation for the new covenant (cf. Ezek 16:9).

36:26 a new heart... a new spirit: covenantal language (cf. Ezek 18:31; and see the note on Ezek 11:19).

36:27 my regulations... my case laws: a formula signaling fruit and the fields' produce so that you will never again endure the shame of famine among the nations. <sup>31</sup>Then you will remember your evil ways and no-good deeds, and you will feel disgust for yourselves because of your sinful and detestable practices. <sup>32</sup>Not for your sake do I act. This is what the LORD God proclaims. Let that be known to you! Be ashamed and be humiliated because of all your ways, house of Israel.

<sup>33</sup>The LORD God proclaims: On the day that I cleanse you of all your guilt, I will cause the cities to be inhabited, and the ruins will be rebuilt. <sup>34</sup>The desolate land will be farmed, and it won't be like it was when it seemed a wasteland to all who passed by. <sup>35</sup>They will say, "This land, which was a desolation, has become like the garden of Eden." And the cities that were ruined, ravaged, and razed are now fortified and inhabited. <sup>36</sup>The surviving nations around you will know that I, the LORD, have rebuilt what was torn down and have planted what was made desolate. I, the LORD, have spoken, and I will do it.

<sup>37</sup>The LORD God proclaims: I will also allow the house of Israel to ask me to do this for them: that I increase them like a human flock. <sup>38</sup>Like the holy flock, like the flock of Jerusalem at its festivals, the ruined cities will be filled with a human flock. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

Valley of dry bones

37The LORD's power overcame me, and while I was in the LORD's spirit, he led me out and set me down in the middle of a certain valley. It was full of bones. <sup>2</sup>He led me through them all around, and I saw that there were a great many of them on the valley floor, and they were very dry. <sup>3</sup>He asked me, "Human one, can these bones live again?"

I said, "LORD God, only you know."

<sup>4</sup>He said to me, "Prophecy over these bones, and say to them, Dry bones, hear the LORD's word! <sup>5</sup>The LORD God proclaims to these bones: I am about to put breath in you, and you will live again. <sup>6</sup>I will put sinews on you, place flesh on you, and cover you with skin. When I put breath in you, and you come to life, you will know that I am the LORD."

<sup>7</sup>I prophesied just as I was commanded. There was a great noise as I was prophesying, then a great quaking, and the bones came together, bone by bone. <sup>8</sup>When I looked, suddenly there were sinews on them. The flesh appeared, and then they were covered over with skin. But there was still no breath in them.

<sup>9</sup>He said to me, "Prophecy to the breath; prophecy, human one! Say to the breath, The LORD God proclaims: Come from the four winds, breathe! Breathe into these dead bodies and let them live."

the instruction that defines the covenant (see the note on Ezek 5:6).

36:31 you will feel disgust for yourselves: The shame experienced by the Lord in punishing Israel will pass to the people when he restores them (cf. Ezek 14:22-23; 16:63; 20:43; 43:10-11).

36:33-38 This section promises a restoration of the cities, reversing judgments earlier in the book.

36:35 They will say, "This land . . . has become like the garden of Eden": This saying reverses public opinion, expressed in Ezekiel 36:13, 20. Eden is the proper name for God's garden (cf. Ezek 28:13), which symbolizes a divine promise of fertility (cf. Gen 2-3; Isa 51:3; Ezek 31:9, 16, 18; 28:13; Joel 2:3). cities that were ruined . . . are now fortified and inhabited: Compare with Ezekiel 36:4; 6:6; 12:20; see the note on Ezekiel 13:4-5.

36:38 human flock: Compare with Psalm 80:1; Ezekiel 2:1; 34:17-31, especially Ezekiel 34:31.

37:1-14 The valley of the dry bones is Ezekiel's third of four visions (the other visions are Ezek 1:4-28; 8:1-11; 25; 40:1-48:35). With drama, the vision tells the story about God re-creating the people of Israel (37:10). Because burial and possession of the land were related in the ancient world, the vision concludes with replanting the people in their land (37:14; and see the note on Ezek 47:13-48:29). The revived bones symbolize the new nation, Israel (37:11), and shouldn't be read as a revelation about individual resurrection from death.

37:1 a certain valley: the same valley where Ezekiel was commissioned to prophesy to the exiles (cf. Ezek 3:22-27), and only the second time that this valley has been mentioned.

37:1 It was full of bones: Ezekiel's audience would have known instantly the importance of this (see sidebar, "Death and Afterlife in the Ancient Near East" at Ezek 32). These bones belonged to an entire army of soldiers who had been slain by the sword (see the note on Ezek 32:21). The scene of a slain army, having been left to scavengers and open-air decomposition, marks it as cursed (cf. 1 Kgs 14:11; 21:23-24; 2 Kgs 9:34-37; Jer 16:4; 34:19-20; Ezek 24:6-8; 39:11-20).

37:3 can these bones live again?: The central message of the vision in Ezekiel 8-11 was underscored by the question in Ezekiel 8:6. Likewise, the vision of the dry bones conveys its most critical point through a question (cf. Ezek 20:4; 21:2). "LORD God, only you know": Ezekiel's answer is a pious one, open to new knowledge of the Lord (cf. Ezek 37:13-14).

37:4-10 God commands Ezekiel to prophesy to the bones, which initiates his resuscitation of the bones. The ensuing prophesying plays itself out in two stages: the re-creation of the physical bodies (37:7-8); and then their animation (37:10).

37:9-10 Prophecy to the breath: The scene reflects the same theology of creation seen in Genesis 2. The Hebrew <sup>10</sup>I prophesied just as he commanded me. When the breath entered them, they came to life and stood on their feet, an extraordinarily large company.

<sup>11</sup>He said to me, "Human one, these bones are the entire house of Israel. They say, 'Our bones are dried up, and our hope has perished. We are completely finished.'<sup>12</sup>So now, prophesy and say to them, The LORD God proclaims: I'm opening your graves! I will raise you up from your graves, my people, and I will bring you to Israel's fertile land.<sup>13</sup>You will know that I am the LORD, when I open your graves and raise you up from your graves, my people.<sup>14</sup>I will put my breath<sup>e</sup> in you, and you will live. I will plant you on your fertile land, and you will know that I am the LORD. I've spoken, and I will do it. This is what the LORD says."

Divided kingdom united

<sup>15</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>16</sup>You, human one, take a stick, and write on it, "Belonging to Judah and to the Israelites associated with him." Take another stick and write on it, "Stick of Ephraim belonging to Joseph and everyone of the house of Israel associated with him."<sup>17</sup>Join them to each other to make a single stick so that they become one stick in your hand.<sup>18</sup>When your people ask you, "Why won't you tell us what these sticks mean to you?"<sup>19</sup>say to them, The LORD God proclaims: I'm taking Joseph's stick, which has been in Ephraim's hand, and the tribes of Israel associated with him, and I'm putting it with Judah's stick, and I'm making them into a single stick so that they will be one stick in my hand.<sup>20</sup>When the two sticks that you've written on are in your hand in their sight,<sup>21</sup>speak to them, This is what the LORD God says: I will take the Israelites from among the nations where they've gone, I will gather them from all around, and I will bring them to their fertile land.<sup>22</sup>I will make them into a single nation in the land on Israel's highlands. There will be just one king for all of them. They will no longer be two nations, and they will no longer be divided into two kingdoms.<sup>23</sup>They will no longer defile themselves with their idols or their worthless things or with any of their rebellions. I will deliver them from all the places where they sinned, and I will cleanse them. They will be my people, and I will be their God.<sup>24</sup>My servant David will be king over them. There will be just one shepherd for all of them. They will follow my case laws and carefully observe my regulations.<sup>25</sup>They will live on the land that I gave to my servant Jacob, where their ancestors lived. They will live on it, they and their children and their grandchildren, forever. My servant David will be their prince forever.<sup>26</sup>I will make a covenant of peace for them. It will be their covenant forever. I will grant it to them and allow them to increase. I will set my sanctuary among them forever.<sup>27</sup>My dwelling will be with term translated here as "breath" is the same term translated "wind" elsewhere (see the note on Ezek 1:12, 17, 20). Ezekiel and his fellow priests understood that God's breath animated otherwise lifeless flesh.

37:11 "Our bones are dried up, and our hope has perished. We are completely finished": The text describes being cut off from God, from life, and from the land (cf. Pss 31:22; 88:5; Isa 53:8). Earlier, Ezekiel announced that the idolater would be cut off from the elect of the Lord (cf. Ezek 14:8).

37:12 I'm opening your graves: The statement about the "bones" in Ezekiel 37:11 is accurate: They have perished! The resuscitation of Israel stands in opposition to the prophet's burial of Egypt in Ezekiel 32:17-32.

37:15-28 Ezekiel performs a final symbolic action (37:15-19), writing with sticks, which is then interpreted (37:20-28). In a flourish, Ezekiel unites the people, land, and the Lord's sanctuary (i.e., God's presence!), which are all bound together through a final covenant (37:26).

37:15-19 Ephraim belonging to Joseph: This stick stands for the northern kingdom, which had gone into exile in 720 BCE. Tradition held Joseph to be the father of the two dominant tribes of the northern kingdom, Ephraim and Manasseh (cf. Gen 48; Num 1:10; 26:28, 37; Josh 14:4; 17:14-18). The Joseph tribes separated from Judah after Solomon's death (approximately 925 BCE; cf. 1 Kgs 12:1-24). Both history and tradition, then, placed Joseph in opposition to Judah (cf. Ps 78:67-68).

37:19 a single stick: Ezekiel hopes for a reunification of the people, once the nation is restored. With the defeat and exile of Samaria and the northern kingdom in 720 BCE, northern refugees fled to Judah and Jerusalem, but the unification was uncertain after nearly 200 years of separation and political strife. Since both kingdoms had been "scattered among the nations," perhaps Ezekiel hoped that the exile would serve as the great equalizer. Judah's stick: For the traditional strife between Judah and Joseph, see Genesis 37:18-30.

37:23 They will be my people, and I will be their God: a statement of the covenant between God and the people (see the note on Ezek 11:19).

37:24 my servant David: The second mention of David in Ezekiel's prophecies (cf. 34:24 and sidebar, "The Demotion of the King in Ezekiel" at Ezek 34). The mention of David as king seems inconsistent with Ezekiel's other, more cautious statements about the future ruler. Ultimately, the Lord will be king (cf. Ezek 20:33; 34:11-16).

37:25 my servant Jacob: the ancestor with whom Ezekiel identifies all Israel (cf. Ezek 20:5; 28:25).

37:26 my sanctuary among them forever: This promise will them, and I will be their God, and they will be my people. <sup>28</sup>The nations will know that I, the LORD, make Israel holy, when my sanctuary is among them forever.

Attack of Gog

38The LORD's word came to me: <sup>2</sup>Human one, face Gog in the land of Magog, chief prince of Meshech and Tubal. Prophecy concerning him <sup>3</sup>and say, The LORD God proclaims: I challenge you, Gog, chief prince of Meshech and Tubal! <sup>4</sup>I will turn you about, set hooks in your jaws, and lead you out, you and all your army, horses and riders, handsomely dressed, all of them, a great assembly, with buckler and shield, all of them wielding swords. <sup>5</sup>Persia, Cush, and Put are with you, <sup>6</sup>all of them equipped with shield and helmet. <sup>7</sup>Gomer and all his troops, Beth-togarmah from the far north and all his troops; many peoples are with you. <sup>8</sup>Stand ready and be prepared, you and all your assembly. You will watch out for those who gather against you.

<sup>9</sup>After many days you will be called out. In future years you will enter a country that has been freed from the sword, a gathering from many peoples on the mountains of Israel, which had become a perpetual ruin. This country was brought out from the peoples, and all of them live securely. <sup>10</sup>You will invade like a sudden storm. You and all your troops, and the many peoples with you, will be like clouds covering the earth.

<sup>11</sup>The LORD God proclaims: On that day, thoughts will come into your mind, and you will devise an evil plan. <sup>12</sup>You will say, "I will go up against the open country and come against a quiet people who all live securely without walls, bars, or doors <sup>13</sup>to take plunder and seize loot, to use my <sup>14</sup>power against the resettled waste places, against a people gathered from the nations, who are acquiring goods and cattle, and who live at the center <sup>15</sup>of the earth." <sup>16</sup>Sheba and Dedan and the merchants and officials of Tarshish will say to you, "Have you come to take plunder and seize loot? Have you assembled your army to take silver and gold, to take goods and cattle, to engage in great looting?"

<sup>17</sup>So now, prophesy, human one, and say to Gog, The LORD God proclaims: Isn't that what you will decide to do <sup>18</sup>on that day, when my people Israel live securely? <sup>19</sup>You will come up from your place from the far north, you and many peoples with you, all of them riding horses, a great assembly, a mighty army. <sup>20</sup>You will go up against my people Israel like a cloud reverse Ezekiel 8:6 (and cf. Ezek 23:38-39; 24:21; 25:3), in which God states that the sins of the people have separated the people from the Lord. See also Ezekiel 11:16; 43:1-9; 48:35.

38:1-39:29 Although modern readers often understand the strange-sounding judgment on the mysterious Gog of Magog as predictions for the end of time, these two chapters were composed as promises of God's protection of the soon-to-be-restored, yet vulnerable, nation peacefully living in the land.

38:2-9 Ezekiel sets the stage for his prophecy, listing the coming enemies of Israel (38:2-7), as well as the tranquil setting that they will disrupt (Ezek 38:8-9).

38:2 Gog in the land of Magog: No satisfactory explanation or identification of this individual or his land has been found, and they are best read as literary creations, symbolic barbaric powers of every period of time and from every corner of the earth. Such an effect is strengthened by the names that follow, which refer to vaguely known, exotic lands. Meshech and Tubal: regions in Anatolia (cf. Gen 10:2; and Ezek 32:26).

38:5 Persia, Cush, and Put: the ends of the known world; see the note on the similar combination in Ezekiel 27:9.

38:6 Gomer... Beth-togarmah: cf. Genesis 10:2-3 and Ezekiel 27:14. from the far north: Traditionally destruction approached from the north (Ezek 39:2 also; and cf. Isa 14:31; Jer 1:13-14; 46:6; 1, 22).

38:8 In future years: The text looks toward a time when the people had been restored to the land. a country... freed from the sword: clearly a reference to the punishment of Judah (e.g., Ezek 5:12, 17; 6:11; 7:15; 12:14; 14:17; 21:1-17). a gathering from many peoples: Compare with Ezekiel 11:17; 20:34, 41; 34:13; 36:24. on the mountains of Israel: Compare with Ezekiel 6:2, 3; 35:2, 3, 12, 15; 36:1, 4, 6, 8. a perpetual ruin: Compare with Ezekiel 21:7; 33:24, 27; 36:4, 10, 33.

38:10-23 Ezekiel describes Gog's plans of conquest as evil on his part (38:10-13), but ultimately as a part of the Lord's broader plan (38:14-23).

38:11 open country... without walls, bars, or doors: the state of the post-exilic land, prior to the walls of Jerusalem being rebuilt (ca. 539-450 BCE). The people's security (Ezek 38:8, 11, 14) comes from God's protection, not their walls (cf. Deut 20:1-4).

38:12 center of the earth: A theological valuation of the nation as the center of the cosmos (cf. Ezek 5:5).

38:13 Sheba and Dedan... Tarshish: Sheba and Dedan were rest stops for the caravan trade routes through the Arabian Desert to the east. Tarshish was located in Spain, but really signaled the farthest western trading partner of the earth (cf. Ezek 27:12, 25). This is another stock phrase, which by using distant lands denotes the commercial interests of all of the known earth, from east to west. This global scope explains the content of their question, Have you come to take plunder? (cf. Ezek 26:12).

38:16 But when this happens... I will be the one who brings covering the earth. But when this happens in future days, I will be the one who brings you up against my land, so that the nations may know me, Gog, when through you I show my holiness in their sight!

<sup>17</sup>The LORD God proclaims: Are you the one about whom I spoke in former times through my servants, Israel's prophets, the ones who prophesied for years in those days to bring you against them? <sup>18</sup>On that day, the day when Gog comes against Israel's fertile land, my wrath will be aroused. This is what the LORD God says. <sup>19</sup>In my jealousy and blazing anger I declare: On that day, a great quaking will come over Israel's fertile land. <sup>20</sup>The fish of the sea, the birds in the sky, the beasts of the field, all the creatures crawling on the ground, and every living human being will quake in my presence. Mountains will be thrown down and cliffs will crumble; every wall will fall to the ground. <sup>21</sup>I will summon a sword against Gog on all my mountains. This is what the LORD God says! The swords of the warriors will be against each other, <sup>22</sup>and I will enter into judgment with him, with plague and blood. I will pour out flooding rain, hailstones, fire, and sulfur on him, on all his troops, and on the many peoples with him. <sup>23</sup>So I will display my greatness, show my holiness, and make myself known in the sight of many nations. And they will know that I am the LORD.

39You, human one, prophesy about Gog and say, The LORD God proclaims: I challenge you, Gog, chief prince of Meshech and Tubal! <sup>2</sup>I will turn you about, drag you out, and bring you out of the far north, and I will bring you to Israel's mountains. <sup>3</sup>I will strike your bow from your left hand, and make your arrows fall from your right. <sup>4</sup>You will fall on Israel's mountains, you, all your troops, and the peoples who are with you. I will give you to the birds of prey, to every kind of bird and wild animal as food. <sup>5</sup>You will fall on the open field, for I have spoken! This is what the LORD God says! <sup>6</sup>I will send fire on Magog and on those who live securely in the coastlands, and they will know that I am the LORD. <sup>7</sup>I will make known my holy name among my people Israel. They will never again degrade my holy name, and the nations will know that I, the LORD, am holy in Israel. <sup>8</sup>Look, it has come! It has happened! This is what the LORD God says. This is the day that I spoke about.

<sup>9</sup>Those who live in Israel's cities will go out and kindle a fire with the weapons—shield and buckler, bow and arrow, spear and lance. They will burn them with fire for seven years. <sup>10</sup>They won't gather wood from the field or chop down trees from the forest, because they will be able to keep the fire burning with the weapons. So they will take plunder and seize loot. This is what the LORD says.

<sup>11</sup>On that day, I will assign Gog a place for burial in Israel in the Travelers' Valley east of the sea. It will block the travelers' way, because Gog and all of his horde will be buried there. It will be called Hamon-gog<sup>7</sup> Valley. <sup>12</sup>For seven months, the house of Israel will bury them in you up: In contrast to past judgments, when God used the foreign power of Babylon to punish Israel, now God brings Magog to destroy them to show all foreign powers the power and glory of the Lord (cf. Ezek 20:41; 28:22, 25; 36:23; see sidebar, "The Recognition Formula" at Ezek 6).

38:17 my servants, Israel's prophets: Which prophets exactly, and what their message was, is unknown. Clear, however, is the role of their prophecies in revealing the Lord through the defeat of Gog.

38:20 will quake in my presence: In the OT, when God comes as a warrior, all of the natural upheavals listed in 38:20-22 typically happen (see the note on Ezek 1:4; cf. Exod 19:16; 20:18; Deut 4:11; 5:22-24; Pss 18:11-15; 46:1-3; 68:7-8).

38:21 The swords of the warriors will be against each other. The Lord will confuse the armies of Gog so that they fight each other (cf. Judg 7:22; 2 Chron 20:23).

39:1-24 The Lord announces the slaughter of Gog's armies, assuring that they will die a cursed death.

39:3-6 The language here is similar to the oracles against Egypt. from your left hand... from your right: Compare with Ezekiel 30:20-26. You will fall on Israel's mountains: Compare with Ezekiel 6:2, 3; 35:10-13; 36:1-12. I will give you to the birds... as food: Compare with Ezekiel 29:5; 31:13; 32:4. open field: Compare with Ezekiel 16:5; 29:5; 32:4; 33:27. I will send fire: Compare with Ezekiel 30:8, 14, 16.

39:8 it has come: This event marks Gog's future end, not the end of Israel's land (cf. Ezek 7). This is a promise of a new era of peace and security for the restored land (cf. Isa 11:6-9).

39:10 take plunder and seize loot: upending Gog's evil plan (cf. Ezek 38:13).

39:11-16 Details are supplied for Gog's shame-filled burial. 39:11 Travelers' Valley: may refer to those who have traveled to the netherworld. east of the sea: the Mediterranean Sea. it will block the travelers' way: If the travelers are now dead, then the valley will be filled with corpses, preventing any further burials.

39:11, 15 Hamon-gog Valley: This is a play on the Hinnom Valley, which was outside of the walls of Jerusalem in the 6th century BCE, where children were sacrificed (cf. Jer 19:5; 32:35; and see the note on Ezek 16:21; cf. 20:31; 23:37, 39). By becoming an open grave of Gog's fallen soldiers, this site of unorthodox worship has been defiled.

order to cleanse the land. <sup>13</sup>All the people of the land will take part in the burial, so they will make a name for themselves on the day that I glorify myself. This is what the LORD God says. <sup>14</sup>They will appoint people who will continually cross through the land and bury<sup>a</sup> the human remains that are left on the surface of the ground in order to purify it. They will begin their search at the end of seven months. <sup>15</sup>As the travelers cross through the land, when they see a human bone, they will set up a marker next to it until the gravediggers bury it in Hamon-gog Valley <sup>16</sup>(the name of the city is Hamonah). So they will purify the land.

<sup>17</sup>And you, human one, the LORD God proclaims: Say to the birds of prey, to every kind of bird and every wild animal: Assemble and come! Come together from all around for the sacrifice that I make for you, a great sacrifice on Israel's mountains! You will eat flesh and drink blood. <sup>18</sup>You will eat the flesh of warriors and drink the blood of the princes of the earth: rams, lambs, goats, bulls, all fattened animals from Bashan. <sup>19</sup>Gorge yourselves on their fat, and get drunk on their blood, from the sacrifice that I have made for you. <sup>20</sup>Satisfy yourselves at my table with horses and riders, mighty men and every warrior. This is what the LORD God says! <sup>21</sup>When I glorify myself among the nations, all the nations will understand the judgments that I executed and the power that I used among them. <sup>22</sup>And the house of Israel will know that I, the LORD, am their God, from that day on. <sup>23</sup>The nations will know that the house of Israel went into exile because of their guilt. Because they rebelled against me, I hid my face from them. When I handed them over to their enemies, all of them fell by the sword. <sup>24</sup>I dealt with them according to their uncleanness and their transgressions and hid my face from them.

<sup>25</sup>So the LORD God proclaims: Now I will bring back the captives of Jacob. I will have compassion on the whole house of Israel and defend my holy name. <sup>26</sup>They will forget their humiliation and all their rebellions against me when they live securely on their fertile land with no one to frighten them. <sup>27</sup>When I bring them back from the peoples and gather them from the lands of their enemies, I will be made holy through them in the sight of the many nations. <sup>28</sup>They will know that I am the LORD their God when, after I made them go into exile among the nations, I gathered them to their land. I won't leave any of them behind. <sup>29</sup>When I pour my Spirit upon the house of Israel, I won't hide my face from them again. This is what the LORD God says.

39:16 the name of the city is Hamonah: Compare with Jeremiah 25:29; 33:9; Ezekiel 48:35.

39:17-20 Instead of dying as heroes, with their weapons of war (see the note on Ezek 32:27), and being gathered to their ancestors, these warriors will become the excrement of scavengers after a gory feast. With such a vivid scene, the text curses Gog and its armies (see sidebar, "Death and Afterlife in the Ancient Near East" at Ezek 32. See note on Ezek 24:6-8; cf. 1 Kgs 14:11; 21:23-24; 2 Kgs 9:34-37; Jer 16:4; 34:19-20; Ezek 37:1-14).

39:25-29 God will protect the land, allowing it to live peacefully, and in so doing, make clear the honor properly due to God.

40:1-48:35 In the ancient world, temple architecture combined with proper ceremonies and rituals carried out by priests enabled the nation to experience God's presence. The prophet's fourth and final vision promises Israel that it would dwell in the Lord's presence again. The vision clearly brings closure to his first two visions at Ezekiel 1 and Ezekiel 8-11. Ezekiel encounters God's presence in the form of the Lord's glory (Ezek 43:2; cf. Ezek 1) and is taken on a guided tour of a new temple (Ezek 40:5-42:20; cf. Ezek 8), leading to an announcement of the reestablishment of the Lord's throne (Ezek 43:7; cf. Ezek 37:26; and note the contrast with Ezek 11:22-23). This promise includes a vision of the restored land (47:1-12; cf. 37:1-14) and its allotment to the tribes, priestly orders, and patron (47:13-48:29; cf. 37:12-14). Also included is a set of (Torah) instructions (43:12-46:24), which is the only Instruction in the OT found outside of the Pentateuch and not associated with Moses. This vision brings full circle the theme of Ezekiel's prophecies, the encounter with God's presence, with a final statement that names the future city, rebuilt in the midst of the land: "The LORD Is There" (48:35b).

40:1-4 The introduction to the vision.

40:1 In the beginning of the twenty-fifth year of our exile: midway to the year of Jubilee (cf. Lev 25:3-8). Jubilee was the year when all family allotments return to their proper ancestral titleholders, and all was restored to its originally created order. The text is delivered at the theological mid-point of the exile, exactly fourteen years after the city was struck down: This is the second double date in the book (cf. Ezek 1:3; and sidebar, "The Dates in the Book of Ezekiel" at Ezek 8), and it focuses the reader's attention on destroyed Jerusalem (and he took me there). power was on me, and he took me there. <sup>2</sup>In God's visions, he brought me to the land of Israel and set me down on a very high mountain, where there was a city structure to the south. <sup>3</sup>When he brought me there, I saw a man standing in the gate. He appeared to be bronze, and he had a linen cord and a measuring rod in his hand. <sup>4</sup>The man spoke to me, "Human one, look and listen well, and take seriously everything I show you, because you were brought here so that these things could be revealed to you. Describe everything you see to the house of Israel."

Temple compound

<sup>5</sup>Now there was an outer wall that went all the way around the temple compound. The measuring rod in the man's hand was ten and a half feet<sup>a</sup> (based on a standard eighteen inches<sup>b</sup> plus three inches<sup>c</sup>). When he measured the wall's height and width it was ten and a half feet high and ten and a half feet wide. <sup>6</sup>He entered the gate facing east. He went up its steps, and he measured the plaza<sup>d</sup> at the gate. It was ten and a half feet wide: the plaza was ten and a half feet wide. <sup>7</sup>The rooms were ten and a half feet long and ten and a half feet wide, with a space of seven and a half feet between them. The plaza next to the porch at the gate opposite the temple was ten and a half feet. <sup>8</sup>He measured the porch of the gate opposite the temple: it was ten and a half feet. <sup>9</sup>Then he measured the porch of the gate: it was twelve feet,<sup>e</sup> and its arches were three feet. The porch of the gate was opposite the temple. <sup>10</sup>Inside the east gate, there were three rooms on each side. Each was the same size, and the arches on each side were the same size also. <sup>11</sup>Then he measured the width of the gate opening, which was fifteen feet, and the gate's length, which was nineteen and a half feet. <sup>12</sup>A border running along the front of the rooms on each side was eighteen inches wide, and each of the rooms was nine feet square. <sup>13</sup>He measured the gate through the room openings that faced

It is unclear whether the measurements with the rod continue past 40:8, when standard ammah appear, though the longer ammah do continue briefly in 43:13-17 for the altar. <sup>b</sup>Or a standard cubit <sup>c</sup>Or a handbreadth <sup>d</sup>Or threshold; Heb architectural and decorative terminology in Ezek 40-48 is often uncertain. <sup>e</sup>Or eight cubits

7:1-27), Ezekiel 40-48 foresees the opening of a new epoch for the city.

40:2 In God's visions: Compare with Ezekiel 1:1; 8:3; 37:1-2. very high mountain: In the land of Israel, only Mount Zion could be meant. That it isn't identified by name but by stature makes the reader consider its theological significance and equate it with the mountain of God's abode (cf. Ps 48:1-2; Isa 2:2 // Mic 4:1; Ezek 17:22; 20:40; Zech 14:10). a city structure to the south: In Ezekiel's day, the temple sat to the north of Jerusalem.

40:3 I saw a man: a heavenly guide who will lead Ezekiel throughout the temple (Ezek 40-42), and the river (Ezek 47:1-12), a linen cord and a measuring rod: surveying tools of the ancient world.

40:4 Describe everything you see: As the "human one," Ezekiel serves as mediator of the new temple structure given to him by God. David fulfills this role in 1 Chronicles 28:19. 40:5-42:20 The text describes a heavenly tour of the sacred precinct, filled with tedious details, measurements, and architectural features that were, even when they were written, imprecise in their presentation. The prophet didn't prepare drawings, which could be handed to a builder, but rather he led his audience through a structure whose architectural features could, if managed by the priests according to ordained instructions about holiness, allow access to the Lord, and yet still maintain the necessary separation between the holy and the ordinary (42:20). Ezekiel's exilic audience understood that the features would be functional architecture for God's presence. 40:5-47 The guided tour of the outer and inner courtyards is arranged broadly in three segments: the outer wall, gates, and outer courtyard (40:5-27); the inner courtyard and gates (40:28-37); special rooms dedicated for preparation and purification (40:38-47).

40:6-16 the gate facing east: Beginning with the gate out of which the Lord's glory exits the temple (cf. Ezek 10:19), the east gate provides a template for all the other gates. The exact arrangement of the porches, steps, and plazas isn't described with enough accuracy so that these features could be constructed. Instead, Ezekiel described architecture that his audience already knew. Ezekiel does explain the measurements, which are unlikely. They were described for the priestly ear and eye, which searched for cosmic order during exile.

40:10 three rooms on each side: Six-chambered gates were in Ezekiel's day famous and royal. Such gates have been excavated at Gezer, Hazor, Lachish, Megiddo, and elsewhere, and were associated in the biblical tradition with Judah's royal past (cf. 1 Kgs 9:15-16). Their size and military purposes would have been overstated for the temple precinct, except that they communicate proper access to the Lord's presence (cf. Ezek 44:5).

40:13-15 thirty-seven and a half feet wide... seventy-five feet: These dimensions express a one-to-two ratio, or two squares placed next to each other. The square shape seems to form the basic building block for the plan, and is repeated throughout (e.g., the inner court, Ezek 40:47; the temple building, Ezek 41:13-14; the structure to the west, Ezek 41:15; the shape of the temple grounds, Ezek

The Temple Plan Ezekiel 40–42 contains much tedious detail. But Ezekiel's audience would have appreciated every measurement of an ideal new temple. With his presentation of the temple's architecture, Ezekiel explained how it would be possible for the holy God to live in the midst of and be accessed by a nation of ordinary humans. The juxtaposition of the holy and the ordinary was made possible by carefully designing architectural features that controlled access to space, as well as providing for the proper purification of all things ordinary. In the ancient Near East, it was common for the gods to reveal to their priests and prophets temple plans that regulated proper approach to them. As confusing as the measurements and arrangements are to us, one thing is clear: the temple and all of its particulars were based on the shape of a square (cf. Ezek 42:15-20; 45:2; see the associated diagram). This use of the square shape even extends to the holy portion (cf. Ezek 45:1-9; 48:8-22; see the associated diagram). For Ezekiel the square represented cosmic order.

each other. From the outer ceiling edge of one room to the outer ceiling edge of the other, the gate was thirty-seven and a half feet wide. <sup>14</sup>Next he made out the perimeter of the hallway, defined by the arches inside the gate: it was ninety feet. <sup>15</sup>It was seventy-five feet from the front of the outer gate to the front of the inner porch of the gate. <sup>16</sup>Inside the gate, all of the rooms and their arches had closed windows; there were also niches inside the porch all the way around. The arches were decorated with palm trees.

<sup>17</sup>Then he brought me to the outer courtyard, which consisted of chambers and a pavement all the way around. Thirty chambers came up to the pavement, <sup>18</sup>and the pavement came up to the facades of the gates along their entire length. That was the lower pavement. <sup>19</sup>When he measured the width from the inside of the lower gate to the outer edge of the inner courtyard, it was one hundred fifty feet.

After he measured the east gate, he measured the north gate, <sup>20</sup>the one facing north at the outer courtyard. He measured its length and width, <sup>21</sup>its three inner rooms on each side, its arches, and its porch. Its measurements were the same as the first gate: seventy-five feet long and thirty-seven and a half feet wide. <sup>22</sup>The windows, porch, and palm decorations had the same measurements as those of the east gate. Seven steps led up to the entrance, and the porch was at the other end. <sup>23</sup>There were also gates to the inner courtyard opposite the north and east gates. When he measured from gate to gate, it was one hundred fifty feet.

<sup>24</sup>Then he had me walk toward the south, where there was a gate facing south. He measured its arches and porch using the same measurements. <sup>25</sup>Its windows and its porch all around were like the others, and the gate also was seventy-five feet long and thirty-seven and a half feet wide. <sup>26</sup>Its stairway had seven steps, and its porch was at the other end. On its arches, one on either side, were palm decorations. <sup>27</sup>There was a gate to the inner courtyard on the south. When he measured from gate to gate on the south side, it was one hundred fifty feet.

<sup>28</sup>When he brought me to the inner courtyard by way of the south gate, he took the same measurements of the south gate. <sup>29</sup>Its rooms, arches, and porch, as well as its windows and porch all the way around, measured the same as the others. It was seventy-five feet long and thirty-seven and a half feet wide. <sup>30</sup>There were porches all around, thirty-seven and a half feet long and seven and a half feet wide. <sup>31</sup>Its porch faced the outer courtyard. Palms decorated its arches, and its stairway had eight steps.

<sup>32</sup>Then he brought me to the inner courtyard on the east side, and again he took the same measurements of the gate. <sup>33</sup>Its rooms, arches, and porch measured the same as the 42:15-20; 45:2; and the holy portion, Ezek 48:20). Actual six-chambered gates would be nearly as wide as they are long, indicating that this ratio is generated by theological notions of sacred order and symmetry, rather than actual brick and mortar.

40:17-19 The outer court is described, with its associated rooms for priestly service and preparations. This courtyard sits lower than the inner courtyard (40:18), creating an ascending progression as one moves toward the temple and the altar, as would be appropriate for climbing God's mountain (cf. Ezek 40:2).

40:19-27 The north (40:19-23) and south (40:24-27) gates of the outer wall are described in less detail, referring back to the east gate as their model, yet still emphasizing the overall one-to-two ratio of proportion. There is no west gate, but instead a large nondescript structure (Ezek 41:12) takes up the area behind the temple and the most holy place.

40:28-37 Now the tour moves closer to the altar and the temple itself, by measuring the sacred space of the inner court and its gates. The bronze man guides Ezekiel successively from the south gate (40:28-31), to the east gate (40:32-34), and then to the north gate (40:35-37) of the inner court. No wall separated the inner court from the outer, but the inner court does seem raised by eight steps (40:31, 34, 37), which points to its higher state of holiness.

others, as well as its windows and porch all the way around. It was seventy-five feet long and thirty-seven and a half feet wide. <sup>34</sup>Its porch faced the outer courtyard. Palm trees decorated its arches on both sides, and its stairway had eight steps. <sup>35</sup>Then he brought me to the north gate and took the same measurements of the <sup>36</sup>rooms, arches, and porch, and also its windows all around. It was seventy-five feet long and thirty-seven and a half feet wide. <sup>37</sup>Its porch<sup>f</sup> faced the outer courtyard. Palm trees decorated its arches on both sides, and its stairway had eight steps.

<sup>44</sup>Outside the inner gate there were two<sup>h</sup> chambers in the inner courtyard. The one beside the north gate faced south, and the one beside the east gate faced north. <sup>45</sup>He spoke to me: "The chamber facing south is for the priests who keep watch over the temple, <sup>46</sup>and the chamber facing north is for the priests who keep watch over the altar. Of all the Levites, only the Zadokites may draw near to serve the LORD." <sup>47</sup>Then he measured the courtyard. It was square, one hundred fifty feet long and one hundred fifty feet wide. The altar was in front of the temple.

The temple

<sup>48</sup>Then he brought me to the porch of the temple and measured its arches. They were seven and a half feet on each side, and the width of the gate was four and a half feet on each side. <sup>49</sup>The porch was thirty feet long and eighteen feet wide. Steps led up into the porch, and there were columns for the arches, one on each side.

41 He brought me to the main hall, and he measured the arches. They were nine feet deep on both sides, so that was also the depth of the tent. <sup>2</sup>The entrance was fifteen feet wide, and the facades on either side of the entrance were seven and a half feet. When he measured its length, it was sixty feet, and its width was thirty feet. <sup>3</sup>Then he went into the inner room, and he measured the arches on both sides of the entrance; they were each three feet. The entrance was nine feet wide, and its depth was ten and a half feet. <sup>4</sup>When he measured the length of the inner room, it was thirty feet, and the width of the side adjoining the main hall was also thirty feet. He said to me, "This is the most holy place."

Conspicuously absent is the bronze Sea, a huge basin for water, which was present in Solomon's temple (cf. 1 Kgs 7:23-26 // 2 Chron 4:2-5).

40:38-43 At that gate: The north gate of the inner court leads most directly to the outside, ordinary spaces (cf. Ezek 8:3-5; and see the note on Ezek 8:2-3). Just to the north of the temple grounds would be a spring and a dammed up pool, to be used for temple service (cf. John 5:1-18).

40:41 There were four tables on each side of the gate, eight tables in all: The two sets of four tables are set for purifying the person entering the north gate separating the outer and inner courts. One set would be used when leaving the outer court, the other set for use when entering the inner court.

40:45-46 These two chambers distinguish the two priestly orders. The Zadokites are projected as a specialized branch of the broader Levites (40:46), whose hierarchical superiority over the other Levites is clear from both their location (next to the east gate, as opposed to the north gate) and service to the Lord (in contrast to service to the temple by the Levites, 40:45; and cf. Ezek 44:9-14, 15-31).

40:47 The inner court forms a square, 150 feet in length.

40:48-41:26 The tour now proceeds to the temple itself. The building is empty, and so the description has a mundane, matter-of-fact feel to it as it moves from one room to another. Any excitement is reserved for the coming of the Lord's presence (cf. Ezek 43:1-9).

40:48-49 The description of the porch. Steps led up: Each successive level of holiness is marked by an increase in height, representative of moving up God's mountain toward the Lord's dwelling. there were columns: Compare with 1 Kings 7:17-22 // 2 Chronicles 3:15-17.

41:1-2 The main hall, or sanctuary, of the temple (cf. 1 Kgs 6:17). As was typical of ancient Near Eastern temples, Ezekiel envisions a long-room style of temple. The dimensions (41:2), like the gates, are built on a one-to-two ratio of width to length.

41:3-4 The dimensions of the most holy place are now described (cf. 1 Kgs 6:20), which are a perfect 30 feet by 30

<sup>5</sup>When he measured the wall of the temple, it was nine feet, and the side chambers that went all the way around the temple were six feet. <sup>6</sup>Now these side chambers adjoined each other, thirty chambers in three stories. The side chambers had a ledge in the temple wall all the way around to serve as supports, but these supports were not inserted into the temple wall itself. <sup>7</sup>A wide ramp ascended stage by stage to the side chambers all the way around the temple. In this way, the ascent stage by stage all around the temple added to the temple's width. One ascended from the foundation to the top by way of the middle story. <sup>8</sup>Then I looked at the temple: Its roof all around rested on the side chambers. Each raised section was ten and a half feet, and the indentations between them were nine feet.<sup>1</sup> <sup>9</sup>The width of the outer wall of the side chambers was seven and a half feet. The space left free between the temple's side chambers and <sup>10</sup>the other chambers was thirty feet wide all the way around the temple. <sup>11</sup>There were two entrances from the side chambers to the free space, one facing north, the other facing south. And the width of the place that was left free was seven and a half feet all the way around. <sup>12</sup>The structure facing the yard on the west was one hundred five feet wide. The structure's wall was seven and a half feet wide all the way around, and its length was one hundred thirty-five feet.

<sup>13</sup>Then he measured the temple. It was one hundred fifty feet long. The yard, the structure, and its walls were also one hundred fifty feet. <sup>14</sup>The area in front of the house and the yard to the east was one hundred fifty feet also. <sup>15</sup>Then he measured the length of the structure along the side of the yard, including its promenades on both sides: one hundred fifty feet.

Now the interior of the main hall as well as the porches in the courtyard <sup>16</sup>were paneled all around, including the ceilings,<sup>1</sup> closed windows, and its three courses of promenades adjoined the ceiling. From the ground up to the windows was covered. <sup>17</sup>Above the entrance, from the interior to the exterior of the temple, and on every interior and exterior wall, <sup>18</sup>there were carved winged creatures and palm trees. The palm trees were positioned between the winged creatures, and each winged creature had two faces. <sup>19</sup>A human face turned toward one palm tree, and the face of a lion turned toward another. They were carved on the temple all the way around. <sup>20</sup>From the ground to above the entrance, the walls of the main hall were carved with winged creatures and palm trees. <sup>21</sup>In the main hall itself, there were square doorposts in front of the holy place, where there was the appearance of <sup>22</sup>the altar. It was four and a half feet high and three feet wide. It was made of wood, and its corners, base, and sides were also wood. He said to me, "This is the table that stands before the LORD."

<sup>23</sup>The main hall and the holy place each had two doors, <sup>24</sup>and each door had two turning panels, two for one door and two for the other. <sup>25</sup>Like the walls, the doors of the main hall were carved with winged creatures and palm trees. A single luxuriant<sup>2</sup> tree stood outside, in front of the porch, <sup>26</sup>while closed windows and palm trees decorated both sides of the facade of the porch, the temple's side chambers, and the beams.

Chambers and promenades

42 Then he led me north to the outer courtyard and brought me into the set of chambers opposite the yard and the structure to the north. <sup>2</sup>The length of the facade at feet square. "This is the most holy place": Dialogue in this vision is selective (cf. Ezek 40:45-46; 41:22; 42:13-14; 47:6, 8-12), and the speech of the bronze man here underscores this room as special.

41:5-11 The side chambers of the temple are placed and measured (cf. 1 Kgs 6:5-8). Their precise arrangement isn't clear, but Ezekiel's audience presumably understood their structure and purpose.

41:12-15 The temple is situated in relation to a structure to the west. Together, they form two squares of 150 feet on each side (41:12, 15, 13-14).

41:12, 15 The structure facing the yard on the west: No detail is given to this structure, whose purpose seems merely to fill out the space west of the most holy place (i.e., "behind" the Lord), and to create the necessary symmetry for the holy compound.

41:16-26 The interior decorations of the temple are described. Ezekiel doesn't mention furnishings, such as lampstands or incense altars (cf. 1 Kgs 7:48-50), nor is the paneling said to be plated with gold (cf. 1 Kgs 6:21-22) nor even made with special types of wood (cf. 1 Kgs 5:6; 2 Chr 2:8-9).

41:18 carved winged creatures and palm trees: See 1 Kings 6:29; 32. The winged creatures represent heavenly attendants (cf. Ezek 1:5-14; 10:1-17). Palm trees symbolize God's primeval garden (Eden), which is always green, and are theologically related to the creator of life (see Ezek 41:25-26).

41:22 the altar: the table for the bread of presence (cf. Exod 25:23-30; Lev 24:5-9; 1 Kgs 6:20; 7:48).

42:1-14 The tour now moves outside of the temple itself, and explores rooms where the priests share sacrificial meals (42:13). The two sets of chambers (the northern set are described in 42:1-10; the southern in 42:9-12) together form a square, 150 feet on all sides (42:2, 11), the the north entrance was one hundred fifty feet, its depth seventy-five feet. <sup>3</sup>It was next to the twenty chambers that belonged to the inner courtyard and next to the pavement of the outer courtyard, and it had three courses of promenades. <sup>4</sup>In front of the chambers there was a passage fifteen feet wide, and to the inside, a passage eighteen inches wide. The entrance to the chambers was on the north. <sup>5</sup>The upper chambers were smaller, because the promenades took up more space from them than from the first and second stories. <sup>6</sup>This was because the promenades were arranged in three levels, but they didn't have columns like those in the courtyards. For this reason, the top story was narrower than the first and second stories. <sup>7</sup>A stone wall ran parallel to the chambers facing the outer courtyard. It was seventy-five feet long, <sup>8</sup>the same length, seventy-five feet, as the chambers facing the outer courtyard. Those facing the temple were one hundred fifty feet. <sup>9-10</sup>These chambers were entered from the outer courtyard at the end of the courtyard wall, because the entrance was at the end of the chambers at the east. South of the yard and the building, there were more chambers with a passage <sup>11</sup>in front of them. The design of the chambers resembled the ones to the north in length and width, as well as in all their exits. The arrangement of the entrances <sup>12</sup>to the chambers on the south side was identical as well. One entered from the east at the beginning of the corresponding wall.

<sup>13</sup>Then he said to me, "The north and south chambers that face the building and the yard are the holy chambers where the priests eat the offerings that have been brought to the LORD. They are most holy. Here they will place the most holy things, the grain offering, the purification offering, and the compensation offering. The place is holy. <sup>14</sup>When the priests enter, they won't go out of the sanctuary to the outer courtyard. There they will place the priestly vests that they wore when they were ministering, because these garments are also holy. They will put on other garments when they go out to the people's area."

<sup>15</sup>When he finished making the interior measurements of the temple, he led me out toward the east gate, and he measured all the way around. <sup>16</sup>He used the same measuring rod on all four sides. He measured the east side, seven hundred fifty feet; <sup>17</sup>the north side, seven hundred fifty feet; and <sup>18</sup>the south side, seven hundred fifty feet. <sup>19</sup>He turned to the west side, seven hundred fifty feet. <sup>20</sup>On all four sides he measured the wall all the way around. Its length was seven hundred fifty feet, and its width seven hundred fifty feet. So he made a division between the holy and the ordinary.

Return of the divine glory

43 Then he led me to the east gate, <sup>2</sup>where the glory of Israel's God was coming in from the east. Its sound was like the sound of a mighty flood, and the earth was lit up with his glory. <sup>3</sup>What appeared when I looked was like what I had seen when he<sup>c</sup> came to destroy the city, and also like what I saw at the Chebar River, and I fell on my face. <sup>4</sup>Then the LORD's glory came into the temple by way of the east gate. <sup>5</sup>A wind picked me up and brought me to the inner courtyard, and there the LORD's glory filled the temple. <sup>6</sup>A man was standing next to me, but the voice that I heard came from inside the temple. <sup>7</sup>He said to me, Human one, same dimensions as the other square shapes that formed the basis of the cosmically ordered temple mount. The building instructions of these chambers (42:13-14) conclude with the function and directions for how to keep the space holy.

42:15-20 Ezekiel's guide finally measures the entire worship grounds, a massive square 750 feet on each side (cf. also Ezek 45:2).

42:20 So he made a division between the holy and the ordinary: the purpose of the temple compound. The issue is equally keeping the defiled things out and allowing for access to the holy (cf. Ezek 44:5, 23).

43:1-9 In one of the most dramatic scenes in the book, the visionary temple tour climaxes with the Lord's glory entering the temple and announcing that God's presence will once again be enthroned in the most holy place (43:7). The route of the glory retraces the steps taken in Ezekiel 10-11, when it abandoned the defiled temple.

43:1-2 coming in from the east: See Ezekiel 11:22-23, where the glory is described as leaving the temple precinct and resting on the mountain to the east (i.e., Mount of Olives). like the sound of a mighty flood: Compare with Ezekiel 1:24. the glory: Compare with Ezekiel 1:28, 3:12, 23; 8:4; 10:4, 18; 11:23.

43:6 but the voice that I heard came from inside the temple: The location makes it clear that this is the voice of the Lord's glory (cf. Ezek 1:28).

this is the place for my throne and the place for the soles of my feet, where I will dwell among the Israelites forever. The house of Israel will never again defile my holy name, neither they nor their kings, with their disloyalties<sup>m</sup> and with their kings' corpses at the shrines. <sup>8</sup>When they set their plazas<sup>n</sup> with mine and their doorposts next to mine, the wall was between us. They defiled my holy name with their detestable practices, so I consumed them in my anger. <sup>9</sup>Now let them remove their disloyalties and their kings' corpses from me, and I will dwell among them forever.

<sup>10</sup>You, human one, describe the temple to the house of Israel. Let them be humiliated because of their guilt when they think about its design. <sup>11</sup>When they feel humiliated by all that they have done, make known to them the shape of the temple and its adornment, its exits and its entrances, its entire plan and all of its regulations.<sup>o</sup> Write them down in their sight so that they may observe all of its entire plan and all its regulations and perform them.

<sup>12</sup>These are the instructions for the temple: the top of the mountain, as well as its boundaries all around, are most holy. These are the instructions for the temple.

The altar

Purification of the altar

<sup>18</sup>He said to me, Human one, the LORD God proclaims: These are the regulations established for the altar on the day when it is prepared for making entirely burned offerings and dashing blood on it. <sup>19</sup>You will provide a young bull as a purification offering to the levitical priests who are descendants of Zadok, the ones who may draw near to minister to me. This is what the LORD God says. <sup>20</sup>You will take some of its blood and set it on the four horns of the of the people had earlier driven away (cf. Ezek 8:6). For the temple as the Lord's throne room, compare Isaiah 6:1-3; Psalms 9:7-12; 99:1-5. the place for the soles of my feet: Excavations in the ancient Near East indicate that thrones were regularly equipped with footstools (cf. 2 Chron 9:18). The Lord's throne had a footstool (cf. Pss 99:5; 132:7), which in some texts was identified as the chest containing the covenant (cf. 1 Chron 28:2). Note also Isaiah 66:1, in which heaven is God's throne, and the earth God's footstool. where I will dwell among the Israelites: Language used in connection with the Lord's presence in the midst of Israel (1 Chron 23:25; Ps 15:1), managed through the Lord's dwelling (cf. Exod 25:8; 29:45, 46), and Solomon's temple (cf. Deut 12:5, 11; 14:23; 1 Kgs 6:13; 8:12 // 2 Chron 6:1). The establishment of the Lord's throne establishes the precedent for the nation's access to God through priestly ritual (cf. Ezek 43:27).

43:9 remove . . . their kings' corpses from me: The practice here is unclear. Some beliefs about the afterlife, however, involved the idea that dead ancestors went before the gods to speak on behalf of their living descendants (see sidebar, "Death and Afterlife in the Ancient Near East" at Ezek 32). As the patriarchs of the nation, the kings would speak with the national god on behalf of the people. Ezekiel signals here a theological shift in the role of the king before the Lord (see sidebar, "The Demotion of the King in Ezekiel" at Ezek 34; and cf. Isa 8:19-22).

43:10-12 The conclusion to this initial part of the vision, which describes the measurements of the future temple.

43:10 Let them be humiliated: Compare with Ezekiel 14:22-23, 16:63; 20:43; 36:31.

43:13-17 The dimensions of the altar. As with all of the structures on the temple mount, the altar is a square (43:17). In addition, the altar was a stepped structure, symbolizing the mountain of God (cf. Ezek 40:2).

43:17 Its ramp faces east: The officiating priest faces the temple as he ascends the altar, preventing anyone from turning their backs to the Lord, and thereby avoiding worship of the sun (cf. Ezek 8:16).

43:18-27 Detailed instructions are given for making the altar holy over the course of seven days (cf. Exod 29:36-37; 40:10; Lev 8:11; and Num 7:1-88, in which 12 days are prescribed, one for each tribe).

43:19 to the levitical priests who are descendants of Zadok: Ezekiel's theology of holiness involved a strict hierarchy, especially in regard to priestly families (cf. Ezek 40:45-46; 44:9-14, 15-31).

altar and on the four sides of the ledge and on the curb all around. So you will purify it and purge it. <sup>21</sup>Then you will take the bull selected as the purification offering, and the priests will burn it in a designated place of the temple outside of the sanctuary. <sup>22</sup>On the second day, you will present a flawless male goat as a purification offering. The priests will purify the altar just as they purified the altar with the bull. <sup>23</sup>When you have completed the purification, you will present a flawless bull from the herd and a flawless ram from the flock. <sup>24</sup>You will present them to the LORD. The priests will throw salt on them and offer them as entirely burned offerings to the LORD. <sup>25</sup>Daily, for seven days, you will present a male goat for a purification offering. You will also present a bull from the herd and a ram from the flock, both flawless. <sup>26</sup>For seven days the priests will purge the altar in order to purify it and to dedicate it. <sup>27</sup>When the seven days are completed, the priests will offer you entirely burned offerings and your well-being sacrifices on the altar from the eighth day on, and I will accept you with pleasure. This is what the LORD God says.

The closed gate

44 He brought me back to the outer sanctuary gate that faces east. It was closed. <sup>2</sup>The LORD said to me, This gate remains closed. It shouldn't be opened. No one should come in through it because the LORD, Israel's God, has entered through it. It will remain closed. <sup>3</sup>As for the prince, he may sit in it to eat bread in the LORD's presence. He may come in and go out by way of the gate's porch.

Foreigners, Levites, Zadokites

<sup>4</sup>Then he brought me by way of the north gate to the front of the temple. I looked, and suddenly the LORD's glory filled the LORD's temple, and I fell on my face. <sup>5</sup>Then the LORD said to me: Human one, pay close attention! Use your eyes and ears and listen to all that I say to you concerning the regulations of the LORD's temple and all its instructions. Pay close attention to the access to the temple through all the sanctuary portals. <sup>6</sup>Speak to the rebels, to the house of Israel, The LORD God proclaims: Enough of your detestable practices, house of Israel! <sup>7</sup>You made my temple unclean because you brought into my sanctuary foreigners who were physically and spiritually uncircumcised. When you offered my food of fat and blood to me, you<sup>f</sup> broke my covenant with all your detestable practices. <sup>8</sup>You didn't keep charge of my holy things. On the contrary, you appointed them<sup>g</sup> to keep charge in my sanctuary for you.

43:27 I will accept you with pleasure: The defiling, detestable practices had separated the Lord and the people (cf. Ezek 8:6). Now through priestly purification rituals, Ezekiel promises an audience with the divine king (cf. Ezek 43:7).

44:1-3 The east gate can be locked because the Lord will dwell with the people forever (Ezek 43:7, 9).

44:3 The prince, though demoted and limited in his duties, is given this one privilege as the patron of the temple (see sidebar, "The Demotion of the King in Ezekiel" at Ezek 34; and cf. Ezek 46:1-2). Nevertheless, he can go no further than the threshold of the gate, and isn't allowed into the inner court (cf. Ezek 46:2, 8).

44:4-31 Within the context of access (44:5), the text discusses different groups within the general population, condemning once more the house of Israel (44:5-8), limiting access by foreigners to the sanctuary (44:9), demoting the Levites (44:10-14), and promoting the Zadokite priestly order, who are allowed to approach God's presence on behalf of the nation (44:15-31).

44:4 While in the outer court, in front of the locked east gate (Ezek 44:1-2), Ezekiel must be led by his heavenly guide through the north gate in order to enter the inner court as the setting for receiving the Instruction. Ezekiel's audience understood the temple as God's mountain, and so this passage has strong correlation with Moses receiving the Instruction at Mount Sinai (cf. Exod 19:3, 9-25; 24:13-18). Ezekiel never mentions Moses or the Instruction from Moses, and the instruction that follows is the only instruction in the OT besides the Instruction from Moses.

44:5 all its instructions: The Hebrew word, torah, is only applied to teaching dealing with the temple or priestly service in the book of Ezekiel (cf. Ezek 22:26; 43:11, 12; 44:24). In the Pentateuch (Gen to Deut), it is the designation for the entire teaching or instruction that the Lord gave to the nation through Moses (cf. Exod 24:12; Lev 26:46; Num 31:21; Deut 1:5; 4:44; 31:9, 24; 33:4). the access to the temple through all the sanctuary portals: The purpose behind the overly elaborate gates is made clear (cf. Ezek 40:5-47).

44:6-8 You made my temple unclean: The first group to be identified is the house of Israel, a rebellious lot in Ezekiel (see the note on Ezek 3:1). Their detestable practices (see the note on Ezek 5:9) are what defiled the temple in the first place, and according to Ezekiel, caused the Lord to abandon the temple (cf. Ezek 8:6). The instructions given here, and ultimately to be carried out by the Zadokites (not the Levites), are intended to distinguish between holy and ordinary, clean and unclean (cf. Ezek 44:23; 42:20).

<sup>9</sup>The LORD God proclaims: Foreigners who are spiritually and physically uncircumcised must not enter my sanctuary; that is, all foreigners among the Israelites. <sup>10</sup>But the Levites, who went far from me when Israel went astray, who went astray from me after their idols, will bear their guilt. <sup>11</sup>They will keep charge in my sanctuary, and they will oversee the temple gates and keep charge of the temple. They will slaughter the entirely burned offerings and the sacrifices for the people, and they will stand before them to minister to them. <sup>12</sup>Because they ministered to them before their idols, they brought about the downfall of the house of Israel. For that reason I made a solemn pledge against them—this is what the LORD God says—and they will bear their guilt. <sup>13</sup>They won't approach me to officiate for me as priests or approach any of my holy things or the most holy place. Though they will bear their humiliation and the consequences of their detestable practices, <sup>14</sup>I will appoint them to keep charge of the temple, all its work, and all that is done in it.

<sup>15</sup>As for the priests of the levitical family of Zadok who did keep charge of my sanctuary when the Israelites strayed away from me, they will draw near to me to serve me. They will stand in my presence to present fat and blood to me. This is what the LORD God says. <sup>16</sup>They will come into my sanctuary, and they will approach my table to minister to me. They will keep my charge. <sup>17</sup>When they come through the gates to the inner courtyard, they will wear linen garments. They won't wear any wool when they minister at the gates of the inner courtyard or in the temple. <sup>18</sup>They will have linen turbans on their heads and linen undergarments around their waists. They won't wear anything that makes them sweat. <sup>19</sup>When they go out to the outer courtyard to the people, they will remove the garments in which they were ministering. They will lay them aside in the holy chambers and wear other clothing. They must not transfer holiness to the people through their clothing. <sup>20</sup>They must neither shave their heads nor let their hair grow long, but they will trim the hair on their heads. <sup>21</sup>None of the priests should drink wine when they come into the inner courtyard. <sup>22</sup>They must not marry widows or divorced women, but only Israelite virgins. Priests may, however, marry the widows of other priests. <sup>23</sup>They must teach my people the difference between the holy and the ordinary, and show them the difference between clean and unclean. <sup>24</sup>They must execute judgments according to my case laws in cases of civil conflict. They must observe my instructions and my regulations regarding all my festivals. They must keep my sabbaths holy. <sup>25</sup>In order to avoid uncleanness, they must not approach the dead. They may, however, become unclean for their father or mother, son or daughter, brother or unmarried sister. <sup>26</sup>Once the priest is clean again, he must count off seven days. <sup>27</sup>On the day that he comes into the holy place, the inner courtyard, to minister in the holy place, he will present his purification offering. This is what the LORD God says. <sup>28</sup>As for their inheritance, I am their inheritance.

44:9 Foreigners: The text refers to immigrants. The stipulation here is that they shouldn't be given access to the temple, in preparation for highlighting the sins of the Levites (Ezek 44:10-14). Elsewhere in the book, foreigners were to be welcomed (cf. Ezek 47:21-23; and see Lev 19:33; Num 9:14; Deut 10:18).

44:10-14 The instructions governing the Levites relegate them to temple service and sacrificial preparation (44:11, 13), lesser tasks than ministry to the Lord's presence (44:12-13).

44:10 who went far from me... will bear their guilt: The historical circumstances that Ezekiel describes have now been lost. While Ezekiel takes a dim view of the Levites, other texts secure a place of honor for them (cf. Deut 18:1-8; 27:11-26).

44:13 They won't approach me: another expression of Ezekiel 8:6.

44:15-31 Ezekiel now outlines for the Zadokites the instructions opening up access to the Lord's presence.

44:15 of the levitical family of Zadok: The Zadokites were a specific line within the levitical family (cf. 1 Chron 6:1-10). They will stand in my presence: Privileged service is granted to the Zadokites (cf. Ezek 44:13; see Ezek 40:46).

44:16 come into my sanctuary... approach my table: the table holding the bread of presence (cf. Ezek 41:22; and cf. Exod 25:23-30; Lev 24:5-9; 1 Kgs 6:20; 7:48 ). Note the contrast to the Levites, who "keep charge in my sanctuary" (Ezek 44:11), with no mention of service to the Lord or in relationship to this table.

44:17 through the gates: Compare with Ezekiel 44:5. linen: the distinctive fabric worn by priests (cf. Ezek 9:2; and Exod 28:1-43; Lev 16:4; Dan 10:5).

44:18 linen turbans: Symbols of authority that Ezekiel and his exilic colleagues were commanded to continue wearing (cf. Ezek 24:17, 23).

44:19-27 they will remove the garments: This and the other list of practices commanded in these verses guarantee the holiness of the temple.

44:23 They must teach my people the difference between the holy and the ordinary... clean and unclean: the correction to the initial problem posed by the people's detestable practices (cf. Ezek 44:6-8; Ezek 42:20; and cf. Ezek 8:6).

44:24 They must execute judgments... in cases of civil conflict: One of the duties of the priests was to teach and interpret the Instruction. In Deuteronomy, this role was assigned to the Levites (cf. Deut 17:8-13, 18; 27:9, 11-26; 31:24-29).

44:28 I am their inheritance: also said of the Levites (cf. Deut 19:1-8).

They won't be given family property in Israel; I am their family property. <sup>29</sup>They will eat the grain offerings, the purification offerings, and the compensation offerings. Every dedicated thing in Israel belongs to them. <sup>30</sup>The best of the early produce of every kind, and every contribution, all of them, belong to the priests. You will give the best of your bread dough to the priest so that a blessing may come to rest on your household. <sup>31</sup>The priests must not eat any bird or animal that dies naturally or is torn apart by prey.

The holy portion

45 When you distribute the land as an inheritance, you will set aside a holy portion of land for the LORD. It will be 7.1 miles long and 5.68 miles<sup>4</sup> wide. It will be holy throughout the entire area. <sup>2</sup>Out of this portion, an area seven hundred fifty feet by seven hundred fifty feet square will be for the sanctuary. All around it will be an open space seventy-five feet wide. <sup>3</sup>Beginning with this measurement, you will measure out an area 7.1 miles long and 2.84 miles wide. The sanctuary, the most holy place, will lie on it. <sup>4</sup>It is holy, set apart from the land, and it belongs to the priests who draw near to minister in the LORD's sanctuary. It will be a place for their houses, and a holy place for the sanctuary. <sup>5</sup>The area 7.1 miles long and 2.84 miles wide will be for the Levites who minister in the temple. Twenty chambers are theirs as their property. <sup>6</sup>As the property for the city, you will set aside an area 1.42 miles wide and 7.1 miles long next to the holy portion. It will be for the whole house of Israel. <sup>7</sup>The territory for the prince will be on both sides of the holy portion and the city property, alongside the holy portion and alongside the city property, from their western boundaries westward and from their eastern boundaries eastward. Its length will equal one tribal portion, from the western border to the eastern border. <sup>8</sup>The land will be his property in Israel, and my princes will no longer oppress my people. They will give the land to the house of Israel according to their tribes.

Sacrificial offerings and gifts

45:1-9 This passage is the first description of the holy portion (cf. also Ezek 48:8-22), which sits in the theological center of the land (cf. Ezek 5:5; 38:12), and which includes space for the sanctuary (45:2), the priests (presumably the Zadokites, 45:3-4), the Levites (45:5), the city (45:6), and the prince (45:7-9). When the area for the city is added to the portion assigned to the temple and the priests, another large square is formed, measuring 7.1 miles on each side (cf. Ezek 48:20).

45:2 an area seven hundred fifty feet by seven hundred fifty feet square. Compare with Ezekiel 42:15-20. an open space seventy-five feet wide: the same length as all of the gates (cf. Ezek 40:15, 21, 25, 29, 33, 36), and equally for the purpose of preserving the temple's holiness.

45:4 the priests who draw near to minister in the Lord's sanctuary: The priests here are presumably the Zadokites, because they are the ones allowed to minister in the Lord's presence in the sanctuary (cf. Ezek 44:16, and Ezek 44:13).

45:7-9 Land given to the prince removes his portion away from the temple, but also is designed to secure fairer treatment of the people. This land allows the prince, as the patron of the temple (see sidebar, "The Demotion of the King in Ezekiel" at Ezek 34), to raise livestock and produce to supply the needs of the temple. In the past, the kings taxed the population for the maintenance of their own palace and the temple (45:9; cf. 1 Sam 8:10-18). Kings had also encroached on ancestral inheritance (cf. 1 Kgs 21:1-16). This provision stops the annexation of private lands (cf. Ezek 46:16-18).

45:10-17 The role of the prince is restricted in these verses to that of patron in service to the temple. Nowhere in Ezekiel's Instruction is the prince given any authority over temple proceedings or over governing of the state.

45:10-12 In preparation for prescriptions for the various offerings (Ezek 45:13-17), proper weights and measures are commanded.

45:13-16 For their own reconciliation with God (45:15), the people offer sacrifices, in which the prince plays a role (45:16). See Leviticus for descriptions of these offerings: grain (Lev 2:1-16; 6:14-18); entirely burned (Lev 1:3-17; 6:8-13); well-being (Lev 3:1-17; 7:11-21); purification (Lev 4:1-5:13; Num 15:22-31).

two hundred from Israel's pastureland, for grain offerings, for entirely burned offerings, and for well-being sacrifices to make reconciliation for them. This is what the LORD God says. 16All the people will make this contribution on behalf of the prince in Israel. 17The prince will be responsible for the entirely burned offerings, grain offerings, and drink offerings for the festivals, new moons, and sabbaths, all the appointed festivals of the house of Israel. He will offer the purification offering, the grain offering, the entirely burned offering, and the well-being sacrifice to make reconciliation on behalf of the house of Israel.

Festivals

18The LORD God proclaims: On the first day of the first month,* you will take a flawless young bull from the herd, and you will purify the sanctuary. 19The priest will take some of the blood from the purification offering, and he will set it on the doorposts of the temple and on the four corners of the ledge of the altar and on the doorposts of the gate to the inner courtyard. 20You will do the same on the seventh day of the month for anyone who sins

*March-April, Nisan

45:17 The prince, in turn, makes sacrifices on festival days and for the reconciliation of the people.
45:18-25 Provisions are made for supplying the proper sacrifices for three annual festivals: the Day of Reconciliation (45:18-20; cf. Lev 16:1-34); Passover (45:21-24; cf.

Exod 12:1-28; Num 9:1-14; Deut 16:1-8; 2 Kgs 23:21-23); and the Festival of Booths (45:25; cf. Lev 23:33-36; Num 29:12-38; Deut 16:13-15). Ezekiel's liturgical calendar diverges from other calendars found elsewhere in the OT (cf. Num 28).

through inadvertence or ignorance. So you will purge the temple. <sup>21</sup>Your Passover will be on the fourteenth day of the first month. Unleavened bread will be eaten during the seven days of the festival. <sup>22</sup>On that day, the prince will provide a young bull as the purification offering for himself and for the people of the land. <sup>23</sup>For the seven days of the festival, he will provide seven flawless bulls and seven flawless rams, one for each day of the festival, as the entirely burned offering for the LORD, and, for the purification offering, one male goat for each day. <sup>24</sup>He will also provide the grain offerings, one ephah<sup>a</sup> for each bull, and one ephah for each ram, with one hin<sup>b</sup> of oil for each ephah. <sup>25</sup>For the festival that begins on the fifteenth day of the seventh month,<sup>c</sup> he will make the same provisions for the purification offerings, entirely burned offerings, grain offerings, and oil, for all seven days of the festival.

Sabbaths and gift offerings

46 The LORD God proclaims: The east-facing gate of the inner courtyard will remain closed for the six days of the workweek. But on the Sabbath and on the day of the new moon it will be opened, <sup>2</sup>and the prince will come in from outside by way of the porch of the gate and stand at the gate's doorposts. The priests will present the prince's entirely burned offerings and well-being sacrifices, and then he will bow down on the threshold of the gate and go out. The gate won't be closed until evening <sup>3</sup>so that the people of the land may bow in the presence of the LORD on sabbaths and new moons at the opening of that gate. <sup>4</sup>On the Sabbath day, the prince will offer to the LORD an entirely burned offering of six flawless lambs and a flawless ram, <sup>5</sup>a grain offering of one ephah for the ram, and a grain offering at his discretion for the lambs, with one hin of oil for each ephah. <sup>6</sup>For the day of the new moon, the offering will be a flawless young bull from the herd, six lambs, and a flawless ram, <sup>7</sup>and he will provide a grain offering of one ephah each for the bull and the ram, and for the lambs as much as he likes, with one hin of oil for each ephah.

<sup>8</sup>When the prince enters, he comes in by way of the porch of the gate and goes out in the same direction. <sup>9</sup>When the people of the land come into the LORD's presence for the festivals, those who enter through the north gate to worship should go out through the south, and those who come in through the south gate should go out through the north gate. They shouldn't turn around and go out the same way they came in. Instead, they should go out the opposite gate. <sup>10</sup>The prince should accompany them: when they come in, he comes in, and when they go out, he goes out. <sup>11</sup>At the festivals and appointed gatherings, the grain offering is one ephah for each bull, one ephah for each ram, and whatever one is able to give for each lamb, with one hin of oil for each ephah.

<sup>12</sup>Whenever the prince makes a spontaneous gift to the LORD, whether it is an entirely burned offering or a well-being sacrifice, the gate facing east will be opened for him, and he will present his entirely burned offering and well-being sacrifices, just as he does on the Sabbath day. When he leaves, the gate will be closed after he has gone out.

Daily offerings

<sup>13</sup>As a daily entirely burned offering for the LORD, you will provide a flawless year-old lamb. You will make the offering every morning. <sup>14</sup>You will provide a grain offering along

46:1-12 Access to holy purification is regulated for two important secular parties: the prince (46:1-12) and the people of the land (46:3, 9-12; Ezek 45:22; see the note on Ezek 22:29). The instruction from Moses prescribes different celebrations for both the Sabbath (cf. Num 28:9-10) and the new moon (cf. Num 28:11-15).

46:1-2 the east-facing gate of the inner courtyard ... the prince will come in from outside: The movement of the prince is carefully directed. The east gate is the gate of honor, because the Lord enters by it (cf. Ezek 44:1-2), and the ramp of the altar is on the east side, closest to the east gate of the inner court (cf. Ezek 43:17). Thus, among the secular segments of society, the prince alone as the patron of the temple is allowed to worship there. Still, he may go no farther (Ezek 46:2-3, 8; 44:3).

46:3, 9-10 the people of the land may bow in the presence of the Lord: Significantly, they are not allowed through the east gate, into the inner court, but may only access the inner court by means of the north or south gate. The prohibition against turning around may reflect another attempt to avoid turning one's back to God (cf. Ezek 8:16; 43:17).

46:10 The prince should accompany them: The prince and the people of the land are set on the same social level when they enter the inner court. Any hierarchical distinctions are leveled. Only when the prince worships alone is he granted a privilege with a place in the east gate, and then he never enters into the inner court.

46:12 just as he does on the Sabbath day: In other words, the prince is again restricted to the east gate.

46:13-15 The directions for the daily offering (cf. Num with it every morning, one-sixth of an ephah along with one-third of a hin of oil to moisten the choice flour. This is a permanent and perpetual regulation for the grain offering to the LORD. <sup>15</sup>So the lamb, the grain offering, and the oil are provided every morning as a perpetual entirely burned offering.

Royal land grants

<sup>16</sup>The LORD God proclaims: When the prince gives a gift to each of his sons, it becomes their inheritance. It becomes their family property as an inheritance. <sup>17</sup>And if he gives one of his servants a gift from his inheritance, it will belong to the servant only until the year of release, and then it will revert to the prince. It is his children's inheritance; it belongs to them. <sup>18</sup>The prince won't take the people's inheritance by evicting them from their family property. He will bequeath only his own property to his sons, lest any of my people be deprived of their rightful property.

Kitchens

<sup>19</sup>Then he brought me through the passage beside the gate next to the priests' quarters, the holy chambers facing north. There was a place hidden away on the western side. <sup>20</sup>He said to me, "Rather than taking these offerings out into the outer courtyard and transferring holiness to the people, this is the place where the priests will boil the compensation offerings and the purification offerings, and where they will bake the grain offerings."

<sup>21</sup>Then he took me to the outer courtyard, and he had me pass through its four corners, and I saw that there were additional courtyards in each of the corners. <sup>22</sup>In all four corners of the courtyard, these courtyards were constructed to handle smoke. All four were the same size, sixty feet long by forty-five feet wide. <sup>23</sup>All four had stone masonry all the way around, and hearths were built under this masonry all the way around. <sup>24</sup>He said to me, "These are the kitchens where those who minister in the temple cook the people's sacrifices."

The river

47When he brought me back to the temple's entrance, I noticed that water was flowing toward the east from under the temple's threshold (the temple faced east). The water was going out from under the temple's facade toward the south, south of the altar. <sup>2</sup>He led me out through the north gate and around the outside to the outer east gate, where the 28:3-8), which again differ from those given in Moses' instruction.

46:16-18 Stipulations regarding the land granted to the prince (cf. Ezek 45:7-12) reserve this portion for his family forever. This guarantees that the temple's patron will have the resources necessary to maintain the temple practices (46:17), but it also aims at protecting the citizens from future attempts by the prince of seizing land for his government (cf. Ezek 45:9).

46:17 and if he gives one of his servants a gift from his inheritance . . . until the year of release. The year of release is the jubilee year (cf. Ezek 40:1; Lev 25:3-8). See this issue also in Genesis 15:2-3, where the blessings from God are threatened by being given an inheritance to someone not chosen by God.

46:19-24 Ezekiel resumes his tour of the temple area, now viewing the kitchens where sacrificial meals will be prepared and shared. The passage focuses on maintaining the holiness of the offerings (46:20). Thus one area is designated for the priests, which connected to their chambers adjoining the inner court (46:19-20; cf. Ezek 42:1-14). On the margins of the outer court, nestled away in its four corners, other courtyards are appointed for the sacrificial meals of the people (46:21-24). The sacrificial meals of the Zadokite priests and those of the people are kept separate and appropriately clean.

46:19 Then he brought me. Ezekiel's guide has reappeared, last seen in Ezekiel 44:4. At that point in the tour, the bronze man led Ezekiel to the inner court by way of the north gate. The gate beside the passage is clearly this north gate ("the holy chambers facing north").

46:24 those who minister in the temple: apparently Levites (cf. Ezek 44:11).

47:1-12 The prophet's guide now leads him out of the temple precinct proper, in order to show him the blessings outside of the temple that God will bring, once proper temple service has been restored. The vision of this river paradise is full of theologically rich images, all of which were obvious to his exilic audience. In brief, 47:1-12 is a vision of Eden, God's garden, from which a life-giving stream flows, nourishing all of creation. This iconic image was an important aspect of the theology in the Jerusalem royal court for its priests (cf. Ps 46:4; Joel 3:18; Zech 13:1; 14:8). Ezekiel alluded to it often in his mention of plentiful waters (cf. Ezek 17:5; 8; 27:26; 31:7).

47:1 to the temple's entrance: The guide leads Ezekiel back into the inner court, where he can see the entrance to the temple (cf. Ezek 8:16; 41:14; 43:1-4).

47:2 out through the north gate: The eastern gate could only be entered by the Lord's glory (cf. Ezek 44:1-2), and so only the north gate led immediately out of the temple area. to the outer east gate, where the water flowed out under the facade: The water then flowed into the Kidron Valley, which is immediately east of the temple mount. Ezekiel's vision mimics reality, since the Gihon spring sat at the base of the mountain on which David's ancient city sat, and which led, just a bit farther to the north, to the temple compound. The Gihon not only supplied the city water flowed out under the facade on the south side. <sup>3</sup>With the line in his hand, the man went out toward the east. When he measured off fifteen hundred feet, he made me cross the water; it was ankle-deep. <sup>4</sup>He measured off another fifteen hundred feet and made me cross the water; it was knee-deep. He measured off another fifteen hundred feet and made me cross the water, and it was waist-high. <sup>5</sup>When he measured off another fifteen hundred feet, it had become a river that I couldn't cross. The water was high, deep enough for swimming but too high to cross. <sup>6</sup>He said to me, "Human one, do you see?" Then he led me back to the edge of the river. <sup>7</sup>When I went back, I saw very many trees on both banks of the river. <sup>8</sup>He said to me, "These waters go out to the eastern region, flow down the steep slopes,<sup>d</sup> and go into the Dead Sea.<sup>e</sup> When the flowing waters enter the sea, its water becomes fresh. <sup>9</sup>Wherever the river flows, every living thing that moves will thrive. There will be great schools of fish, because when these waters enter the sea, it will be fresh. Wherever the river flows, everything will live. <sup>10</sup>People will stand fishing beside it, from En-gedi to En-eglayim, and it will become a place for spreading nets. It will be like the Mediterranean Sea,<sup>f</sup> having all kinds of fish in it. <sup>11</sup>Its marshes and swamps won't be made fresh (they are left for salt), <sup>12</sup>but on both banks of the river will grow up all kinds of fruit-bearing trees. Their leaves won't wither, and their fruitfulness won't wane. They will produce fruit in every month, because their water comes from the sanctuary. Their fruit will be for eating, their leaves for healing."

<sup>13</sup>The LORD God proclaims: These<sup>g</sup> are the boundaries of the portions of land that will be distributed as an inheritance to the twelve tribes of Israel. Joseph will receive two portions. <sup>14</sup>What I swore to give to your ancestors, you will distribute as an inheritance equally. This land is given to you as an inheritance. <sup>15</sup>This is the boundary of the land. The northern limit begins at the Mediterranean Sea and goes in the direction of Hethlon toward Lebo-hamath, Zedad,<sup>h</sup> <sup>16</sup>Berothah, Sibraim (which is between the boundary of Damascus and the boundary of Hamath), and Hazer-hatticon (that is on the boundary of Hauran).

of Jerusalem with drinking water; it also watered the fields in the Kidron. Theological significance was, therefore, attached to the Gihon (cf. Gen 2:13; 1 Kgs 1:32-48; Isa 8:6, "the waters of Shiloah").

47:6 do you see: The same question was asked of Ezekiel when he encountered the detestable practices that defiled the Lord's sanctuary (cf. Ezek 8:12, 15, 17). Now the prophet is shown the abundant waters by which the land will be fertilized and the people will flourish.

47:7 very many trees: a symbol for fruitfulness, life, and at points, an image for Eden (cf. Gen 1:9-12; 2:4-3:24; Ezek 28:11-19).

47:8 go into the Dead Sea: The Wadi Kidron empties into the Dead Sea, just south of Qumran. The water of the Dead Sea exceeds 30 percent saline content (compare with less than 4 percent for the oceans), and isn't merely brackish but poisonous.

47:10 En-gedi: an important and famous oasis on the western shore of the Dead Sea (cf. 1 Sam 23:29; 24:1; 2 Chron 20:2). En-eglayim: an unknown location today.

47:11 Its marshes and swamps won't be made fresh: Salt was a treasured commodity in the ancient world (cf. Ezra 4:14; 7:22), used for a variety of purposes, including preserving meats, priestly rituals (cf. Exod 30:35; Lev 2:13; Num 18:19; 2 Chron 13:5; Ezra 6:9), and purifying (cf. Judg 9:45; 2 Kgs 2:20). Ezekiel envisions a controlled, balanced environment, one that has the right amounts of everything necessary for life.

47:13-48:35 Ezekiel turns his prophetic gaze toward populating the revived land, but in an order dictated by his priestly traditions and principles (see sidebar, "Divisions of the Land" at Ezek 48). In ancient Near Eastern thought, the land ultimately belonged to the gods, and the earth was divided up by region and assigned to various deities, with the land of Canaan belonging to the Lord (cf. Deut 32:8-9). God then elected the Hebrew people to live on the land (cf. Gen 18:17-19; Deut 7:6; 14:2; Pss 33:12; 105:6, 43; 135:4; Isa 41:8-9; 44:1), in order to worship the Lord according to the covenantal instructions (cf. Lev 26:3-46; Deut 28:1-2, 15; 30:15-20). To their benefit for following the teaching, the people will reap blessings from the land (cf. Pss 46:4; 106:5; Ezek 47:1-12). So for Ezekiel, who is familiar with these traditions, the full end of his people's punishment will come when they once again inherit the land (cf. Ezek 20:39-44; 34:25-31; 37:11-14, 20-28).

47:13 Joseph will receive two portions: This accounts for the portions for the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh (cf. Ezek 37:15-19; Gen 48; Num 1:10; 26:28, 37; Josh 14:4; 17:14-18).

47:14 What I swore to give to your ancestors: The precise ancestors Ezekiel had in mind can't be discerned here, but Jacob and his sons are named most prominently elsewhere in the book (Ezek 20:5; 28:25; 37:25). Abraham receives one mention, but from the survivors who were cast out by God (cf. Ezek 33:24), who mistakenly hope for possession of the land. Isaac is never mentioned.

47:15 the boundary of the land: The boundaries outlined here follow those of Numbers 34:1-12 in most of their particulars. Both texts reflect an ancient, idealized tradition of the land of Canaan, dating perhaps to 1400-1200 BCE, though the eastern boundary (Ezek 47:18) seems to reflect Ezekiel's knowledge of provincial boundaries established by the Assyrians in the 8th century BCE.

47:15-17 As an exile in Mesopotamia, Ezekiel begins with the northern boundary, in contrast to the outline given in Numbers 34, which was oriented with the exodus out of Egypt. The northern boundary is far to the north of Dan, <sup>17</sup>So the boundary from the Mediterranean Sea<sup>1</sup> to Hazar-enon will run north of the boundary of Damascus, with the boundary of Hamath to the north. This is the northern limit. <sup>18</sup>For the eastern limit, you will measure continuously between Hauran and Damascus and between Gilead and the land of Israel, along the Jordan River as far as the Dead Sea.<sup>1</sup> This is the eastern limit. <sup>19</sup>The southern limit runs from Tamar to the waters of Meribath-kadesh and from there along the border<sup>1</sup> of Egypt to the Mediterranean Sea. This is the southern limit. <sup>20</sup>For the western limit, the Mediterranean Sea is the boundary up to Lebo-hamath. This is the western limit. <sup>21</sup>You will apportion this land among yourselves according to the tribes of Israel. <sup>22</sup>When you distribute the land as an inheritance, the immigrants who reside with you and raise families among you are considered full citizens along with the Israelites. They will receive an inheritance along with you among the tribes of Israel. <sup>23</sup>You will assign the immigrants' inheritance with the tribe with whom they reside. This is what the LORD God says.

<sup>8</sup>Along the boundary of Judah from the eastern border to the western border will be the portion that you will set aside, 7.1 miles wide and the length of a tribal portion from the eastern border to the western border. The sanctuary is in its center. <sup>9</sup>The portion that you will set aside for the LORD will be 7.1 miles long and 5.68 miles<sup>1</sup> wide. <sup>10</sup>These measurements define the holy portion for the priests: along the north, a length of 7.1 miles; along the west, a width of 2.84 miles; along the east, a width of 2.84 miles; and along the south, a length of 7.1 miles. The LORD's sanctuary is in its center. <sup>11</sup>This holy area is for the Zadokite priests who kept my charge and didn't stray as the Levites did when the house of Israel strayed away

47:18 Ezekiel's eastern boundary actually doesn't claim land east of the Jordan, possessed by Reuben, Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh during Israel's history (cf. Num 32; Deut 3:12-20; Josh 13:8-32; 22).

47:19 waters of Meribath-kadesh: Kadesh was the southern rest station for the Israelites, when they first prepared to enter the land (cf. Num 13:26), and from which they were eventually sentenced to wander farther eastward for 40 more years in the wilderness (cf. Num 20:1, 16; 33:36). It represented for Ezekiel space between the ordered, life-giving land and the chaotic wilderness.

47:21-23 the immigrants who reside with you: Ezekiel's perspective and other priestly traditions provided for a home for immigrants, that is, non-Israelites living in the land (see the story of Ruth; cf. Lev 19:33; Num 9:14; Deut 10:18), though their access to the sanctuary was restricted (cf. Ezek 44:9). This attitude for a prophet in exile stands in stark contrast to later, disturbing traditions (Num 25:1-18; Ezra 9:1-10:44; Neh 13:1-3, 23-30).

48:1-29 The land is divided among the 12 tribes, paralleling the story of the allotment of the land at the time of the conquest (cf. Josh 14:1-21:45). As Ezekiel does here, the book of Joshua also describes the Lord granting tracts of land to the various tribes through the priests (cf. Josh 14:1; 17:4; 19:51; 21:43), who determined the Lord's will through the manipulation of lots at the shrine at Shiloh (cf. Josh 14:2; 15:1; 18:1; 19:51).

48:1 from the eastern border to the western border: All of the tribal lands, including the holy portion containing the temple, the city, and the prince's land, extended across the entire width of the new land. Such an arbitrary division of boundaries, which doesn't take into account geographical features, cities, population, and agricultural advantages or disadvantages, in reality would not work in practice. Ezekiel's plan, in contrast to the tribal boundaries drawn up in Joshua, is entirely idealized, based in the theological imagination of the priestly prophet. So the order of the tribes in Ezekiel doesn't match any reality that ever existed in Israel. The tribal portions also were assigned in a specific order based on a theological map (see sidebar, "Divisions of the Land").

48:11 Zadokite priests... the Levites: Compare Ezekiel 44:10-31.

48:8-22 Another description of the holy portion (cf. Ezek 45:1-9), this time placing it in relationship to the other tribes. In this instance, the Zadokites are given the northern half of the portion (48:10-13), with the Levites receiving the portion just south (Ezek 38:13-14), next to the city.

Divisions of the Land Ezekiel's rearrangement of the tribes in the land is as peculiar as it is rigid, raising questions about the theological reasoning he employed. For example, Ezekiel transported Judah to the north of the holy portion (48:7), while he pushed Benjamin to its south (48:23). Issachar (48:25) and Zebulun (48:26) are both assigned territory south of the holy portion, even though they had been a part of the northern kingdom. Ezekiel was working on a theological arrangement of space, also evident in the assignment of city gates (48:30-35). A clue to his theological scheme was the hierarchical status of the different mothers of the tribes' original ancestors, and their birth order. The holy portion (48:8-22) is fixed by the geographical location of the temple on Mount Zion at Jerusalem, and it is the anchor for the rest of the ordering of the land. Benjamin, the youngest son of Jacob's favorite wife, Rachel, now adjoins the holy portion's southern border, a favored position. Next all of Leah's sons (Reuben, Judah, Levi, Simeon, Issachar, and Zebulun) are placed to the north and south. The tribes descending from the two female servants, Zilpah and Bilhah (Gad, Dan, Asher, and Naphtali), find themselves farthest away from the holy portion.

from me. <sup>12</sup>It belongs to them as a most special portion of the land, a most holy place, up to the border of the Levites. <sup>13</sup>The Levites' allotment is next to the boundary of the priests, a length of 7.1 miles and a width of 2.84 miles. The entire length is 7.1 miles and the width 2.84 miles. <sup>14</sup>None of it will be sold, exchanged, or transferred. It is the choicest land, because it is holy to the LORD. <sup>15</sup>The remaining area, 1.42 miles wide and 7.1 miles long, is for ordinary use for the city, for residences, and for pastures. The city will be in the middle of it. <sup>16</sup>It measures 1.28 miles on its northern border, 1.28 miles on its southern border, 1.28 miles on its eastern border, and 1.28 miles on its western border. <sup>17</sup>There will be pastures for the city, three hundred seventy-five feet on the north side, three hundred seventy-five feet on the south side, three hundred seventy-five feet on the east side, and three hundred seventy-five feet on the west side. <sup>18</sup>The remaining area alongside the holy portion is 2.84 miles on the east and 2.84 miles on the west. These areas that adjoin the holy portion will produce the food for the city's workers. <sup>19</sup>The city's workers from every tribe of Israel will farm it. <sup>20</sup>The entire portion that you will set aside is 7.1 miles by 7.1 miles, a square; it includes the holy portion in addition to the city property. <sup>21</sup>What is left on both sides of the holy portion and the city property belongs to the prince. The land from the edge of the portion of 7.1 miles, to the eastern boundary, and on the western edge of the 7.1 miles to the western boundary, belongs to the prince. It corresponds to one tribal portion. The holy portion and the temple sanctuary are in the middle of it, <sup>22</sup>but what belongs to the prince is separate from both the levitical property and the city property. The prince's territory will be between the boundary of Judah and the boundary of Benjamin.

48:20 a square: The shape of this territory is emphasized for theological interests.

48:22 separate from both the levitical property and the city property: a reiteration of Ezekiel's concern for the separation of the holy and the ordinary. See also Ezekiel 48:15.

48:30-35a The city gates are named and assigned to specific tribes, according to Ezekiel's priestly notions of order and the divine will (cf. Num 2:1-34; see sidebar, "Divisions of the Land").

48:31 three gates on the north: Since the city sits to the south of the holy portion (Ezek 48:15-19), and the temple compound sits in the middle of it (Ezek 48:21), the city's northern gates don't open up onto the temple's outer court as they did beginning with Solomon's time. The side along its 1.28 miles: one gate for Joseph, one gate for Benjamin, and one gate for Dan. <sup>33</sup>There are three gates on the south side measuring 1.28 miles: one gate for Simeon, one gate for Issachar, and one gate for Zebulun. <sup>34</sup>There are three gates on the west side along its 1.28 miles: one gate for Gad, one gate for Asher, and one gate for Naphtali. <sup>35</sup>The circumference of the city is 5.1 miles. levitical territory intervenes between the city and the temple (Ezek 48:13-14).

48:35b The LORD Is There: The final sentence of the book stands out from the rest of the prophetic words, making a very important theological statement. Ezekiel and his audience began the book in exile, separated from God's presence. Then the Lord's glory appeared to Ezekiel by the Chebar River, and after a series of visions and prophecies, first of judgment, then of restoration, this priest left his audience with a new expectation of dwelling in God's presence.

DANIEL

The book of Daniel is about God's final plans for the earth and humanity. The Bible's most powerful symbols come together in a vision of end times that have commanded the attention of Jews and Christians for centuries. But Daniel is as much concerned with life in the present as with God's plan for future salvation. That's because thinking about the end time gives the reader a sense of mission in this present world. This book leads the reader to believe that the here and now contains a more lively, profound reality than the naked eye can see. The last things are present already, Daniel claims. Readers should live their ordinary lives, day by day, with last things in mind.

Daniel is a different kind of literature from most other parts of the Bible. It is an "apocalypse" (see sidebar, "Apocalypse" at Dan 3). In an apocalypse, messengers (or "angels" in Greek) help someone understand what lies beyond our present world. The person (here, Daniel) having the vision explores a more important, stronger reality that is on a collision course with ordinary human history. This type of literature doesn't emphasize common-sense wisdom. Instead, apocalyptic imagination deals with basic conflicts of existence and with evil that is bigger than individual sins. Apocalyptic writing gives rise to a sense of awe at God's presence.

The book of Daniel has two parts. Part one contains folktales about Jews working in a foreign court during the exile in the 500s BCE (Dan 1–6). Part two gives reports of visions (Dan 7–12). Part one includes well-known stories about three young men thrown into a fiery furnace, the writing on the wall at Belshazzar's feast, and Daniel in the lions' den. Part two contains many strong images that resurface in the NT: monsters like those in nightmares, the "ancient one" (in other translations, the "ancient of days") seated for final judgment, and the arrival of "one like a human being" (usually translated "son of man") on clouds. In part two we also hear about the bodies of the dead being raised to life.

The folktales in the first half of Daniel are set far from Judah, in foreign courts, at the time of Israel's exile in Babylon and Babylon's defeat by the Persians (606–536 BCE). In some of the stories, the heroes are in danger of death. In others, the heroes simply outperform their rivals in court contests. These stories emphasize God's power over human affairs. When Babylonia's King Nebuchadnezzar bows low in front of his servant Daniel, the reader should think of Isaiah 40–55, which says that earth's rulers will bow down before the lowly exiles, the few survivors from God's chosen people. The story shows that even now, earth's only true ruler is God. It's a small step from this idea to the visions in the second half of the book, which show how God's rule will be established beyond question.

The visions of Daniel 7–12 reveal a heavenly world and the end of ordinary history, close at hand. They contain vibrant, wondrous images of stupendous proportion. They predict the ultimate triumph of good over evil. A steady, unstoppable increase of evil will occur in the world, according to the visions, but it will be followed by God's end-time victory. God is about to take action in history to destroy empires that crush the human spirit. Then God will rule the earth forever and reward the people who have been faithful.

The early chapters of Daniel, the stories about life at court, come from late in the period of Persian rule over Judea and early in the period of Greek control (that is, between 350 and 200 BCE). The book of Daniel reached its final form somewhat later, in the years leading up to 164 BCE. At this time, Judea was under the control of a Greek king in Syria, Antiochus IV, who committed "desolating monstrosities" (Dan 9:27) in the Jerusalem temple and outlawed many Jewish religious practices. This setting makes Daniel the latest book of the OT.

Both major sections of the book of Daniel hint that their authors are wise men. Daniel 1:4 describes the heroes of the court stories as "young men . . . skilled in all wisdom, possessing knowledge, conversant with learning." Daniel 11:33, 35; 12:3, 10 celebrate teachers (also called "those skilled in wisdom") who give instruction and understanding to their people during earth's last days.

In addition to being educated, the wise people in the book of Daniel can interpret special signs and dreams. The Daniel authors probably had similar responsibilities in their work as royal advisors in foreign courts. Because these wise people treasured their Hebrew Bible, their interpretive wisdom took a particularly interesting turn. The puzzles that most interested the authors of Daniel were the riddles of scripture, especially predictions of events that had not yet happened. Group members wrestled with how the unfulfilled ideals and symbols of the Bible would eventually play out in the world. That's why Daniel echoes Isaiah so much.

Life at court was probably competitive and full of pitfalls for the authors of Daniel 1–6, just as it is for the heroes in their stories, but they weren't singled out for harassment. In the court stories, Daniel and his companions face danger because the kings they work for are childish and incompetent, but the kings aren't bad hearted. In fact, King Darius worries all night about how to save Daniel from the lions!

Eventually, the Daniel group returned to Judea, the land from which their ancestors had come. After 198 BCE, their expanding apocalyptic imagination would have angered the officials they worked with. But they didn't hide. They wrote the apocalyptic visions (Dan 7–12) in Daniel's name—not to hide who the authors were but to show that they stood in the tradition of Daniel and that their visions came from God. People sometimes think that apocalyptic writings are a cry of despair from people who have no hope. But these chapters are full of hope, a God-revealed hope that puts ordinary experience, both horrible and joyful, into a bigger perspective. The fearless writers of Daniel's visions want readers to see life in a new way and to commit themselves to active, risky, suffering discipleship. The visions of last things in the book of Daniel resist all imperial efforts to control people and take away their humanity.

With time, the Daniel writings took on a deadly seriousness. This book says that God's reign won't come without horrible birth pains, but it will come.

Jerusalem taken by the Babylonians

1 In the third year of the rule of Judah's King Jehoiakim, Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar came to Jerusalem and attacked it. 2The Lord handed Judah's King Jehoiakim over to Nebuchadnezzar, along with some of the equipment from God's house. Nebuchadnezzar took these to Shinar, to his own god's temple, putting them in his god's treasury.

Training for royal service

3Nebuchadnezzar instructed his highest official Ashpenaz to choose royal descendants and members of the ruling class from the Israelites—4good-looking young men without defects, skilled in all wisdom, possessing knowledge, conversant with learning, and capable of serving in the king's palace. Ashpenaz was to teach them the Chaldean language and its literature. 5The king assigned these young men daily allotments from his own food and from the royal wine. Ashpenaz was to teach them for three years so that at the end of that time they could serve before the king. 6Among these young men from the Judeans were Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. 7But the chief official gave them new names. He named Daniel "Belteshazzar," Hananiah "Shadrach," Mishael "Meshach," and Azariah "Abednego."

Test

8Daniel decided that he wouldn't pollute himself with the king's rations or the royal wine, and he appealed to the chief official in hopes that he wouldn't have to do so. 9Now God had established faithful loyalty between Daniel and the chief official; 10but the chief official said to Daniel, "I'm afraid of my master, the king, who has mandated what you are to eat and drink. What will happen if he sees your faces looking thinner than the other young men in your group? The king will have my head because of you!"

11So Daniel spoke to the guard whom the chief official had appointed over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah: 12"Why not test your servants for ten days? You could give us a diet of vegetables to eat and water to drink. 13Then compare our appearance to the appearance of the young men who eat the king's food. Then deal with your servants according to what you see."

14The guard decided to go along with their plan and tested them for ten days. 15At the end of ten days they looked better and healthier than all the young men who were eating the king's food. 16So the guard kept taking away their rations and the wine they were supposed to drink and gave them vegetables instead. 17And God gave knowledge, mastery of all literature, and wisdom to these four men. Daniel himself gained understanding of every type of vision and dream.

1:1–6:28 The first half of Daniel presents six folktales about the hero Daniel and his three companions, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. The tales are set far from Judah in foreign courts, in the period of Israel's Babylonian exile and Babylon's defeat by the Persians (606–536 BCE).

1:1–7 Introduction: How Daniel and his three friends became exiles in the court of Babylon.

1:1 third year: 606 or 605 BCE, when Babylon defeated Egypt and became the Near East's dominant superpower. Nebuchadnezzar wasn't yet king at the time of this verse, nor is there evidence that he attacked Jerusalem this early (597 BCE marks his first known siege of the city, although 2 Kgs 24:1 hints at an earlier attack). This wrong historical information may be a deliberate signal from the storytellers that they are writing historical fiction.

1:2 The Lord handed... over: Babylon's king thought the victory was his own, but for Daniel's writers the Lord God controls history. Shinar: the land of Babylon (see Gen 10:10; 11:2; Zech 5:11).

1:4 Chaldean: here (and in Dan 5:30; 9:1), an ancient name for the Babylonians. Elsewhere (e.g., Dan 2:2), it refers more specifically to a particular group of Babylonian wise men.

1:5 own food: not a Hebrew term but a foreign one, emphasizing that the action takes place in a foreign court.

Eating from the royal table signals fellowship with the king and loyalty to him (cf. Dan 11:26). The king wants these young men to know who butters their bread, but the story challenges his claim of imperial control.

1:7 new names: Again the king works to make the young men more Babylonian and erase their Israelite heritage. The new names contain or suggest the names of Babylonian gods: Bel (a title of Marduk, god of Babylon; see Dan 4:5), Nabu, and perhaps Aku.

1:8–21 Daniel and his friends resist being made into Babylonians. If loyalty to the king conflicts with loyalty to God, God is the one who must be obeyed. In this story as in Isaiah 40–55, symbols of power, such as rich food and free-flowing wine, are symbols of ignorance, not privilege. The young men choose a different set of values, a lifestyle "like a young plant... like a root from dry ground" (Isa 53:2), that taps into the true power that comes from God and allows servants of God to "succeed... [and] be exalted and lifted very high" (Isa 52:13).

1:8 Daniel decided: or "placed on his heart," over against the chief official's "placing" (same Hebrew word) of foreign names on the young men in Daniel 1:7. wouldn't pollute himself: Daniel turns down the food that would show his loyalty to the king. Even here in the foreign court, the four friends depend on the Lord, not on Babylon's king.

Result of the training

<sup>18</sup>When the time came to review the young men as the king had ordered, the chief official brought them before Nebuchadnezzar. <sup>19</sup>When the king spoke with them, he found no one as good as Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. So they took their place in the king's service. <sup>20</sup>Whenever the king consulted them about any aspect of wisdom and understanding, he found them head and shoulders above all the dream interpreters and enchanters in his entire kingdom. <sup>21</sup>And Daniel stayed in the king's service until the first year of King Cyrus.

An impossible challenge

2In the second year of Nebuchadnezzar's rule, he had many dreams. The dreams made him anxious, but he kept sleeping. <sup>2</sup>The king summoned the dream interpreters, enchanters, diviners, and Chaldeans to explain his dreams to him. They came and stood before the king.

<sup>3</sup>Then the king said to them: "I had a dream, and I'm anxious to know its meaning."

<sup>5</sup>The king answered the Chaldeans: "My decision is final: If you can't tell me the dream and its meaning, you will be torn limb from limb, and your houses will be turned into trash dumps. <sup>6</sup>But if you do explain the dream and its meaning, you'll receive generous gifts and glorious honor from me. So explain to me the dream as well as its meaning."

<sup>7</sup>They answered him again: "The king must tell his servants the dream. We will then explain the meaning."

<sup>8</sup>The king replied: "Now I definitely know you are stalling for time, because you see that my decision is final <sup>9</sup>and that if you can't tell me the dream, your fate is certain. You've conspired to make false and lying speeches before me until the situation changes. Tell me the dream now! Then I'll know you can explain its meaning to me."

1:18-21 The king finds Daniel and his friends far superior to all the other young men in training (even though the other young men have eaten what the king said they should), and the king welcomes them into royal service.

2:1-49 Nebuchadnezzar's dream of a great statue that is made in four sections. The connection between the court tales and the apocalyptic visions (see sidebar, "Apocalypse" at Dan 3) in the second part of Daniel can be seen in this chapter. At one level Daniel 2 tells about a contest at court, in which the truly wise lean humbly on God and do far better than Babylon's own dream interpreters, enchanters, diviners, and Chaldeans (see 2:2 and note). But the story also offers an apocalyptic image of a stone from outside of human history that smashes the statue (which represents empires of the world) and takes over the entire earth. Daniel's vision in chapter 7 will echo this dream about history's final end. Although the king's dream has an ending that will come centuries after Nebuchadnezzar's time, the king isn't off the hook. Verse 35 shows that God's reign shatters all parts of the statue, including the gold part (Babylon), simultaneously, Babylon pales in comparison to the power of God's reign.

2:1-13 Nebuchadnezzar challenges his court advisors to prove their powers not just by interpreting his dream but by telling him what the dream was. The stakes are high, since he threatens to tear them limb from limb if none can prove they understand the dream.

2:1 second year: This doesn't fit with the timeline of the first chapter, in which Nebuchadnezzar is king while Daniel and his friends train for three years before joining the court staff (Dan 1:5), but the two years do echo the beginning of the story of Joseph interpreting Pharaoh's dream (Gen 41:1; see note on Dan 1:1).

2:2-3 The king's anxiety at his dreams will turn out to be fully appropriate. Although God's final judgment won't come until the time of Antiochus Ephiphanes (whose kingdom the statue's clay feet represent), the arrival of God's reign (Dan 2:34) shows that all earth's empires are weak and temporary. Even the king's own empire will become "like chaff, left on summer threshing floors" (Dan 2:35).

2:2 Chaldeans: From here through Daniel 5:11, the term refers to people skilled in Babylonian "sciences."

2:4 Following the words in Aramaic, the book's language switches from Hebrew into Aramaic, returning to Hebrew in Daniel 8:1. The Aramaic language was used for official and diplomatic purposes in the Babylonian and Persian Empires, within whose courts Daniel and his friends served. After the exile it became the ordinary spoken language of Judea. The Aramaic not only adds local color to the stories, but allows them to prove in the empire's own language that the empire's claims are lies.

2:5 The king wants his advisors to prove their supernatural knowledge of dreams by telling him the content (not just the interpretation) of his dream. Not even Joseph in Genesis had to tackle such an impossible challenge (see note on Dan 2:1; cf. Gen 40:8; 41:8, 17-24).

2:10-11 The Chaldeans (see note on Dan 2:2) essentially admit that they aren't in touch with any reality beyond the human plane. Humble Daniel, by contrast, proves to be in <sup>12</sup>At this, the king exploded in a furious rage and ordered that all Babylon's sages be wiped out. <sup>13</sup>So the command went out: The sages were to be killed. Daniel and his friends too were hunted down; they were to be killed as well.

<sup>14</sup>Then Daniel, with wisdom and sound judgment, responded to Arioch the king's chief executioner, who had gone out to kill Babylon's sages. <sup>15</sup>He said to Arioch the king's royal officer, "Why is the king's command so unreasonable?" After Arioch explained the situation to Daniel, <sup>16</sup>Daniel went and asked the king to give him some time so he could explain the dream's meaning to him. <sup>17</sup>Then Daniel went to his house and explained the situation to his friends Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah <sup>18</sup>so that they would ask the God of heaven for help about this mystery, in hopes that Daniel and his friends wouldn't die with the rest of Babylon's sages. <sup>19</sup>Then, in a vision by night, the mystery was revealed to Daniel! Daniel praised the God of heaven:

Daniel recounts the dream

2:28 Gn 40:8;
Dn 4:5,
Dn 10:14

<sup>24</sup>So Daniel went to Arioch, the man the king had appointed to wipe out Babylon's sages. Daniel said to him, "Don't wipe out the sages of Babylon! Bring me before the king, and I will explain the dream's meaning to him." <sup>25</sup>Wasting no time, Arioch brought Daniel before the king, telling him, "I have found someone from the Judean exiles who will tell the dream's meaning to the king."

2:30 Gn 41:16;
Ac 3:12
2:31 Hab 1:7
2:32 Dn 2:38,
Dn 2:39

<sup>26</sup>In reply the king said to Daniel (whose name was Belteshazzar), "Can you really tell me the dream that I saw, as well as its meaning?"

<sup>27</sup>Daniel answered the king, "Sages, enchanters, dream interpreters, and diviners can't explain to the king the mystery he seeks. <sup>28</sup>But there is a God in heaven, a revealer of mysteries, who has shown King Nebuchadnezzar what will happen in the days to come! Now this was your dream—this was the vision in your head as you lay in your bed:

<sup>29</sup>"As you lay in bed, Your Majesty, your thoughts turned to what will happen in the future. The revealer of mysteries has revealed to you what will happen. <sup>30</sup>Now this mystery was revealed to me, not because I have more wisdom than any other living person but so that the dream's meaning might be made known to the king, and so that you might know the thoughts of your own mind.

<sup>31</sup>"Your Majesty, you were looking, and there, rising before you, was a single, massive statue. This statue was huge, shining with dazzling light, and was awesome to see. <sup>32</sup>The statue's head was made of pure gold; its chest and arms were made from silver; its abdomen close contact with the One who lives on high in holiness (cf. Isa 57:15).

2:14-23 Daniel's God, who is willing to reveal mysteries (2:22; cf. Amos 3:7; Isa 44:7-8), informs Daniel of both the dream and its meaning. Daniel's victory over all of Babylon's supposed experts proves that Israel's God indeed "makes a mockery of magicians" (Isa 44:25).

2:18 with the rest: In the end, Daniel will save not only his Judean friends but also the whole company of Babylon's sages (that is, the court's wise people and counselors, Dan 2:24).

2:24-35 Daniel tells the dream, proving that God has power over all the world's mysteries.

2:25 The storyteller makes quiet fun of Arioch by giving Arioch a speech in which Arioch, although himself unable to tell the dream, tries to get the king's favor by making it seem that Daniel was discovered through Arioch's own skill.

2:28 days to come: This phrase, like the similar ones used in Isaiah 2:2; Ezekiel 38:16; and Daniel 10:14, may refer to the end times.

2:30 this mystery... thoughts of your own mind: Readers sometimes think of Daniel as a book that encourages faith during hard times, but this verse emphasizes special, wondrous knowledge about God and what the revealing of God's reign teaches us about ourselves.

and hips were made of bronze. <sup>33</sup>Its legs were of iron, and its feet were a mixture of iron and clay. <sup>34</sup>You observed this until a stone was cut, but not by hands; and it smashed the statue's feet of iron and clay and shattered them. <sup>35</sup>Then all the parts shattered simultaneously—iron, clay, bronze, silver, and gold. They became like chaff, left on summer threshing floors. The wind lifted them away until no trace of them remained. But the stone that smashed the statue became a mighty mountain, and it filled the entire earth.

The dream's meaning: four future rulers

<sup>36</sup>"This was the dream. Now we will tell the king its meaning: <sup>37</sup>You, Your Majesty, are the king of kings. The God of heaven has given kingship, power, might, and glory to you! <sup>38</sup>God has delivered into your care human beings, wild creatures, and birds in the sky—wherever they live—and has made you ruler of all of them. You are the gold head. <sup>39</sup>But in your place, another kingdom will arise, one inferior to yours, and then a third, bronze kingdom will rule over all the earth. <sup>40</sup>Then will come a fourth kingdom, mighty like iron. Just as iron shatters and crushes everything; so like an iron that smashes, it will shatter and crush all these others. <sup>41</sup>As for the feet and toes that you saw, which were a mixture of potter's clay and iron, that signifies a divided kingdom; but it will possess some of the unyielding strength of iron. Even so, you saw the iron mixed with earthy clay <sup>42</sup>so that the toes were made from a mixture of iron and clay. Part of the kingdom will be mighty, but part of it will be fragile. <sup>43</sup>Just as you saw the iron mixed with earthy clay, they will join together by intermarrying, but they will not bond to each other, just as iron does not fuse with clay.

<sup>44</sup>"But in the days of those kings, the God of heaven will raise up an everlasting kingdom that will be indestructible. Its rule will never pass to another people. It will shatter other kingdoms. It will put an end to all of them. It will stand firm forever, <sup>45</sup>just like you saw when the stone, which was cut from the mountain, but not by hands, shattered the iron, bronze, clay, silver, and gold. A great God has revealed to the king what will happen in the future. The dream is certain. Its meaning can be trusted."

Nebuchadnezzar honors Daniel

<sup>46</sup>Then King Nebuchadnezzar bowed low and honored Daniel. The king ordered that grain and incense offerings be made to Daniel. <sup>47</sup>The king declared to Daniel, "No doubt about it: your God is God of gods, Lord of kings, and a revealer of mysteries because you were able to reveal this mystery!" <sup>48</sup>Then the king exalted Daniel and lavished gifts on him, making him ruler over all the province of Babylon and chief minister over all Babylon's sages. <sup>49</sup>At Daniel's urging, the king appointed Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego to administer the province of Babylon, but Daniel himself remained at the royal court.

Gold statue

3 King Nebuchadnezzar made a gold statue. It was ninety feet high and nine feet wide. He set it up in the Dura Valley in the province of Babylon. <sup>2</sup>King Nebuchadnezzar then

2:35 simultaneously: God's reign overturns human history as a whole, without distinguishing between empires. In this way among others, it is surely not of this world. mighty mountain . . . the entire earth: God's mountain is no longer a symbol of grace at one earthly location (cf. Pss 2:6; 48:2; 50:2; Lam 2:15; Ezek 20:40), but God's global rule becomes concrete and boundless (an idea that also begins to emerge in Isa 2:2; 56:7).

2:36-45 The dream gives a map of history similar to the one that will be given in Daniel 7-12. God has planned a sequence of kingdoms leading up to the end time. The first kingdom, the statue's gold head, is that of Nebuchadnezzar himself (2:38). Readers must identify the other three. An audience living in 167 BCE, when the book first came together, would have thought the kingdoms were Babylon, Media, Persia, and then the Greek kingdoms that rose after Alexander the Great's death, especially the Seleucid kingdom of Antiochus IV. Later readers saw the chest and two arms as Media/Persia (cf. Dan 8:20), the belly and thighs as the Greek kingdoms (cf. Dan 8:21), and the legs and feet as Rome (cf. Dan 11:30 and note) or some new sort of Rome. The decreasing value of the materials as one proceeds from head to feet may be a symbol for moral decline (cf. Dan 12:4).

2:44-45 God's reign will invade earth, end history, and establish a new creation.

2:46-49 Nebuchadnezzar honors Daniel and confesses God's power (cf. Dan 3:28-30 and note). This silly king has such high spirits at finally getting his dream interpreted that Daniel's message of doom goes in one ear and out the other.

3:1-30 The third court tale deals with Nebuchadnezzar's gold statue and Daniel's friends being thrown into a furnace of fire. The tale is amusing and well told, especially when it makes fun of the overgrown egos of earth's imperial rulers. The story makes clear that in God's eyes, the ego-filled words and actions of earth's superpowers are ridiculous.

3:1-7 The huge statue of Nebuchadnezzar is probably supposed to represent his royal power (remember how ordered the chief administrators, ministers, governors, counselors, treasurers, judges, magistrates, and all the provincial officials to assemble and come for the dedication of the statue that he had set up. <sup>3</sup>So the chief administrators, ministers, governors, counselors, treasurers, judges, magistrates, and all the provincial officials assembled for the dedication of the statue that King Nebuchadnezzar had set up. They stood in front of the statue the king had set up. <sup>4</sup>The herald proclaimed loudly: "Peoples, nations, and languages! This is what you must do: <sup>5</sup>When you hear the sound of the horn, pipe, zither, lyre, harp, flute, and every kind of instrument, you must bow down and worship the gold statue that King Nebuchadnezzar has set up. <sup>6</sup>Anyone who will not bow down and worship will be immediately thrown into a furnace of flaming fire." <sup>7</sup>So because of this order as soon as they heard the sound of the horn, pipe, zither, lyre, harp, flute,<sup>b</sup> and every kind of instrument, all the peoples, nations, and languages bowed down and worshipped the gold statue that King Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

Plot against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego

<sup>8</sup>At that moment some Chaldeans came forward, seizing a chance to attack the Jews. <sup>9</sup>They said to King Nebuchadnezzar:

"Long live the king! <sup>10</sup>Your Majesty, you gave a command that everyone who hears the sound of the horn, pipe, zither, lyre, harp, flute, and every kind of instrument should bow down and worship the gold statue. <sup>11</sup>Anyone who wouldn't bow and worship would be thrown into a furnace of flaming fire. <sup>12</sup>Now there are some Jews, ones you appointed to administer the province of Babylon—specifically, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego—who have ignored your command. They don't serve your gods, and they don't worship the gold statue you've set up."

<sup>14</sup>Nebuchadnezzar said to them: "Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego: Is it true that you don't serve my gods or worship the gold statue I've set up? <sup>15</sup>If you are now ready to do so, bow down and worship the gold statue I've made when you hear the sound of horn, pipe, zither, lyre, harp, flute, and every kind of instrument. But if you won't worship it, you will be thrown straight into the furnace of flaming fire. Then what god will rescue you from my power?"

<sup>16</sup>Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego answered King Nebuchadnezzar: "We don't need to answer your question. <sup>17</sup>If our God—the one we serve—is able to rescue us from the furnace of flaming fire and from your power, Your Majesty, then let him rescue us." <sup>18</sup>But if he doesn't, know this for certain, Your Majesty: we will never serve your gods or worship the gold statue you've set up."

<sup>b</sup>Identification of the instruments is not certain; several of the Aramaic terms are Greek loanwords. <sup>c</sup>Or he will deliver us the gold head of the statue in his dream stood for the king; Dan 2:38). He challenges all other authorities, even divine ones: "What god will rescue you from my power?" (Dan 3:15).

3:2-3 The long, twice-repeated list of officials pokes fun at the Babylonian bureaucracy and the unthinking obedience of its members.

3:5-7 The people respond to the sounding of the instruments (named in a long, twice-repeated list; cf. note on Dan 3:2-3) by immediately bowing down in worship, like unthinking robots.

3:6 The threat to burn people alive shows that the king's claim to power isn't just funny. He wants every heart and mind to bend to his will, and he will act like a demon to get his way. We'll see more of this demon-like side of kings in Daniel's second half (Dan 7:8; 8:9-11; 11:36-37). The terrible rulers in Daniel 7-12 claim power over worship and law, just like Nebuchadnezzar (Dan 7:25; 8:11; 11:37).

3:8-18 Jealous rivals turn in Daniel's three friends, who see the dark side of the king's religious rules, for refusing to worship Nebuchadnezzar's image. Apocalyptic literature (see sidebar, "Apocalypse" at Dan 3) calls its readers to be similarly able to see such things and resist them. Heroic, life-risking action may be necessary in the face of evil that takes away our humanity and our ability to think.

3:13 The king's violent rage shows that political rule based on ego is very unstable. Nothing is firm in this warped situation. Even threat of immediate death (Dan 3:3) isn't firm, as the reader now realizes (see note on Dan 3:17-18): 3:17-18 If our God . . . is able: In this translation, the if refers to the reality of God's power. Another possibility is that the if applies to the threat of death: "If your power sends us immediately into the furnace of flaming fire, your majesty, with no second chance, then our God—the one we serve—is able to rescue us. But if not [that is, even if we receive mercy from your hand], know for certain that we will still never serve your gods or worship the gold statue you've set up." Neither death threats nor the promise of official special treatment will alter their devotion to God.

Apocalypse Daniel 7–12 emphasizes visions from God, which make a clear contrast between heavenly and earthly reality and a clear division between good and evil. The visions anticipate that this world will end soon, and assert that when it does, all persons will be judged. These features belong to a type of writing called an “apocalypse,” used by a number of Jews and Christians in Greek and Greco-Roman times (300s BCE to 200s CE). The most famous apocalyptic writing of this period is the book of Revelation in the NT. Daniel, like other apocalyptic heroes, relies on help from divine messengers (called angels in the NT) to understand a different, more powerful reality that stands in tension with, and will eventually overcome, ordinary human history. His visions help the book’s audience in the 160s BCE to understand the spiritual dimensions of their challenging circumstances. However, because the spiritual dimensions aren’t unique to that time, the meaning of Daniel isn’t limited to that time. The apocalyptic visions in the Bible (there were also some visions that weren’t included in the Bible) help readers of every age understand terrible experiences when the world seems to wobble on the brink of utter chaos. Times when the world has come up against apocalyptic upsets or miniature doomsdays include Rome’s destruction of Jerusalem in 70 CE, the killing of people for their religious beliefs in Tudor England, Hitler’s atrocities during World War II, and the current experience of African Christians in Sudan. The meaning of an apocalypse isn’t limited to the events that its original writers or audience were thinking of. Instead, apocalypses are capable of ongoing fulfillment over the ages.

Inside the furnace

<sup>19</sup>Nebuchadnezzar was filled with rage, and his face twisted beyond recognition because of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. In response he commanded that the furnace be heated to seven times its normal heat. <sup>20</sup>He told some of the strongest men in his army to bind Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego and throw them into the furnace of flaming fire. <sup>21</sup>So Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego were bound, still dressed in all their clothes, and thrown into the furnace of flaming fire. (<sup>22</sup>Now the king’s command had been rash, and the furnace was heated to such an extreme that the fire’s flame killed the very men who carried Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego to it.) <sup>23</sup>So these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, fell, bound, into the furnace of flaming fire.

They answered the king, “Certainly, Your Majesty.”

<sup>25</sup>He replied, “Look! I see four men, unbound, walking around inside the fire, and they aren’t hurt! And the fourth one looks like one of the gods.” <sup>26</sup>Nebuchadnezzar went near the opening of the furnace of flaming fire and said, “Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, servants of the Most High God, come out! Come here!” Then Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego came out of the fire. <sup>27</sup>The chief administrators, ministers, governors, and the king’s associates crowded around to look at them. The fire hadn’t done anything to them: their hair wasn’t singed; their garments looked the same as before; they didn’t even smell like fire!

Nebuchadnezzar praises God

3:19–27 God’s cause wins the day, as a mysterious figure protects the friends amid the superhot flames, as is promised in Isaiah 43:2: “When you walk through the fire, you won’t be scorched and flame won’t burn you.”

3:25 The king, who believes in many gods, thinks that he sees one of the gods. For readers who believe in one God, the verse can also refer to a heavenly being or “messenger”

(in the Greek translation, the same word angelou [angell] is used in Dan 3:25, 28), like the one who later shuts the lions’ mouths (Dan 6:22).

3:28–30 Nebuchadnezzar praises God for the amazing rescue, but still thinks he has the power, with his royal decree, to defend God’s honor—as if God needed such help! Only in Daniel 4 does the king learn to be truly humble before God.

Nebuchadnezzar's testimony

4*King Nebuchadnezzar's message to all the peoples, nations, and languages inhabiting the entire earth: "I wish you much peace. <sup>2</sup>I'm delighted to share the signs and miracles that the Most High God has worked in my life.

His miracles so powerful!

His kingdom is everlasting.

His rule is for all time.

4"While I, Nebuchadnezzar, was safe in my house, content in my palace, <sup>5</sup>I had a terrifying dream. My thoughts while I was lying in bed and the vision in my mind overwhelmed me. <sup>6</sup>I ordered all Babylon's sages to come before me, so they might tell me the dream's meaning. <sup>7</sup>So the dream interpreters, enchanters, Chaldeans, and diviners came. I told them the dream, but they couldn't interpret it for me. <sup>8</sup>Daniel, who is called Belteshazzar after the name of my god, was the last to come before me. In him is the breath<sup>g</sup> of the holy gods! I told Daniel the dream:

Nebuchadnezzar's dream

<sup>9</sup>"Belteshazzar, chief of the dream interpreters, I know the breath of the holy gods is in you, and no mystery is too difficult for you. Tell me the meaning of the visions I had in my dream. <sup>10</sup>In my mind, as I lay in bed, I saw a vision:

At the center of the earth was a towering tree.

it was as high as the sky;

it could be seen from every corner of the earth.

<sup>12</sup>Its leaves were beautiful, its fruit abundant;

it had enough food for everyone.

Wild animals took shade under it;

birds nested in its branches.

All living things lived off that tree.

<sup>13</sup>"In my mind, as I lay in bed, I saw another vision: A holy watcher came down from heaven. <sup>14</sup>He proclaimed loudly:

'Cut down the tree and shear off its branches!

Strip its leaves and scatter its fruit!

The creatures should flee from its shelter;

the birds should take flight from its branches.

4:1-37 Nebuchadnezzar dreams of a toppled tree, and Daniel interprets the dream correctly, as a prediction that Nebuchadnezzar will finally learn that God is able to humble all who walk in pride (4:37; cf. Job 40:11-12). The story may have been prompted by a tradition that the last Babylonian king, Nabonidus (556-539 BCE), left Babylon and spent 10 years in the desert. Another Jewish reference to this legend appears in a Dead Sea scroll known as the Prayer of Nabonidus, which presents Nabonidus as saying he was ill for seven years and then cured by a Jewish diviner.

4:1-3 Like the Dead Sea scroll mentioned in the preceding note, Daniel 4 presents its story in (supposedly) the Babylonian king's own words. The storytellers' voice enters only in Daniel 4:19-33, where the king has lost his mind. Poetic praise at the beginning and end of the chapter gives God glory (Dan 4:3, 34b-35, 37), driving home the key point: "The Most High does whatever he wants with heaven's forces and with earth's inhabitants" (Dan 4:35).

4:2 I'm delighted: Surprisingly, the king appreciates God's severe judgment, showing that judgment may be constructive and direct a person to richer life.

4:4-18 Reaching to heaven is often a sign of inappropriate pride in the scriptures (cf. Gen 11:1-9; Isa 10:33-34; Eze 31:10, 14; Zech 11:1-3), but this king goes to extremes. The giant object that he has seen is the world tree. It is a symbol, in myths and dreams around the world, of the order and power that support the world (cf. Ezek 17:22-24; 31:3-14). The world tree links heaven and earth, ideally blessing creation with the favor of the Beyond. Only the most arrogant human would imagine himself or herself to be like this huge tree, the source of shelter and food for all earth's life.

4:8 breath of the holy gods: Nebuchadnezzar, who isn't Jewish, thinks that Daniel's wisdom comes from many gods rather than one. The Aramaic for breath here appears in Daniel 4:9, 18 (also in Dan 5:11, 14) could also be translated "spirit." The book of Isaiah uses the Hebrew form of the term when speaking about God granting a chosen servant the special gift of God's spirit (Isa 11:2; 42:1; 48:16b; 59:21; 61:1). Daniel is such a specially chosen servant of God.

4:13 holy watcher: See Daniel 4:17, 23. Daniel is the only book in the Bible to use this term, but it also appears in the Dead Sea Scrolls and some other ancient Jewish religious writings outside the Bible. It refers to heavenly beings who involve themselves in human history.

<sup>15</sup>But leave its deepest root in the earth, bound with iron and bronze in the field grass.
Dew from heaven is to wash it, and it must live with the animals in the earth's vegetation.

<sup>16</sup>Its<sup>a</sup> human mind is to be changed:
it will be given the mind of an animal.
Seven periods of time will pass over it.

<sup>17</sup>This sentence is by the watchers' decree;
this decision is the holy ones' word so that all who live might know that the Most High dominates human kingship.
The Most High gives kingship to anyone he wants and sets over it the lowest of people.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>18</sup>"This is the dream that I, King Nebuchadnezzar, had. So now Belteshazzar, tell me the meaning because all the sages in my kingdom were unable to interpret it for me. But you are able to do it because the breath of the holy gods is in you."

Daniel interprets the visions

<sup>19</sup>Daniel, who was called Belteshazzar, was shocked for a bit. What he thought about frightened him.

The king declared, "Don't let the dream and its meaning scare you, Belteshazzar."

Then Belteshazzar answered, "Sir, I wish the dream to be for those who hate you and its meaning to be for your enemies! <sup>20</sup>The tree you saw that grew in size and strength, that was as high as the sky, that could be seen from every corner of the earth, <sup>21</sup>with its beautiful leaves and its abundant fruit, and that had enough food for everyone, with wild animals living under it and birds nesting in its branches—<sup>22</sup>Your Majesty, that tree is you! You have grown large and become powerful. Your greatness is as high as the sky; your rule extends to the edge of the earth!

<sup>23</sup>"Your Majesty, the holy watcher you saw coming down from heaven, who said, 'Cut down the tree and destroy it, but leave its deepest root in the earth, bound with iron and bronze in the field grass, dew from heaven is to wash it, and it must live with the wild animals until seven periods of time pass over it'— <sup>24</sup>Your Majesty, this is the dream's meaning: It is the sentence of the Most High, delivered to my master the king. <sup>25</sup>You will be driven away from other humans and will live with the wild animals. You will eat grass like cattle and will be washed by dew from heaven. Seven periods of time will pass over you, until you acknowledge that the Most High dominates human kingship, giving it to anyone he wants. <sup>26</sup>And when he said to leave the deepest root of the tree—that means your kingship will again be yours, once you acknowledge that heaven rules all. <sup>27</sup>Therefore, Your Majesty, please accept my advice: remove your sins by doing what is right; remove your wrongdoing by showing mercy to the poor. Then your safety will be long lasting."

Visions come true

<sup>28</sup>All this happened to King Nebuchadnezzar. <sup>29</sup>Twelve months later, he was walking on the roof of the royal palace in Babylon. <sup>30</sup>The king declared, "Isn't this Babylon, the magnificent city that I built as the royal house by my own mighty strength and for my own majestic glory?"

<sup>a</sup>Throughout 4:15-16 and later in this chap, it and its could also be translated he and his.

4:15 leave its deepest root: so that life can come again (cf. Isa 11:1). bound with iron and bronze: In the ancient world, sacred trees were sometimes protected with metal bands. The image means that the Babylonian Empire will remain safe during the king's absence.

4:16 Seven periods: A "full" or "complete" number of years (on "seven," see Dan 3:19; 7:25 and note). human mind: Here, plain reality invades the images. Compare with the choppy style at Ezekiel 27:11; 31:14-15.

4:19-27 Daniel interprets the visions, which put even the best of earth's political, military, and economic systems into perspective. God must judge such systems, because in the end human efforts to mold a perfect world always become sinful and cruel. Like all empires, Nebuchadnezzar's kingdom, as wonderful as it is, will finally be chopped down.

4:19 for your enemies: A double meaning is possible. These words could mean that Daniel wants the chopping-down to happen to the king's enemies, or that having Nebuchadnezzar chopped down would be a dream come true for the king's enemies.

4:28-33 The visions come true as the king walks on his <sup>33</sup>Nebuchadnezzar’s sentence was immediately carried out. He was driven away from other humans and ate grass like cattle. Dew from heaven washed his body until he grew hair like eagles’ feathers and claws like a bird.

Nebuchadnezzar is restored

<sup>34</sup>“At the end of that time, I, Nebuchadnezzar, raised my eyes to heaven. My reason returned to me, and I praised the Most High. I worshipped and glorified the one who lives forever because his rule is everlasting; his kingdom is for all time. <sup>35</sup>All of earth’s inhabitants are nothing in comparison. The Most High does whatever he wants with heaven’s forces and with earth’s inhabitants. No one can contain his power or say to him, ‘What do you think you are doing?’ <sup>36</sup>So at that moment my reason returned to me. My honor and splendor came back to me for the glory of my kingdom. My associates and my princes wanted to be with me again. Not only was I reinstated over my kingdom, I received more power than ever before.

Belshazzar’s party

5 King Belshazzar threw a huge party for a thousand of his princes, and he drank a lot of wine in front of them. <sup>2</sup>While he was under the wine’s influence, Belshazzar commanded that the gold and silver equipment that his father Nebuchadnezzar had taken from Jerusalem’s temple be brought to the party so that the king, his princes, his consorts, and his secondary wives could drink wine out of them. <sup>3</sup>So the gold<sup>1</sup> equipment that had been carried out of the temple, God’s house in Jerusalem, was brought in; and the king, his princes, his consorts, and his secondary wives drank out of it. <sup>4</sup>They drank a lot of wine; and they praised the gods of gold, silver, bronze, iron, wood, and stone.

Writing on the wall

<sup>5</sup>Right then the fingers of a human hand appeared and wrote on the plaster of the king’s palace wall in the light of the lamp. The king saw the hand that wrote. <sup>6</sup>The king’s mood changed immediately, and he was deeply disturbed. He felt weak, and his knees were shaking. <sup>7</sup>The king yelled, calling for the enchanters, the Chaldeans, and the diviners.

The king told these sages of Babylon: “Anyone who can read this writing and tell me its meaning will wear royal robes, will have a gold chain around his neck, and will rule the kingdom as third in command.”

roof, bragging about “his” wonderful achievements. For him to say that he built Babylon all by himself is ridiculous. 4:33 One of Daniel’s many references to other books of Hebrew scripture: God’s removal of Nebuchadnezzar’s reason echoes the wisdom of Job 12:24-25, “[He] takes away the power to think from earth’s leaders, making them wander in untraveled wastelands.”

4:34-37 The king’s reason returns. He appears to have learned some key lessons, although he still seems overly focused on his own honor, splendor, and power (4:36).

4:35 one of Daniel’s many echoes of Isaiah 40–55. Isaiah 40:17 declares, “All the nations are like nothing before God.” 5:1-31 The powers of heaven and earth clash again in the tale of Belshazzar’s feast, but this king fares far worse than Nebuchadnezzar. In apocalyptic thinking (see sidebar, “Apocalypse” at Dan 3), carelessness, contempt, and sin increase as history moves forward.

5:1-4 God’s equipment had been in God’s holy presence at Jerusalem’s temple. Belshazzar’s indecent pride shows when he uses these items in drunken praise of his Babylonian gods. A similar contempt for God will be described in the apocalyptic visions, when an evil king sets up a “desolating enormity” in the Jerusalem temple (Dan 9:27; 11:31; 12:11; cf. 1 Macc 1:54; Mark 13:14; 2 Thess 2:3-5; Rev 13).

5:1 Belshazzar: son of Nabonidus, the last Babylonian king (see note on Dan 4:1-37). He helped his father rule Babylon before the Persians captured it.

5:2 his father: Father in Aramaic can mean “ancestor” or “predecessor” (cf. Gen 28:13; 2 Kgs 14:3). Nebuchadnezzar was a feared and accomplished ruler, while Belshazzar is a hero at partying and sacrifice.

5:5-9 A hand without a body writes on the palace wall, scaring the king out of his wits.

5:4 The Prayer of Nabonidus in the Dead Sea Scrolls (see note on Dan 4:1-37), in which King Nabonidus reportedly turns away from worshipping idols, has a similar list of materials.

<sup>10</sup>Upon hearing the commotion coming from the king and his princes, the queen entered the banqueting hall and declared, “Long live the king! Don’t be so disturbed. Don’t be so frightened. <sup>11</sup>There is a man in your kingdom who has the breath<sup>l</sup> of holy gods in him! When your father was alive, this man was shown to possess illumination, insight, and wisdom like the very wisdom of the gods.<sup>k</sup> Your father King Nebuchadnezzar appointed this man as chief over the dream interpreters, enchanters, Chaldeans, and diviners. Yes, your father did this <sup>12</sup>because this man—Daniel, the one the king named Belteshazzar—possesses an extraordinary spirit, knowledge, and insight into the meaning of dreams. He can explain ambiguities and resolve mysteries. Now in light of all that, summon Daniel! He will explain the meaning of this thing.”

<sup>13</sup>So Daniel was brought before the king. The king said to him, “So you are Daniel, the Daniel from the exiles that my father the king brought from Judah? <sup>14</sup>I have heard that the breath of the gods is in you and that you possess illumination, insight, and extraordinary wisdom. <sup>15</sup>Now, the sages and the dream interpreters were brought before me to read this writing and interpret it for me, but they couldn’t explain its meaning. <sup>16</sup>But I’ve heard that you can explain meanings and solve mysteries. So if you can read this writing and interpret it for me, you will wear royal robes, have a gold chain around your neck, and will rule the kingdom as third in command.”

Daniel interprets the writing

<sup>17</sup>Daniel answered the king: “Keep your gifts. Give the rewards to someone else. But I will still read the writing to the king and interpret it for him. <sup>18</sup>Listen, Your Majesty: The Most High God gave kingship, power, glory, and majesty to your father Nebuchadnezzar. <sup>19</sup>Because of the power God gave Nebuchadnezzar, all peoples, nations, and languages were terrified of him. He did whatever he wanted, whenever he wanted: killing or sparing, exalting or humbling. <sup>20</sup>But when he became arrogant, acting in stubborn pride, he was pulled off his royal throne and the glory was taken from him. <sup>21</sup>He was driven away from other humans, and his mind became like an animal’s. He lived with wild donkeys, he ate grass like cattle, and dew from heaven washed his body until he realized that the Most High God dominates human kingship and sets over it anyone he wants.

<sup>22</sup>But you who are his son, Belshazzar, you haven’t submitted, even though you’ve known all this. <sup>23</sup>Instead, you’ve set yourself up against the Lord of heaven! The equipment of God’s house was brought to you; and you, your princes, your consorts, and your secondary wives drank wine out of it, all the while praising the gods of silver, gold, bronze, iron, wood, and stone—gods who can’t see, hear, or know anything. But you didn’t glorify the true God who holds your very breath in his hand and who owns every road you take.

5:22-28 Daniel bluntly confronts the king, speaking truth to power (contrast his more diplomatic approach in Dan 4:19).

5:23 can’t see, hear, or know anything: The sarcasm about idols strongly echoes sections of Isaiah 40–55, especially Isaiah 46:7.

5:25-26 MENE, MENE, TEKEL, and PARSIN: units of weight and money in Aramaic: the mina (worth between 50 and 60 shekels), shekel, and half-mina. The king and his sages understood the weight names but didn’t see that they were puns (cf. Amos 8:1-2). Mene sounds like the Aramaic verb “to number”; tekel sounds like the verb “to weigh”; parsin sounds like the verb “to divide” and it also sounds like the word Persians. Read Daniel’s way, the Aramaic words become: “Numbered, numbered, weighed, and divided.”

5:28 the Medes and the Persians: connected as one kingdom in Daniel (see Dan 6:8, 12, 15; 8:20). Persia’s Cyrus the

Plot against Daniel

6Darius decided to appoint one hundred twenty chief administrators throughout the kingdom, <sup>2</sup>and to set over them three main officers to whom they would report so that the king wouldn't have to be bothered with too much. <sup>3</sup>One of these main officers was Daniel. <sup>4</sup>Because of his extraordinary spirit, Daniel soon surpassed the other officers and the chief administrators—so much so that the king had plans to set him over the entire kingdom. <sup>5</sup>As a result, the other officers and the chief administrators tried to find some problem with Daniel's work for the kingdom. But they couldn't find any problem or corruption at all because Daniel was trustworthy. He wasn't guilty of any negligence or corruption.

<sup>6</sup>So these officers and chief administrators ganged together and went to the king. They said to him, "Long live King Darius! <sup>7</sup>All the officers of the kingdom, the ministers, the chief administrators, the royal associates, and the governors advise the king to issue an edict and enforce a law, that for thirty days anyone who says prayers to any god or human being except you, Your Majesty, will be thrown into a pit of lions. <sup>8</sup>Now, Your Majesty, issue the law and sign the document so that it cannot be changed, as per the law of Media and Persia, which cannot be annulled." <sup>9</sup>Because of this, King Darius signed the document containing the law.

Daniel prays

<sup>10</sup>When Daniel learned that the document had been signed, he went to his house. Now his upper room had open windows that faced Jerusalem. Daniel knelt down, prayed, and praised his God three times that day, just like he always did. <sup>11</sup>Just then these men, all ganged together, came upon Daniel praying and seeking mercy from his God. <sup>12</sup>They then went and talked to the king about the law: "Your Majesty! Didn't you sign a law, that for thirty days any person who prays to any god or human being besides you, Your Majesty, would be thrown into a pit of lions?"

The king replied, "The decision is absolutely firm in accordance with the law of Media and Persia, which cannot be annulled."

<sup>13</sup>So they said to the king, "One of the Judean exiles, Daniel, has ignored you, Your Majesty, as well as the law you signed. He says his prayers three times a day!"

5:30 The death of Belshazzar that very same night (cf. Dan 4:31) echoes the wisdom of Job 34:25: "he regards their deeds, overturns them at night, and they are crushed." According to ancient Greek historians, the Medes and Persians attacked Babylon during a great banquet. Everyone was so absorbed with partying that no one noticed the enemy diverting the Euphrates River to enter Babylon across the riverbed.

5:31 Darius the Mede: The official-sounding royal name makes for good storytelling, but it isn't historically correct. Babylon fell to Persia's King Cyrus the Great (see note on Dan 5:2B), not to Darius. The book of Daniel likely combines Kings Cyrus and Darius into one larger-than-life character (see Dan 6:1; 9:1; 11:1). The Aramaic of Daniel 6:28 may even be meant to explain that in this book Darius the Mede is the same as King Cyrus. As in Daniel 1:1 (see note there), playfulness with the historical record may be the authors' signal to the reader that this story is sacred fiction rather than secular history.

6:1-28 The tale of Daniel in the lion's pit is a well-loved story of God's power over all earthly dangers. The officers plot against Daniel because of professional jealousy, not because of prejudices against his ethnic group or religion, although they use Daniel's religion in their plot.

6:1-9 A plot against Daniel arises out of competition between Darius' administrators. Since they can't find any problems with Daniel's work, they decide to attack his distinctive religion. The king's inflated ego makes it easy for the officers and administrators to use him for their plan. He has no problem taking the place of a god (cf. the attitude of the "small horn" in Dan 7:8, 25; 8:11, 25; 11:37).

6:1 Historians note that King Darius I (522-486 BCE) created large administrative districts governed by Persian nobles.

6:8 cannot be changed: Compare with Daniel 6:12, 15; Esther 1:19; 8:8. This makes fun of Persia's claim to provide permanent, unchanging rule. In inscriptions at his grave, King Darius claims that no one broke his laws: "What was said to them by me, that they did; my law—that held them firm."

6:10-18 Daniel ignores the king's document. Continuing to pray openly three times a day (cf. Ps 55:17), he bears witness that God's reality is more important than human politicking and plotting.

<sup>14</sup>When the king heard this report, he was very unhappy. He decided to rescue Daniel and did everything he could do to save Daniel before the sun went down. <sup>15</sup>But these men, all ganged together, came and said to the king, "You must realize, Your Majesty, that the law of Media and Persia, including every law and edict the king has issued, cannot be changed."

Daniel in the lions' pit

<sup>16</sup>So the king gave the order, and they brought Daniel and hurled him into the pit of lions.

The king said to Daniel: "Your God—the one you serve so consistently—will rescue you."<sup>17</sup>

<sup>20</sup>As he approached it, he called out to Daniel, worried: "Daniel, servant of the living God! Was your God—the one you serve so consistently—able to rescue you from the lions?"

<sup>21</sup>Then Daniel answered the king: "Long live the king! <sup>22</sup>My God sent his messenger, who shut the lions' mouths. They haven't touched me because I was judged innocent before my God. I haven't done anything wrong to you either, Your Majesty."

<sup>23</sup>The king was thrilled. He commanded that Daniel be brought up out of the pit, and Daniel was lifted out. Not a scratch was found on him, because he trusted in his God. <sup>24</sup>The king then ordered that the men who had accused Daniel be brought and thrown into the lions' pit—including their wives and children. They hadn't even reached the bottom of the pit before the lions overpowered them, crushing all their bones.

New decree

To all the peoples, nations, and languages inhabiting the entire earth: I wish you much peace. <sup>26</sup>I now issue this command: In every region of my kingdom, all people must fear and revere Daniel's God because:

He is the living God.

God stands firm forever.

His kingship is indestructible.

God's rule will last until the end of time.

<sup>27</sup>He is rescuer and savior;

God performs signs and miracles in heaven and on earth.

Here's the proof: He rescued Daniel from the lions' power.

<sup>28</sup>And so Daniel was made prosperous during the rule of Darius and during the rule of Cyrus the Persian.

Daniel's vision: four beasts

7In the first year of Babylon's King Belshazzar, Daniel had a dream—a vision in his head as he lay on his bed. He wrote the dream down. Here is the beginning of the account:

<sup>1</sup>Or May your God—the one you serve so consistently—rescue you. <sup>18</sup>Aram uncertain

6:14 Powerful King Darius is caught by his own law. He can't undo the trouble created by his jealous officials.

6:16 Your God . . . rescue you: Although Darius made a law that people come only to him for help (Dan 6:7, 9), he now admits that true power lies completely outside his rule: Only God can rescue Daniel (contrast King Nebuchadnezzar's attitude in Dan 3:15).

6:19-24 After rushing in a very un-kingly way to the sealed pit, Darius discovers Daniel rescued from the lions. A higher law than that of the Medes and the Persians has judged Daniel and declared him innocent (cf. 1 Macc 2:60; Daniel means "God is judge").

6:24 The fate of the administrators who accused Daniel recalls words from Psalm 57:4-6, "They dug a pit for me, but they fell into it instead!" (v. 6). wives and children: The king favors Daniel, but his rule and his empire remain extraordinarily cruel. hadn't even reached: The lions jump to eat, proving that a true miracle, not some problem with the lions, saved Daniel.

6:25-28 King Darius writes a new decree, declaring God's permanent rule (cf. Dan 6:8 and note). The king remains focused on power and fear (6:26), making no mention of how God inspires loyalty and love.

7:1-12:13 The second half of Daniel contains apocalyptic visions (see sidebar, "Apocalypse" at Dan 3) that help readers imagine a new world and a new identity. This new world and new identity put the here and now in a new light. While waiting for God's resurrection world to arrive in power, the wise prepare through open, faithful witness and action. They take a position much like Isaiah's suffering servant of the Lord.

7:1-28 Building on the picture of history in Daniel 2, chapter 7 adds details about God's coming reign. The powers that oppose it are pictured as monsters coming out of

<sup>7</sup>After this, as I continued to watch this night vision, I saw a fourth beast, terrifying and hideous, with extraordinary power and with massive iron teeth. As it ate and crushed, its feet smashed whatever was left over. It was different from all the other beasts before it, and it had ten horns. <sup>8</sup>I was staring at the horns when, suddenly, another small horn came up between them. Three of the earlier horns were ripped out to make room for it. On this new horn were eyes like human eyes and a mouth that bragged and bragged.

The Anti-Messiah The notion of an end-time leader with a character opposite that of God's promised Anointed One (in Heb. "Messiah"; in Gk., "Christ") appears as early as the book of Zechariah. That book starts by celebrating the anointed leaders Joshua (Zech 3) and Zerubbabel (Zech 4), who led the people at the time of return from exile, but then the book turns to hope for God's future intervention in the people's history. Zechariah 11:15-17 states that, before God finally rescues Judah, the land will suffer under a worthless ruler who devours flesh and tears off hooves. An ancient Jewish tablet called "Gabriel's Vision" picks up on Zechariah's use of the word "branch" for the Anointed One (Zech 3:8; 6:12), and speaks of a dark counterpart, the "evil branch." The new horn of Daniel 7:7-8 is another example of an anti-messiah. The New Testament refers to false messiahs or "antichrists" in Mark 13:6, 21-22; Matthew 24:5, 24; 2 Thessalonians 2:3-4, 8-10; 1 John 2:18, 22; 4:3; Revelation 11:1-2; 12:6; 13:1-10; 17:8.

a raging sea, a common symbol for chaos (cf. Isa 27:1; 51:9-10; Rev 21:1). The monsters are spiritual powers that stand behind a series of ferocious earthly empires, leading finally to the reign of an arrogant bully, the vision's small horn. In spite of the monsters, this revelation is full of hope. The Most High easily defeats the dictator, and God's reign appears on the clouds of heaven for all to see.

7:1-8 Daniel's vision of four beasts is a historical drama in which four kingdoms arise, one after the other, on earth (Dan 7:17; cf. notes on Dan 2:36-45; 5:28). Daniel's interpreter never explains what kingdoms the beasts stand for. The chapter's original writers and hearers, living under the rule of King Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175-164 BCE; see Dan 11:21-35) would have supposed the sequence ended in their own era, as follows: (1) Babylon, (2) Media, (3) Persia, and (4) the Greek kingdoms (that is, Alexander the Great and the Greek kings, including Antiochus IV, that ruled his empire after his death). As Daniel continued to be read in later Jewish and Christian communities, however, interpreters saw a different sequence: (1) Babylon, (2) Medo-Persia (the combined kingdoms of Media and Persia), (3) the Greek kingdoms, and (4) Rome (for details, see the following notes). Even later readers have often understood the fourth kingdom to be some "new Rome" of their own time.

7:2 I saw: an Aramaic phrase (Dan 7:4, 6, 7, 9, 11, 13) that helps identify the passage as an apocalyptic vision (see sidebar, "Apocalypse" at Dan 3). According to Luke 10:18, Jesus uses the Greek version of this phrase in reporting a similar vision. churning: the Greek translation of Daniel says the winds "fell upon"/"attacked" the sea of chaos. This fits with poetic images of God as a thunderstorm attacking the raging sea (e.g. Pss 74:13-14; 89:8-11; 93:3-4).

7:4 a lion with eagle's wings: the spirit of Babylon, an empire strong and swift like the lion and eagle (cf. Jer 4:7, 13; 49:19-22). Images of lions with wings decorated the main street of Nebuchadnezzar's Babylon. The beast's getting a human mind recalls Nebuchadnezzar's recovery in Daniel 4:36.

7:5 bear: originally Media (cf. Isa 13:17; Jer 51:11), but Medo-Persia according to other clues in the present form of Daniel (see Dan 5:28 and note; Dan 6:8; note on Dan 7:1-8). The latter identification fits Daniel 8:20, where Medo-Persia is a single beast (a ram with two horns; see Dan 8:3). raised on one side: The original sense may have been "tearing up, front paws raised." In the book's present form, however, the image is of Media and Persia united in an unbalanced empire (as in Dan 8:3, "one was higher than the other"). three ribs: Medo-Persia conquered Babylon in 539 BCE, Lydia in 546, and Egypt in 525.

7:6 leopard: For the original writers and audience, the Persian Empire. When chapters 7 and 8 of Daniel are read side by side as related parts of a book of scripture that holds together, however, the leopard seems most like the Greek kingdoms of Alexander, because its four heads look like the four kingdoms created when Alexander died in 323 BCE, after his generals divided up his empire. Daniel 8 stresses how Alexander's empire split into four parts (see Dan 8:8, 21-22). four wings: Symbols for speed in conquest, which matches Persia's King Cyrus (see Isa 41:3) but fits even better with Alexander the Great of Greece (the "big horn" of Dan 8:21), who conquered the known world by age 32 (see Dan 8:5). Authority: Compare with the universal rule of the third kingdom in Daniel 2:39.

7:7-8 The fourth beast was originally Greece, but was thought of as Rome by the time the book of Daniel entered into the canon of holy scripture (cf. note on Dan 11:30). Its alien character shows that it stands for terrible

Throne of fire and the human figure

<sup>9</sup>As I was watching, thrones were raised up.
The ancient one took his seat.
His clothes were white like snow;
his hair was like a lamb's wool.
His throne was made of flame;
its wheels were blazing fire.

<sup>10</sup>A river of fire flowed out from his presence; thousands upon thousands served him;
ten thousand times ten thousand stood ready to serve him!
The court sat in session; the scrolls were opened.

<sup>11</sup>I kept watching. I watched from the moment the horn started bragging until the beast was killed and its body was destroyed, handed over to be burned with fire. <sup>12</sup>Then the authority of the remaining beasts was brought to an end, but they were given an extension among the living for a set time and season.

I suddenly saw one like a human being▼ coming with the heavenly clouds.
He came to the ancient one and was presented before him.

<sup>14</sup>Rule, glory, and kingship were given to him;
all peoples, nations, and languages will serve him.
His rule is an everlasting one—it will never pass away!—
his kingship is indestructible.

Beasts interpreted

<sup>15</sup>Now this caused me, Daniel, to worry.▼ My visions disturbed me greatly. <sup>16</sup>So I went to one of the servants who was standing ready nearby. I asked him for the truth about all this.

The Human One in Daniel The term “anointed one” (in Heb., “messiah”) doesn’t appear in Daniel 7:13. Some interpreters believe that the one like a human being (the phrase has sometimes been translated “a son of man”) isn’t a messiah but is probably a symbol for God’s people or the authority that is going to be given to them (Dan 7:22, 27). Other interpreters insist that the monsters and saviors in apocalypses are usually real, not just symbols of something else. Ancient Jewish interpreters understood the “human one” to be an end-time redeemer, God’s anointed ruler (see an example of such interpretation in 4 Ezra 13, in the Apocrypha). In the NT period, the phrase which we translate “one like a human being” (or “son of man”) is used by both Jewish and Christian writers for a godly ruler who will come in the end times. The NT pictures Jesus speaking of himself as the “Human One” (another translation for the “Son of Man” phrase) who will come on the clouds of heaven (e.g., Mark 8:38; 13:26; 14:62).

▼Aram kebar enash (like a son of man) is an idiom that means like a human being; cf also 8:17; 10:16, 18 for Heb approximations. ▼Or my spirit was distressed in its sheath; Aram uncertain end-time evil. ten horns: Compare with the ten toes of Daniel 2:42. Horns represent strength and violence; ten stands for completeness; three (7:8) means “some of” the kings. small horn... that bragged and bragged: Like Nebuchadnezzar in Daniel 3, this evil king has an indecently inflated ego. Daniel’s authors doubtless thought of Antiochus IV (see Dan 11:21-35) as the end-time foe described by their writings. But Daniel became scripture at a time when the bragging little horn of the end times could no longer be imagined to be Antiochus, since history continued to march ahead, and the events of Daniel 7:21-22 remained unfulfilled. Thus Jews and Christians have received the book of Daniel as a forward-pointing prophecy of a future “small horn,” who will come as the anti-messiah (see sidebar, “The Anti-Messiah” at Dan 7).

7:9-14 Daniel uses poetry to help convey the wonder and majesty of a second scene taking place on God’s level of reality. God, the ancient one (cf. Ps 102:12, 24), sits on a throne of fire to judge the beasts of chaos. A new character, a mysterious royal figure, then receives everlasting kingship on earth.

7:9 flame... wheels: The prophet Ezekiel also pictures God on a fiery, wheeled throne (see notes on Ezek 1:4-28; 10:1-2).

7:11-12 an extension: Only the fourth, horrific beast is killed immediately. The remains of the other empires survive. In the end, they will serve and obey God’s people (Dan 7:27).

7:13-14 A wonderful royal figure appears, a symbol of God’s good rule that will be given to God’s holy people (Dan 7:27). In another Jewish writing from the same period as Daniel, a white bull brings good rule that ends the cruel reign of vicious animals (see sidebar, “Apocalypse” at Dan 3), like a human being: See sidebar, “The Human One in Daniel.” The human form shows that this figure, unlike the monstrous animals, will rule justly and well, in God’s own image (see Gen 1:26-28).

7:15-28 Earlier, Daniel didn’t need help to interpret dreams

He spoke to me and explained to me the meaning of these things. <sup>17</sup>“These four giant beasts are four kings that will rise up from the earth, <sup>18</sup>but the holy ones of the Most High will receive the kingship. They will hold the kingship securely forever and always.”

“The fourth beast means that there will be a fourth kingship on the earth.

It will be different from all the other kingships.

It will devour the entire earth, trample it, crush it.

<sup>24</sup>The ten horns mean that from this kingship will rise ten kings, and after them will rise yet another.

He will be different from the previous ones.

He will defeat three kings.

<sup>25</sup>He will say things against the Most High and will exhaust the holy ones of the Most High.

He will try to change times set by law.

And for a period of time, periods of time, and half a period of time, they will be delivered into his power.

<sup>26</sup>Then the court will sit in session.

His rule will be taken away—ruined and wiped out for all time.

<sup>27</sup>The kingship, authority, and power of all kingdoms under heaven will be given to the people, the holy ones of the Most High.

Their kingship is an everlasting one; every authority will serve them and obey.”

Now as for how I, Daniel, felt about this: My thoughts disturbed me greatly. My mood darkened considerably, and I kept thinking about this matter.

Vision of a ram and a goat

OIn the third year of King Belshazzar’s rule, a vision came to me, Daniel, some time after the earlier vision I had. <sup>21</sup>I saw this vision, and as I experienced it I was in the walled city of Susa in the province of Elam, <sup>2</sup>by the Ulai canal. <sup>3</sup>When I lifted my eyes, I suddenly saw a

(Dan 2:28; 4:9, 18; 5:11-12, 17), but now that he is peering deeper into God’s mysteries, he asks a divine messenger about the meaning of the vision (cf. Dan 8:15-16; 9:21-23; 10:14-17; 12:8; Zech 1:9, 19; 2:3; 4:1).

7:21, 22 holy ones: See note on Daniel 7:27.

7:25-26 The last king is an arrogant fool, who dares to challenge God (see Dan 2:21) and interfere with proper worship (see Dan 8:11-13; 9:27; 11:31; 12:11; 1 Macc 1:45; 2 Macc 6:6). period . . . periods . . . half a period: three and a half years (cf. Dan 8:14; 9:27; 12:7). Seven stands for completeness, so half of seven is a “broken,” perhaps godless, number. The same stretch of time is referred to in Daniel 9:27 as a “half-week” that will end in “decreed destruction.” Daniel’s original readers would have understood the period as the final years of Antiochus IV. Although their crisis with Antiochus turned out not to be history’s final hour, later generations have continued to find meaning in the hope expressed here. That’s because the book never says the last king is Antiochus. Instead readers now know that the earth managed to avoid the end of history at the time of the leopard-beast (Dan 7:6); although it was a near miss!

7:27 holy ones: here God’s people, set apart and devoted (as in Ps 34:9; Isa 4:3). The term can also refer to heavenly beings with God’s people under their protection (e.g. Dan 8:13, 24).

7:28 kept thinking: While living at the time of the first beast (Dan 7:4), Daniel could hardly imagine the era of the fourth one. Having already seen his competence (e.g., Dan 5:11) we now see his human limits (cf. Dan 8:5, 27). Even divine messengers must ask each other about the meaning of apocalyptic visions (see Dan 8:13-14; see sidebar, “Apocalypse” at Dan 3), so we should be cautious when people today claim that they know exactly what the visions mean. 8:1-27 This chapter explains its symbols much more plainly than Daniel 7 did. Daniel 8 also focuses more ram with two horns standing in front of the canal. Both horns were high, but one was higher than the other. The higher one came up after the other one. <sup>4</sup>I saw the ram goring west, north, and south. No animal could resist the ram, and no one could stop it, rescuing others from its power. The ram did whatever it pleased. It became powerful.

<sup>5</sup>I was trying to understand this when suddenly a he-goat came from the west, crossing the entire earth but not touching the ground. Between this goat's eyes was a horn that was a sight to see. <sup>6</sup>The he-goat came to the ram that had two horns, the one I'd seen standing in front of the canal. The he-goat charged the ram in powerful anger. <sup>7</sup>I saw the he-goat approach the ram. It was enraged at the ram and attacked it, shattering the ram's two horns. The ram couldn't resist the he-goat. The he-goat threw the ram on the ground and trampled on it. No one could rescue the ram from the he-goat's power.

<sup>8</sup>The he-goat became even greater, but at the height of its power, its large horn snapped. In its place, four horns, each a sight to see, came up toward the four winds of heaven. <sup>9</sup>A single, very small horn came out of one of the four horns. It grew bigger and bigger, stretching toward the south, the east, and the beautiful country. <sup>10</sup>It grew as high as the heavenly forces, until it finally threw some of them and some of the stars down to the earth. Then it trampled on them. <sup>11</sup>It grew as high as the very leader of those forces, taking the daily sacrifice away from him* and overturning his holy place. <sup>12</sup>In an act of rebellion, another force will take control of the daily sacrifice. It will throw truth to the ground and will succeed in everything it does.*

How long?

<sup>13</sup>I then heard a certain holy one speaking. A second holy one said to the first one: "How long will this vision last—the one concerning the daily sacrifice, the desolating rebellion, and the handing over of the sanctuary and its forces to be trampled?"

specifically on the Greek era, the period when Daniel came together as a complete book. This focus shows that the book's original writers understood their own days, when Antiochus IV Epiphanes ruled (175–164 BCE), as the end times. Looking back, today's readers can see that those times weren't the final end, but that doesn't make the vision irrelevant (see sidebar, "Apocalypse" at Dan 3). 8:1–14 In his second apocalyptic vision (see sidebar, "Apocalypse" at Dan 3), Daniel sees a ram (the combined empires of Media and Persia) goring in all directions. No one can stop it. It does as it pleases until a he-goat (Greece), sporting an immense horn (Alexander the Great), flies in from the west. The goat charges the ram, shatters its two horns, and stomps it into the ground. Then, four horns (Alexander's four generals) sprout on the goat, replacing the big horn. Another horrific little horn (King Antiochus IV Epiphanes) pushes up out of one of the four earlier horns. This little horn commits great sins, even attacking God's heavenly armies.

8:1 As Daniel's vision begins, the book switches from Aramaic back to Hebrew (see note on Dan 2:4). Why do the writers switch, when their Aramaic (which Judeans of their time spoke in daily life) is better than their Hebrew? By using the ancient language of their people, they find a way of resisting the cultural and religious changes that Antiochus is trying to make. By writing in Hebrew, Daniel's authors resist foreign ways and deny that "foreign" equals power. They insist that true reality has to do with God's saving work amid the Hebrew people. They leave Daniel 7 in Aramaic, however, to help knit the book's second, mostly Hebrew half to the sacred fiction written in Aramaic in the first half.

8:2 Susa: By the time Daniel 8 was written, Susa (under the same Greek king as Judea), had become a model of Greek culture and values. Perhaps that is why the chapter places Daniel there, even though Susa didn't really become a winter capital until after King Belshazzar's time. Being in Susa may symbolize the Jews surrounded by crushing experiences of foreign ("Greek") ways (see note on Dan 8:1). Ulai: rivers are sometimes associated with visions (cf. Dan 10:4; Ezek 1:1–3; Zech 1:8; Gen 32:22–32). They are boundary markers, and boundaries were believed to be places of contact between worlds, places where people could experience divine reality more easily.

8:3 The ram's two horns represent the two kingdoms of Media and Persia (Dan 8:20). Persia came up as a world power later than Media, but became the dominant of the two kingdoms in 550 BCE under King Cyrus.

8:5 horn: Alexander the Great (see Dan 8:21). not touching the ground: Alexander conquered the known world with the speed of a powerful bird (cf. Dan 7:6).

8:8 four horns: See Daniel 8:22; see note on Daniel 7:6.

8:9 small horn: King Antiochus IV Epiphanes (see Dan 8:23–25). south: Antiochus invaded Egypt in 169 BCE. east: He attacked Parthia in 165 BCE. beautiful country: namely, Judea (see Dan 11:16, 41, 45). When Antiochus returned from Egypt in 169, he plundered the temple (cf. Dan 11:28).

8:11–12 (see 1 Macc 1:54–61; 2 Macc 4:11–6:11). leader: God. Antiochus declared himself "god manifest" ("Epiphanes") on coins and ordered sacrifices, probably to Zeus, in the Jerusalem temple on the twenty-fifth of each month in celebration of his own birthday (see 2 Macc 6:5; 10:7, and notes). truth to the ground: Antiochus' troops tore up and burned scrolls of holy scripture (see 1 Macc 1:56).

8:13–14 Two divine beings struggle to understand why God is slow to fix the situation (cf. the conversation of divine messengers in Zech 2:3–4). How long: Language of yearning for God to stop the course of earth's history

Vision interpreted

<sup>15</sup>Now I, Daniel, needed help understanding the vision I saw. Suddenly standing in front of me was someone who looked like a man. <sup>16</sup>I then heard a human voice coming out of the center of the Ulai canal. It called out: "Gabriel, help this person understand what he has seen."

<sup>17</sup>Gabriel approached me, and I was terrified when he came. I fell with my face to the ground. Gabriel said to me, "Know this, human one: the vision is for the end time." <sup>18</sup>As soon as he said this to me, I fell into a trance. My face was still on the ground. Then Gabriel touched me and set me up on my feet.

<sup>19</sup>He said, "Now, I am going to tell you what will happen during the time of doom that is coming, because at the appointed time there will be an end. <sup>20</sup>The two-horned ram you saw represents the kings of Media and Persia. <sup>21</sup>The long-haired he-goat is the king of Greece, and the big horn between its eyes is the first king. <sup>22</sup>The horn that snapped so that four came up in its place means that four kingdoms will come from one nation, but these four won't have the strength of the first one.

and their sins<sup>a</sup> are almost complete, a king will step forward.

He will be stern and a master of deception.

he will wreak unbelievable destructions.

He will succeed in all he does.

He will destroy both the mighty and the people of the holy ones.

he will succeed by using deceit.

In his own mind, he will be great.

In a time of peace,

he will bring destruction on many, opposing even the supreme leader.

But he will be broken—and not by a human hand.

<sup>26</sup>Now this vision of evening and morning, which has been announced, is true. But you must seal it up, because it is for days far in the future."

<sup>27</sup>Then I, Daniel, was overwhelmed and felt sick for days. When I finally got up and went about the king's business, I remained troubled by the vision and couldn't understand it.

Daniel's prayer

9In the first year of Darius' rule—Darius, who was Ahasuerus' son, a Median by birth and who ruled the Chaldean kingdom—<sup>2</sup>I, Daniel, pondered the scrolls, specifically

(cf. Isa 64:12; Zech 1:11-12; Rev 6:10). desolating rebellion: Antiochus turned God's house into a pagan worship site (1 Macc 1:54, 59; 4:38, 43-46; 6:7; cf. Dan 9:27; 11:31; 12:11). 2 Maccabees 6:5 describes abominable offerings (probably pigs), forbidden by the Instruction from Moses, covering the altar. two thousand three hundred evenings and mornings: 1,150 days, about three and a half years, the same period referred to in Daniel 7:25; 9:27; 12:7. For discussion of how such numbers may have symbolic meaning, see note on Daniel 12:11-12.

8:15-27 The divine messenger Gabriel interprets the vision for Daniel. He explains that it isn't for Daniel's own Babylonian era but applies to future days (Persian through Greek times, particularly the era of Antiochus IV Epiphanes, 175–164 BCE).

8:15-16 looked like a man: Divine messengers tend to appear human in form (cf. Dan 10:16, 18; Josh 5:13-14; Judg 13:16). The Hebrew expression in 8:15 makes a pun on the messenger's name, Gabriel. A different expression is used for the figure in Daniel 7:13-14, which is probably not a divine messenger (or angel, although scholars differ on this): 8:22 After Alexander's death in 323 BCE, four of his generals divide his empire between them. See note on Daniel 7:6.

8:25 time of peace: A reference to the surprise attack on Jerusalem described in 1 Maccabees 1:29-30. supreme leader: God. not by a human hand: Compare with Daniel 2:34, 45. In apocalyptic thinking, God alone rescues the world (see sidebar, "Apocalypse" at Dan 3).

8:26 seal it up: Apocalyptic visions contain rare and unusual knowledge about the world to come. The writers thus speak of it as remaining "sealed up" until long after Daniel's life and times, available only when the book of Daniel appears in writing.

9:1-27 Here at the center of the visions Daniel appears as an "apocalyptic scribe"—one who gets wisdom from the number of years that it would take to complete Jerusalem's desolation according to the LORD's word to the prophet Jeremiah. It was seventy years. <sup>3</sup>I then turned my face to my Lord God, asking for an answer with prayer and pleading, and with fasting, mourning clothes, and ashes. <sup>4</sup>As I prayed to the LORD my God, I made this confession:

Please, my Lord—you are the great and awesome God, the one who keeps the covenant, and truly faithful to all who love him and keep his commands: <sup>5</sup>We have sinned and done wrong. We have brought guilt on ourselves and rebelled, ignoring your commands and your laws. <sup>6</sup>We haven't listened to your servants, the prophets, who spoke in your name to our kings, our leaders, our parents, and to all the land's people. <sup>7</sup>Righteousness belongs to you, my Lord! But we are ashamed this day—we, the people of Judah, the inhabitants of Jerusalem, all Israel whether near or far, in whatever country where you've driven them because of their unfaithfulness when they broke faith with you. <sup>8</sup>LORD, we are ashamed—we, our kings, our leaders, and our parents who sinned against you. <sup>9</sup>Compassion and deep forgiveness belong to my Lord, our God, because we rebelled against him. <sup>10</sup>We didn't listen to the voice of the LORD our God by following the teachings he gave us through his servants, the prophets. <sup>11</sup>All Israel broke your Instruction and turned away, ignoring your voice. Then the curse that was sworn long ago—the one written in the Instruction from Moses, God's servant—swept over us because we sinned against God. <sup>12</sup>God confirmed the words he spoke against us and against our rulers, bringing great trouble on us. What happened in Jerusalem hasn't happened anywhere else in the entire world! <sup>13</sup>All this trouble came upon us, exactly as it was written in the Instruction of Moses, but we didn't try to reconcile with the LORD our God by turning from our wrongdoing or by finding wisdom in your faithfulness. <sup>14</sup>So the LORD oversaw the great trouble and brought it on us, because the LORD our God has been right in every move he's made, but we haven't listened to his voice.

<sup>15</sup>But now, my Lord, our God—you who brought your people out of Egypt with a strong hand, making a name for yourself even to this day: We have sinned and done the wrong thing." <sup>16</sup>My Lord, please! In line with your many righteous acts, please turn your raging anger from Jerusalem, which is your city, your own holy mountain. Because of our sins and the wrongdoing of our parents, both Jerusalem and your people have become a disgrace to all our neighbors.

<sup>17</sup>But now, our God, listen to your servant's prayer and pleas for help. Shine your face on your ruined sanctuary, for your own sake, my Lord. <sup>18</sup>Open your ears, my God, and listen! Open your eyes and look at our devastation. Look at the city called by your name! We pray our prayers for help to you, not because of any righteous acts of ours but because of your great compassion. <sup>19</sup>My Lord, listen! My Lord, forgive! My Lord, pay attention and act! Don't delay! My God, do all this for your own sake, because your city and your people are called by your name.

Seventy weeks

<sup>20</sup>While I was still speaking, praying, and confessing my sin and the sins of my people Israel—while I was still praying my prayer for help to the LORD my God about my God's holy mountain—<sup>21</sup>while I was still speaking this prayer, the man Gabriel approached me at the time of the evening offering. This was the same Gabriel I had seen in my earlier vision. He was weary with exhaustion.<sup>c</sup> close study of sacred texts (see discussion of interpretive wisdom in the intro; see sidebar, "Apocalypse" at Dan 3). He prays to God to end the exile, based on study of Jeremiah. God's promise, according to Jeremiah, was to end the exile after 70 years (Jer 25:11-12; 29:10; cf. Zech 7:5). The divine messenger Gabriel then appears and offers a complex interpretation of Jeremiah's prophecy.

9:1-19 Daniel realizes from studying Jeremiah that God should now be ending the exile. He asks God to act in a prayer filled with references to earlier scripture (cf. 1 Kgs 8; Ezra 9:6-15; Neh 9:6-37). Daniel's prayer confesses the people's sins (as is required by Deut 30:1-10; 1 Kgs 8:46-53; Jer 29:10-14). Daniel pictures a rescue in the Babylonian era that was longed for by Jews living under Antiochus IV and his arrogant ways.

9:1 Darius, who was Ahasuerus' son: The Persian names are for vividness and local color; they don't aim for historical precision. Darius is the character we met in Daniel 5:31-6:1. According to the book of Daniel, Darius defeated Babylon (the Chaldean kingdom), fulfilling God's promise in Jeremiah 25:12. Daniel could now hope that a return from exile would soon begin (cf. Jer 29:10).

9:20-27 In the 500s BCE, Judah's exiles had no need of a complex interpretation of Jeremiah's "seventy years." A

So now understand this word and grasp the meaning of this vision! <sup>24</sup>Seventy weeks are appointed for your people and for your holy city to complete the rebellion, to end sins, to cover over wrongdoing, to bring eternal righteousness, to seal up prophetic vision, and to anoint the most holy place.

plain understanding was adequate (see 2 Chron 36:22-23; Zech 1:12; 7:5). Bands of exiles did in fact return to Jerusalem, and finished rebuilding the temple by 519 BCE, about 70 years after the Babylonians destroyed it (587 BCE). But during Greek times and afterwards, people increasingly saw the achievements of 519 BCE as disappointing and incomplete. Daniel 9:20-27 uses verses from Jeremiah and other OT books in a new combination that reveals the true, final end of exile on earth (see discussion of interpretive wisdom in the intro.; see sidebar, “Apocalypse” at Dan 3).

9:22 A confused Daniel (Dan 8:27; 12:8) receives understanding here and in Daniel 10:1. According to Daniel 12:10, wise readers and hearers will similarly find understanding. Apocalyptic revelations don’t allow people to predict the details of history, but they do give a clear understanding of daily existence. In particular, they help readers see through the violence, lies, and greed of earthly powers (see sidebar, “Apocalypse” at Dan 3).

9:23 a word went out: the command to “restore and rebuild Jerusalem” (Dan 9:25). It came ultimately from God (Isa 55:11-12) through at least two Persian kings, Cyrus (in 538 BCE, Ezra 1:1-4) and Artaxerxes (in 458 BCE, Ezra 7:11-28). Gabriel’s interpretation of Jeremiah’s key number “seventy” may begin counting from one of these dates (see notes on Dan 9:24-27).

9:24 Seventy weeks: The Hebrew idiom is “seventy sevens.” The book of Chronicles speaks of Jeremiah’s “seventy years” as a sabbath time for the land (2 Chron 36:21; cf. Lev 26:34-39). During sabbath years the land wasn’t farmed. These land sabbaths were normally supposed to occur once every seven years (Lev 25:4). Chronicles imagines the land enjoying sabbath continuously during the exile, making up for sabbath years it didn’t get during the rule of Judah’s kings. Daniel 9 also understands the “years” of Jeremiah 25:11-12 and 29:10 as sabbath years for the land, but occurring on the regular seven-year schedule (one every “week” of years) so the 70 years become seventy weeks of years (490 years).

9:25-27 God’s rescue of the people will come in three stages, the first after seven weeks of years (9:25), the second after another sixty-two weeks of years (9:26), and the last after one additional week of years, which will be a time of crisis (9:27). Together, these weeks add up to the full 70 weeks of years. (Alternatively, some interpreters count the 62 weeks starting back at some earlier point, such as 605 BCE, the date of Daniel’s exile. See note on the phrase “an anointed one will be eliminated” in 9:26; see sidebar, “Anointed One”). Dividing history into periods like this is a common feature of apocalyptic literature

(see sidebar, “Apocalypse” at Dan 3). No one should claim to offer a single true interpretation of the 70 weeks (see Dan 8:27), but how we “do the math” makes a real difference in Daniel’s meaning for today. If we stick with what the original writers were thinking, and understand the vision only in terms of the history leading up to Antiochus IV, the results are interesting mostly to historians. But if we think of the numbers as pointing into the future, beyond the times of Daniel’s original writers, the math work becomes forward-pointing prophecy, revealing God’s plans for earth’s final destiny.

9:25-26 a leader is anointed: The book’s original writers and readers probably thought of a leader (such as Sheshbazzar, Zerubbabel, or the high priest Joshua; see Ezra 5:14; Hag 1:1) of Israel’s first return from exile in 539 BCE, which is about seven weeks of years after the temple’s destruction in 587 BCE. In this interpretation, the word that goes out (9:25) would be spoken by someone, like Jeremiah, who was alive in 587 (see Jer 30:18; 31:18). Later readers of Daniel identified the word in 9:25 with the “word” of Daniel 9:23, in which case Gabriel’s weeks start from a point such as King Artaxerxes’ decree in 458 (see note on Dan 9:23). Seven weeks [of years] from this point brings us to Nehemiah’s rebuilding of Jerusalem, and the full 70 weeks would reach far beyond the time of Daniel’s writers. Read in this way, the vision becomes prophecy not mere history.

9:26 an anointed one will be eliminated: The book’s original readers in the 160s BCE could have thought this referred to a former high priest, Onias III, who was murdered in 171 BCE (2 Macc 3:1; 4:7, 34). His murder was sixty-two weeks [of years] from the date of Daniel’s exile (605 BCE see Dan 1:1). Yet it is hard to understand why we should start counting from this early point of 605, long before the “word” to rebuild Jerusalem of Daniel 9:25 goes out. Some later readers of Daniel believe it is more straightforward to understand the 62 weeks as part of the countdown to the end of Daniel’s 70 weeks, a countdown to the end of history (see note on Dan 9:25-27). They thus understand this verse as looking far ahead to a future servant of God destined to suffer and die along the lines of Zechariah 13:7-9 and Isaiah 52:13-53:12 (see sidebar, “Anointed One at Dan 9). future leader: Same as the “small horn” in Daniel 7:8. Daniel’s first readers would have thought of Antiochus IV, who set up the “desolating monstrosity” in Jerusalem’s temple (Dan 11:31). He didn’t destroy the city, however, and later readers have interpreted the verse as a reference to the Roman general Titus (who destroyed Jerusalem in 70 CE; see note on Dan 9:27) or other candidates (see sidebar, “The Anti-Messiah” at Dan 7).

Anointed One Interpreters over the centuries have offered strikingly different understandings of Daniel 9:26, which states that an anointed one will be eliminated. Is he a real figure of history or a future, promised “anointed one” (in Heb., “messiah”)? There appears to be truth in both understandings. On the one hand, the original writers of Daniel were likely thinking of a figure of history, the high priest Onias III (see note on Dan 9:26). On the other hand, the math in the text points to a very different understanding. Why should we count from 605 BCE to arrive at the “anointed one” (see note on Dan 9:26, “an anointed one will be eliminated”) instead of from 587 BCE, as we do to get to Zerubbabel, or from 458 BCE as we do to get to Nehemiah (see the discussion in the note on Dan 9:25-26)? Shouldn’t these 62 weeks of waiting for the “anointed one” occur after the initial seven weeks of Daniel 9:25 (see note on Dan 9:26)? That is, shouldn’t the anointed one die after seven “weeks” plus 62 “weeks”? Perhaps we should look for fulfillment of 9:26 long after Onias’ time. Certainly, by the time Daniel came to be considered as part of the Jewish and Christian Bibles, readers were looking outside the bounds of ancient history for the realization of 9:26.

Some Christian readers, comfortable with the thought of a dying and rising savior, have noted that the Hebrew word for anointed one in 9:26 is “Messiah” (the Greek translation for this word is “Christ”). Counting seven “weeks” plus 62 “weeks” (approximately 483 years) from the decree of Artaxerxes in 458 BCE (see note on Dan 9:23) brings them to the time of Jesus of Nazareth. Other interpreters (both Christian and non-Christian) have thought that this math is too imaginative and speculative.

The army of a future leader will destroy the city and the sanctuary. His<sup>e</sup> end will come in a flood, but devastations will be decreed until the end of the war.<sup>f</sup> <sup>27</sup>For one week, he will make a strong covenant with many people. For a half-week, he will stop both sacrifices and offerings. In their place<sup>g</sup> will be the desolating monstrosities until the decreed destruction sweeps over the devastator.<sup>h</sup>

Vision of a man

10 In the third year of Persia’s King Cyrus, a message was revealed to Daniel, who was called Belteshazzar. The message was true: there would be a great conflict. Daniel understood the message, having discerned the meaning of the vision.

<sup>2</sup>During that time, I, Daniel, had been mourning for three weeks. <sup>3</sup>I didn’t eat any rich foods. Neither meat nor wine passed my lips, and I didn’t clean up at all until the three weeks were up. <sup>4</sup>Then, on the twenty-fourth day of the first month, as I was on the bank of the great

9:27 one week: earth’s final seven years. The book’s original readers would likely have imagined the final week as running from the death of Onias III in 171 BCE (see note on Dan 9:26) to the death of Antiochus IV. From the standpoint of later times, however, the evil ruler of the final days would need to be far later than Antiochus. Some interpreters would see Antiochus as part of the Greek “leopard” kingdom in Daniel 7:6 and the devastator as part of a later, perhaps still-future era. strong covenant: Antiochus allied with those Jews who supported Greek culture (see Dan 11:32; 1 Macc 1:11-15). Later dictators would similarly work to deceive and win over allies (cf. Mark 13:22). a half-week: a final three and a half years of terror (see Dan 7:25; 8:13-14). desolating monstrosities: Compare with Daniel 8:11-13; 11:31; 12:11. The original writers would have been thinking of actions by Antiochus IV (see 1 Macc 1:54, 59). The writer and first readers of Mark 13:14, which uses the Greek form of this phrase (translated as “disgusting and destructive thing” in the CEB), would have been thinking of the Roman emperor Caligula’s attempt to erect his statue in the temple (39–40 CE) or the destruction of the temple by Emperor Titus (70 CE). Matthew 24:15 expects a still later monstrosity, as do Revelation 13 and 2 Thessalonians 2:3-5.

10:1–12:4 A heavenly visitor gives Daniel a sweeping view of international history from the Persian period through the time of Antiochus IV and beyond to the end of days. This history is controlled by faceless powers. In it, human authorities are less like kings and more like pawns. Daniel sees that God knows this history, with all its greed, lies, and lust for power. Even leaders of God’s own people cooperate with evil to advance their own (they think) interests, but God will finally bring an end to the evil.

10:1-9 A vision of a man (probably the divine messenger Gabriel, as in Dan 8 and 9) comes to Daniel in 536 BCE, nearly 70 years after Daniel’s exile in 605 BCE (Dan 1:1). Daniel has just spent three weeks mourning over the exile and pleading with God (as in Dan 9:1-3) to end it, in line with the 70-year prediction found in Jeremiah 25:11-12; 29:10 (cf. Zech 7:5). Daniel’s fasting and prayer prepare him to receive revelation about God’s exact manner of ending the exile, now that 70 years have passed (see Dan 10:12; cf. 2 Esdr 5:20; 6:35). Daniel’s fast is probably also an act of solidarity with Jews who had returned to Jerusalem a few years earlier and were having problems there (cf. Hag 1:9-11; 2:17; Isa 58:4; 59:4; Ezra 4:5, 24).

Tigris River, <sup>5</sup>I looked up and suddenly saw a man clothed in linen in front of me. He had a brilliant gold belt around his waist, <sup>6</sup>and his body was like topaz. His face was like a flash of lightning, and his eyes were like burning torches. His arms and feet looked like polished bronze. When he spoke, it sounded like the roar of a crowd. <sup>7</sup>Only I, Daniel, saw this vision. The other people who were with me didn't see it. Despite that, they were terrified and ran away to hide.

<sup>8</sup>So I was left alone to see this great vision all by myself. All my strength left me. My energy was sapped, and I couldn't stay strong. <sup>9</sup>Then I heard the sound of the man's words. When I heard it, I fell into a trance with my face on the ground. <sup>10</sup>But then a hand touched me, lifting me up to my hands and knees.

<sup>11</sup>The man said to me, "Daniel, you are greatly treasured. Now grasp the meaning of what I'm saying to you. And stand up, because I've been sent to you."

As he said this to me, I stood up, shaking.

<sup>12</sup>Then the man said to me, "Don't be afraid, Daniel, because from the day you first set your mind to understand things and to humble yourself before your God, your words were heard. I've come because of your words! <sup>13</sup>For twenty-one days the leader of the Persian kingdom blocked my way. But then Michael, one of the highest leaders, came to help me. I left Michael there with the leader of the Persian kingdom. <sup>14</sup>But I've come to help you understand what will happen to your people in the future, because there is another vision concerning that time."

<sup>15</sup>While he said this to me, I turned my face to the ground and kept quiet. <sup>16</sup>But then someone who looked like a human being<sup>1</sup> touched my lips. Then I opened my mouth and spoke, saying to the person standing in front of me: "My lord, the vision bothered me deeply, and I couldn't stay strong during it. <sup>17</sup>So how can I, my lord's servant, speak with you, my lord? Even now there's no strength in me, and I can barely breathe."

<sup>18</sup>The one who looked like a human being touched me again and gave me strength. <sup>19</sup>He said, "Don't be afraid. You are greatly treasured. All will be well with you. Be strong!"

As he spoke to me, I suddenly felt strong. Then I said: "My lord can go on, because you've made me strong."

<sup>20</sup>Then he said: "Do you know why I have come to you? Now I must go back to fight the leader of Persia. As I leave, the leader of Greece will come! <sup>21</sup>But I will tell you what is written in the Scroll of Truth. No one stands strong with me against these leaders except your leader Michael.

A vast empire divided

11 In the first year of Darius the Mede's rule, I took my stand to strengthen and protect him.<sup>2</sup> <sup>2</sup>I will now tell you the truth. Persia will have three more kings, but the fourth

10:5 linen: Worn by priests and, as here, divine messengers (cf. Dan 12:6; Ezek 9:2, 11; 10:2, 6, 7).

10:6 roar: Compare with Ezekiel 1:24.

10:10–11:1 Although Daniel feels overwhelmed (Dan 10:8–9, 15–17), the visitor has him stand up (cf. Dan 8:18; Ezek 2:1) and tells him that he is treasured by the Most High (10:11, 18–19; cf. Dan 9:23). The divine messenger says that although he set out on the day Daniel began mourning and fasting (10:13, cf. Dan 10:2), he was delayed by a struggle with an enemy leader (who was apparently operating in the divine realm; 10:13, cf. 10:20). He was delayed until Michael, one of the highest leaders of the messenger-princes, came to take over the battle. Like the beasts and monsters of Daniel 7 and 8, the divine messenger-princes of Persia (10:13) and Greece (10:20) are the dark powers behind the claims and conquests of human empires (see sidebar, "Apocalypse" at Dan 3). The writers of Daniel want us to know that such empires are mistaken in believing that their actions are purely rational, practical, and self-chosen.

10:13 leader of the Persian kingdom: Since the story is set in the Persian era (Dan 10:1), it is Persia's messenger-prince who tries to stop the messenger, but the greater powers of heaven are involved, limiting what the Persians can do to God's people. Michael: a warrior messenger or angel also mentioned in the Dead Sea Scrolls and early Christian writings (e.g., Rev 12:7).

10:14 another vision: in addition to those in Daniel 7–9. The details begin in Daniel 11:2.

10:20–21 Once the visitor delivers his message (in Dan 11), he will return to his struggle with the messenger-prince of Persia. After that, there will be a battle with the messenger-prince of Greece, the next empire in the series as it is shown in Daniel 2; 7–8 (e.g., Dan 8:20–25). your leader: Michael is the special messenger-prince who protects God's people (see Dan 10:13 and note; 12:1).

11:1 The I speaking here is Daniel's visitor (probably Gabriel; see note on Dan 10:1–9), but who is the him? If Gabriel still speaks of Michael (see Dan 10:21), he is affirming that he has supported the chief messenger-prince since will be richer than all of them. Once he has become strong through his great riches, he will disturb everyone, including the Greek kingdom. <sup>3</sup>Then a warrior-king will come forward, ruling over a vast empire and doing whatever he wants. <sup>4</sup>But even as he takes control, his kingdom will be broken, divided to the four winds of heaven. It won't pass to his descendants. No one will rule like he did because his kingdom will be uprooted. It will belong to others, not to these.

South and north

<sup>7</sup>A branch from her roots will rise up in his place. Attacking the army, he will enter the walled fortress of the northern king. He will fight with them, and he will conquer. <sup>8</sup>He will even carry off their gods to Egypt, along with their statues and their silver and gold equipment. For years he will avoid the northern king. <sup>9</sup>Then the northern king will attack the kingdom of the southern king, but will return to his own land. <sup>10</sup>His sons will get ready for war, gathering massive forces. Their attack will be like an overwhelming flood. And they will attack again, taking the battle as far as his walled fortress.

<sup>11</sup>The southern king, in a bitter rage, will come out to battle the northern king. He will muster a huge army, but the army will be handed over to his enemy. <sup>12</sup>When the army is carried off, he will become confident. He will kill tens of thousands, but he will not stand strong.

the start of Darius' reign. If the him refers to Darius, however, Gabriel implies that heaven had a part in the king's order that the exiles could return to Jerusalem (see note on Dan 5:31).

11:2-45 Gabriel now begins a detailed review of Greek history, an account that takes up half of Daniel 10:1-12:4. The history mirrors an ongoing battle in heaven between Michael (on Israel's side) and the messenger-princes of the Greek kingdoms. The first section (11:2-20) focuses on the battle between kings descended from Alexander's general Ptolemy (in Egypt, south) and kings descended from Alexander's general Seleucus (in Syria, north). The second section (11:21-35) tells about the actions of Antiochus IV Epiphanes. The third (11:36-45) describes Antiochus' fuller incarnation in an end-time anti-messiah (see sidebar, "The Anti-Messiah" at Dan 7). These verses look to the vision of the end times in Ezekiel 38-39 for their inspiration, not to the events of Greek history.

11:2-4 The Persian Empire will give way to the vast empire of Alexander the Great. After Alexander's death, his four generals will divide his empire among themselves (cf. Dan 8:22), leaving no part for Alexander's descendants.

11:2 three more kings: The authors may mean merely "a few," since they are not trying to preserve the details of Persian history (see notes on Dan 5:31; 7:8; 9:1). the fourth: perhaps Xerxes I (known in the books of Ezra and Esther as Ahasuerus; 486-464 BCE), who was wealthy and invaded Greece, or Artaxerxes II, who bribed Greeks to war against each other.

11:3 warrior-king: Alexander the Great (336-323 BCE; cf. Dan 8:5, 21).

11:5-20 The vision of history now shifts to the struggles and wars between the Ptolemies (in Egypt, south) and the Seleucids (with their capital in Syria, north), two of the four kingdoms that arose out of Alexander's empire (cf. Dan 8:8, 22). At first, the south seems stronger, but eventually the north gains control of Judea.

11:5 Alexander's general Ptolemy I (323-285 BCE), the southern king, establishes the Ptolemaic kingdom in Egypt and Palestine, while one of his princes, Seleucus I (311-280 BCE), eventually takes over an even greater kingdom to the north (in Babylonia, Syria, and Media).

11:6 they: The kings of the south and the north, now Ptolemy II (285-246 BCE) and Antiochus II (262-246 BCE). an agreement: In approximately 250 BCE, Ptolemy II, seeking peace, sends his daughter to be the second wife of Antiochus II (Seleucus' grandson). But Antiochus' first wife poisons her husband, has the second wife killed, and installs her own son, Seleucus II, as king. the one who fathered her: Some ancient texts read "her child," that is, the second wife's infant son, who was also killed.

11:7-8 A branch: Ptolemy III (246-221 BCE), brother of the murdered woman (see note on Dan 11:6). He invades the Seleucid kingdom in 246 BCE and takes revenge for her death.

11:9 Seleucus II, the son of Antiochus II's first wife (see note on Dan 11:6), responds by trying to invade Egypt in 242 BCE, but loses much of his army.

11:10 The sons of Seleucus II were Seleucus III (227-223 BCE) and Antiochus III ("the Great," 223-187 BCE). They build up their army and begin a series of seesaw struggles with the Ptolemies ending with Antiochus' victory over Egypt in 200 BCE (Dan 11:15-16).

11:11 Taking his place as the new southern king, Ptolemy IV (221-204 BCE) defeats Antiochus III in 217 BCE. He: the northern king, Antiochus III.

11:12 After his victory, Ptolemy orders a slaughter, but he doesn't take advantage of his victory, and Antiochus soon wins back the lost territories. Ptolemy IV dies in 205 BCE.

<sup>13</sup>The northern king will then muster another army—this one bigger than the first. After some years have passed, he will attack with a large and well-equipped army. <sup>14</sup>In those times, many will oppose the southern king. Violent persons from among your people also will rise up to support the vision, but they will fail.

<sup>15</sup>When the northern king attacks, he will throw up a siege ramp and occupy a walled city. The southern forces will not be able to resist—not even its elite forces. No one will be strong enough to resist. <sup>16</sup>The one who comes to attack will do whatever he wants; no one will be able to oppose him. He will take his place in the beautiful country, and he will hand out destruction. <sup>17</sup>He will decide to occupy his entire kingdom by force. He will make an agreement with him and will give him a wife, intending to destroy him,<sup>18</sup> but it won't succeed and it won't happen.<sup>1</sup> <sup>18</sup>He will turn his face to the coastlands, capturing many people. A commander will put an end to his disgrace,<sup>20</sup> even though he won't repay that disgrace. <sup>19</sup>Then he will turn his attention to the walled fortresses of his own country but will stumble, fall, and disappear.

<sup>20</sup>In his place one will arise who will send his agent to exact a kingdom's glory, but in a few days he will be broken, though not by anger and not by war. <sup>21</sup>A worthless person will arise in his place. Royal majesty will not have been given to him, but he will come in a time of security and seize the kingdom by deceitful means. <sup>22</sup>Forces will be completely swept away and broken before him. The same is true for the leader of the covenant. <sup>23</sup>From the moment they make an agreement with him, he will act deceitfully. He will gain power at the expense of a small nation. <sup>24</sup>He will come into a province's richest places untroubled and will do what his fathers and grandfathers never could. He will hand out plunder, spoil, and wealth to them. He will make plans against fortresses, but only for a time.

11:13-16 Antiochus III (the Great) musters an enormous army and attacks Ptolemy V. many will oppose: Ptolemy V is only six when he becomes king; groups in Egypt and its conquered territories take advantage of the opportunity to revolt. Violent persons: likely Jewish supporters of the Seleucids (see Dan 11:30, 32). In 200 BCE, Antiochus defeats Egypt's army at Paneas (a walled city, northeast of the Sea of Galilee) and lays siege to the city (11:15). elite forces: Greek mercenary soldiers hired by Egypt. After his victories, Antiochus makes Judea (the beautiful country) part of the Seleucid Empire (11:16). Judea remains under Seleucid control until Maccabean forces stage a successful rebellion (see Dan 11:32-35 and note). In 165 BCE they rededicate the Jerusalem temple (1 Macc 4:36-61; 2 Macc 10:1-9).

11:17-20 Antiochus III ends his war with Ptolemy V and gives him his daughter in marriage (11:17). destroy him: He hoped his daughter would promote Seleucid interests within Ptolemy's court (she did not). Still ambitious, Antiochus captures lands along the Mediterranean coast (196-191 BCE) and tries to invade Greece (11:18). A Roman commander eventually stops Antiochus (190 BCE). put an end to his disgrace: The bully ends up bullied; the commander, Lucius Cornelius Scipio, stops Antiochus' bold and violent behavior (his disgrace). he won't repay that disgrace: The disgraced Antiochus is unable to hit back. Soon after this, Antiochus dies (11:19). His son Seleucus IV takes his place. Burdened with money problems, the new king sends an agent named Heliodorus to rob the Jerusalem temple (11:20). broken: According to 2 Maccabees 3:24-26, a horseman and soldiers from God appear to stop Heliodorus; Seleucus IV's reign is short and minor.

11:21-35 This section of the vision brings us up to the time of Daniel's authors. The Seleucid throne is now held by Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175-164 BCE), the terrible dictator ("small horn") of Daniel 8:9-12, 23-25 (cf. 1 Macc 1:10). He calls himself "Antiochus Epiphanes" ("Epiphanes" means "God made visible"; cf. Dan 8:25), but some call him "Epimanes" ("madman"). The original readers and hearers of the book of Daniel knew this man's terror firsthand.

11:21 The throne should have gone to his nephew, (Demetrius I), but Antiochus IV successfully plots to get it for himself.

11:22-24 leader of the covenant: Perhaps the high priest Onias III (see note on Dan 9:26; 2 Macc 4:34-35). deceitfully: Antiochus IV usually double-crosses his allies. small nation: Perhaps Pergamum (in what is now Turkey), whose support Antiochus used to gain power; or perhaps Judea, which Antiochus soon plunders. hand out: Unlike earlier Seleucid rulers, Antiochus gives away plunder to win local people's loyalty (he wins over Judea's pro-Greek Jews that way). a time: As bad as things will become, God will soon stop it all.

11:25-28 Antiochus IV invades Egypt in 170 BCE, but pulls back a year later. Those who eat: Egyptian advisors, who give bad counsel to their very young king, Ptolemy VI. telling lies: Antiochus and Ptolemy become allies to try to control Egypt, but probably neither one means to honor the agreement. set time: God has already decided when and how to put an end to the evil (cf. Dan 8:19; 10:14; 11:35). On his way back to Syria, Antiochus raids the temple in Jerusalem to get funds (see 1 Macc 1:20; 2 Macc 5:11-21). against a holy covenant: a reference to grabbing the temple's valuables.

<sup>27</sup>“These two kings, with their minds set on evil, will sit at one table, telling lies, but with no success because the end will come at the set time. <sup>28</sup>He will return to his country with great wealth and set his mind against a holy covenant. He will do what he wants and then return to his country. <sup>29</sup>At the set time he will again battle against the south, but the second time will be different from the first. <sup>30</sup>Kittim ships will fight against him, and he will retreat in fear. He will rage against a holy covenant and will do what he wants. Then he will pay special attention to those who violate a holy covenant. <sup>31</sup>His forces will come and make the sanctuary fortress impure. They will stop the daily sacrifice and set up a desolating monstrosity. <sup>32</sup>By deceitful means he will corrupt those who violate a covenant, but the people who acknowledge their God will stand strong and will act.

An end to the arrogant king

<sup>36</sup>“The king will do whatever he wants. He will exalt himself, making himself greater than any god. He will say unbelievable things against the God of gods. He will succeed until the doom is completed, because what is decreed must take place. <sup>37</sup>He will give no thought to the gods of his fathers, nor to the god cherished by women. He will give no thought to any god, because he will make himself greater than all of them. <sup>38</sup>In their place, he will worship a god of walled fortresses. With gold and silver, rare stones and precious things, he will worship a god his fathers did not acknowledge. <sup>39</sup>He will deal with walled fortresses with the help of a foreign god. He will heap rewards on those who support him, making them rule over many and dividing up the land for a price. <sup>40</sup>At the end time, the southern king will attack him. The northern king will storm against him with chariots and horses and many ships. He will 11:29-31 Antiochus IV attacks Egypt again in 168 BCE. The Romans force him to pull back. Furious at the defeat, Antiochus attacks Jerusalem again (cf. Dan 11:28) in 168–167 BCE. In December 167 BCE he puts a pagan altar on top of the Jerusalem temple altar (Dan 11:31; cf. Dan 8:11-13; 9:27; 12:11; 1 Macc 1:54).

11:30 Kittim: The term originally referred to people from Citium, in Cyprus, but came to be used as a general term for western peoples. Here it refers specifically to the Romans. In later times the Romans, who took control of the Greek kingdoms, came to be thought of as the book of Daniel’s final evil kingdom (cf. Dan 2:36-45; 7:7-8 and notes). This designation of Rome has been the interpretation of classic Jewish writers from Josephus to Rashi to Malbim.

11:32-35 The book of Daniel calls for faithful, nonviolent resistance in times of severe trial (on the model of Isaiah’s suffering servant, Isa 52–53), rather than armed rebellion. Up against evil and chaos, the faithful will sometimes suffer badly. Such suffering, these verses proclaim, is far from meaningless. those who violate: Jews who adopt the Greek way of life and take sides with Antiochus. teachers: The Hebrew term echoes Isaiah’s language about the suffering servant (Isa 52:13). The teachers would include the authors of Daniel (cf. Dan 1:4; 12:3, 10). help many: Compare with Isaiah 53:11, which says the servant “will make many righteous.” a little help . . . deceitful plans: a reference to the Maccabean rebellion (see 1 and 2 Macc). The Maccabees shared many goals with Daniel’s authors, but they chose military action rather than nonviolent resistance. The apocalyptic imagination, by contrast, resists empire by proclaiming a radical new vision of reality that turns the values of empire upside down (see sidebar, “Apocalypse” at Dan 3).

11:36-45 The end of Daniel 11 shows how prophetic texts can squeeze history’s timeline and merge parallel events. This section, which draws heavily on the middle part of Isaiah, Joel, and Ezekiel 38–39, points at some of the offenses of Antiochus IV, but can also be read as pointing to an end-time anti-messiah (see notes on Dan 7:7-8; 9:26-27; see sidebar, “The Anti-Messiah” at Dan 7). The final evil ruler described here breaks with even his own ancient traditions (11:38), which wasn’t true of Antiochus. Antiochus also didn’t die in Judea (Antiochus died in 165 BCE during a campaign in Persia). The writers of Daniel (who didn’t yet know how Antiochus would die) may have had Antiochus in mind, but by the time the book of Daniel came to be considered holy scripture, people knew that when Antiochus died, evil didn’t disappear from the world, and the dead didn’t rise out of their graves (Dan 12:2). Yet they continued to read Daniel, not because it spoke of what was by then past history, but because it could, like Ezekiel 38:21-22; 39:4-5, be read for the promise that God will defeat evil in an end time, still to come.

11:36 whatever he wants: Compare with Daniel 8:4; 11:3, 16. A ruler who thinks this way will soon fall. say unbelievable things: Compare with Daniel 7:8, 20, 25. doom: The same word is translated as “rage” in Daniel 11:30. Here it refers to the wrath of God, an echo of the scene in Ezekiel 38:18-19.

11:37 god cherished by women: Tammuz/Adonis, the god of vegetation, popular among women (cf. Ezek 8:14).

11:40-43 A great force of evil from the north sweeps down into the holy land, as described in Ezekiel 38–39 and Joel 2:1-11. with chariots and horses: Compare with Ezekiel 38:4. Libyans and Cushites: Compare with Ezekiel 38:5 (in which the term “Put” is sometimes translated “Libya”).

invade countries, sweeping over them like a flood. <sup>41</sup>He will invade the beautiful country, and tens of thousands will die. But Edom, Moab, and the best of the Ammonites will escape from his hand. <sup>42</sup>He will extend his power into other countries. Even Egypt won't escape. <sup>43</sup>He will take control of Egypt's hidden treasures of gold, silver, and all its precious things. Libyans and Cushites will follow at his feet. <sup>44</sup>But reports from the east and north will alarm him, and in a great rage he will set off to devastate and destroy many. <sup>45</sup>He will pitch his royal tents between the sea and the beautiful holy mountain. But he will come to his end, and no one will help him.

Eternal life or eternal disgrace

12“At that time, Michael the great leader who guards your people will take his stand. It will be a difficult time—nothing like it has ever happened since nations first appeared. But at that time every one of your people who is found written in the scroll will be rescued. <sup>2</sup>Many of those who sleep in the dusty land<sup>a</sup> will wake up—some to eternal life, others to shame and eternal disgrace. <sup>3</sup>Those skilled in wisdom<sup>b</sup> will shine like the sky. Those who lead many to righteousness will shine like the stars forever and always. <sup>4</sup>But you, Daniel, must keep these words secret! Seal the scroll until the end time! Many will stray far, but knowledge will increase.”

Waiting for the end time

<sup>5</sup>I, Daniel, looked and suddenly saw two other figures—one standing on each side of the stream. <sup>6</sup>One said to the man clothed in white linen, who was farther upstream: “When will these astonishing things be over?”

Resurrection The term wake up in Daniel 12:2 suggests that God will raise the dead, complete with their bodies, to renewed, living, breathing life on earth. This idea isn't new in Daniel. Other Jewish books even older than Daniel speak of future resurrection, or at least resuscitation. More significantly, Israel was long familiar with the idea that God can bring the dead back to life (e.g., 1 Kgs 17:17-24; 2 Kgs 4:8-37; 13:21; Hos 6:2; Ezek 37; Isa 53:9-10). Isaiah 26:19 speaks of dead corpses rising. The prophet isn't merely using a figure of speech. Rather, the phrase “your dead” refers to deceased members of the family of Israel. Verses such as Hosea 13:14 understand God to be capable of destroying death itself. Isaiah 25:8 declares that death, well known for being hungry and never getting full (cf. Isa 5:14; Hab 2:5), will get its paycheck and then some. Death is going to be swallowed up for all time. Daniel 12 further develops these biblical hopes and prophecies into the statement, in so many words, that God will forever release death's prisoners.

<sup>a</sup>Or earthy soil or dust of the earth    <sup>b</sup>See 1:4; or The teachers; see 11:33, 35; also in 12:10.

11:45 between the sea: the Mediterranean Sea, since the Hebrew uses a plural form conveying the idea of the high seas (cf. Gen 49:13; Ps 46:3; Deut 33:19). The location where the anti-messiah comes to his end matches Ezekiel 39:11 and Gog's final end “east of the sea,” that is, between the high seas and the holy mountain of Jerusalem.

12:1-4 A great rescue follows the events of Daniel 11:36-45, bringing Daniel's hope-filled visions to a climax. The world will endure never-before-seen troubles, but the great angel-prince Michael will step in. Every person written in God's book will find rescue from the trouble.

12:1 Michael: See note on Daniel 10:13. take his stand: Michael gets directly involved, defending and fighting for Israel (cf. Joel 3:16). the scroll: The idea that God has a written record book also appears in Daniel 7:10; Exodus 32:32-33; Psalm 69:28; Isaiah 4:3.

12:2 God's saving plan to defeat all evil powers on earth includes conquering death (cf. Isa 25:8; 26:19). With death destroyed, God can unite the faithful of all eras. This resurrection faith has earlier biblical roots (see sidebar, “Resurrection” at Dan 12). Many: While this is often interpreted to mean that only some of the dead will be raised, it is actually a biblical way of speaking about an uncountable many, that is, about the great multitude, all. The meaning is that everyone written in the scroll of Daniel 12:1 will wake up to enjoy eternal life. In the same way, the term “many” in Isaiah 2:3 refers to all the nations (see Isa 2:2). God's servant in Isaiah 53:11-12 acts on behalf of all who need the servant (see Isa 53:6); and in Mark 10:45 and 14:24, Jesus gives his life for all (see 1 Tim 2:6). those who sleep: the dead. dusty land: a poetic image, based on a Mesopotamian idea that the spirits of the dead go to a land of dust, where dust is all there is to eat and drink.

12:3 skilled in wisdom: Daniel's group, the “teachers” of Daniel 11:33, 35 (see note there). to righteousness: The “teachers” (Daniel's writers) fulfill the role of the servant in Isaiah 53:11. Their suffering changes people, puts them on the right path. stars: Compare with Isaiah 52:13, “lifted very high.”

12:4 knowledge: a gift of the suffering servant (see Isa 53:11; cf. Dan 1:4).

12:5-13 A concluding section gives numbers related to the times remaining until the end.

12:5-6 stream . . . linen: The scene remains the same as at Daniel 10:4-5.

<sup>7</sup>I heard the man clothed in white linen, who was farther upstream, swear by the one who lives forever as he raised both hands to heaven: "For one set time, two set times, and half a set time. When the breaking of the holy people's power is over, all these things will be over."

<sup>8</sup>I heard it, but I didn't understand it. "My lord," I said, "what will happen after all this?"

<sup>9</sup>He said, "Get going now, Daniel, because these words must remain secret and sealed up until the end time. <sup>10</sup>Many will purify, cleanse, and refine themselves, but the wicked will act wickedly. None of the wicked will understand, but those skilled in wisdom will understand.

<sup>11</sup>There will be one thousand two hundred ninety days from the time the daily sacrifice is stopped to the setting up of the desolating monstrosity. <sup>12</sup>Happy is the one who waits and reaches one thousand three hundred thirty-five days. <sup>13</sup>Now as for you, go on to the end. You will rest and will stand to receive your reward at the end of days.

12:7 raised both hands: a gesture when making a solemn pledge (Deut 32:40). On the three and a half times until the end, see Daniel 7:25; 9:27 and note.

12:10 those skilled in wisdom: See note on Daniel 12:3. will understand: See note on Daniel 9:22.

12:11-12 from the time . . . to the setting up: Probably to be understood as the time from both of these events until the end (see Dan 9:27). How do the numbers 1,290 days (12:11) and 1,335 days (12:12) relate to each other? Each is approximately three and a half years; that is, each number amounts to one-half of earth's final "week" of years (see Dan 9:27). A common view is that Daniel's writers revised their predictions of the arrival of the end when it didn't come on schedule (which is why the numbers keep getting larger, starting with the 1,150 days in Dan 8:14).

Another possibility, however, is that earth's last full "week," that is, its last seven years (Dan 9:27), begins with a quiet "half week" of 1,335 days (12:12) and ends with an awful, shorter "half week" of 1,290 days (12:11). This interpretation has the advantage of not leaving readers wondering why editors allowed Daniel to end in contradictory numbers. Adding 1,335 (12:12) and 1,290 (12:11) produces 2,625, which is a highly symbolic figure: 70 days more than seven (solar) years. It would be a number symbolizing history's absolute fulfillment and perhaps also an indication that the exact timing of the fulfillment is never sure. God just might keep adding 70s on to the end of history, until God finally brings the complete end.

12:13 rest . . . stand: Die and be resurrected; compare with Daniel 12:2.

HOSEA

Hosea is the first of the Minor Prophets, a collection of 12 shorter works (see Sir 49:10) that could be kept on a single scroll. This collection is also known as the Book of the Twelve. Hosea's themes set the tone for much of what follows in the books of the Minor Prophets.

Most of the book addresses Israel (in the north), with shorter but important parts addressing Judah (in the south) (see map 9). The book was likely put together and circulated in Judah after the fall of Samaria in 722 BCE. Its heading (Hos 1:1) places the book during the reigns of four kings of Judah and one from Israel in the 8th century BCE. The Israelite king is Jeroboam II, Joash's son (2 Kgs 14:23-29), who was a contemporary of King Uzziah in Judah and died midcentury. Several changes in kingship occurred after his death, including armed conflict and murders (2 Kgs 15:1-31).

The second half of the 8th century BCE was a period of huge change in the eastern Mediterranean. The region's inhabitants were confronted by the rising power of Assyria, a fierce nation from northern Mesopotamia (northern Iraq today). Assyrian influence had been around for more than a century, but it took a gloomy turn with the rule of Tiglath-pileser III (745-727 BCE) and his successors. Israel and Judah were forced to pay tribute to Assyria. Israel was overrun in the years 734-732 BCE, with two-thirds of its territory taken by the Assyrians (2 Kgs 15:17-31). About 10 years later the Assyrian army surrounded and took over Israel's capital city, Samaria (2 Kgs 17:1-23), bringing Israel to a political end. During the military campaigns, the Assyrians forced thousands of Israelites to leave their property and settle elsewhere, outside of Israel. Hosea sees all of this as God's judgment on or discipline of Israel because of its misdeeds. During this time Judah managed to survive, but under Assyrian control (2 Kgs 16:1-20).

The three major sections of book show a thematic arrangement (see outline). Each begins with judgment language and concludes with prophecies of restoration. As with many of the books that make up the Minor Prophets, the language of judgment occurs more often than the language of hope.

The book is composed mostly in poetic language that includes literary devices like puns (plays on words) and similes and metaphors (comparing two unlike things so that one of them is better understood). These literary devices mark Hosea's distinctive style. An example of a pun is the claim in Hosea 4:8 that priests "feed on the sin of my people." The Hebrew words for "sin" and "sin offering" are very similar. The priests were eating parts of the animal sacrifices brought for sin offerings, and they were also practicing the sinful activities of the people. Hosea uses poetic language to compare Israel to such things as a "dove" (Hos 7:11), "trained cow" (Hos 10:11), and "morning cloud" (Hos 6:4). And God is a "lion" (Hos 5:14), "dew" (Hos 14:5), and "green cypress tree" (Hos 14:8).

Hosea understands Israel to be God's family. This is a primary metaphor that informs much of the prophet's thinking. His marriage to Gomer is like the covenant relationship God made with Israel (Hos 1:2; 2:2-20). His relationship with his children is like the one God has with Israel (Hos 1:4-9; 11:1). He describes his wife and children as prostitutes and makes the same charge against Israel (Hos 9:1). The charge may be literal on occasion, but at its root is another metaphor, a way to speak of Israel's failure in a profoundly personal way. Israel has failed God, who saved them from slavery and made them God's family. They worshipped other gods (Baal, Baals; Hos 2:8, 13) and engaged in political deals (Hos 7:8-13; 8:8-10)—behavior that's like adultery or prostitution (Hos 3:1; 5:3-4; 6:10). (The Hebrew word Baal means "owner" or "master" and was used to refer to several different Canaanite gods or deities.)

Hosea makes several references to prior historical events and stories about Israel's ancestors. He refers to Jacob's struggling with God's messenger (Hos 12:4; Gen 32), the rescue of Israel from Egypt (Hos 11:1; Exod 1-15), the people wandering in the wilderness (Hos 13:5; Num 11-20), and the sin with the Canaanite deity at Baal-peor (Hos 9:10; Num 25). Some references to other events are less clear for today's readers. For example, Israel is charged with sinning "since the days of Gibeah" (Hos 10:9). This could refer to the sad rule of Saul, who was from Gibeah (1 Sam 10:26), or to a terrible affair there during the time of the judges (Judg 19-20), or to an otherwise unrecorded event.

The dramatic opening to the book may be understood in various ways. Some readers, finding it unsettling that God would command marriage to a prostitute, conclude the account is best understood as a parable of Israel's failure. Other readers see the commands to marry and have children as real, and they interpret them as symbolic acts intended to show Israel its faithfulness to God. In this way, Hosea's marriage is like Isaiah's public nudity (Isa 20:1-4) or Ezekiel lying on his side for over a year (Ezek 4:4-8). These are acts that shock observers to make a point. The symbolic naming of children also has a parallel with the prophet Isaiah (Isa 8:1-4). Another way to understand Hosea is to see the account as retrospective. Hosea married Gomer in good faith. Their marriage later dissolved because of her infidelity. Looking back on his circumstances, Hosea saw God at work and used his painful experience to teach Israel about its infidelity toward God.

Hosea uses the language of passion and emotion to depict God's love of Israel and God's strong reaction to the people's failures. In one of the great passages of the Bible, God reveals a wounded heart over Israel's failure (Hos 11:1-9). God wants to restore the family and keep it safe from harmful activities, even while pointing out the consequences of those activities.

1 The LORD's word that came to Hosea, Beerī's son, in the days of Judah's Kings Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, and in the days of Israel's King Jeroboam, Joash's son.

God commands Hosea to marry

<sup>2</sup>When the LORD first spoke through Hosea, the LORD said to him, "Go, marry a prostitute and have children of prostitution, for the people of the land commit great prostitution by deserting the LORD." <sup>3</sup>So Hosea went and took Gomer, Diblaim's daughter, and she became pregnant and bore him a son. <sup>4</sup>The LORD said to him, "Name him Jezreel; for in a little while I will punish the house of Jehu for the blood of Jezreel, and I will destroy the kingdom of the house of Israel. <sup>5</sup>On that day I will break the bow of Israel in the Jezreel Valley." <sup>6</sup>Gomer became pregnant again and gave birth to a daughter. Then the LORD said to Hosea, "Name her No Compassion, because I will no longer have compassion on the house of Israel or forgive them. <sup>7</sup>But I will have compassion on the house of Judah. I, the LORD their God, will save them; I will not save them by bow, or by sword, or by war, or by horses, or by horsemen." <sup>8</sup>When Gomer finished nursing No Compassion, she became pregnant and gave birth to a son. <sup>9</sup>Then the LORD said, "Name him Not My People because you are not my people, and I am not your God."<sup>a</sup>

Hope for the future

<sup>10b</sup>Yet the number of the people of Israel will be like the sand of the sea, which can be neither measured nor numbered; and in the place where it was said to them, "You are not my people," it will be said to them, "Children of the living God." <sup>11</sup>The people of Judah and the people of Israel will be gathered together, and they will choose one head. They will become fruitful in the land.<sup>c</sup> The day will be a wonderful one for Jezreel.

Proclamation of wrongdoing

2<sup>a</sup>Say to your brother, My People, and to your sister, Compassion:

<sup>2</sup>Level a charge against your mother; plead with her!

She is not my wife, and I am not her husband.

Let her remove prostitution from her presence, and adultery from between her breasts,

1:1 This introduction places Hosea's work in the second half of the 8th century BCE (see intro.; Isa 1:1).

1:2-3:5 Hosea's wife and three children are used as a metaphor to portray Israel as God's family. The comparison of Gomer to Israel is more developed in this section than the comparison of the children to Israel.

1:2-9 Each of the children has a symbolic name representing a part of Israel's identity. Gomer's name isn't symbolic, but she also represents Israel as God's disobedient covenant people. Hosea presents God as distressed by the repeated failures of the people.

1:2 prostitution: used primarily as a metaphor for Israel's infidelity toward God (see intro.; Hos 12:1). Gomer may have been a prostitute, or she may have been involved in a form of fertility rite associated with the worship of Baal, a Canaanite deity.

1:4 Jezreel, meaning "God sows," is a place-name for a fertile valley (Hos 1:5) in Israel where roads crossed and battles were fought. Jeroboam II was a descendant of Jehu, an army officer who took over Israel a century earlier in a bloody fight (2 Kgs 9:1-10:36). The house of Jehu came to an end six months after Jeroboam's death (2 Kgs 15:8-12).

1:6 No Compassion: The daughter's name illustrates God's intent toward Israel at this historical moment. It's unclear whether No Compassion and her younger brother are Hosea's biological children. The first child, a son, was born to him (Hos 1:3). This isn't said of the next two.

1:7 Judah escaped the destruction that brought Israel to a political end. Some interpreters think this comment about Judah was added to give an update about Hosea's prediction. Judah wasn't taken by force when Israel (and Samaria, its capital) fell to the Assyrians in 734-722 BCE, but Judah came under Assyrian control. The setting for Judah's deliverance isn't named, but it could refer to the Assyrian failure to take Jerusalem during Hezekiah's reign (2 Kgs 18:13-19:37).

1:9 Not My People: The son's name has a similar function to that of his sister's. Israel's failures have brought it to a moment of judgment and separation from God.

1:10-11 These two verses indicate a future reversal of the historical judgment on Israel. The reference to the sand of the sea follows the promise of future blessing given to Israel's ancestors (Gen 22:17). The judgments associated with Not My People and Jezreel will be overcome. Judah and Israel will be reunited as a people (see Jer 31:1-6, 31-34; Ezek 37:15-28).

2:1-13 The prophet tells the children to accuse their mother of prostitution and adultery, and to point out the consequences of her failure.

2:1 This may be a comment that reverses the negative names in Hosea 1:6; 1:9, continuing the good news of Hosea 1:10-11, or it can be understood as the opening to the next passage.

2:2 not my wife: may indicate that Hosea formally divorced Gomer or that their marriage came to a crisis or separation.

- <sup>3</sup> or else I will strip her naked and expose her as on the day she was born.
I will make her like a desert, and turn her into a dry land,
and make her die of thirst.
- <sup>4</sup> I will also have no compassion on her children because they are children of prostitution.
- <sup>5</sup> Their mother has played the prostitute;
she who conceived them has behaved shamefully.
She said, "I will seek out my lovers;
they give me my bread and my water, my wool and my linen cloth, my oil and my drink."

2:5 Jer 44:17;

Divine correction

- <sup>6</sup> Therefore, I will line her path with thorns; and I will build a wall against her, so that she can't find her paths.
- <sup>7</sup> She will go after her lovers, but she won't catch up with them;
she will seek them,
but she won't find them.
Then she will say,
"I will return to my first husband, for I had it better then than now."
- <sup>8</sup> She didn't know that I gave her the corn, the new wine, and the fresh oil, and that I gave her much silver, and gold that they used for Baal.
- <sup>9</sup> So now I will take back my corn in its time, and my wine in its season;
and I will take away my wool and my linen cloth, which were to cover her nakedness.
- <sup>10</sup> Now I will uncover her nakedness in plain view of her lovers, and no one will rescue her from me.
- <sup>11</sup> I will end all her religious celebrations, her festivals, her new moons, her Sabbath days, and all her sacred seasons.
- <sup>12</sup> I will destroy her vines and her fig trees, of which she said,
"These are my pay, which my lovers have given to me."
I will change them into a forest, and the wild animals will eat them.
- <sup>13</sup> I will punish her for the days dedicated to the Baals, when she offered sweet-smelling sacrifices to them and dressed herself up with rings and jewelry, and went after her lovers,
and forgot me, says the LORD.

Promises: restoration and covenant love

- <sup>14</sup> Therefore, I will charm her, and bring her into the desert, and speak tenderly to her heart.
- <sup>15</sup> From there I will give her vineyards, and make the Achor Valley a door of hope.
There she will respond to me as in the days of her youth, like the time when she came out of the land of Egypt.

2:3-4 The coming punishment focuses on the people and land of Israel.

2:5 Gomer's lovers are the Canaanite gods that Israel thinks have given them good products. Note the references to Baal (Hos 2:8) and Baals (Hos 2:13). Israel sought security by making deals with Assyria and other nations. These nations, too, are called "lovers" (Hos 8:8-10).

2:7 first husband: For Israel, God was their first husband, who delivered them out of Egypt and entered into a covenant with them. Israel's proposed return to God isn't a serious thought but more an act of desperation.

2:8-13 Israel's failures will be exposed and judged. The various deities in the land won't save Israel.

2:14-23 God will reverse the finality of judgment in Hosea 2:2-13. The future will bring blessing and intimacy for Israel. The pattern is the same as in the first chapter. God is the distressed husband who will speak to Israel's heart, bring them into the wilderness as in a former time, and initiate a covenant with them.

2:15 Achor Valley: Achor means "trouble" or "calamity." Earlier in this valley Israel sinned and experienced judgment (Josh 7:26). In the future the place will represent hope.

I will do away with the bow, the sword, and war from the land; I will make you lie down in safety.

<sup>19</sup>I will take you for my wife forever;

I will take you for my wife in righteousness and in justice, in devoted love, and in mercy.

<sup>20</sup>I will take you for my wife in faithfulness; and you will know the LORD.

<sup>21</sup>On that day I will answer, says the LORD.

I will answer the heavens and they will answer the earth.

<sup>22</sup>The earth will answer the corn, the new wine, and the fresh oil, and they will answer Jezreel;

<sup>23</sup>I will sow him for myself in the land;
and I will have compassion on No Compassion, and I will say to Not My People, "You are my people";
and he will say, "You are my God."

The lesson of infidelity

3Then the LORD said to me again, "Go, make love to a woman who has a lover and is involved in adultery, just as the LORD loves the people of Israel, though they turn to other gods and love raisin cakes." <sup>2</sup>So I bought her for fifteen pieces of silver, a large amount of barley, and a portion of wine. <sup>3</sup>I said to her, "You must stay with me for many days; you won't act like a prostitute; you won't have sex with a man, nor I with you." <sup>4</sup>Similarly, the Israelites will remain many days without king or prince, without sacrifice or sacred standing stone, without a priestly vest or household divine images. <sup>5</sup>Afterward the Israelites will return and seek the LORD their God and David their king; they will come trembling to the LORD and to the LORD's goodness in the latter days.

*LXX

2:16 My husband . . . My Lord: a pun for Hosea's audience. The word "Lord" is translated from the Hebrew word Baal. Israel had called God "Baal" and treated him as one of the local gods (the "Baals" in Hos 2:17).

2:18-20 The renewal of covenant is like a renewal of marriage. It's something the Lord proposes and promises to carry through.

2:19 take you for my wife: This simple phrase was like a wedding promise in ancient Israel. The Lord graciously promises to provide bridal gifts that allow life to flourish. righteousness . . . justice . . . devoted love, and . . . mercy are characteristics of the Lord that the Lord intends for the life of God's people.

2:21-23 The names of all three children are reversed as the Lord brings blessing to the land and people. The Lord begins a reaction that moves from heaven to the earth, so that the land is fruitful and the people can live in peace.

3:1-5 In a different way, this chapter replays the story of adultery and restoration (see Hos 1-2). Hosea's marriage is compared to God's love for Israel. Gomer isn't named, but she's likely the woman whom Hosea is commanded to love in spite of her adultery. A first-person report ("me" and "I") marks the account. A time of separation and discipline for the woman is described after Hosea marries her.

3:1 raisin cakes: Such baked goods were used in celebrations (2 Sam 6:19) and sometimes in the worship of other deities (Jer 44:19). Raisin cakes also have erotic connotations (Song 2:5).

3:2 I bought her: Debts were the primary reason for slavery in the ancient Near East. Apparently the woman (Gomer) was in debt or otherwise obligated to someone. Hosea paid to settle accounts and gain her freedom.

3:3-4 There would be a time for Hosea and Gomer to adjust after their separation. Not all aspects of married life would come back immediately. The same would be true for Israel's relationship with God. The effects of judgment meant that the people would do without aspects of their religious activities. Some of these, such as a standing stone and household divine images, had harmed them and shouldn't be used again. Others, such as political leaders and priests, would come again.

3:5 The verse has two key expressions concerning time and leadership. The expression latter days is used by prophets to speak of a future time when God transforms the circumstances of the people. It's similar to the phrase "On that day" used in Hosea 2:16, 18, 21. The expression David their king refers to one of David's descendants (see Isa 55:3-5; Jer 33:14-26; Ezek 37:15-28).

Israel's sins and coming punishment

- 4 Hear the LORD's word, people of Israel; for the LORD has a dispute with the inhabitants of the land.
There's no faithful love or loyalty, and no knowledge of God in the land.
- 2 Swearing, lying, murder, together with stealing and adultery are common;
bloody crime followed by bloody crime.
- 3 Therefore, the earth itself becomes sick, and all who live on it grow weak;
together with the wild animals and the birds in the sky, even the fish of the sea are dying.
- 4 Yet let no one protest, and let no one complain.

Hosea and the Book of the Twelve Hosea is the first and longest book in the Jewish collection called the Book of the Twelve and sometimes known as the Minor Prophets. Hosea may have been placed at the head of the other books because it was considered the earliest of the twelve. The prophet's ministry, like that of Amos and Micah, happened during the great Assyrian threat to Israel and Judah in the second half of the 8th century BCE. He saw God using Assyria to judge and to discipline a faithless Israel. The book is a theological response to the crisis Israel faced at that time, the first crisis in a series that the Book of the Twelve addressed. It set a tone for much of what followed in the collection, as well as in the books of Deuteronomy through 2 Kings, because of Hosea's emphasis on God's covenant with Israel. Hosea expects the people to live according to covenant standards. Hosea depicts Israel as God's family, with God committed to the people through the discipline of historical judgment and the promise of continued love afterward.

4:1-10 This passage is a transition to the second major section of the book. It contains no direct references to Gomer or to Hosea's children. The prophet accuses the people and the priesthood of failing God.
4:1-3 Hosea's picture of God and Israel in dispute shows the consequences of their dispute on everything, including the land. The first charge is that Israel lacks important things for its common life. The second charge is that Israel hasn't rejected activities it should have rejected; for example, the actions the prophet names are similar to those forbidden in the Ten Commandments (Deut 5:8-21).
4:1 The phrase knowledge of God includes both those experiences that come from right relationship with God and faithfulness toward God's covenant instructions. In Hosea 4:6 Hosea notes that God's people are destroyed for lack of knowledge (see Hos 8:1). Note the similarity between the gifts God will bring to make Israel whole in Hosea 2:19-20 and the actions listed in Hosea 4:1.

4:3 The three categories of life-forms—animals, birds, and fish—are also listed in Genesis 1:26. Israel's moral and spiritual sickness affects all inhabitants and the land itself.
4:4-10 The prophet's criticism of a priest is God's criticism of the priesthood. Priests should instruct the people appropriately about the knowledge of God and ways to approach God in worship and daily life. Instead, they have rejected the knowledge of God, and their lives show it.
4:8 Hosea plays on two different meanings of the phrase feed on the sin of my people. The Hebrew word for "sin" and that for "sin offering" are similar. The priests ate the meat from the sin offering. The charge is that they fed on the sins of the people by following people's wrongdoings.

because they have rejected the LORD

Description of Israel's Idolatry

- Wine and new wine destroy understanding.
<sup>12</sup>My people take advice from a piece of wood, and their divining rod gives them predictions.
A spirit of prostitution has led them astray;
they have left God to follow other gods.
<sup>13</sup>They offer sacrifices on mountaintops, and make entirely burned offerings on hills;
they offer sacrifices under various green trees, because their shade is pleasant.
Therefore, your daughters act like prostitutes, and your daughters-in-law commit adultery.
<sup>14</sup>I will not punish your daughters because they act like prostitutes, nor your daughters-in-law because they commit adultery;
for the men themselves visit prostitutes, and offer sacrifices with consecrated workers at temples;
so now the people without sense must come to ruin.
<sup>15</sup>Israel, even though you act like a prostitute, don't let Judah become guilty.
Don't enter into Gilgal, or go up to Beth-aven, and don't swear, "As the LORD lives."
Now the LORD will tend them,¶ as the LORD tends a lamb in a pasture.
<sup>17</sup>Ephraim is associated with idols—let him alone!
<sup>18</sup>Though they have stopped drinking, they continue to behave like prostitutes;
indeed, they "love"; shame is their pride.
<sup>19</sup>The wind has wrapped her in its wings;
they will be ashamed of their sacrifices.

Judgment on Israel and Judah

- 5 Hear this, priests!
Pay attention, house of Israel!
Listen, house of the king!
The judgment concerns you because you have been a trap at Mizpah, and a net spread out upon Tabor.

4:9-10 God promises to take the priests' misdeeds seriously and punish them. Having sex like prostitutes may be a literal charge of immorality. It may also be a metaphor for misdeeds that won't result in bearing children, that is, fruit or success.

4:11-19 Israel's sin is described as idolatry: the worship of images and objects, and the practice of false rituals.

4:12 spirit of prostitution: continues the metaphor of prostitution used to portray the worship of other gods and related bad practices that infected Israel (cf. Hos 5:3-4).

4:13 mountaintops and hills were locations of altars and shrines dedicated to various deities and blamed for Israel's and Judah's idolatry (see 2 Kgs 12:3; 14:4; 2 Chron 20:33).

4:14 consecrated workers: The consecrated workers at the shrines are probably not having sex with female or male prostitutes in hopes of bringing about fertility for families, crops, and flocks. (For other examples of consecrated workers see Gen 38:21; Deut 23:17; 1 Kgs 14:24.) But Hosea is condemning sex for hire. Note also the reference in Hosea 4:18 to behaving "like prostitutes."

4:15-16 A plea that Judah (the southern nation) not fall into the same trap as Israel (the northern nation).

4:15 Gilgal and Beth-aven are also places with shrines. The worship of the Lord in these places was mixed with practices from other religious beliefs and practices (see Hos 9:15; 10:5, 8; 12:11; Amos 4:3; 5:5, 8).

5:1-6:3 The prophet continues his criticisms of Israel and Judah, and he expresses hope that they will come to their senses after experiencing judgment.

5:1 The leaders are warned of coming judgment that will for now Ephraim you have acted like a prostitute; Israel is defiled.

<sup>4</sup>Their deeds don't allow them to return to their God, because the spirit of prostitution is within them, and they don't know the LORD.

<sup>5</sup>Israel's pride is a witness against him;

both Israel and Ephraim stagger because of their guilt;
Judah staggers with them.

<sup>6</sup>With their sheep and their cattle they will go to seek the LORD, but they will not find him;

he has withdrawn from them.

<sup>7</sup>They have acted faithlessly against the LORD;

for their children have produced illegitimate children.

Now the new moon will devour them<sup>a</sup> along with their fields.

blow a trumpet in Ramah.

Sound the warning at Beth-aven:

"Look behind you, Benjamin!"

<sup>9</sup>Ephraim will become a horrible place on the Judgment Day.

Against the tribes of Israel I will certainly announce what is to take place.

I will pour out my anger like water upon them.

<sup>11</sup>Ephraim is under pressure from its enemies;

Ephraim's rights aren't protected.

This is because Ephraim chose to pursue worthless things.

<sup>12</sup>Therefore, I am like a moth to Ephraim, and like decay to the house of Judah.

then Ephraim went to Assyria, and Ephraim sent for the great king.

But he could not heal them;

nor could he cure their wound.

strike the nation. Mizpah and Tabor are small cities in Israel. There's no information elsewhere about the problems in them.

5:3 Ephraim is a large tribe in the center of Israel. The capital city of Samaria was located in Ephraim. The name is used here as a parallel term to "Israel" (see also Hos 5:5, 9, 11-14).

5:5 Judah is also involved in Israel's corrupt activities (see Hos 5:10, 13-14).

5:6-7 seek the Lord: This phrase usually refers to people coming to worship the Lord at a temple or public place. Hosea says the people's deeds (Hos 5:4) have caused a break with the Lord. Now the Lord has withdrawn from them. new moon: A month in Israel was measured by the cycles of the moon, and a new moon was a day marked by celebration (Isa 1:14). Hosea sees the near future as a time of judgment.

5:8-10 The horn and trumpet are instruments used to call people to attention and warn them of a coming threat. Hosea names settlements and tribes facing judgment. The prophet may be referring to one of several times when the Assyrian army was in the region or to one of Israel's internal struggles when a king was killed (2 Kgs 15:1-31). For a time there was also fighting between Israel and Judah (2 Kgs 16:5; Isa 7:1-17).

5:12 Hosea boldly compares God's judgment to a moth and decay, natural forces that ruin clothes and food.

5:13 Assyria: Its great king isn't named. He was probably Tiglath-pileser III (2 Kgs 15:29; 16:10), but he could have been Shalmaneser V (2 Kgs 17:3). Hosea elsewhere charges Israel with playing a dangerous game by appealing to "Assyria" (Hos 8:9). Assyria can't heal what ails Israel. Only God can do that (Hos 7:1).

5:14 lion: Hosea changes from similes of decay and sickness to similes of God as a lion. The image emphasizes the fierceness and strength of the coming judgment (cf. Hos 13:7-8). It's also wordplay on the popular use of lion imagery in Assyrian cultures. Some Assyrian kings had portraits in their palaces depicting themselves hunting lions.

Judah, what will I do with you?

when I would improve the circumstances of my people.

the evil acts of Ephraim are exposed, and the wicked deeds of Samaria;
for they deceive and steal,
a thief breaks in; a group of bandits raid outside.

2 But they don't consider within their hearts that I remember all their wickedness.

Now their deeds show who they are, right in front of my face.

6:1-3 The prophet describes a time after judgment when the people will come to their senses and seek forgiveness and a new relationship with the Lord.

6:2 The prophet uses the language of reviving to convey that in a short time the Lord will revive the people. There's a sense in which they were dead because of their failures (Hos 13:1; see Eph 2:1 for a Christian analogy).

6:3 The prophet uses the language of spring rains to speak of God's appearing. These rains bring new crops from the dead fields of winter.

6:4-7:10 This section continues the charges against Israel for its infidelity toward God.

6:4 Hosea uses questions elsewhere as well (Hos 11:8; 13:14). Israel's climate can have clouds in the morning and dew during the summer months. They disappear early on warm days (see Hos 13:3).

6:5 God used prophets to warn Israel and announce God's judgment on its disobedience.

6:6 This proverbial statement summarizes the positive element in prophetic preaching and emphasizes a basic element of a covenant community. It isn't a rejection of sacrifice and worship (see Hos 2:19-20; 4:1; Matt 9:13; 12:7).

6:7 Adam may refer to the first man and his failure (Gen 2-3) or to a city (see translation note) in the Jordan Valley (Josh 3:16) where some treachery occurred.

6:8-7:2 These verses detail the wrongdoings of the nation. Murder and robbery show the bad condition of Israel's society.

- <sup>4</sup>They all act like adulterers; they are like a heated oven, whose baker doesn't need to stoke the fire, from the kneading of the dough until it is leavened.
- <sup>5</sup>On the day of our king,
the officials became sick with the heat of wine;
he stretched out his hand to those who mocked him.
- <sup>6</sup>They approach like a hot oven, their hearts burning.
Throughout the night, their anger smolders;
in the morning, it continues to burn like a flaming fire.
- <sup>7</sup>All of them are hot as an oven; they devour their rulers.
All their kings have fallen; none of them call upon me.
- <sup>8</sup>Ephraim mixes himself among the people;
Ephraim is like flatbread that is cooked on only one side.
- <sup>9</sup>Strangers have eaten up his strength, yet he doesn't know it;
gray hairs are sprinkled here and there upon him, yet he doesn't know it.
- <sup>10</sup>Israel's pride is a witness against him;
yet they don't return to the LORD their God, or seek him because of all this.

Foolishness and God's wrath

- <sup>11</sup>Ephraim has become like a dove, silly and without common sense;
they call upon Egypt; they go to Assyria.
- <sup>12</sup>As they go, I will spread my net over them;
like birds in the sky, I will bring them down;
I will judge them according to the report made to their assembly.
- <sup>13</sup>Doom to them, for they have strayed from me; destruction will be their lot because they have rebelled against me.
I would redeem them, but they speak lies against me.
- <sup>14</sup>They don't cry to me from the heart, but they sob upon their beds;
they fight<sup>1</sup> over grain and wine; they resist me.
- <sup>15</sup>It was I who gave them their strength, yet they plot evil against me.
- <sup>16</sup>They return, but not to the Most High;<sup>h</sup> they have become like a worthless bow; their officials will fall by the sword because of the rage of their tongues; in Egypt they will make fun of them.<sup>1</sup>

Divine proclamation about Israel's idolatry

- 8 Put a trumpet to your lips!
It's as if a bird of prey has flown over the LORD's house, because they have broken my covenant, and have not kept my Instruction.
- <sup>2</sup>Israel cries to me, "My God, we know you!"

7:3-7 Hosea describes plots and deception regarding Israel's government. Several plots and murders took place in the decades following the death of Jeroboam II (see intro).
7:8 Hosea's reference to flatbread that is cooked on only one side is another one of his metaphors. It follows his description of affairs that are hot as an oven. Israel isn't in good condition, hot on one side and uncooked on the other.
7:11-16 Judgment on foolish people is inevitable because of wrongdoings and hope misplaced in sources other than God.
7:11-12 dove... net: Israel is compared to a dove, which is easy to catch when a trap is baited with grain. Israel plays a dangerous game in going back and forth between Egypt and Assyria for help and security (Hos 12:1).

7:14-15 Israel didn't use the right ways to call on God. Their actions betray them.
7:16 Another one of Hosea's similes compares Israel to a worthless bow, one unable to perform its essential task.
8:1-7 idols lead to Israel's failure, the announced charges and judgment against Israel.
8:1 my covenant: likely refers to the covenant made with the people at Mount Sinai after the exodus out of Egypt. This covenant is summarized in the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:2-17; Deut 5:6-21).

<sup>4</sup> They set up kings, but not through me; they chose princes, but without my knowledge.
 With silver and gold they crafted idols for their own destruction.
<sup>5</sup> Your calf is rejected, Samaria.
 My anger burns against them.
 How long will they remain guilty?
<sup>6</sup> The calf is from Israel, a person made it; it is not God.
 The calf of Samaria will be smashed.
<sup>7</sup> Because they sow the wind, they will get the whirlwind.
 Standing grain, but no fresh growth; it will yield no meal;
 if it were to yield, strangers would devour it.

Bargains, apostasy, and coming punishment

- <sup>8</sup> Israel is swallowed up;
 among the nations, they are now like a useless jar.
<sup>9</sup> They have gone up to Assyria, a wild ass wandering alone;
 Ephraim has hired lovers.
<sup>10</sup> Though they have bargained with the nations, I will now gather them up.
 They will soon be diminished due to the burden of kings and princes.
<sup>11</sup> When Ephraim added more altars to take away sin, they became altars to him for sinning.
<sup>12</sup> Even though I write out for him a large number of my instructions, they are regarded as strange.
<sup>13</sup> Though they offer choice sacrifices,<sup>m</sup> though they eat flesh, the LORD doesn't accept them.
 Now he will remember their wickedness and punish their sins;
 they will return to Egypt.
<sup>14</sup> Israel has forgotten his maker, and built palaces; and Judah has multiplied walled cities;
 but I will send a fire upon his cities, and it will devour his fortresses.

Arrival of divine judgment

- 9 Don't rejoice, Israel!
 Don't celebrate as other nations do;
 for as whores you have gone away from your God.
 You have loved a prostitute's pay on all threshing floors of grain.

8:3 good: When Israel turns away from God's instruction, they reject what is good for themselves and for their relationship with God. An enemy, probably Assyria, will bring them harm (see intro.).

8:4 They set up kings: Political plotting and murder occurred in the years after the death of Jeroboam II (see intro.). Hosea indicates that at least some of the political successions were against the will of God (Hos 13:10-11). This doesn't mean, however, that God opposed kingship in Israel.

8:5-6 calf of Samaria: The calf may have been located in Samaria, or in a temple elsewhere (see Hos 10:5). The calf or bull was a symbol of a deity in the ancient world. For Israel to construct one as an image of God broke the covenant God made with them (Exod 20:4-6; 32; 1 Kgs 12:25-30).

8:7 Hosea uses a proverbial saying about sowing and harvesting to say that what Israel has sown with its infidelity toward God will result in judgment. For the positive formulation, see Hosea 10:12.

8:8-14 Israel attempted to gain security by offering deals with other countries but failed to respond to God's instruction.

8:9 The phrase hired lovers goes with the criticism elsewhere that a "spirit of prostitution" (Hos 5:4) was among the people.

8:11-13 More altars led to more sinning for rebellious Israel. The phrase return to Egypt may refer literally to a return to Egypt, but it may also refer figuratively to a return to slavery-like conditions (see Hos 9:3, 6; 11:5). Egypt was one of the countries Israel appealed to for security (Hos 7:11; 12:1).

8:14 forgotten his maker: Israel hasn't taken God's will into account. The judgment of fire on cities is coming. This sounds like the punishment announced by Amos, Hosea's contemporary (Amos 1:14; 2:5; 4:6).

9:1-17 The tragic consequences of Israel's failure are presented. The days of punishment have arrived, and Israel's negative view of the prophets blinds Israel to the consequences.

Such sacrifices will be like food for those who touch the dead;
all who eat of it will be unclean;
their bread will be for their hunger alone;
it will not come to the LORD's house.

Tragic consequences

- <sup>8</sup>The prophet is God's watchman looking over Ephraim, yet a hunter's trap is set, covering all his ways, and rejection is in his God's house.
- <sup>9</sup>They have corrupted themselves terribly as in the days of Gibeah;
he will remember their wickedness;
he will punish their sins.

- <sup>11</sup>Ephraim's glory will fly away like a bird—

- <sup>12</sup>Though they bring up children, I will make them childless until no one is left.
Doom to them indeed when I leave them!

- <sup>14</sup>Give them, LORD—what will you give them?

9:3 won't remain in the land of the LORD: Israel lived in the land promised to their ancestors. The coming punishment means that some will be forced to live in places outside of that land, like Egypt and Assyria.

9:4-5 those who touch the dead: Contact with a corpse rendered persons unclean, and they needed to undergo purification before reentering public life (Num 19:11-20). Hosea compares life and worship outside of Israel to the unclean status of those in contact with the dead.

9:7 prophet is a fool: Many in Israel thought prophets and their activities were strange. Hosea charged Israel with having no sense of their sad state and broken relationship with God (Hos 7:11-13).

9:8 The prophet is God's watchman: A prophet's job was either to warn Israel of judgment to come or to announce its coming (Hos 6:5; cf. Jer 28:8-9; Ezek 3:16).

9:9 Hosea uses the phrase days of Gibeah elsewhere (Hos 10:9). It may refer to terrible events during the period of the judges (Judg 19:10-20:48); some failures of King Saul, who was from Gibeah (1 Sam 10:26; 15:34); or to something known to the prophet's audience but not to today's readers.

9:10 the wilderness: Hosea reminds his listeners of their history. He compares God's preserving of Israel in the wilderness to the delight of finding grapes there. He also recalls the sin of an earlier generation at Baal-peor, a place named for a Canaanite god (Num 25:1-18).

9:12-14 Israel's disobedience will result in the loss of

Even though they give birth, I will put to death their much-loved little ones.

they will wander among the nations.

The folly of Israel's idolatry

- 10 Israel is a growing vine that yields its fruit.
The more his fruit increased, the more altars he built;
the richer his land became, the more he set up sacred standing stones.
<sup>2</sup> Their heart is false; now they must bear their guilt.
The LORD will break down their altars and destroy their standing stones.
<sup>3</sup> For now they will say:
"We have no king, because we don't love the LORD.
What then could a king do for us?"
<sup>4</sup> They have spoken empty words, swearing falsely when making covenants; so judgment springs up like poisonous weeds in the furrows of the field.
<sup>5</sup> The inhabitants of Samaria shake because of the calf of Beth-aven.
Its people will mourn over it, just as its idolatrous priests who rejoiced over its glory that is now gone.

Shame and punishment

- <sup>6</sup> To Assyria it will be carried as a gift for the great king.
Ephraim will be put to shame;
Israel will be ashamed of his own idol.
<sup>7</sup> Samaria will be cut off; her king is like a chip of wood on the surface of the water.
<sup>8</sup> The sin of Israel, the shrines of Aven will be torn down.
Thorn and thistle will sprout up on their altars.
They will say to the mountains, "Cover us," to the hills, "Fall on us."
<sup>9</sup> Since the days of Gibeah, you have sinned, Israel;
there they have continued.
Will not war overtake them in Gibeah?
<sup>10</sup> I will come and punish them; nations will be gathered against them when they are punished for their double crime.

present and future generations. Hosea uses the formula no birth... no conception to talk about that loss.

9:15 Israel entered the promised land at Gilgal, near the Jordan River (Josh 4–5). Israel may have violated its relationship with God at an outdoor shrine there, so God will drive Israel from my house. The word "house" usually refers to a temple, but here it may refer to Israel and its land (Hos 9:3) as God's household.

9:17 they will wander among the nations: Israel's punishment for violating the relationship is God's rejection of them. The rejection will lead to Israel's wandering and mixing among peoples and nations, and seeking security among them (Hos 7:8–11).

10:1–15 Israel's folly is exposed and its punishment once again made clear. Hosea uses various metaphors to show the link between the charges against Israel and the announced judgment.

10:1 Israel's fruitfulness is compared to a vine. But the more fruitful it became, the more it grew away from its purpose to serve the Lord.

10:3 Hosea quotes Israel to show its folly, without a king and without a worry. The Lord was their divine king, and they had rebelled against his rule.

10:4 Israel spoke empty words in making solemn promises (covenants), and the result is like poisonous weeds in a field.

10:5 Beth-aven ("house of sin") is probably a play on the name Bethel ("house of God"), where a temple was located (Amos 7:10–15). See Hosea 10:8.

10:6 Hosea also uses great king in Hosea 5:13. It was a title adopted by the Assyrian king.

10:8 the shrines of Aven: probably refers to the city of Bethel. The term "aven" means "sin." See note on Hosea 10:5.

10:9 Gibeah: See note on Hosea 9:9.

Divine compassion

How can I treat you like Zeboiim?

10:11 The prophet uses the metaphor trained cow to speak about Israel. They were chosen for a purpose, but God will change that purpose.

10:12-13 Hosea refers to sowing and reaping to make a positive point about Israel's calling and a negative one about its performance (see Hos 8:7).

10:14 Shalman could refer to an earlier Assyrian king, Shalmaneser III, who campaigned in the area a century earlier, or to another enemy in the region who killed the citizens of a defeated town.

11:1-11 God's love for Israel is frustrated by the people's failures, but it will eventually prevail because of God's determination to love Israel.

11:1 The people Israel were called God's son (Exod

4:22-23). They were rescued from Egypt but went away from God (see Amos 2:6-16).

11:3-4 God's tender care brought Israel along, even though the people didn't recognize God's love for what it was.

11:5 Assyria will be their king: In about 740 BCE Israel paid tribute to Assyria. On more than one occasion after that the Assyrian army was in the region and took over portions of Israel. In 722 BCE Samaria was the last Israelite city Assyria defeated.

11:8 Admah... Zeboiim were cities near Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen 14:2). God also judged and destroyed them (Gen 19; Deut 29:23). heart winces within me: The Hebrew verb translated as "wince" is the same one used to describe

Israel's and Judah's responses

- <sup>9</sup>I won't act on the heat of my anger;
I won't return to destroy Ephraim;
for I am God and not a human being,
the holy one in your midst;
I won't come in harsh judgment.
- <sup>10</sup>They will walk after the LORD, who roars like a lion.
When he roars, his children will come trembling from the west.
- <sup>11</sup>They will come trembling like a bird, and like a dove from the land of Assyria;
and I will return them to their homes, says the LORD.
- <sup>12a</sup>Ephraim has surrounded me with lies,
the house of Israel with faithless acts;
but Judah still walks with God, and is faithful to the holy one.

God's charge against Judah

- 12<sup>r</sup>Ephraim herds the wind, and pursues the east wind all day long;
they multiply lies and violence;
they make a treaty with Assyria, and oil is carried to Egypt.
- <sup>2</sup>The LORD has a charge against Judah, and will punish Jacob according to his ways, and respond to him according to his deeds.
- <sup>3</sup>From the womb he tried to be the oldest of twin brothers;

- <sup>4</sup>He struggled with the messenger and survived;
he wept and sought his favor;

- <sup>8</sup>Ephraim has said, in all of my gain no offense has been found in me that would be sin."

the earlier "overthrow" of Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen 19:21). This time it's the movement of God's heart that results in a compassionate response. God will judge Israel but not in a final, unchangeable way.

11:9 God and not a human being: God has the freedom and capacity for compassion over judgment. This is one side of the passionate God presented by Hosea. The other is fury because of Israel's repeated failure (Hos 13:7-8).

11:11 After judgment and loss of land, God will return the people to their homes. This prophecy of hope concludes the second major section of the book (see intro.).

11:12-14:8 The book ends with another series of charges against Israel, along with prophecies that God will forgive and restore the people after judgment.

11:12-12:14 Neither Judah (in the south) nor Israel (in the north) can make its life secure apart from their relationship with God. Hosea uses the life of Jacob/Israel to teach the people (see map 7).

12:1 oil: Israel used olive oil as a gift when seeking help. The Egyptians didn't help them, and the Assyrians finally took over the land.

12:2-6 Hosea's audience could learn from Jacob's example, if they would listen. The prophet draws on traditions about Jacob, whose name was changed to Israel (see Gen 28-32). God used Jacob's difficulties to work toward future blessing. struggled with the messenger: See Genesis 32. The Hebrew verb for "struggle" is also part of the name Israel.

12:7-8 Ephraim is interested in profit, not faithfulness to God's instruction.

but he became guilty through Baal and died.
- <sup>2</sup>And now they keep on sinning;
they have made metal images, idols of silver,

I will devour them like a lion, for you didn't realize that I could help you.

12:9-14 Hosea again mentions Jacob and refers to the nation's founding story of the exodus from Egypt. live in tents: The judgment that God will bring upon Israel means that they will live in tents, as did their ancestors, rather than in the houses they have built in the promised land.

12:13 by a prophet: God used a prophet (Moses) to bring Israel out of Egypt.

12:14 Israel's judgment grows out of its own misdeeds.

13:1-14 Lists of charges continue the theme of Israel's infidelity and its consequences.

13:1 One repeated charge is idolatry. guilty through Baal and died: one of several references to a Canaanite god named Baal. The plural is also used (see Hos 2:8, 13, 17; 11:2). Worshipping gods other than the Lord brought death to the people.

13:2 idols: See Hosea 8:4-6.

13:4 there is no savior besides me: Only the Lord, who saved Israel from Egypt (Hos 11:1), is able to deliver them in their hour of trouble. No king can do it (Hos 13:10-11).

historical moment is like that of a fierce animal. This is one side of the God presented by Hosea. The other is the passion that won’t let Israel destroy itself (Hos 11:8-9).

13:12-13 Hosea compares Israel’s sin and its consequences to the difficulty and tragedy of an untimely birth. sin is kept in store: Israel’s sin isn’t compared to the child in the womb but to the timing of a birth after months of preparation. If the child doesn’t come when the birth pangs are strong and the mother is ready to deliver (the proper time of 13:13), then pain and death can result. Israel’s sinfulness is coming to a head and will result in deadly consequences.

13:14-16 The questions show God’s struggle over Israel. Israel is on the path to judgment. God won’t avert it.

13:14 Death... Grave: A portion of this verse is quoted in the NT (1 Cor 15:55), where disease and death are overcome.

14:1-3 Israel is invited to return to the Lord to ask for forgiveness. Neither Assyria nor another god can save them.

14:3 we won’t ride upon horses: Israel won’t depend on warfare and military forces for deliverance.

14:4-8 The prophet uses a metaphor to show God’s intention to love and restore Israel. I will love them freely: God’s love is a free decision and can’t be forced. The prophet compares it to sustaining dew and a green cypress tree. The

The book of Joel is placed second in the Minor Prophets, which are also called the Book of the Twelve. The first line identifies the book as a communication from the Lord to Joel, Pethuel's son. Nothing else is known about this Joel.

The historical setting for Joel's prophecies is unclear. Unlike several other prophetic books, no mention is made of major events or world powers such as Assyria or Babylon. Instead, the book speaks about Judah and Jerusalem and uses the term "Israel" to mean God's people. Joel is familiar with the priesthood and temple service in Jerusalem. Perhaps his references in Joel 2:6-8 to selling people to Greeks and Sabeans (an Arab tribe) fit best in the 5th century BCE during Persian control of the region. The reference in Joel 3:1 to those sent away from Judah and Jerusalem likely refers to the Babylonian campaigns in Judah in the early 6th century BCE and the waves of people sent into exile at that time. These data suggest that Joel was a post-exilic prophet living in Jerusalem.

As with other prophets, Joel sees the Lord at work in the circumstances of his day and beyond. He describes future events as part of the "day of the Lord" (Joel 1:15; 2:1, 11, 31; see Amos 5:18-20; Obad 15; Zeph 1:7). The phrase doesn't refer to a 24-hour period but to a decisive time in the future. Joel uses similar terms for the future such as "in those days and in that time" (Joel 3:1) and "in that day" (Joel 3:18). He tells the message that God judges nations and peoples and will ultimately deliver Judah and Jerusalem on such a "day."

A striking feature of the book is its depiction of a locust plague. The deadly effects of the locusts are used to impress readers with God's judgment in the historical process and to remind them there is more of that to come. Locusts may also symbolically refer to human threats to the well-being of Judah and Jerusalem. In either case, people of the ancient world were terrified of locust plagues, because the insects could ruin fields and crops (see Amos 4:9).

In response, Joel urges his audience to consider prayer, lament, fasting, and heartfelt return to the Lord. His plea to “tear your hearts and not your clothing” (Joel 2:13) is a classic call to the people for sincere change.

The outline of the book shows a blend of judgment and deliverance. Joel uses metaphors and symbols to describe events of the past and the future. Locusts are like a fierce nation, the bite of lions, and fire (Joel 1:6, 19-20; 2:2-7). The earth and heavens shake, with the sun, moon, and stars showing the effects of the assault (Joel 2:10; 3:15). Both heaven and earth will have signs that God is at work (Joel 2:28-31). Hills will drip with wine and flow with milk (Joel 3:18) when Judah is restored. Joel shares some words and themes with Amos and Obadiah, the two books that come after it in the order of the Minor Prophets. For example, compare Joel 3:16 with Amos 1:2 and Joel 3:19 with Obadiah’s longer description of Edom. This may mean that the three books were read alongside each other to reinforce common prophetic themes.

Song of lament

- 1 The LORD's word that came to Joel, Pethuel's son:
1 Hear this, elders;
 pay attention, everyone in the land!
 Has anything like this ever happened in your days, or in the days of your ancestors?<sup>a</sup>
2 Tell it to your children, and have your children tell their children, and their children tell their children.
3 What the cutting locust left, the swarming locust has eaten.
 What the swarming locust left, the hopping locust has eaten.
 And what the hopping locust left, the devouring locust has eaten.<sup>b</sup>
4 Wake up, you who drink too much, and weep.
 Scream over the sweet wine, all you wine drinkers, because it is snatched from your mouth;
5 because a nation, powerful and beyond number, has invaded my land.

Its teeth are like lions' teeth;
 its fangs are like those of a lioness.

- 7 It has destroyed my vines, splintered my fig trees, stripped off their bark and thrown it down;
 their branches have turned white.
8 Lament like a woman dressed in funeral clothing, one who has lost the husband of her youth.
9 The grain offering and the drink offering are gone from the LORD's temple.
 The priests and the LORD's ministers mourn.
10 The fields are devastated, the ground mourns;
 for the grain is destroyed,
 the new wine dries up,
 the olive oil fails.
11 Be shocked, you farmers;
 howl, you vinedressers,
 over the wheat and the barley, for the crops of the field are destroyed.
12 The grapevine is dried up; the fig tree withers.
 Pomegranate, palm, and apple—all the trees of the field are dried up.
 Joy fades away from the people.<sup>c</sup>

Call to mourn

- 13 Dress for a funeral and grieve, you priests; lament, ministers of the altar.
 Come, spend the night in funeral clothing, servants of my God,

1:1-12 The prophet calls attention to the terrible effects of a mighty locust plague. Joel uses the plague as a reason to call people to pray and to return to God.
 1:4 Locusts move fast in eating crops and plants. They join quick movements with strong appetites.
 1:5 you who drink too much: Those who enjoy wine will lose their drink. They will go from the delight of drink to the shock of loss.
 1:6 These images describe an overwhelming power that invades the nation. The locusts are like an army, and they eat like lions. See Joel 2:4-11.
 1:7-12 These verses list the various parts of Judah that the locusts devastate, including crops, people, and farms. There are grains for bread and fruits from trees and vines.

Joel is familiar with the agricultural produce of Judah and its importance for the life of the people.
 1:8 funeral clothing: The locusts will bring death, and the people of Judah are compared to a young widow in mourning.
 1:9 priests . . . ministers: Priests serve at the temple in Jerusalem. They "minister" before the Lord and on behalf of the people. They won't have offerings to present to the Lord, and they should mourn for themselves and for the people. See Joel 1:13.
 1:13-20 The Lord's people should gather at the temple and pray because of the terrible things to come.
 1:13-14 Joel calls for a special assembly at the temple where people and priests mourn and pray. They won't to the temple of the LORD your God, and cry out to the LORD.

Time of suffering

- 15 What a terrible day!
 The day of the LORD is near; it comes like chaos from the Almighty.<sup>d</sup>
16 Isn't the food cut off right before our eyes?
 Aren't joy and gladness also gone from our God's house?
17 The grain shrivels under the shovels;<sup>e</sup> the barns are empty.
 The granaries are in ruin because the grain has dried up.
18 How the animals groan!
 Herds of cattle are in distress because there is no pasture for them;
 even the flocks of sheep pant.

The prophet's prayer

- 19 To you, LORD, I cry, for fire has completely destroyed the pastures of the wilderness;
 and flames have burned all the trees of the field.
20 Even the field's wild animals cry to you because the streams have dried up;
 the fire has completely destroyed the meadows of the wilderness.

Announcement of alarm and peril

- 2 Blow the horn in Zion; give a shout on my holy mountain!
 Let all the people of the land tremble, for the day of the LORD is coming.
 It is near—<sup>2a</sup> a day of darkness and no light, a day of clouds and thick darkness!
 Like blackness spread out upon the mountains, a great and powerful army<sup>f</sup> comes,
 unlike any that has ever come before them, or will come after them in centuries ahead.
<sup>3</sup> In front of them a fire consumes;
 and behind them a flame burns.
 Land ahead of them is like Eden's garden, but they leave behind them a barren wasteland;
 nothing escapes them.
<sup>4</sup> They resemble horses, and like warhorses they charge,

have the grain and drink offerings from the fields, so they should cry out to the Lord. This follows up the thought expressed in Joel 1:9.

1:15 day of the LORD: Chaos is coming to the land, and it is the Lord's work. The "day" is a decisive moment or time.

1:17-18 grain . . . animals: The lack of grain affects animals as well as people. Sheep and goats graze on the stubble in grainfields after harvest. Now they will have less to eat.

1:19-20 fire: The destruction by fire may refer to wildfires that can break out when fields are stripped of their crops.

It could be a metaphor and refer to what the locusts eat (see Joel 2:3-5).

2:1-11 These verses describe in detail the locust destruction coming on the day of the Lord. They use various images to show the effects of the locust.

2:1 horn: A horn signals a public alarm. Here it alerts the nation to the coming of the day of the Lord (see Hos 5:8).

2:2 clouds and thick darkness: main features of the day of the Lord. Amos 5:18-20 describes judgment to come on the day of the Lord in similar language.

2:3 Eden's garden: the fruitful land of Judah. But destruction!

- They leap on the mountaintops—like the crackling of a fire's flame, devouring the stubble;
like a powerful army ready for battle.
- <sup>6</sup>In their presence, peoples shake with fear;
all faces turn red with worry.
- <sup>7</sup>Like warriors they charge;
like soldiers they climb the wall.
Each keeps to their own path;
they didn't change their course.
- <sup>8</sup>They don't crowd each other;
each keeps to their own path.
Even if they fall among the weapons,
they won't stop.
- <sup>9</sup>They rush upon the city; they run upon the walls.
They climb into the houses; they enter through the windows like thieves.
- <sup>10</sup>The earth quakes before them;
the heavens shake.
The sun and the moon are darkened;
the stars have stopped shining,
- <sup>11</sup>because the LORD utters his voice at the head of his army.
How numerous are his troops!
Mighty are those who obey his word.
The day of the LORD is great;
it stirs up great fear—who can endure it?

Change your hearts

- <sup>12</sup>Yet even now, says the LORD, return to me with all your hearts, with fasting, with weeping, and with sorrow;
- <sup>13</sup>tear your hearts and not your clothing.
Return to the LORD your God, for he is merciful and compassionate, very patient, full of faithful love, and ready to forgive.
- <sup>14</sup>Who knows whether he will have a change of heart and leave a blessing behind him, a grain offering and a drink offering for the LORD your God?
- <sup>15</sup>Blow the horn in Zion; demand a fast;
request a special assembly.

will come to it. According to Joel 3:21, Judah will again be like a garden.

2:11 the LORD utters his voice: The Lord is at the head of the invading army and speaks for it. See Joel 3:16 for a similar claim.

2:12-17 In light of the difficult circumstances, the prophet calls the people to return to the Lord in a special assembly. The priests should lead them in fasting and public worship at the temple, where all can seek a renewed relationship with the Lord.

2:12 now . . . return: There is still time to return. Sorrow and weeping come with the call. The heart represents the intentions, desires, and expectations of a person. Note the calls in Deuteronomy 6:5 and 10:12 for Israelites to love and serve the Lord with "with all your heart." Jesus understands this to be the first and greatest commandment (Matt 22:37-38).

2:13 tear your hearts: In the ancient world people would tear their clothing to show that they were sorry and wanted a change of circumstances. King Josiah tore his clothing after hearing the contents of a scroll found during temple repairs. He then led the people in a ceremony to return to the Lord (2 Kgs 22:8-23:3). Joel knows that people will show signs of sorrow such as weeping and fasting at the temple. He urges them to make sincere and lasting changes and not simply outward signs. merciful and compassionate: The Lord is ready to forgive. The prophet reminds the people of this core belief. When the Israelites failed in the wilderness and made a gold calf, judgment came upon them (Exod 32-34). Nevertheless, the Lord offered them mercy and forgiveness (Exod 34:6-7). Jonah 4:2 describes the Lord's mercy in similar terms.

Mourning Customs The Israelites, following customs from the ancient world, employed ritual forms to display their sorrow over pain and suffering, death, their return to the Lord concerning sin, or their horror at blasphemy. These ritual acts included fasting, tearing clothes, wearing rough goat hair garments, sprinkling dirt or ashes upon their heads, shaving or pulling out hair and beards, and chanting laments. For examples, see Job 1:20; Esther 4:1-3; Jonah 3:1-9; 2 Samuel 1:2; Ezra 9:3.

2:14 Forgiveness is God's free choice. Even at this late date God may still give a blessing to the distraught people, based on their heartfelt response to God.

2:15-17 Everyone should participate in the special assembly. The altar for sacrifice is in the courtyard in front of the door to the temple. The priests stand between the altar and the temple when leading worship. See Joel 2:1.

24 The threshing floors will be full of grain;
 the vats will overflow with new wine and fresh oil.
25 I will repay you for the years that the cutting locust, the swarming locust, the hopping locust,
 and the devouring locust have eaten—
 my great army, which I sent against you.
26 You will eat abundantly and be satisfied, and you will praise the name of the LORD your God, who has done wonders for you;
 and my people will never again be put to shame.

2:17 inheritance: Israel is God's family (Exod 4:22; Hos 11:1). As such, they're also God's inheritance (Deut 32:8-9).

2:18-27 Forgiveness and restoration will come. The locust plague will go away, the land will be fertile again, and God will bless the people.

2:19 disgrace: In Joel 2:17 the people cried out concerning their disgrace among the nations. The Lord will remove it from them and bring back the lost crops (Joel 1:9-13).

2:20 northern army: The locust army (see Joel 2:2, 23) will die.

2:21-22 fertile land ... animals of the field: On the Lord's behalf, the prophet speaks to the land and to the wild animals that inhabit it (see Joel 1:20). The land will be fruitful and support all who live on it.

2:23 Children of Zion: the people of Judah. Zion is another name for Jerusalem. In the ancient world, cities and land were widely spoken of as female persons. Other biblical writers speak of Jerusalem or Zion as a mother with children (Isa 49:21-22; 50:4; Ps 87:5-6; Gal 4:26-27).

2:26-27 shame: or "disgrace" (Joel 2:17, 19). It is the people's condition when they fail the Lord. Here the Lord promises to remove their shame. midst of Israel: The temple in Jerusalem was the Lord's house, representing the divine presence in the midst of Israel. People went up to Jerusalem to worship and to meet the Lord. In Joel 2:27, Joel promises that the people will again know that the Lord is in their midst (see Zeph 3:17). This is an important theme in the prophetic books. After judgment the land of Israel will be restored, and the people will know that the Lord is with them.

<sup>27</sup>You will know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the LORD your God—no other exists;
never again will my people be put to shame.

<sup>28</sup>After that I will pour out my spirit upon everyone; your sons and your daughters will prophesy, your old men will dream dreams, and your young men will see visions.

<sup>29</sup>In those days, I will also pour out my spirit on the male and female slaves.

<sup>30</sup>I will give signs in the heavens and on the earth—blood and fire and columns of smoke.
<sup>31</sup>The sun will be turned to darkness, and the moon to blood before the great and dreadful day of the LORD comes. <sup>32</sup>But everyone who calls on the LORD’s name will be saved; for on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem there will be security, as the LORD has promised; and in Jerusalem, the LORD will summon those who survive.

Judgment on the nations

3 Truly, in those days and in that time, I will bring back to Judah and Jerusalem those who were sent away. <sup>2</sup>I will gather all the nations, and I will bring them to the Jehoshaphat Valley. There I will enter into judgment with them in support of my people and my possession, Israel, which they have scattered among the nations. They have divided my land, <sup>3</sup>and have cast lots for my people. They have traded boys for prostitutes, and sold girls for wine, which they drank down. <sup>4</sup>What are you to me, Tyre and Sidon, and all the regions of Philistia? Are you paying me back for something? If you are paying me back, then in a flash I will turn your deeds back upon your own heads. <sup>5</sup>You have taken my silver and my gold, and have carried my rich treasures into your temples. <sup>6</sup>You have sold the people of Judah and Jerusalem to the Greeks, removing them far from their own border. <sup>7</sup>But now I am calling them from the places where you have sold them, and I will repay you for your deeds. <sup>8</sup>I will sell your sons and your daughters as a possession of the people of Judah, and they will sell them to the Sabaeans, to a nation far away; for the LORD has spoken.

Declaration of war

<sup>9</sup>Announce this among the nations:
Prepare a holy war, wake up the warriors;
let all the soldiers draw near, let them come up!

2:28-32 The reversal of Israel’s shame will lead to even greater things. On a decisive day the Lord’s spirit will be on young and old alike, and everyone can have the role of prophet. There will be signs in the heavens, and people will call on the name of the Lord. This passage is quoted in Acts 2:17-21 to interpret the events of Pentecost Day.

2:28-29 my spirit: In the future God’s presence is poured out on all the people. In the beginning God’s spirit moved over creation (Gen 1:2). The spirit spoke to and through prophets (Isa 42:1; 61:1-4; Ezek 2:1-2; 37:1), giving them inspiration and guidance. Eventually men and women, young and old, slave and free, will have this experience.

2:30-31 great and dreadful day: Joel refers elsewhere to decisive events as happening on the day of the Lord (Joel 1:15). Not only will people prophesy and have dreams, the heavens and earth will show signs that point to judgment and deliverance to come.

2:32 the LORD’s name: A person’s name in Hebrew culture stands for his or her identity. So it is with God’s name. The psalmist celebrates that help comes in the “name of the LORD” (Ps 124:8) and that one can “call on the LORD’s name” for deliverance and by giving thanks (Ps 116:4, 13). On the day to come people will call on the Lord’s name for salvation. The Lord will deliver those in Jerusalem and on Mount Zion, the hill in Jerusalem where the temple is located.

3:1-8 God’s future deliverance of Judah and Jerusalem also brings judgment on neighboring states and peoples. They are judged for scattering Israel among the nations and for selling them as slaves.

3:2 Jehoshaphat: means “the LORD judges.” Jehoshaphat Valley may have been the name of one of the valleys or open areas around Jerusalem, or a symbolic name for such an area. Joel mentions it again in Joel 3:12 and also a “valley of judgment” in Joel 3:14, which is probably the same place. Jewish and Christian traditions have identified the valley directly east of the Jerusalem temple mount with Jehoshaphat Valley. This is the Kidron Valley of the NT.

3:4 Tyre, Sidon, Philistia: The people of these communities on or near the Mediterranean coast were traders over land and sea. They were involved in selling Israelites into slavery. See Amos 1:6-10. deeds back upon your own heads: The evil done to God’s people will come back in kind upon those who did it. Note also the promise in Joel 3:7 that God will repay evil deeds.

3:8 Sabaeans: an Arab tribal group involved in long-distance trade, whose homeland was located in southern Arabia (modern Yemen) according to ancient Near Eastern sources. The queen of Sheba (1 Kgs 10:1-10) was from this region.

3:9-15 These verses follow up the judgment previously described for the day of the Lord. The prophet announces that judgment is coming on evildoers and that it will take place in Jerusalem.

3:9 holy war: Bringing evildoers to justice is God’s work.

Salvation for God's people

- 16 The LORD roars from Zion, and utters his voice from Jerusalem;
the heavens and the earth quake.
But the LORD is a refuge for his people,
a shelter for the people of Israel.
17 So you will know that I am the LORD your God, settle down in Zion, my holy mountain.
Jerusalem will be holy, and never again will strangers pass through it.
18 In that day
the mountains will drip sweet wine, the hills will flow with milk, and all the streambeds of Judah will flow with water;
a spring will come forth from the LORD's house and water the Shittim Valley.
19 Egypt will become desolate and Edom a desolate wilderness.
This is because of the violence done to the people of Judah, in whose land they have shed innocent blood.
20 But Judah will be inhabited forever, and Jerusalem for all generations.
21 I will forgive their bloodguilt, which I had not forgiven.
I will act on their account;
I will not pardon the guilty.

The LORD dwells in Zion.

3:10 plows... spears: Iron tools were valuable possessions in the ancient Near East. Some farmers didn't have iron weapons in addition to their tools. They went to a metalworker to heat their plows and hooks to reshape them for weapons (1 Sam 13:19-22). One did this only in exceptional circumstances. When Isaiah and Micah predict the end of human warfare, they speak of nations coming to Jerusalem for divine instruction and then beating their swords and spears into plows and pruning tools (Isa 2:2-4; Mic 4:1-4).

3:11-15 The nations will gather for judgment in Jerusalem. The exercise of judgment is like that of harvesting crops.

3:16-21 The Lord will finish the time of judgment in Jerusalem (Zion) and then will provide peace and blessing for Israel.

3:16 Biblical writers occasionally refer to the Lord as a lion. Both Joel and Amos (Amos 1:2) have the Lord roaring from Zion. refuge: Psalms often refer to the Lord as the refuge of people (Pss 5:11; 14:6). The fortifications of Jerusalem reinforced this image for God (Pss 28:8; 31:2, 4; 48:9-14; 125:1-5).

3:18-21 Joel mixes a poetic description of blessedness for Israel and Jerusalem with prophecies that God will judge Egypt and Edom for their oppression. Other prophets single out Edom for its particularly harsh treatment of God's people (Obad; Mal 1:2-5). Amos 9:13-15 predicts future blessings similar to those in Joel's conclusion. Zechariah (Zech 13:1; 14:8) and Ezekiel (Ezek 47:1-12) join Joel with prophecies of new water sources in a future Jerusalem.

AMOS

The book of Amos is the third book of the Minor Prophets, which are also called the Book of the Twelve. Its sayings and prophecies are attributed to a shepherd who lived in the middle of the 8th century BCE. The book includes poetry and a little prose, and reflects an oral style of public presentation. Readers are asked to “hear” a word (Amos 3:1; 4:1; 5:1) spoken earlier and then written by Amos or one of his followers.

The heading to the book places Amos’ work during the reigns of King Uzziah in Judah and King Jeroboam II in Israel. Both ruled for decades in the first half of the 8th century BCE. Samaria was Israel’s capital, and Jerusalem (Zion) was Judah’s. The Assyrian threat, which had been around for 100 years, was at a low point. Jeroboam’s reign was largely peaceful, but changes came soon after his death. The Assyrian threat surfaced in the second half of the century, leading to the loss of territory and eventually the fall of Israel and Samaria in 722 BCE. In various ways Assyria also took control of other states in the eastern Mediterranean, including Judah. One of the military strategies for defeating populations was forced resettlement in a foreign country. Amos refers many times to judgment in the form of removal from the land or forced resettlement. The accounts of Israel’s history in 2 Kings 15–17 tell how the Assyrians came through the land, destroying some cities and forcing people to leave their land and homes. Archaeologists have discovered portions of Assyrian records from the same time period that describe campaigns in the region. Amos says the coming threat to Israel and the region is God’s work.

There are references in the book to events that happened after the death of Jeroboam (see notes on Amos 5:15 and 6:2). And the whole tone of the book says that judgment is coming soon or has already begun. So the date given at the beginning of the book could be when Amos started his prophetic activity, but some of the prophecies in the book must have come later. His followers wrote down his prophecies in a book to explain that God had used the Assyrian onslaught to judge Israel and Judah. With the fall of Samaria to the Assyrians, Amos' followers hoped that readers would learn from this disaster and renew their relationship with God.

The basic message is that Israel (the northern kingdom) will come to an end as a nation, even though it has had a favored place in God's plan (Amos 3:1-2; 8:1-3). Amos was a stern advocate for justice and righteousness (Amos 5:24), but he found Israel full of injustice and oppression (Amos 2:6-8; 5:10-13; 8:4-6). He charged the people with hypocritical worship (Amos 4:4-5; 5:21-23) and idolatry (Amos 5:27; 5:26; 8:14). To Israel he says: "Prepare to meet your God!" (Amos 4:12). Amos means that Israel is about to encounter God through a coming act of judgment upon the nation. Although he doesn't say specifically through whom the judgment would come, it was the Assyrians, a people from northern Mesopotamia (today the northern part of Iraq). Judgment is also announced upon several of Israel's neighbors, because God is the moral judge of all history (Amos 1:3-2:5). There are repeated references to peoples and city populations being forced to leave their homes and land (Amos 1:5, 15; 4:1-3; 5:3-5; 7:17). The judgment language against Israel is so strong that some interpreters think that the brief prophecies about Israel's restoration (Amos 9:11-15) come from an editor who wanted to provide hope for later readers. Amos follows a pattern seen with other prophetic books. Although the dominant tone is that of judgment, it concludes with prophecies of hope and restoration.

Amos was from Tekoa (Amos 1:1). There is a Tekoa south of Bethlehem, which is in Judah, but some interpreters have suggested that Amos' home was a village of the same name in the Galilee region of Israel. Perhaps the priest who urges Amos to leave Israel and go to the land of Judah (Amos 7:12) knew his origins. The location of Tekoa is important for understanding Amos' background. If Amos is from Judah, then the judgment language against Israel and the references to Jerusalem (Amos 1:2) and the rebuilding of David's tent (Amos 9:11) would reflect his heritage over against that of the separate nation of Israel. In any case, the book also contains judgment against Judah (Amos 2:4-5) and Zion (Amos 6:1).

Introduction

1 These are the words of Amos, one of the shepherds of Tekoa. He perceived these things concerning Israel two years before the earthquake, in the days of Judah's King Uzziah and in the days of Israel's King Jeroboam, Joash's son.

Proclamation of divine judgment

2 He said:
 The LORD roars from Zion.
 He shouts from Jerusalem;
 the pastures of the shepherds wither,
 and the top of Carmel dries up.

A word to Damascus

3 The LORD proclaims:
 For three crimes of Damascus,
 and for four, I won't hold back the punishment,
 because they have harvested Gilead with sharp iron tools.
 4 I will send down fire on the house of Hazael;
 it will devour the palaces of Ben-hadad.
 5 I will break the fortified gates of Damascus, and eliminate the people from the Aven Valley, including the one who rules from Beth-eden;
 the people of Aram will be forced to live in Kir, says the LORD.

A word to Gaza and Ashdod

6 The LORD proclaims:
 For three crimes of Gaza,
 and for four, I won't hold back the punishment,
 because they rounded up entire communities, to hand them over to Edom.
 7 I will send down a fire on the wall of Gaza;
 it will devour Gaza's palaces.
 8 I will eliminate the people from Ashdod, the one who rules from Ashkelon.
 I will turn my hand against Ekron, and the Philistines who remain will perish, says the LORD God.

A word to Tyre

9 The LORD proclaims:
 For three crimes of Tyre,
 and for four, I won't hold back the punishment,
 because they have delivered up entire communities over to Edom, and neglected their covenantal obligations.

1:1 This heading functions like a modern book's title page, introducing the prophet and his context to later readers. The only other biographical data for Amos comes in Amos 7:12-15. Note the prophecy against Jeroboam II in Amos 7:9. earthquake: The Jordan Valley is a part of a fault line that produces periodic tremors.

1:2 Zion: another name for Jerusalem, Judah's capital. The temple built by Solomon was there and the Lord's presence is associated with it (1 Kgs 8:12-21).

1:3-2:16 Prophecies of judgment against eight city-states or nations. Some think that the list is arranged geographically, and others think it reflects the nations' relationship to Israel. (See map 9.)

1:3 three crimes... and for four: a poetic way to say that time is up and consequences for these crimes will begin. In North American societies, someone might say "Three strikes and you are out," using baseball as an analogy for activities that have come to an end.

1:3-5 Damascus: The people of Aram, sometimes called Arameans or Syrians, lived north and east of Israel. Damascus was a major city in the region. For Hazael, see 2 Kings 8:7-29; 12:17-13:25. Ben-hadad: "Hadad's son." Hadad was a chief Aramean deity, and Ben-hadad was the name of more than one Aramean king, including the son of Hazael. Beth-eden: a tribal area north of Damascus.

1:6-8 Gaza: The Philistines lived in the cities of Gaza, Ashdod, Ashkelon, and Ekron. See note on Amos 9:7. Gaza was an international trading center where the Philistines were involved in forced settlement and selling people to Edom. Ancient Gaza's ruins are a part of the modern Gaza Strip territory between Egypt and Israel.

1:9-10 Tyre: a Phoenician city-state on the Mediterranean coast to the north of Israel and a center for international trade. Its ruins are part of modern Tyre on the Lebanese coast. The city had a long history with Israel and Judah.

<sup>10</sup>So I will send a fire on the wall of Tyre;
it will devour their palaces.

A word to Edom

<sup>11</sup>The LORD proclaims:
For three crimes of Edom,
and for four, I won't hold back the punishment,
because he chased after his brother with the sword, denied all compassion, kept his anger alive, and fueled his wrath forever.

<sup>12</sup>So I will send a fire on Teman; it will devour the fortresses of Bozrah.

A word to Ammon

<sup>13</sup>The LORD proclaims:
For three crimes of the Ammonites,
and for four, I won't hold back the punishment, because they have ripped open pregnant women in Gilead in order to possess more land.

<sup>14</sup>So I will start a fire at the wall of Rabbah;
the fire will devour its palaces, with a war cry on the day of battle, with strong wind on the day of the storm.

<sup>15</sup>Then their king will be taken away, he and his officials together, says the LORD.

A word to Moab

2 The LORD proclaims:
For three crimes of Moab,
and for four, I won't hold back the punishment,
because he burned to lime the bones of the king of Edom.

<sup>2</sup>So I will send down a fire on Moab;
it will devour the palaces of Kerioth.
Moab will die in a great uproar, with a war cry, with the sound of the ram's horn.

<sup>3</sup>I will remove their judge from them and slay all their officials with him, says the LORD.

A word to Judah

<sup>4</sup>The LORD proclaims:
For three crimes of Judah,
and for four, I won't hold back the punishment,
because they have rejected the Instruction of the LORD, and haven't kept his laws.
They have been led off the right path by the same lies after which their ancestors walked.

<sup>5</sup>So I will send a fire on Judah, and it will devour the palaces of Jerusalem.

Tyre's leaders violated solemn obligations and, as did the Philistines, sold people to Edom.

1:11-12 Edom: According to Genesis 36:1-43, the descendants of Esau lived in the region of Edom, south and east of the Dead Sea. They treated Israel and Judah harshly, though they were related. Other prophets note Edom's hostility (Obad; Joel 3:19).

1:13-15 Ammonites: Ammon is the region northeast of the Dead Sea. According to Genesis 19:30-38, the Ammonites and their southern neighbors, the Moabites, are descended from Lot, Abraham's nephew. Rabbah: means "large or significant one," and refers to Ammon's capital city. Its ruins are located in modern Amman, Jordan, which takes its name from biblical Ammon.

2:1-3 Moab: See preceding note. It isn't clear what the crime was, but it may refer to desecration of a corpse.

2:4-5 Judah: It was likely Amos' home. In his day, Judah (the southern kingdom) was a separate state from Israel (the northern kingdom). Jerusalem was the capital. Judah's rejection of the Lord's Instruction is a different type of failure from those named previously. The punishment listed, however, is like that announced for the other peoples and states.

A word to Israel

- 6 The LORD proclaims:
For three crimes of Israel,
and for four, I won't hold back the punishment,
because they have sold the innocent for silver, and those in need for a pair of sandals.
- 7 They crush the head of the poor into the dust of the earth, and push the afflicted out of the way.
Father and son have intercourse with the same young woman, degrading my holy name.
- 8 They stretch out beside every altar on garments taken in loan;
in the house of their god they drink wine bought with fines they imposed.
- 9 Yet I destroyed the Amorite before them, whose height was as tall as cedar trees,
and whose strength was as strong as oak trees.
I destroyed his fruit above and his roots below.
- 10 Also I brought you up out of the land of Egypt, and led you forty years in the wilderness,
to lay claim to the land of the Amorite.
- 11 I raised up some of your children to be prophets and some of your youth to be nazirites.
Isn't this so, people of Israel? says the LORD.
- 12 But you made the nazirites drink wine, and commanded the prophets, saying, "You won't prophesy."
- 13 So now I will oppress you, just like a cart is weighed down<sup>a</sup> when it is full of harvested grain.
- 14 Fast runners will find no refuge;
the strong will lose their strength;
the mighty will be unable to save their lives.
- 15 Those who shoot the bow won't survive.
Fast runners won't escape;
those who ride horses won't save themselves.
- 16 The bravest warrior will flee away naked in that day, says the LORD.

Words of doom for Israel

- 3 Hear this word that the LORD has spoken against you, people of Israel, against the whole family that I brought out of the land of Egypt:
2 You only have I loved so deeply of all the families of the earth.
Therefore, I will punish you for all your wrongdoing.
3 Will two people walk together unless they have agreed to do so?<sup>b</sup>
4 Does a lion roar in the forest when it has no prey?
Does a young lion cry out from its den if it has caught nothing?
5 Will a bird fall into a trap on the ground when there is no bait for it?
Will a trap spring up from the ground when it has taken nothing?

<sup>a</sup>Heb uncertain <sup>b</sup>Or Will two walk together unless they have agreed?

2:6-16 Israel: The longest of the initial prophecies against nations addresses Israel. Their failures are those of injustice and immorality (2:6-8), committed against their own people and against the guidance of the Lord, who brought them out of Egyptian slavery and into a promised land (2:9-11). The Lord also provided guidance for them through nazirites (those who made solemn religious promises, see Num 6:1-21) and prophets.
3:1-6:14 Israel is dearly loved by the Lord but will be judged for its repeated failures.
3:1-2 A central passage for understanding Amos. Israel owes their existence to the Lord's choice to deliver them from Egypt (see Exod 1-15) and to enter into a covenant with them. That makes Israel different from all other nations, even though the whole earth belongs to the Lord (Exod 19:4-6). Israel will be punished precisely because they failed to respond appropriately to the Lord's loving attention.

3:3-8 A series of rhetorical questions reminds hearers that events have causes. This leads also to the conclusion that the Lord is at work in the events of the day, including those that seem unpleasant.

An enemy will surround the land; he will bring you down from your protected places, and your palaces will be robbed.

12The LORD proclaims:Just as the shepherd rescues two legs or the piece of an ear from the mouth of the lion, so will the people of Israel be rescued. ### Judgment on Israel's elite

4Hear this word, you cows of Bashan, who are on Mount Samaria, who cheat the weak,<sup>c</sup>Heb uncertain

3:6 ram's horn: When blown in public, this instrument called horn to attention and was an alarm (see Joel 2:1). If disaster falls on a city: The rhetorical question assumes that Amos' hearers would agree that the disaster came as judgment from the Lord.

3:7 his servants the prophets: God reveals God's will and purpose to the prophets who are then called to proclaim it. The fact that Amos' prophecies are now compiled in a book also means that Amos is one of the Lord's prophetic servants. In this sense Amos is a prophet, even though he denies being part of a professional guild of prophets (see Amos 7:14-15).

3:8 lion has roared: A lion's roar produces fear and self-awareness. The proper prophetic response to hearing the Lord's words is to tell them to the people, even if they cause an alarm. Note the reference to the Lord's roaring at the beginning of the book (Amos 1:2).

3:9-15 A series of short prophecies against Samaria, the capital city of Israel, and Bethel, where a prominent temple was located (see Gen 28:10-22; 1 Kgs 12:28-33). Two traditional rivals of Israel, Ashdod (Philistines) and Egypt, are called to see the turmoil and violence in Samaria. The suggestion is that the violence in Samaria is so great that even the Egyptians and the Philistines would be surprised to see it. Samaria's inhabitants were the political and economic leaders of Israel. store up violence and robbery: a way of saying they have gotten their wealth and power unjustly. In the future they will escape with very little (see Amos 6:8).

3:13 house of Jacob: Israel.

3:14 horns of the altar: Stone altars from this period often had carved raised corners known as "horns." Bethel's altars will be useless in the coming destruction. People seeking protection and begging for their lives would seize the horns of an altar (e.g., 1 Kgs 1:50-51).

3:15 houses of ivory: Archaeological finds confirm the trade of carved ivory goods and furniture inlaid with ivory during the 8th century BCE. Some carved ivory figures were discovered in the ruins of Samaria, dating from the Israelite period. Amos saw the ivory furniture and carvings as evidence for an unhealthy disparity between rich and poor in Israel.

4:1-3 Amos sarcastically announces Samaria's judgment. The wives of the capital's elite are called cows because

- <sup>2</sup>The LORD God has solemnly promised by his holiness:
The days are surely coming upon you,
when they will take you away with hooks, even the last one of you with fishhooks.
<sup>3</sup>You will go out through the broken wall, each one after another;
and you will be flung out into Harmon, says the LORD.

A divine taunt

- <sup>4</sup>Come to Bethel—and commit a crime;
multiply crimes at Gilgal.
Bring your sacrifices every morning, your tenth-part gifts every three days.
<sup>5</sup>Offer a thanksgiving sacrifice of leavened bread, and publicize your gifts to the LORD;
for so you love to do, people of Israel! says the LORD God.

Israel's stubbornness

- <sup>6</sup>I have sent a famine in all your cities, and not provided enough bread in all your places,
yet you didn't return to me, says the LORD.
<sup>7</sup>I also withheld rain from you when there were still three months to the harvest.
I allowed no rain to fall on one city, no rain to fall on another city.
One field was rained on,
and the field dried up where it didn't rain.
<sup>8</sup>So two or three thirsty towns went to one city to drink water, and weren't satisfied;
yet you didn't return to me, says the LORD.
<sup>9</sup>I struck you with disease and mildew.
I destroyed your gardens and your vineyards.
The locust devoured your fig trees and your olive trees;
yet you didn't return to me, says the LORD.
<sup>10</sup>I sent a plague against you like the one in Egypt.
I killed your young men with the sword.
I carried away your horses.
I made the stink of your camp go up into your nostrils;
yet you didn't return to me, says the LORD.
<sup>11</sup>I destroyed some of you,
as when God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah.
You were like a burning coal plucked out of the fire;
yet you didn't return to me, says the LORD.

they are well fed and consume many resources. The hilly region of Bashan received enough rain in most years to support well-fed cattle.

4:3 Harmon: The word is obscure. Here it seems to refer either to a place or condition of judgment.

4:4-5 Amos' sarcasm continues. He plays on the priestly call to come and worship the Lord at places like Bethel and Gilgal (in the Jordan Valley). Amos isn't opposed to the worship itself, which seems frequent, but to the lack of what is "right" (see Amos 3:10) in the people's daily lives. The people shouldn't think that attending temple services, while engaging in immoral and unjust activities, was pleasing to God. Amos taunts them for misplaced love.

Rather than assuring them that God accepts their offerings, Amos charges them with crimes. Note the three categories of offerings: sacrifices, tenth-part gifts, and general gifts. These are a good summary of the things brought to a temple as part of worship.

4:6-13 Israel stubbornly rejects all correction from the Lord. This list of warnings is similar to the series of prophecies against nations in Amos 1:3-2:5, the questions in Amos 3:3-8, and the series of visions in Amos 7-9, all intended to lead the hearers to return to the Lord.

4:11 Sodom and Gomorrah: a well-known story of divine judgment on wickedness (Gen 19:1-29; Deut 29:23; Hos 11:8; Ezek 16:44-58).

A song of lament

5 Hear this word—a funeral song—that I am lifting up against you, house of Israel:

<sup>2</sup> Fallen, no more to rise, is virgin Israel, deserted on her land, with no one to raise her up.

<sup>3</sup> The LORD God proclaims:
The city that marched out one thousand people will have one hundred left, and the city that marched out one hundred will have ten left in the house of Israel.

Words of encouragement

<sup>4</sup> The LORD proclaims to the house of Israel:
Seek me and live.

<sup>5</sup> But don't seek Bethel, don't enter into Gilgal, or cross over to Beer-sheba;
for Gilgal will go into exile,
and Bethel will come to nothing.

<sup>6</sup> Seek the LORD and live, or else God might rush like a fire against the house of Joseph.
The fire will burn up Bethel, with no one to put it out.

Words of doom

<sup>7</sup> Doom to you who turn justice into poison, and throw righteousness to the ground!

<sup>8</sup> The one who made the Pleiades and Orion, and turns deep darkness into the morning, and darkens the day into night;
who summons the waters of the sea,
and pours them out on the surface of the earth—
this one's name is the LORD—

<sup>9</sup> who causes destruction to flash out against the strong,
so that destruction comes upon the fortress.

4:13 This verse is a burst of praise, identifying the Lord as God of creation and history. It may have come from an Israelite hymn. Here it confirms that the Lord of all will act on God's prophetic word.

5:1-27 Amos 5 combines words of encouragement with more judgment. This and Amos 9 offer encouragement for Israel.

5:1-3 funeral song: The prophet uses the poetry of a funeral song to say that the house of Israel is dead and come to an end. virgin Israel refers to the nation as a whole or to the capital city of Samaria as a representative of the nation. A funeral for an unmarried woman would be especially poignant, since in Hebrew culture she didn't marry and produce children for the ongoing life of the community.

5:4-6 Seek the Lord and live: an alternative to the judgment.

To "seek the Lord" means to commit oneself wholeheartedly to live in accordance with the Lord's revealed will (see 2 Chron 11:16; 19:13; Ezra 8:22; Isa 55:6). The phrase often appears in the Psalms (Pss 24:6; 34:10; 63:1; 70:4; 105:4): Simply going to worship at a shrine at Bethel, Gilgal, or Beer-sheba (south of Jerusalem) is inadequate. Amos criticizes here and elsewhere the false confidence that worship centers have given Israel (see Amos 4:4-5; 8:14).

5:7-13 The Lord is the creator of the world and judges in-justice wherever it is found. The you of Amos 5:7, 11-12, addresses those with power and influence, including the power to collect taxes (see also Amos 3:9-11). According to the psalmist, justice and righteousness are the foundations of God's rule, and fire goes before him against enemies (Ps 97:1-5). This is also Amos' view (see Amos 5:24):

- 10 They hate the one who judges at the city gate, and they reject the one who speaks the truth.
- 11 Truly, because you crush the weak, and because you tax their grain, you have built houses of carved stone, but you won't live in them;
you have planted pleasant vineyards, but you won't drink their wine.
- 12 I know how many are your crimes, and how numerous are your sins—afflicting the righteous,
taking money on the side,
turning away the poor who seek help.
- 13 Therefore, the one who is wise will keep silent in that time; it is an evil time.

Words of inspiration

- 14 Seek good and not evil, that you may live;
and so the LORD, the God of heavenly forces, will be with you just as you have said.
- 15 Hate evil, love good, and establish justice at the city gate.
Perhaps the LORD God of heavenly forces will be gracious to what is left of Joseph.

Divine wrath anticipated

- 16 Truly, the LORD proclaims, the God of heavenly forces, the Lord:
Crying will be heard in all the squares.
In all the streets they will say, "Oh no! Oh no!"
They will call upon the farmers to wail, and those skilled in mourning to lament.
- 17 In all the vineyards there will be bitter crying because I will pass through your midst, says the LORD.

A statement of divine disgust

- 18 Doom to those who desire the day of the LORD!
Why do you want the day of the LORD?
It is darkness, not light;
- 19 as if someone fled from a lion, and was met by a bear;
or sought refuge in a house, rested a hand against the wall, and was bitten by a snake.
- 20 Isn't the day of the LORD darkness, not light;
all dark with no brightness in it?
- 21 I hate, I reject your festivals;
I don't enjoy your joyous assemblies.
- 22 If you bring me your entirely burned offerings and gifts of food—
I won't be pleased;
I won't even look at your offerings of well-fed animals.

By their disobedience, Israel's leadership and institutions have become God's enemies.

5:10 gate: Much business was done in the gate of walled cities. It was a place of meeting (see Ruth 4:1-12) as people went in and out of the city during daylight hours.

5:14-15 Once more (see Amos 5:4-6) the prophet notes the alternative to destruction. Israel must come to its senses. To seek the Lord also means to seek what is good for the nation's life and health and to reject what is evil.

5:15 what is left of Joseph: The reference to the people's ancestor reminds them of their heritage, even as it reflects the reality that portions of the nation are already gone (see Amos 6:6). The Assyrians pressed hard on Israel in the years 740-732 BCE, eventually taking two-thirds of the country and making Assyrian provinces out of the land and its inhabitants. See 2 Kings 15:17-31.

5:16 those skilled in mourning: This phrase picks up the theme of the funeral in Amos 5:1-3.

5:17 I will pass through your midst: Exodus 12:12 has a parallel, where the Lord declares that "I'll pass through" the land of Egypt in judgment.

5:18-20 The day of the Lord's judgment is at hand. Other prophets use the term day of the Lord to refer to decisive events in the future (Isa 2:12; Ezek 13:5; Joel 1:15; Obad 15; Zeph 1:14). Such a day is coming soon for Israel, and it will not result in deliverance.

5:21-27 God is disgusted by insincere worship. Note also the sarcasm in Amos 4:4-5. This criticism of worship

Warnings to the self-satisfied

6 Doom to those resting comfortably in Zion and those trusting in Mount Samaria, the chiefs of the nations, to whom the house of Israel comes!

2 Cross over to Calneh and see;
from there go to Hamath the great;
then go down to Gath of the Philistines.

Are you better than these kingdoms?
Or is your territory greater than their territory?

3 Doom to those who ignore the evil day and make violent rule draw near:

4 who lie on beds of ivory, stretch out on their couches,
eat lambs from the flock,
and bull calves from the stall;

5 who sing idle songs to the sound of the harp, and, like David, compose tunes on musical instruments;

6 who drink bowls of wine, put the best of oils on themselves,
but who aren't grieved over the ruin of Joseph!

7 Therefore, they will now be the first to be taken away, and the feast of those who lounged at the table will pass away.

8 The LORD God has solemnly sworn, says the LORD, the God of heavenly forces:

I reject the pride of Jacob.
I hate his fortresses.
I will hand over the city and all that is in it.

doesn't say that God finds worship to be irrelevant or unimportant. God rejects public worship when public life is full of injustice and unrighteousness. This is a common theme in the Prophets (Isa 1:10-17; Jer 7:1-26; Hos 6:6; Mic 6:6-8; see 1 Sam 15:22).

5:24 This is the positive form of Amos' critique of Israel.

5:25 Israel depended on the Lord after leaving Egypt and wandering in the wilderness and didn't have the same kind of worship as in sedentary life (see also Jer 7:22-23).

5:26 Sakkuth, Kaiwan: Some Israelites made images of gods for themselves and worshipped them. Sakkuth and Kaiwan are associated with the Assyrians and worship of the stars.

5:27 beyond Damascus: The Assyrians took portions of the Israelite population and forced them to move to areas north and east of Israel (2 Kgs 15:29; 17:5-6).

6:1-14 The prophet resumes funeral language. Doom is coming for the self-satisfied in Zion (Jerusalem) and Samaria.

6:2 Calneh (the Calno of Isa 10:9) and Hamath were in Syria. Gath was a prominent Philistine city. Four other Philistine cities are mentioned for judgment in Amos 1:6-8. No doubt the misfortunes of these cities were well known to Israel. Calneh (about 740 BCE) and Hamath (720 BCE) were victims of the Assyrian army. Gath was conquered by Hazael in the last half of the 9th century BCE (2 Kgs 12:17) and later by the Assyrians (734 BCE). Zion and Samaria shouldn't think that their fate will be different from these cities.

6:3-7 See other references to ivory and a life of luxury in Amos 3:15. Judgment is coming.

6:3 evil day: This refers to a day or time of judgment. Perhaps it is shorthand for the day of the Lord mentioned in Amos 5:18.

6:5 David: King David played music to soothe King Saul (1 Sam 16:23) and composed songs (2 Sam 23:1).

6:8-14 The Lord makes a solemn pledge that Israel will suffer the consequences of its failures.

 Then the relative will say,

<sup>14</sup>Indeed, I will raise up against you a nation, house of Israel, says the LORD God of heavenly forces, and they will oppress you from Lebo-hamath to the desert ravine.

A vision of locusts

<sup>7</sup>This is what the LORD God showed me: The LORD God was forming locusts at the time the late grass began to sprout. (It was the late grass after the king's harvest.) <sup>2</sup>When they had finished eating the green plants of the land, I said, "LORD God, please forgive! How can Jacob survive? He is so small!"
<sup>3</sup>The LORD relented concerning this: "It won't take place," says the LORD.

A vision of fire

<sup>4</sup>This is what the LORD God showed me: The LORD God was calling for judgment with fire, and it devoured the great deep and was eating up part of the land. <sup>5</sup>Then I said, "LORD God, I beg you, stop!
 How can Jacob survive? He is so small!"
<sup>6</sup>The LORD relented concerning this: "This also won't take place," says the LORD God.

A vision of a plumb line

<sup>7</sup>This is what the LORD showed me: The LORD was standing by a wall, with a plumb line in his hand. <sup>8</sup>The LORD said to me, "Amos, what do you see?"
 "A plumb line," I said.
 Then the LORD said,
 "See, I am setting a plumb line in the middle of my people Israel.
 I will never again forgive them.

6:10 the name of the LORD: Even the mention of the Lord's name in the house may provoke another round of judgment to fall on it.
 6:12 The prophet uses questions with absurd conclusions to show Israel that its faithless life is absurd. No one would run a horse over rocks or plow water with oxen! Why would those in their right mind poison justice? See Amos 3:3-8.
 6:13 Lo-debar, Karnaim: Amos makes a pun using two city names: Lo-debar means "no matter"; Karnaim means "horns." The two cities were located east of the Jordan River and were taken for Israel by Jeroboam II (2 Kgs 14:25). Israel rejoices in a town of no importance and boasts that it has seized a town with horns (see note on Amos 3:14). Thus Israel may boast in territory, but it is of little importance, and it won't save their lives.
 6:14 Lebo-hamath to the desert ravine: from the north (Lebo-hamath) in Syria to the south of Israel and Judah. God will raise up a nation to oppress Israel completely from north to south.

7:1-9:10 This part of the book has five visions and judgment speeches, along with an account of Amos' encounter with a priest at Bethel.
 7:1-9 This... showed me: three short visions, each beginning with the same phrase. With the third report, it's clear that judgment can't be avoided any longer.
 7:1-3 locusts: A locust plague was feared in the ancient world. The fast-moving insects can strip fields of green plants in short order. The prophet Joel uses a locust plague as the basis for his prophecies against Judah.
 7:4-6 fire: Wildfires were another fear. The Lord shows fire to the prophet and again doesn't send the devastation on Jacob (Israel). See Amos 3:7.
 7:7-9 plumb line: If a wall is not vertical, it will eventually fall over. The plumb line stands for the Lord's righteous standards. Israel doesn't measure up to them. The inevitable conclusion is that judgment is coming. See Zechariah 2:1-5 for a parallel use of a plumb line to measure elements in Jerusalem.

Exchange between Amaziah, Jeroboam, and Amos

<sup>10</sup>Then Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, reported to Israel’s King Jeroboam, “Amos has plotted against you within the house of Israel. The land isn’t able to cope with everything that he is saying. <sup>11</sup>Amos has said, ‘Jeroboam will die by the sword, and Israel will be forced out of its land.’”

<sup>12</sup>Amaziah said to Amos, “You who see things, go, run away to the land of Judah, eat your bread there, and prophesy there; <sup>13</sup>but never again prophesy at Bethel, for it is the king’s holy place and his royal house.”

<sup>14</sup>Amos answered Amaziah, “I am <sup>d</sup> not a prophet, nor am I a prophet’s son; but I am a shepherd, and a trimmer of sycamore trees. <sup>15</sup>But the LORD took me from shepherding the flock, and the LORD said to me, ‘Go, prophesy to my people Israel.’

You say, ‘Don’t prophesy against Israel, and don’t preach against the house of Isaac.’

<sup>17</sup>“Therefore, the LORD proclaims:

‘Your wife will become a prostitute in the city, and your sons and your daughters will fall by the sword, and your land will be measured and divided up;
you yourself will die in an unclean land, and Israel will surely be taken away from its land.’”

A vision of summer fruit

8 This is what the LORD God showed me: a basket of summer fruit. <sup>2</sup>He said, “Amos, what do you see?”

I said, “A basket of summer fruit.”

Then the LORD said to me,

“The end has come upon my people Israel;

I will never again forgive them.

<sup>3</sup>On that day, the people will wail the temple songs,” says the LORD God;

“there will be many corpses, thrown about everywhere.”

Silence.”

Judgment on oppressors and hypocrites

7:9 Isaac: Amos uses this ancestor’s name (also in Amos 7:16), like those of Israel, Jacob, and Joseph, to refer to the people and their land. house of Jeroboam: Jeroboam II (Amos 1:1; 7:10-11). 2 Kings 14:23-29 tells about his reign. The prophet Hosea prophesied against the house of Jehu (Hos 1:1, 4-5) at approximately the same time as Amos. Jeroboam was a descendant of Jehu.

7:10-17 The priest Amaziah accuses Amos of plotting against the king and nation.

7:10, 13 Bethel: There was a temple in Bethel, a city located on the southern border of Israel. Jacob had a dream there (Gen 28:10-22). The city and temple were under royal control.

7:12 land of Judah: a different country than Israel. It may have been Amos’ ancestral home. Because of the prophet’s hard words against Jeroboam and Israel, Amaziah tells Amos to leave Israel.

7:14 not a prophet: Amos denies that he is a professional prophet or out for gain when prophesying. Amaziah’s charge in Amos 7:12 to “eat your bread” in Judah can be taken to mean that Amos should go to Judah and get paid for his prophet’s work there.

7:15 Amos’ activities result from a call from the Lord (see also note on Amos 3:7).

7:16-17 Amaziah and his family will suffer the same fate as many others in Israel. There will be loss of land, dignity, and life itself. Some will be taken away and forced to live elsewhere.

8:1-3 basket of summer fruit: a play on Hebrew words. The word for “summer fruit” sounds like the word for “end.” Much of Amos’ prophecy can be summed up in the statement that the end has come upon Israel. The destruction and upheaval brought by the Assyrians wasn’t a final end to the Lord’s people, but the separate kingdom of Israel did come to a political end (see 2 Kgs 17).

8:4-6 Judgment on those who oppress the poor. Similar language occurs in Amos 2:6-8.

and the Sabbath so that we may offer wheat for sale,

Surely I will never forget what they have done.

<sup>8</sup>Will not the land tremble on this account, and all who live in it mourn, and then falls again, like the River of Egypt?<sup>f</sup>

<sup>9</sup>On that day, says the LORD God,
I will make the sun go down at noon, and I will darken the earth in broad daylight.

<sup>10</sup>I will turn your feasts into sad affairs and all your singing into a funeral song;
I will make people wear mourning clothes and shave their heads;
I will make it like the loss of an only child, and the end of it like a bitter day.

<sup>11</sup>The days are surely coming, says the LORD God, when I will send hunger and thirst on the land;
neither a hunger for bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the LORD's words.

<sup>12</sup>They will wander from sea to sea, and from north to east; they will roam all around, seeking the LORD's word, but they won't find it.

<sup>13</sup>On that day the beautiful young women and the young men will faint with thirst.

<sup>14</sup>Those who swear by the guilt of Samaria, and say, "As your god lives, Dan," and, "As the way of Beer-sheba lives"— even they will fall and never rise again.

not one of them will escape.

8:8-9 The shaking of the earth and the darkening of the sun are signs that go along with strong judgment (see Joel 2:30-31; 3:14-16).

8:11-13 hunger and thirst: There will be upheaval and lack of food in the judgment to come. There will be something more, which is just as deadly—the lack of hearing from the Lord.

8:14 The prophet pokes fun at those who swear by other gods. The guilt of Samaria likely refers to a goddess worshipped by some in Israel. Similarly, the gods of Dan (a city in northern Israel) and Beer-sheba (a city in southern Judah) will be of no help in the time of judgment.

9:1-4 A fifth vision confirms the coming judgment. The location of the altar isn't mentioned (see Amos 3:14). As with

A divine confession

<sup>5</sup>The LORD, God of heavenly forces, touches the earth and it melts, and all who live in it are sick to death.

All of it<sup>a</sup> rises up like the Nile and sinks again, like the Nile of Egypt.

<sup>6</sup>It is the LORD who builds his upper rooms in the heavens and establishes his residence upon the earth;
who summons the waters of the sea,
and pours them out upon the face of the earth—the LORD is his name.

Divine address to the Israelites

<sup>7</sup>Aren't you like the Cushites to me, people of Israel? says the LORD.
Haven't I brought Israel up from the land of Egypt, and the Philistines from Caphtor and the Arameans from Kir?

<sup>8</sup>Look, the LORD God is eyeing the sinful kingdom, and I will destroy it from the face of the earth.
However, I won't destroy fully the house of Jacob, says the LORD.

Warning to the house of Israel

<sup>9</sup>Look, I am giving orders, and I will shake the house of Israel among all the nations as one sifts dirt with a screen, but no pebble will fall to the ground.

<sup>10</sup>All the sinners of my people will die by the sword, those who say, "Evil won't overtake or meet us."

Divine promise of restoration

<sup>11</sup>On that day I will raise up the meeting tent of David that has fallen, and repair its broken places.

I will raise up its ruins, and I will rebuild it like a long time ago;

<sup>12</sup>so that they may possess what is left of Edom, as well as all the nations who are called by my name, says the LORD who will do this.

<sup>13</sup>The days are surely coming, says the LORD, when the one who plows will overtake the one who gathers, when the one who crushes grapes will overtake the one who sows the seed.

most biblical accounts, the prophet sees the Lord, but provides little or no description (see Amos 7:7). Amos once again reports that there's no escape from coming disaster. 9:5-6 Both the earth and the human community will be affected by judgment.

9:7-8 The Lord works in the history of Israel and all other nations. Although Israel has a special bond with the Lord (Amos 3:2), including an exodus from Egypt (Amos 2:10), it's not the only people that the Lord has brought to a designated place.

9:7 Cushites: A people south of Egypt on the edge of Israel's geographical knowledge (Isa 18:1-2). Kir: According to Amos 1:5, the Arameans will be sent to Kir in punishment. It may be that Amos knows of a tradition that the Lord earlier freed the Arameans from oppression in Kir and that in judgment they will soon return there. Caphtor: may be a reference to Crete. The Philistines were part of a larger movement of peoples that left Anatolia and various Mediterranean islands in the 13th and 12th centuries BCE. They settled in the cities mentioned in Amos 1:6-8 plus Gath (Amos 6:2).

9:9-10 The judgment will fall on the sinners in Israel. This prophecy follows the claim in Amos 9:8 that the Lord won't fully destroy Israel.

9:11-15 Restoration will come after judgment. Israel will have an important place among nations and live in security. As noted in the introduction, a later editor may have added this final portion to soften the harsh language elsewhere in the book. Whether original with the prophet Amos or not, these verses are a part of the book as we have received it. They follow a pattern seen in other prophetic books such as Joel, Micah, Ezekiel, and Zechariah, where harsh words of judgment come to an end, and a final section projects a future deliverance and peaceful kingdom.

9:11 meeting tent of David: King David earlier ruled over all Israel, and various prophets predict that his descendants will rule again over an expanded kingdom (Isa 11:1-9; Jer 23:5-6; Ezek 37:15-28).

9:13 drip wine: This poetic phrase illustrates a garden-like existence. See also Joel 3:18.

The mountains will drip wine, and all the hills will flow with it.

<sup>14</sup>I will improve the circumstances of my people Israel; they will rebuild the ruined cities and inhabit them.
They will plant vineyards and drink their wine;
and they will make gardens and eat their fruit.

<sup>15</sup>I will plant them upon their land, and they will never again be plucked up out of the land that I have given them, says the LORD your God.

OBADIAH

Obadiah is the shortest book in the OT and follows Amos in the sequence of prophetic books. Obadiah may occupy this place in the lineup because it offers an explanation of the last prophecy in Amos, that Israel will possess what is left of Edom (Amos 9:11-12). The author of Obadiah is unknown; the name Obadiah, however, is relatively common in ancient Israel and means “servant of the LORD.”

“Vision” (Obad 1) defines the book of Obadiah as a prophetic revelation and fits the subject matter and forms of expression in the book. The Hebrew word translated as “vision” occurs elsewhere in the OT to indicate an insight from divine revelation (1 Sam 3:1; Hos 12:10), some of which were written down (Isa 1:1; Nah 1:1; Hab 2:2-3). Obadiah’s primary focus is to show the actions of the people of “Edom” (Obad 1) as being under God’s judgment. Similar prophecies against Edom are found in Isaiah 63:1-6; Jeremiah 49:7-22; Ezekiel 25:12-14; Joel 3:19; and Amos 1:11-12; as compared to Malachi 1:2-5.

Edom is the land southeast of the Dead Sea, and its inhabitants are called Edomites. Their influence periodically reached to the lands belonging to the tribes of Judah and Simeon to the west (the “southern plain” of Obad 19-20). In the book of Obadiah, Edom is also called Esau (Obad 6), Mount Esau (Obad 8, 19), and the House of Esau (Obad 18). These references to Esau, plus those to “brother Jacob” (Obad 10, 12), remind readers that the Edomites and Israelites were descendants of Esau and Jacob, and thus were related to Israel (see Gen 27-36; Mal 1:2).

Historically, interactions between Edom and Israel were both positive and negative. Several references to Edom’s violence and pride in Obadiah indicate bad relations with Judah/Jerusalem. Such strained relations are made clear in reports of slaughter (1 Kgs 11:14-16) and political control (2 Kgs 8:20-22). One biblical reference notes that Edomites celebrated when Babylon defeated Jerusalem and destroyed the city in 587 BCE (Ps 137:7). Others list Edomite slave trading (Amos 1:6, 9) and acts of violence (Amos 1:11; Ezek 25:12-14; Lam 4:21-22). The book of Malachi contains the strong statement that God loved Jacob (=Israel) but rejected Esau (=Edom) (Mal 1:2-3). It's likely that Edom's delight in Jerusalem's destruction is reflected in Obadiah 11-14. Edom's response to Jerusalem helps date the prophecies of the book to some time after 587 BCE and probably in the post-exilic period in the 5th century, similar to the date of Malachi.

Edom falls

<sup>1</sup>The vision of Obadiah.

The LORD God proclaims concerning Edom:
 We have heard a message from the LORD—
 a messenger has been sent among the nations:
 “Rise up! Let us rise against her for battle!”

<sup>2</sup>Look now, I will make you of little importance among the nations;
 you will be totally despised.

<sup>3</sup>Your proud heart has tricked you—you who live in the cracks of the rock, whose dwelling is high above.
 You who say in your heart,
 “Who will bring me down to the ground?”

<sup>4</sup>Though you soar like the eagle, though your nest is set among the stars,
 I will bring you down from there, says the LORD.

Edom is robbed

<sup>5</sup>If thieves approach you, if robbers by night—how you’ve been devastated!—
 wouldn’t they steal only what they wanted?
 If those who gather grapes came to you, wouldn’t they leave some grapes?

<sup>6</sup>How Esau has been looted, his treasures taken away!

<sup>7</sup>All those who were your allies have driven you to the border.
 Those who were on your side tricked you and triumphed over you.
 They are setting your own bread as a trap under you,<sup>a</sup> but you don’t see it coming.

<sup>8</sup>Won’t I on that day, says the LORD, destroy the wise from Edom and understanding from Mount Esau?

<sup>9</sup>Your warriors will be shattered, Teman, and everyone from Mount Esau will be eliminated.

Edom’s misdeeds

<sup>10</sup>Because of the slaughter and violence done to your brother Jacob, shame will cover you, and you will be destroyed forever.

<sup>11</sup>You stood nearby, strangers carried off his wealth, and foreigners entered his gates and cast lots for Jerusalem;
 you too were like one of them.

1-4 These first verses highlight the basic theme of the book. God will judge Edom for its pride and violence. Much of the land of Edom is rugged and mountainous. Edomite settlements could be located in high and hard-to-reach places. That location gave Edomites a false sense of security and pride.

1 The vision of Obadiah: The first phrase is a heading for the book, similar to a subtitle for a modern literary work. We have heard: The writer uses “we” to say that the prophetic message announced among the nations is similar to other prophetic messages. Edom is referred to as her. In this part of the world, cities and city-dwellers were personified as female.

4 God will bring Edom down. This refers literally to the defeat of cities set high in the mountains and symbolically to the defeat that will destroy the nation.

5-14 These verses describe the reversal of fortune. Edom’s destruction will be complete, and it is deserved. Edom will suffer for its violence against Jerusalem.

8 The Edomites had a reputation for wisdom (Jer 49:7-10), but this won’t help when God brings judgment against them.

9 Teman was a descendant of Esau (Gen 36:11). The name also refers to a region of or a city in Edom (Amos 1:12; Ezek 25:13). In this verse Teman is used as a parallel term for Mount Esau (=Edom). The failure of Edomite warriors is also noted in Jeremiah 49:20-22.

10 Jacob is used here as the covenant name of the people Israel who lived in Judah/Jerusalem. Edom violated a family bond. The shame to come on Edom reverses the honor it should have as a loyal family member.

11-14 Edom rejoiced over Judah and Jerusalem’s on the day of his misery;

 you shouldn't have rejoiced over the people of Judah on the day of their devastation;
 you shouldn't have bragged on their day of hardship.
- 13 You shouldn't have entered the gate of my people on the day of their defeat;
 you shouldn't have even looked on his suffering on the day of his disaster;
 you shouldn't have stolen his possessions on the day of his distress.
- 14 You shouldn't have waited on the roads to destroy his escapees;
 you shouldn't have handed over his survivors on the day of defeat.
- 15 The day of the LORD is near against all the nations.
 As you have done, so it will be done to you;
 your actions will make you suffer!
- 16 Just as you have drunk on my holy mountain, so will all the nations around you drink;
 they will drink and swallow quickly, and they will be like they've never been before.

Edom's punishers

- 17 But on Mount Zion there will be those who escape, and it will be holy;
 and the house of Jacob will drive out those who drove them out.
- 18 The house of Jacob will be a fire,
 the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau straw;
 they will burn them up completely, and there will be no one left of the house of Esau, for the LORD has spoken.
- 19 Those of the arid southern plain will possess Mount Esau, and those of the western foothills, the land of the Philistines;
 they will possess the land of Ephraim and the land of Samaria, and Benjamin will possess Gilead.
- 20 Those who remain of the Israelites will possess the land of the Canaanites as far as Zarephath; destruction, most likely in 587 BCE, the Babylonian siege of Jerusalem (2 Kgs 25; Jer 52). When escapees fled from Judah, the Edomites badly mistreated them (see Obad 14).

15-18 These verses further describe the judgment announced in previous verses of a reversal of fortunes. Edom's good fortune will be reversed. Judah's bad fortunes will be reversed.

15 day of the LORD: Prophets speak about important events in the future as happening on a "day." Sometimes the term is "day of the LORD" (Amos 5:18-20). Obadiah refers to the "day" of Edom's destruction in Obadiah 8. That destruction is explained in Obadiah 15 as both act and consequence. This is a theme of wisdom (Prov 26:27; Ps 7:12-16). Those who do evil will bring judgment on themselves. Edom will suffer violence because of the violence it has done.

16 you have drunk: The drinking referred to here is the cup of God's judgment, a prophetic theme using drunkenness to portray impending destruction (Jer 25:15-38; Isa 51:17-23). Jerusalem's inhabitants drank of it in the Babylonian destruction. Now others will drink of it, particularly Edom. The text refers to Jerusalem drinking in the past and other nations drinking in the future. The judgment announced against Edom throughout the book means that it, too, is one of the nations that will drink of the cup.

19-21 The theme of reversal continues with nations possessing the property of their oppressors.

19 Philistines: a nation that lived along or near the Mediterranean coast. The Israelites who lived nearby in the western foothills had a long history of difficulties with them. In the future the Israelites will possess the land of the Philistines, just as those of the southern region of Israel will possess Mount Esau. Gilead is the hill country to the east of the Jordan River.

20 Canaanites: Israelite remnants will also possess the land north of Ephraim and Samaria, part of the land of Canaan.

and those left from Jerusalem and who are now living in Sepharad will possess the cities of the arid southern plain.

1:21 Ps 22:28;
Zec 14:9;
Rev 11:15

<sup>21</sup>The deliverers will go up to Mount Zion to rule Mount Esau, and the kingdom will be the LORD's.

1:21 Ps 22:28; Zec 14:9; Rev 11:15

Act and Consequence Act and consequence is a theme of the book. Obadiah describes a reversal of circumstances brought about by God's judgment. Edom violated its brother Israel's security. It will suffer violation as a result. Judah and Jerusalem had been defeated by the Babylonians and preyed on by the Edomites, but the Lord will reverse Jerusalem's lowly status while bringing down Edom. Prophets often speak of future decisive changes as happening on a certain "day." This is true of Obadiah's references to Edom's coming judgment (Obad 8, 15). The book concludes with a depiction of Edom's downfall, Mount Zion's rise, and the rule of the Lord made clear.

<sup>21</sup> Mount Zion: The future restoration of Mount Zion (=Jerusalem) will include control of Mount Esau (=land of Edom). This prophecy is similar to the day when God will raise up the meeting tent of David, and God's people will possess what is left of Edom (Amos 9:11-12).

JONAH

The account of Jonah and his adventures in Nineveh is by far the most peculiar writing in the prophetic literature of the Bible. The story is more about the prophet's actions than his words. The book also focuses on foreigners, non-Israelites, who receive God's mercy, which is surprising in the OT. A reluctant prophet preaches to his enemies, and the Ninevites change their hearts and lives to receive God's mercy.

Several themes emerge in the story. The first is God's deliverance of Jonah. Though Jonah disobeys God's call, God still delivers Jonah from the belly of the fish. Second, God delivers the Ninevites from destruction because they listen to Jonah and change their evil ways. Third, Jonah becomes upset because God shows mercy to Jonah's enemies. The story emphasizes God's gracious and compassionate character, which displaces God's promise to punish the wicked.

Jonah, Amittai's son, is mentioned briefly in 2 Kings 14:25 as an 8th-century prophet from Gath-hepher who prophesied that King Jeroboam II would extend the borders of the northern kingdom of Israel. The account in 2 Kings doesn't mention a journey to Nineveh for Amittai's son Jonah.

This particular story about a prophet named Jonah isn't historical in the narrow sense. Instead, readers should receive Jonah as an extended metaphor marked by wordplay, suspense, intra-biblical allusions, satire, irony, hyperbole, and humor. Much like a parable, the book of Jonah teaches that "deliverance belongs to the LORD" (Jon 2:9), even if that deliverance comes to the most unlikely candidates. Much like a satire, Jonah contains extraordinary events and extravagant characters designed to amuse and delight the reader. Much like a novella, the narrative has a clearly defined hero (God) and a haphazard rival (Jonah).

In the larger literary context of the Book of the Twelve (Hosea through Malachi), Jonah is a companion piece to Nahum. Both Jonah and Nahum focus on the wicked city of Nineveh, but each contains a very different message. Jonah promotes God's mercy and compassion for the Ninevites, while Nahum advances God's judgment against Nineveh and God's refusal to leave the guilty unpunished (see Exod 34:6-7; Joel 2:13; Jon 4:2; Nah 1:3).

Commissioning of a reluctant prophet

1 The LORD's word came to Jonah, Amittai's son: <sup>2</sup>"Get up and go to Nineveh, that great city, and cry out against it, for their evil has come to my attention."

<sup>3</sup>So Jonah got up—to flee to Tarshish from the LORD! He went down to Joppa and found a ship headed for Tarshish. He paid the fare and went aboard to go with them to Tarshish, away from the LORD. <sup>4</sup>But the LORD hurled a great wind upon the sea, so that there was a great storm on the sea; the ship looked like it might be broken to pieces. <sup>5</sup>The sailors were terrified, and each one cried out to his god. They hurled the cargo that was in the ship into the sea to make it lighter.

Now Jonah had gone down into the hold of the vessel to lie down and was deep in sleep. <sup>6</sup>The ship's officer came and said to him, "How can you possibly be sleeping so deeply? Get up! Call on your god! Perhaps the god will give some thought to us so that we won't perish."

<sup>7</sup>Meanwhile, the sailors said to each other, "Come on, let's cast lots so that we might learn who is to blame for this evil that's happening to us." They cast lots, and the lot fell on Jonah. <sup>8</sup>So they said to him, "Tell us, since you're the cause of this evil happening to us: What do you do and where are you from? What's your country and of what people are you?"

<sup>9</sup>He said to them, "I'm a Hebrew. I worship the LORD, the God of heaven—who made the sea and the dry land."

<sup>10</sup>Then the men were terrified and said to him, "What have you done?" (The men knew that Jonah was fleeing from the LORD, because he had told them.)

<sup>11</sup>They said to him, "What will we do about you so that the sea will become calm around us?" (The sea was continuing to rage.)

<sup>12</sup>He said to them, "Pick me up and hurl me into the sea! Then the sea will become calm around you. I know it's my fault that this great storm has come upon you."

<sup>13</sup>The men rowed to reach dry land, but they couldn't manage it because the sea continued to rage against them. <sup>14</sup>So they called on the LORD, saying, "Please, LORD, don't let us perish on account of this man's life, and don't blame us for innocent blood! You are the LORD: whatever you want, you can do." <sup>15</sup>Then they picked up Jonah and hurled him into the sea, and the sea ceased its raging. <sup>16</sup>The men worshipped the LORD with a profound reverence; they offered a sacrifice to the LORD and made solemn promises.

No escape for the prophet

<sup>17</sup>Meanwhile, the LORD provided a great fish to swallow Jonah. Jonah was in the belly of the fish for three days and three nights.

1:1-16 The initial scene develops in four phases: (1) The introduction: God instructs Jonah to go to Nineveh (1:1-2). (2) The conflict: Jonah disobeys (1:3). (3) The problem: The Lord sends a storm and the sailors learn they cannot escape without surrendering Jonah (1:4-14). (4) The answer: The sailors throw Jonah overboard, the sea calms, and the sailors worship the Lord (1:15-16).

1:1 Jonah, Amittai's son: Compare 2 Kings 14:25.

1:2 Nineveh: the capital of Assyria, located along the Tigris River in modern-day Iraq. The Assyrians had a reputation for extreme brutality. Many reliefs (large stone panels with images carved into them) from the walls of the ancient palace at Nineveh display horrific battle scenes that portray the removal of arms and legs and the decapitation of conquered peoples, as well as the practice of thrusting a sharp stick up through their bodies.

1:3 to flee to Tarshish from the LORD: The Lord calls Jonah to Nineveh, several hundred miles east of Israel. Instead, Jonah goes to Joppa, a coastal seaport. There he boards a ship headed in the opposite direction toward Tarshish, a city in the far western part of the Mediterranean Sea.

1:4 But the LORD hurled a great wind upon the sea: Contrary to Jonah's own statement that the Lord's dominion extended even to the sea (Jon 1:9), Jonah acts as though he can escape the Lord's control. He learns otherwise.

1:5 each one cried out to his god: Polytheism (the belief in many gods) was the norm for most ancient Near Eastern cultures. Usually, each city had a different god to whom the people turned for support and gifts. These sailors probably came from various locations, so each one calls upon a different local god.

1:7 let's cast lots: Casting lots (similar to throwing dice) was a common way to make decisions in the ancient Near East, including Judah and Israel (see Lev 16:8), or to determine how property would be divided (cf. Josh 18:6, 8; Ps 22:18). The ancients thought that casting lots revealed hidden truth from the gods.

1:9-10 The LORD... who made the sea and the dry land... the men were terrified: Jonah says that the Lord created the sea and the dry land, a theological statement that indicates to the sailors that the Lord was responsible for the storm. This proclamation frightens the crew because they know that Jonah had been trying to escape the Lord.

1:13-16 The men worshipped the LORD: The power of the Hebrew God impresses the sailors, and they honor the Lord with sacrifices. These sacrifices take place outside of the temple, which surprisingly suggests that worship of the Lord can occur outside of the temple precincts.

1:17-2:10 A fish swallows Jonah, and Jonah responds with a prayer in the form of a thanksgiving psalm.

2<sup>a</sup>I called out to the LORD in my distress, and he answered me.

From the belly of the underworld<sup>b</sup> I cried out for help;
you have heard my voice.

3 You had cast me into the depths in the heart of the seas, and the flood surrounds me.

All your strong waves and rushing water passed over me.

4 So I said, 'I have been driven away from your sight.

Will I ever again look on your holy temple?

5 Waters have grasped me to the point of death;
the deep surrounds me.

Seaweed is wrapped around my head

6 at the base of the undersea<sup>c</sup> mountains.

I have sunk down to the underworld;

its bars held me with no end in sight.

But you brought me out of the pit.<sup>d</sup>

7 When my endurance<sup>d</sup> was weakening, I remembered the LORD, and my prayer came to you, to your holy temple.

8 Those deceived by worthless things lose their chance for mercy.<sup>e</sup>

9 But me, I will offer a sacrifice to you with a voice of thanks.

That which I have promised, I will pay.

Deliverance belongs to the LORD!<sup>f</sup>

10 Then the LORD spoke to the fish, and it vomited Jonah onto the dry land.

Nineveh hears God's word

3 The LORD's word came to Jonah a second time: 2<sup>a</sup>Get up and go to Nineveh, that great city, and declare against it the proclamation that I am commanding you." 3And Jonah

The Sea, the Fish, and the Underworld The sea was a terrifying mystery to the ancient Israelites. Its wild character and unknown depths presented a serious threat to anyone who tried to cross it. In addition, the sea was the home of sea monsters such as Leviathan and Rahab, whom the Bible describes as powerful creatures that oppose God (Job 26:12; Ps 104:26; Isa 27:1; 51:9). To be thrown into the sea and swallowed by a creature would be one of the worst fates imaginable. Jonah speaks of this experience as being cast into Sheol—the Hebrew term for the place of the dead—and often translated as “the underworld.” The place of the dead is an abstract concept with generally negative connotations. The OT frequently describes Sheol as a watery netherworld where chaos reigns (Pss 42:8; 69:2-3, 15-16; 88:7-8). It is down, while God is up; it is chaotic, and God is orderly. Though this story doesn't say that Jonah has died, the psalm describes a metaphorical death in the depths of the Sheol-sea. Therefore, when Jonah sinks “down to the underworld” and cries for help “from the belly of the underworld” and (its bars holding him with no end in sight), he is describing serious distress in a death-like state.

Individuals experiencing extreme difficulty may have prayed this psalm in worship at the Jerusalem temple. The psalm recounts the Lord's deliverance from death because of prayer (2:2-7). The psalm expresses a confession of misplaced devotion, and makes a pledge to pay what he has promised (2:8-9).

1:17 great fish: The original readers of Jonah likely thought of the fish that swallows Jonah as some kind of sea monster. The ancients knew very little about marine life, but tales from ancient mariners of unusual sightings are based in mythology concerning sea life (cf. Gen 1:21; Job 7:12; Pss 74:13; 104:25; 148:7).

2:2 the underworld: See sidebar, “The Sea, the Fish, and the Underworld.”

2:4, 7: Will I ever again look on your holy temple . . . your holy temple: The emphasis on the temple is contrasted with other parts of Jonah, which acknowledge sacrificial worship and the mercy of the Lord outside of the temple and outside of Israel (Jon 1:4; 1:16; 3:5-9).

2:9 Deliverance belongs to the Lord!: the core message of the book of Jonah. Even though Jonah says this, he still gets upset later in the story when he learns that the Lord's merciful deliverance extends even to the Ninevites (Jon 4:1-3).

3:1-10 Chapter 3 begins in the same way as Jonah 1: The Lord's word comes to Jonah. But this time Jonah obeys. The narrative of Jonah 3 progresses in four phases: (1) Jonah obediently goes to the metropolis of Nineveh (3:1-3). (2) Jonah declares the Lord's word to the Ninevites, and they immediately believe and change their ways got up and went to Nineveh, according to the LORD's word. (Now Nineveh was indeed an enormous city, a three days' walk across.)

4Jonah started into the city, walking one day, and he cried out, "Just forty days more and Nineveh will be overthrown!" 5And the people of Nineveh believed God. They proclaimed a fast and put on mourning clothes, from the greatest of them to the least significant.

6When word of it reached the king of Nineveh, he got up from his throne, stripped himself of his robe, covered himself with mourning clothes, and sat in ashes. 7Then he announced, "In Nineveh, by decree of the king and his officials: Neither human nor animal, cattle nor flock, will taste anything! No grazing and no drinking water! 8Let humans and animals alike put on mourning clothes, and let them call upon God forcefully! And let all persons stop their evil behavior and the violence that's under their control!" 9He thought, Who knows? God may see this and turn from his wrath, so that we might not perish.<sup>f</sup>

10God saw what they were doing—that they had ceased their evil behavior. So God stopped planning to destroy them, and he didn't do it.

Jonah balks at God's mercy

4 But Jonah thought this was utterly wrong, and he became angry. 2He prayed to the LORD, "Come on, LORD! Wasn't this precisely my point when I was back in my own land? This is why I fled to Tarshish earlier! I know that you are a merciful and compassionate God, very patient, full of faithful love, and willing not to destroy. 3At this point, LORD, you may as well take my life from me, because it would be better for me to die than to live."

4The LORD responded, "Is your anger a good thing?" 5But Jonah went out from the city and sat down east of the city. There he made himself a hut and sat under it, in the shade, to see what would happen to the city.

6Then the LORD God provided a shrub,<sup>g</sup> and it grew up over Jonah, providing shade for his head and saving him from his misery. Jonah was very happy about the shrub. 7But God

(3:4-5). (3) Nineveh's king, in an overstatement, declares that Nineveh is turning away from evil, and everyone (including the animals!) is to fast and wear mourning clothes (3:6-9). (4) God sees their changed lives and withholds judgment (3:10).

3:3 a three days' walk: an exaggeration. The archaeological record shows that the wall around Nineveh was nearly 7.5 miles long. Though this is large by ancient standards, it wouldn't take three days to walk from one end to the other.

3:4-5 "Just forty days more and Nineveh will be overthrown": The rounded reference to "forty days" may be an allusion to the covenant with Noah and the story of God's destruction of the earth by flood (Gen 7:4). In Hebrew, Jonah preaches only five words. Yet this short sermon has a profound result: The people of Nineveh believe God (as Abram does in Gen 15:6), and they respond dramatically with fasting and wearing mourning clothes.

3:6 covered himself with mourning clothes, and sat in ashes: This description of the king's turnaround is striking when one considers that Assyrian kings weren't known for their humility. An example of the boastful nature of Assyrian kings comes from the palace of Ashurbanipal, who inscribed on many of the walls: "I am Ashurbanipal, the great king, the mighty king, king of the universe, king of Assyria, king of the world's four regions, king of kings, unrivaled prince." See also Isaiah 10:12-15.

3:7-8 Let humans and animals alike put on mourning clothes: The king's instructions to have the animals dress in mourning clothes humorously shows the king leading from behind, since the Ninevites have already changed their lives, and cattle normally do not.

3:9 Who knows? God may see this and turn: A nearly identical phrase occurs in Joel 2:14. The author of Jonah demonstrates that Judah's enemy, Assyria, has heard the voice of the prophet Jonah and responded in the way that Joel tried to get Judah to respond.

4:1-11 Jonah is indignant that God decides not to destroy Nineveh and attempts to teach Jonah compassion. This story develops around several repeated phrases. Jonah wishes to die twice (4:3, 8). In response to Jonah's desire to die, the Lord twice asks Jonah if his anger is a good thing (4:4, 9). The first time the Lord asks, Jonah doesn't answer but sulks. The second time, Jonah answers that his anger is good. As an object lesson to display the senseless nature of Jonah's response, the Lord compares Jonah's pity for the shrub to the Lord's pity for Nineveh (4:10). The story ends without saying how Jonah reacts to the Lord's teaching.

4:2 I know that you are a merciful and compassionate God: The Lord's merciful and compassionate nature is often recounted in the OT as a liturgical profession of faith (Pss 78:38; 86:15; 103:8; 111:4; 116:5; 145:8-9) as well as a common declaration of the Lord's character (Exod 34:6-7; Num 14:18; Deut 4:31; 2 Chron 30:9; Neh 9:17, 31; Joel 2:13; Nah 1:3). Yet for Jonah this quality isn't a virtue. Instead, he accuses God of giving mercy to people that Jonah thinks don't deserve mercy.

4:3 it would be better for me to die: Jonah's sulking remark is an echo from the grumbling of the Hebrew people in the wilderness after the Lord delivered them from Egypt (Exod 14:12).

4:6-8 The LORD God provided a shrub: This mirrors Jonah 1:17, where the Lord "provided" a fish; 4:7, where the Lord provided a worm the next day at dawn, and it attacked the shrub so that it died. <sup>9</sup>Then as the sun rose God provided a dry east wind, and the sun beat down on Jonah's head so that he became faint. He begged that he might die, saying, "It's better for me to die than to live."

<sup>9</sup>God said to Jonah, "Is your anger about the shrub a good thing?"

Jonah said, "Yes, my anger is good—even to the point of death!"

<sup>10</sup>But the LORD said, "You 'pitied' the shrub, for which you didn't work and which you didn't raise; it grew in a night and perished in a night. <sup>11</sup>Yet for my part, can't I pity Nineveh, that great city, in which there are more than one hundred twenty thousand people who can't tell their right hand from their left, and also many animals?

"provided" a worm; and 4:8, where the Lord "provided" a dry east wind.

4:9-11 You 'pitied' the shrub for which you didn't work and which you didn't raise: The Lord states that Jonah had nothing to do with the creation or death of the shrub, suggesting that the Lord did have a hand in the creation of Nineveh. This statement affirms that the Lord is the ruler of the region's nations as well as Israel.

4:11 can't I pity Nineveh: The placement of Jonah's pity for the plant next to the Lord's pity for the people (and cattle) of Nineveh shows Jonah's foolishness and lack of compassion. Jonah received the Lord's compassion when the Lord saved him from the fish. At that moment, Jonah proclaimed a significant truth: "Deliverance belongs to the LORD" (Jon 2:9). But Jonah had hoped that the Lord's salvation wouldn't extend to his enemies. Nevertheless, the Lord shows Jonah the extent of his compassion by offering salvation even to Nineveh.

The beginning of the book says that Micah from Moresheth prophesied in the days of the Judean kings Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah (mid-8th to early 6th century BCE). During this period, the Assyrians increasingly exercised power over both the northern kingdom of Israel and the southern kingdom of Judah. In 722 BCE, the Assyrian army destroyed Samaria, the northern capital, because it stopped paying taxes. Micah 1:5-7 considers this attack and uses the destruction of Samaria as a warning to Jerusalem (cf. 2 Kgs 17). In 701 BCE, Assyria's King Sennacherib destroyed most of the cities of the Judean countryside and laid siege to Jerusalem.

Events from the latter part of the 8th century (722–701 BCE) form the background of Micah 1–3. Micah 1 describes the chaos and mourning caused by the destruction Sennacherib brought. Chapters 2–3 contain accusations of injustice against the leadership in Judah and Jerusalem. Portions of chapters 1–3 may be the work of the 8th-century prophet Micah from Moresheth, who would have witnessed the destruction caused by Sennacherib's forces. The prophet's hometown, Moresheth, is most likely the same as Moresheth-gath, mentioned in Micah 1:14. Though the location of Moresheth is unknown, Micah associates it with other towns of the lower Judean highlands, an area that Sennacherib destroyed. During Micah's career, the prophet likely traveled to Jerusalem on occasion to deliver his oracles to the prophets, priests, and leaders (Mic 3:1-12).

Micah 4–7 contains two separate units. Chapters 4–5 contain oracles of hope that look far into the future and predict a peaceful time when all of Judah's enemies are defeated and God's people experience prosperity. These chapters mention the Assyrian threat of Micah 1–3 as well as the Babylonian threat and the exile that occur over 100 years after Micah. Chapters 6–7 accuse Judah of following the wicked ways of the northern kingdom. The book, however, closes with words of hope, forgiveness, and restoration (Mic 7:8-20). As a whole, Micah swings between images of judgment (Mic 1-3; 6) and hope (Mic 4-5; 7). It's therefore difficult to speak of a single theme in the book of Micah. Nevertheless, chapters 1-3 and 6 compare Judah to Israel (Mic 1:5; 3:1; 6:16), warning that the Lord will judge Judah just as the Lord judged the northern kingdom.

In Micah 4-5; 7 we find another theme: a coming hope at the end of time and renewal. Both themes (judgment like the northern kingdom and hope and renewal) are included under the opening sentence that sets the entire work in the 8th century. Therefore, the message of Micah becomes one of a warning unheeded that results in disaster, but, because of God's kindness and faithful love, hope and renewal will follow disaster.

The Lord is coming!

1 The LORD's word that came to Micah of Moresheth in the days of Judah's Kings Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, which he saw concerning Samaria and Jerusalem:

<sup>2</sup> Listen, all you peoples!

Pay attention, earth, and all that fills it!
May the LORD God be a witness against you,
the Lord from his holy temple.

<sup>3</sup> Look! The LORD is coming out from his place;
he will go down and tread on the shrines of the earth.

<sup>4</sup> Then the mountains will melt under him;
the valleys will split apart,
like wax yielding to the fire,
like waters poured down a slope.

<sup>5</sup> All this is for the crime of Jacob and the sins of the house of Israel.
Who is responsible for the crime of Jacob?<sup>a</sup>
Isn't it Samaria?
Who is responsible for<sup>b</sup> the shrines of Judah?
Isn't it Jerusalem?

<sup>6</sup> So I will make Samaria a pile of rubble in the open field, a place for planting vineyards.
I will pour her stones into the valley;
her foundations I will lay bare.

<sup>7</sup> All her images will be beaten to pieces;
all her wages will be burned;
I will make all her idols worthless.
Since she gathered them from the wages of a prostitute, they will again become wages of a prostitute.

<sup>8</sup> On account of this, I will cry out and howl;
I will go about barefoot and stripped.
I will cry out like the jackals, and mourn like the ostriches.

Destruction looms

It has come as far as Judah;

1:5 crime of Jacob . . . Samaria . . . the shrines of Judah . . . Jerusalem: The Lord has come to judge the northern kingdom (Jacob, Israel) and the southern kingdom (Judah) for their false worship. The prophet condemns Samaria, the capital of Israel, for the sins of Jacob and Israel. The verse identifies the shrines of Judah, the places where false worship occurs, with Jerusalem itself. Several passages in the OT speak of Jerusalem as the only location where proper worship can occur (see Deut 12; 1 Kgs 8; 2 Kgs 23). Micah turns this image around and maintains that Jerusalem has become a location of false worship.

1:7 the wages of a prostitute: Throughout the Book of the Twelve (Hosea through Malachi, or the Minor Prophets) the image of a prostitute or unfaithful wife describes Israel or Judah's worship of gods other than the Lord. Samaria has engaged in the worship of images and idols. Micah draws from Hosea 2:12; 9:1 (see also Hos 4:17; 8:4; 13:2; 14:9; Mal 2:11-12).

1:8 I will go about barefoot and stripped. I will cry out like the jackals, and mourn like the ostriches: The prophet symbolically acts out what he has proclaimed will occur to the land. The land will become bare (Mic 1:6) because of the Lord's wrath, so Micah will also make himself bare by stripping and removing his shoes (see Isa 20:1-6; Jer 13:1-11; 19:1; 51:62-64; Ezek 5:1-17; 6:1-14; 24:1-27). Jackals and ostriches often lived in barren places and produced strange howling cries.

1:9-16 Nearly every city named contains a pun with the city name. For instance in Hebrew, Beth-le-aphrah sounds like "dust" (1:10); Zaanana sounds like the verb "come out" (1:11); Lachish sounds like the word for "a team of horses" (1:13); Mareshah sounds like "conqueror" (1:15). See sidebar, "Sennacherib's Campaign," for historical background.

Sennacherib's Campaign Micah 1:9-15 contains the names of several places that would have suffered at the hands of the Assyrian forces during Sennacherib's campaign through Judah and the Philistine coast in 701 BCE. Archaeologists have not yet successfully located every city in this list. However, the biblical account contains reference to Sennacherib's campaign through both Lachish (southwest of Jerusalem) and Jerusalem (see 2 Kgs 19). Gath is a well-known Philistine city along the coast (Mic 1:10). Miraculously, Sennacherib didn't destroy Jerusalem. Two biblical accounts claim that the Lord killed 185,000 Assyrian soldiers while they slept outside of Jerusalem and that because of this loss, Sennacherib and his forces were forced to return to Nineveh, their capital (2 Kgs 19:35-37; Isa 37:36-38; cf. 2 Chron 32:20-21). An inscription found in Sennacherib's palace confirms this account insofar as it admits that Sennacherib didn't take Jerusalem, but Sennacherib claims Hezekiah paid tribute so he would leave (cf. 2 Kgs 18:13-16, missing from the other two parallels). Though Sennacherib didn't take Jerusalem, the destruction he left behind in the surrounding Judean countryside was horrific.

he has struck as far as the gate of my people, as far as Jerusalem.

<sup>10</sup>In Gath tell it not; no need to weep there!<sup>c</sup>

In Beth-le-aphrah, roll yourself in the dust!

<sup>11</sup>Pass by (for your sake),<sup>d</sup> inhabitants of Shaphir!

In nakedness and shame she will not go out, inhabitants of Zaanan.

The cry of Beth-ezel will take away from you<sup>e</sup> any place to stand.

Calamity has come down from the LORD to the gate of Jerusalem.

<sup>13</sup>Harness the horses to the chariot, inhabitants of Lachish!

It was the beginning of sin for Daughter Zion;

the crimes of Israel have been found in you.

<sup>14</sup>Therefore, you will give good-bye gifts to Moresheth-gath;

the houses of Achzib have become a deception for the kings of Israel.

<sup>15</sup>Again I will bring to you the one who conquers, inhabitants of Mareshah; the glory of Israel will come as far as Adullam.

<sup>16</sup>Make yourself bald and cut off your hair because of your cherished children!

Make yourself as bald as the vulture, for they have gone from you into exile.

Oppressors will themselves be ruined

2 Doom to those who devise wickedness, to those who plan evil when they are in bed.

By the light of morning they do it, for they are very powerful.

<sup>2</sup>They covet fields and seize them, houses and take them away.

They oppress a householder and those in his house,

a man and his estate.

<sup>3</sup>Therefore, the LORD proclaims:

I myself am devising an evil against this family from which you will not be able to remove your necks!

You will no longer be able to go about arrogantly, for it will be an evil time.

<sup>4</sup>On that day, a taunt will be raised against you;

someone will wail bitterly:

"We are utterly destroyed!

2:1-5 These verses contain a two-step judgment scene. In 2:1-2 the prophet recounts a list of sinful activities undertaken by certain powerful landowners in Judah. They fix the property system so that they receive the most land and resources at the expense of others in the community. In Micah 2:3-8 the Lord speaks and declares the punishment that will come on these individuals. Just as the powerful landowners have taken land from others, the Lord will take land from them (see plan evil in 2:1 and devising an evil in 2:3).

2:4 On that day: Throughout the Book of the Twelve (Hosea through Malachi), this phrase means a day of God's

He exchanges the portion of my people;
he removes what belongs to me;
he gives away our fields to a rebel.”

<sup>5</sup> Therefore, you will have no one to set boundary lines by lot in the LORD’s assembly.

Leaders unwilling to hear God’s word

<sup>6</sup> “They mustn’t preach!” so they preach.

“They mustn’t preach of such things!
Disgrace won’t overtake us.”

<sup>7</sup> (Should this be said, house of Jacob?)

“Is the LORD’s patience cut short? Are these his deeds?”
Don’t my words help the one who behaves righteously?

<sup>8</sup> But yesterday, my people, the LORD rose up as an enemy.<sup>f</sup>

You strip off the glorious clothes<sup>g</sup> from trusting passersby, those who reject war.

<sup>9</sup> You drive out the women of my people, each from her cherished house;
from their young children you take away my splendor forever.

<sup>10</sup> Rise up and go! This can’t be the resting place; because of its uncleanness, it destroys and the destruction is horrific.

<sup>11</sup> If someone were to go about inspired and say deceitfully:

“I will preach to you for wine and liquor,” such a one would be the preacher for this people!

The false prophet’s “peace” will be destruction

<sup>12</sup> I’ll surely gather Jacob—all of you!

I’ll surely assemble you, those who are left of Israel!

I’ll put them together like sheep in Bozrah,<sup>b</sup> like a flock in its pen, noisy with people.

<sup>13</sup> The one who breaks out will go before them; they will break out and pass through the gate;
they will leave by it.

They will pass on, their king before them, the LORD at their head.

Micah justifies the coming destruction

3 But I said:

Hear, leaders of Jacob, rulers of the house of Israel!

Isn’t it your job to know justice?—

<sup>2</sup> you who hate good and love evil, who tear the skin off them, and the flesh off their bones, <sup>3</sup> who devour the flesh of my people, tear off their skin, break their bones in pieces, and spread them out as if in a pot, like meat in a kettle.

decisive activity, whether for good or for ill (see Hos 1:5; 2:16, 18, 21; Amos 8:3, 9, 13; 9:11; Obad 8; Mic 2:4; 4:6; 5:10; 7:11, 12; Zeph 1:9, 10; 3:11, 16; Hag 2:23; Zech 2:11; 3:10; 9:16; 11:11; 12:1-11; 13:1-4; 14:6-21).

2:5 no one to set boundary lines by lot. This phrase refers to the method used by the powerful landowners for dividing property by casting lots. The verse proclaims their punishment. They will no longer be able to participate in the distribution of land and will therefore become landless.

2:6-11 These verses tell of the conflict between Micah and the powerful landowners.

2:12-13 These images are unclear. Some interpreters believe they describe the Lord judging the people of Judah. Others conclude that they describe the Lord as shepherd, rescuing God’s people.

3:1-12 This unit is a three-part indictment spoken by the prophet against the leaders, prophets, and priests in Jerusalem. Verses 1-4 indict the leaders for their injustice, verses 5-8 the prophets for their willingness to prophesy peace for a price, and verses 9-12 the leaders, priests, and prophets for their greed. The unit ends with judgment against Jerusalem.

3:1-4 your job to know justice: The leaders and the rulers in Jerusalem were those responsible for delivering just judgments on behalf of the city’s population. Micah condemns these leaders and rulers because they have refused to judge fairly and have made the people their own victims. devour the flesh of my people: Micah uses a metaphor to speak of this practice. Treating the people unjustly is like eating their flesh.

3:4 he won't answer them. He will hide his face from them: signs of the Lord's judgment (see Ps 18:41; Prov 1:28; Isa 1:15; 59:2; Jer 11:11; Deut 31:17).

3:5-7 chew with their teeth: likely relates to the picture (in Mic 3:2-3) of the leaders who skin, chop up, and cook the people, then proclaim "Peace!": The prophets are guilty of predicting positive outcomes for those who give them money or food. This jeopardizes the truthfulness of their predictions. Consequently, like the leaders and rulers, these prophets will receive no answer from God.

3:8 But me! I am filled with power . . . with justice and might: Micah differs from the other prophets who prophesy for money, because Micah relies on the Lord's spirit. Micah differs from the leaders because he proceeds with justice.

3:10 who build Zion with bloodshed: See Nahum 3:1; Habakkuk 2:12.

3:11 Even the priests give in to bribery and corruption. The leaders, prophets, and priests together believe that the Lord's presence in the temple will prevent evil from happening to Jerusalem—a belief that Micah denies.

3:12 Zion will be plowed like a field: The leaders, prophets, and priests mistakenly believe that God won't judge Jerusalem. More than 100 years after Micah, in the time of Jeremiah, this misunderstanding still existed. In Jeremiah 26:18, the elders of the land quote this passage to convince the people to listen to Jeremiah's message, which was very similar to Micah's.

4:1-4 This section imagines a peaceful time in the distant future when the problems of Micah 3:1-12 will be reversed. The temple will no longer be in danger of destruction (4:1; cf. Mic 3:12), the priests won't be able to charge for their teaching because God will be the teacher (4:2; cf. Mic 3:11), and the leaders won't judge unjustly because God will be the judge (4:3; cf. Mic 3:1). No one will need weapons (4:3), and everyone will prosper (4:4). These verses repeat Isaiah 2:2-4, though Micah 4:4 ends differently.

4:1-2 peoples will stream to it. Many nations will go: In the OT, the words "peoples" and "nations" usually refer to foreign people groups who weren't included in God's covenant with Abraham (Gen 17). This passage imagines all

 Instruction will come from Zion and the LORD's word from Jerusalem.
- <sup>3</sup> God will judge between the nations and settle disputes of mighty nations, which are far away.
 They will beat their swords into iron plows and their spears into pruning tools.
 Nation will not take up sword against nation;
 they will no longer learn how to make war.
- <sup>4</sup> All will sit underneath their own grapevines, under their own fig trees.
 There will be no one to terrify them;

peoples coming to the Lord's house (the temple). This is remarkable because throughout most of the OT only those who are direct descendants of Abraham may worship at the temple.

4:2 he may teach us his ways and we may walk in God's paths: See Psalm 25:8, 9, 12.

4:3 swords into iron plows and their spears into pruning tools: This image of a peace when people no longer need weapons agrees with Isaiah 2:4, but Joel 3:10 reverses it with instructions for an epic battle.

4:5 This statement seems out of place because the preceding verses say that the nations will follow the Lord. Here the nations follow other gods, while God's people walk in the name of the Lord our God. Nevertheless, the verse encourages the faithfulness of God's people even if others don't follow.

4:6-8 These verses say that the Lord will rule from Jerusalem in the future. They anticipate a time of reversal when the Lord will restore those the Lord had driven away (in the Babylonian exile).

4:9-13 This passage takes a step backward from the previous verses and describes what has to happen before the peaceful time that Micah 4:1-8 predicts. These verses reveal the Lord's plan for Daughter Zion (a reference to Jerusalem). First, she will be stripped of her leadership (4:9). Second, other nations will attack her and take her to Babylon (4:10-11). Third, the Lord will rescue her from Babylon (4:10). Fourth, Daughter Zion will fight the nations who fought against her, and she will win (4:12, 13).

5:1-9 The first section (5:1-4) issues a call to arms for God's forces against an unnamed enemy, and promises that God will restore a Judean king to the throne in Jerusalem. The following section (5:5-6) names the enemy as Assyria and promises that God will provide Judean rulers to defeat the Assyrian forces. 5:7-9 promises that after the Assyrian attack, some of the Judeans will survive and eventually triumph. The Judean survivors in various places will be both a positive force (5:7) and a force of judgment against the enemies of God (5:8-9).

5:2 Bethlehem ... a ruler in Israel: The NT (e.g., Matt 2:6; cf. John 7:42) picks up on this promise of a Davidic ruler and applies it to the messianic hope of the 1st century CE. The original audience of this passage would have understood the promised ruler to be someone like Hezekiah, who delivered Jerusalem from the attacking Assyrians.

5:3 until... she who is in labor gives birth: It's unclear whether "she" is an unnamed woman who will be the mother of the promised king or "she" is Daughter Zion, mentioned in Micah 4:8, 10, 13; 5:1. ("Daughter Troop" in Mic 5:1 has uncertain meaning.) This verse is probably talking about Daughter Zion (another name for Jerusalem) producing a Davidic king.

5:5 seven shepherds and eight human princes: The promise of a Davidic king expands to include an entire organization under the king's rule. In this context, the shepherds are likely military officials responsible for organizing troops to resist the enemy.

5:6 They will shepherd ... with the drawn sword: Rulers from Judah will even have dominion in Mesopotamia and will defeat the Assyrians and subdue them militarily.

5:7-8 like dew ... like a lion: The presence of God's people will be nourishing, like dew (see Deut 32:2; Hos 14:5) and showers (see Ps 72:6), but also destructive like a lion.

- <sup>8</sup>Then the few remaining in Jacob will be among the nations, amid many peoples,
like a lion among the creatures of the forest,
like a young lion among flocks of sheep, which when it passes by, tramples and tears to pieces with no one to deliver.

all your enemies will be cut off.

Should I come before him with entirely burned offerings, with year-old calves?

5:10-15 Judah was addressed in Micah 5:1-9; now the nations that don't obey are addressed. This shift takes place without any notice until 5:15. The unit contains two different statements of judgment. The first (5:10-11) describes the military destruction of God's enemy, moving from the troops (horses and chariots) to the whole country (cities and defenses). The second statement relates the destruction of inappropriate religious practices, including sorcery, divination (5:12), and idol worship (5:13-14).

5:14 The Hebrew word for sacred pole is asherim. The "sacred pole" was an image of the Canaanite goddess Asherah (see Deut 16:21-22; 1 Kgs 15:13; 2 Kgs 18:3-4; 23:6; 14, 15).

6:1-5 The Lord assembles a trial or a dispute, and reads the charges against the people. The Lord reminds the people of the Lord's delivering acts from the time of the exodus until the entry into the land.

6:2 Hear, mountains, the lawsuit of the LORD! The mountains are the witnesses called to the controversy (see Mic 1:2; Deut 31:28; Isa 1:2).

6:5 Moab's King Balak . . . from Shittim to Gilgal: These statements give brief reminders of God's deliverance in Moab (before the Israelites entered the land; see Num 22-24) and the movement of the Israelites into the land from Shittim on the east side of the Jordan River in Moab to Gilgal (one of Joshua's main camps) in the land.

- 9 The voice of the LORD calls out to the city; wisdom appears when one fears your name.<sup>9</sup>
Hear, tribe, and who appointed her!<sup>9</sup> 10 Are the treasures of wickedness still in the house of wickedness, while the shorted basket<sup>10</sup> is denounced?<sup>10</sup>
11 Can I approve wicked scales and a bag of false weights 12 in a city<sup>11</sup> whose wealthy are full of violence and whose inhabitants speak falsehood with lying tongues in their mouths?
13 So I have made you sick by striking you!
I have struck you because of your sins.
14 You devour, but you aren't satisfied;
a gnawing emptiness is within you.
You put something aside,
but you don't keep it safe.
That which you do try to keep safe,
I will give to the sword.
15 You sow, but you don't gather.
You tread down olives, but you don't anoint with oil;
you tread grapes, but don't drink wine.
16 Yet you<sup>16</sup> have kept the policies of Omri, all the practices of the house of Ahab;
you have followed their counsels.
Therefore, I will make you a sign of destruction, your<sup>16</sup> inhabitants an object of hissing!
You must bear the reproach of my people.

The prophet laments

7 I'm doomed!
I've become like one who,

after the ripened fruits have been collected,

the people) responds to the charges the Lord presented in the controversy in 6:6-7. This individual asks the Lord a rhetorical question, in effect, "What more do you want from us?" and moves from the expected offering (year-old calves), to increasingly exaggerated offerings (thousands of rams, torrents of oil), to the most extreme sacrifice, one's oldest male child. In Micah 6:8 the prophet responds with a profound statement: The Lord wants people to live ethically in close relationship with God.

6:8 do justice, embrace faithful love, and walk humbly with your God: Earlier in Micah, the prophet addressed the leadership of Judah of corrupting justice (Mic 3:2-12). The term for "faithful love" occurs frequently in Micah (Mic 2:19; 4:1; 6:2, 6; 10:12, 12:6) and suggests the sort of deep abiding covenant loyalty that can be seen in one's actions. God also requires that the people walk humbly with God. The previous arrogant reply to God's indictment shows that the people lack humility, and their misunderstanding concerning what God requires shows that they are out of step with God.

6:9-16 This unit contains a call to attention (6:9), followed by a pronouncement of guilt for cheating in the marketplace (6:10-11), for violence, and for false testimony (6:12). 6:13-15 relates the verdict for the people's sins. 6:16 contains a brief accusation and verdict that charge the people of Jerusalem with sinning in the same way that the northern kingdom did before its destruction. Therefore, the destruction for Jerusalem will be the same.

6:11 wicked scales and a bag of false weights: See Leviticus 19:36; Amos 8:5; Hosea 12:7.

6:15 You sow, but you don't gather: The punishment for Jerusalem's sins is a time of poor harvests that contrasts with the future hope in Micah 4:3-4.

7:1-7 This unit presents the prophet's response to the judgment and the verdict in Micah 6:9-16. There are a daughter rises up against her mother, a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law;

the enemies of a man are those of his own household.

<sup>7</sup>But me! I will keep watch for the LORD;
I will wait for the God of my salvation;
my God will hear me.

Zion speaks

<sup>8</sup>Do not rejoice<sup>a</sup> over me, my enemy, because when I fall, I will rise;
if I sit in darkness, the LORD is my light.

<sup>9</sup>I must bear the raging of the LORD, for I have sinned against him, until he decides my case and provides justice for me.
He will bring me out into the light;
I will see by means of his righteousness.

shame will cover her who said to me:
"Where is the LORD your God?"
My eyes will see her ruin;<sup>a</sup> now she will become something to be trampled,

Micah responds to Zion

She addresses the city of Nineveh, also presented as if it were a person, and instructs her not to take pride over the weakened state of Jerusalem, because Nineveh also will be destroyed (see Nah 1:8; 2:7; 3:4).

7:11-13 The prophet responds to Daughter Zion with three statements. First is a statement of hope for the time following the exile when the community will rebuild the they will dread and fear you!

He doesn't hold on to his anger forever;
he delights in faithful love.

walls of Jerusalem (7:11; see Ezra 9:9; Isa 58:12; Amos 9:11). Next the prophet states that several different nations will come to Jerusalem (7:12). It is unclear whether this is a positive statement or a negative one. If one reads 7:12 with 7:11, the statement seems positive and creates a scene like that of Micah 4:1-3. However, if one reads it with the third statement, 7:13, which predicts the destruction of the earth, then the nations coming to Jerusalem are invading forces attacking Jerusalem. When one reads 7:12 as a negative statement, each of the major powers that oppressed Jerusalem from the 8th to the 6th century receives mention: Egypt, Assyria, and the River (Babylon). Therefore, it seems right to read 7:12 as a negative statement of nations coming against Jerusalem with the outcome stated in 7:13 that the earth (or the land of Judah) is desolate because of its inhabitants.

7:14 The prophet asks the Lord to shepherd God's people, providing them with fertile land (i.e., Carmel, Bashan, and Gilead).

7:15 This verse presents the Lord's response to the prophet's petition in Micah 7:14. The Lord will shepherd Israel just as in the time of the exodus.

7:16-20 These closing verses contain two parts. 7:16-18 relates the response of the nations to the Lord's positive activity for Judah. 7:18-20 switches between addressing God directly and speaking about God in the third person. The verses affirm that God will show compassion to Judah and forgive them for their wrongdoings.

7:17 lick dust: This is a sign of submission, usually paired with bowing (see Isa 49:23; Ps 72:9).

7:18 pardoning iniquity, overlooking the sin: The Book of the Twelve (Hosea through Malachi) speaks elsewhere of the Lord's gracious character (Joel 2:13; Jon 3:9). The phrasing of these verses comes from the revelation of God's name in Exodus 34:6-7 (see also Nah 1:2).

7:20 faithfulness to Jacob, faithful love to Abraham: The prophet appeals to the promise to Abraham, which included descendants and the land of Israel. The prophet maintains that the Lord's covenant promise to Abraham and Jacob is the reason that the Lord has shown compassion and forgiven iniquity, which under the Mosaic covenant (the Instruction given at Mount Sinai) called for punishment and the destruction of the people of God.

NAHUM

12/20/2017

10:17AM EST

The book of Nahum announces the fall of Nineveh in graphic detail from the point of view of the Judean prophet Nahum. Neither the prophet nor Elkosh, the prophet's hometown, appears in any other biblical source. Scholars generally consider Nahum a 7th-century prophet, some of whose words have been preserved in the prophetic book that bears his name. The name Nahum means “comfort,” but the violent imagery in the book offers little comfort, except for those who would rejoice over the downfall of a hated enemy.

Basalt lion heads from Carchemish, Assyria, 9th century BCE (Nah 2:11)

Nineveh was the capital of the Assyrian Empire from approximately 700 BCE until its destruction in 612 BCE. Nahum 3:8 shows that the Egyptian city Thebes had been destroyed. That happened in 663 BCE. Additionally, the fall of Nineveh to the Babylonians in 612 BCE likely triggered the initial gathering of the prophet’s words into a book. Nahum portrays the Assyrian Empire as a ruthless regime, an image promoted by the Assyrians themselves to cause deep fear in other countries. Nahum celebrates Assyria’s destruction. However, Nahum’s strong approval of bloodshed can be contrasted with Ezekiel’s affirmation that the Lord does not delight in the destruction of the wicked (Ezek 18:23).

The disturbing picture Nahum presents is similar to some other oracles against nations (cf. Isa 13–23; Jer 46–51; Ezek 25–32). But the placement of the book of Nahum near Jonah in the OT contrasts Nahum’s judgment against Assyria with Jonah’s story of how Assyria turned to the Lord. Consequently, Nahum also sends a message to Judah: If Nineveh is judged for not keeping its commitment to the Lord, the Lord can also punish Judah for turning from the Lord’s covenant. This warning to Judah is made clear in the next prophetic book, Habakkuk.

2 The LORD is a jealous and vengeful God;
the LORD is vengeful and strong in wrath.

The LORD is vengeful against his foes;
he rages against his enemies.

3 The LORD is very patient but great in power;
the LORD punishes.

His way is in whirlwind and storm;
clouds are the dust of his feet.

4 He can blast the sea and make it dry up;
he can dry up all the rivers.

Bashan and Carmel wither;

6 Who can stand before his indignation?
Who can confront the heat of his fury?

His wrath pours out like fire;
the rocks are shattered because of him.

1:1 This introduction contains two elements. The first describes the content as an oracle (Heb massa, often translated "burden," cf. Isa 13:1; 15:1; 17:1) directed against Nineveh. The second gives the name and hometown of the prophet, and says the message is a vision.

1:2-8 These verses in Hebrew are a type of poem called an acrostic. The first verse starts with the first letter in the Hebrew alphabet; the next verse starts with the next letter, and so on. This poem introduces the Lord as a divine warrior (cf. Mic 1:2-4; Hab 3:3-18) and proceeds in three segments. The first segment (1:2-3a) describes the Lord as a God who punishes God's enemies. The second segment (1:3b-6) speaks of the Lord's great power against nature. The last segment (1:7-8) divides the world into those who take refuge in the Lord and those who don't.

1:2 The LORD is a... vengeful God... vengeful... vengeful against his foes: The theme of the Lord's vengeance occurs over 20 times in the OT (e.g., Deut 32:35; Pss 58:10; 98:8; Isa 1:24; 34:8; 59:17; Jer 46:10; 51:36; Mic 5:15).

1:3 the LORD punishes: an allusion to Exodus 34:6-7, "The LORD! a God who is compassionate and merciful... yet by no means clearing the guilty." Allusions to the first half of Exodus 34:6-7 that refer to the Lord's merciful nature are common in the OT (cf. Pss 78:38; 103:8; 111:4; 145:8-9; Joel 2:13; Jon 4:2). This poem emphasizes the second half of Exodus 34:6-7 and reinforces a major theme of Nahum: punishment of the guilty.

1:4 Bashan and Carmel... Lebanon: These northern regions contained some of the most fertile land in ancient Israel, but several prophetic texts predict these locations will become a wasteland (cf. Isa 2:12-13; 19:5-7).

1:7 those who take refuge in him: Compare with Psalms 27:1; 43:2; 52:9; Isaiah 17:10; 25:4; Joel 4:6; Jeremiah 16:19; Nehemiah 8:10; Proverbs 10:29.

1:8 her: The feminine singular pronoun, in this case, refers to Nineveh. See comments on the pronouns in Nahum 1:9-11, 12.

1:9-14 This section uses pronouns without clear antecedents. For example: "they" (masculine plural) in verses 9-12 refers to Assyrian forces at the command of the Assyrian king; "you" (feminine singular) in verse 11 refers to Nineveh; "you" (feminine singular) in 1:12 refers to the city as though it were a woman—Lady Zion, the counterpart to Lady Nineveh; "you" (masculine singular) in verse 14 refers to the king of Assyria.

1:9 What are you plotting: addresses the Lord's enemies (the Assyrian forces) directly. This is a rhetorical question; all plotting against the Lord will fail. Distress will not arise twice: The Lord only needs to act once to completely wipe out the Assyrian forces.

Reassurance for God's people

 they have been cut off and have disappeared.

I have afflicted you;

I won't afflict you further, Zion.<sup>c</sup>

<sup>13</sup>Now I will break off his yoke from you

I will make your grave, for you are worthless.

<sup>15</sup><sup>d</sup>Look, on the mountains: the feet of a messenger who announces peace!

The worthless one will never again invade you;
 he has been completely cut off.

A city under attack

2 A scatterer has come up against you.

Guard the ramparts, watch the road, protect your groin, save your<sup>e</sup> strength!

<sup>2</sup>The LORD will restore the pride of Jacob, indeed, the pride of Israel, because ravagers have destroyed them and spoiled their branches.

<sup>3</sup>The shields of his warriors are red;
 his soldiers are dressed in crimson.

The ironwork of the chariots flashes like fire on the day he has prepared;
 the horses quiver.

<sup>4</sup>The chariots race wildly through the streets;
 they rush back and forth through the squares.

1:10 They: (masculine plural) refers to the Assyrian forces. consumed like stubble: The OT commonly uses the image of dried-up stubble to describe the Lord's enemies, often accompanied by the threat of fire (cf. Exod 15:7; Ps 83:18; Isa 5:24; 47:14; Joel 2:5; Obad 1:18; Mal 4:1).

1:11 From you goes out: Here again the reader encounters a pronoun without a clear antecedent (see note on Nah 1:9-14). The feminine singular pronoun refers to Nineveh because cities are feminine in the OT. The one who goes out from Nineveh (masculine singular) is the Assyrian king at the head of his forces.

1:12-13 Here the Lord speaks for the first time in Nahum. The Lord proclaims that the Assyrian threat against Judah is over (cf. Nah 1:15). The Lord also reveals that these same Assyrian forces that afflicted Judah were the Lord's agents (cf. Isa 10:5-7).

1:12 cut off: The Hebrew word translated "cut off" typically refers to shearing sheep. Micah 1:16 uses this word to describe the treatment of prisoners of war who had their heads shaved as a sign of disgrace. But in Micah the captors are the Assyrians and the captives are the Judeans.

Nahum turns this image around so that the Assyrians will be sheared.

1:14-15 These two verses celebrate Judah's safety because the Lord has destroyed the king of Assyria (addressed as "you"—masculine singular pronoun). The Assyrian king's dynasty, idols, and life will end.

1:15 the feet of a messenger: A runner with a message will bring the good news of Assyria's destruction to Judah (cf. Isa 52:7; Rom 10:15); and Judah will resume proper worship of the Lord in solemn festivals.

2:1-10 This section possibly describes the attack against and fall of Nineveh (which isn't mentioned by name in 2:1), or it may describe Nineveh as a bloodthirsty and greedy invader of Judah.

2:1 A scatterer: Scattering is part of curse language in the OT, usually implying military defeat (cf. Gen 11:4, 8, 9; Num 10:35; Deut 4:27; 28:64; 2 Sam 22:15; 1 Kgs 22:17; 2 Kgs 25:5; Neh 1:8; Jer 9:16; Ezek 20:23; 34: 41).

2:3-4 These two verses describe the attack so that the reader can visualize what the inhabitants would have seen as the troops advanced on their city.

2:5 He musters: the Assyrian king. they stumble: The king’s troops.

2:6 The gates of the rivers: The historical accounts of Diodorus and Xenophon say that Nineveh fell because of the flooding of their water supply, but these accounts likely rely on Nahum’s report or a tradition that developed because of it. The verse uses water imagery to talk about the city’s destruction (cf. Jer 51:42; Nah 1:8; 2:8).

2:7 She is sent into exile: “She” is probably Nineveh, portrayed here as a lady or a queen with female servants who lament her exile.

2:8 like a pool of water: See note on Nahum 2:6.

2:9 Plunder silver: As the capital of the Assyrian Empire, Nineveh possessed great wealth. Victorious armies customarily plundered a city of its valuables after its destruction. Assyrian reliefs (large stone panels) show Assyrians plundering Judean cities. Nahum announces that the Lord’s forces will now plunder Assyria.

2:10 all the faces grow pale: the Ninevites’ reaction to the destruction of their city. A similar response to a fearful enemy occurs in Joel 2:6, except there Judah is the one attacked.

2:11–3:19 An extended description of a city’s destruction.

In Nahum 2:1-10, the reader witnessed the attack and imagined the horrible destruction of Nineveh, or possibly the horror of destruction of Judah by Assyria. The remainder of chapter 2 and all of chapter 3 slow the pace and multiply the images of urban destruction. In 2:11-13 the destroyer (feminine singular pronoun) is a lion whose pride and source of food (prey) are taken away. 3:1-3 pronounces horrific judgment on the city of bloodshed. 3:4-7 takes up the metaphor of Nineveh as a whore whom the Lord shames. 3:8-11 compares Nineveh to the Egyptian capital, Thebes, destroyed by Assyrian forces in 663 BCE. 3:12-19 presents various images of Nineveh. 3:12-14 demonstrates the uselessness of Nineveh’s attempt to defend itself by comparing its fortresses to a ripe fig tree and its soldiers to women (deemed unfit for warfare). 3:15-17 uses images of locusts to convey Nineveh’s destruction. Finally, 3:18-19 declares that Nineveh’s leaders (shepherds, king) have died, leaving Nineveh hopeless.

3:1 city of bloodshed: This phrase characterizes the city of Nineveh as extremely cruel. The Hebrew phrase translated here as “city of bloodshed” also occurs in Ezekiel 9:9;

The City as a Whore Nahum 3:4-6 shames Nineveh's fall by depicting her as a woman convicted of whoredom in a public square, with her skirts lifted over her head. She is an exposed spectacle. To add to her shame, her accuser, the Lord, hurls disgusting things at her. This image is shocking by design and should make the reader uncomfortable. The imagery presupposes the idea that sexual promiscuity deserves sexual humiliation and violent punishment. This understanding was common in the ancient Near East. How can we reject sexual humiliation and violence while upholding Nahum's principle that the Lord's justice requires punishment of the oppressor? Consider first that the analogy of the guilty city to a prostitute is a metaphor. However, the analogy doesn't fully resolve the problem, because this metaphor still is based in brutal images for the humiliation of a woman, who is often a victim of sexual oppression. Consider second that this image is expressed from an oppressed community who has suffered greatly at the hands of the oppressors. In the end a theological tension remains. Out of a deep respect for covenant faithfulness and loyal love, we reject the view that sexual humiliation and violence are permissible, while we also affirm a God who will not leave the guilty unpunished.

22:2; 24:6, 9; Habakkuk 2:12, but in these passages it refers to Jerusalem.

3:4 Because of the many whorings: The text speaks of the city as though it were a prostitute. This is a common poetic device in prophetic literature. However, the image of the whoring woman usually applies to Israel, Judah, and Jerusalem, who are accused of being unfaithful to the Lord (cf. Isa 1:21; 57:3; Jer 2:20; 3:3, 6, 8; Ezek 16:15-41; 23:3-44; Hos 9:1).

3:8-12 Thebes: Assyrian forces destroyed Thebes in 663 BCE. Thebes had a reputation for invincibility because its surrounding waterways made it difficult to attack.

- 15 Fire will consume you there;
the sword will cut you down;
like the locust it will consume you.
Multiply like the locust; multiply like the grasshopper!
- 16 You boasted more traders than the heavens have stars.
The locust sheds its skin and flies away.
- 17 Your guards are like grasshoppers, your marshals like swarms of cicadas that encamp on stone fences on a chilly day; when the sun rises, they take flight; no one knows where they have gone.
- 18 Your shepherds have fallen asleep, king of Assyria!
Your officials are lying down.
Your people are scattered across the mountains;
there is no one to gather them.
- 19 There is no remedy for your injury;
your wound is grievous.
All who hear the news about you clap their hands over you.
Who has not suffered from your continual cruelty?

However, just as Thebes wasn't invincible, Nahum's analogy assumes Nineveh will also fall. Assyria destroyed Thebes, but the forces of the Lord will destroy Nineveh. 3:15b-17 Locust... grasshoppers... cicadas: This passage reflects a complex use of locust imagery. The first reference (Nah 3:15a) compares the fire that consumes Nineveh to locusts jumping around. The next references to locusts and grasshoppers address Assyria's vast military numbers and strength. However, 3:17 turns this image of swarming insects upside down by asserting that the vast numbers of merchants, guards, and marshals of Assyria will flee from the invading forces. 3:19 There is no remedy for your injury: an image for Nineveh's complete destruction (cf. Isa 1:5-6; Jer 30:12; 46:11; Mic 1:9). Who has not suffered from your continual cruelty?: Nineveh's extensive cruelty is both the reason for her punishment and the reason that those who pass by applaud her bloodbath.

HABAKKUK

The book of Habakkuk is one of the Minor Prophets, or Book of the Twelve, and tells the story of a prophet's disagreement with God. The dialogue between Habakkuk and God occurs in Habakkuk 1:2-2:5. The next section

(Hab 2:6-20) is a series of five speeches that anticipate doom for a wicked nation. The final section (Hab 3:1-19) combines a prayer, a victory song, and a prophetic response. The key question asked of God by Habakkuk is how God can remain “silent when the wicked swallows one who is more righteous” (Hab 1:13).

Engraving of an ancient Assyrian relief of horses (Hab 1:8)

Two groups are causing problems in Habakkuk: Judeans acting in violent ways and neglecting the Instruction (the teaching from Moses) and the Babylonians whom God will send to punish Judah. Most of Habakkuk addresses the problem of the approaching attack by the Babylonians.

By combining earlier material with commentary, the book of Habakkuk weaves together two themes to create a unified message. One theme considers why the wicked flourish but the righteous suffer. The second theme anticipates the Babylonian attack at any moment. It appears that the author inserted the Babylonian question into the earlier thoughts about God’s justice. Both themes specify Judah’s punishment at the hands of the Babylonians and assert that Babylonian control won’t last forever.

Apart from this prophetic work, the only mention of the prophet Habakkuk in the Bible is in the Greek addition to the book of Daniel, known as Bel and the Snake (Bel 33-37), found in the Apocrypha or deuterocanonical books. That reference seems more legendary than historical. The book of Habakkuk contains some internal information concerning Habakkuk’s identity. Both headings (Hab 1:1; 3:1) refer to Habakkuk as a prophet. Habakkuk seems associated with the worship at the temple. Thus Habakkuk’s complaints (1:2-4, 12-14) resemble psalms that pose a complaint (e.g., Pss 55; 64). The watch post on which Habakkuk will wait for a reply from the Lord may have been located at the temple, and the psalm that closes the book shows signs of use in worship.

1:1 See the introduction.

1:2-4 The prophet asks the Lord two questions: How long will the turmoil last for the people of God? (See Pss 6:3; 13:1; 79:5; 80:4; 89:46; 90:13; 94:3; Jer 31:22; Zech 1:12.) And why are injustice and violence everywhere?

1:4 The Instruction: In this context "The Instruction" probably means the first five books of the OT (Genesis-Deuteronomy), but here torah could simply mean "instruction" from God.

1:5-6 The Lord's response.

1:6 the Chaldeans: a tribal group that lived to the south of Babylon and at times rose to power over Babylon. They are mentioned frequently in Jeremiah (e.g., Jer 21:4, 9; 22:25; 24:5; 25:12; 32:4-5), often in parallel with Babylon.

1:7 He makes his own justice and dignity: The word translated "dignity" has a range of meanings: majesty, elevation, pride, and splendor. It carries an element of respect rather than mockery. The problem is that Babylon's "strength is his god" (Hab 1:11). It's for this reason that Babylon is guilty.

1:8-9 These verses emphasize Babylon's military power and skill.

1:10 he piles up dirt: refers to the military tactic of building a siege ramp. Military commanders forced prisoners of war to pile up earth next to a city wall to create a ramp so their forces could take the city. Travelers can still see the Babylonian siege ramp at the Judean city of Lachish to this day.

1:12-17 Habakkuk questions the Lord's plan to send Babylon to judge Judah. First, Habakkuk appeals to the Lord's

The Lord responds

<sup>2</sup>Then the LORD answered me and said,
Write a vision, and make it plain upon a tablet so that a runner can read it.<sup>f</sup>

<sup>3</sup>There is still a vision for the appointed time; it testifies to the end; it does not deceive.<sup>g</sup>

If it delays, wait for it;
for it is surely coming; it will not be late.

<sup>4</sup>Some people's desires are truly audacious;<sup>h</sup> they don't do the right thing.
But the righteous person will live honestly.

<sup>5</sup>Moreover, wine betrays an arrogant man.

like death, he is never satisfied.

He gathers all nations to himself and collects all peoples for himself.

sense of justice (1:12, 13; see sidebar, "Why Do Bad Things Happen?"). Second, he appeals to the Lord as creator. Habakkuk draws an analogy between humans and the fish of the sea, demonstrating that though God created humanity, the Babylonians think that they have control over humanity and all the nations, just as fishermen do whatever they like with the fish. Habakkuk asks whether God should continue to allow the Babylonians to do as they please with the people that God created.

2:1 I will take my post . . . to see what the Lord says to me: The word for the prophet's post can mean a place on the city (Jerusalem) wall or a place in the temple where religious leaders go to receive visions from God. It is in this place, fortress or temple, that Habakkuk waits to see how the Lord will answer his complaint.

2:2-20 The Lord's second response to Habakkuk. The Lord instructs Habakkuk to write down a vision from the Lord and give it to a runner, who will travel and read the vision aloud. The vision begins in Habakkuk 2:3, but it is unclear where it ends (2:6a or 20). Verses 6b-20 include five doom oracles, each beginning with the Hebrew word "hoy" (translated "doom" in 2:6, 9, 15, 19; and "pity" in 2:12). These doom oracles have a common theme: Babylon will be punished for its injustice and violence.

2:3 it testifies to the end . . . If it delays, wait for it: It's unclear from the context whether the vision proclaims Babylon or Judah's end. Habakkuk as a whole declares the end of both, so the verse may be intentionally ambiguous. The verse also warns that the "end" might be slow in coming but declares that it will certainly come.

2:4 the righteous person will live honestly: Habakkuk 2:4 compares the righteous person to the unrighteous person. While honesty and doing the right thing govern the righteous person's life, the unrighteous person desires more than his or her fair share (see Hab 2:5). Paul quotes Habakkuk 2:4 in Galatians 3:11. The Hebrew in the Habakkuk statement is very difficult to translate because it isn't clear whether the pronouns refer to a specific individual. Though Paul interprets the verse differently than the original audience of Habakkuk would hear it, the apostle maintains the main idea that there is a fundamental distinction between a righteous person and an unrighteous person. 2:5 wine betrays: Excessive consumption of alcohol often reveals the inner character of a person. Wine exposes a prideful person much as it exposes foolishness and laziness (see Prov 4:17; 9:2, 5; 21:17; 23:20, 30-31; 31:4, 6). The arrogance maintains the theme that began Habakkuk 2:4: "Some people's desires are truly audacious." He doesn't rest: Habakkuk 2:5 shifts abruptly to a military image of the Babylonian forces piling up victims.

Why Do Bad Things Happen? The book of Habakkuk explores a fundamental question for any person of faith: If God is good and just, why does God allow bad things to happen to good people and good things to happen to bad people? At the beginning of the book, Habakkuk asks God why the righteous people in Judah are oppressed by the unrighteous people (Hab 1:2-4). The answer is less than satisfying. God tells Habakkuk that God will punish the unrighteous in Judah by sending the Babylonians to destroy them (Hab 1:5-11). This also seems unfair to Habakkuk because the Babylonians are even worse than the unrighteous in Judah (Hab 1:12-17). God promises also to punish the Babylonians (Hab 2:6-17). Habakkuk still hasn't received a satisfying answer from God when the Babylonians approach Judah.

The turning point for the prophet occurs when God appears and defeats God's enemies. This situation becomes one of profound praise for the prophet. The final chapter of the book contains a psalm that praises God even while anticipating disaster: "Though the fig tree doesn't bloom, and there's no produce on the vine . . . I will rejoice in the LORD. I will rejoice in the God of my deliverance" (Hab 3:17-18).

- 6 Won't everyone tell parables about him or mocking poems concerning him?
They will say:
Doom to the one who multiplies what doesn't belong to him and who increases his own burden.
How long?
- 7 Won't they suddenly rise up to bite you?
Those who frighten you will awaken;
you will become plunder for them.
- 8 Since you yourself have plundered many nations, all the rest of the peoples will plunder you because of the human bloodshed and the violence done to the earth, to every village, and to all its inhabitants.
- 9 Doom to the one making evil gain for his own house, for putting his own nest up high,
for delivering himself from the grasp of calamity.
- 10 You plan shame for your own house, cutting off many peoples and sinning against your own life.
- 11 A stone will cry out from a village wall, and a tree branch will respond.
- 12 Pity the one building a city with bloodshed and founding a village with injustice.
- 13 Look, isn't this from the LORD of heavenly forces?
Peoples grow weary from making just enough fire; nations become tired for nothing.<sup>k</sup>
- 14 But the land will be full of the knowledge of the LORD's glory, just as water covers the sea.
- 15 Doom to the one who makes his companions drunk, pouring out your wrath in order to see them naked.<sup>l</sup>

2:9 house: palace or dynasty. From the context, it becomes clear that the well-protected house was built with violence and injustice (Hab 2:12). This text likely refers to Babylon.
2:12 city with bloodshed: See Ezekiel 22:2, 3; 24:6, 9; Nahum 3:1.
2:13 isn't this from the LORD . . . Peoples grow weary from making . . . fire: The Lord apparently brings fire to consume the walls of the city that the people labored to build. Habakkuk 2:13 contains Hebrew with uncertain meaning.

The prophet may be ironic by putting in parallel the making of the city wall and the making of fire. The writer may be alluding to Jeremiah's condemnation of Babylon and the burning of its walls (Jer 51:58; see Isa 11:9).
2:14 But the land: In contrast to the fire and destruction of the preceding verse, this verse sees future hope for the land (of Judah; see Isa 11:9).

drunk to see them naked is apparently a reference to Babylon, who is taking advantage of smaller nations (see Jer 51:7). The punishment for getting others drunk fits the crime, as the guilty one will drink from the cup of the Lord (see Isa 51:22; Jer 25:15, 17, 28; 49:12) until he staggers and experiences disgrace.

2:17 Lebanon: a region north of Israel conquered by Babylon.

2:18-20 These verses shift from condemnation for violence to condemnation for idolatry (see Isa 46:1-7; 57:13; Jer 10:2-5, 8-10, 14-16).

3:1-15 A new heading (3:1) again designates Habakkuk as the prophet (cf. Hab 1:1) responsible for the material that follows. A musical notation states that the prayer is to be prayed or sung according to the Shigionoth. The meaning of the word is unknown, but Psalm 7 also mentions the Shigionoth as a singular noun (here it is plural). The similarity with Psalm 7 probably indicates that chapter 3 was originally sung like other psalms in worship at the Jerusalem temple. The uses of "Selah" at Habakkuk 3:3, 9, 13 are also musical notations known from the Psalms. Habakkuk 3 contains (1) a prayer asking for God's mercy (3:2); (2) the Lord's victory song during a battle march (3:3-7; see Nah 1:2-6, Mic 1:2-7, Exod 15:1-21; Deut 33:2-5) from the southern desert; (3) a direct address to the Lord that narrates the preparation for battle (3:8-9a); (4) the response to that preparation (3:9b-11); (5) the march to battle (3:12-13a); and (6) the battle proper, which the Lord wins (3:13b-15). The chapter clearly had a liturgical purpose because it contains ritual instructions (3:1, 3, 9, 13, 19) also found in psalms, which are used during worship services at the Jerusalem temple.

ZEPHANIAH

The writer and the actual date of writing of Zephaniah are uncertain, though the book begins with a heading that attributes it to the prophet Zephaniah and links him to the historical period of Josiah, who reigned in Judah from approximately 640 to 609 BCE. Josiah was best known for discovering the Torah, the instruction scroll from Moses, in the temple. He was also admired for a series of religious reforms in Judah that were, however, only partially successful (2 Kgs 18:3-7). Zephaniah probably started preaching before Josiah's reforms began. Zephaniah's name could mean

"Yahweh hides" or "Yahweh treasures." Zaphon is the name of a Canaanite god, so the name could also mean "Zaphon is Yahweh."

Five literary techniques are markers of Zephaniah's prophecy. First, the repetitious use of the phrase "on that day" and its related references (see Zeph 1:9, 10, 14-16, 18; 2:1; 3:11) hold the series of prophecies of destruction together. The phrase also provides an element of surprise: The day of the Lord is a time of destruction (Zeph 1:9-10) that will bring a time of cleansing and restoration (Zeph 3:11-13). Second, the technique of cataloging, "I will ..."

Istanbul Archaeological Museum/BiblePlaces.com

(Zeph 1:2-4, 8-9, 12, 17; 3:9-12, 18-20), emphasizes the power and deeds of Israel's God. Third, the use of quoted speech (Zeph 1:12; 2:15; 3:7) adds to the drama of the prophet's message. Fourth, metaphors and similes create vivid impressions in the imaginations of Zephaniah's hearers and readers (see, e.g., Zeph 1:17; 2:9, 13; 3:1). Fifth, representations of the city of Jerusalem as though it were a person bring the city to life (Zeph 3:1-2).

Unlike some prophetic books in the Bible, Zephaniah features only one main speaker—God—whose speeches reveal a God full of wrath and hostility (Zeph 1:2-3). In a fit of rage, this God makes no discrimination between the guilty human beings and nonhuman creatures. All creation will experience the devastating effects of divine anger. This God is completely disgusted with Judah and Jerusalem because of their idolatry, their lack of trust in God, and their false worship (Zeph 1:4-6; 3:1-5). Israel's God is also enraged with the nations because of their unjust treatment of Judah (Zeph 2:8) and their corrupt deeds (Zeph 3:7). These images of God reflect not only the culture of the day but also the biblical writer's theological concerns. Zephaniah establishes Israel's God not only as king over all nations, peoples, and gods but also as one who is more powerful than the most powerful nations and peoples on earth. The text makes it clear that God's intent isn't for complete destruction. Some people will be spared, the nations will be brought into line, and Zion will be restored—but only after everything has been divinely disciplined and purified, and love is renewed. Finally, the text shows that salvation is meant not only for Judah but also for the nations.

1:1 The book of Zephaniah opens with a simple statement that says the words of the book come from the Lord. It then identifies the prophet Zephaniah through his ancestry. The fact that the word of the Lord came to Zephaniah shows that the prophetic word is a gift, and not something that can be learned or sought after. This heading is similar to that of Hosea, Joel, Micah, Haggai, and Zechariah, all of which identify the prophetic proclamations as "the LORD's word." 1:2-6 Zephaniah describes the destruction that will befall Judah, especially those who have disregarded God and God's ways (1:6). God will not discriminate, and the judgment will be more complete than the flood Noah survived. The reason for such divine wrath is clear from Zephaniah 1:4-6: Idolatry breaks the first commandment (Exod 20:2-6). Violation of the covenant relationship with God on the part of human beings results in destruction for both humanity and the natural world.

1:4 Baal: the storm god, the son of El, who is the chief Canaanite god. Baal was the god of rain and the giver of fertility. He was sometimes referred to as the husband of the land. Originally, the word "Baal" meant "lord" or "owner" (e.g., Exod 21:28-29) or "husband." By the Late Bronze Age, which was around 1550-1200 BCE, it had become a title for various gods and also the name of El's son. Worship of Baal took place on hills or mountaintops (1 Kgs 12:31; 2 Kgs 17:9-10; 23:8, 13, 15).

1:7-2:3 The day of the Lord will be a day of divine wrath, anguish, ruin, devastation, darkness, gloom, clouds, sadness, wailing, and economic distress for the inhabitants of Judah, their leaders, and even the capital city, Jerusalem. This day of the Lord is exaggerated, and it symbolizes God's extraordinary rage over the central sin of some people: apostasy. God won't tolerate Judah's worshipping other gods. The text as a whole shows God as a violent and somewhat unjust God who threatens to sweep away everything because some people have sinned. The last section of the poem is a warning (2:1-3). The prophet calls Judah to make restitution and to turn back to God before the day of the Lord becomes a reality (2:1-3b). If the people turn aside from their ways and seek a right relationship once more, then perhaps they will be hidden on the day of the Lord's anger (2:3c). The mission of the prophet, therefore, isn't only to expose wrongdoing but also to offer hope to a struggling people.

1:8 all those wearing foreign clothes: The officials and the king's sons who wear foreign clothing are most likely guilty of Baal worship (2 Kgs 10:22) and therefore having left the faith.

1:9 the one leaping on the threshold: refers to the superstition that evil spirits lurk at a doorway, waiting to enter a person who steps over the threshold.

1:13 Their wealth will be looted: The wealthy who arrogantly believe that God isn't paying attention to them will also experience God's punishment. Their wealth will be taken, and their houses and vineyards will be ruined and useless.

2:1-3 This series of commands calls the community together and addresses the shameless nation of Judah.

2:2 The threefold use of before shows the urgency of the situation. If the people change their ways, then God's wrath can be avoided.

2:3 The three before statements appear side by side with three commands that the prophet addresses to the community. Three times the people are told to seek: seek the Lord; seek righteousness; and seek humility. If the people seek God and the virtues of righteousness and humility, then they may escape God's wrath, which is coming no matter what the people do.

2:4-15 The day of the Lord will not only affect Jerusalem and Judah but also many of the Lord's other nations as well.

2:4 The first nation to be affected is Philistia (cf. Ezek 25:15-17). Gaza, Ashkelon, Ashdod, and Ekron (2:4) are all cities of the Philistine confederation.

2:5 inhabitants of the seacoast, nation of Cretans: These

- <sup>7</sup>The coast will belong to the survivors from the house of Judah;

- <sup>8</sup>I have heard the taunting of Moab and the defamation of the Ammonites;
they taunted my people and enlarged their borders.

says the LORD of heavenly forces, the God of Israel—Moab will become like Sodom and the Ammonites like Gomorrah:
a plot of weeds, salt pits, and devastation forever.
The few remaining from my people will plunder them;
the rest of my nation will possess them.
- <sup>10</sup>This will happen on account of their pride, because they taunted and boasted over the people of the LORD of heavenly forces.
- <sup>11</sup>The LORD will terrify them;
he will make all the gods of the earth disappear.
All the coastlands of the nations will bow down to the LORD, each one in its own place.
- <sup>12</sup>Moreover, you too, Cushites, will be pierced by my sword.
- <sup>13</sup>He will stretch out his hand against the north and will cause Assyria to perish.
Let him make Nineveh a desolation, a desolate place like the wilderness.
- <sup>14</sup>Flocks will lie down in its midst, every living thing of the nation.
Moreover, the owl and the porcupine will spend the night on its columns.
A bird's call will resound from the window.
Desolation will be on the sill,
for the cedar will be stripped bare.

<sup>4</sup>Or they will pasture by them.

people would be the Cherethites, which is a synonym for, or a subdivision of, the Philistines. Crete is part of the larger Aegean region from which the Philistines came.

2:6-7 shepherds: These are Judeans. Even though the image in Zephaniah 2:4-5 is destruction, the land itself will continue on as a sign with life-sustaining possibilities. A word of hope for Judah can be found in this judgment against Philistia.

2:8-11 In this third judgment speech, the targets of God's wrath are Moab and Ammon (cf. Gen 19:30-38; Isa 15; Jer 48-49:6; Ezek 25:1-11). These two nations were Judah's neighbors to the east across the Jordan River. Both the Moabites and the Ammonites have made fun of the people of Judah, God's people, and have insulted their territory (2:8). Therefore, Israel's God will deal terribly with these two groups. Ironically, the raiders will be looted by those whom they have attacked (2:9-10). For reference to Sodom and Gomorrah, see Genesis 19:1-29. The focus is on Israel's God as the ruler over all other gods and the conversion of the nations to worshipping God.

2:12 The fourth judgment speech is directed toward Ethiopia (cf. Isa 18:1-6), also known as Cush. The Cushites will be slain by the Lord's sword, a dreadful weapon, sharpened, polished, flashing, and always ready for slaughter (cf. Ezek 21:1-17).

2:13-15 What the prophet Nahum anticipated, Zephaniah sees as well: the destruction of Nineveh and the Assyrians. This fifth judgment speech is addressed to Assyria and its capital city Nineveh. Animal images reinforce the picture of the city's total destruction. Though once a secure city, Nineveh will become a wilderness for animals.

 Her priests pollute that which is holy;
 they do violence to the Instruction.

<sup>5</sup> The LORD is righteous in her midst.
 He does nothing unjust.
 Morning by morning he renders justice, but the unrighteous one knows no shame.

<sup>6</sup> I will cut off nations;
 their towers will be destroyed;
 I will devastate their streets.
 No one will pass through.

Their cities will be laid waste.
 There will be no person, no inhabitant left.

<sup>7</sup> I said, "Surely, she will fear me; she will take instruction so that her habitation won't be cut off<sup>a</sup> because of everything I did to her."
 However, they rose early to corrupt their deeds.

<sup>8</sup> Therefore, wait for me, says the LORD, wait for the day when I rise up as a witness,<sup>f</sup> when I decide to gather nations, to collect kingdoms,
 to pour out my indignation upon them,
 all the heat of my anger.
 In the fire of my jealousy, all the earth will be devoured.

Foreign Nations One of the main sections of the book of Zephaniah is made up of the oracles against the foreign nations (2:4-15). To Israel and Judah the foreign nations are a political threat because of their military power (Isa 30:1-5; 31:1-3) and strength (Ezek 38; Jer 50:1-3). The foreign nations are a religious temptation because of their idols (Deut 20:15-16; Ezek 20:32). Because of their wickedness, the nations are under the threat of God's wrath, but they are also under God's favor. They receive God's promise and goodness (Isa 42:1; 66:18-19), and they have a place in the divine plan for universal salvation (Isa 2:1-3; 25:6-8; Mic 4:1-4). In Zephaniah the foreign nations are faced with charges and judged (Zeph 2:4-15). They also exist under the divine promise of restoration (Zeph 3:9-20). Viewed favorably by God (Zech 8:20-23; Isa 56:3-8), they will one day stream toward God's holy mountain, experience peace, and be welcomed into God's kingdom (Isa 2:2-4; Mic 4:1-5).

3:1-8 These verses criticize Jerusalem. Verses 1-5 portray God taking Jerusalem to task for a variety of reasons: It is stubborn, argumentative, and distant from God (3:2). The city's officials and judges are violent and vicious, preying on those under their authority (3:3). Its religious leaders are just as bad: The prophets are reckless, unfaithful people, and its priests have corrupted what is sacred and have done violence to the teaching of the Torah, the Instruction (3:4). God stands in sharp contrast to all of these persons. God acts justly every day (3:5) and distributes judgment on Jerusalem (3:6). God hopes that Jerusalem will reform her ways (3:7). Following the series of judgment speeches and criticism of Jerusalem, Jerusalem is now called to wait for the Lord, who will surely pour out divine wrath on the nations (3:8).

3:5 The prophet shifts the focus away from Jerusalem (see Zeph 3:1-4) and introduces God as the speaker in Zephaniah 3:6-13.

3:9-20 The prophet gives a dramatic description of the restoration of the nations and Jerusalem. His listeners learn that words of judgment, criticism, and purification lead to words of hope, salvation, and restoration.

3:9-10 The prophet indicates the type of purification that will occur: Foreign countries will be given pure speech so that they can all worship Israel's God, and bring gifts to this God as well (3:10).

3:14-20 This section is addressed to Daughter Zion (Daughter Jerusalem), who is now disciplined and purified. Zephaniah calls on the city to shout and sing joyfully (3:14). They sing because God has removed the judgment against the city, has turned away all the enemies (cf. Zeph 1:2-3:8, 15), and now dwells in their midst (3:15). These verses point forward to the realized promises of deliverance and restoration for Jerusalem, Judah, and Israel.

3:15 God has removed the judgments against the people, turned away the enemy, and is now the king, who dwells in the people's midst. These actions will bring about peace.

3:16 On that day: The phrase points to a future new day for Jerusalem. Jerusalem and its inhabitants will no longer experience the "day of the Lord," a day of wrath (Zeph 1:2-2:3). Don't fear, Zion: This is a typical formula (cf. Gen 15:1; 21:17; 35:17; Exod 20:20; Isa 7:4; 35:4; 40:9; 41:10; Jer 30:10; Joel 2:21; Hag 2:5; Ruth 3:11). The prophet anticipates the end of the Babylonian exile and the return of the people of Judah to their land.

3:17 Because God dwells in Jerusalem and among the people, there is reason to celebrate. Jerusalem's disgrace will no longer be remembered by others, because God is about to remove disaster from the city.

3:18-20 A city and a people now purified will soon be made glorious through God's transformative love. Jerusalem is reassured that God will deal with the city's oppressors (3:19a). With the right relationship renewed, God will gather the peoples together, bring them home, restore them, and make them glorious throughout the earth. This transformation will happen as a result of God's initiative. As with many of Israel's prophets, Zephaniah's final proclamation brings hope.

HAGGAI

Haggai is the 10th book in the Minor Prophets, or the Book of the Twelve. The book contains several date formulas that place the prophecies during the second year of Persia's King Darius I (522–486 BCE) in approximately 520 BCE.

The information about the prophet's identity and role in his community is typical of an Israelite prophet. He is designated as the Lord's "messenger" in Haggai 1:13. This may be a symbolic title for a prophet (cf. Mal 2:7; 3:1). The name Haggai, which means "my feasts," suggests that the prophecies in the book may be associated with festival days, such as the new moon or the Festival of Booths.

According to the date formulas in the book (Hag 1:1, 15; 2:1, 10, 20), Haggai's prophetic work was short and effective. Within four months, he convinced the reluctant community to work on the temple. The first temple (built by Solomon; 1 Kgs 6) had been destroyed, and the people were scattered in Egypt, Babylon, and elsewhere. In 538 BCE they were given the opportunity to return to Judah to rebuild their lives, which included restoring the temple (cf. 2 Chron 36:22–23). Upon their return to the land, the community encountered various challenges in rebuilding the temple and altar (a story told in the book of Ezra).

Haggai expects his listeners to obey God while rebuilding the temple in Jerusalem. His tone is sometimes encouraging and sometimes scolding as he offers hope for a restored community.

The challenge to rebuild

1 The LORD's word came through Haggai the prophet in the second year of King Darius, in the sixth month on the first day of the month, to Judah's governor Zerubbabel, Shealtiel's son, and to the high priest Joshua, Jehozadak's son:

2 This is what the LORD of heavenly forces says:

These people say, "The time hasn't come, the time to rebuild the LORD's house."

3 Then the LORD's word came through Haggai the prophet:

4 Is it time for you to dwell in your own paneled houses while this house lies in ruins?

5 So now, this is what the LORD of heavenly forces says:

Take your ways to heart.

6 You have sown much, but it has brought little.

You eat, but there's not enough to satisfy.

You drink, but not enough to get drunk.

There is clothing, but not enough to keep warm.

Anyone earning wages puts those wages into a bag with holes.

7 This is what the LORD of heavenly forces says:

Take your ways to heart.

8 Go up to the highlands and bring back wood.

Rebuild the temple so that I may enjoy it and that I may be honored, says the LORD.

9 You expect a surplus, but look how it shrinks.

You bring it home, and I blow it away, says the LORD of heavenly forces, because my house lies in ruins.

But all of you hurry to your own houses.

10 Therefore, the skies above you have withheld the dew, and the earth has withheld its produce because of you.

11 I have called for drought on the earth, on the mountains, on the grain, on the wine, on the olive oil,

1:1 through Haggai the prophet: Haggai is the instrument God used to speak to the community. the second year: the first of several date formulas in the book of Haggai (see Hag 1:15; 2:1, 10, 20). Dates are important in the book because they establish the historical setting for the message. In the late 7th century BCE there was a shift in the pattern of dating events. Before that time only years were given (see 1 Kgs 15:9; Isa 14:28). With the exile, the month, the day, and sometimes both were added to the year (see Jer 28:1, 17; 36:9, 22; 39:1, 2; 52:4, 5-6, 12; 2 Chron 3:2; Zech 7:1). Later in Haggai, when the prophet speaks about the whole earth quaking "on that day" (Hag 2:23), he is referring to a future when the people of God, led by Governor Zerubbabel, would rule over the other nations. 1:1 introduces the political leader, governor Zerubbabel (cf. Ezra 3:2, 8; 4:3; 5:2; Neh 12:1; Zech 4:6, 9, 10) and the religious leader, the high priest Joshua (cf. Ezra 3:2, 8; 4:3; 5:2). These two leaders play key roles in the Jerusalem community during this time of restoration.

1:2-15 A dispute breaks out about rebuilding the temple. The people are working on their own homes but not providing a house for worshipping God.

1:2 this is what the LORD . . . says: a typical way for a prophet to let the people know what is expected of them. of heavenly forces: refers to the Lord's power and command over a heavenly army. The people, however, say that the time hasn't come. The people may be saying that they still have time to rebuild the temple. Perhaps they have in mind the prediction in Jeremiah 24:11-12, which anticipates (possibly in 597 BCE) that the temple would be restored in 70 years. This would mean that they still have another seven years to restore God's house. But their reason is much more practical: They haven't yet rebuilt their own houses.

1:4 God's view is introduced through a question about personal priorities.

1:5-6 Take your ways to heart: The community is asked to recognize that their efforts are futile. The list of misfortunes is similar to the curses in Deuteronomy 28:15-41. Even hard work and dedication are cursed by loss and lack of needed resources. They won't be satisfied by anything.

1:7-8 This is what the LORD . . . says: See note on Haggai 1:2. This command to take your ways to heart is repeated (Hag 1:5, 7; 2:15, 18) in order to draw attention to the job of replacing the temple. that I may be honored: See Haggai 2:9.

1:9-11 The focus on futile effort resumes and makes clear the connection between the mixed-up priorities. my house lies in ruins: Even though the people were saying that it's not the time to complete the temple (Hag 1:2, 4), they appear to have completed their houses. So the prophet thinks they really are shirking their responsibility to build God's house. He threatens them with a curse that the skies and earth will withhold their produce (see Deut 28:15-68).

1:11 called for drought: See Deuteronomy 28:22, 39 and Amos 4:6-9, where drought and spoiled crops are connected to disobedience.

on that which comes forth from the fertile ground, on humanity, on beasts,
and upon everything that handles produce.

<sup>12</sup>Zerubbabel, Shealtiel's son, and the high priest Joshua, Jehozadak's son, along with all who remained among the people, listened to the voice of the LORD God and to the words of Haggai the prophet because the LORD their God sent him. Then the people feared the LORD.

<sup>13</sup>Then Haggai, the LORD's messenger, gave the LORD's message to the people:

I am with you, says the LORD.

<sup>14</sup>The LORD moved the spirit of Judah's governor Zerubbabel, Shealtiel's son, and the spirit of the high priest Joshua, Jehozadak's son, and the spirit of all the rest of the people. Then they came and did work on the house of the LORD of heavenly forces, their God, <sup>15</sup>on the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month in the second year of Darius the king.

Encouraging the people

2 On the twenty-first day of the seventh month, the LORD's word came through Haggai the prophet: <sup>2</sup>Say to Judah's governor Zerubbabel, Shealtiel's son, and to the chief priest Joshua, Jehozadak's son, and to the rest of the people:

<sup>3</sup>Who among you is left who saw this house in its former glory?

How does it look to you now?

Doesn't it appear as nothing to you?

<sup>4</sup>So now, be strong, Zerubbabel, says the LORD.

Be strong, High Priest Joshua, Jehozadak's son, and be strong, all you people of the land, says the LORD.

Work, for I am with you, says the LORD of heavenly forces.

<sup>5</sup>As with our agreement when you came out of Egypt, my spirit stands in your midst.

Don't fear.

<sup>6</sup>This is what the LORD of heavenly forces says:

In just a little while, I will make the heavens, the earth, the sea, and the dry land quake.

<sup>7</sup>I will make all the nations quake.

The wealth of all the nations will come.

I will fill this house with glory, says the LORD of heavenly forces.

<sup>8</sup>The silver and the gold belong to me, says the LORD of heavenly forces.

<sup>9</sup>This house will be more glorious than its predecessor, says the LORD of heavenly forces.

I will provide prosperity in this place, says the LORD of heavenly forces.

1:12 The list signals that the whole community listened to the prophet Zerubbabel (the political representative) and the high priest Joshua (the religious representative), and the people feared (see Hag 1:1; 2:1). The entire community is responsible for obeying God (cf. Hag 2:4-5).

1:13-15 I am with you: words of assurance to the people about God's presence (see Hag 2:4). This assurance occurs in situations where the people have real reason to be distressed (cf. Gen 26:24; Isa 41:10; 43:5; Jer 1:19; 15:20).

1:14 God also moved the spirit of the entire community. This is more than simply cheering them up. They were motivated into action and responded by building the temple (Hag 1:15).

1:15 the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month: 23 days after the prophet began to speak God's message to the community (cf. Hag 1:1). The short response time is remarkable, perhaps easier after the curses they experienced. Contrast other prophets, such as Jeremiah or Amos, who struggled to get the community to listen to God's message.

2:1-2 On the twenty-first day of the seventh month: another date stamp. See note on Haggai 1:1; compare with Haggai

1:15; 2:20. through Haggai the prophet: identifies Haggai as the instrument used to give the message.

2:3 Who among you: a question for any eyewitnesses to the former temple. Anyone who was alive and aware of the temple before it was vandalized (pre-597 BCE) and eventually destroyed (587 BCE) would be at least 80 years old in 520 BCE. So Haggai's audience probably has no memory of an eyewitness experience of the temple. The reputation of the temple was of a huge complex, filled with riches. By contrast, the temple ruins are nothing to look at. The community is asked to rebuild a temple that may not live up to the reputation of the first temple (cf. 1 Kgs 7:51).

2:4-5 Be strong: words of encouragement to the community. Don't fear (2:5) is tied to the promise of divine presence within the community (see Isa 41:10).

2:6-9 This is what: See notes on Haggai 1:2, 5. God promises to provide resources to build the second temple. The promise signals control over the elements—from the created order to the political structures of the world. the heavens, the earth, the sea, and the dry land: echo the creation

Cleansing the work

<sup>10</sup>On the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month in the second year of Darius, the LORD's word came to Haggai the prophet:

<sup>11</sup>This is what the LORD of heavenly forces says:

Go ahead and ask the priests for a ruling:

<sup>12</sup>"If someone lifts holy meat into the hem of one's garment and that hem touches bread, stew, wine, oil, or any kind of food, will it be made holy?"

And the priests responded, "No."

<sup>13</sup>Haggai said,

"If an unclean person touches any of these things, will it become unclean?"

And the priests responded, "It will be unclean."

<sup>14</sup>Then Haggai responded:

Thus has this people and this nation become to me, says the LORD, and everything that they do with their hands.
Whatever they offer is unclean.

<sup>15</sup>So now, take it to heart from this day forward.

Before stone was placed on stone in the LORD's temple, <sup>16</sup>when one came to the granary for twenty measures, there were only ten;

and when one came to the wine vat for fifty measures, there were only twenty.

<sup>17</sup>I struck you—everything you do with your hands—with blight and mildew and hail;
but you didn't return to me.<sup>a</sup>

<sup>18</sup>So take it to heart from this day forward, from the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month.

Take it to heart from the day when the foundation for the LORD's temple was laid.

<sup>19</sup>Is the seed yet in the granary—or the vine, the fig tree, or the pomegranate—or has the olive tree not borne fruit?

From this day forward, I will bless you.

Royal expectations

<sup>20</sup>And the LORD's word came to Haggai a second time on the twenty-fourth of the month, saying:

<sup>21</sup>Speak to Judah's governor Zerubbabel:

I am about to make the heavens and the earth quake.

<sup>22</sup>I will overthrow the thrones of the kingdoms;

I will destroy the strength of the nations.<sup>b</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Or but you weren't with me. <sup>b</sup>Or of the kingdoms of the nations story in Genesis 1. the nations: indicates God's power over the world. The silver and the gold: These precious metals signal wealth (cf. Gen 13:2; 24:35; Exod 12:35; 1Kgs 10) and support the promise to make the second temple more glorious than the first.

2:10-19 twenty-fourth day of the ninth month: another date formula. Time has passed since the last time the prophet communicated with the community about obedience (see notes on Hag 1:5-11).

2:10-14 The lesson illustrates the priests' knowledge and thus their duty (cf. Lev 10:10; 11:16-47; 14:56-57). will it be made holy?: It was the priests' duty to teach the people the Instruction and to teach the community how to remain in a pure relationship with God (cf. Lev 6:18, 27; Exod 29:37). will be unclean: Holiness isn't transferred continually from one object to another, but uncleanness is easily passed on (see Hag 1:13).

2:15-17 take it to heart: See Haggai 1:5, 7; 2:18. The community is asked to compare its reduced resources before and after they began working on the temple. I struck you: God takes responsibility for the community's distress. While blight and mildew and hail may be natural occurrences, these curses are the result of God's actions against the community (see Hag 1:11; cf. Deut 28:22; Amos 4:9).

2:18-19 Take it to heart: See Haggai 1:5, 7; 2:15. The focus is now on the link between obedience and God's blessing.

2:20 The second time points back to the ninth month mentioned in Haggai 2:10, 18. In Haggai 2:10 the prophet is commanded to speak to the priests, but in Haggai 2:21 he is commanded to speak to "Judah's governor Zerubbabel."

2:21-22 The book's conclusion has strong political overtones. The message to Zerubbabel is that God is going to make the heavens and the earth quake, which shows God's power over the created order (see Hag 2:6; cf. Amos 4:13) and the world powers, including their palaces and their ability to make war.

I will overthrow chariot and rider; horses and riders will fall.

Each one will fall by the sword of his companion.

<sup>23</sup>On that day, says the LORD of heavenly forces:

I will take you, Zerubbabel, Shealtiel's son, my servant, says the LORD;

I will make you like a signet ring because I have chosen you, says the LORD of heavenly forces.

2:23 Eze 3:2;
Neh 12:1;
Jer 22:24

2:23 On that day: a formula used to refer to a date already mentioned or to a time in the distant future. Here it may point to the date in Haggai 2:20. It is also used elsewhere of the future when God will overthrow the nations (cf. Isa 19:21-24; Zech 3:7). signet ring: God will place Zerubbabel in charge, thus placing the power of decision in his hand. The radical message is that the leader of Judah, a small province under Persian rule, will rule the world by God's design.

ZECHARIAH

The book of Zechariah features the prophet Zechariah, who began preaching around 520 BCE. He was a contemporary of the prophet Haggai, and in the Minor Prophets, also known as the Book of the Twelve, Zechariah follows Haggai. Zechariah's name is a compound derived from Yah, which is the first syllable of Yahweh (the LORD), and the verb zakar, which means "to remember." Hence, the prophet's name can be translated "The LORD remembered."

Even though we don't know when it was written, the text of Zechariah reflects the historical times of Darius I, when the remaining few people in Judah were struggling against other kingdoms and trying to limit the influence of other gods. This small group of faithful Israelites was also struggling to rebuild the temple. Very little is known about the person Zechariah, but he was likely a priest. The material of the text reflects the years surrounding the collapse of the Babylonian Empire and the rebuilding of the temple under Zerubbabel in about 520 BCE. The text's focus is primarily on Jerusalem, though Babylon also comes into view.

The book itself consists of prose and poetry and isn't a unified text. It can be divided into two parts: chapters 1–8 and 9–14. The relationship of the two parts is confusing because the parts seem to reflect different authors, different time periods, and different themes. Whereas Zechariah 1–8 contains mostly visions, Zechariah 9–14 has no visions. The rebuilding of the temple is a primary theme and concern in Zechariah 1–8, but Zechariah 9–14 makes no mention of this theme or concern.

In Zechariah 1–8, Judah is called to turn away from sin. The restoration of the land of Israel to its people becomes a hope. Exiles are encouraged to return to Jerusalem. The restoration of the temple, the priesthood, ritual practices, and the monarchy under Zerubbabel are promoted with a renewed respect for each element. In Zechariah 9–14, Judah's long-awaited king is expected at any moment (Zech 9:1-10).

Two olive trees (Zech 4:12)

iStockPhoto

This king will bring release from captivity (Zech 9:11-17). Before the monarchy can be restored, however, the people must be cleansed (Zech 12:10–13:1), along with the priests (Zech 12:13-14) and the prophets (Zech 13:3-6). Further, the exiles live under the possibility of being scattered once again (Zech 13:7-9), due to the threat of attack by enemy nations (Zech 12:1-6; 14:1-5, 12). The people are also informed that the north and the south will not be reunited until their leaders turn away from sin and reform their ways (Zech 11:7-11). Thus this second part of the book delivers a word of cautious hope and possible doom.

The people change

1 In the eighth month in the second year of Darius, the LORD's word came to Zechariah the prophet, Berechiah's son and Iddo's grandson:

<sup>2</sup>The LORD was terribly angry with your ancestors.

<sup>3</sup>But you must say to the people,

The LORD of heavenly forces proclaims: Return to me,
says the LORD of heavenly forces, and I will return to you, says the LORD of heavenly forces.

<sup>4</sup>Don't be like your ancestors to whom the former prophets preached:

The LORD of heavenly forces proclaims:
Turn from your evil ways and your evil deeds.
But they didn't listen;
they didn't draw near to me.

<sup>5</sup>So where are your ancestors?

Do the prophets live forever?

<sup>6</sup>In fact, didn't my words and laws, which I gave to my servants, the prophets, pursue your ancestors?

And then the people changed their hearts, and they said, The LORD of heavenly forces has treated us according to what we have done,<sup>a</sup> exactly as he planned.

First night vision

<sup>7</sup>On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month (the month of Shebat<sup>b</sup>) in the second year of Darius, the LORD's word came to Zechariah the prophet, Berechiah's son and Iddo's grandson:

1:1 The heading identifies the time period when Zechariah delivered his prophetic message. It also names the king who was in power when Zechariah was preaching, makes clear that the prophetic word is God's word, and provides some knowledge that pertains to Zechariah's ancestry. Darius, the king of Persia from 522 to 486 BCE, was one of the Persian Empire's more skilled administrators, and he was credited by the Greeks for his skill as a lawgiver. The LORD's word came to Zechariah indicates that the prophetic word about to be preached is a divine gift that Zechariah received, most likely, intuitively. The phrase lends authority to Zechariah's message. Iddo: Zechariah's grandfather was a priest in charge of one of the priestly families that returned from the Babylonian exile (Neh 12:4). Given this ancestral background, Zechariah was probably connected with the Zadokite branch of the priesthood.

1:2-6 The prophet provides a view of the past for his listeners. He reminds them of the stubbornness of their ancestors who ignored the message of the prophets. As a result God became terribly angry with the people. The ancestors didn't return to their God. They didn't turn from their evil ways until they experienced terrible hardship, which led to their changed hearts and lives (1:6). Zechariah pleads with his listeners not to be like their ancestors (cf. 2 Chron 20:7). He reminds them that their return to God and their reconciliation with God are linked to their turning away from evil ways and deeds (1:4). Zechariah's message is directed toward a new generation of people, and he is encouraging them to break the cycle, once and for all, of transgression that leads to prophetic doom and divine punishment.

1:2 ancestors: pre-exilic Judeans who were subjected to Babylonian destruction, and in some cases, to exile.

1:3 The LORD of heavenly forces: God is the commander in chief of all the powers in heaven and on earth. Return to me: a common theme throughout biblical prophetic literature (Isa 44:22; Jer 3:12, 14, 22; Hos 14:1; Joel 2:13; Mal 3:7). and I will return to you: See Malachi 3:7.

1:6 my servants, the prophets: The prophets don't act on their own initiative; each one receives a mission and commission from God (Isa 6:1-13; Jer 1:4-12). God gives each prophet the word or message to preach (Mic 1:1; Zeph 1:1), sometimes through a vision (Isa 1:1; Hab 1:1). They are often referred to as God's servants (Jer 25:4; 26:5; 29:19; 35:15; 44:4; Dan 9:10; Amos 3:7).

1:7-17 A report that describes the first of eight night visions experienced by Zechariah. It opens with a new heading (1:7) that introduces a major section of the book (Zech 1:7-6:15). The sequence of visions occurs three months after the sermon (1:2-6). The second heading contains much of the same information found in Zechariah 1:1. 1:8-17 describes the vision in two parts: the vision (1:8-13) and a divine response that takes the form of three proclamations (1:14-15, 16, 17). This first vision is of a man riding on a horse with a group of riders behind him on different colored horses (1:8-10). Divine visions can have sound as well as visual images. The three proclamations in 1:14-17 express God's sentiments toward the nations and Jerusalem. The vision makes clear God's promise to restore the temple, Jerusalem, and Judah to the original position of prominence among the nations.

1:7 On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month: February 15, 519 BCE, approximately one month prior to the spring New Year. This date doesn't necessarily apply to the entire visionary experience. Shebat: the 11th month of the Jewish calendar (January/February).

8Tonight I looked and saw a man riding on a red horse, which was standing among the myrtle trees in the valley; and behind him were red, sorrel, and white horses.

9I said, "What are these, sir?"

The messenger speaking with me said, "I will show you what they are."

10The man standing among the myrtles responded, "These are the ones the LORD sent to patrol the earth."

11Then they responded to the LORD's messenger, who was standing among the myrtles, "We have patrolled the earth. The whole earth is peaceful and quiet."

12Then the LORD's messenger, who was speaking with me, said:

"LORD of heavenly forces, how long will you withhold compassion from Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, with whom you have been angry these seventy years?"

13The LORD responded to the messenger who was speaking with me with kind and compassionate words.

14The messenger speaking with me called out,

"This is what the LORD of heavenly forces says:
I care passionately about Jerusalem and Zion.

15And I am exceedingly angry with those carefree nations.

Though I was somewhat angry, they added to the violence."

16Therefore, this is what the LORD says:

I have returned to Jerusalem with compassion.
My house will be built in it, says the LORD of heavenly forces.
Let a measuring line be stretched over Jerusalem.

17"Call out again, The LORD of heavenly forces proclaims:

My cities will again overflow with prosperity.
The LORD will again show compassion to Zion and will again choose Jerusalem."

1:8 These were normal horse colors and aren't unique to Zechariah. myrtle trees: nonpoisonous shrubs with dense growth, bright green oval leaves, white or pink flowers, and black berries. These trees were common in Syria and Palestine and elsewhere in the Mediterranean region. Myrtle is also associated with the transformation of the desert into a well-watered place (see Isa 4:19; 55:13).

1:9 The messenger: This character functions as an interpreter (cf. Dan 8:10; see also Mal 1:1 for the meaning of Malachi's name, "my messenger."). The messenger will speak regularly with Zechariah. I will show you what they are: The messenger offers to show Zechariah what the horses are, instead of explaining what Zechariah has already seen.

1:10 Here the one who responds to Zechariah isn't the messenger but rather the man who was riding the red horse, which was standing among the myrtle trees in the valley (Zec 1:8). The horses were sent to patrol the earth, so that the earth can remain at peace. They keep watch on behalf of God.

1:12 compassion: The biblical writers often describe God as disciplining the people first and then showing them compassion (Lam 3:22, 32; Dan 9:9). Throughout the writings of the prophets, God's anger gives way to compassion (see Isa 30:18; Mic 7:19).

The Heart In the biblical understanding of the mind, the heart is the seat of desires, intentions, expectations, and plans that determine a person's character and the results of a person's behavior. The heart is the primary place where one encounters God and where God works to cause change, insight, and the transformation of one's life. The heart pertains to one's inner life. In Zechariah 1:6 "the people changed their hearts," which is a direct response to God's action occurring within a human being, and a human being's response to the divine will taking root within them.

1:14 I care passionately about Jerusalem and Zion: or "I am jealous for Jerusalem and Zion." In biblical terms, to care passionately or to be "jealous for" or "zealous for" is to have a passionate devotion to the good, either one's own good or the good of another. God is described as a "passionate God" (Exod 20:5; Deut 4:24; 5:9; 6:15) who is protective. God becomes "passionate" for the land (Joel 2:18) and has "zeal" for the people (Isa 26:11).

1:15 And I am exceedingly angry with those carefree nations: The nations haven't yet received the punishment that is due to them (see Isa 13–23; 34; 47; Jer 46–51; Ezek 28–32; Zeph 2:14–15).

1:16 measuring line: refers to the marking off of land for possession (Isa 34:17). It also refers to the building or restoration of the temple and its fixtures (1 Kgs 7:23; 2 Chron 4:2; Ezek 47:3).

1:17 My cities: the cities of Judah that were destroyed by foreign invasion. overflow with prosperity: The theme also appears in Hosea 15:5–8; Joel 3:18–21; Amos 9:11–15. Divine punishment ends (cf. Isa 40:1–2) and Jerusalem will once again take its place in the world (cf. Isa 2:2–4).

Second night vision

<sup>18</sup>Then I looked up and saw four horns. <sup>19</sup>I said to the messenger speaking with me, "What are these?"

He said to me, "These are the horns that scattered Judah, Israel, and Jerusalem."

<sup>20</sup>Then the LORD showed me four metalworkers.

<sup>21</sup>I said, "What are they coming to do?"

And he said,

"These are the horns that scattered Judah so that no one could raise his head.

The metalworkers have come to terrify them and to destroy the horns of the nations, those who were attacking the land of Judah with<sup>d</sup> their horns to scatter it."

Third night vision

<sup>3</sup>I said, "Where are you going?"

He said to me,

"To measure Jerusalem to see how wide and long it will be."

<sup>3</sup>As I watched, the messenger speaking with me went ahead and another messenger came to meet him.

<sup>4</sup>He said to him,

"Run! Say to this young man:

Jerusalem will be inhabited like open fields because of the throngs of people and cattle inside it.

<sup>5</sup>But I will be a wall of fire around it, says the LORD, and I will be glorious inside it.

<sup>6</sup>Look out; look out! Flee from the land of the north, says the LORD, for I will scatter you like the four winds of heaven, says the LORD.

1:18-21 This vision continues the theme of punishment for nations that is introduced in Zechariah 1:15. The nations, symbolized as horns, are responsible for scattering Judah and humiliating it (1:21). Thus because of the nations' disregard for Judah's plight, God will enact justice by making the nations powerless before God.

1:18 four horns: Rather than ram's horns, they refer more generally to animal horns, which are a symbol of power. The messenger interprets these horns as all the nations that scattered Judah, Israel, and Jerusalem. Judah is the southern kingdom, Israel is the northern kingdom, and Jerusalem is the capital of Judah. The four horns might be a reference to Assyria, Babylon, Egypt, Edom, Tyre, and Persia.

1:21 metalworkers: the artisans who work in metal (1 Sam 3:19; Hos 8:6; 2 Chron 34:11), wood (2 Sam 5:11; 2 Kgs 12:12), and stone (Exod 28:11; 2 Sam 5:11; 1 Chron 14:11). These artisans were sent by God to terrify the nations and reshape them because they have brought devastation on Judah.

2:1-13 Zechariah's third vision: a man measuring Jerusalem (2:1-5) and the prophet's first proclamation that calls the exiles to return home (2:6-13). The vision offers hope to both Jerusalem and the nations, many of whom will be joined to God when the day of the Lord dawns (2:11). The vision concerning the restoration of Jerusalem, and God's presence in Jerusalem and among the people, is oriented toward the future. However, it also reflects the world of the Persian Empire in the late 6th century BCE.

2:1 a measuring line: different from the measuring line in Zechariah 1:16. In this verse, the measuring line refers to distributing pieces of land (Deut 32:9; Amos 7:17; Mic 2:5) and is associated with Israel's "inheritance" (cf. Zech 2:12).

To measure Jerusalem: This action affirms the historical role of Jerusalem as the capital of Judah, and also makes the city a symbol of a political state that has God's holy earthly dwelling at its center, which becomes the source of God's universal rule. The measuring line defines the city's boundary. This whole city will be holy and will be the focal point of God's presence (Zech 2:11-12). Thus the measuring of Jerusalem marks the beginning of Jerusalem's restoration. 2:4-5 A new message of prosperity is delivered. like open fields: The restored Jerusalem will have no walls. A city lacking a wall would have been a concern because the city walls protected the city and its inhabitants from human and nonhuman predators. The vision may refer to a political compromise made by leaders to have the temple restored while putting the plans for the rebuilding of the city's walls on hold until a later time. The city walls weren't built during Darius I's reign. They were built 75 years later during the time of Nehemiah, around 445 BCE. I will be a wall of fire around it: Fire typically shows divine presence in the OT (see Exod 3:2-4; 13:21-22). The wall of fire symbolizes God's protection around Jerusalem, which results in God's indwelling presence. I will be glorious inside it: God's glory will no longer be limited to the temple, but will extend to all of Jerusalem. Thus God's presence will be fully revealed in Jerusalem, and God's city will once again become "holy," a refuge for all (cf. Ezek 43:1-5; Ps 46:1).

2:6 The speaker of this proclamation and the following ones in Zechariah 2:7-13 is most likely the prophet himself and not one of the messengers heard earlier. land of the north: Babylon, which recalls an earlier allusion to Babylon heard in Jeremiah 1:14-19; 4:5-10:25 and suggests that the punishment Jeremiah saw for Babylon is now ended. The urgency of the language Look out; look out! Flee may reflect a crisis such as the impending fall of Babylon in 538 BCE. Most likely the phrase urges all those who are still in exile to return to the restored Jerusalem. I will scatter you: The language reflects the scattering of the people in exile, but here the focus is on the return to Zion. like the four winds of heaven: This is an image for God, who was supposedly responsible for the people's exile. God will now scatter the people from exile and bring them back to Jerusalem.

2:7 Look out, Zion. Flee: another call to the exiles to flee from Babylon (cf. Isa 48:20; 49:8-13; 51:9-11; 52:11-12). The description of Zion and Daughter Babylon as dwelling together draws heavily on the book of Isaiah, which often portrays Jerusalem and Babylon as two women who suffer various fates, misfortunes, and restorations (see Isa 3:25-4:1; 49:18; 52:1-2; 54).

2:8-9 This divine proclamation builds on the second vision (Zech 1:19-21) with respect to the coming punishment of the nations. Those who have treated Judah unjustly will now get what they deserve.

2:8 Those who strike you strike the pupil of my eye: the intimate and sensitive relationship that exists between God and God's people—those called to return from exile. The eye is one of the most sensitive organs of the body. The one who harms God's people harms God.

2:9 I am about to raise my hand against them: imagines God with a human attribute (a hand). They will become prey to their own slaves: The Babylonians will become prey to God's exiled people, the Israelites.

2:10 The prophet's words offer hope to the Israelites and indirectly encourage the exiles to return home. Rejoice and be glad: These two instructions recall the message of Second Isaiah (see Isa 42:11; 44:23; 49:13; 52:8, 9; 54:1; 61:7). Daughter Zion: This phrase is a common way to represent the city of Jerusalem as though it were a person.

2:11 many nations will be joined to the LORD: a future expectation, signaled by the words on that day. God's people won't be only the Israelites; others will be joined to God as well (cf. Zech 8:20-23). Those nations who once acted against Zion (Pss 2:1-3; 83:2-8) will one day be joined to Zion. God's intentions will cut through all lines of division (cf. Isa 2:1-4; Mic 4:1-4). God will make all people one, and God will live among them (cf. Isa 56:3-8). The text points toward a universal covenant (cf. Isa 56:6, 7).

2:12 God's special possession will be Judah, and God will once again choose Jerusalem. The verse speaks of reunion and restoration. his inheritance: Usually, "inheritance" would refer to territory. It frequently represents the land given to Israel by God (Judg 20:6). But here "inheritance" denotes a community of people (cf. Exod 34:9; Ps 82:8). God will once again exercise control over Judah and the entire world.

2:13 Be silent: The Israelites, once called to rejoice and be glad (Zech 2:10), are now called, along with everyone else, to act with reverence in God's presence. God is moving from his holy habitation: Israel's God is on the way down to earth to dwell among the people, and the only appropriate response is awe-filled silence (cf. Hab 2:20; Zeph 1:7). Again, Zechariah's scope is universal. Just as the people will come home to God, so God will come home to the people (cf. Rev 21:3).

3:1-10 Zechariah's fourth vision reports the cleansing of Joshua the high priest. Many scholars think that this chapter is a later addition, not part of the original sequence of the seven visions, and that the vision describes the ordination of Joshua, Jehozadak's son. In a scene reminiscent of a courtroom, God clears Joshua of all blame for his wrongdoing. In addition to Joshua and God, another character enters the picture, namely, the Adversary, who plays the role of the prosecuting attorney. God defends Joshua. The courtroom scene opens with God presenting a rebuttal against the Adversary's case. The rebuttal consists of one simple but striking

<sup>2</sup>And the LORD said to the Adversary:

“The LORD rebukes you, Adversary.

The LORD, the one choosing Jerusalem, rebukes you.

Is this one not a log snatched from the fire?”

And he said to Joshua, “Look, I have removed your guilt from you. Put on priestly robes.”

<sup>5</sup>He<sup>b</sup> said, “Put a clean turban upon his head.” So they put the clean turban upon his head, and they dressed him in garments while the LORD’s messenger stood by.

If you will walk in my paths,

if you will keep my charge,

then you will lead my house and guard my courts, and I will allow you to walk among those standing here.

I am about to engrave an inscription on it,

I will remove the guilt of that land in one day.

everyone will invite their neighbors to sit beneath their vines and the fig trees.”

rhetorical question (3:2). Joshua’s change of clothes represents his purification process (3:3). Those witnessing Joshua’s experience are members of the heavenly divine council (3:6-7; cf. Ps 29:1; Job 1:6). During this process Joshua also hears about future good news for the land and the restored community.

3:1 high priest: the primary official of the Israelite worshipping community. After Joshua, the high priesthood was hereditary and bestowed upon an individual for life. The title is applied to Joshua in Haggai 1:1, 12, 14; 2:4; Zechariah 6:11.

3:2 Adversary: This character in Hebrew is hassatan (cf. Job 1:6-12) and means “the accuser.” The term doesn’t refer to “the devil” mentioned in later Jewish and Christian literature.

3:3 filthy clothes: symbolize Joshua’s impure state.

3:4 priestly robes: symbolize Joshua’s new state of ritual purity.

3:5 turban: a generic term for “headband,” which refers to the headgear of men (Job 29:14); women (Isa 3:23); and royalty (Isa 62:3). For a reference to a priest’s turban, see also Exodus 29:6 and Leviticus 8:9.

3:8 Branch: Two interpretations are possible: First, the expected restoration of a descendant of David to the throne, perhaps Zerubbabel; or second, the reference is to Joshua. 4:1-14 This fifth vision report of Zechariah features a lampstand and olive trees. Unlike Zechariah’s other visions, this experience seems to wake him up from sleep. In essence, he receives this vision at a heightened state of awareness, as if he had been asleep. What he sees is a detailed lampstand of pure gold that has a bowl on its top, as well as seven metal pipes for those lamps (4:2). Also present are two olive trees on either side of the bowl (4:3). The messenger, who is also part of the vision, has a message for Zerubbabel that he delivers to Zechariah. The message makes clear that nothing will stop Zerubbabel from constructing the temple. Zerubbabel will begin the process and will see it to completion (4:6-10). Further understanding of the vision’s symbols is given to Zechariah in 4:8-14. Zechariah’s vision shows that the

These are the seven eyes of the LORD, surveying the entire earth.

I said, "I see a flying scroll, thirty feet long and fifteen feet wide."

<sup>3</sup>He said to me, "This is the curse going out across all the land.

Anyone stealing will be purged according to what's on one side of the scroll,<sup>3</sup> and anyone swearing lies<sup>4</sup> will be purged according to what's on the other side.

new community will enjoy a balance of leadership and authority, and that the work of God will be a shared, communal effort.

4:6 Zerubbabel: He is a puzzling figure from the time after the exile. Messianic language is associated with him in the books of Haggai and Zechariah. As the son of Sheatiel, he was a coleader of the second major group of exiles, along with the priest Joshua. He began the temple reconstruction around 520 BCE.

4:10 plumb line: a builder's device that consists of a string with a weight, or plummet, on one end. It is used to recognize those walls that are tilted and identified for replacement. seven eyes of the LORD: represents the constant sight of God, who sustains all creation (Ps 104:29). The number seven symbolizes completeness or perfection (for the plumbness of the wall), and perhaps the seven days of creation.

4:12 these two olive branches: These two branches represent the two anointed ones, the priestly figure Joshua, Jehozadak's son; and Zechariah (see 1 Sam 16:3; 1 Kgs 1:39; Ps 89:20).

5:1-4 The sixth vision reports the flying scroll and the cleansing of Jerusalem. The vision reminds the community that God's people have ethical responsibilities. Here the focus is on stealing and lying (5:3). Anyone found guilty of these sins will experience a curse that God sent out (5:4). This curse will bring death upon the entire household of those who failed to live out the ethical message of the Instruction (Torah).

5:1 flying scroll: Little precedent exists for the vision of the flying scroll. Most interpreters link it to the scroll that God delivered at Ezekiel's commissioning (Ezek 2:1-3:11). Here the flying scroll can be identified in general with God's Instruction. The scroll makes a symbolic statement: the normal systems of law that ensure order in a society are broken.

5:3 curse: In the OT three types of curses exist: (1) the aggressive, spoken curse, which is often asserted by a prophet (e.g., Hos 13:2-4) who is condemning a departure from the faith or a failure to obey God's Instruction; (2) the curse of a person during an argument or controversy; and (3) the treaty curse toward a tribe or nation that agrees to obey a more powerful nation. This curse in Zechariah is most likely a prophetic curse toward sinful behavior. Stealing and swearing lies or giving false witness are disruptions of the social order and violations throughout the land of the covenant with God (see two of the Ten Commandments at Exod 20:15-16).

Seventh night vision

<sup>5</sup>Then the messenger speaking with me came forward and said, "Look up and see what's approaching."

<sup>6</sup>I said, "What's this?"

He said, "This is the basket<sup>m</sup> that is going out. This is how it appears<sup>n</sup> throughout the entire land."<sup>o</sup>

<sup>7</sup>Then a lead cover was lifted, showing a woman sitting in the middle of the basket.

<sup>8</sup>He said, "This is wickedness." He shoved her back into the basket, and he put the lead stone over its opening.

<sup>9</sup>I looked up again and saw two women going out. There was a wind in their wings; their wings were like the wings of a stork. They carried the basket between the earth and the sky.

<sup>10</sup>I said to the messenger speaking with me, "Where are they taking the basket?"

<sup>11</sup>He said to me, "To build a house for it in the land of Shinar. It will be firmly placed there on its base."

Eighth night vision

6I looked up again and saw four chariots coming out from between two mountains; the mountains were made of bronze. <sup>2</sup>The first chariot had red horses, and the second chariot had black horses. <sup>3</sup>The third chariot had white horses, and the fourth chariot had horses that were heavily spotted.

<sup>4</sup>I responded and said to the messenger speaking with me, "What are these, sir?"

<sup>5</sup>The messenger answered and said to me, "These are the four winds of heaven that are going out after presenting themselves to the LORD of all the earth. <sup>6</sup>The one with the black horses is going to the north country; the white ones are going to the west;<sup>p</sup> and the spotted ones are going south."

<sup>7</sup>Then the powerful ones approached, intent on going to patrol the earth.

He said, "Go! Patrol the earth!" So they patrolled the earth. <sup>8</sup>Then he called out and said to me, "Look, the ones going north have provided rest for my spirit in the north."

<sup>9</sup>The LORD's word came to me: <sup>10</sup>Take silver and gold<sup>q</sup> from the exiles who came from Babylon, from Heldai, from Tobijah, and from Jedaiah. As for you, go that same day to the 5:5-11 In the seventh vision, the prophet describes how wickedness will be removed from the land by way of a floating basket. Zechariah sees three images: a basket (5:6), a woman sitting in the middle of the basket (5:7), and two women going out (5:9). The women are on their way to Shinar, which is another name for Babylon (see Gen 10:10; 11:2; 14:1, 9; Isa 11:1; Dan 1:2), where they will build a new house for wickedness (5:11). This new house is presumably a house from the land of God's people and sent to Babylon.

5:7 a woman: Her identity remains unknown. She serves more as a symbolic figure than a literal one.

5:8 wickedness: The portrayal of wickedness as a woman is troublesome. The particular image of an anonymous woman for this vision shouldn't be generalized toward all women.

5:9 two women: symbolic figures that don't refer to anyone historically. wind in their wings: They can glide effortlessly. wings of a stork: The image is ironic because elsewhere in the OT the stork is listed as an unclean animal (Deut 14:18; Lev 11:19). The stork is considered detestable, and yet the women have stork wings and are the people designated for the act of cleansing the land of its wickedness. between the earth and the sky: implies that when the women cleanse the land, they are careful not to touch it with something unclean, lest they pollute it again.

5:11 To build a house: some sort of temple. The people of Babylon (Shinar) will worship wickedness, the exact thing that has been cast out of the land of Israel.

6:1-15 The eighth and final vision describes four chariots (6:1-6), the patrol of the earth (6:7), and rest for God's spirit (6:8). Zechariah sees four chariots coming out between two bronze mountains (6:1), horses pulling the chariots (6:2-3), and four riders in the chariots whose task is to patrol the earth (6:5-7). The response to the vision includes the prophet's question (6:4) and the messenger's statement that explains the vision the prophet has seen (6:5-8). The passage also contains a second word of encouragement addressed to the returned exiles (6:9-15). The proclamation offers Zechariah's community a word of hope and promise.

6:1 four chariots: The image of a chariot represents God's presence (Hab 3:8). God is said to be "the one who rides the clouds," possibly on a chariot (Ps 68:4). This wheeled vehicle has a long history and serves a variety of functions. It was used for ordinary transportation, hunting, royal and religious processions, and warfare. Chariots were symbols of power and prestige.

6:2-3 The colors of the horses recall the colors of the horses in the first vision (Zech 1:8). The colors link the first and last visions.

6:7 The chariot riders are commissioned to go forth, to patrol the earth. The first vision features the riders returning from a mission. Again, the image of the chariot riders and their work helps to link the first and last visions.

6:10 Heldai: He is the first in a series of three men cited in God's charge to Zechariah and a former Babylonian exile. Tobijah: He was one of three people who had returned

Answering the Bethel delegation

7In the fourth year of Darius the king, the LORD's word came to Zechariah on the fourth day of the ninth month, Kislev.* <sup>2</sup>The people of<sup>k</sup> Bethel sent Sharezer and Regem-Melech,<sup>l</sup> along with his men, to seek the LORD's favor, <sup>3</sup>saying to the priests who were in the house of the LORD of heavenly forces and to the prophets: "Should I weep in the fifth month and abstain as I have done for a number of years?"

<sup>4</sup>Then the word of the LORD of heavenly forces came to me: <sup>5</sup>Say to all the land's people and to the priests: When you fasted and lamented in the fifth month and the seventh month for these past seventy years, did you fast for me? <sup>6</sup>When you ate and drank, weren't you the ones eating and drinking? <sup>7</sup>Weren't these the words that the LORD proclaimed through the former prophets when Jerusalem was dwelling quietly along with the surrounding cities, and when the arid southern plain and the western foothills were inhabited?

Make just and faithful decisions; show kindness and compassion to each other! <sup>10</sup>Don't oppress the widow, the orphan, the stranger, and the poor; don't plan evil against each other! <sup>11</sup>But they refused to pay attention. They turned a cold shoulder and stopped listening.

<sup>12</sup>They steeled their hearts against hearing the instruction and the words that the LORD of heavenly forces sent by his spirit through the earlier prophets. As a result, the LORD of heavenly forces became enraged.

*LXX; Heb crowns, so also 6:14 <sup>k</sup>November–December <sup>l</sup>Heb lacks the people of. <sup>m</sup>Heb uncertain from whom Zechariah was to collect silver and gold to take to Josiah. Jedaiah: He was a contemporary of Zechariah who returned from exile to Judah. Together these three men supplied silver and gold to Zechariah, who prepared a crown for Joshua the high priest (Zech 6:10-11). The crown possibly was a reminder of how the people departed from the faith in the past (Zech 6:14).

6:12 Branch: This person was to function as both a priest and a king and would rebuild and restore the temple.

7:1–8:23 Zechariah's third address. It contains: (1) questions about fasting (7:1-7); (2) a divine instruction and response about justice (7:8-14); and (3) a series of divine proclamations about the future that highlight restoration (8:1-17) and universal joy (8:18-23).

7:1 In the fourth year: the third and final chronological heading in the book of Zechariah. The date would be December 7, 518 BCE.

7:2 Bethel: This city, also known as "house of God," was located at the crossroads 12 miles north of Jerusalem at the border of Ephraim and Judah. The city was eventually destroyed by Joshua (2 Kgs 23:15-20). Sharezer: He had special status within the community because he had a part in an official delegation. Regem-Melech: He also had a high standing in the community and apparently had authority over the men who accompanied him in the delegation.

7:5 fifth month: An official time of lament in response to the trauma and tragedy of the destruction of the temple, the holy city Jerusalem, and the king's palace. The fall of the temple reportedly occurred "on the seventh day of the fifth month in the nineteenth year of Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar" (see 2 Kgs 25:8).

7:8-14 Following the discussion on fasting (Zech 7:1-7), the theme shifts to exercising justice. This implies that the type of fasting that God wants isn't mourning but rather the practice of justice (cf. Isa 58:6-14). As in Zechariah 1:2-6, the prophet looks back on the failures of past generations in hope that the new generation will learn a lesson and live differently.

7:10 Don't oppress the widow, the orphan, the stranger, and the poor: The instruction demanded justice and care for all of these people (Deut 10:18; 14:29; 16:11, 14; 24:19-21).

<sup>13</sup>So just as he called and they didn't listen, when they called, I didn't listen, says the LORD of heavenly forces. <sup>14</sup>I scattered them throughout the nations whom they didn't know. The land was devastated behind them, with no one leaving or returning. They turned a delightful land into a wasteland.

8The word from the LORD of heavenly forces came to me:<sup>a</sup>

I care passionately about Zion; I burn with passion for her. <sup>3</sup>The LORD proclaims: I have returned to Zion; I will settle in Jerusalem. Jerusalem will be called the city of truth; the mountain of the LORD of heavenly forces will be the holy mountain.

Old men and old women will again dwell in the plazas of Jerusalem. Each of them will have a staff in their hand because of their great age. <sup>5</sup>The city will be full of boys and girls playing in its plazas.

Even though it may seem to be a miracle for the few remaining among this people in these days, should it seem to be a miracle for me? says the LORD of heavenly forces.

I'm about to deliver my people from the land of the east and the land of the west. <sup>8</sup>I'll bring them back so they will dwell in Jerusalem. They will be my people, and I will be their God—in truth and in righteousness.

Be strong, you who are now hearing these words from the mouths of the prophets spoken on the day when the foundations for the house of the LORD of heavenly forces were laid. <sup>10</sup>Before this time, there were no wages for people or animals; there was no relief from distress about going out or coming in, because I set everyone against their own neighbor. <sup>11</sup>But now, unlike those earlier days, I'll be with the few remaining among this people, says the LORD of heavenly forces.

the vine will give its fruit.

The land will give its produce;

the heavens will give its dew.

I will give the remnant of this people all these things.

<sup>13</sup>Just as you were a curse among the nations, house of Judah and house of Israel, so now I will deliver you; you will be a blessing.

Don't fear, but be strong.

7:14 a delightful land into a wasteland: The people are responsible for the sad circumstances of the land.

8:1-23 The third address ends with a series of divine proclamations about the future of Zion and God's people. These words of hope include God's great love for Jerusalem (8:1-2); God's promise to return to Zion/Jerusalem (8:3); the promise that Jerusalem will be filled with both young and old inhabitants (8:4-5); a statement about God's power to do what seems impossible for humans (8:6); reestablishment of God's people on their land, and covenant renewal between God and God's people (8:7-8); a divine word of encouragement and promise of divine presence (Zech 8:9-13); a reversal of divine intent and an instruction on ethical living (8:14-17); and a promise of universal joy (8:18-23).

8:3 I have returned to Zion: See Zechariah 1:16, the first vision where God promises to return to the city. city of truth: Jerusalem will be recognized as a faithful city. This nickname for Jerusalem is unusual. mountain of the Lord:

associated with the holy mountain where the temple will soon be functioning again.

8:4 Old men and old women will again dwell: a promise to Zechariah's listeners. boys and girls playing: One day people will live unconcerned for their safety.

8:7 from the land of the east and the land of the west: The reference isn't to any specific location. The phrase is poetic and means from the land of sunrise and from the land of sunset. The pair is intended to represent the entire scattered population that went into exile.

8:8 I'll bring them back: the exiled people. They will be my people, and I will be their God: This phrase highlights the renewal of covenant (cf. Exod 6:7; Lev 26:12; 2 Sam 7:24; Jer 31:33; Ezek 11:20; 14:11; 37:23, 27). in truth and in righteousness: This pair is common and often appears in covenants (see also 1 Kgs 3:6). These virtues recall God's qualities in Exodus 43:6.

8:13 house of Judah and house of Israel: the southern and northern kingdoms. you will be a blessing: The restored community will serve as a blessing to the nations.

9:1-8 The prophet announces that the threat Jerusalem faces from Syria, Phoenicia, and the Philistines no longer exists, because God will act on Jerusalem's behalf.

9:1 land of Hadrach: This term is found only here in the Bible and refers to a district in Syria. Damascus: a major Aramean city mentioned nearly 50 times in the OT (e.g., 1 Kgs 15:18; 20:34; Isa 7:8). The reference can also be to the territory around the city. Aram: territory belonging to the Arameans.

9:2 Hamath: a city located on the Orontes River along the primary trade route heading south from Asia Minor. This city formed the northern boundary of the land of Israel (cf. Num 13:21; Josh 13:5; Ezek 47:15). Tyre: a Phoenician port and kingdom located on an island about 2,000 feet offshore and about 35 miles south of Sidon. Sidon: a Phoenician metropolis and famous harbor in southern Lebanon.

9:3 Tyre built a fortress for herself: The focus on Tyre is most likely because the city plays a major role in the history of nearby Judah and Israel. The remainder of verse 3 sheds light on the destruction of Tyre's economic power and its pride in that power (see also Zech 9:4).

9:5-6 Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and Ashdod represent four of

The LORD of heavenly forces will take care of his splendor, the house of Judah.

He will make them like his majestic horse in battle.

<sup>4</sup>The cornerstone, the tent peg, and the bow used in battle will come from Judah.

Every oppressor will leave Judah simultaneously.

<sup>5</sup>Judah will be like warriors, trampling through the muddy streets during battle.

They will do battle because the LORD is with them.

All the cavalry will be ashamed.

<sup>6</sup>I will strengthen the house of Judah and deliver the house of Joseph.

I will bring them back<sup>c</sup> because I have compassion on them.

They will be as though I hadn't rejected them, for I am the LORD their God;
 I will respond to them.

<sup>7</sup>Ephraim will be like a warrior.

They will be as glad as if they were drinking wine.

Their children will watch and be glad.

Their hearts will rejoice in the LORD.

<sup>8</sup>I will whistle for them and gather them, because I have ransomed them.

They will be as numerous as they were previously.

<sup>9</sup>Though I sowed them among the peoples, they will remember me in the distant places where they are living with their children until they return.

<sup>10</sup>I will bring them back from the land of Egypt;

I will collect them from Assyria.

I will bring them to the land of Gilead and Lebanon until there is no more room for them.

<sup>11</sup>They<sup>d</sup> will pass through the sea of distress and strike the sea with waves.<sup>e</sup>

All the depths of the river will dry up.

The pride of Assyria will be brought down;

the scepter of Egypt will turn away.

<sup>12</sup>I will strengthen them in the LORD, and they will walk in his name, says the LORD.

11 Open your doors, Lebanon, so that fire will devour your cedars.

<sup>2</sup>Scream, cypress, for the cedar has fallen;

those majestic ones have been devastated.

Scream, oaks of Bashan, for the deep forest has fallen.

<sup>3</sup>The sound of screaming appears among the shepherds because their majesty has been devastated.

The sound of roaring can be heard among the young lions because the pride of the Jordan has been devastated.

The shepherd's two staves

<sup>4</sup>This is what the LORD my God says:

Shepherd the flock intended for slaughter.

<sup>5</sup>Those who buy them will kill them, but they will go unpunished.

Those who sell them will say, "Blessed is the LORD, for I have become rich."

And their own shepherds won't spare them.

11:4-17 This passage is one of the most difficult passages to understand in the OT because of its vague language and uncertain form. It is a poetic story about the prophet being asked to be the shepherd of a doomed flock (cf. Zech 10:3). The flock is Israel (11:4-6). In verses 7-9 the prophet recounts his positive response to God's command <sup>e</sup>In fact, I will no longer spare the inhabitants of the land, says the LORD.

But look what I am about to bring upon humanity, upon each of them by their neighbor's hand and by the hand of their king:

They will beat the land to pieces,
but I won't rescue anyone from their hand.

<sup>7</sup>So I shepherded the flock intended for slaughter, the afflicted of the flock.<sup>f</sup>

I took two staffs for myself.
I named one Delight;
the other I named Harmony.

I shepherded the flock.

<sup>8</sup>I removed three shepherds in one month when I grew impatient with them.
Moreover, they detested me.

<sup>9</sup>Then I said, "I won't shepherd you.
Let the dying die,
and let what is to be removed be removed.
Let those who are left devour the flesh of their neighbor."

<sup>10</sup>Then I took the staff Delight, and I chopped it up in order to break my covenant that I had made with all the peoples.

<sup>11</sup>It was broken on that day.
As a result, the afflicted<sup>g</sup> of the flock knew that it was the LORD's word.

<sup>12</sup>And I said to them,
"If it appears good to you, give me my wages; but if not, then stop."
So they weighed out my wages, thirty shekels of silver.

<sup>13</sup>The LORD said to me,
"Put it in the treasury.<sup>h</sup> They value me at too magnificent a price."
So I took the thirty shekels<sup>i</sup> of silver and put them in the treasury of the LORD's house.

<sup>14</sup>Then I chopped up my second staff Harmony, to break the alliance between Judah and Israel.

<sup>15</sup>Then the LORD said to me,
"Take for yourself again the equipment of a foolish shepherd,

<sup>16</sup>because I am about to appoint a shepherd in the land.

He won't tend to those who have been removed.

He won't seek the young or heal the broken.

He won't sustain the one standing.

Instead, he will devour the flesh of the fat ones, even tearing off their hooves.

<sup>17</sup>Doom, foolish shepherd who forsakes the flock.

His arm will wither completely; his right eye will become blind."

northern and southern people of Israel. The passage ends with a curse against the shepherd who would forsake his flock (11:17). The passage is symbolic and allegorical.

who stretches out the heavens, who establishes the earth, and who fashions the spirit of humanity within it:

- <sup>2</sup> I am about to make Jerusalem a cup that will stagger all the surrounding nations.
 There will be a siege against Judah and against Jerusalem.
- <sup>3</sup> On that day I will make Jerusalem into a heavy stone<sup>a</sup> for all the peoples.
 All who carry it will hurt themselves;
 nevertheless, the nations of the earth will conspire against it.
- <sup>4</sup> On that day, says the LORD, I will strike every horse with confusion and its rider with madness.
 I will keep my eyes open for the house of Judah;
 I will strike blind every horse of the peoples.
- <sup>5</sup> The chieftains of Judah will say to themselves, We are strong;
 the inhabitants of Jerusalem will say,
 The LORD their God of heavenly forces is strong.<sup>1</sup>
- <sup>6</sup> On that day I will place the chieftains of Judah like a pot on a wood fire and like a burning torch among the bundles of grain.
 They will devour all the surrounding nations to the right and the left.
 Jerusalem will dwell again in its place, in Jerusalem.
- <sup>7</sup> The LORD will first deliver the tents of Judah so that the splendor of David's house and the splendor of Jerusalem's inhabitants won't overshadow Judah.
- <sup>8</sup> On that day the LORD will protect the inhabitants of Jerusalem.
 Anyone among them who stumbles on that day will become like David, and David's house will become like God, like the LORD's messenger in front of them.
- <sup>9</sup> On that day I intend to destroy all the nations who come against Jerusalem, <sup>10</sup> but I will pour out a spirit of grace and mercy on David's house and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem.
 They will look to me concerning the one whom they pierced;
 they will mourn over him like the mourning for an only child.
 They will mourn bitterly over him like the bitter mourning over the death of<sup>m</sup> an oldest child.
- <sup>11</sup> On that day, the mourning in Jerusalem will be as great as the mourning of Hadad-Rimmon in the Megiddo Valley.

distant future. God will act on Jerusalem's behalf, and those nations who would come up against Jerusalem will be destroyed (12:9). This day of favor, however, also has moments of mourning (12:11-14) because of the battle waged and the lives lost (12:10). In 13:1-9 the prophet announces that Jerusalem will be cleansed of idolatry, its unclean spirit, and its prophets associated with the unclean spirit. The closing verses (13:7-9) make

- <sup>2</sup>On that day, says the LORD of heavenly forces,
I will eliminate the names of the idols from the land;
they will no longer be remembered.
Moreover, I will remove the prophets and the sinful spirit from the land.
- <sup>3</sup>If anyone again prophesies, then that person's birth father and mother will say,
"You won't live, for you have told a lie in the name of the LORD."
That person's own birth father and mother will stab him when he prophesies.
- <sup>4</sup>On that day each of the prophets will be ashamed of his vision when he prophesies and won't put on a shaggy coat in order to deceive.
- <sup>5</sup>Each will say, "I'm not a prophet.
I'm a man who works the ground, for the soil has been my occupation since I was young."
- <sup>6</sup>Someone will say to him,
"What are these wounds between your hands?"
And he will say, "These happened when I was hit in my friends' home."
- <sup>7</sup>Sword, arise against my shepherd, against the man responsible for<sup>o</sup> my community,
says the LORD of heavenly forces!
Strike the shepherd in order to scatter the flock!
I will turn my hand against the little ones.
- <sup>8</sup>Throughout all the land, says the LORD, two-thirds will be cut off and die;
but one-third will be left in it.
- <sup>9</sup>I will put the third part into the fire.
I will refine them like one refines silver;
I will test them like one tests gold.
They will call on my name, and I will respond to them.
I will say, "They are my people."
And they will say, "The LORD is our God."

The day of the LORD

14 A day is coming that belongs to the LORD, when that which has been plundered from you will be divided among you.

<sup>2</sup>I will gather all the nations to Jerusalem for the battle, the city will be captured, the houses will be plundered, and the women will be raped.

Half of the city will go forth into exile, but what is left of the people won't be eliminated from the city.

<sup>3</sup>The LORD will go out and fight against those nations as when he fights on a day of battle.

<sup>4</sup>On that day he will stand upon the Mount of Olives, to the east of Jerusalem.
The Mount of Olives will be split in half by a very large valley running from east to west.
Half of the mountain will move north, and the other half will move south.

<sup>5</sup>You will flee through the valley of my mountain, because the valley of the mountains will reach to Azal.
You will flee just as you fled from the earthquake in the days of Judah's King Uzziah.

The LORD my God will come, and all the holy ones with him.<sup>p</sup>

- <sup>19</sup>This would be the sin of Egypt and the sin of all the nations who don't go up to celebrate the Festival of Booths.

Day of the Lord/On That Day The phrase "on that day" appears several times in Zechariah 12–14 and can be understood as the day of the Lord. This day will be a time of judgment, doom, destruction, purification (Zech 12:3, 4, 6, 9, 11; 13:4; 14:1–4, 6, 7, 13), protection, restoration, and reunion (Zech 12:8; 14:8, 9, 20). The day of the Lord is rooted in Israel's holy war experiences (see Isa 5:26; Zeph 3:8; Zech 14:2). God personally intervenes on the day of the Lord (Isa 34:8; Ezek 24:25; Amos 3:14; Zeph 1:8; 2:2–3). The events of the day of the Lord included raging fires (Isa 10:16; 38:22; Joel 2:30), whirlwinds and storms (Isa 28:2; 30:30; Jer 25:32; Ezek 38:22), the shaking of the heavens and the earth (Isa 2:10, 19; 13:13; 23:11; Ezek 38:19; Hag 2:21–22), floods (Isa 28:2; Jer 47:1–7), and the darkening of the sun and the moon (Isa 5:30; 13:10; 24:23; Ezek 32:7–8; Zeph 1:15). Finally, the day of the Lord is not only a day of judgment (Isa 34:2–3; Jer 25:33; 49:26; Ezek 24:21) but also a day of deliverance, replenishment, refreshment, and rejoicing (Isa 29:18–19; Zeph 3:11–14, 16–20).

place. The nations and the Israelites will suffer, but in the end the survivors from among the nations and the survivors from among the Israelites will acknowledge God.

most ordinary things will be considered holy to the Lord (14:21). Everyone and everything will be transformed by and in God.

MALACHI

The book of Malachi concludes the prophetic literature in the Christian Bible. The heading names Malachi (which means “my messenger”) as the author, but the actual author of the book is unknown. The text contains no specific information that would indicate when it was written, though the most likely date is the second half of the 5th century BCE. The contents of the text reflect post-exilic times during the mid-5th century BCE.

During this period, the Persians were in power. Persia’s King Darius I (522–486 BCE) had given the Jews permission to rebuild their temple, and they did. But the size and strength of the Persian Empire posed a great challenge to the Jews, who were tempted to pledge allegiance to a heathen governor instead of to their God. For the Jews, this was a time of great discouragement, a climate that prompted Malachi to assure his people that God still loved them (Mal 1:2-5) and that they were to honor and respect their covenant relationship with God and with each other. In his various addresses, Malachi says that God’s people had lost their way. They experienced conflict within the priesthood (Mal 1:6–2:9); mixed marriages, struggles within marriages, and divorce (Mal 2:10-16); offenses regarding tithes and offerings (Mal 3:7-15); and sorcery, perjury, and social injustices (Mal 3:5).

Malachi appears to be written in prose, but some readers see Malachi as a type of poetry. The literary style is simple, direct, terse, and candid. His message is often punctuated with questions and answers that take the form of disputes or dialogues, which Malachi uses to challenge his listeners to change their ways (see, e.g., Mal 1:2-5, 6-8, 9-13; 2:10-15, 17; 3:2-6, 13-15).

Unlike many of Israel’s other prophets, Malachi shows no concern for a future temple. His focus is on reforming the abuses in ritual and worship practices. Malachi’s primary theme is Israel’s covenant relationship with God (Mal

A jackal (Mal 1:3)

2:10-17) and the consequences the people will suffer for not remaining in a right relationship with God and with each other (see Mal 3:1-6, 7-18; 4:1-6). For Malachi, God is the maker and keeper of covenant (Mal 1:2; cf. Exod 6:2-7; Jer 31:31-34). The relationship between God and Israel is like a relationship between a father and a son (Mal 1:6; 2:10-12). Malachi sees Israel as a chosen people dearly loved by God (Mal 1:2; 3:17; cf. Deut 7:6-11). Malachi's God is the one who purifies (Mal 3:1-7) the relationship for the sake of transformation (Mal 4:1-6).

Wasn't Esau Jacob's brother? says the LORD.
I loved Jacob, <sup>3</sup>but I rejected Esau.

I turned Esau's mountains into desolation, his inheritance into a wilderness for jackals.

<sup>4</sup>Edom may say, "We are beaten down, but we will rebuild the ruins";
but the LORD of heavenly forces proclaims:
They may build, but I will tear them down.
They will call themselves a wicked territory,
the people against whom the LORD rages forever.

<sup>5</sup>Your eyes will see it and you will say,
"May the LORD be great beyond the borders of Israel."

Honoring the Lord

<sup>6</sup>A son honors a father, and a servant honors his master.
But if I'm a father, where is my honor?
Or if I'm a master, where is my respect? says the LORD of heavenly forces to you priests who despise my name.
So you say, "How have we despised your name?"

1:1 The first verse emphasizes the content, address, and instrument of the prophecy that follows in 1:2–4:6. A pronouncement is delivered. The divine word will be communicated to Israel through the human messenger Malachi. This opening verse gives authority to Malachi's proclamation and introduces the three main parties that play roles in the following proclamation: God, Israel, and Malachi.

1:2–5 At the heart of Malachi's message is God's love for Israel. Because of this desire and intention, both the prophet and God can be honest with the people, at times scolding them and at other times offering them comfort, hope, and compassion. God's declaration of love for Israel echoes Hosea 11:1–9, where the prophet shows God moving back and forth between compassion and frustration. Hosea draws on the language of the exodus, but Malachi recalls Isaac's two sons, Esau and Jacob (Gen 25:19–34; 27:1–45; 32:1–33:20; 36:1–43).

1:2–3 I loved Jacob, but I rejected Esau: Isaac had twin sons, Esau and Jacob. Jacob, the younger of the twins, was chosen by God over Esau. Jacob was the favorite son of his mother, Rebekah. She schemed to have Jacob receive Isaac's blessing, which was customarily given to the oldest male child (who was Esau). Esau's father excluded him from receiving the blessing, which was Esau's birthright. This family conflict is the social foundation for establishing Israel against its neighbor, Edom, which is represented by Esau (see Gen 36:1–43). Edom was located southeast of Palestine and was a continual source of conflict throughout Israel's history. The Edomites were accused of participating in the destruction of Jerusalem in 587 or 586 BCE. What Rebekah and Isaac did to their two sons when they favored one and excluded the other is now attributed to God.

1:3 The image of Esau shifts from being a person to being a country. Edom is located primarily east of the Wadi Arabah, north of the Gulf of Aqabah, south of the Wadi el-Hesa, and west of the Arabian Desert. The image of Edom's mountains turning into ruins refers to a series of victories over Edom by various Israelite, Judahite, and Babylonian kings: David (2 Sam 8:13–14), Amaziah (2 Kgs 14:7), Uzziah (2 Kgs 14:22), and Nabonidus of Babylon (from 552 BCE onward). The final defeat of Edom came sometime during the 5th century BCE when Arab tribes overpowered and displaced the Edomites. inheritance: land. jackals: members of the dog family common to southwest Asia and North Africa. They resemble large foxes, and are shy, nighttime creatures that hunt in small packs. They eat garbage, vegetation, and unprotected small livestock. In the Bible they are symbols of isolation, destruction, and abandonment (e.g., Job 30:29; Ps 44:19; Mic 1:8).

1:6–2:9 The longest section of the book. With the exception of 1:14, which is directed toward the people, this section concerns a dispute with the priests. The first part of the passage begins with a universal statement that would seem to be true: A son honors a father, and a servant honors his master (1:6). Malachi implies, however, that God is father and Lord to Israel, and the people don't honor or respect God (1:6b). Here the charge is addressed directly to the priests who despise God's name and perform unclean sacrifices (1:6–13). The second half of the passage is the announcement of judgment on the priests (2:1–9). If the priests don't hear and obey the prophet's words of warning (1:6–13), then they will be cursed, defiled, and removed from office (2:3). 2:1–9 is a prophetic dispute, but ironically those receiving the divine judgment have no reply.

1:7 polluted food: the animal sacrifices that are contaminated with blood.

If you bring a lame or sick one, isn't that evil?

Would you bring it to your governor?

<sup>9</sup>So now ask God to be gracious to us.

After what you have done, will he accept you? says the LORD of heavenly forces.

<sup>12</sup>But you make my name impure when you say,

Its fruit, its food, is despised."

<sup>13</sup>But you say, "How tedious!"

and you groan about it, says the LORD of heavenly forces.

You permit what is stolen, lame, or sick to be brought for a sacrifice,<sup>d</sup> and you bring the grain offering.

Should I accept such from your hands? says the LORD.

<sup>14</sup>I will curse the cheater who has a healthy<sup>e</sup> male in his flock, but who promises and sacrifices to the LORD that which is corrupt.

I am truly a great king, says the LORD of heavenly forces, and my name is feared among the nations.

2But now, this command is for you, priests:

<sup>2</sup>If you don't listen, or don't intend to glorify my name, says the LORD of heavenly forces, then I will send a curse among you.

God's Name In the book of Malachi, references to God's name appear many times. The priests are scolded for despising God's name (Mal 1:6b), an act of which they are seemingly unaware (Mal 1:6c). God's name was also made impure (Mal 1:12). Through the prophet, God declares that God's name will be great (Mal 1:11a) and is great (Mal 1:11b). The divine name is to be feared among the nations (Mal 1:14); it is to be glorified (Mal 2:2) and revered (Mal 4:2), and is something awesome (Mal 2:5). God's name is also a source for meditation (Mal 3:16b). God's name is tied to God's reputation. When God acts to preserve God's name, God is upholding God's own reputation, whether by guiding (Pss 23:3; 31:3), pardoning (Pss 25:11; 70:9), sparing (1 Sam 12:22; Isa 48:9; Jer 14:7, 21; Ezek 20:44), or delivering (Pss 106:8; 109:21; 143:11). Once Israel's behavior undermines God's reputation, God will act for the sake of God's holy name (Isa 52:5-6; Ezek 20:9, 14, 22; 36:19-24). Profaning God's name was a serious offense and usually happened through false worship (Lev 20:3; 22:2; Ezek 20:39; Mal 1:12) or injustice (Jer 34:16; Amos 2:7).

To know God's name means to be in a harmonious relationship with God and God's ways (cf. Ps 91:14). When one is in harmonious relationship with God, then the name of God is a strong tower (Prov 18:10) that can be called on to defend, save, help, and protect (Pss 20:1; 54:1; 124:8). God's name is worthy of trust (Ps 33:21; Isa 50:10; Zeph 3:12).

1:8 blind animal...lame or sick one: The priests are brought up on charges of offering animals that weren't acceptable for sacrifice and forbidden by the Instruction (see Lev 22:17-30; Deut 15:21).

1:9 to be gracious to us: The tone is sarcastic, because the priests have insulted God with their unacceptable sacrifices.
1:10 shut the doors of the temple: God aims to stop the pretense of worship conducted by the priests.

says the LORD of heavenly forces.

He was in awe of my name.

Judah's dishonesty

<sup>10</sup>Isn't there one father for all of us, one God who created us?

Why does everyone cheat each other to make the covenant of our ancestors impure?

<sup>11</sup>Judah cheated—a detestable thing was done in Israel and Jerusalem.
Judah made the LORD's holy place impure, which God loved, and married the daughter of a foreign god.

<sup>12</sup>May the LORD eliminate anyone who does so from the tents of Jacob, anyone awaking, testifying,<sup>h</sup> and making an offering to the LORD of heavenly forces.

<sup>13</sup>You should do this as well:
cover the altar of the LORD with tears, weeping, and groaning because there is still no divine favor for your offering or favorable regard for anything from your hand.

<sup>14</sup>But you say, "Why?"
Because the LORD testifies about you and the wife of your youth against whom you cheated.

2:10-16 The charge in these verses is threefold. Using a marriage metaphor, the prophet sets out three charges. First, Judah, depicted as a male spouse (2:10-13), is guilty of adultery, the same sin as some of the men of Judah. Judah committed adultery against the one God who created all (Mal 1:10) and demands fidelity. Here the prophet draws on Deuteronomy 32:6, which describes God as father and creator. Judah's detestable thing is the worship of other gods instead of the one God. The daughter of a foreign god (2:11) could be a reference to Asherah, a goddess honored at Ugarit and worshipped in Judah (1 Kgs 15:9-13) and Israel (1 Kgs 18:19). She was the mate of the high god El, and the mother of 70 sons. Second, the image of Judah marrying the daughter of a foreign god points to mixed marriages, a practice found among some of the men of Judah. Marriage to foreign women was a major issue (see Ezra 9-10; Neh 13:1-3, 23-30). The threat of mixing with cultures that worship many gods instead of the one God puts into jeopardy the identity of the Jewish people. Inter-marriage with spouses from various Canaanite nations was prohibited (Exod 34:11-16; Deut 7:1-6). Third, like Judah, some of the men of Judah are guilty of cheating on their wives (2:14), a breach in covenant relationship. The prophet seems to base this concern in Genesis 2:21-24.

2:12 The distinction is between those who worship only God and those who desire to worship other gods in addition to God.

2:17–3:6 The prophet argues that God's messenger will soon arrive to establish justice (2:17–3:4) as God draws near to the people to judge them (3:5–6).

2:17 The verse contains quotations from the people. These highlight their inability to understand justice. Anyone doing evil is good in the LORD's eyes: The statement represents a reversal of justice found throughout the community.

3:6 I am the LORD, and I do not change: The moral force behind the prophet's accusation against the people is grounded in God's unchangeable nature. The people haven't been consumed by God's rage for violating the covenant only because of God's faithfulness, patience, and compassion (cf. Hos 11:1–8). God makes it clear that the people have violated the covenant, but this hasn't prevented God's continued graciousness.

3:7–15 The people have not been giving a tenth of their income as an offering to God (3:7–10). Despite these charges, God continues to show them grace and favor. God offers them three promises: a renewal of the

<sup>11</sup>I will threaten the one who wants to devour you so that it doesn't spoil the fruit of your fertile land, and so that the vine doesn't abort its fruit in your field, for you will be a desirable land, says the LORD of heavenly forces.

<sup>13</sup>You have spoken harshly about me, says the LORD;
but you say, "What have we spoken about you?"

<sup>14</sup>You said, "Serving God is useless.

What do we gain by keeping his obligation or by walking around as mourners <sup>15</sup>So now we consider the arrogant fortunate.

they test God and escape."

The scroll of remembrance

<sup>16</sup>Then those revering the LORD, each and every one, spoke among themselves.
The LORD paid attention and listened to them.

Then a scroll of remembrance was written before the LORD about those revering the LORD, the ones meditating on his name.

they will be my special possession.

I will spare them just as parents spare a child who serves them.

leaving them neither root nor branch.

covenant relationship (3:7), blessings (3:10), and security against their enemies (3:11). God's vision for the people and Judah is that they once again be a desirable land (3:12). The people still need a change of heart that would in turn give them the knowledge they need to return to their God (3:13-15).

3:16-18 The message is directed toward those who remained faithful to God. These are the ones who now have God's attention. These verses make the distinction between the righteous and the wicked, and point out to the wicked that they will receive no attention from God (cf. Mic 3:4).

3:16 scroll of remembrance: This scroll is drawn up to identify the righteous.

3:17 On the day when God will act, the scroll of remembrance will be opened and will reveal and confirm who is righteous and who isn't.

4:1-6 These verses describe the day of the Lord, which signals destruction for the wicked and healing for the righteous (4:1-2). The passage also contains two appendixes: 4:4 and 4:5-6. The first appendix encourages listeners to remember Moses and his teachings. The second identifies Elijah as "the messenger" sent to the community the prophet referred to in Malachi 3:1.

4:4 Instruction from Moses: On Horeb/Sinai Moses received the Ten Commandments that are essential to the covenant relationship between Israel and God (Exod 20:1-21). The language of this verse reflects Deuteronomy 5:1-5. On the plains of Moab, Moses encouraged the Israelites to remember the covenant that God established with them 40 years earlier at Sinai. Remember implies more than merely recalling something from memory. Here the people are called not only to recollect but also to reenact and follow all they have been taught so that they can move into the future as God's people.

4:4-5 The reference to Horeb links the first appendix (4:4) to the second one (Mal 4:5-6), and also links Moses with Elijah. Moses received the Ten Commandments on Horeb, and Elijah had an encounter with God at Horeb (1Kgs 19:9-19).

4:5 Elijah: one of Israel's early and great prophets, active during the 9th century BCE. He was taken up into heaven by chariots, and no mention was ever made of his death (see 2 Kgs 2:10-12).

4:5-6 This second appendix looks forward to a new age characterized by healing, reconciliation, and peace. The Gospels of Matthew, Mark, and Luke identify the coming of John the Baptist with God's promise to send Elijah (e.g., Matt 11:12-15; 17:10-13; Luke 1:13-17).

MATTHEW

Matthew 1:1-28

The overarching theme of the Gospel of Matthew is the role of Jesus as the Christ in relation to God's plan of salvation for all humanity. Toward the end of the 1st century CE, after the destruction of the temple, Judaism itself was in the process of being reshaped. During this time, Matthew redefined what it means to be God's people as those who share a common ancestry with the historic nation of Israel and also participate in the new way made available through "Jesus Christ, son of David, son of Abraham" (Matt 1:1) and the ruler of the universe (Matt 28:18).

Jesus was born in the house of the royal Davidic dynasty, in a family that reaches back to Abraham. His conception by the Holy Spirit set him apart from ordinary humans, and words of prophecy declare him as the one who will save his people. His public life begins with his baptism by John, after which a heavenly voice presents him as God's Son, whom God dearly loves. He proclaims the kingdom of heaven, performs miracles, and teaches his followers what it means to be righteous and how to enter God's kingdom. Above all, Jesus in Matthew's Gospel is the authoritative interpreter of the Jewish scriptures, which we know as the Old Testament. He fulfilled the Torah and the Prophets by teaching how they express God's will and by living out God's will in his own life and ministry. Jesus identified and exposed evil at work in the religious, political, and social structures of his time. By doing so, he became an enemy of the religious establishment and the Roman Empire. This ultimately led to his arrest and trial by the Jewish leadership and then to his being sentenced to death and executed by the Roman military authority. The story ends with the resurrected Jesus encountering first

Mary Magdalene and another Mary and then the 11 disciples, telling them to go to all the nations to make disciples, baptize them, and teach the good news.

The Gospel of Matthew was written during the last decades of the 1st century CE. It was published anonymously, so the exact identity of the author is difficult to determine. Christian tradition since the 2nd century has identified Matthew as the evangelist who wrote this Gospel. We don't know with any certainty where this Gospel was written. Syria had a sizable Jewish population, and has been suggested as a probable candidate. The author seems to address Jewish Christians and tries to redefine their identity as God's people after the temple's destruction.

We find indications in the Gospel of Matthew that the author worked with sources for much of his narrative. He exercised great care in preserving those sources. At the same time, he was creative in the way he used his sources so that his narrative could speak relevantly and authentically to the situation and issues of his own day, in the latter part of the 1st century. In other words, Matthew's biography of Jesus gives us more than the bare facts. Like the other New Testament Gospels, this one comes to us as a kind of theological history that tells us the significance of what Jesus said and did.

Genealogy of Jesus

1 A record of the ancestors of Jesus Christ, son of David, son of Abraham:

<sup>2</sup>Abraham was the father of Isaac.

Isaac was the father of Jacob.

Jacob was the father of Judah and his brothers.

<sup>3</sup>Judah was the father of Perez and Zerah, whose mother was Tamar.

Perez was the father of Hezron.

Hezron was the father of Aram.

<sup>4</sup>Aram was the father of Amminadab.

Amminadab was the father of Nahshon.

Nahshon was the father of Salmon.

<sup>5</sup>Salmon was the father of Boaz, whose mother was Rahab.

Boaz was the father of Obed, whose mother was Ruth.

Obed was the father of Jesse.

<sup>6</sup>Jesse was the father of David the king.

David was the father of Solomon, whose mother had been the wife of Uriah.

<sup>7</sup>Solomon was the father of Rehoboam.

Rehoboam was the father of Abijah.

Abijah was the father of Asaph.

<sup>8</sup>Asaph was the father of Jehoshaphat.

Jehoshaphat was the father of Joram.

Joram was the father of Uzziah.

<sup>9</sup>Uzziah was the father of Jotham.

Jotham was the father of Ahaz.

Ahaz was the father of Hezekiah.

<sup>10</sup>Hezekiah was the father of Manasseh.

Manasseh was the father of Amos.

Amos was the father of Josiah.

<sup>11</sup>Josiah was the father of Jechoniah and his brothers.

This was at the time of the exile to Babylon.

<sup>12</sup>After the exile to Babylon: Jechoniah was the father of Shealtiel.

Shealtiel was the father of Zerubbabel.

<sup>13</sup>Zerubbabel was the father of Abiud.

Abiud was the father of Eliakim.

Eliakim was the father of Azor.

<sup>14</sup>Azor was the father of Zadok.

Zadok was the father of Achim.

Achim was the father of Eliud.

<sup>15</sup>Eliud was the father of Eleazar.

Eleazar was the father of Matthan.

Matthan was the father of Jacob.

<sup>16</sup>Jacob was the father of Joseph, the husband of Mary—of whom Jesus was born, who is called the Christ.

1:1-17 Matthew's genealogy presents Jesus as the rightful heir to the royal Davidic dynasty, and traces his family tree back to the great patriarch Abraham. Jesus is rightly called son of David, son of Abraham.

1:1 The word translated as ancestors, or "genealogy," is the same as the name of the first book of the OT in Greek: Genesis. Matthew wants to present Jesus' story as a new beginning of the history of salvation by God. The significance of this new beginning is like creation itself. A record of the ancestors of: exactly the same phrase used in Genesis 5:1 in the Greek OT. The verse functions as a title to the whole book as well as a reference to this section, Matthew 1:1-17. The name Christ comes from the Greek christos, meaning "anointed." See sidebar, "The Christ" at Matthew 11.

1:2-16 Five women are mentioned in the genealogy: Tamar (1:3; see Gen 38:1-27); Rahab (1:5; see Josh 2:1-24); Ruth (1:5; see Ruth 4:1-22); the wife of Uriah (1:6; 2 Sam 11:1-27); and Mary (1:16). All of them except Mary seem to have been of Gentile descent. This prepares for Matthew's affirmation that the good news is for all people (see Matt 28:18-20).

1:6 David the king: David is the only person called king in this genealogy. This is because he is the representative king of Israel. Israel's royal dynasty was called the house of David. See 2 Samuel 7:12-13.

<sup>17</sup>So there were fourteen generations from Abraham to David, fourteen generations from David to the exile to Babylon, and fourteen generations from the exile to Babylon to the Christ.

Birth of Jesus

<sup>18</sup>This is how the birth of Jesus Christ took place. When Mary his mother was engaged to Joseph, before they were married, she became pregnant by the Holy Spirit. <sup>19</sup>Joseph her husband was a righteous man. Because he didn't want to humiliate her, he decided to call off their engagement quietly. <sup>20</sup>As he was thinking about this, an angel from the Lord appeared to him in a dream and said, "Joseph son of David, don't be afraid to take Mary as your wife, because the child she carries was conceived by the Holy Spirit. <sup>21</sup>She will give birth to a son, and you will call him Jesus, because he will save his people from their sins." <sup>22</sup>Now all of this took place so that what the Lord had spoken through the prophet would be fulfilled:

<sup>23</sup>Look! A virgin will become pregnant and give birth to a son,

And they will call him, Emmanuel.<sup>a</sup>

(Emmanuel means "God with us.")

<sup>24</sup>When Joseph woke up, he did just as an angel from God commanded and took Mary as his wife. <sup>25</sup>But he didn't have sexual relations with her until she gave birth to a son. Joseph called him Jesus.

Coming of the magi

2After Jesus was born in Bethlehem in the territory of Judea during the rule of King Herod, magi came from the east to Jerusalem. <sup>2</sup>They asked, "Where is the newborn king of the Jews? We've seen his star in the east, and we've come to honor him."

1:17 The three-part division of the record of Jesus' family tree indicates that the establishment of the Davidic dynasty and the Babylonian exile were key events in Israel's history. Names (e.g., Ahaziah, Joash, and Amaziah) have been dropped from the genealogy in order to fit into this three-part division of 14 names each. Even so, the numbers don't add up, since the third set has only 13 names. Some scholars think that the number fourteen is important because this is the sum of the consonants of David's name. (In Hebrew, "d" has the numerical value of 4, and "v" has the numerical value of 6. David—or d-v-d—would be 4 + 6 + 4, or 14.)

1:18-25 Jesus' birth is told primarily from Joseph's perspective. He's the one who connects Jesus to the Davidic dynasty.

1:18 became pregnant by the Holy Spirit: Matthew's wording doesn't refer to the Spirit's taking the role of a male in a sexual encounter. Instead, Matthew refers to the unexplainable exercise of God's creative power. Clearly, Joseph isn't Jesus' biological father (see Matt 1:25).

1:19 See Deuteronomy 22:23-27, which distinguishes between two cases of an engaged woman who had sexual relations with a man and provides different judgments for each. Joseph doesn't seem to concern himself with which case applies to his fiancée. Instead, his decision to call off their engagement is viewed as an act of kindness, and he is therefore regarded as righteous. His righteousness is on display further in Matthew 1:24, since he does "just as an angel from God commanded."

1:20 Dreams are an important means of divine communication in Matthew. Except for the dream of the magi (Matt 2:12) and that of Pilate's wife (Matt 27:19), all dream-visions are given to Joseph (Matt 1:20; 2:12, 13, 19, 22).

1:21 The name Jesus comes from the Hebrew Yeshua, which means "deliverance" or "salvation." save his people from their sins: Israel was living in exile because of its sins. The coming of Jesus Christ marked the end of exile (see Matt 1:17) because, through him, God would forgive God's people.

1:22-23 All that has occurred thus far is interpreted as a fulfillment of what the Lord said through the prophet Isaiah. Matthew cites Isaiah 7:14, an oracle of the impending birth of a crown prince. Although the Hebrew text refers to "the young woman," Matthew follows the Greek OT in his reference to A virgin. This fits well with his story of Mary's conception by the Holy Spirit. God with us: This promise is crucial for a people who have experienced life apart from God, in exile. A similar phrase occurs in Matthew 18:20; 28:20.

1:25 Joseph called him Jesus: Naming a child in the ancient Mediterranean world was a significant act on the part of the father. In naming the child, the father officially acknowledges the infant as his own legitimate child. Here, the act of naming functions as a virtual adoption of Jesus by Joseph as his son, even though he had nothing to do with the pregnancy of Mary. This is how Jesus became an heir to the Davidic dynasty. Now he is rightly called "son of David" (Matt 1:1).

2:1-12 The story of the visit of the magi contrasts two responses to Jesus' birth as son of David: a visit by Gentiles from the East who honor Jesus; and a hostile reaction by Herod, who has nothing to do with the Davidic line and is therefore an illegitimate king. In addition, scattered throughout this chapter are echoes of the story of Moses, including, for example, opposition from a leader and his people (2:3); the death of baby boys (Matt 2:16); and the journey out of Egypt (Matt 2:21).

2:1 born in Bethlehem: Since this is David's city, it's important that Jesus was born here (see 1 Sam 16:1-13). Herod the Great was appointed as king of the Jews by the Roman senate in 40 BCE. This marked the beginning of the Herodian dynasty. He ruled Judea until his death in 4 BCE. The noun "magi" refers to interpreters of dreams, astrologers, fortune-tellers, or anyone who possesses secret <sup>3</sup>When King Herod heard this, he was troubled, and everyone in Jerusalem was troubled with him. <sup>4</sup>He gathered all the chief priests and the legal experts and asked them where the Christ was to be born. <sup>5</sup>They said, "In Bethlehem of Judea, for this is what the prophet wrote:

<sup>6</sup>You, Bethlehem, land of Judah, by no means are you least among the rulers of Judah, because from you will come one who governs, who will shepherd my people Israel."<sup>b</sup>

<sup>7</sup>Then Herod secretly called for the magi and found out from them the time when the star had first appeared. <sup>8</sup>He sent them to Bethlehem, saying, "Go and search carefully for the child. When you've found him, report to me so that I too may go and honor knowledge. These magi are portrayed as astrologers who can read signs in the stars and planets that point to the birth of a king.

<sup>2:2-3</sup> Matthew contrasts two kings: Herod is the present king, but is of Gentile descent and has no real claim to the throne; Jesus is the legitimate king of the royal Davidic line. This is a criticism of Herod.

<sup>2:2</sup> Signs in the stars and planets concerning the birth of a future king were common in ancient literature.

<sup>2:3</sup> The magi refer to signs in the stars and planets that have nothing to do with Herod's sons. This alarms both Herod and everyone who benefits from his rule, including Roman officers and their Jewish partners in Jerusalem.

<sup>2:5-6</sup> Bethlehem is David's hometown (1 Sam 16:4; Luke 2:4). This reference to a prophecy that says the future ruler, or Christ, will come from Bethlehem indicates a strong desire on the part of many Jewish people for the restoration of the Davidic kingdom of Israel.

<sup>2:6</sup> The quotation combines Micah 5:2 and 2 Samuel 5:2. Both passages originally referred to David. Matthew

This fulfilled what the Lord had spoken through the prophet: I have called my son out of Egypt.<sup>6</sup>

Those who were trying to kill the child are dead.”<sup>21</sup>Joseph got up, took the child and his mother, and went to the land of Israel.<sup>22</sup>But when he heard that Archelaus ruled over Judea in place of his father Herod, Joseph was afraid to go there. Having been warned in a dream, he went to the area of Galilee.<sup>23</sup>He settled in a city called Nazareth so that what was spoken through the prophets might be fulfilled: He will be called a Nazarene.

<sup>6</sup>Hos 11:1 <sup>d</sup>Jer 31:15 applies these prophecies to Jesus, the true heir to the house of David.

2:11 In contrast to the birth stories of Jesus in Luke, these Gentile magi are the first and the only ones who came and worshipped the infant Jesus.

2:13–15 Jesus’ escape to Egypt and his later return recall the exodus story. This is made clear by the quotation of Hosea 11:1.

2:16–18 No other historian refers to the murder of the Bethlehem children by Herod. However, it fits with the many other similar acts of violence that the 1st-century Jewish historian Josephus narrates in his accounts of Herod’s rule. This story of Herod’s killing these infants parallels the murder of Israelite male infants by Pharaoh (Exod 1:15–22).

2:16 Herod knows that he was fooled by the magi, but he doesn’t know of Jesus’ escape to Egypt. He assumes that the infant is still in Bethlehem, and this motivates him to kill all the male infants there. According to the Jewish historian Josephus, it was illegal even for a king to kill anybody unless a death sentence was first handed down by the Jewish council in Jerusalem, the Sanhedrin. Indeed, Josephus accuses Herod of illegal executions like this.

2:18 Matthew quotes Jeremiah 31:15, which refers to the removal of the people of Judah to Babylon as captives. It was in Ramah that the captives were gathered before they were taken to exile. In this oracle, Jeremiah calls upon Rachel, an ancestral matriarch, to weep for her descendants as they are taken away. The oracle as a whole (Jer 31:15–22) is ultimately about God’s promise for the restoration from exile. This fits with Matthew’s story of Jesus as one who will save God’s people (see Matt 1:21).

2:19–22 When Herod the Great died in 4 BCE, his kingdom was divided among three of his sons. Archelaus was appointed as ruler over Judea, Samaria, and Idumea. Philip was made ruler over Iturea and Trachonitis. And Antipas was made ruler over Galilee and Perea.

2:20 The angel’s instruction parallels the exodus story, in which the Lord says to Moses in Midian, “Go back to Egypt because everyone there who wanted to kill you has died” (Exod 4:19). Those who were trying to kill the child: the chief priests and legal experts, Herod’s partners in Matthew 2:4.

2:22 Herod Archelaus (see note on Matt 2:19–22) was known to be a cruel, ironfisted ruler. In 6 BCE, he was summoned to Rome because of his excessive harshness. As a result he was removed from office and driven away to Gaul. This explains why Joseph chose to settle in Galilee rather than going back to Judea.

2:23 Nazareth is about 15 miles west of the Galilee Sea. This town is never mentioned in the OT, nor does the OT refer to someone who would be called a Nazarene. Matthew may be using a play on the word “Nazarene”—perhaps to identify Jesus as one dedicated to the Lord, a “nazirite” (from the Hebrew root nzr; for a description of a

Judea under Foreign Rule Alexander the Great conquered Persia and its former colonies, including Judea, in 332 BCE. When he died in 323 BCE, his vast kingdom was divided among his three generals. Palestine first fell under the Ptolemies. But in 198 BCE the Seleucids gained control of Palestine and began introducing Greek culture into Judea. This process reached its peak during the reign of Antiochus IV Epiphanes. Judas Maccabeus led a revolt against Greek rule and successfully recaptured Jerusalem in 164 BCE. His brother Simon established a kingdom in 142 BCE, marking the beginning of the Hasmonean dynasty. In 63 BCE Pompey entered Palestine, which fell under the rule of the Roman republic until Rome appointed Herod the Great as king of Judea in 37 BCE. When Herod died in 4 BCE, his kingdom was divided among his three sons: Herod Archelaus ruled Judah, Samaria, and Idumea until 6 CE; Herod Antipas ruled Galilee until 39 CE; and Philip ruled Trachonitis until 34 CE.

Ministry of John the Baptist

3In those days John the Baptist appeared in the desert of Judea announcing, <sup>2</sup>"Change your hearts and lives! Here comes the kingdom of heaven!" <sup>3</sup>He was the one of whom Isaiah the prophet spoke when he said:

*The voice of one shouting in the wilderness,
"Prepare the way for the Lord;
make his paths straight."*<sup>a</sup>

<sup>5</sup>People from Jerusalem, throughout Judea, and all around the Jordan River came to him.

<sup>6</sup>As they confessed their sins, he baptized them in the Jordan River. <sup>7</sup>Many Pharisees and Sadducees came to be baptized by John. He said to them, "You children of snakes! Who warned nazirite, see Num 6) like Samson (Judg 13:2-7) or Samuel (1 Sam 1-2); or as a "sprout" or "shoot" (from the Hebrew root ntr), a term used in Isaiah 11:1 to refer to God's agent of salvation.

3:1-6 John the Baptist preaches the same message of the kingdom of heaven as Jesus will preach (Matt 4:17). For Matthew, Isaiah anticipated a figure like John the Baptist, who would be Jesus' predecessor as proclaimer of God's rule. See sidebar, "The Kingdom of Heaven."

3:1 In those days: Matthew's story jumps from the time of Jesus' infancy to his adulthood. in the desert of Judea: The location is imprecise, but Matthew 3:5-6 locates John's ministry around the Jordan River. The Jordan River runs over a long stretch of desert from the Galilee Sea (also known as the Lake of Gennesaret; e.g., Luke 5:1) to the Dead Sea. The exact location of John's activity isn't known. It was probably on the banks of the river east of Jerusalem or in the Transjordan area (that is, east of the Jordan River). 3:2 See sidebar, "The Kingdom of Heaven."

3:3 The quotation is from Isaiah 40:3, which was addressed to the Jews in Babylon as a prophecy of God's coming to rescue them from exile. Here the voice of the prophet is applied to John the Baptist, and the way of God is understood as the way of Jesus.

3:4 John's clothing is like Elijah's clothing in 2 Kings 1:8, portraying John as a prophetic figure like Elijah. Later, Jesus will refer to John the Baptist as Elijah (Matt 11:14; 17:12). In Malachi 4:5, the Lord says, "Look, I am sending Elijah the prophet to you, before the great and terrifying day of the Lord."

3:6 Some OT texts associate sin with the need for washing (e.g., Ezek 36:25-28; Zech 13:1; see Acts 22:16), and 1st-century Jewish people practiced a ritual of washing themselves as a way of making themselves clean from a religious viewpoint. John's baptism wasn't self-washing, however. Like Christian baptism that would come later (see Matt 28:18-20), this baptism was performed by God's agent as a concrete expression of covenant renewal with those who profess the desire to change their hearts and lives (see Matt 3:1).

3:7-12 John receives ordinary people who come to him for baptism (Matt 3:5-6), but he challenges the Pharisees and Sadducees. Although these two groups had vastly different views about how to be faithful to God (see note on Matt 3:7), Matthew can lump them together because of their shared hostility toward Jesus and his mission (see Matt 16:1-12). For them in particular, John renews his earlier call to change hearts and lives (see Matt 3:1). His words of warning and challenge anticipate the coming of the Christ.

3:7 Pharisees: members of a Jewish political and religious party that began during the Hasmonian dynasty (167–36 BCE) and continued after the temple's destruction. They were known for their devotion to the study of the scriptures and observance of the laws, especially the purity laws. Sadducees: the priestly elite, who were in charge of worship practices in the temple. They were a Jewish political and religious party that began during the Hasmonian period, but they ceased to exist as a party after the temple's destruction. See sidebar, "Pharisees and Sadducees" at Matthew 16. the angry judgment reflects a popular belief among some Jewish people during the second-temple period (from the late 6th century BCE through 70 CE) that God would soon intervene directly in history, and that this would bring about a radical change of the present social and political order and usher in a new era of salvation. John the Baptist is presented as a prophet who stood in that tradition.

you to escape from the angry judgment that is coming soon? <sup>8</sup>Produce fruit that shows you have changed your hearts and lives. <sup>9</sup>And don't even think about saying to yourselves, Abraham is our father. I tell you that God is able to raise up Abraham's children from these stones. <sup>10</sup>The ax is already at the root of the trees. Therefore, every tree that doesn't produce good fruit will be chopped down and tossed into the fire. <sup>11</sup>I baptize with water those of you who have changed your hearts and lives. The one who is coming after me is stronger than I am. I'm not worthy to carry his sandals. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire. <sup>12</sup>The shovel he uses to sift the wheat from the husks is in his hands. He will clean out his threshing area and bring the wheat into his barn. But he will burn the husks with a fire that can't be put out."

Baptism of Jesus

<sup>13</sup>At that time Jesus came from Galilee to the Jordan River so that John would baptize him. <sup>14</sup>John tried to stop him and said, "I need to be baptized by you, yet you come to me?"

<sup>15</sup>Jesus answered, "Allow me to be baptized now. This is necessary to fulfill all righteousness."

So John agreed to baptize Jesus. <sup>16</sup>When Jesus was baptized, he immediately came up out of the water. Heaven was opened to him, and he saw the Spirit of God coming down like a dove and resting on him. <sup>17</sup>A voice from heaven said, "This is my Son whom I dearly love; I find happiness in him."

Temptation of Jesus

4 Then the Spirit led Jesus up into the wilderness so that the devil might tempt him. <sup>2</sup>After Jesus had fasted for forty days and forty nights, he was starving. <sup>3</sup>The tempter came to him and said, "Since you are God's Son, command these stones to become bread."

3:9 Many Jews believed that descent from Abraham offered membership within Israel's covenant community, providing the basis for salvation. But John warns the religious leaders that physical descent from Abraham doesn't guarantee salvation. People needed to share in Abraham's commitments and behavior. The image of stones emphasizes this point, though without suggesting that Jews will be replaced as God's people by Gentiles.

3:11 The one who is coming—clearly, Jesus. The word for Spirit, both in Greek and Hebrew, also refers to "wind." Together with fire, wind is frequently used as an image for judgment in the OT (e.g., Isa 4:4).

3:12 shovel: a tool used to separate the good seed from the husks (of chaff) and then to gather each into piles—the seed for storage, the husks for burning. John uses an image from the harvest to portray the end-time judgment, separating those who have changed their hearts and lives from those who haven't.

3:13-17 Jesus' baptism by John marks the beginning of his public ministry.

3:14 John's baptism looked forward to the baptism of "The one who is coming" (Matt 3:11). Jesus is that "one," so John recognizes that he is in need of the baptism Jesus brings, a baptism "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" (Matt 3:11).

3:15 righteousness: refers to life lived in a restored relationship with God, which both John and Jesus preach. As the people show their commitment to God's ways in baptism, so Jesus' baptism would mark his allegiance to God's righteousness (or "justice").

The Kingdom of Heaven Unlike the Gospels of Mark and Luke, Matthew rarely refers to "God's kingdom." Instead, Matthew prefers the phrase "kingdom of heaven." "Heaven" is an indirect way of referring to God, following Jewish misgivings about pronouncing God's name. The phrase doesn't imply that the kingdom is located in heaven, though it does make clear that God rules from heaven and that the nature of the kingdom proclaimed by John and Jesus is determined by God's will. Proclamation of the kingdom of heaven by John and Jesus stands as a challenge to Rome's way of ruling.

3:16 Heaven was opened: In Ezekiel 1:1-3, the opening of heaven enables the prophet Ezekiel to see visions of God and hear the Lord's words (see John 1:51; Rev 19:11). In the same manner, Jesus sees God's Spirit coming down to him.

3:17 A voice from heaven: Not just for Jesus but for all to hear that Jesus is God's beloved Son. God speaks of Jesus, borrowing language from Psalm 2:7; Isaiah 42:1; and possibly Exodus 4:22-23. I find happiness in him: or "He is my favorite." The reference is both to God's approval and to God's delight. This clarifies Jesus' identity as God's Son and marks the beginning of Jesus' public ministry.

4:1 Then the Spirit led: The Spirit's coming upon Jesus in his baptism (Matt 3:13-17) prepares for the Spirit's role as leader in Jesus' ministry here and throughout the Gospel. the devil might tempt him: The devil is introduced without fanfare in the role by which he will be named in Matthew 4:3: "The tempter" tempts. See Matthew 13:39; 25:41. In Matthew 4:10; 12:26; 16:23, the devil (a Greek term) is known by his Hebrew name, "Satan."

4:2 forty days and forty nights: Moses also fasted 40 days and 40 nights on Mount Sinai (Exod 34:28; Deut 9:9). In addition, God led the people of Israel in the wilderness for 40 years to test whether they would keep the commandments (Deut 8:2).

4:3-4 Since you are God's Son: Some translations read "If you are God's Son," but the Greek text leaves no doubt. The devil knows that Jesus is God's Son, so the question is how he will fulfill his role as God's Son. Will he use his status to work a miracle or will he depend on God?

<sup>4</sup>Jesus replied, "It's written, People won't live only by bread, but by every word spoken by God."<sup>f</sup>

<sup>5</sup>After that the devil brought him into the holy city and stood him at the highest point of the temple. He said to him, <sup>6</sup>"Since you are God's Son, throw yourself down; for it is written, I will command my angels concerning you, and they will take you up in their hands so that you won't hit your foot on a stone."<sup>g</sup>

<sup>7</sup>Jesus replied, "Again it's written, Don't test the Lord your God."<sup>h</sup>

<sup>8</sup>Then the devil brought him to a very high mountain and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory. <sup>9</sup>He said, "I'll give you all these if you bow down and worship me."

<sup>10</sup>Jesus responded, "Go away, Satan, because it's written, You will worship the Lord your God and serve only him."<sup>i</sup> <sup>11</sup>The devil left him, and angels came and took care of him.

Move to Galilee

<sup>12</sup>Now when Jesus heard that John was arrested, he went to Galilee. <sup>13</sup>He left Nazareth and settled in Capernaum, which lies alongside the sea in the area of Zebulun and Naphtali.

<sup>14</sup>This fulfilled what Isaiah the prophet said:

<sup>15</sup>Land of Zebulun and land of Naphtali, alongside the sea, across the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles, <sup>16</sup>the people who lived in the dark have seen a great light, and a light has come upon those who lived in the region and in shadow of death.<sup>j</sup>

<sup>17</sup>From that time Jesus began to announce, "Change your hearts and lives! Here comes the kingdom of heaven!"

Calling of the first disciples

<sup>18</sup>As Jesus walked alongside the Galilee Sea, he saw two brothers, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew, throwing fishing nets into the sea, because they were fishermen. <sup>19</sup>"Come, follow me," he said, "and I'll show you how to fish for people." <sup>20</sup>Right away, they left their nets and followed him. <sup>21</sup>Continuing on, he saw another set of brothers, James the son of Zebedee and his brother John. They were in a boat with Zebedee their father repairing their nets. Jesus called them and <sup>22</sup>immediately they left the boat and their father and followed him.

Quoting Deuteronomy 8:3, Jesus demonstrates his obedience to God; unlike Israel, who failed a similar test in the wilderness.

4:5-7 Since you are God's Son: See note on Matthew 4:3-4. Will Jesus test God to see if God will prove that Jesus is God's Son by protecting him from injury? Jesus refuses, quoting Deuteronomy 6:16, a reference to Israel's testing of God in the wilderness. Unlike Israel, Jesus doesn't test God, proving again that he is God's faithful Son.

4:8-10 The devil invites Jesus to transfer his loyalty from God to the devil. Jesus refuses by quoting Deuteronomy 6:13, which commands Israel to worship and serve God alone. Jesus again proves to be God's faithful Son.

4:12-16 Matthew has demonstrated in chapters 2-3 that John and Jesus are parallel figures. For this reason, when we read that John is arrested we can anticipate that Jesus will experience the same fate. For now, Jesus goes to Galilee to begin his ministry.

4:13-16 the area of Zebulun and Naphtali: According to the book of Joshua, after the conquest of the promised land, the lower land of Galilee west of the Lake of Galilee, which includes Nazareth, belonged to the tribes of Zebulun (Josh 19:10-16); and the area to the northwest of the Lake of Galilee belonged to the tribes of Naphtali (Josh 19:32-39). Matthew lumps them together as the primary location of Jesus' ministry. This fulfilled what Isaiah the prophet said: See Isaiah 9:1-2. When Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria, invaded Israel in 732 BCE, he captured Gilead and Galilee, including all the land of Naphtali (2 Kgs 15:29). As a result, this region became the Assyrian province of Galilee with Megiddo as its capital. That is probably why this region is called "Galilee of the nations [or Gentiles]" in Isaiah (Isa 9:1-2). Matthew will later develop the significance of this phrase when he reports Jesus' words that salvation is to include "all nations" (Matt 28:16-20) or "the Gentiles" (Matt 12:16-21). The prophecy from Isaiah referred to the birth of a Davidic heir as a promise for the restoration of the occupied Assyrian provinces. For Matthew, this message is fulfilled in the life and ministry of Jesus.

4:17-25 A summary of Jesus' entire ministry and message (Matt 4:17) leads to two stories in which Jesus calls disciples (4:18-22) and to a summary of Jesus' itinerant ministry (4:23-25). These stories demonstrate what it means to Change your hearts and lives and for the kingdom of heaven to draw near. See sidebar, "The Kingdom of Heaven" at Matthew 3.

4:18-22 In the ancient world, fisherfolk were peasants. Matthew's two accounts portray different kinds of fishing—Peter and Andrew have only nets, which they throw into the lake; whereas James and John are part of a family business with a boat.

4:19, 22 fish for people: From the very beginning, the calling of disciples suggests missionary activity. they left: Both in 4:19 and 4:22, the response is immediate and complete. They left their ways of life, even family. This wholesale following after Jesus summarizes the nature of discipleship.

Ministry to the crowds

<sup>23</sup>Jesus traveled throughout Galilee, teaching in their synagogues. He announced the good news of the kingdom and healed every disease and sickness among the people. <sup>24</sup>News about him spread throughout Syria. People brought to him all those who had various kinds of diseases, those in pain, those possessed by demons, those with epilepsy, and those who were paralyzed, and he healed them. <sup>25</sup>Large crowds followed him from Galilee, the Decapo-

5lis, Jerusalem, Judea, and from the areas beyond the Jordan River. <sup>1</sup>Now when Jesus saw the crowds, he went up a mountain. He sat down and his disciples came to him. <sup>2</sup>He taught them, saying:

Happy people

<sup>3</sup>“Happy are people who are hopeless, because the kingdom of heaven is theirs.

<sup>4</sup>“Happy are people who grieve, because they will be made glad.

<sup>5</sup>“Happy are people who are humble, because they will inherit the earth.

<sup>6</sup>“Happy are people who are hungry and thirsty for righteousness, because they will be fed until they are full.

<sup>7</sup>“Happy are people who show mercy, because they will receive mercy.

<sup>9</sup>“Happy are people who make peace, because they will be called God’s children.

4:23-25 Jesus’ ministry consists of synagogue teaching, proclaiming the kingdom of heaven, and healing. The list of diseases emphasizes the enormous range of Jesus’ healing activity. In this way, the good news is experienced as “a great light . . . in [the] shadow of death” (Matt 4:16). The Roman province of Syria was north of the area of Galilee. Matthew’s reference to Syria has led some scholars to think that Matthew’s Gospel was written in Syria.

5:1-7:29 Matthew’s Gospel contains five long sermons delivered by Jesus (Matt 5-7; 10; 13; 18; 24-25). These help to shape the overall structure of the Gospel. The Sermon on the Mount is the first of them. The parallel in Luke 6:20-49 is called the Sermon on the Plain.

5:1-2 up a mountain: Mountains are important in Matthew’s Gospel (see Matt 4:8; 14:23; 15:29; 17:1; 24:3; 28:16), where they are often places of revelation. Jesus is like Moses, who went up the mountain to bring God’s Instruction to God’s people (Exod 19-20). He sat down: Rabbis typically sat down to teach (see also Matt 13:2; 24:3).

5:3-12 Happy: The Greek term makarios is often translated as “blessed.” For a similar emphasis, see Psalm 1. Makarios refers to a person’s being fortunate or happy on account of their circumstances. In using the translation happy, the CEB is emphasizing the flourishing, contentment, and well-being of the persons described in Matthew 5:3-12. Jesus’ words may seem strange, though, since he regards as “happy people” those who are usually regarded as troubled and unfortunate. Located at the beginning of Jesus’ first major sermon, this alerts us to the topsy-turvy nature of Jesus’ teaching. It shows us who experiences well-being and contentment under God’s rule rather than according to normal social conventions. In this way, each of these statements declares as happy people those ordinarily regarded as living miserable lives and provides them with an assurance in the form of a promise. Verses 3-10 form a self-contained unit, sharing the same literary pattern of a pronouncement of happiness followed by the reason. The last pronouncement (5:11-12) breaks this pattern and stands on its own.

5:3 hopeless: often translated as “poor in spirit.” The phrase doesn’t refer to “humility” but to those who continue to look to God for help in the midst of their present, needy state. See the parallel in Matthew 5:10, which refers to those who are harassed because of righteousness or justice. The kingdom of heaven belongs to both. These two affirmations function like a set of bookends for Matthew 5:1-10. See sidebar, “The Kingdom of Heaven” at Matthew 3. 5:4 who grieve: recalls Isaiah 61:1-3, in which the prophet is commissioned by the Spirit of the Lord to comfort all who mourn for Zion. For people experiencing grief in the midst of exile, following the destruction of the temple in 587 BCE, comfort marks the end of the time of loss and exile, when God will bring restoration (Isa 61:4).

5:5 humble: recalls Psalm 37:11, which refers to the powerless, the poor, the humble, who look to God for rescue.

5:6 hungry and thirsty: See Psalm 107:9, which praises God, who satisfies the thirsty and the hungry. Jesus’ announcement adds the phrase for righteousness (or “justice”). Hunger and thirst identify basic human needs—usually for food and drink, but in this case for righteousness or justice. Such people long for God to set things right: to establish a just social order and to defend God’s people.

5:7 show mercy: The emphasis shifts from the needs of God’s people to the ways they orient their lives to the situations in which they find themselves. People who show mercy are generous in the help they show others in need. Those who are themselves needy are thus encouraged to care for others in need. Elsewhere, Matthew twice quotes Hosea 6:6, which says that God desires love (or mercy) rather than sacrifice (Matt 9:13; 12:7; see also Matt 23:23).

5:8 pure hearts: In Psalm 24:3-4 a pure heart is one of the qualifications for standing in the sanctuary of the mountain of the Lord. In ancient psychology, the heart was a person’s core, the location of thoughts, feelings, and decisions. A pure heart, then, is the opposite of deceit or trickery, but refers to integrity and sincerity. In Jewish thought, seeing God wouldn’t really have been a possibility (cf. Exod 33:20), but as a metaphor it can refer to God’s drawing near to protect God’s people, bringing justice and happiness (e.g., Ps 11).

5:9 peace: complete well-being, the kind that results from right relations with God and with fellow human beings. Peacemakers are involved in practices that nurture <sup>10</sup>Happy are people whose lives are harassed because they are righteous, because the kingdom of heaven is theirs.

<sup>11</sup>Happy are you when people insult you and harass you and speak all kinds of bad and great things about you, all because of me. <sup>12</sup>Be full of joy and be glad, because you have a great reward in heaven. In the same way, people harassed the prophets who came before you.

Salt and light

<sup>13</sup>You are the salt of the earth. But if salt loses its saltiness, how will it become salty again? It's good for nothing except to be thrown away and trampled under people's feet. <sup>14</sup>You are the light of the world. A city on top of a hill can't be hidden. <sup>15</sup>Neither do people light a lamp and put it under a basket. Instead, they put it on top of a lampstand, and it shines on all who are in the house. <sup>16</sup>In the same way, let your light shine before people, so they can see the good things you do and praise your Father who is in heaven.

Jesus and the Law

<sup>17</sup>Don't even begin to think that I have come to do away with the Law and the Prophets. I haven't come to do away with them but to fulfill them. <sup>18</sup>I say to you very seriously that as long as heaven and earth exist, neither the smallest letter nor even the smallest stroke of a pen will be erased from the Law until everything there becomes a reality. <sup>19</sup>Therefore, whoever ignores one of the least of these commands and teaches others to do the same will be called the lowest in the kingdom of heaven. But whoever keeps these commands and teaches people to keep them will be called great in the kingdom of heaven. <sup>20</sup>I say to you that unless your righteousness is greater than the righteousness of the legal experts and the Pharisees, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven.

Law of murder

<sup>21</sup>You have heard that it was said to those who lived long ago, Don't commit murder,<sup>k</sup> and all who commit murder will be in danger of judgment. <sup>22</sup>But I say to you that everyone well-being in the midst of situations marked by bad relations or hostility. Such persons are God's children both because they work for peace just as God does and because they are counted among God's people.

5:10 harassed: those who maintain faithfulness and resist compromise even in the presence of suffering. The phrase kingdom of heaven links Matthew 5:3 and 5:10; the passage has come full circle. The presence of the heavenly kingdom turns the tables on normal expectations regarding what it means to flourish as human beings.

5:11-12 Happy are you: In verses 3-10, Jesus spoke to his disciples (Matt 5:1-2) about happy people. Now he speaks directly to his disciples: Happy are you. Those who follow Jesus in his ministry of proclaiming the kingdom of heaven will face suffering, just as Jesus does, but ultimately God will triumph and reward them in the newly ushered kingdom of heaven. See sidebar, "The Kingdom of Heaven" at Matthew 3.

5:13-14 In the ancient world, salt was used for flavoring and preserving food, as an agent for cleansing, and for other things as well. Without trying to tie down its specific meaning here, it's probably best to talk about how basic and beneficial it is to human life. Jesus uses salt and light to suggest that disciples aren't expected to live or work for themselves but for others. Moreover, their focus isn't just Israel (or the church), but the whole world (cf. Isa 42:6; 49:6). 5:17-20 Jesus isn't against the Law. He doesn't abolish or replace it. Rather, he shows how it is to be interpreted, and in this way fulfills it. the Law and the Prophets: a traditional designation for the OT. Law is a translation of the Hebrew term torah, which is best understood as instruction. "Torah" can also refer to the first five books of the OT. See sidebar, "Israel's Scriptures."

5:19 one of the least of these commands: Some Jews distinguished between greater commandments and less important ones, but rabbinic literature emphasizes that there will be a reward for keeping every Torah commandment, however great or small it may be.

5:20 righteousness: traditionally associated with maintaining the commandments (see Deut 6:25). Jesus says that the religious leaders failed to keep the Law, in spite of their claims to observe all the commandments. Jesus' followers are expected to keep God's commandments more faithfully than the legal experts and Pharisees, who apparently focused on the details of the Law without honoring its deeper significance.

5:21-48 Matthew 5:20 calls for a greater righteousness, and now Jesus gives six examples of what this would look like. He does this, first, by quoting a conventional interpretation of a law and then by pressing it further with his own interpretation.

5:21-26 The law against murder is the sixth of the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:13; Deut 5:17). Jesus quotes it together with its usual interpretation, and then reinterprets it so that it applies more widely to relationships with others. The examples Jesus gives in 5:22 demonstrate the importance of not acting with hostility toward others, and the examples in 5:23-26 show the importance of seeking reconciliation when there are broken relationships.

5:21 it was said: This way of speaking (using a passive verb) is typical of Jewish custom to avoid mentioning God's name. The point is that it was God who spoke these words. those who lived long ago: likely a reference to Moses and the Israelites who received the Ten Commandments.

5:22 But I say to you: Jesus speaks as one with authority. Jesus doesn't use the word "but" to contradict either the who is angry with their brother or sister will be in danger of judgment. If they say to their brother or sister, 'You idiot,' they will be in danger of being condemned by the governing council. And if they say, 'You fool,' they will be in danger of fiery hell. <sup>23</sup>Therefore, if you bring your gift to the altar and there remember that your brother or sister has something against you, <sup>24</sup>leave your gift at the altar and go. First make things right with your brother or sister and then come back and offer your gift. <sup>25</sup>Be sure to make friends quickly with your opponents while you are with them on the way to court. Otherwise, they will haul you before the judge, the judge will turn you over to the officer of the court, and you will be thrown into prison. <sup>26</sup>I say to you in all seriousness that you won't get out of there until you've paid the very last penny.

Law of adultery

<sup>27</sup>"You have heard that it was said, Don't commit adultery.<sup>1</sup> <sup>28</sup>But I say to you that every man who looks at a woman lustfully has already committed adultery in his heart. <sup>29</sup>And if your right eye causes you to fall into sin, tear it out and throw it away. It's better that you lose a part of your body than that your whole body be thrown into hell. <sup>30</sup>And if your right hand causes you to fall into sin, chop it off and throw it away. It's better that you lose a part of your body than that your whole body go into hell.

Law of divorce

Law of solemn pledges

<sup>33</sup>"Again you have heard that it was said to those who lived long ago: Don't make a false solemn pledge, but you should follow through on what you have pledged to the Lord.<sup>n</sup> <sup>34</sup>But I say to you that you must not pledge at all. You must not pledge by heaven, because it's God's throne. <sup>35</sup>You must not pledge by the earth, because it's God's footstool. You must not pledge by Jerusalem, because it's the city of the great king. <sup>36</sup>And you must not pledge by your head, because you can't turn one hair white or black. <sup>37</sup>Let your yes mean yes, and your no mean no. Anything more than this comes from the evil one.

commandment or its conventional interpretation. Rather, Jesus deepens the meaning of the commandment and expands its application.

5:23-24 First make things right: Even practices of worship can't be regarded as genuine until relationships with others are made right.

5:27-28 The law against adultery is the seventh of the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:14; Deut 5:18). In the OT, adultery refers to sexual relations between a married woman and a man other than her husband. Jesus expands the category of adultery to include the desire to violate another's marriage sexually.

5:29-30 tear it out... chop it off: Jesus uses symbolic language to drive home the seriousness of his teaching. The eye and the hand might be used as one moves from looking "at a woman lustfully" to actually committing "adultery" (Matt 5:28), but Jesus isn't actually

Israel's Scriptures During the time of Jesus, for most Jews the scriptures had three parts: Law, Prophets, and Writings. Different groups of Jews had different ideas about the scriptures, however. Everyone recognized the Law as scripture, but some acknowledged only the Law as scripture, while others included the Prophets and still others regarded all three as scripture. Jesus frequently refers to "the Law and the Prophets" in Matthew, though this doesn't imply that he accepted only the Law and the Prophets as having authority. Matthew's Gospel assumes among its readers a high level of familiarity with Israel's scriptures.

calling people to participate in acts of self-harm. Instead, he claims that failing to take sin seriously can lead one to experience judgment in hell. Geenna (Gk.) is sometimes translated as "Gehenna" instead of hell. In the Gospels, the term typically refers to the place of judgment in the afterlife.

5:31-32 Jesus comments on the divorce procedure in Deuteronomy 24:1, which allows men to divorce their wives for almost any reason. Here, Jesus allows divorce only in cases of sexual unfaithfulness, thus limiting what a man can do in matters of marriage and divorce while also protecting women from mistreatment.

5:33-37 Leviticus 19:12 forbids swearing falsely by God's name. Jesus takes the command even further, saying no to swearing of any kind. He demands complete honesty in all verbal communication at all times. This alone rules out the need for swearing, as 5:37 makes clear.

Law of retaliation

<sup>38</sup>"You have heard that it was said, An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.<sup>o</sup> <sup>39</sup>But I say to you that you must not oppose those who want to hurt you. If people slap you on your right cheek, you must turn the left cheek to them as well. <sup>40</sup>When they wish to haul you to court and take your shirt, let them have your coat too. <sup>41</sup>When they force you to go one mile, go with them two. <sup>42</sup>Give to those who ask, and don't refuse those who wish to borrow from you.

Law of love

<sup>43</sup>"You have heard that it was said, You must love your neighbor<sup>p</sup> and hate your enemy. <sup>44</sup>But I say to you, love your enemies and pray for those who harass you <sup>45</sup>so that you will be acting as children of your Father who is in heaven. He makes the sun rise on both the evil and the good and sends rain on both the righteous and the unrighteous. <sup>46</sup>If you love only those who love you, what reward do you have? Don't even the tax collectors do the same? <sup>47</sup>And if you greet only your brothers and sisters, what more are you doing? Don't even the Gentiles do the same? <sup>48</sup>Therefore, just as your heavenly Father is complete in showing love to everyone, so also you must be complete.

Showy religion

6Be careful that you don't practice your religion in front of people to draw their attention. If you do, you will have no reward from your Father who is in heaven.

<sup>2</sup>Whenever you give to the poor, don't blow your trumpet as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets so that they may get praise from people. I assure you, that's the only reward they'll get. <sup>3</sup>But when you give to the poor, don't let your left hand know what your right hand is doing <sup>4</sup>so that you may give to the poor in secret. Your Father who sees what you do in secret will reward you.

Showy prayer

<sup>5</sup>"When you pray, don't be like hypocrites. They love to pray standing in the synagogues and on the street corners so that people will see them. I assure you, that's the only reward they'll get. <sup>6</sup>But when you pray, go to your room, shut the door, and pray to your Father who is present in that secret place. Your Father who sees what you do in secret will reward you.

5:38-42 An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth: a phrase that is used to talk about "proportional justice," which the OT maintains (Exod 21:23-25; Lev 24:17-21; Deut 19:21). Originally, this principle was formulated in order to prevent disproportionate revenge. Jesus commands his followers to go even further in order to achieve greater righteousness (Matt 5:20). This means refusing to take even what they deserve and acting more kindly toward others, including others who wrong them.

5:43-48 Love for enemies is the highest form of the "greater righteousness" to which Jesus calls his disciples (Matt 5:20). The words "love your neighbor" come from Leviticus 19:18, but the OT has no parallel for the phrase hate your enemy. This second phrase probably represents oral tradition.

5:45 God's blessings are given generously both to the evil and to the good. By imitating God's love for everyone, one demonstrates that one is God's child.

5:48 The Greek term teleios, translated here as complete, is sometimes translated as "perfect." It refers here to the highest ethical standard, which is understood in terms of the love commandment. This is a fitting summary of the ethics of the Sermon on the Mount.

6:1-18 Jesus talks about how one shouldn't try to show off to other people when participating in righteous practices like aiding those in need, prayer, and fasting. These practices should direct people's attention to God and lead people to praise God, not direct people's attention and praise to oneself (see Matt 5:16).

6:2-4 Whenever you give to the poor: Care for the needy is grounded in the OT (e.g., Exod 22:25; Lev 25:35-37; Deut 14:27-29) and has a strong tradition in Judaism in the time of Jesus (e.g., Tob 4:6-7; Sir 3:30; 7:10). With the use of the word "whenever," Jesus assumes that his followers will give to the poor. The only question is whether they will do so faithfully.

6:2 blow your trumpet: an exaggerated form of advertising one's religion. In the ancient world, people were praised for their generous gifts with monuments and inscriptions. hypocrites: actors who play parts onstage. Here the word is used negatively to describe people who pretend to be one thing but are really something else.

6:3 don't let your left hand: a powerful image designed to drive a sharp wedge between religious practices and public honor.

6:5-15 When you pray: Jesus assumes that his followers will pray, and gives both negative and positive instructions on how to pray. The emphasis is less on "technique" and more on one's motivations for prayer and on recognizing rightly the one to whom prayer is offered.

6:5-6 standing: a typical posture for praying (e.g., 1 Sam 1:26; Neh 9:1-5; Mark 11:25). Jesus isn't criticizing the posture of standing itself, nor is the problem simply the public nature of these prayers. Instead, the problem is using prayers to God as a way of attracting the attention of others. Jesus emphasizes the nature of one's motivation to pray. On "hypocrite," see note on Matthew 6:2.

Proper prayer

<sup>7</sup>“When you pray, don't pour out a flood of empty words, as the Gentiles do. They think that by saying many words they'll be heard. <sup>8</sup>Don't be like them, because your Father knows what you need before you ask. <sup>9</sup>Pray like this:

Our Father who is in heaven, uphold the holiness of your name.

<sup>10</sup>Bring in your kingdom so that your will is done on earth as it's done in heaven.

<sup>11</sup>Give us the bread we need for today.

<sup>12</sup>Forgive us for the ways we have wronged you, just as we also forgive those who have wronged us.

<sup>13</sup>And don't lead us into temptation, but rescue us from the evil one.

<sup>14</sup>“If you forgive others their sins, your heavenly Father will also forgive you. <sup>15</sup>But if you don't forgive others, neither will your Father forgive your sins.

Showy fasting

<sup>16</sup>“And when you fast, don't put on a sad face like the hypocrites. They distort their faces so people will know they are fasting. I assure you that they have their reward. <sup>17</sup>When you fast, brush your hair and wash your face. <sup>18</sup>Then you won't look like you are fasting to people, but only to your Father who is present in that secret place. Your Father who sees in secret will reward you.

Earthly and heavenly treasures

<sup>19</sup>“Stop collecting treasures for your own benefit on earth, where moth and rust eat them and where thieves break in and steal them. <sup>20</sup>Instead, collect treasures for yourselves in heaven, where moth and rust don't eat them and where thieves don't break in and steal them. <sup>21</sup>Where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.

6:7-8 as the Gentiles do: See also Matthew 5:47; 6:32. Like Jesus, even some Gentile authors spoke against the tendency to pester or pressure the gods with long prayers and repeated requests. Jesus' emphasis isn't so much on how to pray, however. He's concerned with recognizing the one to whom prayers are offered. Referring to God as Father is a reminder that, in the OT, God is portrayed as the one who provides and cares for God's people. Similarly, here God knows what God's people need (see Isa 65:24). 6:9-13 The “Lord's Prayer” is the only time Jesus teaches the content of a specific prayer. He thus provides an example for his followers to imitate. Again, the emphasis isn't so much on our having a formula to recite as it is on learning well the nature of the God to whom we offer prayer. The prayer has two parts—petitions concerning God's name, kingdom, and will; and petitions concerning human needs.

6:9-10 Our Father: Jesus gathers together in his address to God what he has already affirmed about God, especially that God is the Father who dwells in heaven and cares for and blesses God's people (Matt 5:16, 45, 48; 6:1, 8). The three requests in 6:9-10 are closely related, since God will uphold the holiness of [God's] name, or show that God is in the right (see Ezek 36:23), by bringing the kingdom and accomplishing God's will on earth (see Isa 29:23). Those who pray these words thus ask God to act with justice, and they commit themselves to respond in faithful obedience. The nature of God's will is already on display in the Sermon on the Mount (Matt 5-7) and will be further explained in the rest of Matthew's Gospel.

6:11-13 The model prayer includes four requests concerning human need. First is a request for the bread we need for today, in which “bread” is shorthand for food, a most basic human requirement. Jesus refers, second, to the human need for divine forgiveness. This is a prayer for God to restore God's people and to do so by making right the relationship with God that has been broken by unfaithfulness. Jesus goes on to emphasize the way human initiative in forgiving others must mirror divine initiative (see Matt 6:14-15). The third and fourth requests are closely related, with the third concerned with God not bringing Jesus' followers into a situation so difficult that their faith would fail and the fourth a prayer for God to deliver Jesus' followers from just that kind of situation. The source of this kind of testing is thereby identified as the evil one (see Matt 4:1-11: “the devil” and “the tempter”), not God (see Jas 1:13). Later tradition has inserted the words “For yours is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, amen” at the conclusion of the prayer in 6:13. These words were probably added to Matthew's text when Jesus' prayer became more and more a part of the church's worship.

6:14-15 Jesus returns to the second request (Matt 6:12) in order to emphasize the point. It would be unthinkable that people could receive God's forgiveness and yet not forgive each other (see Matt 18:23-35).

6:16-18 when you fast: Jesus assumes his followers will fast, that is, deliberately refuse to eat, and sometimes to drink, for a set period of time. In ancient Israel fasting was a common ritual for mourning, remorse, or request for divine aid or wisdom (e.g., 1 Sam 31:13; 2 Sam 12:16; Neh 9:1-3; Dan 9:1-19). In the OT, it's often associated with humility (e.g., Ezra 8:21; Ps 35:13; Isa 58:3, 5), which contrasts sharply with the attempt to attract attention to oneself that Jesus talks about here. As in Matthew 6:1-8, so here Jesus directs his followers to avoid showy religion in favor of religious acts devoted to God.

6:19-24 Concern for wealth and treasures gets in the way of what really matters—a heart oriented toward the

Seeing and serving

<sup>22</sup>"The eye is the lamp of the body. Therefore, if your eye is healthy, your whole body will be full of light. <sup>23</sup>But if your eye is bad, your whole body will be full of darkness. If then the light in you is darkness, how terrible that darkness will be! <sup>24</sup>No one can serve two masters. Either you will hate the one and love the other, or you will be loyal to the one and have contempt for the other. You cannot serve God and wealth.

Worry about necessities

<sup>25</sup>"Therefore, I say to you, don't worry about your life, what you'll eat or what you'll drink, or about your body, what you'll wear. Isn't life more than food and the body more than clothes? <sup>26</sup>Look at the birds in the sky. They don't sow seed or harvest grain or gather crops into barns. Yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Aren't you worth much more than they are? <sup>27</sup>Who among you by worrying can add a single moment to your life? <sup>28</sup>And why do you worry about clothes? Notice how the lilies in the field grow. They don't wear themselves out with work, and they don't spin cloth. <sup>29</sup>But I say to you that even Solomon in all of his splendor wasn't dressed like one of these. <sup>30</sup>If God dresses grass in the field so beautifully, even though it's alive today and tomorrow it's thrown into the furnace, won't God do much more for you, you people of weak faith? <sup>31</sup>Therefore, don't worry and say, "What are we going to eat?" or "What are we going to drink?" or "What are we going to wear?" <sup>32</sup>Gentiles long for all these things. Your heavenly Father knows that you need them. <sup>33</sup>Instead, desire first and foremost God's kingdom and God's righteousness, and all these things will be given to you as well. <sup>34</sup>Therefore, stop worrying about tomorrow, because tomorrow will worry about itself. Each day has enough trouble of its own.

Judging

<sup>7</sup>"Don't judge, so that you won't be judged. <sup>2</sup>You'll receive the same judgment you give. Whatever you deal out will be dealt out to you. <sup>3</sup>Why do you see the splinter that's in your brother's or sister's eye, but don't notice the log in your own eye? <sup>4</sup>How can you say to your brother or sister, "Let me take the splinter out of your eye," when there's a log in your eye? <sup>5</sup>You deceive yourself! First take the log out of your eye, and then you'll see clearly to take the splinter out of your brother's or sister's eye. <sup>6</sup>Don't give holy things to dogs, and don't throw your pearls in front of pigs. They will stomp on the pearls, then turn around and attack you.

Asking, seeking, knocking

<sup>7</sup>"Ask, and you will receive. Search, and you will find. Knock, and the door will be opened to you. <sup>8</sup>For everyone who asks, receives. Whoever seeks, finds. And to everyone who knocks, things of heaven (see Matt 6:10). According to a common view in the ancient world, the eye allowed the body's light (or darkness) to be seen by others. Whether one's eye is healthy or bad signals whether one's life is full of light or of darkness. Here, "wealth" is portrayed as if it had the status of a god someone might serve. This would be the opposite of serving God. The idea of piling up treasures in heaven is found in 2 Esdras 7:77: "You have a treasure of works stored up with the Most High, but it won't be shown to you until the last times."

6:25-34 Concern for wealth and possessions (Matt 6:19-24) stands in opposition both to faith in God as the Father who provides for God's people (6:25-32) and to desiring first and foremost God's kingdom and righteousness (6:33). Jesus' audience would have been ordinary peasant people who had to worry about their next meal all the time, yet Jesus tells them not to worry about anything. He asks them instead to view the world with new eyes, in order to see all around them evidence of God's care and provision. Jesus uses a well-known Jewish pattern of speech to persuade his followers: If this, how much more that? Jesus uses the phrase weak faith (6:30) to refer to his disciples (see Matt 8:26; 14:31; 16:8). As in Matthew 6:7, Jesus uses Gentiles as examples of what sort of people his followers shouldn't be. Such behavior contrasts with seeking God's kingdom and righteousness (6:33). For Jesus, what is needed is not a departure from Israel's faith but greater faithfulness to the covenant relationship to which Israel was called.

7:1-2 Don't judge: Generally, in Matthew "judgment" refers to God's end-time judgment. Accordingly, disciples are warned that involving themselves in judging others now will result in their judgment at the end of time. This isn't a rejection of the court system, nor a general reference to showing discernment, but a recognition that we make ourselves to be like God when we condemn others.

7:3-5 Jesus uses exaggerated images to emphasize the idea that underlies his instruction in Matthew 7:1-2. This is that we all have faults, and so we all need mercy. Recognizing our own failings makes us more forgiving toward others.

7:6 Jesus uses exaggerated images to develop his early teaching in Matthew 6. Everything one has and does ought to be directed toward God. Otherwise, one is throwing one's life away, like pearls given to pigs or sacrifices to dogs.

7:7-11 Jesus invites his followers to depend on God's provision and faithfulness. In doing so, he makes use of the door is opened. <sup>9</sup>Who among you will give your children a stone when they ask for bread? <sup>10</sup>Or give them a snake when they ask for fish? <sup>11</sup>If you who are evil know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your heavenly Father give good things to those who ask him. <sup>12</sup>Therefore, you should treat people in the same way that you want people to treat you; this is the Law and the Prophets.

Narrow gate

<sup>13</sup>“Go in through the narrow gate. The gate that leads to destruction is broad and the road wide, so many people enter through it. <sup>14</sup>But the gate that leads to life is narrow and the road difficult, so few people find it.

Tree and fruit

<sup>15</sup>“Watch out for false prophets. They come to you dressed like sheep, but inside they are vicious wolves. <sup>16</sup>You will know them by their fruit. Do people get bunches of grapes from thorny weeds, or do they get figs from thistles? <sup>17</sup>In the same way, every good tree produces good fruit, and every rotten tree produces bad fruit. <sup>18</sup>A good tree can't produce bad fruit. And a rotten tree can't produce good fruit. <sup>19</sup>Every tree that doesn't produce good fruit is chopped down and thrown into the fire. <sup>20</sup>Therefore, you will know them by their fruit.

Entrance requirements

<sup>21</sup>“Not everybody who says to me, ‘Lord, Lord,’ will get into the kingdom of heaven. Only those who do the will of my Father who is in heaven will enter. <sup>22</sup>On the Judgment Day, many people will say to me, ‘Lord, Lord, didn't we prophesy in your name and expel demons in your name and do lots of miracles in your name?’ <sup>23</sup>Then I'll tell them, ‘I've never known you. Get away from me, you people who do wrong.’

Two foundations

<sup>24</sup>“Everybody who hears these words of mine and puts them into practice is like a wise builder who built a house on bedrock. <sup>25</sup>The rain fell, the floods came, and the wind blew and beat against that house. It didn't fall because it was firmly set on bedrock. <sup>26</sup>But everybody who hears these words of mine and doesn't put them into practice will be like a fool who built a house on sand. <sup>27</sup>The rain fell, the floods came, and the wind blew and beat against that house. It fell and was completely destroyed.”

Crowd's response

a well-known way of talking about God: “If you . . . , then how much more God?” See Matthew 6:33; James 1:17.

7:12 Jesus summarizes the entire Sermon on the Mount (Matt 5–7) as well as the Law and the Prophets (see Matt 22:34–40; sidebar, “Israel's Scriptures” at Matt 5). Similar sayings are found throughout the ancient world. When we read it in the context of Jesus' sermon, though, we understand that it is a way of emphasizing Jesus' teaching that love of God must be paired with love of one's neighbor, and even love of one's enemies (see Matt 5:43–48).

7:13–14 The OT (e.g., Ps 1; Jer 21:8) and other Jewish texts speak of two “ways” presented to people on life's journey. In this case, each gate leads down a different road toward a different life-goal. The difficulty of the road that leads to life lies in the fact that life in the service of God's kingdom often places one at odds with the established social order (see Matt 5:10–12).

7:15–20 Although Jesus doesn't use the language of “hypocrisy” here, he does refer to people who disguise themselves. They appear to be something other than what they truly are. The danger they represent is precisely because their nature isn't obvious or expected. They look like sheep, an image sometimes used for God's people in the OT (e.g., Ezek 34:10; cf. Ps 23:13). The true test comes not from looking at what people appear to be, but what they actually teach and how they behave. As John the Baptist had proclaimed, “Produce fruit that shows you have changed your hearts and lives” (Matt 3:8).

7:21–23 It's not even enough to name Jesus as Lord, or perform extraordinary activities (like throwing out demons or working miracles) in his name. What matters is that one put into practice in one's life the true righteousness of which Jesus had spoken in Matthew 5:20. Salvation, here pictured as getting into the kingdom of heaven, depends on doing the will of my Father who is in heaven (see Matt 25:31–42). kingdom of heaven: life in the service of God's will in the present as well as life in the world to come. This phrase indicates that the patterns of a faithful life under God's rule are determined by God, whose home is in heaven, rather than by the ways of this world. See sidebar, “The Kingdom of Heaven” at Matthew 3.

7:24–27 Like the two gates in Matthew 7:13–14, here bedrock and sand signify two different ways of living one's life. these words of mine: a reference to the whole of Jesus' teaching in Matthew 5–7. Jesus' words aren't only to be heard, but also put into practice in one's life. For the contrast between the wise and the foolish, see also Matthew 25:1–13.

7:28–29 Although Matthew informed us at the beginning of the Sermon on the Mount (Matt 5–7) that Jesus' audience was “his disciples” (Matt 5:1–2), now we discover that

A man with a skin disease

Now when Jesus had come down from the mountain, large crowds followed him. <sup>2</sup>A man with a skin disease came, kneeled before him, and said, "Lord, if you want, you can make me clean."

<sup>3</sup>Jesus reached out his hand and touched him, saying, "I do want to. Become clean." Instantly his skin disease was cleansed. <sup>4</sup>Jesus said to him, "Don't say anything to anyone. Instead, go and show yourself to the priest and offer the gift that Moses commanded. This will be a testimony to them."

Healing of the centurion's servant

<sup>7</sup>Jesus responded, "I'll come and heal him."

<sup>8</sup>But the centurion replied, "Lord, I don't deserve to have you come under my roof. Just say the word and my servant will be healed. <sup>9</sup>I'm a man under authority, with soldiers under me. I say to one, 'Go,' and he goes, and to another, 'Come,' and he comes. I say to my servant, 'Do this,' and the servant does it."

<sup>10</sup>When Jesus heard this, he was impressed and said to the people following him, "I say to you with all seriousness that even in Israel I haven't found faith like this. <sup>11</sup>I say to you that there are many who will come from east and west and sit down to eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven. <sup>12</sup>But the children of the kingdom will be thrown outside into the darkness. People there will be weeping and grinding their teeth." <sup>13</sup>Jesus said to the centurion, "Go; it will be done for you just as you have believed." And his servant was healed that very moment.

his teaching wasn't only for them, but also for the crowds. Their response to Jesus' teaching (amazed) is based on the contrast between his teaching and the teaching of the legal experts. This could be because legal experts based their teaching on the ongoing tradition by which the Law was interpreted, whereas Jesus didn't appeal to that tradition but spoke as the teacher with unique authority. It could also be because Jesus' life was lived in a way that was harmonious with his teaching, whereas the legal experts said one thing but did another (see Matt 23).

8:1 come down from the mountain: The Sermon on the Mount (Matt 5–7) is over. Jesus moves from teaching the disciples and crowds to a series of healings and miracles (Matt 8–9).

8:2 a skin disease: The Greek term is leprosy, sometimes translated "leprosy," but used to describe a range of skin diseases and only rarely true "leprosy" (Hansen's disease). According to Leviticus 13:45, people with a skin disease are ritually unclean and "must wear torn clothes, dishevel their hair, cover their upper lip, and shout out, 'Unclean! Unclean!'" Their unclean status was contagious, so they were supposed to avoid contact with other (clean) people. Therefore, the man with a skin disease asks not only for healing but also for the restoration of normal human interaction.

8:3 I do want to: Jesus wants people to be restored to wholeness. Moreover, Matthew's note that the skin disease was cleansed instantly emphasizes Jesus' ability to make people whole.

8:4 go and show yourself: Jesus doesn't bypass the requirements of the Law (see Matt 5:17–20), but directs the man to go through the ritual procedure at the temple in order to be declared clean. This would allow him to enjoy again normal relationships with others.

8:5–6 a centurion: a commander of 100 soldiers in the Roman military system. The centurion is probably a Gentile, making this the first encounter between Jesus and a Gentile in Matthew's Gospel. Like the man with a skin disease in Matthew 8:2, the centurion comes to Jesus and addresses him as "Lord." Lord could simply communicate respect for someone in authority (like "sir"). The term was also used in the Roman world to refer to benefactors, that is, persons who provided gifts to those in need. Thus, the centurion places himself in a position of need for the sake of his own needy servant.

8:8–9 I don't deserve: Although a person in authority himself, the centurion recognizes the higher authority of Jesus. In the military structure known to the centurion, it's his own position in a chain of command that empowers his commands. It's similar in the case of Jesus, whose authority is grounded in his status as God's Son (see Matt 3:17–4:11).

8:10–11 faith like this: At this early point in Jesus' ministry, this is less a criticism of how slow Israel has been to believe and more an affirmation of the insight and trust the centurion has exercised. His faith anticipates the growing openness to Gentiles and Gentile faith in Matthew's Gospel (Matt 24:14; 28:18–20). For the image of a heavenly banquet, see, for example, Isaiah 25:6–8; Luke 14:15; Revelation 19:9.

8:11–12 Jesus uses images of removal (thrown outside); evil and death (darkness); grief (weeping); and hostility (grinding their teeth) to document the judgment awaiting those who reject Jesus' ministry and message. children of the kingdom: stands in clear contrast to kingdom of heaven. Children of the kingdom of heaven are those whose lives follow the way of God revealed from heaven in Jesus' mission. These people will participate in life in the world to come. children of the kingdom may be a clear reference to the Jews, but the rest of Matthew's Gospel denies the idea that all Jews will be rejected. ### Healing of many people

<sup>14</sup>Jesus went home with Peter and saw Peter's mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever. <sup>15</sup>He touched her hand, and the fever left her. Then she got up and served them. <sup>16</sup>That evening people brought to Jesus many who were demon-possessed. He threw the spirits out with just a word. He healed everyone who was sick. <sup>17</sup>This happened so that what Isaiah the prophet said would be fulfilled: He is the one who took our illnesses and carried away our diseases.<sup>9</sup>

Discussions about following

<sup>18</sup>Now when Jesus saw the crowd, he ordered his disciples to go over to the other side of the lake. <sup>19</sup>A legal expert came and said to him, "Teacher, I'll follow you wherever you go."

<sup>20</sup>Jesus replied, "Foxes have dens, and the birds in the sky have nests, but the Human One<sup>e</sup> has no place to lay his head."

<sup>21</sup>Another man, one of his disciples, said to him, "Lord, first let me go and bury my father."

<sup>22</sup>But Jesus said to him, "Follow me, and let the dead bury their own dead."

Calming a storm

<sup>23</sup>When Jesus got into a boat, his disciples followed him. <sup>24</sup>A huge storm arose on the lake so that waves were sloshing over the boat. But Jesus was asleep. <sup>25</sup>They came and woke him, saying, "Lord, rescue us! We're going to drown!"

<sup>26</sup>He said to them, "Why are you afraid, you people of weak faith?" Then he got up and gave orders to the winds and the lake, and there was a great calm.

<sup>27</sup>The people were amazed and said, "What kind of person is this? Even the winds and the lake obey him!"

Jesus frees demon-possessed men

<sup>28</sup>When Jesus arrived on the other side of the lake in the country of the Gadarenes, two men who were demon-possessed came from among the tombs to meet him. They were so violent that nobody could travel on that road. <sup>29</sup>They cried out, "What are you going to do with us, Son of God? Have you come to torture us before the time of judgment?" <sup>30</sup>Far off in the distance a large herd of pigs was feeding. <sup>31</sup>The demons pleaded with him, "If you throw us out, send us into the herd of pigs."

<sup>32</sup>Then he said to the demons, "Go away," and they came out and went into the pigs. The whole herd rushed down the cliff into the lake and drowned. <sup>33</sup>Those who tended the pigs ran into the city and told everything that had happened to the demon-possessed men. <sup>34</sup>Then the whole city came out and met Jesus. When they saw him, they pleaded with him to leave their region.

Healing of a man who was paralyzed

<sup>9</sup>Boarding a boat, Jesus crossed to the other side of the lake and went to his own city. <sup>2</sup>People brought to him a man who was paralyzed, lying on a cot. When Jesus saw

8:14-15 home with Peter: Although Peter left his livelihood to follow Jesus (Matt 4:18), here we learn that Peter is married (cf. 1 Cor 9:5). Households in antiquity would have included extended family, in this case, a mother-in-law. Her healing leads to hospitality.

8:16 That evening: that is, when people were free from the day's responsibilities. with just a word: See Matthew 8:8. He healed everyone: a reference both to Jesus' unique healing power and to the universal scope of his ministry.

8:17 Jesus is the servant of Isaiah 53:4, who takes away the suffering of the people.

8:18-22 Discipleship requires a rigorous lifestyle, sometimes even homelessness, and priorities that can overturn normal social expectations. one of his disciples: Apparently, answering the call to discipleship isn't a one-time decision, but is a decision that must continually be made. let the dead bury their own dead: This difficult phrase might refer to secondary burial, which is based on the ancient practice of burying someone a second time when nothing but the skeleton remains. In this case, Jesus would be saying that those who have been dead longer should bury the more recently arrived corpses. Nothing in the text suggests that "spiritual" death is in mind. Even if the image is a difficult one, its meaning is clear: For followers of Jesus, the single priority is faithful discipleship.

8:23-27 This is the first nature miracle in Matthew. Following as it does a section of the Gospel that sets forth the heavy demands of discipleship (Matt 8:18-22), this story communicates the power of Jesus to provide and care for his followers. weak faith: See Matthew 6:30.

8:28-34 The people may not recognize who Jesus is (Matt 8:27), but demons know he is God's son. herd of pigs: Jesus is in Gentile country (cf., e.g., Lev 11:7), where he experiences the inhospitality about which he spoke in Matthew 8:20.

9:1 his own city: Capernaum (Matt 4:13).

9:2-3 your sins are forgiven: The idea that illness was caused by sin is one of several explanations of illness their faith, he said to the man who was paralyzed, “Be encouraged, my child, your sins are forgiven.”

<sup>4</sup>But Jesus knew what they were thinking and said, “Why do you fill your minds with evil things? <sup>5</sup>Which is easier—to say, ‘Your sins are forgiven,’ or to say, ‘Get up and walk?’ <sup>6</sup>But so you will know that the Human One<sup>a</sup> has authority on the earth to forgive sins”—he said to the man who was paralyzed—“Get up, take your cot, and go home.” <sup>7</sup>The man got up and went home. <sup>8</sup>When the crowds saw what had happened, they were afraid and praised God, who had given such authority to human beings.

Calling of Matthew

<sup>9</sup>As Jesus continued on from there, he saw a man named Matthew sitting at a kiosk for collecting taxes. He said to him, “Follow me,” and he got up and followed him. <sup>10</sup>As Jesus sat down to eat in Matthew’s house, many tax collectors and sinners joined Jesus and his disciples at the table.

<sup>11</sup>But when the Pharisees saw this, they said to his disciples, “Why does your teacher eat with tax collectors and sinners?”

<sup>12</sup>When Jesus heard it, he said, “Healthy people don’t need a doctor, but sick people do.

<sup>13</sup>Go and learn what this means: I want mercy and not sacrifice. <sup>14</sup>I didn’t come to call righteous people, but sinners.”

Question about fasting

<sup>14</sup>At that time John’s disciples came and asked Jesus, “Why do we and the Pharisees frequently fast, but your disciples never fast?”

<sup>15</sup>Jesus responded, “The wedding guests can’t mourn while the groom is still with them, can they? But the days will come when the groom will be taken away from them, and then they’ll fast.

<sup>16</sup>No one sews a piece of new, unshrunk cloth on old clothes because the patch tears away the cloth and makes a worse tear. <sup>17</sup>No one pours new wine into old wineskins. If they did, the wineskins would burst, the wine would spill, and the wineskins would be ruined. Instead, people pour new wine into new wineskins so that both are kept safe.”

A ruler’s daughter and the woman who touched Jesus’ clothes

<sup>18</sup>While Jesus was speaking to them, a ruler came and knelt in front of him, saying, “My daughter has just died. But come and place your hand on her, and she’ll live.” <sup>19</sup>So Jesus and in the 1st century. Matthew’s emphasis falls primarily on Jesus’ authority to pronounce forgiveness—as the response of the legal experts makes clear. insulting God: Some translations use the language of “blasphemy.” The basic idea is one of slandering God’s name, but here it has the broader sense of claiming to do what only God can do.

9:5 Which is easier: It’s easier to pronounce the forgiveness of sins, since one’s ability to do so can’t be checked by observation. It’s harder to say ‘Get up and walk,’ since a physical healing (or its failure) would be evident to everyone.

9:6-8 Human One... human beings: Initially, Matthew highlights Jesus’ authority as the Human One. Reference to human beings anticipates the extension of that authority to those who follow Jesus (see Matt 10:1).

9:9 a man named Matthew: The author of the Gospel of Matthew isn’t named. This verse is the probable source for the early church tradition that named Matthew as the author of this biography of Jesus.

9:10-11 tax collectors: As a group, they were regarded as cheaters and snoopers. They were also despised because they made visible in everyday life the demands of the Roman Empire. sinners: not clearly defined here, but people who lived beyond the boundaries of acceptable Jewish life.

9:13 Go and learn: This is what people in school are told to do. Jesus uses a phrase in keeping with his role as “teacher” (Matt 9:11). I want mercy and not sacrifice: a quotation of Hosea 6:6, which will be repeated in Matthew 12:7. It’s not that Jesus is against sacrifice (see Matt 5:23-24), but that human need is more important. Jesus casts his own work as a healer as an expression of God’s compassion.

9:14 On fasting, see Matthew 6:16-18.

9:15 the groom is still with them: The presence of Jesus is like a wedding celebration, a time of happiness. will be taken away: Jesus anticipates his suffering and death.

9:16-17 both are kept safe: The new likely refers to the gospel and the old to Israel’s scriptures, and especially Moses’ Instruction. Jesus interprets the Law in fresh ways, but he doesn’t dispense with it.

9:18-26 A story of healing of a woman who had been bleeding for 12 years (9:20-22) is sandwiched within a story of the healing of a ruler’s daughter (9:18-19, 23-26). Together, they emphasize the initiative of those in need, Jesus’ concern for women, and the healing power associated with contact with Jesus.

9:18 Compare with Matthew 8:2 (the man with a skin disease kneels before Jesus); Matthew 8:3 (Jesus cleanses a disease through his touch); and Matthew 8:5-6, 10 (a ruler demonstrates faith as he comes to Jesus for help).

his disciples got up and went with him. <sup>20</sup>Then a woman who had been bleeding for twelve years came up behind Jesus and touched the hem of his clothes. <sup>21</sup>She thought, If I only touch his robe I'll be healed.

<sup>22</sup>When Jesus turned and saw her, he said, "Be encouraged, daughter. Your faith has healed you." And the woman was healed from that time on.

<sup>23</sup>When Jesus went into the ruler's house, he saw the flute players and the distressed crowd. <sup>24</sup>He said, "Go away, because the little girl isn't dead but is asleep"; but they laughed at him. <sup>25</sup>After he had sent the crowd away, Jesus went in and touched her hand, and the little girl rose up. <sup>26</sup>News about this spread throughout that whole region.

Healing of two blind men

<sup>27</sup>As Jesus departed, two blind men followed him, crying out, "Show us mercy, Son of David."

<sup>28</sup>When he came into the house, the blind men approached him. Jesus said to them, "Do you believe I can do this?"

"Yes, Lord," they replied.

<sup>29</sup>Then Jesus touched their eyes and said, "It will happen for you just as you have believed."

<sup>30</sup>Their eyes were opened. Then Jesus sternly warned them, "Make sure nobody knows about this." <sup>31</sup>But they went out and spread the word about him throughout that whole region.

Healing of a man unable to speak

<sup>32</sup>As they were leaving, people brought to him a man who was demon-possessed and unable to speak. <sup>33</sup>When Jesus had thrown out the demon, the man who couldn't speak began to talk. The crowds were amazed and said, "Nothing like this has ever been seen in Israel."

<sup>34</sup>But the Pharisees said, "He throws out demons with the authority of the ruler of demons."

Compassion

<sup>35</sup>Jesus traveled among all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, announcing the good news of the kingdom, and healing every disease and every sickness. <sup>36</sup>Now when Jesus saw the crowds, he had compassion for them because they were troubled and helpless, like sheep without a shepherd. <sup>37</sup>Then he said to his disciples, "The size of the harvest is bigger than you can imagine, but there are few workers." <sup>38</sup>Therefore, plead with the Lord of the harvest to send out workers for his harvest."

Mission of the Twelve

10 He called his twelve disciples and gave them authority over unclean spirits to throw them out and to heal every disease and every sickness. <sup>2</sup>Here are the names of the twelve apostles: first, Simon, who is called Peter; and Andrew his brother; James the son of

10:1 Mk 3:13; Mk 6:7; Mk 16:18; Lk 9:1 10:2 Mt 4:18; Mt 4:21; Mk 3:16; Lk 6:14; Ac 1:13

9:20-21 bleeding for twelve years: The woman has been ritually unclean for 12 years, due to her condition. The reference is to menstruation (see Lev 15:19-33). Her situation would have been embarrassing and she would be physically weakened, though apparently her life wasn't in danger.

9:23 flute players: a standard feature of Jewish mourning practice.

9:24 they laughed at him: Though they mean to ridicule Jesus, they in fact demonstrate the certainty that the girl was dead. This certifies the nature of the miracle Jesus performs.

9:27 Son of David: a title for the royal Christ (see Matt 1:1). Isaiah 42:7 anticipates the age of salvation when the blind will be healed.

9:28-29 Matthew emphasizes the faith of the blind men.

9:30 "Make sure nobody knows about this": See Matthew 12:16-21.

9:32-34 unable to speak: Matthew portrays the man's inability to speak as the result of his being demon-possessed. Hence, his ability to speak is proof that the demon has been expelled. The Pharisees don't deny this. Instead, they claim that Jesus doesn't have God's authority but the authority of the ruler of demons (also known as the "tempter," "Satan," "the devil," or "Beelzebub"—see Matt 4:1-11; 12:24). This is their way of discrediting Jesus with the crowds.

9:35 Matthew sums up the kind of thing Jesus has been doing since the beginning of chapter 5. Summary statements like this indicate what is typical of Jesus' ministry.

9:36 sheep without a shepherd: a criticism of the Jewish leaders (see Num 27:17; Ezek 34:5).

9:37-38 harvest: an image for the gathering of God's restored people. workers for his harvest: God is portrayed as a farmer in need of workers. This prepares for the commissioning of the Twelve in Matthew 10:1 and anticipates Jesus' command in Matthew 28:18-20.

10:1-11:1 This is the second major sermon in Matthew (see the note at Matt 5:1-7:29).

10:1-4 twelve disciples ... twelve apostles: symbolic of Israel's 12 tribes. Israel's restoration is further symbolized through their being summoned and sent to heal by Jesus. See Matthew 19:28. Matthew 10:2 provides the only reference in this Gospel to the "apostles," a term that can refer to someone sent as a designated ambassador.

Zebedee; and John his brother; <sup>3</sup>Philip; and Bartholomew; Thomas; and Matthew the tax collector; James the son of Alphaeus; and Thaddaeus; <sup>4</sup>Simon the Cananaean; <sup>a</sup> and Judas, who betrayed Jesus.

Commissioning of the Twelve

<sup>5</sup>Jesus sent these twelve out and commanded them, "Don't go among the Gentiles or into a Samaritan city. <sup>6</sup>Go instead to the lost sheep, the people of Israel. <sup>7</sup>As you go, make this announcement: 'The kingdom of heaven has come near.' <sup>8</sup>Heal the sick, raise the dead, cleanse those with skin diseases, and throw out demons. You received without having to pay. Therefore, give without demanding payment. <sup>9</sup>Workers deserve to be fed, so don't gather gold or silver or copper coins for your money belts to take on your trips. <sup>10</sup>Don't take a backpack for the road or two shirts or sandals or a walking stick. <sup>11</sup>Whatever city or village you go into, find somebody in it who is worthy and stay there until you go on your way. <sup>12</sup>When you go into a house, say, 'Peace!' <sup>13</sup>If the house is worthy, give it your blessing of peace. But if the house isn't worthy, take back your blessing. <sup>14</sup>If anyone refuses to welcome you or listen to your words, shake the dust off your feet as you leave that house or city. <sup>15</sup>I assure you that it will be more bearable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah on Judgment Day than it will be for that city.

According to Matthew 16:17-18, Jesus gave Simon the name "Peter." For the call of Simon and Andrew, James and John (Zebedee's sons), see Matthew 4:18-22. For the call of Matthew, see Matthew 9:9. Cananaean: refers to someone committed to freeing the Jewish people from Roman rule. Matthew describes Judas as the one who betrayed Jesus, leaving his readers with no doubt about the one of whom Jesus speaks at the Last Supper (Matt 26:20-26).

10:5-8a The disciples are commissioned to carry out a mission that mirrors Jesus' own mission in Matthew 8-9. Their commission is now limited to Israel, but this will later be expanded to include all the nations (Matt 28:18-20). See sidebar, "The Kingdom of Heaven" at Matthew 3.

10:8a-14 The gospel is a gift (cf. 2 Cor 2:17). The disciples are to move around from place to place, trusting in God and depending on acts of hospitality from those who share in God's peace. They aren't to depend on payment or advanced preparations. shake the dust off your feet: This was a practice among Jews as they returned from traveling on Gentile soil. It signified separation from things that were ritually unclean. Jesus thus directs these missionaries to separate themselves from those who reject the good news.

10:15 Sodom and Gomorrah: See Genesis 19:24-28; Isaiah 1:9-10; 2 Peter 2:6.

Response to harassment

<sup>16</sup>“Look, I’m sending you as sheep among wolves. Therefore, be wise as snakes and innocent as doves. <sup>17</sup>Watch out for people—because they will hand you over to councils and they will beat you in their synagogues. <sup>18</sup>They will haul you in front of governors and even kings because of me so that you may give your testimony to them and to the Gentiles. <sup>19</sup>Whenever they hand you over, don’t worry about how to speak or what you will say, because what you can say will be given to you at that moment. <sup>20</sup>You aren’t doing the talking, but the Spirit of my Father is doing the talking through you. <sup>21</sup>Brothers and sisters will hand each other over to be executed. A father will turn his child in. Children will defy their parents and have them executed. <sup>22</sup>Everyone will hate you on account of my name. But whoever stands firm until the end will be saved. <sup>23</sup>Whenever they harass you in one city, escape to the next, because I assure that you will not go through all the cities of Israel before the Human One<sup>e</sup> comes.

<sup>24</sup>“Disciples aren’t greater than their teacher, and slaves aren’t greater than their master. <sup>25</sup>It’s enough for disciples to be like their teacher and slaves like their master. If they have called the head of the house Beelzebul, it’s certain that they will call the members of his household by even worse names.

Whom to fear

<sup>26</sup>“Therefore, don’t be afraid of those people because nothing is hidden that won’t be revealed, and nothing secret that won’t be brought out into the open. <sup>27</sup>What I say to you in the darkness, tell in the light; and what you hear whispered, announce from the rooftops. <sup>28</sup>Don’t be afraid of those who kill the body but can’t kill the soul. Instead, be afraid of the one who can destroy both body and soul in hell. <sup>29</sup>Aren’t two sparrows sold for a small coin? But not one of them will fall to the ground without your Father knowing about it already. <sup>30</sup>Even the hairs of your head are all counted. <sup>31</sup>Don’t be afraid. You are worth more than many sparrows.

Confessing Christ to people

<sup>32</sup>“Therefore, everyone who acknowledges me before people, I also will acknowledge before my Father who is in heaven. <sup>33</sup>But everyone who denies me before people, I also will deny before my Father who is in heaven.

Trouble in the family

<sup>34</sup>“Don’t think that I’ve come to bring peace to the earth. I haven’t come to bring peace but a sword. <sup>35</sup>I’ve come to turn a man against his father, a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law. <sup>36</sup>People’s enemies are members of their own households.”

<sup>37</sup>“Those who love father or mother more than me aren’t worthy of me. Those who love son or daughter more than me aren’t worthy of me. <sup>38</sup>Those who don’t pick up their crosses

10:17-23 See Matthew 5:11-12. councils: the governing bodies of local Jewish communities (see Matt 5:22). The supreme example is the Jerusalem Council (see Matt 26:59), also known as the Sanhedrin (Mark 14:55; 15:1), which handed Jesus over to the Roman governor for judgment and execution. Jesus anticipates that his disciples engaged in mission will be harassed by Roman and Jewish leaders. This harassment is an opportunity for Spirit-empowered witness. escape to the next: Although the coming harassment can lead to death (10:21), Jesus prefers that his disciples find refuge and continue their missionary activity rather than give up their lives. before the Human One comes: The Human One, Jesus, has already come, of course. Jesus’ words thus anticipate his coming departure and future return (the allusion is to Dan 7:13).

10:24-31 According to Jesus, harassment of the disciples is to be expected from those who have first harassed Jesus, the master. Additionally, harassment isn’t a sign that the disciples have been abandoned by God.

10:28 body and soul: Those who harass Jesus’ disciples can’t destroy the life God has given. They may put an end to life on this earth, but God raises the whole person from the dead (see Matt 22:23-33; cf. Wis 16:13-14; 2 Macc 6:30). Throughout his Gospel, Matthew refers to the “soul” as the living vitality of a person, not a thing separate from the body.

10:31 Don’t be afraid: This is the third time Jesus has used this phrase (Matt 10:26, 28, 31). Fear isn’t the appropriate response to harassment. What is needed is awareness of God’s care and compassion in the midst of harassment, together with hope for the life that only God can give.

10:32-33 acknowledges . . . denies: These are the options in the courtroom-type settings Jesus has just pictured. How disciples respond to harassment determines their ultimate fate.

10:34 a sword: an image of division, including division within families (see Matt 10:35-37).

10:38 pick up their crosses: an image borrowed from the and follow me aren't worthy of me. <sup>39</sup>Those who find their lives will lose them, and those who lose their lives because of me will find them.

Rewards

<sup>40</sup>Those who receive you are also receiving me, and those who receive me are receiving the one who sent me. <sup>41</sup>Those who receive a prophet as a prophet will receive a prophet's reward. Those who receive a righteous person as a righteous person will receive a righteous person's reward. <sup>42</sup>I assure you that everybody who gives even a cup of cold water to these little ones because they are my disciples will certainly be rewarded."

Ministry to the people

11 When Jesus finished teaching his twelve disciples, he went on from there to teach and preach in their cities.

Question from John the Baptist

<sup>2</sup>Now when John heard in prison about the things the Christ was doing, he sent word by his disciples to Jesus, asking, <sup>3</sup>"Are you the one who is to come, or should we look for another?"

<sup>4</sup>Jesus responded, "Go, report to John what you hear and see. <sup>5</sup>Those who were blind are able to see. Those who were crippled are walking. People with skin diseases are cleansed. Those who were deaf now hear. Those who were dead are raised up. The poor have good news proclaimed to them. <sup>6</sup>Happy are those who don't stumble and fall because of me."

Appeal of John's ministry

<sup>7</sup>When John's disciples had gone, Jesus spoke to the crowds about John: "What did you go out to the wilderness to see? A stalk blowing in the wind? <sup>8</sup>What did you go out to see? A man dressed up in refined clothes? Look, those who wear refined clothes are in royal palaces. <sup>9</sup>What did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes, I tell you, and more than a prophet. <sup>10</sup>He is the one of whom it is written: Look, I'm sending my messenger before you, who will prepare your way before you.<sup>7</sup>

Significance of John's ministry

<sup>11</sup>"I assure you that no one who has ever been born is greater than John the Baptist. Yet whoever is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. <sup>12</sup>From the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven is violently attacked as violent people seize it. <sup>13</sup>All the Prophets and the Law prophesied until John came. <sup>14</sup>If you are willing to accept it, he is Elijah who is to come. <sup>15</sup>Let the person who has ears, hear.

Roman custom of having the condemned criminal carry the crossbar to the place of crucifixion (apparently, Jesus was unable to bear the weight of his own cross; see Matt 27:32). Here the image refers to living as though nothing but allegiance to Jesus matters. Even family ties are secondary (see Matt 10:35-27).

10:40-42 Those who receive you: See Matthew 10:11-14. Jesus refers to those who extend hospitality to his disciples. 11:1 When Jesus finished: See Matthew 7:28; 19:1. This marks the end of Jesus' sermon, begun in Matthew 10:5. their cities: the cities of Israel, in Galilee.

11:2-3 See Matthew 4:12. For John's disciples, see Matthew 9:14; 11:7; 14:12. the one who is to come: that is, the Christ (see Matt 3:11). This is the first time the title appears since Jesus began his public ministry. Apparently, John the Baptist has difficulty recognizing in Jesus' ministry of compassion (Matt 8-9) the deliverer and judge he had anticipated.

11:4-5 Jesus interprets his ministry in terms borrowed from Isaiah 61:1-2. The poor: In the Roman world, this term would have referred to those with low status, the marginal, and not only to those who were lacking basic life provisions or who had just enough to survive. 11:6 Happy: See the note on Matthew 5:3-12. who don't stumble and fall because of: or "who aren't offended by." Jesus issues an invitation to recognize through his ministry that he is indeed the one who brings God's restoration.

11:7-10 A stalk blowing in the wind: a weak, uncertain figure. A man dressed up in refined clothes: royalty, the opposite of John's appearance (see Matt 3:4). a prophet: John attracted a following not because he was weak or a king, but because he was God's spokesperson. Moreover, he's the one whom God had promised to send in advance of the Christ. See Exodus 23:20; Malachi 3:1; 4:5; Matthew 3.

11:11 greater than John... greater than he: In the topsy-turvy reality of the kingdom of heaven, there's no room for making comparisons about who is more or less important. 11:12 violently attacked: Jesus refers to the harassment that the people who welcome and announce God's rule will experience from those who resist the good news. John, who is now in prison, is an example of this harassment.

11:13-14 The period before the coming of Jesus is understood as a time of anticipation. The age of salvation has now dawned. Elijah who is to come: See Malachi 4:5.

11:14-15 If you are willing... ears, hear: Hearing isn't enough. It takes a willingness to see and hear the way things really are from Jesus' viewpoint.

This generation

<sup>16</sup>"To what will I compare this generation? It is like a child sitting in the marketplaces calling out to others, <sup>17</sup>'We played the flute for you and you didn't dance. We sang a funeral song and you didn't mourn.' <sup>18</sup>For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, 'He has a demon.' <sup>19</sup>Yet the Human One<sup>a</sup> came eating and drinking, and they say, 'Look, a glutton and a drunk, a friend of tax collectors and sinners.' But wisdom is proved to be right by her works."

Condemnation of Bethsaida and Capernaum

<sup>20</sup>Then he began to scold the cities where he had done his greatest miracles because they didn't change their hearts and lives. <sup>21</sup>"How terrible it will be for you, Chorazin! How terrible it will be for you, Bethsaida! For if the miracles done among you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have changed their hearts and lives and put on funeral clothes and ashes a long time ago. <sup>22</sup>But I say to you that Tyre and Sidon will be better off on Judgment Day than you. <sup>23</sup>And you, Capernaum, will you be honored by being raised up to heaven? No, you will be thrown down to the place of the dead. After all, if the miracles that were done among you had been done in Sodom, it would still be here today. <sup>24</sup>But I say to you that it will be better for the land of Sodom on the Judgment Day than it will be for you."

The Father and the Son

<sup>25</sup>At that time Jesus said, "I praise you, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because you've hidden these things from the wise and intelligent and have shown them to babies.

<sup>27</sup>"My Father has handed all things over to me. No one knows the Son except the Father. And nobody knows the Father except the Son and anyone to whom the Son wants to reveal him.

<sup>28</sup>"Come to me, all you who are struggling hard and carrying heavy loads, and I will give you rest. <sup>29</sup>Put on my yoke, and learn from me. I'm gentle and humble. And you will find rest for yourselves. <sup>30</sup>My yoke is easy to bear, and my burden is light."

Working on the Sabbath

12 At that time Jesus went through the wheat fields on the Sabbath. His disciples were hungry so they were picking heads of wheat and eating them. <sup>2</sup>When the Pharisees saw this, they said to him, "Look, your disciples are breaking the Sabbath law."

11:16-19 Jesus observes how fickle people can be as they refuse to understand and accept what God is doing. Even though he and John the Baptist carry out their ministries of proclaiming the kingdom of heaven in different ways, both are rejected. wisdom is proved to be right: Jesus concludes with a proverb. People may reject John and Jesus, but their ministries demonstrate that they really are agents of God's restoration. Jesus really is "the Christ" "the one who is to come," and John really is "Elijah who is to come" (Matt 11:2, 14).

11:21-24 Chorazin . . . Bethsaida: towns of Israel in northern Galilee. Tyre and Sidon: Gentile cities north of Galilee along the Mediterranean coast. Capernaum: home base for Jesus' mission (see Matt 4:12), the place of the dead: or "Hades"—called "Sheol" in the OT. Sodom: See Matthew 10:15.

11:25-27 hidden . . . shown: Understanding and accepting Jesus' identity as the promised deliverer and his message as good news isn't simply a matter of human effort. This kind of insight is a gift from God. babies: in contrast to the wise and intelligent. The focus here is simply that God's gift of insight is available to those who haven't predetermined what God can or can't do. See Matthew 21:15-16.

11:29 Put on my yoke, and learn from me: In the world of farming, a "yoke" is a wooden frame used to control farm animals at work. Throughout the OT (e.g., 2 Chron 10:4; Isa 9:4), it's used as an image for obedience and service. Here it's specifically tied to learning from Jesus. Accordingly, we understand that Jesus is calling people to follow his teaching. See Matthew 28:18-20, and especially verse 20: "teaching them to obey everything that I've commanded you." you will find rest: See Jeremiah 6:16, where God's offer of rest was rejected, eventually leading to exile.

12:1-2 Sabbath: the seventh day of the week, a day of rest. The Ten Commandments specify that no work is to

<sup>3</sup>But he said to them, "Haven't you read what David did when he and those with him were hungry? <sup>4</sup>He went into God's house and broke the law by eating the bread of the presence, which only the priests were allowed to eat. <sup>5</sup>Or haven't you read in the Law that on the Sabbath the priests in the temple treat the Sabbath as any other day and are still innocent? <sup>6</sup>But I tell you that something greater than the temple is here. <sup>7</sup>If you had known what this means, I want mercy and not sacrifice,<sup>a</sup> you wouldn't have condemned the innocent. <sup>8</sup>The Human One<sup>b</sup> is Lord of the Sabbath."

Healing on the Sabbath

<sup>9</sup>Jesus left that place and went into their synagogue. <sup>10</sup>A man with a withered hand was there. Wanting to bring charges against Jesus, they asked, "Does the Law allow a person to heal on the Sabbath?"

<sup>11</sup>Jesus replied, "Who among you has a sheep that falls into a pit on the Sabbath and will not take hold of it and pull it out? <sup>12</sup>How much more valuable is a person than a sheep! So the Law allows a person to do what is good on the Sabbath." <sup>13</sup>Then Jesus said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." So he did and it was made healthy, just like the other one. <sup>14</sup>The Pharisees went out and met in order to find a way to destroy Jesus.

Healing the crowd

<sup>15</sup>Jesus knew what they intended to do, so he went away from there. Large crowds followed him, and he healed them all. <sup>16</sup>But he ordered them not to spread the word about him, <sup>17</sup>so that what was spoken through Isaiah the prophet might be fulfilled:

<sup>18</sup>*Look, my Servant whom I chose, the one I love, in whom I find great pleasure.
I'll put my Spirit upon him, and he'll announce judgment to the Gentiles.*

<sup>19</sup>He won't argue or shout, and nobody will hear his voice in the streets.

<sup>20</sup>He won't break a bent stalk, and he won't snuff out a smoldering wick, until he makes justice win.

<sup>22</sup>They brought to Jesus a demon-possessed man who was blind and unable to speak. Jesus healed him so that he could both speak and see. <sup>23</sup>All the crowds were amazed and said, "This man couldn't be the Son of David, could he?"

be done on the Sabbath (Exod 20:8-11; Deut 5:12-15), but they don't specify the nature of "the work" that shouldn't be done. This question was debated by Jewish scholars in the time of Jesus. picking heads of wheat: According to Deuteronomy 24:19-22 and Leviticus 19:9-10, farmers shouldn't harvest the whole crop, but should leave some for the needy. The Pharisees don't complain because the disciples are stealing other people's wheat, but because they think the disciples are violating the sabbath law. The question is whether picking heads of grain—not in order to harvest the grain but in order to satisfy immediate hunger—is work prohibited by the Law.

12:3-8 Jesus' response has four points: (1) He finds evidence in 1 Samuel 21:1-6 that dealing with a human need like hunger is more important than a strict application of the sabbath law. (2) Drawing on Numbers 28:9-10, he first shows that the needs of the temple outweigh the need to keep the Sabbath, then claims that he and his mission are more important than the temple. (3) Borrowing language from Hosea 6:6 (see Matt 9:13), he insists that, just as God's compassion lies behind the sabbath law, so God's compassion takes priority over that law. (4) Finally, as the Human One, Jesus has the authority to interpret how the sabbath law ought to be put into practice.

12:9 their synagogue: emphasizes the tension between Jesus and the Pharisees at this point of the story.

12:10 a withered hand: no longer useful as a result of disease. The important point here is that this medical problem wasn't deadly. Because it didn't require immediate attention, there's no reason "to work" (by healing someone) on the Sabbath. On "Sabbath," see note on Matthew 12:1-2.

12:11-12 Although the rabbis debated what was allowed on the Sabbath, Jesus' remarks appeal to compassion and common sense.

12:14 to destroy Jesus: Earlier, Jesus' violent death was implied (Matt 9:15). The plot to kill Jesus due to the nature of his teaching is now made explicit.

12:15-21 Matthew sheds light on Jesus' motivations. Jesus isn't interested in challenging his opponents or in seeking publicity. Instead, his commitment is to his mission, explained here in the words of Isaiah 42:1-4. For similar language, see Matthew 3:17; 17:5. The reference to the Gentiles (or "nations") in the citation from Isaiah will become important later in the Gospel (see Matt 24:14; 28:18-20).

12:23 Son of David: See note on Matthew 9:27. See also Matthew 1:1.

<sup>24</sup>When the Pharisees heard, they said, “This man throws out demons only by the authority of Beelzebul, the ruler of the demons.”

<sup>25</sup>Because Jesus knew what they were thinking, he replied, “Every kingdom involved in civil war becomes a wasteland. Every city or house torn apart by divisions will collapse. <sup>26</sup>If Satan throws out Satan, he is at war with himself. How then can his kingdom endure? <sup>27</sup>And if I throw out demons by the authority of Beelzebul, then by whose authority do your followers throw them out? Therefore, they will be your judges. <sup>28</sup>But if I throw out demons by the power of God’s Spirit, then God’s kingdom has already overtaken you. <sup>29</sup>Can people go into a house that belongs to a strong man and steal his possessions, unless they first tie up the strong man? Then they can rob his house. <sup>30</sup>Whoever isn’t with me is against me, and whoever doesn’t gather with me scatters.

Insulting the Holy Spirit

<sup>31</sup>“Therefore, I tell you that people will be forgiven for every sin and insult to God. But insulting the Holy Spirit won’t be forgiven. <sup>32</sup>And whoever speaks a word against the Human One<sup>d</sup> will be forgiven. But whoever speaks against the Holy Spirit won’t be forgiven, not in this age or in the age that is coming.

Trees and fruits

<sup>33</sup>“Either consider the tree good and its fruit good, or consider the tree rotten and its fruit rotten. A tree is known by its fruit. <sup>34</sup>Children of snakes! How can you speak good things while you are evil? What fills the heart comes out of the mouth. <sup>35</sup>Good people bring out good things from their good treasure. But evil people bring out evil things from their evil treasure. <sup>36</sup>I tell you that people will have to answer on Judgment Day for every useless word they speak. <sup>37</sup>By your words you will be either judged innocent or condemned as guilty.”

Request for a sign

<sup>38</sup>At that time some of the legal experts and the Pharisees requested of Jesus, “Teacher, we would like to see a sign from you.”

<sup>39</sup>But he replied, “An evil and unfaithful generation searches for a sign, but it won’t receive any sign except Jonah’s sign. <sup>40</sup>Just as Jonah was in the whale’s belly for three days and three nights,<sup>e</sup> so the Human One<sup>f</sup> will be in the heart of the earth for three days and three nights.

<sup>41</sup>The citizens of Nineveh will stand up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it as guilty, because they changed their hearts and lives in response to Jonah’s preaching. And

12:38 Mt 16:1; Mk 8:11; Lk 11:16; Jn 2:18; 1Co 1:22   12:39 Mt 16:4; Lk 11:29   12:40 Jon 1:17; Mt 16:21; Mt 17:23   12:41 Jon 1:2; Jon 3:5; Mt 12:6; Lk 11:32

12:24 by the authority of Beelzebul: that is, by the authority of “the ruler of demons.” The Pharisees try to undercut Jesus’ influence with the crowds (see Matt 13:15, 23) by dismissing him as an instrument of the devil. The question isn’t whether he throws out demons, but by whose authority.

12:25–29 Jesus’ response takes three forms: (1) He appeals to common sense. What ruler would incite civil war? (2) He observes that their accusation against him must also be heard as an accusation against those in their own group whose ministry includes expelling demons from the demon-possessed. (3) Most important, he claims for himself a different source of power—not the ruler of demons but God’s Spirit. Recall Jesus’ baptism, when God’s Spirit rested on him (Matt 3:16); and the quotation from Isaiah 42, with its reference to God’s Spirit on God’s servant (Matt 12:18).

12:28–29 God’s kingdom: in opposition to the kingdom over which Beelzebul rules (Matt 12:24). “God’s kingdom” is typically called “kingdom of heaven” in Matthew. Here the emphasis falls on the withdrawal of evil in the face of the advancing new world order. See sidebar, “The Kingdom of Heaven” at Matthew 3.

12:30 Whoever isn’t with me is against me: Jesus presents an either-or choice. A person is either loyal to the devil’s rule or loyal to God’s rule. There’s no in between.

12:31–32 forgiven for every sin: a summary of Jesus’ saving work (see Matt 1:21; 26:26–28). insulting the Holy Spirit won’t be forgiven: Some translations refer to “blasphemy” against the Spirit. Read in relation to the accusation against Jesus and his response in Matthew 12:24–30, the problem Jesus identifies is refusing to recognize that the Holy Spirit is at work through Jesus’ ministry and claiming instead that it is an expression of the devil’s rule.

12:33–37 See Matthew 7:16–20.

12:38 a sign from you: The Pharisees and legal experts want Jesus to prove himself in spite of the way his ministry has already been on display (see Matt 11:4–5; 12:13, 22). In Matthew 12:41–42, sign-seeking is what people do instead of changing their hearts and lives.

12:39–42 evil and unfaithful generation: Similar language was used to describe those Israelites whom God rescued from Egypt, but who resisted God and Moses on the journey to the land God had promised to give them (e.g., Deut 1:35). Jonah’s sign: Here Jesus interprets this in two ways:

- (1) Unlike Jews who refuse to change their hearts and lives, the Ninevites do change their hearts and lives; and
- (2) the time Jonah spent in the whale’s belly (see Jon 2:1) look, someone greater than Jonah is here. <sup>42</sup>The queen of the South will be raised up by God at the judgment with this generation and condemn it because she came from a distant land to hear Solomon's wisdom. And look, someone greater than Solomon is here.

Unclean spirit seeking a home

<sup>43</sup>"When an unclean spirit leaves a person, it wanders through dry places looking for a place to rest. But it doesn't find any. <sup>44</sup>Then it says, 'I'll go back to the house I left.' When it arrives, it finds the place vacant, cleaned up, and decorated. <sup>45</sup>Then it goes and brings with it seven other spirits more evil than itself. They go in and make their home there. That person is worse off at the end than at the beginning. This is the way it will be also for this evil generation."

Jesus' family

<sup>46</sup>While Jesus was speaking to the crowds, his mother and brothers stood outside trying to speak with him. <sup>47</sup>Someone said to him, "Look, your mother and brothers are outside wanting to speak with you."

<sup>48</sup>Jesus replied, "Who is my mother? Who are my brothers?" <sup>49</sup>He stretched out his hand toward his disciples and said, "Look, here are my mother and my brothers. <sup>50</sup>Whoever does the will of my Father who is in heaven is my brother, sister, and mother."

Setting for the parables

13 That day Jesus went out of the house and sat down beside the lake. <sup>2</sup>Such large crowds gathered around him that he climbed into a boat and sat down. The whole crowd was standing on the shore.

Parable of the soils

<sup>3</sup>He said many things to them in parables: "A farmer went out to scatter seed. <sup>4</sup>As he was scattering seed, some fell on the path, and birds came and ate it. <sup>5</sup>Other seed fell on rocky ground where the soil was shallow. They sprouted immediately because the soil wasn't deep. <sup>6</sup>But when the sun came up, it scorched the plants, and they dried up because they had no roots. <sup>7</sup>Other seed fell among thorny plants. The thorny plants grew and choked them. <sup>8</sup>Other seed fell on good soil and bore fruit, in one case a yield of one hundred to one, in another case a yield of sixty to one, and in another case a yield of thirty to one. <sup>9</sup>Everyone who has ears should pay attention."

Why Jesus speaks in parables

<sup>10</sup>Jesus' disciples came and said to him, "Why do you use parables when you speak to the crowds?"

<sup>11</sup>Jesus replied, "Because they haven't received the secrets of the kingdom of heaven, but you have. <sup>12</sup>For those who have will receive more and they will have more than enough. But as for those who don't have, even the little they have will be taken away from them. <sup>13</sup>This is will correspond to the time between Jesus' death and resurrection. citizens of Nineveh: See John 3. queen of the South: that is, Sheba (see 1 Kgs 10:1-13; 2 Chron 9:1-12). Jesus refers to Gentiles as models of people who responded appropriately, anticipating the mission to all nations (Matt 28:18-20).

12:43-45 Jesus isn't so much teaching about unclean spirits and what happens after a demon is thrown out of a demon-possessed person as he is telling a parable. This is clear from the last phrase: This is the way it will be also for this evil generation—an obvious reference to the sign-seekers of Matthew 12:39. It's not enough to see or even experience what Jesus can do. A complete change of heart and life is needed.

12:46-50 The call to follow Jesus led Simon, Andrew, James, and John to leave their families (Matt 4:18-22). Earlier, too, Jesus had spoken of division within families (Matt 10:21, 34-37). Now he speaks of the formation of a new family, made up of those who do the will of my Father who is in heaven. See Matthew 7:21 (cf. Matt 28:10, where Jesus refers to his disciples as "my brothers").

13:3 parables: a wide-ranging term used especially to draw comparisons between different things. In Matthew's Gospel, parables often draw on everyday peasant life in order to illustrate the nature of the kingdom of heaven.

13:4-8 Although this is called the "parable of the farmer" in Matthew 13:18, the focus is on what happens to the seed. And what happens to the seed depends on the different kinds of soil. The farmer scatters the seed generously. He doesn't discriminate. It falls everywhere.

13:9 pay attention: The listener is warned that this parable does more than describe everyday farming practices. Understanding will require reflection.

13:10 Jesus' disciples came: Note the shift in audience from "large crowds" (Matt 13:2) to the inner circle of disciples.

13:11-13 secrets of the kingdom of heaven: Although Jesus has openly proclaimed the kingdom of heaven, people need the gift of insight from God in order to understand (see Matt 11:25-26; sidebar, "The Kingdom of Heaven" at Matt 3). those who have... those who don't have: People are like the soils of Jesus' parable, with some more receptive than others to the good news.

why I speak to the crowds in parables; although they see, they don't really see; and although they hear, they don't really hear or understand. <sup>14</sup>What Isaiah prophesied has become completely true for them:

You will hear, to be sure, but never understand; and you will certainly see but never recognize what you are seeing.

<sup>15</sup>For this people's senses have become calloused, and they've become hard of hearing, and they've shut their eyes so that they won't see with their eyes or hear with their ears or understand with their minds, and change their hearts and lives that I may heal them.<sup>8</sup>

<sup>16</sup>Happy are your eyes because they see. Happy are your ears because they hear. <sup>17</sup>I assure you that many prophets and righteous people wanted to see what you see and hear what you hear, but they didn't.

Explanation of the parable of the farmer

<sup>18</sup>Consider then the parable of the farmer. <sup>19</sup>Whenever people hear the word about the kingdom and don't understand it, the evil one comes and carries off what was planted in their hearts. This is the seed that was sown on the path. <sup>20</sup>As for the seed that was spread on rocky ground, this refers to people who hear the word and immediately receive it joyfully. <sup>21</sup>Because they have no roots, they last for only a little while. When they experience distress or abuse because of the word, they immediately fall away. <sup>22</sup>As for the seed that was spread among thorny plants, this refers to those who hear the word, but the worries of this life and the false appeal of wealth choke the word, and it bears no fruit. <sup>23</sup>As for what was planted on good soil, this refers to those who hear and understand, and bear fruit and produce—in one case a yield of one hundred to one, in another case a yield of sixty to one, and in another case a yield of thirty to one.”

Parable of the weeds

<sup>24</sup>Jesus told them another parable: “The kingdom of heaven is like someone who planted good seed in his field. <sup>25</sup>While people were sleeping, an enemy came and planted weeds among the wheat and went away. <sup>26</sup>When the stalks sprouted and bore grain, then the weeds also appeared.

<sup>27</sup>“The servants of the landowner came and said to him, ‘Master, didn't you plant good seed in your field? Then how is it that it has weeds?’

<sup>28</sup>“An enemy has done this,’ he answered.

“The servants said to him, ‘Do you want us to go and gather them?’

<sup>29</sup>“But the landowner said, ‘No, because if you gather the weeds, you'll pull up the wheat along with them. <sup>30</sup>Let both grow side by side until the harvest. And at harvesttime I'll say to the harvesters, ‘First gather the weeds and tie them together in bundles to be burned. But bring the wheat into my barn.’”

Parable of the mustard seed

<sup>31</sup>He told another parable to them: “The kingdom of heaven is like a mustard seed that someone took and planted in his field. <sup>32</sup>It's the smallest of all seeds. But when it's grown,

<sup>8</sup>Isa 6:9-10

13:14-15 In order to explain negative responses to the good news, Jesus quotes Isaiah 6:9-10. When they “see” but “don't really see,” for example, they demonstrate their unwillingness to welcome the good news.

13:16 Happy: See Matthew 5:3-12.

13:18-23 Consider then the parable of the farmer: Jesus explains the parable he told in Matthew 13:3-8. First, he identifies the seed as the word about the kingdom. Then he shows how each soil represents a different response by people to the message of the kingdom.

13:21 distress or abuse: See Matthew 5:10-12, 44; 10:16-23.

13:22 worries . . . wealth: See Matthew 6:19-34.

13:23 hear and understand: See Matthew 13:13-16; 15:10. bear fruit: See Matthew 3:8; 7:16-20.

13:24-30 For Jesus' explanation of this parable, see Matthew 13:36-43.

13:24: them: refers to the crowds, and not only the disciples (see Matt 13:2, 34). seed: See Matthew 13:4, 19. In Hosea 2:23, God “sows” a people.

13:30 harvest: a popular image of the last judgment in Jewish literature (e.g., Isa 27:12-13; Joel 3:13; 4 Ezra 4:28-32). See Matthew 3:12.

13:31-32 The parable exaggerates both the smallness of the mustard seed and the greatness of the mustard plant it's the largest of all vegetable plants. It becomes a tree so that the birds in the sky come and nest in its branches."

Parable of the yeast

<sup>33</sup>He told them another parable: "The kingdom of heaven is like yeast, which a woman took and hid in a bushel of wheat flour until the yeast had worked its way through all the dough."

Purpose of parables to the crowds

<sup>34</sup>Jesus said all these things to the crowds in parables, and he spoke to them only in parables. <sup>35</sup>This was to fulfill what the prophet spoke:

I'll speak in parables;

I'll declare what has been hidden since the beginning of the world.<sup>b</sup>

Explanation of the parable of the weeds

<sup>36</sup>Jesus left the crowds and went into the house. His disciples came to him and said, "Explain to us the parable of the weeds in the field."

Parable of the treasure

<sup>44</sup>"The kingdom of heaven is like a treasure that somebody hid in a field, which someone else found and covered up. Full of joy, the finder sold everything and bought that field.

Parable of the merchant

<sup>45</sup>"Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant in search of fine pearls. <sup>46</sup>When he found one very precious pearl, he went and sold all that he owned and bought it.

Parable of the net

<sup>47</sup>"Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a net that people threw into the lake and gathered all kinds of fish. <sup>48</sup>When it was full, they pulled it to the shore, where they sat down and put the good fish together into containers. But the bad fish they threw away. <sup>49</sup>That's the way it will be at the end of the present age. The angels will go out and separate the evil people from the righteous people, <sup>50</sup>and will throw the evil ones into a burning furnace. People there will be weeping and grinding their teeth.

Treasures new and old

<sup>51</sup>"Have you understood all these things?" Jesus asked.

They said to him, "Yes."

(hardly a tree!) in order to emphasize the surprising character of the kingdom of heaven.

13:33 yeast: The active agent necessary for making bread might seem insignificant when compared to about 50 pounds of flour, yet it transforms everything.

13:34-35 See Psalm 78:2. Jesus explains that his aim is to let the secret of the kingdom of heaven be known to anyone who is ready to receive it.

13:36-43 Jesus left the crowds: See Matthew 13:10 for a similar shift of audience. Jesus explains the parable told in Matthew 13:24-30, though he now focuses on the harvest. The effect is to emphasize the Father's recognition of and care for the righteous (13:43). The "righteous" are those who hear and do the Father's will (see Matt 7:16-20). For a similar emphasis, see Matthew 10:16-33. shine like the sun:

Compare with Daniel 12:3. Those who have ears: See Matthew 11:15; 13:9.

13:44-46 The incomparable value of God's kingdom demands a complete reorientation of life. See Matthew 4:18-22; 19:21.

13:47-50 a net that people threw into the lake: Jesus describes a large net dragged between two boats, capable of hauling in a large catch (that is, a "dragnet"). Like the farmer who sowed seed everywhere (Matt 13:4-8), the dragnet doesn't discriminate. For the picture of good and evil side by side in this life, compare Matthew 13:24-30. For the picture of end-time judgment, compare Matthew 13:36-43 (see also Matt 3:12). weeping and grinding their teeth: See Matthew 8:11-12.

Jesus in his hometown

<sup>53</sup>When Jesus finished these parables, he departed. <sup>54</sup>When he came to his hometown, he taught the people in their synagogue. They were surprised and said, “Where did he get this wisdom? Where did he get the power to work miracles? <sup>55</sup>Isn’t he the carpenter’s son? Isn’t his mother named Mary? Aren’t James, Joseph, Simon, and Judas his brothers? <sup>56</sup>And his sisters, aren’t they here with us? ### Death of John the Baptist

14At that time Herod the ruler<sup>a</sup> heard the news about Jesus. <sup>2</sup>He said to his servants, “This is John the Baptist. He’s been raised from the dead. This is why these miraculous powers are at work through him.” <sup>3</sup>Herod had arrested John, bound him, and put him in prison because of Herodias, the wife of Herod’s brother Philip.

Then they went and told Jesus what had happened.

the lack of understanding in Matthew 13:13-15, 19. legal expert... trained as a disciple for the kingdom of heaven: Legal experts were the trained scholars of the Jewish world, so Jesus’ disciples are those who understand, uphold, and share with others Jesus’ teaching.

13:54 his hometown: Nazareth (Matt 2:23; see Matt 21:11; 26:71).

13:55-56 Those in the synagogue name Jesus’ family as proof that he isn’t anyone special. Recall that status in the ancient world was based less on one’s accomplishments and more on one’s family roots.

13:57 They were repulsed by him: Compare with Matthew 11:6.

13:58 He was unable to do many miracles: or, better, “He didn’t do many miracles.” Matthew’s emphasis is on Jesus’ unwillingness to perform miracles (cf. Matt 12:38-39), not on his inability.

14:1 Herod the ruler: Herod Antipas. Caesar Augustus (see Luke 2:1) appointed Herod Antipas ruler of Galilee and Peraea after the death of Antipas’ father, Herod the Great, in 4 BCE (see the note on Matt 2:19-22). See sidebar, “Judea under Foreign Rule” at Matthew 3.

14:2 raised from the dead: Matthew has informed us that John is in prison, but not that he was dead. Herod’s attempt to explain the basis of Jesus’ miraculous powers prepares for the story of how John was put to death. This is why: The Pharisees claimed that Jesus’ authority came from “the ruler of demons” (Matt 9:34; 12:28). Herod adds a further misconception, one based in popular religious thought, that people brought back from the dead must be able to exercise special powers. For Matthew, Jesus’ power came from God’s Spirit (Matt 3:16-17; 12:18, 28).

14:3-12 A flashback relating the death of John the Baptist. Matthew connects the story of John’s execution to Jesus (see Matt 14:1-2, 12-13). In fact, John’s death at the hand of a Roman ruler foreshadows Jesus’ own death. Some details of Matthew’s story are difficult to tie down. For example, according to the 1st-century Jewish historian Josephus, Herodias was married to one of Herod’s sons, not to Herod’s brother Philip, as in Matthew. According to Josephus, Herod had John executed because of his growing popularity, which might lead to rebellion against Rome. There’s a hint of this in Matthew 14:5. Josephus also writes that the daughter’s name is Salome.

14:3-4 against the law: See Leviticus 18:16; 20:21. Herod’s marriage was regarded as an incestuous relationship. John told Herod: The Greek verb translated as “told” refers to continuous action. In other words, Matthew portrays John as mounting an ongoing protest against Herod’s marriage.

14:5 a prophet: See Matthew 17:12-13.

14:7 he swore: See Matthew 5:33-37.

14:9 king: Herod the Great had the title of “king,” but Herod Antipas was only a ruler who depended on Rome (see Matt 14:1; sidebar, “Judea under Foreign Rule” at Matt 3).

14:12 John’s disciples came and took his body and buried it: an anticipation of Matthew 27:55-60.

Feeding the five thousand

<sup>13</sup>When Jesus heard about John, he withdrew in a boat to a deserted place by himself. When the crowds learned this, they followed him on foot from the cities. <sup>14</sup>When Jesus arrived and saw a large crowd, he had compassion for them and healed those who were sick. <sup>15</sup>That evening his disciples came and said to him, "This is an isolated place and it's getting late. Send the crowds away so they can go into the villages and buy food for themselves."

<sup>16</sup>But Jesus said to them, "There's no need to send them away. You give them something to eat."

<sup>17</sup>They replied, "We have nothing here except five loaves of bread and two fish."

<sup>18</sup>He said, "Bring them here to me." <sup>19</sup>He ordered the crowds to sit down on the grass. He took the five loaves of bread and the two fish, looked up to heaven, blessed them and broke the loaves apart and gave them to his disciples. Then the disciples gave them to the crowds. <sup>20</sup>Everyone ate until they were full, and they filled twelve baskets with the leftovers. <sup>21</sup>About five thousand men plus women and children had eaten.

Walking on the water

<sup>22</sup>Right then, Jesus made the disciples get into the boat and go ahead to the other side of the lake while he dismissed the crowds. <sup>23</sup>When he sent them away, he went up onto a mountain by himself to pray. Evening came and he was alone. <sup>24</sup>Meanwhile, the boat, fighting a strong headwind, was being battered by the waves and was already far away from land. <sup>25</sup>Very early in the morning he came to his disciples, walking on the lake. <sup>26</sup>When the disciples saw him walking on the lake, they were terrified and said, "It's a ghost!" They were so frightened they screamed.

<sup>27</sup>Just then Jesus spoke to them, "Be encouraged! It's me. Don't be afraid."

<sup>28</sup>Peter replied, "Lord, if it's you, order me to come to you on the water."

<sup>29</sup>And Jesus said, "Come."

Then Peter got out of the boat and was walking on the water toward Jesus. <sup>30</sup>But when Peter saw the strong wind, he became frightened. As he began to sink, he shouted, "Lord, rescue me!"

<sup>31</sup>Jesus immediately reached out and grabbed him, saying, "You man of weak faith! Why did you begin to have doubts?" <sup>32</sup>When they got into the boat, the wind settled down.

<sup>33</sup>Then those in the boat worshipped Jesus and said, "You must be God's Son!"

Healing the sick

<sup>34</sup>When they had crossed the lake, they landed at Gennesaret. <sup>35</sup>When the people who lived in that place recognized him, they sent word throughout that whole region, and they brought to him everyone who was sick. <sup>36</sup>Then they begged him that they might just touch the edge of his clothes. Everyone who touched him was cured.

14:13-21 Jesus' miraculous provision of food in the wilderness brings to mind God's provision of manna to Israel in the wilderness (Exod 16). See also 2 Kings 4:38-44. Recall the prayer Jesus taught his disciples: "Give us the bread we need for today" (Matt 6:11).

14:14 he had compassion for them: Jesus' motivation both for healing the sick and for feeding the hungry (see Matt 9:36; 20:34).

14:19 took... blessed... broke... gave: See Matthew 26:26-27.

14:20 twelve baskets: There's the same number of baskets of leftovers as there are disciples who had questioned how the large crowd could be fed. Twelve is also symbolic of the restoration of Israel.

14:22-23 go ahead: It's clear that Jesus had wanted to be alone after hearing the news of John's death (see Matt 14:13), but it isn't clear how Jesus plans to catch up with the disciples, who are directed to cross the Galilee Sea. For prayer on a mountain, see Matthew 26:36-46.

14:25-26 Very early: or "in the fourth watch of the night." Romans divided the night into four watches. The fourth would be from 3:00 to 6:00 a.m. This is the darkest part of the night and the disciples have been battling the storm for hours. walking on the lake: Matthew portrays Jesus in the role God has in some OT texts (e.g., Ps 77:19; Isa 43:16; and especially Job 9:8). (For the sea as a place of chaos and evil, see Job 26:12-14; Pss 74:13-17; 89:9-12; Rev 21:1. For God's mastery of the sea, see, e.g., Job 38:16; Ps 77:16; Hab 3:15; Sir 24:5. For similar images of God rescuing people, see Pss 69:1-3, 13-15; 107:23-32.)

14:30-31 See Matthew 8:25-26. weak faith: an expression applied to the disciples in Matthew 6:30; 8:26; 16:8. See also Matthew 17:20.

14:33 The miracle leads to worship and confession (see Matt 28:9, 17). For Jesus as God's Son, see Matthew 3:16-17; 11:27; 16:16; 17:5.

14:34 Gennesaret: a city on the northwestern shore of the Galilee Sea (also called "Lake Gennesaret," Luke 5:1).

14:34-36 The length of Jesus' mission in Gennesaret is unspecified. Matthew summarizes with what would have been Jesus' typical activity there. touch the edge of his clothes: See Matthew 9:20-21.

Rules from the elders

15 Then Pharisees and legal experts came to Jesus from Jerusalem and said, <sup>2</sup>“Why are your disciples breaking the elders’ rules handed down to us? They don’t ritually purify their hands by washing before they eat.”

<sup>3</sup>Jesus replied, “Why do you break the command of God by keeping the rules handed down to you? <sup>4</sup>For God said, Honor your father and your mother,<sup>1</sup> and The person who speaks against father or mother will certainly be put to death.<sup>5</sup> But you say, ‘If you tell your father or mother, “Everything I’m expected to contribute to you I’m giving to God as a gift,” then you don’t have to honor your father.’ <sup>6</sup>So you do away with God’s Law for the sake of the rules that have been handed down to you. <sup>7</sup>Hypocrites! Isaiah really knew what he was talking about when he prophesied about you, <sup>8</sup>This people honors me with their lips, but their hearts are far away from me. <sup>9</sup>Their worship of me is empty since they teach instructions that are human rules.<sup>10</sup>”

<sup>10</sup>Jesus called the crowd near and said to them, “Listen and understand. <sup>11</sup>It’s not what goes into the mouth that contaminates a person in God’s sight. It’s what comes out of the mouth that contaminates the person.”

<sup>12</sup>Then the disciples came and said to him, “Do you know that the Pharisees were offended by what you just said?”

<sup>13</sup>Jesus replied, “Every plant that my heavenly Father didn’t plant will be pulled up. <sup>14</sup>Leave the Pharisees alone. They are blind people who are guides to blind people. But if a blind person leads another blind person, they will both fall into a ditch.”

Canaanite woman

<sup>21</sup>From there, Jesus went to the regions of Tyre and Sidon. <sup>22</sup>A Canaanite woman from those territories came out and shouted, “Show me mercy, Son of David. My daughter is suffering terribly from demon possession.” <sup>23</sup>But he didn’t respond to her at all.

15:1 Reports of Jesus’ ministry have apparently reached Jerusalem (see Matt 4:25). Because Jerusalem is the center of Jewish religion, the controversy regarding washing hands in Matthew 15:1-11 has added significance. Pharisees: See note on Matthew 3:7. legal experts: scripture scholars.

15:2 elders’ rules: traditional interpretations of the Law. Here, these traditions have to do with Jewish ritual purity. See sidebar, “Oral Law and Written Law.”

15:3-6 Jesus’ response insists that the “elders’ rules” could have the effect of countering the very Law they were meant to protect. He quotes Exodus 20:12; 21:17. Matthew presents Jesus as the genuine interpreter of scripture, over against those interpretations that Jesus dismisses by calling them “human rules” (Matt 15:9).

15:8-9 Jesus interprets Isaiah 29:13 as a charge against the Pharisees and legal experts.

15:10-11 Jesus’ audience shifts from the Pharisees and legal experts (Matt 15:1-9) to the crowd. Jesus, the Pharisees, and the legal experts all sought to answer the same question: What does it mean to be faithful to God? They also answered in terms of living pure lives. But they understood in different ways what this entails. Jesus’ interpretation of the idea of “purity” dismisses the “elders’ rules” and casts in a bad light the Pharisees and legal experts who uphold those rules. what goes into the mouth... what comes out of the mouth: What contaminates people in terms of their relationship to God isn’t what they eat but their moral character, which is on display in their words and deeds (see Jas 3).

15:13 Every plant: See Matthew 13:24-30; Isaiah 60:21.

15:15 riddle: or “parable,” in reference to Jesus’ words in Matthew 15:11.

15:16: Don’t you understand yet: For the importance of “understanding,” see Matthew 13:13-15, 19, 23; 15:10; 16:9. 15:17-20 enters the stomach... comes from the heart: Although the stomach can refer to a person’s inner desires, here Jesus thinks of it only in terms of its place in the path of digestion. Here, the heart is the center of a person’s thinking, feeling, and will.

15:22 A Canaanite woman from those territories: from “the regions of Tyre and Sidon” (Matt 15:21). Tyre and Sidon were Gentile cities along the Syrophenician coast. The term “Canaanite” appears only here in the NT but more than 80 times in the OT. It recalls the people who lived in the land conquered by the Israelites after the exodus from Egypt (e.g., Exod 3:8). Son of David: Though this woman is clearly a Gentile, she recognizes Jesus as David’s son and appeals to him in a properly Jewish way. See Matthew 9:27; 20:30-31.

15:23-24 he didn’t respond: The mission to the Gentiles will feature later in the Gospel (see Matt 24:14; 28:18-20), but Oral Law and Written Law Some Jews before and during the time of Jesus accepted the idea of an oral law set alongside the written Law. This oral law was passed on from generation to generation by legal experts. In part, the oral law included rules and regulations in addition to the written Law. And in part, it consisted of traditional interpretations of the written Law. The idea of an oral law wasn't accepted by everyone. The Sadducees rejected it, for example, while the Pharisees actively supported it. As the Pharisees gained the upper hand as the leaders of Judaism after the temple's destruction, the oral law increased in its authority. The oral law was finally written down in Jewish books and collections of books known as Mishnah, Tosefta, and Talmud.

His disciples came and urged him, "Send her away; she keeps shouting out after us."

<sup>26</sup>He replied, "It is not good to take the children's bread and toss it to dogs."

<sup>27</sup>She said, "Yes, Lord. But even the dogs eat the crumbs that fall off their masters' table."

<sup>28</sup>Jesus answered, "Woman, you have great faith. It will be just as you wish." And right then her daughter was healed.

Healing of many people

<sup>29</sup>Jesus moved on from there along the shore of the Galilee Sea. He went up a mountain and sat down. <sup>30</sup>Large crowds came to him, including those who were paralyzed, blind, injured, and unable to speak, and many others. They laid them at his feet, and he healed them. <sup>31</sup>So the crowd was amazed when they saw those who had been unable to speak talking, and the paralyzed cured, and the injured walking, and the blind seeing. And they praised the God of Israel.

Feeding the four thousand

<sup>32</sup>Now Jesus called his disciples and said, "I feel sorry for the crowd because they have been with me for three days and have nothing to eat. I don't want to send them away hungry for fear they won't have enough strength to travel."

<sup>33</sup>His disciples replied, "Where are we going to get enough food in this wilderness to satisfy such a big crowd?"

<sup>34</sup>Jesus said, "How much bread do you have?"

They responded, "Seven loaves and a few fish."

<sup>35</sup>He told the crowd to sit on the ground. <sup>36</sup>He took the seven loaves of bread and the fish. After he gave thanks, he broke them into pieces and gave them to the disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds. <sup>37</sup>Everyone ate until they were full. The disciples collected seven baskets full of leftovers. <sup>38</sup>Four thousand men ate, plus women and children. <sup>39</sup>After dismissing the crowds, Jesus got into the boat and came to the region of Magadan.

Demand for a sign

16 The Pharisees and Sadducees came to Jesus. In order to test him they asked him to show them a sign from heaven.

<sup>2</sup>But he replied, "At evening you say, 'It will be nice weather because the sky is bright red.'

<sup>3</sup>And in the morning you say, 'There will be bad weather today because the sky is cloudy.' You 15:26-27 Compare with Matthew 5:6. dogs: No evidence from the ancient world supports the often-repeated view that "dogs" was a label used by Jews to belittle Gentiles. Jesus' words and the woman's reply should be taken at face value, as references to what actually happens when dogs are present at meals.

15:28 As in Matthew 8:5-13, Jesus recognizes great faith in a non-Jew, and this faith leads to healing.

15:31 they praised the God of Israel: They recognize God's healing gifts made available through Jesus' ministry.

15:29-31 The healing ministry of Jesus continues. The focus of this summary report is on God's healing mercies rather than on Jesus himself.

15:32-39 Compare with Matthew 14:13-21. Magadan: The name appears only here in ancient literature; the location is uncertain.

Their request is more than an expression of curiosity. a sign from heaven: Jesus had condemned sign-seeking in Matthew 12:38-39. Given Jesus' recent activity—including healing and miraculous feeding in Matthew 15:29-39—the request for a sign is ironic.

Yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees

<sup>5</sup>When the disciples arrived on the other side of the lake, they had forgotten to bring bread. <sup>6</sup>Jesus said to them, "Watch out and be on your guard for the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees."

<sup>7</sup>They discussed this among themselves and said, "We didn't bring any bread."

<sup>8</sup>Jesus knew what they were discussing and said, "You people of weak faith! Why are you discussing among yourselves the fact that you don't have any bread? <sup>9</sup>Don't you understand yet? Don't you remember the five loaves that fed the five thousand and how many baskets of leftovers you gathered? <sup>10</sup>And the seven loaves that fed the four thousand and how many large baskets of leftovers you gathered? <sup>11</sup>Don't you know that I wasn't talking about bread? But be on your guard for the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees." <sup>12</sup>Then they understood that he wasn't telling them to be on their guard for yeast used in making bread. No, he was telling them to watch out for the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

Peter's declaration about Jesus

<sup>13</sup>Now when Jesus came to the area of Caesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, "Who do people say the Human One<sup>o</sup> is?"

<sup>14</sup>They replied, "Some say John the Baptist, others Elijah, and still others Jeremiah or one of the other prophets."

<sup>15</sup>He said, "And what about you? Who do you say that I am?"

<sup>16</sup>Simon Peter said, "You are the Christ, the Son of the living God."

<sup>17</sup>Then Jesus replied, "Happy are you, Simon son of Jonah, because no human has shown this to you. Rather my Father who is in heaven has shown you. <sup>18</sup>I tell you that you are Peter.<sup>p</sup> And I'll build my church on this rock. The gates of the underworld won't be able to stand against it. <sup>19</sup>I'll give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven. Anything you fasten on earth will be fastened in heaven. Anything you loosen on earth will be loosened in heaven." <sup>20</sup>Then he ordered the disciples not to tell anybody that he was the Christ.

identify changes in the weather, but they can't recognize in Jesus' teaching and miracles signs of the presence of the kingdom of heaven.

16:4 Compare with Matthew 12:39.

16:5-12 they had forgotten to bring bread: "Bread" can refer generally to "food." Here, though, the word is used to recall Jesus' ability to provide more than enough to feed huge crowds. It also prepares for his use of the image of "yeast," the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees: Borrowing from the parable in Matthew 13:33, the idea is that a little influence from the Pharisees and Sadducees (16:12) will soon take over one's whole life. weak faith: See Matthew 6:30; 8:26; 14:31. Don't you understand yet?: See Matthew 13:13-15, 19, 23; 15:10, 16.

16:13 Caesarea Philippi: The city was about 25 miles north of the Galilee Sea, just south of Mount Hermon. Human One: a phrase Jesus often uses for himself. It could have been heard in a variety of ways—for example, as the personal pronoun "I" as well as a reference to the "one like a human being coming with the heavenly clouds" of Daniel 7:13. In effect, Jesus asks, "Who do people say I am?" and Peter responds with language taken from Daniel's description of the heavenly figure (Matt 16:16).

16:14 John the Baptist: See Matthew 14:1-2. Elijah: See Malachi 4:5 (cf. Sir 48:10)—though Jesus had already identified John the Baptist in this way (Matt 11:14). Jeremiah: See 2 Maccabees 15:11-16; 2 Esdras 2:18. Matthew has a special interest in Jeremiah as one who foreshadows Jesus (Matt 2:17; 16:14; 27:9).

16:16 Simon Peter: in the role of representative spokesperson for Jesus' disciples (see Matt 14:28; 15:15). Christ meaning "anointed one." Around the time of Jesus, Jews had different expectations for a savior. These expectations included a figure who would overturn Roman rule and restore the Davidic dynasty (see 2 Sam 7:16) and who would usher in God's rule (see sidebar, "The Christ" at Matt 11). Son of the living God: See 2 Samuel 7:14; Psalm 2:6-8. living describes Israel's God (e.g., Deut 5:26; Josh 3:10; Ps 42:2), the all-powerful one, as opposed to idols made of wood, stone, and the like (e.g., Deut 29:17; Ps 115:1-8; Rev 9:20). See also Matthew 14:33.

16:17 Happy: See Matthew 5:3-12. my Father ... has shown you: See Matthew 11:25-27.

16:18 Peter: the English form of the Greek term Petros, which is derived from a noun that means "rock" (petra). Peter is also called "Cephas" (e.g., John 1:42; 1 Cor 1:12; 3:22; 9:5; 15:5; Gal 1:18; 2:9, 11, 14), from the Aramaic term for "rock" (kepha). Jesus thus uses a wordplay. church: the community of Christ-followers (cf. Matt 18:17). The term is used in the Gospels only here and in Matthew 18:17. underworld: or "Hades"—called "Sheol" in the OT. The term is translated as "the place of the dead" in Matthew 11:23.

16:19 keys of the kingdom of heaven: As the one to whom the Father has revealed Jesus' true identity, Peter is given

Pharisees and Sadducees We don't know the origin of the Pharisees. Their name seems to derive from a Hebrew verb that means "to separate." They may be descendants of the Hasidim, who were the major participants in the Maccabean Revolt. They were heavily involved in politics during the Hasmonean period. At the time of Jesus, the Pharisees were mostly lay leaders who supported rigorous observance of the Torah according to their own traditions of interpretation. They became the mainstream form of Judaism after the destruction of the temple during the Jewish War of 66–70 CE. The Sadducees were the priestly aristocrats in charge of temple worship. They take their name from Zadok, the first high priest, whose heirs formed the legitimate line of priests. The Sadducees recognized only the written Law as scripture. This distinguished them from the Pharisees, who also regarded their traditions of interpreting the Law as binding. This is probably why the Sadducees rejected belief in bodily resurrection. After the destruction of the temple, they gradually disappeared.

First prediction of Jesus' death and resurrection

<sup>21</sup>From that time Jesus began to show his disciples that he had to go to Jerusalem and suffer many things from the elders, chief priests, and legal experts, and that he had to be killed and raised on the third day. <sup>22</sup>Then Peter took hold of Jesus and, scolding him, began to correct him: "God forbid, Lord! This won't happen to you." <sup>23</sup>But he turned to Peter and said, "Get behind me, Satan. You are a stone that could make me stumble, for you are not thinking God's thoughts but human thoughts."

Saving and losing life

<sup>24</sup>Then Jesus said to his disciples, "All who want to come after me must say no to themselves, take up their cross, and follow me. <sup>25</sup>All who want to save their lives will lose them. But all who lose their lives because of me will find them. <sup>26</sup>Why would people gain the whole world but lose their lives? What will people give in exchange for their lives? <sup>27</sup>For the Human One<sup>a</sup> is about to come with the majesty of his Father with his angels. And then he will repay each one for what that person has done. <sup>28</sup>I assure you that some standing here won't die before they see the Human One<sup>c</sup> coming in his kingdom."

Jesus' transformation

17Six days later Jesus took Peter, James, and John his brother, and brought them to the top of a very high mountain. <sup>2</sup>He was transformed in front of them. His face shone like the sun, and his clothes became as white as light.

the task of cultivating and proclaiming what he has received. fasten... loosen: This will become the role of the community of Christ-followers in Matthew 18:18. See sidebar, "The Kingdom of Heaven" at Matthew 3.

16:21 From that time: It is one thing to know that Jesus is the Christ, Son of the living God (Matt 16:16, 20), but quite another to know what this means. Jesus now begins and will continue the process of interpreting his identity as Christ and God's Son in terms of impending suffering, death, and resurrection. This is the first of three predictions of Jesus' suffering (see Matt 17:22-23; 20:18-19).

16:22 Peter... scolding him, began to correct him: Peter knows who Jesus is (Matt 16:16) but doesn't yet understand what this means. Jesus' talk of suffering and death contradicts Peter's view of what it means for Jesus to be the Christ. This isn't surprising, since Jewish tradition didn't support the idea of a Christ who would suffer.

16:23 Satan: Recall Matthew 4:1-11, where the devil acknowledged that Jesus was God's Son (Matt 4:3, 6), but tried to influence in the wrong way how Jesus would exercise his status and role as God's Son. Peter acts similarly, insisting that, as God's Christ, Jesus shouldn't suffer.

16:24-26 All who want to come after me: The pattern of discipleship is set by Jesus.

16:27 repay each one for what that person has done: In the ancient world, people didn't separate a person's character and commitments from that person's behavior. For this reason, when Jesus speaks of reward and punishment on the basis of one's words and deeds, he is referring to the way one's faith is expressed through one's faithfulness. See Matthew 25:31-46.

16:28 see the Human One coming in his kingdom: The following scene, Matthew 17:1-8, is a foretaste of the triumph to come.

17:1 Six days later: perhaps an allusion to Exodus 24:12-18, where Moses sees God's glory "on the seventh day" (and note that in Exod 24, three of Moses' companions are named). Peter, James, and John: Jesus' inner circle. These three will accompany Jesus to Gethsemane (Matt 26:37). the top of a very high mountain: In the Bible, mountains often serve as places of revelation (see, e.g., Matt 5:1; 28:16; cf. Matt 4:8).

17:2 He was transformed in front of them: Jesus has just predicted his suffering, death, resurrection, and royal rule (Matt 16:21-28). Now his appearance is transformed, and some of his disciples receive a preview of his glory. His face shone like the sun: Compare what happens with Moses in Exodus 34:29-35 (see also Matt 13:43). white as light: See Daniel 7:9; Matthew 28:3; Wisdom 7:26.

<sup>5</sup>While he was still speaking, look, a bright cloud overshadowed them. A voice from the cloud said, "This is my Son whom I dearly love. I am very pleased with him. Listen to him!"

<sup>7</sup>But Jesus came and touched them. "Get up," he said. "Don't be afraid." <sup>8</sup>When they looked up, they saw no one except Jesus.

<sup>9</sup>As they were coming down the mountain, Jesus commanded them, "Don't tell anybody about the vision until the Human One<sup>e</sup> is raised from the dead."

<sup>10</sup>The disciples asked, "Then why do the legal experts say that Elijah must first come?"

<sup>11</sup>Jesus responded, "Elijah does come first and will restore all things. <sup>12</sup>In fact, I tell you that Elijah has already come, and they didn't know him. But they did to him whatever they wanted. In the same way the Human One<sup>e</sup> is also going to suffer at their hands." <sup>13</sup>Then the disciples realized he was telling them about John the Baptist.

Healing of a boy who was demon-possessed

<sup>14</sup>When they came to the crowd, a man met Jesus. He knelt before him, <sup>15</sup>saying, "Lord, show mercy to my son. He is epileptic and suffers terribly, for he often falls into the fire or the water. <sup>16</sup>I brought him to your disciples, but they couldn't heal him."

<sup>17</sup>Jesus answered, "You faithless and crooked generation, how long will I be with you? How long will I put up with you? Bring the boy here to me." <sup>18</sup>Then Jesus spoke harshly to the demon. And it came out of the child, who was healed from that time on.

<sup>19</sup>Then the disciples came to Jesus in private and said, "Why couldn't we throw the demon out?"

<sup>20</sup>"Because you have little faith," he said. "I assure you that if you have faith the size of a mustard seed, you could say to this mountain, 'Go from here to there,' and it will go. There will be nothing that you can't do."<sup>a</sup>

Second prediction of Jesus' death and resurrection

<sup>22</sup>When the disciples came together in Galilee, Jesus said to them, "The Human One<sup>v</sup> is about to be delivered over into human hands. <sup>23</sup>They will kill him. But he will be raised on the third day." And they were heartbroken.

<sup>a</sup>Or Son of Man <sup>e</sup>Or Son of Man <sup>v</sup>17:21 is omitted in most critical editions of the Gk New Testament This kind doesn't come out except through prayer and fasting. <sup>v</sup>Or Son of Man

17:3 Moses and Elijah: Both were regarded as prophets in the OT, and both are associated with expectation of the end of the age (e.g., Deut 18:15-18; Mal 4:4-6).

17:4 shrines: or "tents." If these are "shrines," then the emphasis is on remembering and celebrating this amazing event. If these are "tents," then this might allude to the Festival of Booths (Lev 23:39-43).

17:5 a bright cloud overshadowed them: a symbol of God's presence (e.g., Exod 40:35; Ps 104:3). A voice from the cloud: Compare with Exodus 24:16. This recalls the divine affirmation of Jesus' identity as God's Son in Matthew 3:17, where God speaks of Jesus with language borrowed from Psalm 2:7; Isaiah 42:1; and possibly Exodus 4:22-23. Here, though, there is an added quotation of Deuteronomy 18:15: Listen to him! Peter wanted to set Jesus, Moses, and Elijah on the same level (Matt 17:4), but God distinguishes Jesus from the other two as the one with divine authority to lead God's people.

17:7 Jesus... touched them: Usually in Matthew, Jesus' "touch" is associated with healing (e.g., Matt 8:3, 15). After this glorious event, however, it may prove to them that Jesus is a real human being. Don't be afraid: a typical word of assurance in scenes in which God or a heavenly messenger or angel is revealed (e.g., Gen 15:1; Matt 28:5, 10; Luke 1:13).

17:9 Don't tell anybody: See Matthew 16:21.

17:10-13 Elijah must first come: See Malachi 4:5. Since the disciples just experienced a preview of the end-time triumph of God, they aren't sure what to make of the expectation that Elijah would come first. Jesus explains that this expectation had been fulfilled in the ministry of John the Baptist. See Matthew 11:14.

17:15 show mercy: See Matthew 5:7; 9:27; 15:22; 20:30-31. epileptic: In the ancient world, epilepsy was popularly called the "sacred disease" because people thought it was caused by evil spirits and could be cured only with divine help (see Matt 17:18).

17:16-17 they couldn't heal him: In spite of the fact that Jesus had given them "authority over unclean spirits... and to heal every disease" (Matt 10:1), faithless and crooked generation: See Deuteronomy 32:5; Matthew 12:39-45; 16:4.

17:19 in private: See Matthew 13:10, 36; 20:17; 24:3.

17:20 little faith: or "weak faith," as in Matthew 6:30; 8:26; 14:31; 16:8. Apparently, their faith is smaller than even a mustard seed, which Jesus had identified as "the smallest of all seeds" (Matt 13:32). 'Go from here to there': See 1 Corinthians 13:2.

17:22-23 The second of three predictions of Jesus' suffering (see Matt 16:21; 20:18-19). This is a firm reminder that

Paying the temple tax

<sup>24</sup>When they came to Capernaum, the people who collected the half-shekel temple tax came to Peter and said, "Doesn't your teacher pay the temple tax?"

<sup>25</sup>"Yes," he said.

But when they came into the house, Jesus spoke to Peter first. "What do you think, Simon? From whom do earthly kings collect taxes, from their children or from strangers?"

<sup>26</sup>"From strangers," he said.

Jesus said to him, "Then the children don't have to pay. <sup>27</sup>But just so we don't offend them, go to the lake, throw out a fishing line and hook, and take the first fish you catch. When you open its mouth, you will find a shekel coin. Take it and pay the tax for both of us."

Greatest in the kingdom

18At that time the disciples came to Jesus and asked, "Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?"

<sup>2</sup>Then he called a little child over to sit among the disciples, <sup>3</sup>and said, "I assure you that if you don't turn your lives around and become like this little child, you will definitely not enter the kingdom of heaven. <sup>4</sup>Those who humble themselves like this little child will be the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. <sup>5</sup>Whoever welcomes one such child in my name welcomes me.

Falling into sin

<sup>6</sup>"As for whoever causes these little ones who believe in me to trip and fall into sin, it would be better for them to have a huge stone hung around their necks and be drowned in the bottom of the lake. <sup>7</sup>How terrible it is for the world because of the things that cause people to trip and fall into sin! Such things have to happen, but how terrible it is for the person who causes those things to happen! <sup>8</sup>If your hand or your foot causes you to fall into sin, chop it off and throw it away. It's better to enter into life crippled or lame than to be thrown into the eternal fire with two hands or two feet. <sup>9</sup>If your eye causes you to fall into sin, tear it out and throw it away. It's better to enter into life with one eye than to be cast into a burning hell with two eyes.

Jesus' glory (Matt 17:1-13) and power to restore health (Matt 17:14-20) don't contradict his commitment to fulfill God's purpose through suffering and death.

17:24 Capernaum: Jesus had settled in Capernaum (see Matt 4:13), so it is here that the issue of taxation would be raised. half-shekel: that is, a two-drachma piece, using Greek coinage. The equivalent in the Jewish monetary system was a half-shekel, which was the rough equivalent of the pay one might receive for two days' labor. temple tax: collected annually from every adult Jewish male to support the temple. This practice arose from interpretation of Exodus 30:13-16; Nehemiah 10:32-33 (cf. 2 Chron 24:9). the people who collected: not to be confused with "tax collectors" (Matt 5:46; 9:10-11; 10:3). "Tax collectors" worked on behalf of Rome, not the temple, and collected a toll from those who traveled from place to place with items bought and sold in the market.

17:25-26 the children don't have to pay: Since the temple is God's house, and since Jesus and his followers are God's family, they shouldn't be required to pay the tax. Like many other Jews, then, Jesus criticizes the tradition of collecting a temple tax (which, after all, isn't required by scripture).

17:27 you will find a shekel coin: God provides the means for paying the tax. for both of us: Like Jesus (see the note on Matt 17:24), Peter made his home in Capernaum (see Matt 4:13; 8:14).

18:1-4 like this little child: Jesus refers to an infant. In the ancient world, emphasis would fall on the child's lack of status. This requires a change of heart and life, away from concerns with prestige and status.

18:5 welcomes one such child: To "welcome" is to "show hospitality," here to children as honored guests (on what this might entail in the ancient world, see Luke 7:37-38, 44-46). See Matthew 10:40; 25:31-46.

18:6-7 little ones: that is, disciples (see Matt 10:42; 18:10, 14). Disciples are like "little children" (Matt 18:3; see Matt 11:25). huge stone: the kind that would have been pulled by a donkey in a mill for grinding wheat.

18:8-9 See Matthew 5:29-30.

18:10 look down on one of these little ones: the opposite of the humility and hospitality described in Matthew 18:4-5. their angels in heaven: For the idea of angels assigned to individuals, see Psalm 91:1; Acts 12:15; Hebrews 1:14. Here, these angels are said to look into the Father's face, which no human can do (Exod 33:20) and which, according to Jewish tradition, only certain angels could do (cf. Isa 6:1-2). This emphasizes the respect Jesus' followers should give to each other.

leave the ninety-nine on the hillsides and go in search for the one that wandered off? <sup>13</sup>If he finds it, I assure you that he is happier about having that one sheep than about the ninety-nine who didn't wander off. <sup>14</sup>In the same way, my Father who is in heaven doesn't want to lose one of these little ones.

Sinning brother or sister

<sup>15</sup>"If your brother or sister sins against you, go and correct them when you are alone together. If they listen to you, then you've won over your brother or sister. <sup>16</sup>But if they won't listen, take with you one or two others so that every word may be established by the mouth of two or three witnesses.<sup>17</sup> <sup>17</sup>But if they still won't pay attention, report it to the church. If they won't pay attention even to the church, treat them as you would a Gentile and tax collector. <sup>18</sup>I assure you that whatever you fasten on earth will be fastened in heaven. And whatever you loosen on earth will be loosened in heaven. <sup>19</sup>Again I assure you that if two of you agree on earth about anything you ask, then my Father who is in heaven will do it for you. <sup>20</sup>For where two or three are gathered in my name, I'm there with them."

Parable of the unforgiving servant

<sup>21</sup>Then Peter said to Jesus, "Lord, how many times should I forgive my brother or sister who sins against me? Should I forgive as many as seven times?"

<sup>22</sup>Jesus said, "Not just seven times, but rather as many as seventy-seven times."<sup>23</sup> Therefore, the kingdom of heaven is like a king who wanted to settle accounts with his servants. <sup>24</sup>When he began to settle accounts, they brought to him a servant who owed him ten thousand bags of gold.<sup>25</sup> Because the servant didn't have enough to pay it back, the master ordered that he should be sold, along with his wife and children and everything he had, and that the proceeds should be used as payment. <sup>26</sup>But the servant fell down, kneeled before him, and said, 'Please, be patient with me, and I'll pay you back.'<sup>27</sup> The master had compassion on that servant, released him, and forgave the loan.

<sup>28</sup>"When that servant went out, he found one of his fellow servants who owed him one hundred coins.<sup>29</sup> He grabbed him around the throat and said, 'Pay me back what you owe me.'

<sup>29</sup>"Then his fellow servant fell down and begged him, 'Be patient with me, and I'll pay you back.'<sup>30</sup> But he refused. Instead, he threw him into prison until he paid back his debt.

<sup>31</sup>"When his fellow servants saw what happened, they were deeply offended. They came and told their master all that happened. <sup>32</sup>His master called the first servant and said, 'You wicked servant! I forgave you all that debt because you appealed to me. <sup>33</sup>Shouldn't you also have mercy on your fellow servant, just as I had mercy on you?' <sup>34</sup>His master was furious and handed him over to the guard responsible for punishing prisoners, until he had paid the whole debt.

<sup>35</sup>"My heavenly Father will also do the same to you if you don't forgive your brother or sister from your heart."

<sup>13</sup>Deut 19:15 <sup>17</sup>Or seventy times seven <sup>18</sup>Or ten thousand talanta, an amount equal to the wages for sixty million days emphasize again the value God places on God's people and, therefore, the honor Jesus' followers should give to each other.

18:15-17 your brother or sister: The respect Jesus' followers show each other includes correcting them when they sin. two or three witnesses: The language is borrowed from Deuteronomy 19:15. church: the community of Christ-followers (Matt 16:18). a Gentile and tax collector: On the one hand, they are to be treated as outsiders (cf. Matt 5:46-47). On the other, Jesus' behavior toward such outsiders, together with his call for his followers to love their enemies, recommends ongoing prayer for and interaction with them (e.g., Matt 5:44; 11:19).

18:18-19 See Matthew 16:19. The authority given to Peter is extended to the whole community of Christ-followers.

18:20 See Matthew 1:23; 28:20.

18:23 like a king: Jesus' parables generally draw from the world of peasant farmers (see Matt 13), but this one portrays for most people a world of unimaginable wealth and authority.

18:24 ten thousand bags of gold: or "ten thousand talents." The Greek word talanton refers to a monetary unit roughly equivalent to what a day laborer would make in 6,000 days. Therefore, 10,000 talents is what a day laborer would earn in about 165,000 years.

18:25 sold: sold into slavery (cf. 2 Kgs 4:1; Neh 5:3-5; Amos 2:6; 8:6). Some scholars estimate the price of slaves sold in the marketplace as the rough equivalent of what a day laborer might make in two to five years. In other words, the debt (Matt 18:24) was astronomical in relation to what the slave could ever imagine paying.

18:28 coins: or "denarii." The Greek word denarion refers to a monetary unit roughly equivalent to what a day laborer would make in a single day (see Matt 20:10).

18:32-35 See Matthew 6:14-15.

Teaching about divorce

19 When Jesus finished saying these things, he left Galilee and came to the area of Judea on the east side of the Jordan. 2Large crowds followed him, and he healed them. 3Some Pharisees came to him. In order to test him, they said, "Does the Law allow a man to divorce his wife for just any reason?"

4Jesus answered, "Haven't you read that at the beginning the creator made them male and female? 5And God said, 'Because of this a man should leave his father and mother and be joined together with his wife, and the two will be one flesh.' 6So they are no longer two but one flesh. Therefore, humans must not pull apart what God has put together."

7The Pharisees said to him, "Then why did Moses command us to give a divorce certificate and divorce her?"<sup>a</sup>

8Jesus replied, "Moses allowed you to divorce your wives because your hearts are unyielding. But it wasn't that way from the beginning. 9I say to you that whoever divorces his wife, except for sexual unfaithfulness, and marries another woman commits adultery."

10His disciples said to him, "If that's the way things are between a man and his wife, then it's better not to marry."

11He replied, "Not everybody can accept this teaching, but only those who have received the ability to accept it. 12For there are eunuchs who have been eunuchs from birth. And there are eunuchs who have been made eunuchs by other people. And there are eunuchs who have made themselves eunuchs because of the kingdom of heaven. Those who can accept it should accept it."

Jesus blesses children

13Some people brought children to Jesus so that he would place his hands on them and pray. But the disciples scolded them. 14"Allow the children to come to me," Jesus said. "Don't forbid them, because the kingdom of heaven belongs to people like these children." 15Then he blessed the children and went away from there.

A rich man's question

16A man approached him and said, "Teacher, what good thing must I do to have eternal life?"

17Jesus said, "Why do you ask me about what is good? There's only one who is good. If you want to enter eternal life, keep the commandments."

18The man said, "Which ones?"

Then Jesus said, "Don't commit murder. Don't commit adultery. Don't steal. Don't give false testimony. 19Honor your father and mother,* and love your neighbor as you love yourself."<sup>f</sup>

20The young man replied, "I've kept all these. What am I still missing?"

19:1 When Jesus finished saying these things: The phrase marks the end of the fourth of five sermons delivered by Jesus in Matthew's Gospel (Matt 5-7; 10; 13; 18; 24-25). he left Galilee and came to the area of Judea on the east side of the Jordan: a major shift in Jesus' itinerary. Typically, Jews crossed the Jordan River when heading south toward Jerusalem, in order to avoid traveling through Samaria.

19:3 Pharisees... test him: See the note on Matthew 16:1. Does the Law allow: As the Pharisees' question in Matthew 19:7 makes clear, the law in question is Deuteronomy 24:1-4. Different rabbis interpreted the basis for divorce in different ways. The school of Shammai didn't allow divorce except for adultery, while the school of Hillel allowed a husband to divorce his wife on the basis of just about any excuse. Whom would Jesus side with? (See sidebar, "Pharisees and Sadducees" at Matt 16.)

19:4-6 Jesus emphasizes the unity and permanence of marriage by quoting Genesis 1:27; 2:24.

19:7-8 See the note on Matthew 19:3. The Pharisees refer to the law on divorce as Moses' command, while Jesus refers to what Moses allowed. The law on divorce was a concession, but it didn't represent God's original purpose.

19:12 eunuchs: Jesus identifies three groups of men with the same term: those born without the ability to have children; those who are castrated males (often as preparation for certain types of offices in the courts of antiquity; cf. Acts 8:27); and those who have chosen to abstain from marriage in order to devote themselves fully to the kingdom of heaven (cf. 1 Cor 7:32-34; for the incomparable value of the kingdom, see Matt 13:44-46; 19:27-29).

19:13-15: See Matthew 18:1-5.

19:16 have eternal life: This phrase is recast by Jesus as "enter eternal life" (Matt 19:17); "have treasure in heaven" (Matt 19:21; cf. Matt 6:19-21); "enter the kingdom of heaven" (Matt 19:23); and "inherit eternal life" (Matt 19:29). Each phrase is roughly synonymous with the others. See sidebar, "The Kingdom of Heaven" at Matthew 3.

19:17-19 keep the commandments: The commandments represent how people respond faithfully to the gracious deliverance of God. For this list, see Exodus 20:12-16; Deuteronomy 5:16-20. Jesus adds to the commandments a phrase from Leviticus 19:18: love your neighbor as you love yourself (see Matt 5:43; 22:39). See sidebar, "Israel's Scriptures" at Matthew 5.

<sup>23</sup>Then Jesus said to his disciples, "I assure you that it will be very hard for a rich person to enter the kingdom of heaven. <sup>24</sup>In fact, it's easier for a camel to squeeze through the eye of a needle than for a rich person to enter God's kingdom."

Workers in the vineyard

20 "The kingdom of heaven is like a landowner who went out early in the morning to hire workers for his vineyard. <sup>2</sup>After he agreed with the workers to pay them a denarion,<sup>h</sup> he sent them into his vineyard.

But each of them also received a denarion. <sup>11</sup>When they received it, they grumbled against the arrogant or false claim. Compare with Luke 1:6; Philippians 3:6.

19:21 If you want to be complete: The Greek word teleios is sometimes translated "perfect," but the translation "complete" forms a suitable pair with the young man's question about what he is "missing" (Matt 19:20). See also Matthew 5:48, go, sell... give the money to the poor. The problem isn't possessions as such, or Jesus might simply have told the young man to get rid of everything he has. Rather, the point is twofold—first, wealth functions as a measure of one's social prestige, which runs against Jesus' instruction to humble oneself like a little child (Matt 18:1-4); and second, it is important to care for the needy (see Matt 25:31-46). come follow me: the call to discipleship. Compare Matthew 4:18-22; 8:22; 9:9; 10:38; 16:24.

19:22 Only now do we learn that the young man was wealthy.

19:23-24 See Matthew 6:24.

19:25 they were stunned: Apparently, the disciples share the widely held view that great wealth is a sign of great blessing from God. This view contradicts Jesus' definition of human happiness in Matthew 5:3-12. This isn't the first time they have failed to embrace Jesus' topsy-turvy message (see, e.g., Matt 19:13-15).

19:27 See Matthew 4:18-22.

19:28: when everything is made new: the end-time transformation of all creation (cf. Isa 65:17; Rev 21:1), the Human One sits on his magnificent throne: an image that draws on Psalm 110:1; Daniel 7:13 (see Matt 25:31). you also will sit on twelve thrones: Jesus' words portray the restoration of God's people, with the disciples installed as their leaders.

19:29-30 The end-time transformation of creation signals a great reversal of status and rewards.

20:1-7 workers: people hired for physical labor on a day-by-day basis. They were neither slaves (who at least were regularly given food to eat and a roof over their heads) nor ordinary employees (who could depend on having a job day after day). denarion: the typical wage of an unskilled person for a single day's work.

20:8 evening came: Deuteronomy 24:14-15 requires that day laborers receive their pay before sunset (cf. Jas 5:4).

landowner, <sup>12</sup>“These who were hired last worked one hour, and they received the same pay as we did even though we had to work the whole day in the hot sun.”

<sup>13</sup>“But he replied to one of them, ‘Friend, I did you no wrong. Didn’t I agree to pay you a denarius? <sup>14</sup>Take what belongs to you and go. I want to give to this one who was hired last the same as I give to you. <sup>15</sup>Don’t I have the right to do what I want with what belongs to me? Or are you resentful because I’m generous?’ <sup>16</sup>So those who are last will be first. And those who are first will be last.”

Jesus predicts his death and resurrection

<sup>17</sup>As Jesus was going up to Jerusalem, he took the Twelve aside by themselves on the road. He told them, <sup>18</sup>“Look, we are going up to Jerusalem. The Human One<sup>1</sup> will be handed over to the chief priests and legal experts. They will condemn him to death. <sup>19</sup>They will hand him over to the Gentiles to be ridiculed, tortured, and crucified. But he will be raised on the third day.”

Request from James and John’s mother

<sup>20</sup>Then the mother of Zebedee’s sons came to Jesus along with her sons. Bowing before him, she asked a favor of him.

<sup>21</sup>“What do you want?” he asked.

She responded, “Say that these two sons of mine will sit, one on your right hand and one on your left, in your kingdom.”

<sup>22</sup>Jesus replied, “You don’t know what you’re asking! Can you drink from the cup that I’m about to drink from?”

They said to him, “We can.”

<sup>23</sup>He said to them, “You will drink from my cup, but to sit at my right or left hand isn’t mine to give. It belongs to those for whom my Father prepared it.”

<sup>24</sup>Now when the other ten disciples heard about this, they became angry with the two brothers. <sup>25</sup>But Jesus called them over and said, “You know that those who rule the Gentiles show off their authority over them and their high-ranking officials order them around. <sup>26</sup>But that’s not the way it will be with you. Whoever wants to be great among you will be your servant. <sup>27</sup>Whoever wants to be first among you will be your slave—<sup>28</sup>just as the Human One<sup>2</sup> didn’t come to be served but rather to serve and to give his life to liberate many people.”

Healing of two blind men

<sup>29</sup>As Jesus and his disciples were going out of Jericho a large crowd followed him. <sup>30</sup>When two blind men sitting along the road heard that Jesus was passing by, they shouted, “Show us mercy, Lord, Son of David!”

<sup>31</sup>Now the crowd scolded them and told them to be quiet. But they shouted even louder, “Show us mercy, Lord, Son of David!”

20:16 See Matthew 19:30. This saying frames Jesus’ parable. 20:17 As Jesus was going up to Jerusalem: This is the first explicit reference to Jesus’ destination, though it was implied in Matthew 19:1. The significance of Jerusalem becomes clear in Matthew 20:18: It is there that Jesus will be tortured, killed, and resurrected.

20:17-18 This is the third time that Jesus predicts his suffering and death (cf. Matt 16:21; 17:22-23).

20:20 Zebedee’s sons: James and John (see Matt 4:21-22; 10:2). Their mother is one of the women who followed Jesus to the very end and witnessed his crucifixion (Matt 27:55-56).

20:21 your right hand . . . your left: the first and second positions of honor.

20:22-23 drink from the cup: See Matthew 26:39. The mother’s request on behalf of her sons is all the more out of place since it comes immediately after Jesus has given his most detailed description of his future suffering (Matt 20:17-18).

20:24 became angry: The other disciples seem to be as concerned with prestige as James and John’s mother was.

20:25 those who rule the Gentiles: As before (Matt 5:47; 6:7, 32; 18:17), “Gentiles” is used to refer to people who are outsiders. Their behavior contradicts what is expected of Christ-followers. Here the reference would be especially to high-ranking Roman officials who rule cities and regions.

20:26-27 that’s not the way it will be with you: Jesus borrows language from the Roman world, servant and slave, to portray relationships among his followers. Within their community, greatness is measured through humility and service (see Matt 19:30; 20:16).

20:28 just as: Jesus is himself the model that his followers should imitate in terms of living sacrificial, others-oriented lives.

20:29 out of Jericho: Jericho is about 16 miles from Jerusalem. Jesus is drawing closer to his destination and impending death (Matt 20:17-18).

20:30-31 the crowd scolded: Earlier the disciples had formed a boundary separating children from Jesus (Matt 19:13-15). “Show us mercy, Lord, Son of David!”: See Matthew 5:7; 9:27; 15:22; 17:15.

<sup>32</sup>Jesus stopped in his tracks and called to them. "What do you want me to do for you?" he asked.

<sup>33</sup>"Lord, we want to see," they replied.

<sup>34</sup>Jesus had compassion on them and touched their eyes. Immediately they were able to see, and they followed him.

Entry into Jerusalem

21 When they approached Jerusalem and came to Bethphage on the Mount of Olives, Jesus gave two disciples a task. <sup>2</sup>He said to them, "Go into the village over there. As soon as you enter, you will find a donkey tied up and a colt with it. Untie them and bring them to me. <sup>3</sup>If anybody says anything to you, say that the Lord needs it." He sent them off right away. <sup>4</sup>Now this happened to fulfill what the prophet said, <sup>5</sup>Say to Daughter Zion, "Look, your king is coming to you, humble and riding on a donkey, and on a colt the donkey's offspring."<sup>a</sup> <sup>6</sup>The disciples went and did just as Jesus had ordered them. <sup>7</sup>They brought the donkey and the colt and laid their clothes on them. Then he sat on them.

Cleansing the temple

<sup>12</sup>Then Jesus went into the temple and threw out all those who were selling and buying there. He pushed over the tables used for currency exchange and the chairs of those who sold doves. <sup>13</sup>He said to them, "It's written, My house will be called a house of prayer."<sup>b</sup> But you've made it a hideout for crooks."

<sup>14</sup>People who were blind and lame came to Jesus in the temple, and he healed them. <sup>15</sup>But when the chief priests and legal experts saw the amazing things he was doing and the children shouting in the temple, "Hosanna to the Son of David!" they were angry. <sup>16</sup>They said to Jesus, "Do you hear what these children are saying?"

20:34 Jesus had compassion on them: See Matthew 9:36; 14:14; 15:32. For the restoration of sight as a sign of Jesus' identity as the Christ, see Matthew 11:5 (cf. Isa 35:5-6).

21:1 Bethphage on the Mount of Olives: a small town located about two miles east of Jerusalem. Jesus draws ever closer to his destination, and thus to his impending death (Matt 20:17-18, 29).

21:2-7 Matthew tells the story of Jesus' entry into Jerusalem as a strict fulfillment of Zechariah 9:9 (see 1 Kgs 1:33). In doing so, however, Matthew seems to have imagined that Zechariah referred to two animals, a donkey and a colt, rather than his referring to one animal in two different ways. As a result, he portrays Jesus riding on both a donkey and a colt at the same time.

21:5 your king: See Matthew 2:2; 27:11, 29, 37, 42. humble: See Matthew 11:29.

21:8 spread their clothes on the road: See 2 Kings 9:13.

21:9 Hosanna: a shout of praise, from an Aramaic term that means "Save, please!" Son of David: See 2 Samuel 7:12-16; Matthew 1:1; 9:27; 12:23; 15:22; 20:30-31. Blessings on the one: The quotation is from Psalm 118:25-26.

21:10-11 the whole city was stirred up: See Matthew 2:3. prophet: See Matthew 13:57; 16:14.

21:12-14 Jewish literature at the time of Jesus speaks of the coming of a king into a city, then entering the temple either to offer sacrifices or to expel people engaged in idolatry. Clearly, the scene Matthew portrays represents a prophetic judgment against the temple system. But this is not simply because of the presence of people buying, selling, and exchanging currency. After all, this was required for people who had traveled a long way, carrying foreign money, and needing to obtain animals for the purpose of offering sacrifice. As the quotation from Isaiah 56:7 and Jeremiah 7:11 (Matt 21:13) makes clear, the problem isn't the temple itself or even the sacrificial system, but the temple leadership. Rather than using the temple for its intended purpose, as a house of prayer, they use their relationship to the temple to hide their unjust behavior.

21:14 he healed them: a strong reference to the character of Jesus' mission as the Davidic king. First, according to Isaiah 35:5-6, the blind and lame will be restored to health when the age of salvation arrives (see Matt 9:27-30; 11:4-5; 12:22; 20:30-34). Second, Matthew notes that the blind and lame sought Jesus out in the temple, in spite of evidence that such persons were excluded from the temple (see the proverbial statement in 2 Sam 5:8, "That is why people say, 'The blind and the lame will not enter the temple';" cf. Lev 21:18-19).

21:15-16: chief priests and legal experts: the temple leadership. This pairing was previously mentioned in Matthew 2:4. There, they were able to identify "where the Christ was to be born," but here they are unable to recognize who the Christ is. From the mouths of babies and infants: a quotation from Psalm 8:3 in the LXX (see Ps 8:2). Children recognize what the leadership doesn't (see Matt 11:25).

"Yes," he answered. "Haven't you ever read, From the mouths of babies and infants you've arranged praise for yourself?"<sup>17</sup> Then he left them and went out of the city to Bethany and spent the night there.

Cursing the fig tree

<sup>18</sup>Early in the morning as Jesus was returning to the city, he was hungry. <sup>19</sup>He saw a fig tree along the road, but when he came to it, he found nothing except leaves. Then he said to it, "You'll never again bear fruit!" The fig tree dried up at once.

<sup>20</sup>When the disciples saw it, they were amazed. "How did the fig tree dry up so fast?" they asked.

<sup>21</sup>Jesus responded, "I assure you that if you have faith and don't doubt, you will not only do what was done to the fig tree. You will even say to this mountain, 'Be lifted up and thrown into the lake.' And it will happen. <sup>22</sup>If you have faith, you will receive whatever you pray for."

Jesus' authority questioned

<sup>23</sup>When Jesus entered the temple, the chief priests and elders of the people came to him as he was teaching. They asked, "What kind of authority do you have for doing these things? Who gave you this authority?"

<sup>24</sup>Jesus replied, "I have a question for you. If you tell me the answer, I'll tell you what kind of authority I have to do these things. <sup>25</sup>Where did John get his authority to baptize? Did he get it from heaven or from humans?"

They argued among themselves, "If we say 'from heaven,' he'll say to us, 'Then why didn't you believe him?' <sup>26</sup>But we can't say 'from humans' because we're afraid of the crowd, since everyone thinks John was a prophet." <sup>27</sup>Then they replied, "We don't know."

Jesus also said to them, "Neither will I tell you what kind of authority I have to do these things.

Parable of two sons

<sup>28</sup>"What do you think? A man had two sons. Now he came to the first and said, 'Son, go and work in the vineyard today.'

<sup>29</sup>"No, I don't want to," he replied. But later he changed his mind and went.

<sup>30</sup>The father said the same thing to the other son, who replied, 'Yes, sir.' But he didn't go.

<sup>31</sup>"Which one of these two did his father's will?"

They said, "The first one."

Jesus said to them, "I assure you that tax collectors and prostitutes are entering God's kingdom ahead of you. <sup>32</sup>For John came to you on the righteous road, and you didn't believe him. But tax collectors and prostitutes believed him. Yet even after you saw this, you didn't change your hearts and lives and you didn't believe him.

Parable of the tenant farmers

<sup>33</sup>Listen to another parable. There was a landowner who planted a vineyard. He put a fence around it, dug a winepress in it, and built a tower. Then he rented it to tenant farmers and took a trip. <sup>34</sup>When it was time for harvest, he sent his servants to the tenant farmers to collect his fruit. <sup>35</sup>But the tenant farmers grabbed his servants. They beat some of them, and some of them they killed. Some of them they stoned to death.

21:17 Bethany: a small town about two miles east of Jerusalem on the southeastern slope of the Mount of Olives.

21:18-22 nothing except leaves: An unfruitful fig tree is an image of Israel in Jeremiah 8:13. You will even say to this mountain: that is, the Mount of Olives, which, according to Zechariah 14:4, was to be leveled at the end time. Both images, the unfruitful fig tree and the mountain removed, point to judgment against Jerusalem. If you have faith: See Matthew 17:20.

21:23 Who gave you this authority: See Matthew 7:29; 9:6, 34; 12:24, 27; 28:18.

21:26 we're afraid of the crowd: The temple leadership is less concerned with the question of Jesus' identity and authority and more concerned with maintaining their influence over the people. Compare with Matthew 14:5.

2Ch 24:21; Mt 5:12; Mt 23:37; Ac 7:52; Heb 11:36

21:28-32 Jesus contrasts the temple leadership (who said the right words but didn't do the right thing) with tax collectors and prostitutes (who didn't say the right words, but did the right thing). Obedience is key (see Matt 7:21; 28:20). prostitutes: mentioned only here in Matthew. tax collectors: See Matthew 9:10-11; 10:3. Together, they represent disreputable sinners in contrast to the upstanding chief priests and elders.

21:33-46 vineyard: See Isaiah 5:1-7, in which the owner of the vineyard is identified as the Lord and the vineyard is the people of Israel. Accordingly, in this parable the tenant farmers represent Israel's leadership. The chief priests and Pharisees recognize that they have been cast as the wicked farmers in Jesus' parable (21:45).

21:34-36 servants: a reference to Israel's prophets.

Preparation, last supper, arrest, trial before the council, Peter's denial
(26:17-75 = Mark 14:12-72)

Day 5 (Friday) (Mark's Day 6)

Trial before Pilate, crucifixion, burial (27:1-61 = Mark 15:1-47)

Day 6 (Saturday) (Mark's Day 7)

The guard at the tomb (27:62-66; this day is not described in Mark)

Day 7 (Sunday) (Mark's Day 8)

Discovery of empty tomb, appearances, commissioning the disciples
(28:1-20 = Mark 16:1-8a)

*From this point on, the events happen on the same day of the week in Matthew and Mark. This makes "Tuesday" a long day in both Mark and Matthew.

<sup>36</sup>“Again he sent other servants, more than the first group. They treated them in the same way. <sup>37</sup>Finally he sent his son to them. ‘They will respect my son,’ he said.

<sup>38</sup>“But when the tenant farmers saw the son, they said to each other, ‘This is the heir. Come on, let’s kill him and we’ll have his inheritance.’ <sup>39</sup>They grabbed him, threw him out of the vineyard, and killed him.

<sup>40</sup>“When the owner of the vineyard comes, what will he do to those tenant farmers?”

<sup>41</sup>They said, “He will totally destroy those wicked farmers and rent the vineyard to other tenant farmers who will give him the fruit when it’s ready.”

<sup>42</sup>Jesus said to them, “Haven’t you ever read in the scriptures, The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone. The Lord has done this, and it’s amazing in our eyes?”

<sup>43</sup>Therefore, I tell you that God’s kingdom will be taken away from you and will be given to a people who produce its fruit. <sup>44</sup>Whoever falls on this stone will be crushed. And the stone will crush the person it falls on.”

<sup>45</sup>Now when the chief priests and the Pharisees heard the parable, they knew Jesus was talking about them. <sup>46</sup>They were trying to arrest him, but they feared the crowds, who thought he was a prophet.

Parable of the wedding party

22 Jesus responded by speaking again in parables: <sup>2</sup>“The kingdom of heaven is like a king who prepared a wedding party for his son. <sup>3</sup>He sent his servants to call those invited to the wedding party. But they didn’t want to come. <sup>4</sup>Again he sent other servants and said to them, ‘Tell those who have been invited, “Look, the meal is all prepared. I’ve butchered the oxen and the fattened cattle. Now everything’s ready. Come to the wedding party!”’ <sup>5</sup>But they paid no attention and went away—some to their fields, others to their businesses. <sup>6</sup>The rest of them grabbed his servants, abused them, and killed them.

<sup>7</sup>“The king was angry. He sent his soldiers to destroy those murderers and set their city on fire. <sup>8</sup>Then he said to his servants, “The wedding party is prepared, but those who were invited weren’t worthy. <sup>9</sup>Therefore, go to the roads on the edge of town and invite everyone you find to the wedding party.’

<sup>10</sup>“Then those servants went to the roads and gathered everyone they found, both evil and good. The wedding party was full of guests. <sup>11</sup>Now when the king came in and saw the guests, he spotted a man who wasn’t wearing wedding clothes. <sup>12</sup>He said to him, ‘Friend, how did you get in here without wedding clothes?’ But he was speechless. <sup>13</sup>Then the king said to his (Prophets were sometimes called “servants” in the OT; e.g., Jer 7:25; 25:4.) On violent resistance as the common fate of God’s prophets, see Matthew 5:12; 23:31, 34, 37.

21:37 Finally he sent his son to them: a reference to Jesus, God’s Son (e.g., Matt 3:17; 8:29; 11:27; 14:33; 16:16; 17:5).

21:38-39 when the tenant farmers saw the son: At this point, there’s no obvious parallel with the relationship between the Jewish leaders and Jesus, since they don’t recognize him as God’s Son. Within the logic of the parable, though, this must be seen as the strongest possible rebellion against the owner of the vineyard.

21:41 other tenant farmers who will give him the fruit: new leaders of Israel, identified earlier as the 12 disciples (Matt 19:28). On fruitfulness, see Matthew 3:8, 10; 7:16-20; 13:3-8.

21:42 Haven’t you ever read: The quotation is from Psalm 118:22-23, which anticipates the contrast between what God values and what the Jewish leadership values.

21:43 to a people who produce its fruit: The new people are those with changed hearts and lives, and whose lives thus produce obedience (see Matt 3:8; 7:16-20; 28:18-20).

21:46: they feared the crowds, who thought he was a prophet: See Matthew 14:5; 21:26.

22:1 responded: Jesus continues to address the chief priests and the Pharisees (see Matt 21:45).

22:3-6 those invited: The parable describes a typical, two-stage invitation—the first to invite people to a feast, the second to announce that the feast is ready. Those invited have already responded positively to the invitation, so they now receive the second invitation. Rather than attend the feast, their responses range from indifference to violence.

22:8 those who were invited weren’t worthy: See Matthew 10:11-13, 37-38.

22:9-10 roads on the edge of town: where all kinds of people might be located. everyone you find... both evil and good: a wonderfully generous invitation in which all are to be included (see Matt 5:45; 13:29-30, 47-48).

22:11 a man who wasn’t wearing wedding clothes: The “wedding clothes” represent a fruitful life lived in obedience to God’s will. For the image, see Revelation 19:7-8. The metaphor is made possible by the significance of clothing in the ancient world, in which one’s clothing exhibited one’s character (thus, e.g., “dress yourself with the Lord Jesus Christ” [Rom 13:14]; or “All of you who were baptized into Christ have clothed yourselves with Christ” [Gal 3:27]).

22:13 weeping and grinding their teeth: See Matthew 8:12; 13:42, 50; 24:51; 25:30.

Mk 8:15,
Mk 12:13

<sup>15</sup>Then the Pharisees met together to find a way to trap Jesus in his words. <sup>16</sup>They sent their disciples, along with the supporters of Herod, to him. "Teacher," they said, "we know that you are genuine and that you teach God's way as it really is. We know that you are not swayed by people's opinions, because you don't show favoritism. <sup>17</sup>So tell us what you think: Does the Law allow people to pay taxes to Caesar or not?"

Question about resurrection

22:29 Jn 20:9
22:30 Mt 18:10,
Mt 24:38;
Jn 5:28, Jn 5:29

<sup>23</sup>That same day Sadducees, who deny that there is a resurrection, came to Jesus. <sup>24</sup>They asked, "Teacher, Moses said, If a man who doesn't have children dies, his brother must marry his wife and produce children for his brother."<sup>25</sup>Now there were seven brothers among us. The first one married, then died. Because he had no children he left his widow to his brother.

22:31 Mt 12:3,
Mt 21:16
22:32 Ex 3:6;
Ac 7:32

<sup>26</sup>The same thing happened with the second brother and the third, and in fact with all seven brothers. <sup>27</sup>Finally, the woman died. <sup>28</sup>At the resurrection, which of the seven brothers will be her husband? They were all married to her."

<sup>29</sup>Jesus responded, "You are wrong because you don't know either the scriptures or God's power. <sup>30</sup>At the resurrection people won't marry nor will they be given in marriage. Instead, they will be like angels from God. <sup>31</sup>As for the resurrection of the dead, haven't you read what God told you, <sup>32</sup>I'm the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?"<sup>33</sup> He isn't the

22:14 "Many people are invited, but few people are chosen": The invitation must be accepted with a positive response, measured by faithfulness to God's will (see Matt 5:20).

22:15 to trap Jesus in his words: As in Matthew 21:46, they are seeking a reason to arrest him. Here they are giving him an opportunity either to encourage rebellion against Rome or to weaken his popular support by appearing to support Rome. Previously, the Pharisees have been involved in testing Jesus (Matt 16:1; 19:3).

22:16 their disciples, along with the supporters of Herod: Pharisees define themselves in relation to faithfulness to God's Law, but Herod's supporters are those who align themselves with Herod and, thus, with Rome. This unnatural alliance is possible because Jesus was a threat to both groups. you are genuine: Although these words to Jesus are intended to flatter him, Matthew's readers recognize their truth. See sidebar, "Judea under Foreign Rule" at Matthew 3.

22:17 Does the Law allow: or "is it permitted." Moses' Law doesn't address the question in a specific way, so the question revolves around how Jesus understands the nature of faithfulness to God in the presence of Rome's claims of allegiance. taxes: The question concerns the "head tax," which was charged to all adults in the Roman provinces, including Judea. If Jesus says no, then he would be challenging the authority of the Roman Empire. If he says yes, then he would be acknowledging that he was pro-Roman—a position that would undermine his preaching of the kingdom of heaven.

22:19-21 denarius: The Roman coin used to pay the head tax during the time of Jesus would have carried the image of Emperor Tiberius (14–37 CE). When an emperor minted coins with his own image, the coins were regarded as his property. It is telling that Jesus doesn't carry such a coin, but his questioners do.

22:21 Give to Caesar . . . and to God: The coin may belong to Caesar, but human lives belong completely to God. Jesus' answer doesn't call for the revolutionary overthrow of the empire, but neither does it support Roman authority. Rather, it identifies one's most basic and essential allegiance as belonging to God; this commitment determines the rest of life (see Matt 6:33). See sidebar, "Judea under Foreign Rule" at Matthew 3.

22:23 Sadducees: the priestly aristocrats. They didn't believe in the resurrection (cf. Acts 23:6-8), probably because it's not mentioned in the Pentateuch (Genesis—Deuteronomy). See sidebars, "Israel's Scriptures" at Matthew 5; "Pharisees and Sadducees" at Matthew 16.

22:24 his brother must marry his wife: According to a law known as the "levirate law," when a man dies without a male descendant, his brother should marry the widow and raise an heir for his dead brother (see Deut 25:5-10).

22:25-28 In their attempt to cast doubt on belief in the resurrection, the Sadducees pose an extreme question.

22:29-32 You are wrong: Jesus' response takes two forms. First, they don't know the scriptures. Rather than refer to a biblical text like Daniel 12:2-3, which clearly refers to the resurrection, Jesus refers to a text that the Sadducees

God of the dead but of the living.”<sup>33</sup> Now when the crowd heard this, they were astonished at his teaching.

Great commandment

<sup>37</sup>He replied, “You must love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your being,” and with all your mind. <sup>38</sup>This is the first and greatest commandment. <sup>39</sup>And the second is like it: You must love your neighbor as you love yourself.” <sup>40</sup>All the Law and the Prophets depend on these two commands.”

Question about David’s son

<sup>41</sup>Now as the Pharisees were gathering, Jesus asked them, <sup>42</sup>“What do you think about the Christ? Whose son is he?”

“David’s son,” they replied.

<sup>43</sup>He said, “Then how is it that David, inspired by the Holy Spirit, called him Lord when he said, ‘The Lord said to my lord, ‘Sit at my right side until I turn your enemies into your footstool!’” <sup>44</sup>“If David calls him Lord, how can he be David’s son?” <sup>45</sup>Nobody was able to answer him. And from that day forward nobody dared to ask him anything.

Ways of the legal experts and the Pharisees

23 Then Jesus spoke to the crowds and his disciples, <sup>2</sup>“The legal experts and the Pharisees sit on Moses’ seat. <sup>3</sup>Therefore, you must take care to do everything they say. But don’t do what they do. <sup>4</sup>For they tie together heavy packs that are impossible to carry. They put them on the shoulders of others, but are unwilling to lift a finger to move them.

would have accepted as scripture. This is Exodus 3:6, which Jesus interprets to mean that Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are (now) alive (the same point is made in 4 Macc 7:19; 16:25). Second, they don’t know God’s power. Jesus refers both to God’s ability to raise people from the dead and also to the transformation that takes place in the resurrection. Jesus had brought a little girl back to life in Matthew 9:18-19, 23-25 (cf. Matt 11:5), but eventually she would die again, like everyone else. The resurrection refers to a different form of bodily life (cf. 1 Cor 15:35-50), one that doesn’t involve marriage. See sidebars, “Israel’s Scriptures” at Matthew 5; “Pharisees and Sadducees” at Matthew 16. 22:35 tested him: See Matthew 4:7; 16:1; 19:3; 22:18. 22:36 the greatest commandment: According to some Jewish literature, the rabbis discussed the 613 commandments attributed to Moses to determine the most important one(s). David, it was said, reduced the law to 11 commands (Ps 15); Micah reduced the law to three (Mic 6:8); and so on. Since Jesus was asked this question in order to test him (see Matt 22:35), had he given the wrong answer, this might have been useful to those who opposed him. 22:37-38 You must love the Lord your God: Jesus quotes part of the Shema from Deuteronomy 6:5, which Jews were to recite twice daily. 22:39 You must love your neighbor. Jesus adds a second commandment, drawing from Leviticus 19:18. (See Matt 5:43; 19:9.) 22:40 All the Law and the Prophets: See Matthew 5:17; 7:12; 11:13. Jesus had been asked to identify the greatest commandment. Instead, he sets two commandments, love of God and love of neighbor, side by side, and declares that these two are essential for understanding all Israel’s scriptures. See sidebar, “Israel’s Scriptures” at Matthew 5. 22:42 “David’s son”: The Pharisees agree with the perspective of the Gospel of Matthew (Matt 1:1), that the Christ is David’s son (cf. 2 Sam 7:12-16; Ps 89:3-4). Jesus has been called “son of David” repeatedly (Matt 1:1; 9:27; 12:23; 15:22; 20:30-31; 21:9, 15). 22:43-45 how is it: Jesus poses a puzzle based on Psalm 110:1. In doing so, he expands the identity and mission of the Christ, naming him as the one who shares in the Lord’s divine identity and thus must be addressed even by his own father as Lord. 22:46-23:1 Attempts to test Jesus have failed. Rather than interacting with the legal experts and Pharisees, Jesus now speaks about them to the crowds and disciples. Just as the legal experts and Pharisees had been trying to influence the Jewish people to turn against Jesus, so now Jesus casts the legal experts and Pharisees in a bad light with the crowds. This is not mere name-calling, but a serious attempt to undercut their ability to lead the people down the wrong path (see Matt 15:14; 23:16). 23:2-3 Moses’ seat: Since most of the population couldn’t read very well, and certainly didn’t own their own copies of the scriptures, they depended on The legal experts and the Pharisees to tell them what the Law says. Even if they didn’t live according to the Law, their knowledge of its contents could be trusted. 23:4 For they tie together heavy packs: Their attempts to spell out how to be faithful to the Law added more and more regulations that made it impossible for most people. Contrast Jesus’ understanding of the Law, which is “easy to bear” (Matt 11:29-30); and which he has just explained in

Condemnation of the legal experts and the Pharisees

<sup>13</sup>"How terrible it will be for you legal experts and Pharisees! Hypocrites! You shut people out of the kingdom of heaven. You don't enter yourselves, and you won't allow those who want to enter to do so.<sup>a</sup>

<sup>15</sup>"How terrible it will be for you, legal experts and Pharisees! Hypocrites! You travel over sea and land to make one convert. But when they've been converted, they become twice the child of hell you are.

<sup>16</sup>"How terrible it will be for you blind guides who say, 'If people swear by the temple, it's nothing. But if people swear by the gold in the temple, they are obligated to do what they swore.' <sup>17</sup>You foolish and blind people! Which is greater, the gold or the temple that makes the gold holy? <sup>18</sup>You say, 'If people swear by the altar, it's nothing. But if they swear by the gift on the altar, they are obligated to do what they swore.' <sup>19</sup>You blind people! Which is greater, the gift or the altar that makes the gift holy? <sup>20</sup>Therefore, those who swear by the altar swear by it and by everything that's on it. <sup>21</sup>Those who swear by the temple swear by it and by everything that's part of it. <sup>22</sup>Those who swear by heaven swear by God's throne and by the one who sits on it.

<sup>23</sup>"How terrible it will be for you legal experts and Pharisees! Hypocrites! You give to God a tenth of mint, dill, and cumin, but you forget about the more important matters of the Law: justice, peace, and faith. You ought to give a tenth but without forgetting about those more important matters. <sup>24</sup>You blind guides! You filter out an ant but swallow a camel.

the simple terms of loving God and loving neighbor (Matt 22:35-40).

23:5 Everything they do: See Matthew 6:1-6, 16-18. prayer bands: a reference to a "phylactery," that is, a leather case containing scripture passages. This practice is drawn from a strict reading of Exodus 13:9, 16; Deuteronomy 6:8; 11:18. long tassels: See Numbers 15:37-39; Deuteronomy 22:12. That Jesus wore such tassels is indicated by Matthew 9:20; 14:36, where the CEB refers to a "hem" or the "edge" of his clothes. Both prayer bands and long tassels were reminders of God's commandments.

23:6-7 places of honor... greeted with honor: The legal experts and Pharisees are concerned with prestige and status, in opposition to Jesus' teaching (see Matt 18:1-4; 20:20-28).

23:7-10 Rabbi: a Hebrew term that means "my great one" or "master," used as a title of honor for legal experts. father: sometimes used as a title of honor for great teachers (e.g., Acts 7:2; 22:1). Jesus directs his followers and the crowds not to use such titles for each other, since they are all siblings, no one with more status than the other. In Matthew's Gospel, Jesus is called "Rabbi" only twice, both times by Judas, his betrayer (Matt 26:25, 49).

23:11-12 See Matthew 18:1-4; 20:20-28.
23:13 How terrible: The Greek word ouai often appears in English translations as "woe." It's like an emotional outburst associated with pain or bad news. In literature, it refers to an unhappy state, the opposite of flourishing, contentment, and well-being (see Matt 5:3-12). The term appears in Matthew 11:21; 18:7; 23:13, 15, 16, 23, 27, 29; 24:19; 26:24.

23:14 You shut people out of the kingdom of heaven: Not only do the legal experts and Pharisees contradict God's ways in their teaching, but they also oppose Jesus, who proclaims God's reign. See sidebar, "The Kingdom of Heaven" at Matthew 3.

23:15 make one convert: Gentiles were sometimes attracted to the Jewish faith, but generally Judaism in the time of Jesus wasn't a missionary religion. Some Gentiles participated in the life of the Jewish synagogue, and Jesus may be referring to occasional efforts to attract such Gentiles into Judaism. Or he may be referring to attempts by Pharisees to win Jews over to the Pharisaic group. child of hell: destined for judgment (see Matt 13:38).

23:16-22 blind guides: See Matthew 15:14. swear: See Matthew 5:33-37.

23:23 more important matters: Jesus criticizes attention to details of the Law (in this case, tithing one's crops; e.g., Lev 27:30-33; Deut 14:22-29) while overlooking justice, peace, and faith (see, e.g., Mic 6:8; Hab 2:4). In doing so, though, he doesn't dismiss the smaller matters (see Matt 5:17-19).

23:24 blind guides: See Matthew 15:14; 23:16. ant... camel: Both are unclean and thus not to be eaten (Lev 11:4, 41). This illustrates their concern with small things to the neglect of large.

<sup>25</sup>How terrible it will be for you legal experts and Pharisees! Hypocrites! You clean the outside of the cup and plate, but inside they are full of violence and pleasure seeking. <sup>26</sup>Blind Pharisee! First clean the inside of the cup so that the outside of the cup will be clean too.

<sup>27</sup>How terrible it will be for you legal experts and Pharisees! Hypocrites! You are like whitewashed tombs. They look beautiful on the outside. But inside they are full of dead bones and all kinds of filth. <sup>28</sup>In the same way you look righteous to people. But inside you are full of pretense and rebellion.

<sup>29</sup>How terrible it will be for you legal experts and Pharisees! Hypocrites! You build tombs for the prophets and decorate the graves of the righteous. <sup>30</sup>You say, 'If we had lived in our ancestors' days, we wouldn't have joined them in killing the prophets.' <sup>31</sup>You testify against yourselves that you are children of those who murdered the prophets. <sup>32</sup>Go ahead, complete what your ancestors did. <sup>33</sup>You snakes! You children of snakes! How will you be able to escape the judgment of hell? <sup>34</sup>Therefore, look, I'm sending you prophets, wise people, and legal experts. Some of them you will kill and crucify. And some you will beat in your synagogues and chase from city to city. <sup>35</sup>Therefore, upon you will come all the righteous blood that has been poured out on the earth, from the blood of that righteous man Abel to the blood of Zechariah the son of Barachiah, whom you killed between the temple and the altar. <sup>36</sup>I assure you that all these things will come upon this generation.

Crying over Jerusalem

<sup>37</sup>Jerusalem, Jerusalem! You who kill the prophets and stone those who were sent to you. How often I wanted to gather your people together, just as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings. But you didn't want that. <sup>38</sup>Look, your house is left to you deserted. <sup>39</sup>I tell you, you won't see me until you say, Blessings on the one who comes in the Lord's name."<sup>v</sup>

The temple's fate

24 Now Jesus left the temple and was going away. His disciples came to point out to him the temple buildings. <sup>2</sup>He responded, "Do you see all these things? I assure that no stone will be left on another. Everything will be demolished."

Beginning of troubles

<sup>3</sup>Now while Jesus was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to him privately and said, "Tell us, when will these things happen? What will be the sign of your coming and the end of the age?"

<sup>4</sup>Jesus replied, "Watch out that no one deceives you. <sup>5</sup>Many will come in my name, saying,

23:25-26 Hypocrites: usually understood in the ancient world as a "play actor." Here the term is explained in terms of purity laws, which distinguished between cleaning the inside and the outside of a cup. Jesus draws an analogy to people who pretend to be one thing on the outside but are quite different on the inside. See Matthew 15:10-20.

23:27-28 The message of Matthew 23:25-26 is extended, now with reference to corpse impurity, a major concern of Pharisees at the time of Jesus (see Num 19:16).

23:29-31 You build tombs . . . and decorate the graves: They give the impression that they honor the prophets and the righteous, when in fact they oppose them. children of those who murdered the prophets: To be a child is to have the characteristics of the parents. For a similar charge, see Matthew 21:33-45.

23:35 blood: a term that sometimes refers to "responsibility for someone's death" (cf. Jon 1:14). Abel: See Genesis 4:3-12. Zechariah: See 2 Chronicles 24:20-22. According to the Jewish order of books in the Hebrew Bible, Genesis is first and 2 Chronicles is last. So Abel would be the first righteous person murdered and Zechariah the last.

23:38 your house: the Jerusalem temple. deserted:

abandoned by God (cf. Ezek 8:6, 12; 11:22-23) in anticipation of its destruction (see Matt 24).

23:39 See Matthew 21:9 (Ps 118:26).

24:1 the temple: The second temple was built in 518 BCE, but Herod the Great had undertaken its massive remodeling. The result was a magnificent temple complex that attracted visitors from far and wide.

24:2 Jesus joins others of his time in his criticism of what the temple system had become under its present leadership. For Jesus, its coming destruction is the consequence of the hypocrisy of the Jewish rulers in Jerusalem (Matt 23). 24:3 Mount of Olives: a mountain ridge approximately two miles long, located across the Kidron Valley from Jerusalem. Jesus and his disciples would have been just across the valley from the temple, looking down on its courts. privately: See Matthew 13:10, 36; 17:9; 20:17. Zechariah 14:1-4 anticipates the return of the Lord to the Mount of Olives, signaling the end time. your coming: See Matthew 10:23; 16:27-28; 25. The disciples' questions suggest that they can't separate these three occurrences: the destruction of the temple (i.e., these things, referring back to Matt 24:2); Jesus' future coming; and the end of the age.

24:4-51 Jesus answers the disciples' questions about the

'I'm the Christ.' They will deceive many people. <sup>6</sup>You will hear about wars and reports of wars. Don't be alarmed. These things must happen, but this isn't the end yet. <sup>7</sup>Nations and kingdoms will fight against each other, and there will be famines and earthquakes in all sorts of places. <sup>8</sup>But all these things are just the beginning of the sufferings associated with the end. <sup>9</sup>They will arrest you, abuse you, and they will kill you. All nations will hate you on account of my name. <sup>10</sup>At that time many will fall away. They will betray each other and hate each other. <sup>11</sup>Many false prophets will appear and deceive many people. <sup>12</sup>Because disobedience will expand, the love of many will grow cold. <sup>13</sup>But the one who endures to the end will be delivered. <sup>14</sup>This gospel of the kingdom will be proclaimed throughout the world as a testimony to all the nations. Then the end will come.

The great suffering

<sup>15</sup>"When you see the disgusting and destructive thing that Daniel talked about standing in the holy place (the reader should understand this), <sup>16</sup>then those in Judea must escape to the mountains. <sup>17</sup>Those on the roof shouldn't come down to grab things from their houses. <sup>18</sup>Those in the field shouldn't come back to grab their clothes. <sup>19</sup>How terrible it will be at that time for women who are pregnant and for women who are nursing their children. <sup>20</sup>Pray that it doesn't happen in winter or on the Sabbath day. <sup>21</sup>There will be great suffering such as the world has never before seen and will never again see. <sup>22</sup>If that time weren't shortened, nobody would be rescued. But for the sake of the ones whom God chose, that time will be cut short.

<sup>23</sup>"Then if somebody says to you, 'Look, here's the Christ,' or 'He's over here,' don't believe it. <sup>24</sup>False christs and false prophets will appear, and they will offer great signs and wonders in order to deceive, if possible, even those whom God has chosen. <sup>25</sup>Look, I've told you ahead of time. <sup>26</sup>So if they say to you, 'Look, he's in the desert,' don't go out. And if they say, 'Look, he's in the rooms deep inside the house,' don't believe it. <sup>27</sup>Just as the lightning flashes from the east to the west, so it will be with the coming of the Human One. <sup>28</sup>The vultures gather wherever there's a dead body.

Coming of the Human One

<sup>29</sup>Now immediately after the suffering of that time the sun will become dark, and the moon won't give its light. The stars will fall from the sky and the planets and other heavenly bodies will be shaken. <sup>30</sup>Then the sign of the Human One<sup>W</sup> will appear in the sky. At that time all the tribes of the earth will be full of sadness, and they will see the Human One<sup>V</sup> coming in the heavenly clouds<sup>Y</sup> with power and great splendor. <sup>31</sup>He will send his angels with the sound of a great trumpet, and they will gather his chosen ones from the four corners of the earth, from one end of the sky to the other.

timing of the end with an extended warning to stay alert to deception and to live faithful lives.

24:6-8 the beginning of the sufferings: or "birth pangs." Other Jewish books written about the time of Jesus refer to such disasters as these occurring before the coming of the new age. These occurrences provide no reason to panic.

24:9-13 These predictions of suffering give added weight to Jesus' earlier teaching about harassment and loving one's enemies (e.g., Matt 5:10-12, 43-45; 10:16-42).

24:14 throughout the world: See Matthew 28:18-20.

24:15 the disgusting and destructive thing: See Daniel 9:27; 11:31; 12:11 (cf. 1 Macc 1:54). The phrase referred originally to an altar to Zeus set up in the Jerusalem temple by Antiochus IV Epiphanes in 167 BCE.

24:16-20 escape: The appropriate response isn't to stand and fight but to retreat. Jesus doesn't here encourage dying for the faith, but faithful life and witness (likewise, Matt 10:23). Pregnancy and winter make it even more difficult to leave everything and flee. Sabbath: Travel was restricted on the Sabbath, making flight to a mountain difficult.

24:24 false prophets: See Matthew 7:15-23 (counterfeits will be known "by their fruit").

24:27 the coming of the Human One: See Daniel 7:13-14.

24:28 The vultures gather: This proverbial saying refers to the unmistakable location of a dead body—just look for the vultures! In the same way, the signs that Jesus has been identifying show that the end is near.

24:29 These images are from the OT (e.g., Isa 13:10; 34:4; Joel 2:10). They are highly symbolic ways of describing the final judgment before the remaking of creation (see Matt 19:28).

24:30 the sign of the Human One: See Daniel 7:13-14.

24:31 angels: See Matthew 13:41-43. the sound of a great trumpet: announcing the end (cf. Isa 27:13; 1 Cor 15:51-52; 1 Thess 4:16). chosen ones from the four corners: from all peoples, all nations (see Matt 8:11; 24:14; 28:18-20).

A lesson from the fig tree

<sup>32</sup>Learn this parable from the fig tree. After its branch becomes tender and it sprouts new leaves, you know that summer is near. <sup>33</sup>In the same way, when you see all these things, you know that the Human One<sup>a</sup> is near, at the door. <sup>34</sup>I assure you that this generation won't pass away until all these things happen. <sup>35</sup>Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will certainly not pass away.

Day and hour

<sup>36</sup>But nobody knows when that day or hour will come, not the heavenly angels and not the Son. Only the Father knows. <sup>37</sup>As it was in the time of Noah, so it will be at the coming of the Human One.<sup>b</sup> <sup>38</sup>In those days before the flood, people were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day Noah entered the ark. <sup>39</sup>They didn't know what was happening until the flood came and swept them all away. The coming of the Human One<sup>c</sup> will be like that. <sup>40</sup>At that time there will be two men in the field. One will be taken and the other left. <sup>41</sup>Two women will be grinding at the mill. One will be taken and the other left. <sup>42</sup>Therefore, stay alert! You don't know what day the Lord is coming. <sup>43</sup>But you understand that if the head of the house knew at what time the thief would come, he would keep alert and wouldn't allow the thief to break into his house. <sup>44</sup>Therefore, you also should be prepared, because the Human One<sup>d</sup> will come at a time you don't know.

Faithful and unfaithful servants

<sup>45</sup>Who then are the faithful and wise servants whom their master puts in charge of giving food at the right time to those who live in his house? <sup>46</sup>Happy are those servants whom the master finds fulfilling their responsibilities when he comes. <sup>47</sup>I assure you that he will put them in charge of all his possessions. <sup>48</sup>But suppose those bad servants should say to themselves, My master won't come until later. <sup>49</sup>And suppose they began to beat their fellow servants and to eat and drink with the drunks? <sup>50</sup>The master of those servants will come on a day when they are not expecting him, at a time they couldn't predict. <sup>51</sup>He will cut them in pieces and put them in a place with the hypocrites. People there will be weeping and grinding their teeth.

Parable of the ten young bridesmaids

25<sup>a</sup>At that time the kingdom of heaven will be like ten young bridesmaids who took their lamps and went out to meet the groom. <sup>2</sup>Now five of them were wise, and the other five were foolish. <sup>3</sup>The foolish ones took their lamps but didn't bring oil for them. <sup>4</sup>But the wise ones took their lamps and also brought containers of oil.

<sup>5</sup>When the groom was late in coming, they all became drowsy and went to sleep. <sup>6</sup>But at midnight there was a cry, 'Look, the groom! Come out to meet him.'

<sup>7</sup>Then all those bridesmaids got up and prepared their lamps. <sup>8</sup>But the foolish bridesmaids said to the wise ones, 'Give us some of your oil, because our lamps have gone out.'

<sup>9</sup>But the wise bridesmaids replied, 'No, because if we share with you, there won't be enough for our lamps and yours. We have a better idea. You go to those who sell oil and buy some for yourselves.' <sup>10</sup>But while they were gone to buy oil, the groom came. Those who were ready went with him into the wedding. Then the door was shut.

24:35 my words will certainly not pass away: Typically, this kind of permanence is associated with God's words (e.g., Isa 40:8), as Jesus had declared in Matthew 5:18.

24:36 nobody knows: Jesus returns to the initial question raised in Matthew 24:3: "Tell us, when will these things happen?" Jesus redirects attention away from when the end is coming, toward how to live every day in anticipation of the end.

24:37-39 time of Noah: People were so busy with everyday life that they were caught by surprise (Gen 6:5-8).

24:42-51 Therefore, stay alert: Jesus' message has two primary emphases: (1) Since his followers don't know when the day of the Lord will occur, they must maintain constant faithfulness (that is, living according to Jesus' words;

cf. Matt 25:31-46). (2) Those who do so will be rewarded and those who don't will be punished. a place with the hypocrites: that is, judged along with the legal experts and Pharisees (see Matt 23). weeping and grinding their teeth: See Matthew 8:12; 13:42, 50.

25:2-4 wise... foolish: See Matthew 7:24-27; 24:45. Note the idea of separation in Matthew 24:40-41. lamps... containers of oil: A "lamp" was a small clay vessel with a chamber for oil and a wick. The significance of the parallel draws on an analogy between "oil" and faithful living (i.e., hearing Jesus' words and putting them into practice; Matt 7:24) in anticipation of the coming of the end.

25:10-12 Lord, lord... I don't know you: See Matthew 7:21-23.

Judgment of the nations

<sup>31</sup>"Now when the Human One<sup>f</sup> comes in his majesty and all his angels are with him, he will sit on his majestic throne. <sup>32</sup>All the nations will be gathered in front of him. He will separate them from each other, just as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats. <sup>33</sup>He will put the sheep on his right side. But the goats he will put on his left.

*Or talantas (talents) <sup>f</sup>Or Son of Man

25:13 See Matthew 24:42.

25:15 valuable coins: The Greek word is talanton, often translated as "talent," which refers to a monetary unit equal to more than 16 years of earnings for a laborer (cf. Matt 18:24). In this parable, though, the emphasis falls less on the value of the money and more on the stewardship practiced by each servant.

25:19 Now after a long time: See Matthew 24:48; 25:5.

25:21, 23 See Matthew 24:45-47.

25:24-25 You harvest grain where you haven't sown: The third servant describes precisely what would be expected with a landowner who leaves the working of the land to others. The servant thus acknowledges that he knew he would've been expected to share the profits with the landlord. you are a hard man: that is, unbending in his expectations. According to this analogy, the Lord may be gracious to all (so Matt 5:45; 20:1-15; 22:9-10) but judges on the basis of faithful obedience.

25:25-26 The servant and the master have two different opinions about the servant's behavior. The servant claims to have been afraid, whereas the master regards him as evil and lazy.

25:29 Compare Matthew 13:12.

25:30 weeping and grinding their teeth: See Matthew 8:12; 13:42, 50; 24:51.

25:31 the Human One comes in his majesty: See Daniel 7:13-14. The Human One is called "the king" in Matthew 25:34, 40; and in Matthew 25:34 his reference to "my Father" identifies him as God's Son. Jesus paints a scene of final judgment in which he himself is the judge.

25:32 All the nations: See Matthew 8:11; 24:14, 31; 28:18-20.

<sup>34</sup>“Then the king will say to those on his right, ‘Come, you who will receive good things from my Father. Inherit the kingdom that was prepared for you before the world began. <sup>35</sup>I was hungry and you gave me food to eat. I was thirsty and you gave me a drink. I was a stranger and you welcomed me. <sup>36</sup>I was naked and you gave me clothes to wear. I was sick and you took care of me. I was in prison and you visited me.’

<sup>37</sup>“Then those who are righteous will reply to him, ‘Lord, when did we see you hungry and feed you, or thirsty and give you a drink? <sup>38</sup>When did we see you as a stranger and welcome you, or naked and give you clothes to wear? <sup>39</sup>When did we see you sick or in prison and visit you?’

<sup>40</sup>“Then the king will reply to them, ‘I assure you that when you have done it for one of the least of these brothers and sisters of mine, you have done it for me.’

<sup>41</sup>“Then he will say to those on his left, ‘Get away from me, you who will receive terrible things. Go into the unending fire that has been prepared for the devil and his angels. <sup>42</sup>I was hungry and you didn’t give me food to eat. I was thirsty and you didn’t give me anything to drink. <sup>43</sup>I was a stranger and you didn’t welcome me. I was naked and you didn’t give me clothes to wear. I was sick and in prison, and you didn’t visit me.’

<sup>44</sup>“Then they will reply, ‘Lord, when did we see you hungry or thirsty or a stranger or naked or sick or in prison and didn’t do anything to help you?’ <sup>45</sup>Then he will answer, ‘I assure you that when you haven’t done it for one of the least of these, you haven’t done it for me.’ <sup>46</sup>And they will go away into eternal punishment. But the righteous ones will go into eternal life.”

Plot to kill Jesus

26 When Jesus finished speaking all these words, he said to his disciples, <sup>2</sup>“You know that the Passover is two days from now. And the Human One<sup>6</sup> will be handed over to be crucified.”

<sup>3</sup>Then the chief priests and elders of the people gathered in the courtyard of Caiaphas the high priest. <sup>4</sup>They were plotting to arrest Jesus by cunning tricks and to kill him. <sup>5</sup>But they agreed that it shouldn’t happen during the feast so there wouldn’t be an uproar among the people.

A woman pouring perfume on Jesus

<sup>6</sup>When Jesus was at Bethany visiting the house of Simon, who had a skin disease, <sup>7</sup>a woman came to him with a vase made of alabaster containing very expensive perfume. She poured it on Jesus’ head while he was sitting at dinner. <sup>8</sup>Now when the disciples saw it they were angry and said, “Why this waste? <sup>9</sup>This perfume could have been sold for a lot of money and given to the poor.”

<sup>10</sup>But Jesus knew what they were thinking. He said, “Why do you make trouble for the woman? She’s done a good thing for me. <sup>11</sup>You always have the poor with you, but you won’t 25:35-45: The basis of judgment is closely tied to love of neighbor (see Matt 5:43; 19:19; 22:39), to caring for those in need. Jesus as king identifies himself with the least ones, who are hungry, thirsty, sick, and imprisoned. Serving the least ones is equated with serving Jesus (cf. Matt 18:5). This is the “righteousness” necessary if one is to “enter the kingdom of heaven” (Matt 5:20).

26:1 When Jesus finished speaking all these words: the conclusion of Jesus’ fifth sermon (see also Matt 5-7; 10:13; 18). Matthew 26-27 is often called Matthew’s “passion narrative,” that is, his account of Jesus’ suffering and death (as predicted in Matt 16:21; 17:22-23; 20:18-19).

26:2 Passover: an annual Jewish feast celebrated in Jerusalem by families remembering the night of Israel’s liberation from Egypt (see Exod 12:1-20). And the Human One: At the outset of Matthew’s account of Jesus’ suffering and death, Jesus associates his crucifixion with the Passover.

26:3-4 chief priests and elders: Jesus’ main opponents in the final days. The Pharisees are mentioned only once in Matthew 26-27, after Jesus’ death (Matt 27:62), while the legal experts have a slightly more visible role (Matt 26:57;

27:41). Caiaphas was the high priest from 18 to 36 CE. During this period, the high priest was appointed by Rome and had enormous power—for example, to collect taxes and to oversee the temple and the Jewish council. They were plotting: See Matthew 12:14; 21:46; 22:15.

26:5 it shouldn’t happen during the feast: The Passover feast required that a lamb be sacrificed on the altar of the Jerusalem temple. Moreover, Jews were expected to eat the meal in Jerusalem. Therefore, during the Passover, the city would swell with thousands of people who came to celebrate. among the people: See Matthew 21:46.

26:6 at Bethany: See Matthew 21:17. Jesus’ presence in Bethany wouldn’t have been surprising, given how crowded Jerusalem must have been in preparation for Passover. Simon, who had a skin disease: Simon is mentioned in the parallel account in Mark 14:3, but he is otherwise unknown to us. Apparently, his skin disease has been cured, since he welcomes guests into his home. On skin disease, see note on Matthew 8:2.

26:11-12 You always have the poor with you: Jesus’ words echo those in Deuteronomy 15:11. There, they provide

Judas betrays Jesus

<sup>14</sup>Then one of the Twelve, who was called Judas Iscariot, went to the chief priests <sup>15</sup>and said, "What will you give me if I turn Jesus over to you?" They paid him thirty pieces of silver. <sup>16</sup>From that time on he was looking for an opportunity to turn him in.

Passover with the disciples

<sup>17</sup>On the first day of the Festival of Unleavened Bread, the disciples came to Jesus and said, "Where do you want us to prepare for you to eat the Passover meal?"

<sup>18</sup>He replied, "Go into the city, to a certain man, and say, 'The teacher says, "My time is near. I'm going to celebrate the Passover with my disciples at your house."' "<sup>19</sup>The disciples did just as Jesus instructed them. They prepared the Passover.

<sup>20</sup>That evening he took his place at the table with the twelve disciples. <sup>21</sup>As they were eating he said, "I assure you that one of you will betray me."

<sup>22</sup>Deeply saddened, each one said to him, "I'm not the one, am I, Lord?"

<sup>25</sup>Now Judas, who would betray him, replied, "It's not me, is it, Rabbi?"

Jesus answered, "You said it."

Last supper

<sup>26</sup>While they were eating, Jesus took bread, blessed it, broke it, and gave it to the disciples and said, "Take and eat. This is my body." <sup>27</sup>He took a cup, gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, "Drink from this, all of you. <sup>28</sup>This is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many so that their sins may be forgiven. <sup>29</sup>I tell you, I won't drink wine again until that day when I drink it in a new way with you in my Father's kingdom." <sup>30</sup>Then, after singing songs of praise, they went to the Mount of Olives.

the motivation for treating the poor with generosity. Here they illustrate that everyday responsibilities, like caring for the poor, are not as important as serving Jesus in his last hours. Preparing people for burial was an important religious responsibility.

26:14 one of the Twelve: See Matthew 10:1-4; 20:17. That Judas is a member of the inner circle emphasizes the travesty of the betrayal about to be recounted. Iscariot: a reference to his hometown, Kerioth, in southern Judea.

26:15 thirty pieces of silver: Each silver piece was worth the equivalent of about four days' work for a laborer, so they pay Judas the rough equivalent of 120 days' labor.

26:17-20 Festival of Unleavened Bread: a seven-day festival (see Exod 12:17-20; Lev 23:4-8). the Passover meal: unleavened bread, lamb, and bitter herbs (Num 9:11). Celebrating the Passover feast is a family affair, so it is important that Jesus will celebrate Passover with the twelve disciples. This reflects the redefinition of "family" in Matthew 12:46-50.

26:21-23 Eating together signified close bonds of friendship, so it is all the more distressing that one of Jesus' table companions would betray Jesus.

26:24 The Human One goes to his death just as it is written about him. But how terrible it is for that person who betrays the Human One!: Setting these two sentences side by side indicates how scripture can hold together God's actions and human responsibility. Jesus' crucifixion may serve God's purpose, but this doesn't excuse Judas from his act of betrayal. There are no OT texts that require or predict that the Human One must die. The point isn't to find this or that text in order to prove something. Rather, Jesus' statement means that the OT as a whole must be read and reread from the perspective of his crucifixion.

26:25 In Matthew 26:22, each of the disciples asks Jesus a question and expects a negative answer. Judas does the same. However, when Judas asks the question, he isn't "deeply saddened," and he addresses Jesus as "Rabbi" rather than as "Lord." In Matthew's Gospel disciples and would-be disciples call Jesus "Lord," while other titles, like "teacher" and "Rabbi," are generally used by people who don't follow or who even oppose Jesus (see Matt 12:38; 19:16; 22:16, 24, 36; 26:49). Matthew clearly identifies Judas as the betrayer (cf. Matt 10:4). "You said it": Jesus' answer is indirect, but, in this context, clearly affirmative.

26:26-29 While they were eating: Jesus and the disciples celebrate the Passover meal, which Jesus now reinterprets with reference to his own death (see Matt 20:28). blood of the covenant: See Exodus 24:8; Zechariah 9:11. so that their sins may be forgiven: See Matthew 1:21. This last supper becomes the basis for the church's celebration of the Lord's Supper.

26:30 Mount of Olives: See the note on Matthew 24:3.

Predictions about disciples leaving Jesus

<sup>31</sup>Then Jesus said to his disciples, "Tonight you will all fall away because of me. This is because it is written, I will hit the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will go off in all directions."

<sup>33</sup>Peter replied, "If everyone else stumbles because of you, I'll never stumble."

<sup>34</sup>Jesus said to him, "I assure you that, before the rooster crows tonight, you will deny me three times."

<sup>35</sup>Peter said, "Even if I must die alongside you, I won't deny you." All the disciples said the same thing.

Jesus in prayer

<sup>36</sup>Then Jesus went with his disciples to a place called Gethsemane. He said to the disciples, "Stay here while I go and pray over there." <sup>37</sup>When he took Peter and Zebedee's two sons, he began to feel sad and anxious. <sup>38</sup>Then he said to them, "I'm very sad. It's as if I'm dying. Stay here and keep alert with me." <sup>39</sup>Then he went a short distance farther and fell on his face and prayed, "My Father, if it's possible, take this cup of suffering away from me. However—not what I want but what you want."

<sup>40</sup>He came back to the disciples and found them sleeping. He said to Peter, "Couldn't you stay alert one hour with me? <sup>41</sup>Stay alert and pray so that you won't give in to temptation. The spirit is eager, but the flesh is weak." <sup>42</sup>A second time he went away and prayed, "My Father, if it's not possible that this cup be taken away unless I drink it, then let it be what you want."

<sup>43</sup>Again he came and found them sleeping. Their eyes were heavy with sleep. <sup>44</sup>But he left them and again went and prayed the same words for the third time. <sup>45</sup>Then he came to his disciples and said to them, "Will you sleep and rest all night? Look, the time has come for the Human One<sup>e</sup> to be betrayed into the hands of sinners. <sup>46</sup>Get up. Let's go. Look, here comes my betrayer."

Arrest

<sup>47</sup>While Jesus was still speaking, Judas, one of the Twelve, came. With him was a large crowd carrying swords and clubs. They had been sent by the chief priests and elders of the people. <sup>48</sup>His betrayer had given them a sign: "Arrest the man I kiss." <sup>49</sup>Just then he came to Jesus and said, "Hello, Rabbi." Then he kissed him.

<sup>50</sup>But Jesus said to him, "Friend, do what you came to do." Then they came and grabbed Jesus and arrested him.

<sup>51</sup>One of those with Jesus reached for his sword. Striking the high priest's slave, he cut off his ear. <sup>52</sup>Then Jesus said to him, "Put the sword back into its place. All those who use the sword will die by the sword. <sup>53</sup>Or do you think that I'm not able to ask my Father and 26:31 Tonight you will all fall away because of me. Jesus anticipates that his disciples will abandon him (Matt 26:56). The quotation is from Zechariah 13:7, understood here in terms of Jesus' suffering and death (hit the shepherd) and the disciples' departure (the flock will go off in all directions). 26:32 Death and abandonment aren't the last words. Jesus anticipates his resurrection and the regathering of his followers (see Matt 28:10, 16-20).

26:33-35 Peter again has the role of representative disciple (see Matt 14:28; 15:15; 16:16). deny me three times: See Matthew 26:69-75.

26:36 Gethsemane: a Hebrew term meaning "oil press." It refers to the site of an oil press in an olive grove on the slope of the Mount of Olives.

26:37 Peter and Zebedee's two sons: See Matthew 17:1. The three who were given a vision of Jesus' glory are now with him during this time of despair.

26:38-42 keep alert... stay alert: See Matthew 24:42-25:13. cup of suffering: signifying suffering destined by God (e.g., Ps 75:8; Isa 51:17, 22; Jer 25:15-28; Ezek 23:31-34). not what I want but what you want: Jesus uses words that recall the prayer he taught his disciples (Matt 6:10). pray... temptation: an echo of the prayer Jesus taught his disciples (Matt 6:13).

26:46-50 The identification of Judas as the betrayer is both clear and tragic. It is clear from the two references to Jesus' betrayer in 26:46-47, 48, and in Judas' address to Jesus as Rabbi (see the note on Matt 26:25). It is tragic because he is one of the Twelve (26:47; cf. Matt 10:2-4; 26:14) and because his act of betrayal is committed with a sign of affection (kiss, 26:48-49). The need for a sign suggests that the mob that had come to take Jesus couldn't recognize him.

26:52 Put the sword back into its place: See Matthew 5:38-42. All those who use the sword: Jesus quotes a proverbial statement, the meaning of which is that one act of violence leads to another.

he will send to me more than twelve battle groups<sup>1</sup> of angels right away?<sup>54</sup> But if I did that, how would the scriptures be fulfilled that say this must happen?"<sup>55</sup> Then Jesus said to the crowds, "Have you come with swords and clubs to arrest me, like a thief? Day after day, I sat in the temple teaching, but you didn't arrest me."<sup>56</sup> But all this has happened so that what the prophets said in the scriptures might be fulfilled." Then all the disciples left Jesus and ran away.

Jesus before the council

<sup>57</sup>Those who arrested Jesus led him to Caiaphas the high priest. The legal experts and the elders had gathered there. <sup>58</sup>Peter followed him from a distance until he came to the high priest's courtyard. He entered that area and sat outside with the officers to see how it would turn out.

<sup>59</sup>The chief priests and the whole council were looking for false testimony against Jesus so that they could put him to death. <sup>60</sup>They didn't find anything they could use from the many false witnesses who were willing to come forward. But finally they found two <sup>61</sup>who said, "This man said, 'I can destroy God's temple and rebuild it in three days.'"

<sup>62</sup>Then the high priest stood and said to Jesus, "Aren't you going to respond to the testimony these people have brought against you?"

The high priest said, "By the living God, I demand that you tell us whether you are the Christ, God's Son."

<sup>65</sup>Then the high priest tore his clothes and said, "He's insulting God! Why do we need any more witnesses? Look, you've heard his insult against God. <sup>66</sup>What do you think?"

And they answered, "He deserves to die!" <sup>67</sup>Then they spit in his face and beat him. They hit him <sup>68</sup>and said, "Prophecy for us, Christ! Who hit you?"

Peter's denial

<sup>69</sup>Meanwhile, Peter was sitting outside in the courtyard. A servant woman came and said to him, "You were also with Jesus the Galilean."

<sup>70</sup>But he denied it in front of all of them, saying, "I don't know what you are talking about."

<sup>71</sup>When he went over to the gate, another woman saw him and said to those who were there, "This man was with Jesus, the man from Nazareth."

group included about 6,000 soldiers, so Jesus refers to more than 72,000 angels. (For angelic assistance, see Matt 4:6 [Ps 91:11-12]. For the idea of fighting angels, see 2 Kgs 6:17; Dan 10:13-21.)

26:55 Have you come with swords and clubs: The "chief priests and elders" sent a mob (Matt 26:47), as though Jesus were a violent revolutionary. This is consistent with the unfolding picture that Jesus will be executed as a pretender to the throne (cf. Matt 27:37), but it contrasts sharply with the nature of Jesus' healing and teaching activity in the temple (Matt 21:14; 21:23-23:39).

26:56 all the disciples left Jesus and ran away: See Matthew 26:31.

26:57-71 The stories of Peter and Jesus are intertwined, emphasizing Jesus' courage when questioned by the high priest in contrast to Peter's failure under questioning by two women and some unnamed bystanders.

26:57, 59 The cast of characters includes Caiaphas (see the note on Matt 26:3-4), the legal experts, elders, and the chief priests. Together, they make up the whole council, also known as the Sanhedrin (Mark 14:55; 15:1). This is the supreme ruling and judicial body, over which the high priest presided. false testimony: From the outset, Matthew presents the proceedings against Jesus as a travesty of justice. 26:60 they found two: See Deuteronomy 17:6, which requires "two or three witnesses" in cases of capital punishment.

26:61 This man said: Matthew records no such statement, though he does report that Jesus predicted the temple's destruction (Matt 24:2; cf. Matt 23:38).

26:64 You said it. . . But I say to you: Jesus' answer is indirect, but affirmative. He turns immediately to explain the nature of his status as Christ and God's Son, using language from Daniel 7:13-14; Psalm 110:1.

26:65 tore his clothes: The high priest is deeply troubled by Jesus' response. He's insulting God: See Matthew 9:3; 12:31. The basis for the insult may be Jesus' claim that, as the Human One, he will sit at God's right side; or it may be that the high priest thought he was trying to make himself like God in order to deceive God's people.

26:66 See Matthew 26:4.

26:67-68 See Isaiah 50:6.

26:69-74 While Jesus was on trial in the high priest's house, Peter sat outside in the high priest's courtyard (see Matt 26:57-58). Peter is on trial, too, though his questioners don't seem like people to be feared—a servant woman, another woman, and those standing there. From the first to the third denial Peter's responses grow stronger. A simple denial becomes a solemn pledge, and the third denial includes cursing and swearing (see Matt 5:33-37; 23:16-22).

<sup>72</sup>With a solemn pledge, he denied it again, saying, "I don't know the man."

<sup>73</sup>A short time later those standing there came and said to Peter, "You must be one of them. The way you talk gives you away."

<sup>74</sup>Then he cursed and swore, "I don't know the man!" At that very moment the rooster crowed. <sup>75</sup>Peter remembered Jesus' words, "Before the rooster crows you will deny me three times." And Peter went out and cried uncontrollably.

Jesus before Pilate

27Early in the morning all the chief priests and the elders of the people reached the decision to have Jesus put to death. <sup>2</sup>They bound him, led him away, and turned him over to Pilate the governor.

Judas' death

<sup>3</sup>When Judas, who betrayed Jesus, saw that Jesus was condemned to die, he felt deep regret. He returned the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders, and <sup>4</sup>said, "I did wrong because I betrayed an innocent man."

But they said, "What is that to us? That's your problem." <sup>5</sup>Judas threw the silver pieces into the temple and left. Then he went and hanged himself.

<sup>6</sup>The chief priests picked up the silver pieces and said, "According to the Law it's not right to put this money in the treasury. Since it was used to pay for someone's life, it's unclean." <sup>7</sup>So they decided to use it to buy the potter's field where strangers could be buried. <sup>8</sup>That's why that field is called "Field of Blood" to this very day. <sup>9</sup>This fulfilled the words of Jeremiah the prophet: And I took the thirty pieces of silver, the price for the one whose price had been set by some of the Israelites, <sup>10</sup>and I gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord commanded me.<sup>9</sup>

Questioned by Pilate

<sup>11</sup>Jesus was brought before the governor. The governor said, "Are you the king of the Jews?"

Jesus replied, "That's what you say." <sup>12</sup>But he didn't answer when the chief priests and elders accused him.

<sup>13</sup>Then Pilate said, "Don't you hear the testimony they bring against you?" <sup>14</sup>But he didn't answer, not even a single word. So the governor was greatly amazed.

Death sentence

<sup>15</sup>It was customary during the festival for the governor to release to the crowd one prisoner, whomever they might choose. <sup>16</sup>At that time there was a well-known prisoner named Jesus Barabbas. <sup>17</sup>When the crowd had come together, Pilate asked them, "Whom would you

Moreover, he goes from denying that he knows what the servant woman is talking about to denying that he knows Jesus at all. The way you talk: They recognize his Galilean accent.

26:74-75 At that very moment: See Matthew 26:34.

27:1-14 The stories of Jesus' trial before Pilate and of Judas' death are intertwined. Whereas Jesus embraces the path he has chosen, Judas is filled with regret at what he has done. The stories of Peter and Jesus are similarly intertwined in Matthew 26:57-71.

27:1-2 reached the decision to have Jesus put to death: Although "the whole council" pronounced the death sentence (Matt 26:59, 66), Matthew now names Jesus' chief opposition as the chief priests and the elders. They are "the leaders of the people" (Matt 27:18) and are most responsible for Jesus' execution. Pilate: Rome's appointed ruler over Judea from 26 to 36 CE. His headquarters were in Caesarea on the Mediterranean coast, but he had come to Jerusalem, probably with a significant army, in case disturbances broke out during Passover. He (and not the Jerusalem Council) had the authority to carry out a death sentence. See sidebar, "Judea under Foreign Rule" at Matthew 3.

27:3-10 Matthew structures his account of Judas' death around a quotation taken mostly from Zechariah 11:13, though Jeremiah 32:6-9 may be in the background as well. For a different account of Judas' death, see Acts 1:15-26.

27:11 king of the Jews: The titles used by the Jewish council, "Christ" and "God's Son" (Matt 26:63, 68), now become king of the Jews (see Matt 2:2). The meaning is roughly the same, with the language of kingship reflecting the move from a Jewish trial to a Roman one. For a Roman ruler like Pilate, the language of kingship would have raised the question of whether Jesus was a political threat to Rome. The only other "king" of the Jews in Matthew's Gospel was Herod the Great (Matt 2:1), who had been appointed to his post by the Roman senate in 40 BCE. "That's what you say": Jesus doesn't deny Pilate's question. His response may be regarded as an indirect yes.

27:12-14 he didn't answer: Jesus accepts the path he has chosen, to serve God even at the cost of his own life, so he doesn't protest against even false charges. chief priests and elders: Matthew names these leaders of the Jewish people (and not the Jewish people as such) as Jesus' accusers (see Matt 27:1).

like me to release to you, Jesus Barabbas or Jesus who is called Christ?" <sup>18</sup>He knew that the leaders of the people had handed him over because of jealousy.

<sup>19</sup>While he was serving as judge, his wife sent this message to him, "Leave that righteous man alone. I've suffered much today in a dream because of him."

<sup>20</sup>But the chief priests and the elders persuaded the crowds to ask for Barabbas and kill Jesus. <sup>21</sup>The governor said, "Which of the two do you want me to release to you?"

"Barabbas," they replied.

<sup>22</sup>Pilate said, "Then what should I do with Jesus who is called Christ?"

They all said, "Crucify him!"

<sup>23</sup>But he said, "Why? What wrong has he done?"

They shouted even louder, "Crucify him!"

<sup>24</sup>Pilate saw that he was getting nowhere and that a riot was starting. So he took water and washed his hands in front of the crowd. "I'm innocent of this man's blood," he said. "It's your problem."

<sup>25</sup>All the people replied, "Let his blood be on us and on our children." <sup>26</sup>Then he released Barabbas to them. He had Jesus whipped, then handed him over to be crucified.

Soldiers mocking Jesus

Crucifixion

<sup>32</sup>As they were going out, they found Simon, a man from Cyrene. They forced him to carry his cross. <sup>33</sup>When they came to a place called Golgotha, which means Skull Place, <sup>34</sup>they gave Jesus wine mixed with vinegar to drink. But after tasting it, he didn't want to drink it. <sup>35</sup>After they crucified him, they divided up his clothes among them by drawing lots. <sup>36</sup>They sat there, guarding him. <sup>37</sup>They placed above his head the charge against him. It read, "This

<sup>d</sup>Or cohort (approximately six hundred soldiers)

27:18 because of jealousy: In the ancient world, status was often measured in terms of influence over the people. Jealous of Jesus' success, the leaders of the people want him out of the picture.

27:19 suffered much today in a dream: Dreams were taken seriously in antiquity, often as instruments of divine revelation (cf. Matt 1:20; 2:12, 13, 19, 22). Suffering in a dream suggests a nightmare, the result of which is this woman's counsel to her husband that he remove himself from any involvement with Jesus. Her message doesn't call for Pilate to release Jesus, but does uphold Jesus' innocence.

27:24 a riot was starting: Pilate seems intent on releasing Jesus, against the efforts of "the chief priests and the elders," who stir up the crowd to demand Jesus' execution (Matt 27:20). This forces Pilate's hand, since one of his main responsibilities was keeping the peace. washed his hands: an external act meant to communicate moral innocence. this man's blood: See the note on Matthew 23:35.

27:25 Let his blood be on us: Roused by "the chief priests and the elders," the people have been led to accept the decision of the Jerusalem Council: "He deserves to die!" (Matt 26:66; cf. Matt 27:1). They therefore declare their willingness to take responsibility for the decision, even though their leaders are the ones actually responsible for this turn of events.

27:27-31 the whole company: about 600 soldiers. This is the second time Jesus is mocked. It was typical to ridicule the condemned by reflecting back on them the charges brought against them. In Matthew 26:67-68, he is mocked as the Christ. Here he is mocked as a king, with a royal robe (a red military coat); a crown (of thorns); and a scepter (a stick in his right hand). See Isaiah 50:6.

27:32 Cyrene: a Roman town in northeast Africa, present-day Libya.

27:33 Golgotha: the Aramaic term for "skull." Archaeologists debate the actual location of Jesus' crucifixion. "Skull" may simply refer to the place where executions took place, or it may refer to a prominent feature of that place, such as a skull-shaped hill.

27:34 wine mixed with vinegar: Although wine might be used as a painkiller, it would have been spoiled by the addition of vinegar. Offering this mixture to Jesus isn't a sign of compassion but the act of an enemy (Ps 69:21).

27:35-37 We have few records from the Roman world regarding the act of crucifixion, but Matthew's account includes some standard features. The condemned is whipped (Matt 27:26). He is made to carry the horizontal piece of the cross to the place of execution, which Jesus was unable to do (Matt 27:32). A plaque stating the charges is placed above his head (27:37). Matthew gives no details regarding the act of crucifixion itself, though we can imagine that Jesus was stripped of his clothes (27:35) and fixed to the cross with either ropes or nails. He would thus hang, publicly humiliated, as a warning against is Jesus, the king of the Jews.”<sup>38</sup> They crucified with him two outlaws, one on his right side and one on his left.

<sup>39</sup>Those who were walking by insulted Jesus, shaking their heads<sup>40</sup> and saying, “So you were going to destroy the temple and rebuild it in three days, were you? Save yourself! If you are God’s Son, come down from the cross.”

<sup>41</sup>In the same way, the chief priests, along with the legal experts and the elders, were making fun of him, saying, <sup>42</sup>“He saved others, but he can’t save himself. He’s the king of Israel, so let him come down from the cross now. Then we’ll believe in him.”<sup>43</sup> He trusts in God, so let God deliver him now if he wants to. He said, ‘I’m God’s Son.’”<sup>44</sup> The outlaws who were crucified with him insulted him in the same way.

Death

<sup>45</sup>From noon until three in the afternoon the whole earth was dark.<sup>46</sup> At about three Jesus cried out with a loud shout, “Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani,” which means, “My God, my God, why have you left me?”

<sup>47</sup>After hearing him, some standing there said, “He’s calling Elijah.”<sup>48</sup> One of them ran over, took a sponge full of vinegar, and put it on a pole. He offered it to Jesus to drink.

<sup>49</sup>But the rest of them said, “Let’s see if Elijah will come and save him.”

<sup>50</sup>Again Jesus cried out with a loud shout. Then he died.

<sup>51</sup>Look, the curtain of the sanctuary was torn in two from top to bottom. The earth shook, the rocks split,<sup>52</sup> and the bodies of many holy people who had died were raised.<sup>53</sup> After Jesus’ resurrection they came out of their graves and went into the holy city where they appeared to many people.<sup>54</sup> When the centurion and those with him who were guarding Jesus saw the earthquake and what had just happened, they were filled with awe and said, “This was certainly God’s Son.”

<sup>55</sup>Many women were watching from a distance. They had followed Jesus from Galilee to serve him.<sup>56</sup> Among them were Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of Zebedee’s sons.

Burial

<sup>57</sup>That evening a man named Joseph came. He was a rich man from Arimathea who had become a disciple of Jesus.<sup>58</sup> He came to Pilate and asked for Jesus’ body. Pilate gave him others who might threaten Roman peace. they divided up his clothes: See Psalm 22:18. king of the Jews: an indication that Jesus was crucified as a pretender to the throne, a threat to Roman peace. Among the Romans, death by crucifixion was reserved for people like this.

27:38 outlaws: The Greek term léstēs refers to political outlaws, revolutionaries.

27:39–44 Jesus is mocked by three groups—passersby; people representing the Jewish council (the chief priests, along with the legal experts and the elders); and the outlaws. Their insults recall the words of the devil, who tested Jesus (Matt 4:1–11); and of Peter, who scolded Jesus (Matt 16:22). Like them, these mockers have preconceived ideas about what it must mean for Jesus to be God’s Son, and those ideas make no room for self-sacrifice on behalf of others. Jesus’ mission, however, was to serve and to give his life to liberate others (Matt 20:28). God’s Son: Compare the words of the righteous person’s enemies in Wisdom 2:12–21.

27:45 dark: an image of evil (outside God’s illumination) and judgment (see Matt 4:16; 6:23; 8:12; 22:13; 25:30).

27:46 “Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani”: Jesus’ final words are a mixture of Hebrew (Eli, Eli, lama) and Aramaic (sabachthani), taken from Psalm 22:1. Psalm 22 speaks of temporary abandonment and ultimate rescue.

27:47–49 Elijah: Bystanders think Jesus refers to Elijah when he shouts, “Eli!” Popular religion thought of Elijah as a helper in times of need.

27:51 a curtain of the sanctuary: probably the one covering the doorway that separates the outer room of the sanctuary, the holy space, from the inner room of the sanctuary, the holiest space (Exod 26:31–35). Noting that the curtain was torn in two from top to bottom suggests that God has torn the curtain. This is a sign anticipating the total destruction of the temple that Jesus predicted in Matthew 24:2. Since this curtain separated the world of human beings from God’s holiness, we should also find here a reference to access to God for all, whether Jew or Gentile.

27:51b–54 The earth shook: These signs emphasize the role of Jesus’ death in God’s transformation of creation. came out of their graves: a symbolic anticipation of the resurrection of God’s holy people. See Ezekiel 37:13. centurion: a commander of 100 soldiers in the Roman military system. Compare with the impressive faith of the centurion in Matthew 8:5–10. A Roman centurion and his guards, but not the Jewish leaders, recognize Jesus as God’s Son. The aftermath of Jesus’ death is for them a moment of revelation (see Matt 11:27; 16:17).

27:55–56 Many women: Compare Jesus’ disciples, who betrayed (Matt 26:48–49); abandoned (Matt 26:56); or denied (Matt 26:69–75) him.

27:57–60 Joseph: Though he was a rich man, Joseph was permission to take it. <sup>59</sup>Joseph took the body, wrapped it in a clean linen cloth, <sup>60</sup>and laid it in his own new tomb, which he had carved out of the rock. After he rolled a large stone at the door of the tomb, he went away. <sup>61</sup>Mary Magdalene and the other Mary were there, sitting in front of the tomb.

Guard at the tomb

<sup>62</sup>The next day, which was the day after Preparation Day, the chief priests and the Pharisees gathered before Pilate. <sup>63</sup>They said, "Sir, we remember that while that deceiver was still alive he said, 'After three days I will arise.' <sup>64</sup>Therefore, order the grave to be sealed until the third day. Otherwise, his disciples may come and steal the body and tell the people, 'He's been raised from the dead.' This last deception will be worse than the first."

<sup>65</sup>Pilate replied, "You have soldiers for guard duty. Go and make it as secure as you know how." <sup>66</sup>Then they went and secured the tomb by sealing the stone and posting the guard.

Resurrection

28 After the Sabbath, at dawn on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary came to look at the tomb. <sup>2</sup>Look, there was a great earthquake, for an angel from the Lord came down from heaven. Coming to the stone, he rolled it away and sat on it. <sup>3</sup>Now his face was like lightning and his clothes as white as snow. <sup>4</sup>The guards were so terrified of him that they shook with fear and became like dead men. <sup>5</sup>But the angel said to the women, "Don't be afraid. I know that you are looking for Jesus who was crucified. <sup>6</sup>He isn't here, because he's been raised from the dead, just as he said. Come, see the place where they laid him. <sup>7</sup>Now hurry, go and tell his disciples, 'He's been raised from the dead. He's going on ahead of you to Galilee. You will see him there.' I've given the message to you."

<sup>8</sup>With great fear and excitement, they hurried away from the tomb and ran to tell his disciples. <sup>9</sup>But Jesus met them and greeted them. They came and grabbed his feet and worshipped him. <sup>10</sup>Then Jesus said to them, "Don't be afraid. Go and tell my brothers that I am going into Galilee. They will see me there."

Guards' report

<sup>11</sup>Now as the women were on their way, some of the guards came into the city and told the chief priests everything that had happened. <sup>12</sup>They met with the elders and decided to give a large sum of money to the soldiers. <sup>13</sup>They told them, "Say that Jesus' disciples came at night and stole his body while you were sleeping. <sup>14</sup>And if the governor hears about this, we will take care of it with him so you will have nothing to worry about." <sup>15</sup>So the soldiers took the money and did as they were told. And this report has spread throughout all Judea to this very day.

Commissioning of the disciples

<sup>16</sup>Now the eleven disciples went to Galilee, to the mountain where Jesus told them to go. <sup>17</sup>When they saw him, they worshipped him, but some doubted. <sup>18</sup>Jesus came near and also a disciple of Jesus (see Matt 19:23-26). Compare with Matthew 14:12. asked for Jesus' body: Victims of crucifixion typically hung on the cross after death as food for scavenging animals. This served as a warning to the populace not to oppose Rome. This is why Joseph had to request the body. 27:62a Preparation Day: the day before the Sabbath.

27:62b-66 chief priests and the Pharisees: Although the chief priests were active in the process that led to Jesus' crucifixion, the Pharisees had nothing to do with Jesus' trial and death. They reappear now in this clear attempt to prove that Jesus was wrong to expect that God would raise him from the dead. This scene sets the stage for Matthew 28:4, 11-15.

28:1 Mary Magdalene and the other Mary: See Matthew 27:56, 61.

28:3 See Daniel 7:9 (cf. Matt 17:2).

28:4 guards: See Matthew 27:65-66.

28:6 just as he said: See Matthew 16:21; 17:9, 23; 20:19; 26:32 (cf. Matt 27:63-64).

28:7 See Matthew 26:32.

28:9 Jesus met them: The two Marys witness the empty tomb (Matt 28:6) and become the first to encounter the resurrected Jesus. grabbed his feet and worshipped him: They recognize that he is no mere human being, but one worthy of their allegiance and devotion.

28:10 brothers: Jesus' disciples (cf. Matt 12:50). Galilee: See Matthew 26:32.

28:11-15 See Matthew 27:62-66; 28:4. The guards had witnessed the earthquake and appearance of the angel at the empty tomb. Like Judas (Matt 26:14-16), they are paid to participate in the schemes of the Jerusalem leadership. 28:16 eleven: Of Jesus' 12 apostles (Matt 10:2-4), only 11 remain after Judas' defection and death (Matt 27:3-10). Galilee: See Matthew 26:32; 27:7. The mountain is unspecified, but its presence here isn't surprising, given the importance of mountains as places of revelation (cf. Matt 5:1; 17:1).

28:17 they worshipped him: See the note on Matthew 28:9. some doubted: The other two occurrences of the word "doubt" are associated with the disciples' weak faith (Matt 14:31; 21:21). The presence of doubt and worship at the same time speaks to the shift in thinking required of Jesus' spoke to them, "I've received all authority in heaven and on earth. <sup>19</sup>Therefore, go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, <sup>20</sup>teaching them to obey everything that I've commanded you. Look, I myself will be with you every day until the end of this present age."

followers (e.g., Matt 16:21-23) and to the need for ongoing development in belief.

28:18: all authority: See Matthew 11:27 (cf. Matt 9:6). Contrast the devil's promise in Matthew 4:8-10.

28:19-20 go and make disciples... baptizing... teaching: The central task given Jesus' followers is to make disciples, with going, baptizing, and teaching serving this central task. Note that they are to make disciples for Jesus (whose commandments they are to obey; cf. Matt 7:21-27), not for themselves. all nations: no longer only "the people of Israel" (Matt 10:5-6). in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit: a formula that anticipates the later Christian doctrine of the triune God. I myself will be with you: Jesus is "Emmanuel," "God with us" (see Matt 1:23).

MARK

Mark's Gospel tells the story of the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus of Nazareth. As the shortest NT Gospel, it's often overlooked by those who want to know more about Jesus' ministry. Mark has no birth story, leaves out many of Jesus' famous teachings, and ends before the risen Jesus appears to his disciples. At times its portrait of both Jesus and the disciples can be troubling. In Mark, Jesus confronts both friend and foe, and even seems to challenge God (Mark 14:36; 15:34). The disciples fail to grasp Jesus' message again and again (Mark 4:13; 6:52; 8:17-21) and disappear when Jesus faces death (Mark 14:27, 50).

In spite of these features—or perhaps because of them—readers appreciate the power of Mark's Gospel. It's probably the earliest written Gospel, and it brings an urgent message about God's coming kingdom. In Mark, Jesus shows the world what that kingdom looks like through deeds of power as well as suffering. Along the way he encourages others to trust in God's kingdom and to join forces with him as God's power defeats evil at every turn. In the end, Jesus' resurrection displays God's power over death itself.

No one knows exactly who wrote this Gospel. The title "according to Mark" was added in the 2nd century CE. Early Christian tradition claims that Mark wrote down the apostle Peter's memories. Others have identified this Mark as the John Mark who traveled with the apostle Paul (see Acts 12:12, 25; 15:37-39; Col 4:10; 2 Tim 4:11; Phlm 24).

Mark is the second of the four Gospels in the NT, but it likely predates all of them for several reasons. First, it's shorter and less polished in style. Second, it tells the story with urgency, using the word "immediately" some 40 times, as though the whole story of Jesus' life rushes toward its climax in his crucifixion. Finally, although Matthew and Luke include much of Mark's message word for word in their Gospels, both add important information about Jesus' birth, his teachings, and his appearances after the resurrection. They also improve Mark's grammar and style. Most scholars believe, then, that the authors of Matthew and Luke used Mark as a written source.

When was Mark written and for whom? Most scholars think the evangelist wrote between 65 and 72 CE. Some believe Mark's audience was Roman Christians, those followers of Christ whom the emperor Nero blamed for a destructive fire in 64 CE. The Gospel's emphasis on Jesus' model of suffering (see 8:34-38) may have been intended to encourage those harassed by Roman authorities (see Mark 13:9) in the fire's aftermath. On the other hand, the Gospel may have first addressed Christians closer to Palestine, perhaps in Syria. Mark 13 seems to reflect the turmoil associated with the Jewish War (66-70 CE), and the theme of Jewish-Christian conflict emerges early in the story (see Mark 2:1-3:6). Whenever it originated, this Gospel emphasizes the cost of following Jesus.

What is a Gospel? Since it portrays Jesus' virtue, some view Mark as an example of Greco-Roman biography. Yet it is more than that. This Gospel also reads like Jewish religious history (e.g., 1-2 Kgs) because it reflects strong religious commitments. It includes the sort of prophecy we find in Jewish writings and reflects a belief that the end of the world is coming soon. Perhaps most important, Mark locates stories about Jesus within the larger story of God's coming kingdom. This Gospel presents a historical narrative that calls for a faithful response to the good news about God's kingdom.

The main story line establishes Jesus of Nazareth as the Jewish Christ, the one anointed to bring God's kingdom to earth. ("Christ" is the Greek word for the Hebrew term "Messiah." Both words can be used to refer to someone anointed by God.) From the beginning we learn that this is a story about the "good news" (or gospel) that "God's kingdom" is fast approaching (Mark 1:14-15). While he heals the sick, casts out demons, tames nature, and challenges religious and political authorities, Jesus also wages hand-to-hand combat against the power of evil. As the story progresses, the tone grows more somber, and Jesus explains the sacrifice that's required from those who take God's side in this confrontation (Mark 8:34-37; 13:9-13). But that's not the end of the story. The women who search for his dead body find instead an empty tomb and this word of hope: "He has been raised. He isn't here" (Mark 16:6).

It's helpful to understand this story in relation to Jewish patterns of thinking that were common in Jesus' day. Many who suffered under Rome's rule desperately hoped that God's heavenly kingdom would gain a foothold on the earth. Mark's good news is that, in Jesus, that kingdom has indeed come near. Those loyal to God's kingdom will suffer in the meantime, but salvation will soon arrive throughout the earth. The message is clear. Followers of Jesus must hold on, keep the faith, and await God's renewal of the world (see Mark 13:14).

Perhaps what's most compelling about Mark is that Jesus' disciples are far from perfect in this story. Sometimes they misunderstand Jesus' teaching (Mark 4:13). At other times they fail to appreciate his power (Mark 4:40; 6:52). They also seek status instead of service (Mark 9:34-37; 10:35-40). They sleep when he's asked them to remain awake (Mark 14:32-42); they scatter when he's arrested (Mark 14:50); and Peter denies him not once but three times (Mark 14:66-72). Despite these faults, Jesus never gives up on his followers. He remains with them, nudging them toward faithfulness. Even after his death and resurrection, a messenger delivers word to the women at Jesus' tomb that Jesus is "going ahead" of the disciples to Galilee (Mark 16:7). Even after his death, the risen Jesus promises his presence as his followers continue to trust God's coming kingdom.

Beginning of good news

1 The beginning of the good news about Jesus Christ, God's Son, <sup>2</sup>happened just as it was written about in the prophecy of Isaiah:

Look, I am sending my messenger before you.

He will prepare your way,

<sup>3</sup>a voice shouting in the wilderness:

"Prepare the way for the Lord;

*make his paths straight."**

John's preaching

<sup>4</sup>John the Baptist was in the wilderness calling for people to be baptized to show that they were changing their hearts and lives and wanted God to forgive their sins. <sup>5</sup>Everyone in Judea and all the people of Jerusalem went out to the Jordan River and were being baptized by John as they confessed their sins. <sup>6</sup>John wore clothes made of camel's hair, with a leather belt around his waist. He ate locusts and wild honey. <sup>7</sup>He announced, "One stronger than I am is coming after me. I'm not even worthy to bend over and loosen the strap of his sandals. <sup>8</sup>I baptize you with water, but he will baptize you with the Holy Spirit."

Jesus is baptized and tempted

<sup>9</sup>About that time, Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and John baptized him in the Jordan River. <sup>10</sup>While he was coming up out of the water, Jesus saw heaven splitting open and the Spirit, like a dove, coming down on him. <sup>11</sup>And there was a voice from heaven: "You are my Son, whom I dearly love; in you I find happiness."

<sup>12</sup>At once the Spirit forced Jesus out into the wilderness. <sup>13</sup>He was in the wilderness for forty days, tempted by Satan. He was among the wild animals, and the angels took care of him.

*Isa 40:3; Mal 3:1; Exod 23:20

1:1 good news: The term "good news" (or "gospel") describes the message that follows in Mark. In the Roman world good news followed victory in battle or the birth of an emperor. Mark traces the good news back to the OT, especially to Isaiah: the good news of God's coming to reign (Isa 40:3-9; 52:6). See note on Mark 1:2. about Jesus Christ: or "of Jesus Christ." The good news includes Jesus' identity as the Christ, or "anointed one." It's also Jesus' good news, since it's the message of his ministry (see Mark 1:14-15). Jesus' identity as the Christ gives him a special role in announcing the revelation of God's kingdom on earth. God's Son: This phrase is missing in some early copies of Mark, but it plays an important role throughout the Gospel (Mark 1:11; 3:11; 5:7; 9:7; 12:6; 14:61; 15:39).

1:2 as it was written: Mark traces the story of Jesus back to Jewish scripture. prophecy of Isaiah: The quotation combines Isaiah 40:3 with Malachi 3:1 and Exodus 23:20. prepare your way: Isaiah looks forward to Israel's return from exile.

1:3 wilderness: In Jewish scripture the wilderness is often the place where God's people encounter God. Mark uses this setting throughout the Gospel (see Mark 1:12, 13, 35, 45; 6:31, 32, 35). Many Jews in Jesus' day thought God would deliver God's people, beginning in the wilderness.

1:4-8 See Matthew 3:1-12; Luke 3:1-20; John 1:19-28. Mark's story begins with John the Baptist. John was a Jewish prophet who challenged people to prepare for the arrival of God's kingdom.

1:4 wilderness: See note on Mark 1:3. baptized: Ritual cleansing from sin was a common practice in 1st-century

Judaism. Those who were pure were prepared for God's kingdom.

1:6 John... honey: These details connect John with the OT portrait of Elijah (see 2 Kgs 1:8). Many believed Elijah would return at the beginning of the end time (Mal 4:5-6).

1:9 Nazareth of Galilee: Jesus' hometown, Nazareth, is in the region of Galilee in modern-day northeastern Palestine. Jesus first appears in Mark as an adult.

1:10 heaven splitting open: Jesus' baptism bridges the gap between heaven and earth. Mark's language associates it with divine revelation (see Isa 64:1; 15:38). Later, in Mark 15:38-39, the ripping of the temple curtain precedes the centurion's confession of Jesus as God's Son.

1:11 my Son, whom I dearly love: See Mark 1:1; Psalm 2:7. In the OT the term "God's son" sometimes applied to kings, to the people of Israel, or to the faithful. For Mark's audience, the name designates Jesus' special role in God's coming kingdom (see Rom 1:1-4).

1:12-13 Mark's account of Jesus' time in the wilderness lacks the details found in the other Gospels (see Matt 4:1-11; Luke 4:1-13).

1:12 At once: Mark regularly uses phrases that convey the urgent nature of Jesus' ministry (see, for instance, Mark 1:18, 20, 21, 23, 28, 29, 30, 42, 43).

1:13 forty days: This length of time is important for Mark. In the OT the Israelites spent 40 years in the wilderness after their exodus from Egypt and before entering the promised land. wild animals: Jesus is apparently at ease in nature. Mark may be referring to the covenant promised in Hosea 2:18, where harmony with creation will be reestablished.

Jesus' message

<sup>14</sup>After John was arrested, Jesus came into Galilee announcing God's good news, <sup>15</sup>saying, "Now is the time! Here comes God's kingdom! Change your hearts and lives, and trust this good news!"

Jesus calls disciples

<sup>16</sup>As Jesus passed alongside the Galilee Sea, he saw two brothers, Simon and Andrew, throwing fishing nets into the sea, for they were fishermen. <sup>17</sup>"Come, follow me," he said, "and I'll show you how to fish for people." <sup>18</sup>Right away, they left their nets and followed him. <sup>19</sup>After going a little farther, he saw James and John, Zebedee's sons, in their boat repairing the fishing nets. <sup>20</sup>At that very moment he called them. They followed him, leaving their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired workers.

Jesus throws a demon out

<sup>21</sup>Jesus and his followers went into Capernaum. Immediately on the Sabbath Jesus entered the synagogue and started teaching. <sup>22</sup>The people were amazed by his teaching, for he was teaching them with authority, not like the legal experts. <sup>23</sup>Suddenly, there in the synagogue, a person with an evil spirit screamed, <sup>24</sup>"What have you to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are. You are the holy one from God."

<sup>25</sup>"Silence!" Jesus said, speaking harshly to the demon. "Come out of him!" <sup>26</sup>The unclean spirit shook him and screamed, then it came out.

<sup>27</sup>Everyone was shaken and questioned among themselves, "What's this? A new teaching with authority! He even commands unclean spirits and they obey him!" <sup>28</sup>Right away the news about him spread throughout the entire region of Galilee.

Jesus heals Simon's mother-in-law

<sup>29</sup>After leaving the synagogue, Jesus, James, and John went home with Simon and Andrew. <sup>30</sup>Simon's mother-in-law was in bed, sick with a fever, and they told Jesus about her at once. <sup>31</sup>He went to her, took her by the hand, and raised her up. The fever left her, and she served them.

Jesus' ministry spreads

<sup>32</sup>That evening, at sunset, people brought to Jesus those who were sick or demon-possessed. <sup>33</sup>The whole town gathered near the door. <sup>34</sup>He healed many who were sick with all kinds of diseases, and he threw out many demons. But he didn't let the demons speak, because they recognized him.

1:14-15 See Matthew 4:12-17; Luke 4:14-15. Mark summarizes Jesus' message.

1:14 After . . . arrested: Mark portrays Jesus as John's successor. Their ministries don't overlap. God's good news: Mark clarifies the content of that good news in Mark 1:15. See note on Mark 1:1.

1:15 Now is the time!: or "the time has been fulfilled." What people have been waiting for is now on the horizon. God's kingdom: See sidebar, "God's Kingdom" at Mark 3. Change your hearts and lives: Like John, Jesus calls for an active response to the good news. trust this good news: In Mark, Jesus builds people's trust in God and in the truth of God's kingdom (cf. John 20:30-31). See sidebar, "Faith/Trust" at Mark 11.

1:16-20 See Matthew 4:18-22; Luke 5:1-11. Jesus' first public act is to call four fishermen to follow him. See sidebar, "The Disciples in Mark" at Mark 5.

1:17 follow me: In Judaism rabbis often shared their wisdom with their followers. fish for people: The OT prophet Jeremiah writes about God calling people to "catch" others in the net of God's coming kingdom (see Jer 16:16).

1:21-28 See Matthew 7:28-29; Luke 4:31-37.

1:21 Capernaum: a seaside Galilean village. synagogue: a Jewish community center for instruction and prayer.

1:22 amazed: People often respond to Jesus with amazement (see Mark 6:2; 7:37; 10:26; 12:17). legal experts: This group opposes Jesus throughout the Gospel (see Mark 2:6, 16). They were trained to interpret Jewish Law.

1:24 us: The plural pronoun suggests a host of evil spirits torment the man. holy one from God: Evil spirits often recognize Jesus' special relationship to God when humans don't (see Mark 1:34; 3:11).

1:25 "Silence!": Jesus rebukes the demon with a command that's common in ancient writings. In Mark, Jesus often keeps characters from telling others about his identity (see Mark 1:34; 3:11-12; 8:30; 9:30). See sidebar, "Secrecy" at Mark 8.

1:27 "What's this? A new teaching . . . obey him!": The crowd marvels at Jesus' authority in word and deed. Together, his instruction (Mark 1:22) and his power over evil (see also Mark 3:5; 6:7) suggest Jesus brings a divine presence into the world.

1:29-31 See Matthew 8:14-15; Luke 4:38-39.

1:31 by the hand: Jesus often heals by physical touch (see Mark 1:41; 5:41; 8:23, 25). This implies that health, rather than illness, is contagious. she served them: The verb recalls the angels' care for Jesus in the wilderness and is related to the term "deacon" (see Mark 1:13; 10:45). This healed woman plays an important role in the ministry of Jesus and his followers.

1:32-39 See Matthew 8:16-17; 4:23; Luke 4:40-44.

1:34 threw out many demons: Jesus removes evil from

<sup>35</sup>Early in the morning, well before sunrise, Jesus rose and went to a deserted place where he could be alone in prayer. <sup>36</sup>Simon and those with him tracked him down. <sup>37</sup>When they found him, they told him, "Everyone's looking for you!"

<sup>38</sup>He replied, "Let's head in the other direction, to the nearby villages, so that I can preach there too. That's why I've come." <sup>39</sup>He traveled throughout Galilee, preaching in their synagogues and throwing out demons.

A man with a skin disease

<sup>40</sup>A man with a skin disease approached Jesus, fell to his knees, and begged, "If you want, you can make me clean."

<sup>41</sup>Incensed,<sup>b</sup> Jesus reached out his hand, touched him, and said, "I do want to. Be clean."

<sup>42</sup>Instantly, the skin disease left him, and he was clean. <sup>43</sup>Sternly, Jesus sent him away, <sup>44</sup>saying, "Don't say anything to anyone. Instead, go and show yourself to the priest and offer the sacrifice for your cleansing that Moses commanded. This will be a testimony to them."

<sup>45</sup>Instead, he went out and started talking freely and spreading the news so that Jesus wasn't able to enter a town openly. He remained outside in deserted places, but people came to him from everywhere.

Healing and forgiveness

2After a few days, Jesus went back to Capernaum, and people heard that he was at home. <sup>2</sup>So many gathered that there was no longer space, not even near the door. Jesus was speaking the word to them. <sup>3</sup>Some people arrived, and four of them were bringing to him a man who was paralyzed. <sup>4</sup>They couldn't carry him through the crowd, so they tore off part of the roof above where Jesus was. When they had made an opening, they lowered the mat on which the paralyzed man was lying. <sup>5</sup>When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralytic, "Child, your sins are forgiven!"

<sup>6</sup>Some legal experts were sitting there, muttering among themselves, <sup>7</sup>"Why does he speak this way? He's insulting God. Only the one God can forgive sins."

<sup>8</sup>Jesus immediately recognized what they were discussing, and he said to them, "Why do you fill your minds with these questions? <sup>9</sup>Which is easier—to say to a paralyzed person, 'Your sins are forgiven,' or to say, 'Get up, take up your bed, and walk'?" <sup>10</sup>But so you will know that the Human One<sup>c</sup> has authority on the earth to forgive sins"—he said to the man who was paralyzed, <sup>11</sup>"Get up, take your mat, and go home."

<sup>12</sup>Jesus raised him up, and right away he picked up his mat and walked out in front of everybody. They were all amazed and praised God, saying, "We've never seen anything like this!"

those it possesses (see Mark 1:39; 3:13; 6:13). didn't let the demons speak: See note on Mark 1:25.

1:35 a deserted place: or "wilderness." See note on Mark 1:3.

1:38 the other direction: Jesus deliberately expands the scope of his ministry. Although he stays in Galilee for now, his travels will eventually take him into Gentile territory (see Mark 5:1; 6:53; 7:24, 31). This shows that God's coming kingdom includes both Jewish and non-Jewish people (see Mark 13:27).

1:40-45 See Matthew 8:1-4; Luke 5:12-16.

1:40 skin disease: refers to different kinds of blemishes but probably not to what we today call leprosy (i.e., Hansen's disease). According to Leviticus 13-14, skin disease disqualified people from participating in religious rituals. People with blemishes were kept apart from others to prevent the spread of their disease (see 2 Kgs 7:3-10; 2 Chron 26:19-21).

1:41 Incensed: Some Greek manuscripts say that Jesus was "filled with compassion." Scribes who made copies of Mark may have found Jesus' anger troubling and softened the tone. This statement of Jesus' fury, though, fits the aggressive nature of his combat against evil.

1:44 show yourself to the priest: Priests determined whether a person was clean or unclean. Jesus' instruction is a reminder that he worked within Judaism, not outside of it.

1:45 the news: refers to Jesus' message about God's coming kingdom (see Mark 1:14-15; 2:2; 4:14-20; 5:36). deserted places: See note on Mark 1:3.

2:1-3:6 Mark presents a series of stories of conflict between Jesus and Jewish leaders.

2:1-12 See Matthew 9:1-8; Luke 5:17-26.

2:2 the word: See note on Mark 1:45.

2:5 their faith: In Mark faith is depending on the good news of God's coming kingdom. These people show faith by trusting that Jesus offers God's power over physical ailments. See sidebar, "Faith/Trust" at Mark 11.

2:6 legal experts: See note on Mark 1:22.

2:10 Human One: a common term in Mark (see Mark 2:28; 8:31, 38; 9:12; 10:45; 13:26; 14:21). As an agent of God's coming kingdom, Jesus claims authority to forgive sins. He may suggest that people who trust God's power will also have that authority. See sidebar, "The Human One in Mark" at Mark 14.

Eating with sinners

<sup>13</sup>Jesus went out beside the lake again. The whole crowd came to him, and he began to teach them. <sup>14</sup>As he continued along, he saw Levi, Alphaeus' son, sitting at a kiosk for collecting taxes. Jesus said to him, "Follow me." Levi got up and followed him.

<sup>15</sup>Jesus sat down to eat at Levi's house. Many tax collectors and sinners were eating with Jesus and his disciples. Indeed, many of them had become his followers. <sup>16</sup>When some of the legal experts from among the Pharisees saw that he was eating with sinners and tax collectors, they asked his disciples, "Why is he eating with sinners and tax collectors?"

<sup>17</sup>When Jesus heard it, he said to them, "Healthy people don't need a doctor, but sick people do. I didn't come to call righteous people, but sinners."

When to fast

<sup>18</sup>John's disciples and the Pharisees had a habit of fasting. Some people asked Jesus, "Why do John's disciples and the Pharisees' disciples fast, but yours don't?"

<sup>19</sup>Jesus said, "The wedding guests can't fast while the groom is with them, can they? As long as they have the groom with them, they can't fast. <sup>20</sup>But the days will come when the groom will be taken away from them, and then they will fast.

Scripture and the Sabbath

<sup>23</sup>Jesus went through the wheat fields on the Sabbath. As the disciples made their way, they were picking the heads of wheat. <sup>24</sup>The Pharisees said to Jesus, "Look! Why are they breaking the Sabbath law?"

<sup>25</sup>He said to them, "Haven't you ever read what David did when he was in need, when he and those with him were hungry? <sup>26</sup>During the time when Abiathar was high priest, David went into God's house and ate the bread of the presence, which only the priests were allowed to eat. He also gave bread to those who were with him." <sup>27</sup>Then he said, "The Sabbath was created for humans; humans weren't created for the Sabbath. <sup>28</sup>This is why the Human One<sup>d</sup> is Lord even over the Sabbath."

Healing on the Sabbath

3 Jesus returned to the synagogue. A man with a withered hand was there. <sup>2</sup>Wanting to bring charges against Jesus, they were watching Jesus closely to see if he would heal on the Sabbath. <sup>3</sup>He said to the man with the withered hand, "Step up where people can see you." <sup>4</sup>Then he said to them, "Is it legal on the Sabbath to do good or to do evil, to save life or 2:13-17 See Matthew 9:9-13; Luke 5:27-32. Mark combines another call to discipleship (2:13-14; see Mark 1:16-20) with a report about Jesus eating with tax collectors and sinners (2:15-17). These groups were typically excluded from normal social interaction.

 2:16 legal experts from among the Pharisees: Here, Mark identifies these "legal experts" with another Jewish group, the Pharisees. Pharisees interpreted Jewish Law in a way that offered priestly status to everyone. Since that meant following standards of purity at home, table fellowship with sinners and tax collectors violated their reading of the Torah. See note on Mark 1:22.
 2:17 Righteousness is a result, not a precondition, of sharing a meal with Jesus.
 2:18-22 See Matthew 9:14-17; Luke 5:33-39.
 2:18 fast: Jewish Law required a yearly fast to prepare for God's forgiveness (Lev 16:29). Some Jews fasted more frequently as an act of devotion to God.
 2:19 wedding guests: OT prophets often use wedding imagery to express the joy that's a part of God's coming kingdom (see Isa 54:4-8; 62:4-5; Ezek 16:1-63; Hos 2:19).

 2:21-22 Jesus points out the dangers of mixing new and old. His disciples aren't fasting because they belong to the new humanity as part of the community of Christ's followers.
 2:23-28 See Matthew 12:1-8; Luke 6:1-5. As a rabbi, Jesus is responsible for his disciples' actions.
 2:26 Abiathar: 1 Samuel 21:1-6 says Ahimelech, not his son Abiathar, was high priest when David shared the sacred bread.
 2:27 Jesus emphasizes the purpose of Jewish Law, which is to benefit humanity.
 2:28 This is why: or "so that." Human One: See sidebar, "The Human One in Mark" at Mark 14.
 3:1-6 See Matthew 12:9-14; Luke 6:6-11. This story concludes the section that began in Mark 2:1.

to kill?" But they said nothing. <sup>8</sup>Looking around at them with anger, deeply grieved at their unyielding hearts, he said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." So he did, and his hand was made healthy. <sup>9</sup>At that, the Pharisees got together with the supporters of Herod to plan how to destroy Jesus.

Healing and throwing demons out

<sup>7</sup>Jesus left with his disciples and went to the lake. A large crowd followed him because they had heard what he was doing. They were from Galilee, <sup>8</sup>Judea, Jerusalem, Idumea, beyond the Jordan, and the area surrounding Tyre and Sidon. <sup>9</sup>Jesus told his disciples to get a small boat ready for him so the crowd wouldn't crush him. <sup>10</sup>He had healed so many people that everyone who was sick pushed forward so that they could touch him. <sup>11</sup>Whenever the evil spirits saw him, they fell down at his feet and shouted, "You are God's Son!" <sup>12</sup>But he strictly ordered them not to reveal who he was.

Jesus appoints twelve apostles

<sup>13</sup>Jesus went up on a mountain and called those he wanted, and they came to him. <sup>14</sup>He appointed twelve and called them apostles. He appointed them to be with him, to be sent out to preach, <sup>15</sup>and to have authority to throw out demons. <sup>16</sup>He appointed twelve: Peter, a name he gave Simon; <sup>17</sup>James and John, Zebedee's sons, whom he nicknamed Boanerges, which means "sons of Thunder"; <sup>18</sup>and Andrew; Philip; Bartholomew; Matthew; Thomas; James, Alphaeus' son; Thaddaeus; Simon the Cananaean; <sup>19</sup>and Judas Iscariot, who betrayed Jesus.

God's Kingdom In Mark the good news Jesus proclaims is that God's kingdom is on the horizon. Historians agree this message was the trademark of Jesus' earthly ministry. But how are we to understand the term "God's kingdom"? For Mark it's the very real hope, rooted in Jewish thought, that God's power will soon overwhelm Rome's. The book of Daniel, for instance, speaks of God's kingdom at last prevailing over all the evil rulers who have gone before (Dan 7:26-27). In Mark, Jesus is the Jewish Christ who establishes God's kingdom by fighting the forces of evil (Mark 3:27) wherever they appear—in demons, illness, human need, and abusive power. Even though he was writing several decades after Jesus' death, Mark expects God's kingdom will arrive at any moment. In the meantime, those who trust in God's kingdom suffer at the hands of those whose power comes from the present evil age. By following a suffering Christ, Mark's audience takes its place within God's new world order, which uses power for good. Evil—even death itself—will finally lose its grip upon the earth.

who have a strict interpretation of the sabbath law, according to which healing on the Sabbath isn't allowed.

3:5 with anger, deeply grieved: Mark notes Jesus' emotional response to his opponents (see Mark 1:41; 14:19). unyielding hearts: Like Pharaoh in the OT (see Exod 7:3), the Pharisees resist God's power.

3:6 supporters of Herod: Herod Antipas ruled Galilee during Jesus' lifetime. The Pharisees joined forces with his supporters to achieve their destructive aims.

3:7-8 Galilee... Tyre and Sidon: Mark stresses the diversity of the crowd around Jesus. His followers come from both Jewish and non-Jewish locations.

3:7 lake: a term often used for the Sea of Galilee. Much of Jesus' ministry takes place near this body of water (see Mark 1:16; 2:13; 4:1). large crowd: Mark contrasts the Pharisees' destructive plans with Jesus' increasing popularity.

3:10 touch him: See note on Mark 1:31.

3:11 God's Son: See Mark 1:1, 11. fell down at his feet: a posture of worship (see Mark 5:33; 7:25). In Mark evil spirits recognize Jesus (see Mark 1:24).

3:12 strictly ordered them: See Mark 1:25, 43. See sidebar, "Secrecy" at Mark 8.

3:13-19 See Matthew 10:1-4; Luke 6:12-16. Jesus calls and equips his apostles to join his mission. See sidebar, "The Disciples in Mark" at Mark 5.

3:13 up on a mountain: Like Moses (Exod 19) and Elijah (1 Kgs 19:8), Jesus approaches God at a critical moment in his ministry. Unlike them, he enlists his followers to help reveal God's kingdom.

3:14 twelve: In the OT Israel was made up of 12 tribes (see Gen 49:28; Num 1:4-16). In Jesus' time, most of these had lost their identity through migration, exile, and intermarriage. By choosing 12 apostles, Jesus symbolized his mission to restore Israel as part of God's coming kingdom (see Ezek 47:13). apostles: The term means "those who are sent out." be with him: These apostles are called first to be "with" Jesus, to remain with him, and only then to be sent out. preach: The apostles will announce the same message (see Mark 1:45; 2:2) about God's coming kingdom that Jesus proclaims (see Mark 1:14-15).

3:15 authority to throw out demons: Like Jesus, the apostles will exercise God's power over evil spirits.

3:16-19 Peter... Judas Iscariot: Compare with the lists of apostles in Matthew 10:2-4; Luke 6:14-16; John 1:40-49; 21:2; Acts 1:13.

3:17 Boanerges... "sons of Thunder": Mark translates the

Misunderstandings about Jesus

<sup>20</sup>Jesus entered a house. A crowd gathered again so that it was impossible for him and his followers even to eat. <sup>21</sup>When his family heard what was happening, they came to take control of him. They were saying, "He's out of his mind!"

<sup>22</sup>The legal experts came down from Jerusalem. Over and over they charged, "He's possessed by Beelzebul. He throws out demons with the authority of the ruler of demons."

<sup>23</sup>When Jesus called them together he spoke to them in a parable: "How can Satan throw Satan out? <sup>24</sup>A kingdom involved in civil war will collapse. <sup>25</sup>And a house torn apart by divisions will collapse. <sup>26</sup>If Satan rebels against himself and is divided, then he can't endure. He's done for. <sup>27</sup>No one gets into the house of a strong person and steals anything without first tying up the strong person. Only then can the house be burglarized. <sup>28</sup>I assure you that human beings will be forgiven for everything, for all sins and insults of every kind. <sup>29</sup>But whoever insults the Holy Spirit will never be forgiven. That person is guilty of a sin with consequences that last forever." <sup>30</sup>He said this because the legal experts were saying, "He's possessed by an evil spirit."

<sup>31</sup>His mother and brothers arrived. They stood outside and sent word to him, calling for him. <sup>32</sup>A crowd was seated around him, and those sent to him said, "Look, your mother, brothers, and sisters are outside looking for you."

<sup>33</sup>He replied, "Who is my mother? Who are my brothers?" <sup>34</sup>Looking around at those seated around him in a circle, he said, "Look, here are my mother and my brothers. <sup>35</sup>Whoever does God's will is my brother, sister, and mother."

Parable of the soils

4 Jesus began to teach beside the lake again. Such a large crowd gathered that he climbed into a boat there on the lake. He sat in the boat while the whole crowd was nearby on the shore. <sup>2</sup>He said many things to them in parables. While teaching them, he said, <sup>3</sup>"Listen to this! A farmer went out to scatter seed. <sup>4</sup>As he was scattering seed, some fell on the path; and the birds came and ate it. <sup>5</sup>Other seed fell on rocky ground where the soil was shallow. They sprouted immediately because the soil wasn't deep. <sup>6</sup>When the sun came up, it scorched the plants; and they dried up because they had no roots. <sup>7</sup>Other seed fell among thorny plants. The thorny plants grew and choked the seeds, and they produced nothing. <sup>8</sup>Other seed fell into good soil and bore fruit. Upon growing and increasing, the seed produced in one case a yield of thirty to one, in another case a yield of sixty to one, and in another case a yield of one hundred to one." <sup>9</sup>He said, "Whoever has ears to listen should pay attention!"

Aramaic word for his Greek-speaking audience (see Mark 5:41; 7:11, 34; 10:46; 11:9-10; 14:36; 15:22, 34, 42).

3:20-35 See Matthew 12:22-32; Luke 11:14-23; 12:10. These stories emphasize absolute loyalty to God's will.

3:20 house: In Mark, Jesus' ministry often takes place in homes (see Mark 1:29, 32-33; 2:1). Early Christian communities like Mark's also met in homes. The church was the gathering of people, not a building.

3:22 legal experts... Jerusalem: For the first time, Mark connects Jesus' opponents with the capital city. See note on Mark 1:22. Beelzebul: The name echoes an OT term that mocks competing gods ("Lord of the Flies"; see 2 Kgs 1:2). By Jesus' time it was a name for Satan, who rules over the demons.

3:23 parable: a story that uses a familiar example from daily life to illustrate a point. Parables aren't always easy to understand (see Mark 4:13).

3:27 strong person: As the "stronger" one (Mark 1:7), Jesus restrains even Satan's power as part of the housecleaning that reveals God's kingdom (see Isa 49:24-25).

3:29 insults the Holy Spirit: the only sin that can't be forgiven. Since Jesus' combat against Satan is the work of God's Spirit, the legal experts have offended God by calling it the work of Beelzebul (Mark 3:22).

3:32 mother, brothers, and sisters: Mark doesn't mention Jesus' father, either here or in Mark 6:3. This may imply that God is the true head of God's family, or it may be that Jesus' father has already died.

3:35 God's will: Jesus understands family in terms of loyalty to God's kingdom rather than as a bloodline. Since that loyalty can create division within families, this saying offers a new family of origin to those who follow Jesus.

4:1-34 The breathless pace of Mark's story slows down in this chapter. Here Jesus teaches about God's coming kingdom. He uses parables (see note on Mark 3:23) to portray the nature of that kingdom and its growth.

4:1-9 See Matthew 13:1-9; Luke 8:4-8. Because they depended on the land for their livelihood, Jesus' hearers were familiar with the images in this story.

4:3 Listen to this!: Hearing Jesus' words isn't enough. He wants people to genuinely understand what he's saying (see Mark 4:12).

4:8 thirty to one... one hundred to one: Even good soil produces a variety of yields.

Jesus explains his parable

<sup>10</sup>When they were alone, the people around Jesus, along with the Twelve, asked him about the parables. <sup>11</sup>He said to them, "The secret of God's kingdom has been given to you, but to those who are outside everything comes in parables. <sup>12</sup>This is so that they can look and see but have no insight, and they can hear but not understand. Otherwise, they might turn their lives around and be forgiven.

<sup>13</sup>"Don't you understand this parable? Then how will you understand all the parables?"

<sup>14</sup>The farmer scatters the word. <sup>15</sup>This is the meaning of the seed that fell on the path: When the word is scattered and people hear it, right away Satan comes and steals the word that was planted in them. <sup>16</sup>Here's the meaning of the seed that fell on rocky ground: When people hear the word, they immediately receive it joyfully. <sup>17</sup>Because they have no roots, they last for only a little while. When they experience distress or abuse because of the word, they immediately fall away. <sup>18</sup>Others are like the seed scattered among the thorny plants. These are the ones who have heard the word; <sup>19</sup>but the worries of this life, the false appeal of wealth, and the desire for more things break in and choke the word, and it bears no fruit. <sup>20</sup>The seed scattered on good soil are those who hear the word and embrace it. They bear fruit, in one case a yield of thirty to one, in another case sixty to one, and in another case one hundred to one."

Parables about lamps and measures

<sup>21</sup>Jesus said to them, "Does anyone bring in a lamp in order to put it under a basket or a bed? Shouldn't it be placed on a lampstand? <sup>22</sup>Everything hidden will be revealed, and everything secret will come out into the open. <sup>23</sup>Whoever has ears to listen should pay attention!"

<sup>24</sup>He said to them, "Listen carefully! God will evaluate you with the same standard you use to evaluate others. Indeed, you will receive even more. <sup>25</sup>Those who have will receive more, but as for those who don't have, even what they don't have will be taken away from them."

More parables about God's kingdom

<sup>26</sup>Then Jesus said, "This is what God's kingdom is like. It's as though someone scatters seed on the ground, <sup>27</sup>then sleeps and wakes night and day. The seed sprouts and grows, but the farmer doesn't know how. <sup>28</sup>The earth produces crops all by itself, first the stalk, then the head, then the full head of grain. <sup>29</sup>Whenever the crop is ready, the farmer goes out to cut the grain because it's harvesttime."

<sup>30</sup>He continued, "What's a good image for God's kingdom? What parable can I use to explain it? <sup>31</sup>Consider a mustard seed. When scattered on the ground, it's the smallest of all the seeds on the earth, <sup>32</sup>but when it's planted, it grows and becomes the largest of all vegetable plants. It produces such large branches that the birds in the sky are able to nest in its shade."

4:10-20 See Matthew 13:10-23; Luke 8:9-15.

4:10 people around Jesus: Jesus turns from the "whole crowd" (Mark 4:1) to a smaller group of followers that includes the Twelve (see Mark 3:13-19), as well as others.

4:11 secret . . . to you: The phrase points to the mysterious nature of God's kingdom. Not everyone understands the mystery, but it has been given to his followers. See sidebar, "Secrecy" at Mark 8. those . . . outside: notes the gap between insiders and outsiders (see Dan 2:18-19, 27-30). in parables: Outsiders grasp only the surface meaning of the story, not the deeper truth to which it points. See note on Mark 3:23.

4:12 See Isaiah 6:9-10. Parables are hard to understand, so they can prevent people from changing their lives and receiving forgiveness (cf. Matt 13:13-14; Luke 8:10).

4:13-20 Jesus interprets the parable.

4:13 Don't you understand this parable?: Jesus accuses even insiders of missing the point of his story (see Mark 4:12). Because they're "with him" (Mark 3:14), he explains it in detail. See sidebar, "The Disciples in Mark" at Mark 5.

4:14 the word: Jesus identifies the seed with the message about God's coming kingdom. See note on Mark 1:45.

4:15 Satan: See Mark 1:13; 3:23-27. Satan represents, in the form of a person, those evil forces that challenge the power of God's kingdom. planted in them: See 1 Corinthians 3:6-8.

4:20 hear the word . . . embrace it . . . bear fruit: The verbs follow a deliberate sequence, from hearing to embracing to bearing fruit. Although the harvest varies (see note on Mark 4:1-9), the yield far exceeds the number of seeds spread (see Mark 4:30-32).

4:21-25 See Matthew 5:15; 7:2; 10:26; 13:12; 25:29; Luke 6:38; 8:16-18; 11:33; 12:2; 19:26. These parables suggest God's mysterious kingdom will soon be revealed (cf. Mark 4:12). They also remind those who hear Jesus of their role in disclosing it.

4:24 evaluate . . . same standard: God measures results, just as humans do. Here the results relate to the growth of the kingdom (see Mark 4:9, 20).

4:25 Those who have . . . taken away: In Mark, what hearers have refers to the mystery "given" to them (Mark 4:11). It's a secret to be shared, not kept from others (Mark 4:21-22).

4:26-33 Jesus' teachings end with two more examples from the earth.

4:28 by itself or "automatically": The farmer scatters seed but trusts God to produce results.

4:32 the largest of all vegetable plants: A very small <sup>33</sup>With many such parables he continued to give them the word, as much as they were able to hear. <sup>34</sup>He spoke to them only in parables, then explained everything to his disciples when he was alone with them.

Jesus stops a storm

<sup>35</sup>Later that day, when evening came, Jesus said to them, "Let's cross over to the other side of the lake." <sup>36</sup>They left the crowd and took him in the boat just as he was. Other boats followed along.

<sup>37</sup>Gale-force winds arose, and waves crashed against the boat so that the boat was swamped. <sup>38</sup>But Jesus was in the rear of the boat, sleeping on a pillow. They woke him up and said, "Teacher, don't you care that we're drowning?"

<sup>39</sup>He got up and gave orders to the wind, and he said to the lake, "Silence! Be still!" The wind settled down and there was a great calm. <sup>40</sup>Jesus asked them, "Why are you frightened? Don't you have faith yet?"

<sup>41</sup>Overcome with awe, they said to each other, "Who then is this? Even the wind and the sea obey him!"

Jesus frees a demon-possessed man

5 Jesus and his disciples came to the other side of the lake, to the region of the Gerasenes. <sup>2</sup>As soon as Jesus got out of the boat, a man possessed by an evil spirit came out of the tombs. <sup>3</sup>This man lived among the tombs, and no one was ever strong enough to restrain him, even with a chain. <sup>4</sup>He had been secured many times with leg irons and chains, but he broke the chains and smashed the leg irons. No one was tough enough to control him. <sup>5</sup>Night and day in the tombs and the hills, he would howl and cut himself with stones. <sup>6</sup>When he saw Jesus from far away, he ran and knelt before him, <sup>7</sup>shouting, "What have you to do with me, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? Swear to God that you won't torture me!"

<sup>8</sup>He said this because Jesus had already commanded him, "Unclean spirit, come out of the man!"

<sup>9</sup>Jesus asked him, "What is your name?"

seed produces a very large bush. birds... shade: The image may refer to the wide reach of God's kingdom, since Jewish literature sometimes portrays Gentiles as birds who take shelter in God's tree (see Ezek 17:23; Dan 4:12).

4:35-41 See Matthew 8:23-27; Luke 8:22-25. In all three sea-crossing stories (see Mark 6:45-52; 8:14-21), the disciples show more fear than faith.

4:35 other side: Jesus expands his sphere of influence. See note on Mark 1:38. lake: Ancient people often associated the lake/sea with the power of evil (see Rev 21:1). See note on Mark 3:7.

4:38 sleeping: The disciples find fault with Jesus for sleeping. Elsewhere, though, sleeping is evidence of trust in God (see Mark 4:27; Pss 3:5; 4:8; Job 11:18-19).

4:39 gave orders: Jesus often shows his authority over evil spirits by giving them orders (see Mark 1:25; 3:12; 9:25).

4:40 frightened... faith: Fear and faith are opposites. The disciples do trust Jesus—after all, they expected him to

The Disciples in Mark Throughout Mark the disciples fail to understand what Jesus says and does. He must explain the parables to them (Mark 4:13-20, 33-34). They're surprised by his power over the sea (Mark 4:40-41), they don't understand "about the loaves" (Mark 6:52), they deny his predictions of his destiny (Mark 8:32), and they're absent from the empty tomb (Mark 16:1-8). On the other hand, they're involved with Jesus from early in his ministry (Mark 1:16-20), they play an active part in his mission (Mark 6:7-13), and he expects them to continue his witness after his death (Mark 13:9-14). What are we to make of such a mixed review? One popular view is that Mark contrasts these insiders with outsiders—such as women, children, and even a Roman centurion—who appear as more faithful followers. But Mark's picture is even more complex. Mark may include the disciples' flaws to make them seem more real to his audience. Like the original disciples, Mark's audience probably followed Jesus at great personal cost (Mark 10:28-30). But if they see firsthand the power of evil at work in the world, they may still struggle to trust God's coming kingdom. Perhaps Mark offers a realistic glimpse of fallible followers to encourage his audience along the way. After all, despite their faults and fears, the risen Lord promises to go "ahead of you into Galilee" (Mark 16:7).

rescue them (Mark 4:38). But they don't seem to trust that God's power over evil is available to them as well (see Mark 3:15).

4:41 Who then is this?: The disciples are surprised by Jesus' power. Although Jesus doesn't seek fame, characters in Mark's story keep calling attention to his remarkable abilities (see Mark 1:27).

5:1-20 See Matthew 8:28-34; Luke 8:26-39.

5:1 other side of the lake: See note on Mark 1:38.

5:2 the tombs: Traditions about evil spirits living in tombs were common in Mark's day (see Isa 65:1-7).

5:7 Son of the Most High God: This is a typically Gentile name for God in the OT (see Isa 14:14; Dan 3:26; 4:2). The man's request not to be tortured by Jesus is ironic, since the evil spirits have been busy torturing the possessed man (Mark 5:4-5). See note on Mark 1:24.

5:9 Legion: a Roman military term for a group of about 6,000 soldiers. Jesus may be outnumbered, but he easily takes command of his opponent(s).

He responded, "Legion is my name, because we are many." <sup>10</sup>They pleaded with Jesus not to send them out of that region.

<sup>11</sup>A large herd of pigs was feeding on the hillside. <sup>12</sup>"Send us into the pigs!" they begged. "Let us go into the pigs!" <sup>13</sup>Jesus gave them permission, so the unclean spirits left the man and went into the pigs. Then the herd of about two thousand pigs rushed down the cliff into the lake and drowned.

<sup>14</sup>Those who tended the pigs ran away and told the story in the city and in the countryside. People came to see what had happened. <sup>15</sup>They came to Jesus and saw the man who used to be demon-possessed. They saw the very man who had been filled with many demons sitting there fully dressed and completely sane, and they were filled with awe. <sup>16</sup>Those who had actually seen what had happened to the demon-possessed man told the others about the pigs. <sup>17</sup>Then they pleaded with Jesus to leave their region.

<sup>18</sup>While he was climbing into the boat, the one who had been demon-possessed pleaded with Jesus to let him come along as one of his disciples. <sup>19</sup>But Jesus wouldn't allow it. "Go home to your own people," Jesus said, "and tell them what the Lord has done for you and how he has shown you mercy." <sup>20</sup>The man went away and began to proclaim in the Ten Cities all that Jesus had done for him, and everyone was amazed.

Jesus heals two people

<sup>21</sup>Jesus crossed the lake again, and on the other side a large crowd gathered around him on the shore. <sup>22</sup>Jairus, one of the synagogue leaders, came forward. When he saw Jesus, he fell at his feet <sup>23</sup>and pleaded with him, "My daughter is about to die. Please, come and place your hands on her so that she can be healed and live." <sup>24</sup>So Jesus went with him.

A swarm of people were following Jesus, crowding in on him. <sup>25</sup>A woman was there who had been bleeding for twelve years. <sup>26</sup>She had suffered a lot under the care of many doctors, and had spent everything she had without getting any better. In fact, she had gotten worse. <sup>27</sup>Because she had heard about Jesus, she came up behind him in the crowd and touched his clothes. <sup>28</sup>She was thinking, If I can just touch his clothes, I'll be healed. <sup>29</sup>Her bleeding stopped immediately, and she sensed in her body that her illness had been healed.

<sup>30</sup>At that very moment, Jesus recognized that power had gone out from him. He turned around in the crowd and said, "Who touched my clothes?"

<sup>31</sup>His disciples said to him, "Don't you see the crowd pressing against you? Yet you ask, 'Who touched me?'" <sup>32</sup>But Jesus looked around carefully to see who had done it.

5:11 herd of pigs: Pigs are unclean according to Jewish Law (Lev 11:7-8; Isa 65:4; 66:17).

5:15 filled with awe: or "they feared." The people's response to Jesus' throwing out the demons is the same as the disciples' response to Jesus' power over the wind and sea (see Mark 4:41).

5:17 pleaded...leave their region: For these people, evidence of God's power among them is unsettling.

5:19 your own people: Jesus sends the man home to share with his neighbors the good news that he is no longer possessed by an evil spirit. what the Lord has done: Jesus is probably referring to God, the giver of mercy. This command, then, is consistent with other instances when Jesus discourages attempts to spread the message about his power (see Mark 1:34, 44).

5:20 Ten Cities: Sometimes called the Decapolis, this region was to the east of the Jordan River, and many Jews lived there. all that Jesus had done for him: Jesus had urged him to go home to report God's merciful deed (Mark 5:19). The man, though, stays and proclaims Jesus' power over the demons.

5:21-43 See Matthew 9:18-26; Luke 8:40-56. Mark surrounds Jesus' encounter with a bleeding woman with a report about Jairus' daughter. The stories share similarities:

Both feature females, and the woman has suffered for the same number of years (12) the child has been alive.

5:22 synagogue leaders: Jesus is back on the Jewish side of the lake (see Mark 5:21; see note on Mark 1:38), where a community leader seeks his help. fell at his feet: a physical posture of worship or deep respect (see Mark 5:6). A powerful man throws himself at Jesus' mercy.

5:23 place your hands: This story recalls those about Elijah (1 Kgs 17:17-24) and Elisha (2 Kgs 4:18-37). See note on Mark 1:31.

5:25-26 The woman's case is a desperate one. She's been bleeding for 12 years, and even expensive doctors haven't healed her. Her bleeding makes her impure by religious standards, so she suffers physically, emotionally, socially, financially, and spiritually.

5:27 touched his clothes: The woman disobeys Jewish Law by touching a man while she's bleeding (see Lev 15:19).

5:29-30 Both the woman and Jesus simultaneously feel the healing power exchanged through their physical contact.

5:32 looked around carefully: In Mark, seeing is more than physical vision; it's also spiritual insight. Jesus sometimes sees before he heals (see Mark 2:5), but here he gazes at the woman who has already been healed.

<sup>33</sup>The woman, full of fear and trembling, came forward. Knowing what had happened to her, she fell down in front of Jesus and told him the whole truth. <sup>34</sup>He responded, "Daughter, your faith has healed you; go in peace, healed from your disease."

<sup>35</sup>While Jesus was still speaking with her, messengers came from the synagogue leader's house, saying to Jairus, "Your daughter has died. Why bother the teacher any longer?"

<sup>36</sup>But Jesus overheard their report and said to the synagogue leader, "Don't be afraid; just keep trusting." <sup>37</sup>He didn't allow anyone to follow him except Peter, James, and John, James' brother. <sup>38</sup>They came to the synagogue leader's house, and he saw a commotion, with people crying and wailing loudly. <sup>39</sup>He went in and said to them, "What's all this commotion and crying about? The child isn't dead. She's only sleeping." <sup>40</sup>They laughed at him, but he threw them all out. Then, taking the child's parents and his disciples with him, he went to the room where the child was. <sup>41</sup>Taking her hand, he said to her, "Talitha koum," which means, "Young woman, get up." <sup>42</sup>Suddenly the young woman got up and began to walk around. She was 12 years old. They were shocked! <sup>43</sup>He gave them strict orders that no one should know what had happened. Then he told them to give her something to eat.

Jesus in his hometown

6 Jesus left that place and came to his hometown. His disciples followed him. <sup>2</sup>On the Sabbath, he began to teach in the synagogue. Many who heard him were surprised. "Where did this man get all this? What's this wisdom he's been given? What about the powerful acts accomplished through him? <sup>3</sup>Isn't this the carpenter? Isn't he Mary's son and the brother of James, Joses, Judas, and Simon? Aren't his sisters here with us?" They were repulsed by him and fell into sin.

<sup>4</sup>Jesus said to them, "Prophets are honored everywhere except in their own hometowns, among their relatives, and in their own households." <sup>5</sup>He was unable to do any miracles there, except that he placed his hands on a few sick people and healed them. <sup>6</sup>He was appalled by their disbelief.

Sending out the disciples

Then Jesus traveled through the surrounding villages teaching.

<sup>7</sup>He called for the Twelve and sent them out in pairs. He gave them authority over unclean spirits. <sup>8</sup>He instructed them to take nothing for the journey except a walking stick—no bread, no bags, and no money in their belts. <sup>9</sup>He told them to wear sandals but not to put on two shirts. <sup>10</sup>He said, "Whatever house you enter, remain there until you leave that place.

5:33 fear and trembling: a frequent response among those who witness Jesus' power (see Mark 4:41; 5:15). fell down: See note on Mark 3:11.

5:34 faith: See note on Mark 5:27. See sidebar, "Faith/Trust" at Mark 11.

5:36 Don't be afraid; just keep trusting: Although fear is a father's natural response to his daughter's death (reported in Mark 5:35), Jesus urges Jairus to depend on the possibility of life. See Mark 4:40 and note.

5:37 Peter, James, and John: These three disciples make up Jesus' inner circle (see Mark 1:16, 19; 9:2; 14:33).

5:39 She's only sleeping: To sleep is to give oneself over to God's care. See note on Mark 4:38.

5:41 "Talitha koum": Mark provides Jesus' words in Aramaic (Jesus' native tongue), then translates it for his Greek-speaking audience. See note on Mark 3:17.

5:43 something to eat: See Mark 6:37. Sharing a meal not only strengthens people physically but also celebrates the promise of new life in God's kingdom.

6:1-6 See Matthew 13:53-58; Luke 4:16-30.

6:1 hometown: Nazareth is a village in Galilee (see Mark 1:24).

6:2 teach in the synagogue: See note on Mark 1:21. surprised: The people have known Jesus since he was a boy, so it's hard for them to see what he's become. See note on Mark 1:22. wisdom . . . powerful acts: Both Jesus' words and deeds are impressive. See note on Mark 1:27.

6:3 carpenter: refers to a practiced skill, such as a handcraft. Mary's son . . . sisters: See note on Mark 3:32. repulsed . . . fell into sin: Since Jesus doesn't fit the people's notions of who he is, they resist his ministry.

6:4 honored everywhere . . . hometowns: Jesus identifies himself with rejected prophets (see Mark 12:1-12; cf. Luke 4:24; John 4:44).

6:5 unable to do any miracles: Their lack of belief (see Mark 6:6a) limits Jesus' power. On the connection between faith and healing, see Mark 2:5; 5:34.

6:6b-13 See Matthew 10:1, 9-14; 14:1-12; Luke 9:1-10a. Already Jesus has recruited disciples and given them a role in his mission (Mark 1:16-20; 3:13-19). They've stayed with him, and now he sends them out (see Mark 3:14) to reveal God's coming kingdom in word and deed.

6:7 in pairs: The disciples go out in groups of two. This may be related to the need for two witnesses required by Jewish tradition (see Deut 17:6; 19:15; Num 35:30). authority over unclean spirits: See note on Mark 3:15.

6:8 nothing for the journey: Packing light requires trust in God and in others' hospitality. no bread, no bags, and no money: Jesus' requirements are even more strict than those of the ancient Roman Cynics, wandering philosophers who rejected material things yet carried the kinds of belongings Jesus tells the disciples to leave behind.

"If a place doesn't welcome you or listen to you, as you leave, shake the dust off your feet as a witness against them." <sup>12</sup>So they went out and proclaimed that people should change their hearts and lives. <sup>13</sup>They cast out many demons, and they anointed many sick people with olive oil and healed them.

Death of John the Baptist

<sup>14</sup>Herod the king heard about these things, because the name of Jesus had become well-known. Some were saying, "John the Baptist has been raised from the dead, and this is why miraculous powers are at work through him." <sup>15</sup>Others were saying, "He is Elijah." Still others were saying, "He is a prophet like one of the ancient prophets." <sup>16</sup>But when Herod heard these rumors, he said, "John, whom I beheaded, has been raised to life."

<sup>17</sup>He said this because Herod himself had arranged to have John arrested and put in prison because of Herodias, the wife of Herod's brother Philip. Herod had married her, <sup>18</sup>but John told Herod, "It's against the law for you to marry your brother's wife!" <sup>19</sup>So Herodias had it in for John. She wanted to kill him, but she couldn't. <sup>20</sup>This was because Herod respected John. He regarded him as a righteous and holy person, so he protected him. John's words greatly confused Herod, yet he enjoyed listening to him.

<sup>21</sup>Finally, the time was right. It was on one of Herod's birthdays, when he had prepared a feast for his high-ranking officials and military officers and Galilee's leading residents.

<sup>22</sup>Herod's daughter Herodias<sup>f</sup> came in and danced, thrilling Herod and his dinner guests. The king said to the young woman, "Ask me whatever you wish, and I will give it to you." <sup>23</sup>Then he swore to her, "Whatever you ask I will give to you, even as much as half of my kingdom."

<sup>24</sup>She left the banquet hall and said to her mother, "What should I ask for?"

"John the Baptist's head," Herodias replied.

<sup>25</sup>Hurrying back to the ruler, she made her request: "I want you to give me John the Baptist's head on a plate, right this minute." <sup>26</sup>Although the king was upset, because of his solemn pledge and his guests, he didn't want to refuse her. <sup>27</sup>So he ordered a guard to bring John's head. The guard went to the prison, cut off John's head, <sup>28</sup>brought his head on a plate, and gave it to the young woman, and she gave it to her mother. <sup>29</sup>When John's disciples heard what had happened, they came and took his dead body and laid it in a tomb.

Jesus feeds five thousand people

<sup>30</sup>The apostles returned to Jesus and told him everything they had done and taught.

<sup>31</sup>Many people were coming and going, so there was no time to eat. He said to the apostles,

6:11 shake the dust off your feet: The gesture symbolizes a broken relationship (see Neh 5:13; Acts 18:6). Jesus makes it clear the mission won't be entirely successful (see Mark 4:11-12). witness against them: refers to the coming judgment associated with God's kingdom.

6:12-13 This summary of the missionary journey describes the apostles' actions in terms that recall Jesus' own mission. proclaimed... hearts and lives: See Mark 1:15; 3:14. cast out... healed them: See Mark 1:34; 3:15.

6:14-29 See Matthew 14:1-12; Luke 9:7-9. This story about John the Baptist's death is chronologically out of place (for John's arrest, see Mark 1:14). It fits here, though, for three reasons: (1) it shows that Jesus' reputation is spreading even among the powerful; (2) it contrasts the banquet of an earthly king with God's banquet in the wilderness (Mark 6:30-44); and (3) it reveals the hostility that people who proclaim God's kingdom may attract. If this is what happened to John, what will happen to Jesus? What will happen to Jesus' disciples?

6:14 Herod the king: Herod wasn't technically a king. Mark uses the term to draw a contrast between Herod's rule and God's rule. See notes on Mark 3:6; 6:14-29.

6:15 Elijah: See note on Mark 1:6.

6:16 raised to life: Jews who awaited God's kingdom expected it to bring the resurrection of the dead. In the 1st century the Pharisees were known for their belief in the resurrection (cf. Mark 12:18).

6:17-18 Herod's rule was authorized by Rome, but he was also a Galilean who was subject to Jewish Law. His marriage to his brother's wife (while his brother was alive) went against Leviticus 18:16; 20:21. As a prophet who was calling people to live holy lives, John would have spoken freely against Herod for his disobedience.

6:20 righteous and holy person: Herod recognizes John's religious integrity.

6:21-28 Mark portrays Herod as a weak ruler who falls victim to his wife's determination to kill John (see Mark 6:19).

6:23 I will give it to you: See Mark 6:28. Herod's plan to share his power leads to a horrible death. God's plan brings health and life (see Mark 6:7, 37, 41).

6:30-44 See Matthew 14:13-21; Luke 9:10-17; John 6:1-13. The miraculous feeding story recalls Israel's wilderness story and anticipates the abundance of God's kingdom (see Isa 49:10; 55:1; 58:7).

6:31-32 secluded place... deserted place: Both of these terms refer to a wilderness. See note on Mark 1:3.

“Come by yourselves to a secluded place and rest for a while.”<sup>32</sup> They departed in a boat by themselves for a deserted place.

<sup>33</sup> Many people saw them leaving and recognized them, so they ran ahead from all the cities and arrived before them. <sup>34</sup> When Jesus arrived and saw a large crowd, he had compassion on them because they were like sheep without a shepherd. Then he began to teach them many things.

<sup>35</sup> Late in the day, his disciples came to him and said, “This is an isolated place, and it’s already late in the day. <sup>36</sup> Send them away so that they can go to the surrounding countryside and villages and buy something to eat for themselves.”

But they said to him, “Should we go off and buy bread worth almost eight months’ pay<sup>8</sup> and give it to them to eat?”

<sup>38</sup> He said to them, “How much bread do you have? Take a look.”

After checking, they said, “Five loaves of bread and two fish.”

<sup>39</sup> He directed the disciples to seat all the people in groups as though they were having a banquet on the green grass. <sup>40</sup> They sat down in groups of hundreds and fifties. <sup>41</sup> He took the five loaves and the two fish, looked up to heaven, blessed them, broke the loaves into pieces, and gave them to his disciples to set before the people. He also divided the two fish among them all. <sup>42</sup> Everyone ate until they were full. <sup>43</sup> They filled twelve baskets with the leftover pieces of bread and fish. <sup>44</sup> About five thousand had eaten.

Jesus walks on water

<sup>45</sup> Right then, Jesus made his disciples get into a boat and go ahead to the other side of the lake, toward Bethsaida, while he dismissed the crowd. <sup>46</sup> After saying good-bye to them, Jesus went up onto a mountain to pray. <sup>47</sup> Evening came and the boat was in the middle of the lake, but he was alone on the land. <sup>48</sup> He saw his disciples struggling. They were trying to row forward, but the wind was blowing against them. Very early in the morning, he came to them, walking on the lake. He intended to pass by them. <sup>49</sup> When they saw him walking on the lake, they thought he was a ghost and they screamed. <sup>50</sup> Seeing him was terrifying to all of them. Just then he spoke to them, “Be encouraged! It’s me. Don’t be afraid.” <sup>51</sup> He got into the boat, and the wind settled down. His disciples were so baffled they were beside themselves. <sup>52</sup> That’s because they hadn’t understood about the loaves. Their hearts had been changed so that they resisted God’s ways.

6:34 sheep without a shepherd: See Numbers 27:15-17. teach them many things: Jesus addresses the crowd’s spiritual hunger by instructing them about God’s coming kingdom (see Mark 4:1-34).

6:37 “You give them something to eat”: The Greek emphasizes that the disciples should feed the crowd. Jesus’ command doesn’t seem very practical to them (see 2 Kgs 4:42-44). See note on Mark 6:23. almost eight months’ pay: or “200 denarii.” Hired workers earned about one denarius per day.

6:39 as though they were having a banquet: Mark portrays the meal in the wilderness as though it were a formal celebration with invited guests (cf. Mark 6:14-29).

6:40 hundreds and fifties: See Exodus 18:21, 25.

6:41 took... blessed... broke... gave: Jesus handles the bread as if he’s at a traditional Jewish meal. gave... people: See notes on Mark 6:23, 37. Jesus’ disciples work with him as agents of God’s miraculous feeding power.

6:44 five thousand: The Greek text counts 5,000 men. Since women and children were also present, the size of the crowd here was much larger.

6:45-52 See Matthew 14:22-33; John 6:15-21. Jesus and his disciples cross the Sea of Galilee frequently in Mark.

This is the second story that happens there (see Mark 4:35-41; 8:14-21).

6:45 go ahead: Often in Mark, Jesus goes ahead of his disciples (Mark 14:28; 16:7), but here they go ahead of him. the other side: See note on Mark 1:38. Bethsaida: located on the northeastern shore of the Sea of Galilee.

6:46 up onto a mountain: See note on 3:13. to pray: Prayer is a key weapon in Jesus’ battle against evil (see Mark 9:29). 6:48 struggling: The disciples fight against the wind and the sea, which represent evil in ancient thought. See note on Mark 4:35. He intended to pass by them: Jesus probably plans to reveal himself in order to encourage his disciples, not taunt them. God passed by both Moses (Exod 33:12-23) and Elijah (1 Kgs 19) in desperate moments as a way of strengthening them for what lay ahead.

6:50 It’s me: Jesus seems to identify himself with the divine name I Am (see Exod 3:13-15; Isa 41:4; 43:10-11). Don’t be afraid: See Mark 5:36. Fear is a natural human response, but Jesus encourages faith.

6:52 they hadn’t understood about the loaves: The disciples are both fearful and confused about what’s happened (see Mark 6:50, 51). Mark explains their response by linking it to the feeding story (Mark 6:30-44). What they

Healings at Gennesaret

<sup>53</sup>When Jesus and his disciples had crossed the lake, they landed at Gennesaret, anchored the boat, <sup>54</sup>and came ashore. People immediately recognized Jesus <sup>55</sup>and ran around that whole region bringing sick people on their mats to wherever they heard he was. <sup>56</sup>Wherever he went—villages, cities, or farming communities—they would place the sick in the marketplace and beg him to allow them to touch even the hem of his clothing. Everyone who touched him was healed.

What contaminates a life?

7The Pharisees and some legal experts from Jerusalem gathered around Jesus. <sup>2</sup>They saw some of his disciples eating food with unclean hands. (They were eating without first ritually purifying their hands through washing. <sup>3</sup>The Pharisees and all the Jews don't eat without first washing their hands carefully. This is a way of observing the rules handed down by the elders. <sup>4</sup>Upon returning from the marketplace, they don't eat without first immersing themselves. They observe many other rules that have been handed down, such as the washing of cups, jugs, pans, and sleeping mats.) <sup>5</sup>So the Pharisees and legal experts asked Jesus,

The Sea of Galilee misunderstood about the loaves, though, is unclear. Perhaps they didn't recognize Jesus' divine power (see Mark 4:40-41; Luke 24:30-31). They also may have forgotten that they share that power (Mark 3:14-15; 6:7, 13, 41). Their hearts . . . God's ways: or "Their hearts were hardened." This is ironic, because the expression normally applies to outsiders. See note on Mark 3:5.

6:53-57 See Matthew 14:34-36. Mark gives another summary report of Jesus' ministry around the Sea of Galilee.

6:53 Gennesaret: located on the northwest side of the Sea of Galilee. Gennesaret is in a different direction from Bethsaida, the group's original destination (see Mark 6:45).

6:56 hem of his clothing: See note on Mark 5:27.

7:1-23 See Matthew 15:1-20. This is the second set of stories in which Jesus comes into conflict with Jewish leaders (see note on Mark 2:1-3:6).

7:1 from Jerusalem: See note on Mark 1:22, where legal experts came from Jerusalem to oppose Jesus. The story hints at Jesus' destiny, since his ministry takes him to Jerusalem, where he dies.

7:2 eating food: or "eating the loaves" (see Mark 6:38, 41). unclean hands: See Leviticus 15:11. Jesus' opponents focus on religious purity (see note on Mark 2:16).

7:2b-4 Mark explains to his audience the Jewish practices of becoming ritually pure. This suggests his audience includes people who aren't Jewish.

7:3 rules handed down by the elders: The Pharisees thought the authority of the written Law (Instruction) applied equally to its oral interpretation by the elders. These rules were handed down through instruction by the rabbis. Paul uses similar language to describe the handing down of early Christian tradition (see 1 Cor 11:23).

"Why are your disciples not living according to the rules handed down by the elders but instead eat food with ritually unclean hands?"

<sup>6</sup>He replied, "Isaiah really knew what he was talking about when he prophesied about you hypocrites. He wrote,

This people honors me with their lips, but their hearts are far away from me.

<sup>7</sup>Their worship of me is empty since they teach instructions that are human words.<sup>b</sup>

<sup>8</sup>You ignore God's commandment while holding on to rules created by humans and handed down to you." <sup>9</sup>Jesus continued, "Clearly, you are experts at rejecting God's commandment in order to establish these rules. <sup>10</sup>Moses said, Honor your father and your mother,<sup>1</sup> and The person who speaks against father or mother will certainly be put to death.<sup>1</sup> <sup>11</sup>But you say, 'If you tell your father or mother, "Everything I'm expected to contribute to you is corban (that is, a gift I'm giving to God)," <sup>12</sup>then you are no longer required to care for your father or mother.' <sup>13</sup>In this way you do away with God's word in favor of the rules handed down to you, which you pass on to others. And you do a lot of other things just like that."

<sup>14</sup>Then Jesus called the crowd again and said, "Listen to me, all of you, and understand.

<sup>15</sup>Nothing outside of a person can enter and contaminate a person in God's sight; rather, the things that come out of a person contaminate the person."<sup>k</sup>

<sup>17</sup>After leaving the crowd, he entered a house where his disciples asked him about that riddle. <sup>18</sup>He said to them, "Don't you understand either? Don't you know that nothing from the outside that enters a person has the power to contaminate? <sup>19</sup>That's because it doesn't enter into the heart but into the stomach, and it goes out into the sewer." By saying this, Jesus declared that no food could contaminate a person in God's sight. <sup>20</sup>"It's what comes out of a person that contaminates someone in God's sight," he said. <sup>21</sup>"It's from the inside, from the human heart, that evil thoughts come: sexual sins, thefts, murders, <sup>22</sup>adultery, greed, evil actions, deceit, unrestrained immorality, envy, insults, arrogance, and foolishness. <sup>23</sup>All these evil things come from the inside and contaminate a person in God's sight."

An immigrant's daughter is delivered

<sup>24</sup>Jesus left that place and went into the region of Tyre. He didn't want anyone to know that he had entered a house, but he couldn't hide. <sup>25</sup>In fact, a woman whose young daughter was possessed by an unclean spirit heard about him right away. She came and fell at his feet.

<sup>26</sup>The woman was Greek, Syrophenician by birth. She begged Jesus to throw the demon out

7:6-7 See Isaiah 29:13. OT prophets often criticized superficial worship (see Jer 7:3-7; Amos 5:21-24).

7:8 rules created by humans: Jesus contrasts the rabbis' interpretation of the Law with God's commandment, or the written Law.

7:10 Honor... death: See Exodus 20:12; Deuteronomy 5:16; Exodus 21:17; Leviticus 20:9. Jesus quotes both the commandment to honor parents and the legal price for breaking it.

7:11 corban... to God: The term "corban" refers to an offering presented to God. Mark's explanation of Jewish practice again suggests some in his audience are unfamiliar with it (see Mark 7:2b-4).

7:13 do away with: or "invalidate." God's word: The reference here is to the written Law, the first five books of the OT. When human rules serve as loopholes in the Law, they make the Law null and void.

7:15 Nothing outside... contaminate: Jesus returns to the question of purity.

7:17 entered a house: Jesus moves from a public to a private setting, where his disciples seek an explanation (see Mark 4:10-12, 20-34).

7:18 Don't you understand either?: See Mark 4:13; 6:52. See sidebar, "The Disciples in Mark" at Mark 5.

7:19 heart: In ancient thought, moral decisions came from the heart. Jesus points out that true purity has to do with one's attitude and actions, not one's diet. By saying this... God's sight: Mark applies Jesus' saying to the rules about food found in the Law (Lev 11:1-47). Early Christian communities like Mark's wrestled with the ongoing importance of these laws (see Acts 10:9-16; Gal 2:11-14).

7:21-22 Lists of sins like this one were common in ancient Judaism and the Greco-Roman world. As in 7:19, Jesus emphasizes the heart as the source of these sinful practices.

7:24-30 See Matthew 15:21-28.

7:24 Tyre: located to the northwest of Galilee, on the Mediterranean Sea. Jesus is again in Gentile territory (see Mark 3:8).

7:25 fell at his feet: See note on Mark 5:22.

7:26 Greek, Syrophenician by birth: Jesus talks with a Gentile woman. She's an outsider both as a woman and as a Gentile.

of her daughter. <sup>27</sup>He responded, "The children have to be fed first. It isn't right to take the children's bread and toss it to the dogs."

<sup>30</sup>When she returned to her house, she found the child lying on the bed and the demon gone.

A deaf man is healed

<sup>31</sup>After leaving the region of Tyre, Jesus went through Sidon toward the Galilee Sea through the region of the Ten Cities. <sup>32</sup>Some people brought to him a man who was deaf and could hardly speak, and they begged him to place his hand on the man for healing. <sup>33</sup>Jesus took him away from the crowd by himself and put his fingers in the man's ears. Then he spit and touched the man's tongue. <sup>34</sup>Looking into heaven, Jesus sighed deeply and said, "Ephphatha," which means, "Open up." <sup>35</sup>At once, his ears opened, his twisted tongue was released, and he began to speak clearly.

<sup>36</sup>Jesus gave the people strict orders not to tell anyone. But the more he tried to silence them, the more eagerly they shared the news. <sup>37</sup>The people were overcome with wonder, saying, "He does everything well! He even makes the deaf to hear and gives speech to those who can't speak."

Jesus feeds four thousand people

In those days there was another large crowd with nothing to eat. Jesus called his disciples and told them, <sup>21</sup>"I feel sorry for the crowd because they have been with me for three days and have nothing to eat. <sup>22</sup>If I send them away hungry to their homes, they won't have enough strength to travel, for some have come a long distance."

They said, "Seven loaves."

<sup>6</sup>He told the crowd to sit on the ground. He took the seven loaves, gave thanks, broke them apart, and gave them to his disciples to distribute; and they gave the bread to the crowd. <sup>7</sup>They also had a few fish. He said a blessing over them, then gave them to the disciples to hand out also. <sup>8</sup>They ate until they were full. They collected seven baskets full of leftovers. <sup>9</sup>This was a crowd of about four thousand people! Jesus sent them away, <sup>10</sup>then got into a boat with his disciples and went over to the region of Dalmanutha.

7:27 children's bread... dogs: Jesus' response reflects his understanding of his mission as being directed to the Jews first. The OT sometimes uses "dogs" as an insulting term for Gentiles (see 1 Sam 17:43; 24:14).

7:28 even the dogs... crumbs: The woman cleverly takes Jesus' insult as a reason for him to help her daughter.

7:29 demon has already left: The act of freeing the woman's daughter from the demon doesn't require Jesus' presence (see Mark 5:39).

7:31-37 See Matthew 15:29-31.

7:31 The route isn't a direct one. Together, Tyre and Sidon were used to refer to the Gentile territory on the Mediterranean coast northwest of the Sea of Galilee (see Mark 3:8). The Ten Cities (also called "Decapolis") mark a region to the southeast of the Sea of Galilee (see Mark 5:20 and map 17).

7:33 fingers in the man's ears... spit... touched the man's tongue: Mark emphasizes physical details of the healing. See note on Mark 1:31; 8:23.

7:34 "Ephphatha... Open up": Mark translates the Aramaic command for his Greek-speaking audience. See note on Mark 3:17.

7:36 strict orders not to tell anyone: See sidebar, "Secrecy" at Mark 8, shared the news: or "announced" (see Mark 1:14, 45;

3:14). In Mark the message connects Jesus' amazing powers with God's coming kingdom.

7:37 overcome with wonder: See note on Mark 1:22. deaf... speak: Jesus' miracles reflect the power of God's kingdom (see Isa 35:5-6).

8:1-10 See Matthew 15:32-39. Compare with the earlier feeding miracle in Mark 6:30-44. This time Jesus and his disciples provide for a group of Gentiles (see Mark 7:31).

8:2 nothing to eat: Jesus focuses on the crowd's physical hunger (cf. Mark 6:34).

8:3 If I send them away: Jesus explains why it won't work to send them away, which his disciples had recommended doing in the first feeding story (Mark 6:36).

8:4 wilderness: The disciples act as though they've learned nothing from the earlier feeding miracle or from Jewish traditions about food in the wilderness (see Exod 16:1-36). See notes on Mark 1:3; 6:30-44.

8:5 "Seven loaves": Compare with Mark 6:38.

8:7 gave them to the disciples to hand out also: The disciples distribute fish as well as bread (cf. Mark 6:41).

8:8 seven baskets: The number of baskets equals the number of loaves in Mark 8:5.

8:10 Dalmanutha: an otherwise unknown region. Mark

Looking for proof

<sup>11</sup>The Pharisees showed up and began to argue with Jesus. To test him, they asked for a sign from heaven. <sup>12</sup>With an impatient sigh, Jesus said, "Why does this generation look for a sign? I assure you that no sign will be given to it." <sup>13</sup>Leaving them, he got back in the boat and crossed to the other side of the lake.

Understanding about the bread

<sup>14</sup>Jesus' disciples had forgotten to bring any bread, so they had only one loaf with them in the boat. <sup>15</sup>He gave them strict orders: "Watch out and be on your guard for the yeast of the Pharisees as well as the yeast of Herod."

<sup>16</sup>The disciples discussed this among themselves, "He said this because we have no bread."

<sup>17</sup>Jesus knew what they were discussing and said, "Why are you talking about the fact that you don't have any bread? Don't you grasp what has happened? Don't you understand? Are your hearts so resistant to what God is doing? <sup>18</sup>Don't you have eyes? Why can't you see? Don't you have ears? Why can't you hear? Don't you remember? <sup>19</sup>When I broke five loaves of bread for those five thousand people, how many baskets full of leftovers did you gather?"

They answered, "Twelve."

<sup>20</sup>"And when I broke seven loaves of bread for those four thousand people, how many baskets full of leftovers did you gather?"

They answered, "Seven."

<sup>21</sup>Jesus said to them, "And you still don't understand?"

A blind man is healed

<sup>22</sup>Jesus and his disciples came to Bethsaida. Some people brought a blind man to Jesus and begged him to touch and heal him. <sup>23</sup>Taking the blind man's hand, Jesus led him out of the village. After spitting on his eyes and laying his hands on the man, he asked him, "Do you see anything?"

Secrecy In Mark, Jesus frequently orders people and spirits not to tell others about his miracles. He also calls the message about God's kingdom a "secret," or mystery, that's revealed to only a few (Mark 4:10-12). And he specifically charges his disciples not to tell anyone about him (Mark 8:30). In all these ways, according to Mark, Jesus works to contain the word of his ministry. It's probably best to understand the theme of secrecy in light of Jesus' aims. He may have avoided public recognition for his miracle-working because he didn't want to be associated with other, fame-seeking healers of the day. He may have resisted the political hopes many attached to the title "Christ." His identity and mission as the Christ is a secret partly because God's kingdom is still hidden from view. From Mark's perspective, Jesus' status as Christ remains a mystery to some but only until God's kingdom arrives.

seems to suggest it's somewhere between the Ten Cities and Bethsaida.

8:11-13 See Matthew 16:1-4; Luke 11:29-32. The Pharisees return to the story, this time to test Jesus.

8:11 sign from heaven: God's presence is often confirmed by signs in the OT (e.g., Gen 9:12, 13, 17; Exod 3:12; 4:28, 30).
8:12 this generation: refers to those who belong to the present evil age, rather than to the coming age of God's reign (see Mark 8:38; 9:19; 13:30). sign: The Pharisees can't see signs because they don't belong to God's coming kingdom (see Mark 4:12).

8:14-21 See Matthew 16:5-12; Luke 12:1; John 6:32-36. The disciples again share a boat with Jesus, and again he confuses and bewilders them (see Mark 4:35-41).

8:14 one loaf: Mark connects the story to the feeding that's just occurred (Mark 8:1-10).

8:15 yeast of the Pharisees... Herod: The yeast metaphor illustrates the corrupting power of religious and political authorities (see Mark 8:11-13; 6:14-29; 1 Cor 5:6). See note on Mark 3:6.

8:16 no bread: See Mark 8:14. The disciples miss Jesus' point and exaggerate their lack of food.

8:17-18 Jesus speaks to his own followers in harsh terms. In this series of questions, he returns to earlier charges against the disciples (Mark 4:13; 6:52) and compares them to the Pharisees (see Mark 3:5) and to outsiders (Mark 4:11-12).

8:19-20 baskets full of leftovers: The disciples are focused on the shortage (see Mark 8:16), but Jesus emphasizes the surplus.

8:21 still don't understand: The disciples have answered Jesus' questions correctly, but they don't grasp his point. Where they see a shortfall, God's coming kingdom is known for its abundance.

8:22-26 See John 9:1-7. This story serves as a turning point in Mark. On one level, it seems to imply that even the disciples' blindness (see Mark 8:18) is only temporary. On another level, it shows that clear vision may come in stages and include a time when the world doesn't look quite right.

8:22 Bethsaida: See note on Mark 6:45.

8:23 out of the village: Jesus removes himself from the public eye (see Mark 5:37). He isn't like those miracle workers who seek fame.

<sup>24</sup>The man looked up and said, "I see people. They look like trees, only they are walking around."

<sup>25</sup>Then Jesus placed his hands on the man's eyes again. He looked with his eyes wide open, his sight was restored, and he could see everything clearly. <sup>26</sup>Then Jesus sent him home, saying, "Don't go into the village!"

Jesus predicts his death

<sup>27</sup>Jesus and his disciples went into the villages near Caesarea Philippi. On the way he asked his disciples, "Who do people say that I am?"

<sup>28</sup>They told him, "Some say John the Baptist, others Elijah, and still others one of the prophets."

<sup>29</sup>He asked them, "And what about you? Who do you say that I am?"

Peter answered, "You are the Christ." <sup>30</sup>Jesus ordered them not to tell anyone about him.

<sup>31</sup>Then Jesus began to teach his disciples: "The Human One<sup>1</sup> must suffer many things and be rejected by the elders, chief priests, and the legal experts, and be killed, and then, after three days, rise from the dead." <sup>32</sup>He said this plainly. But Peter took hold of Jesus and, scolding him, began to correct him. <sup>33</sup>Jesus turned and looked at his disciples, then sternly corrected Peter: "Get behind me, Satan. You are not thinking God's thoughts but human thoughts."

<sup>34</sup>After calling the crowd together with his disciples, Jesus said to them, "All who want to come after me must say no to themselves, take up their cross, and follow me. <sup>35</sup>All who want to save their lives will lose them. But all who lose their lives because of me and because of the good news will save them. <sup>36</sup>Why would people gain the whole world but lose their lives?

<sup>37</sup>What will people give in exchange for their lives? <sup>38</sup>Whoever is ashamed of me and my words in this unfaithful and sinful generation, the Human One<sup>m</sup> will be ashamed of that person when he comes in the Father's glory with the holy angels." <sup>1</sup>Jesus continued, "I assure you that some standing here won't die before they see God's kingdom arrive in power."

8:24 This story is unique in the NT in that the healing happens in two stages. Mark's account, however, has an important, symbolic significance as well: Clarity about Jesus' mission comes only after confusion. Mark's account even includes the strange idea of a Christ who suffers (see Mark 8:31; 9:31; 10:33-34).

8:25 eyes ... clearly: Mark uses repetition to emphasize the man's restored vision (see Mark 7:33).

8:26 the village: Jesus continues to avoid popular recognition (see Mark 1:44-45; 5:43; 7:24, 36; 8:23).

8:27-9:1 See Matthew 16:21-28; Luke 9:22-27. Jesus predicts his own death and resurrection for the first time in Mark. Just as his suffering is inseparable from his role as the Christ (see Mark 1:1), so his followers' lives, too, will be defined by self-sacrifice.

8:27 Caesarea Philippi: Located some 30 miles north of Bethsaida, this was the site of a temple built by Herod the Great and dedicated to Caesar Augustus.

8:29 Christ: or "the anointed one" (see Mark 1:1). This term carried a range of meanings among 1st-century Jews. In the OT it usually refers to human religious and/or political leaders. Other texts from this period affirm the role of the anointed one in revealing God's reign on the earth.

8:30 ordered them not to tell anyone: See Mark 1:25; 3:12; 4:39; 9:25; 10:34. See sidebar, "Secrecy."

8:31 Human One: Jesus refers to himself as the one who goes before the new humanity that will live in God's coming kingdom. See notes on Mark 2:10, 28. See sidebar, "The Human One in Mark" at Mark 14. elders, chief priests, and the legal experts: These Jewish authorities together form the Sanhedrin, the ruling council in Jerusalem.

8:32 plainly: Jesus freely announces the outcome of his mission as the Christ (cf. Mark 8:30).

8:33 Satan: See Mark 1:13; 3:22-27. By calling out Satan, Jesus exposes an evil force behind Peter's response. The problem is that Peter denies that Jesus' mission as the Christ includes suffering. He isn't thinking from God's point of view. See note on Mark 4:15.

8:34 say no ... follow me: Jesus defines discipleship in terms of self-denial and suffering. Like Jesus, his followers actively choose their destiny; they aren't passive victims.

8:35 because of me and because of the good news: Jesus' followers lose their lives because they have learned from him the pattern of self-sacrifice that reflects God's kingdom. Notice Jesus' distinction between himself and the good news. While Jesus proclaims and demonstrates God's good news, Mark doesn't equate it with Jesus' identity, strictly speaking (see also Mark 10:29).

8:38 ashamed: Jesus' call for self-sacrifice would have been humiliating to ancient hearers, since he's urging voluntary weakness in a culture that avoids it. comes in the Father's glory: probably a reference to Daniel 7:13-14. As God's kingdom arrives on earth, the Human One will practice judgment according to divine, not human, standards. 9:1 God's kingdom: See Mark 1:15. Jesus says God's kingdom will soon be revealed on earth (cf. Mark 13:32).

Jesus transformed

<sup>2</sup>Six days later Jesus took Peter, James, and John, and brought them to the top of a very high mountain where they were alone. He was transformed in front of them, <sup>3</sup>and his clothes were amazingly bright, brighter than if they had been bleached white. <sup>4</sup>Elijah and Moses appeared and were talking with Jesus. <sup>5</sup>Peter reacted to all of this by saying to Jesus, “Rabbi, it’s good that we’re here. Let’s make three shrines—one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.” <sup>6</sup>He said this because he didn’t know how to respond, for the three of them were terrified.

<sup>7</sup>Then a cloud overshadowed them, and a voice spoke from the cloud, “This is my Son, whom I dearly love. Listen to him!” <sup>8</sup>Suddenly, looking around, they no longer saw anyone with them except Jesus.

<sup>9</sup>As they were coming down the mountain, he ordered them not to tell anyone what they had seen until after the Human One<sup>a</sup> had risen from the dead. <sup>10</sup>So they kept it to themselves, wondering, “What’s this ‘rising from the dead’?” <sup>11</sup>They asked Jesus, “Why do the legal experts say that Elijah must come first?”

<sup>12</sup>He answered, “Elijah does come first to restore all things. Why was it written that the Human One<sup>a</sup> would suffer many things and be rejected? <sup>13</sup>In fact, I tell you that Elijah has come, but they did to him whatever they wanted, just as it was written about him.”

A demon-possessed boy

<sup>14</sup>When Jesus, Peter, James, and John approached the other disciples, they saw a large crowd surrounding them and legal experts arguing with them. <sup>15</sup>Suddenly the whole crowd caught sight of Jesus. They ran to greet him, overcome with excitement. <sup>16</sup>Jesus asked them, “What are you arguing about?”

<sup>17</sup>Someone from the crowd responded, “Teacher, I brought my son to you, since he has a spirit that doesn’t allow him to speak. <sup>18</sup>Wherever it overpowers him, it throws him into a fit. He foams at the mouth, grinds his teeth, and stiffens up. So I spoke to your disciples to see if they could throw it out, but they couldn’t.”

<sup>19</sup>Jesus answered them, “You faithless generation, how long will I be with you? How long will I put up with you? Bring him to me.”

<sup>20</sup>They brought him. When the spirit saw Jesus, it immediately threw the boy into a fit. He fell on the ground and rolled around, foaming at the mouth. <sup>21</sup>Jesus asked his father, “How long has this been going on?”

He said, “Since he was a child. <sup>22</sup>It has often thrown him into a fire or into water trying to kill him. If you can do anything, help us! Show us compassion!”

<sup>23</sup>Jesus said to him, “If you can do anything? All things are possible for the one who has faith.”

<sup>a</sup>Or Son of Man <sup>b</sup>Or Son of Man

9:2-13 See Matthew 17:1-8; Luke 9:28-36.

9:2 Peter, James, and John: See note on Mark 5:37. very high mountain: See note on Mark 3:13. transformed: or “changed in form.” The word indicates Jesus’ divine status (see Mark 9:7).

9:4 Elijah and Moses: Jewish tradition expected one or both of these OT figures to return to earth at the arrival of God’s kingdom. See note on Mark 1:6.

9:5 three shrines: Peter intends to build dwelling places for God’s special agents. In the OT, before the temple was built, God lived in a shrine (see Exod 25:9; 2 Sam 7:2, 6).

9:7 my Son, whom I dearly love: Here the voice speaks to Jesus’ disciples. See note on Mark 1:11. Listen to him!: Jesus is the prophet who was to come (see Deut 18:15). See note on Mark 4:3.

9:10 “rising from the dead”: Resurrection was a familiar concept in Jewish thought. Those who expected God’s kingdom to come believed that the dead would be raised to participate in end-time judgment. See note on Mark 6:16.

9:11 Elijah must come first: See note on Mark 1:6.

9:12 written . . . many things: See sidebar, “The Human One in Mark” at Mark 14. Jesus’ words would seem strange to his disciples because no known writings say the Human One would suffer (cf. Dan 7:1-27). Jesus isn’t referring to a particular text, then, but is trying to get his followers to adopt his point of view on how to read all of the scriptures. 9:14-29 See Matthew 17:14-20; Luke 9:37-43a. Compare with Mark 6:5; 3:15; 6:7.

9:14 legal experts: See note on Mark 1:22.

9:18 fit . . . stiffens up: The boy’s condition is similar to what happens during an epileptic seizure. they couldn’t: or “they weren’t strong enough.” Elsewhere Mark portrays power over evil as a matter of strength against strength (see Mark 1:7; 3:27; 5:4; 14:37).

9:19 faithless generation: Jesus expresses regret over the faithless condition of those who belong to the present evil age (see Mark 1:15). It’s unclear whether the term refers to his disciples, to the boy’s father, or to both—or even to a broader group. See note on Mark 8:12.

9:23 All things . . . faith: In Mark, God’s power works effectively among those who trust in God’s kingdom (see Mark 2:5; 5:34; 11:22-23; cf. 6:5-6).

<sup>25</sup>Noticing that the crowd had surged together, Jesus spoke harshly to the unclean spirit, "Mute and deaf spirit, I command you to come out of him and never enter him again." <sup>26</sup>After screaming and shaking the boy horribly, the spirit came out. The boy seemed to be dead; in fact, several people said that he had died. <sup>27</sup>But Jesus took his hand, lifted him up, and he arose.

<sup>28</sup>After Jesus went into a house, his disciples asked him privately, "Why couldn't we throw this spirit out?"

<sup>29</sup>Jesus answered, "Throwing this kind of spirit out requires prayer."

Jesus predicts his death

<sup>30</sup>From there Jesus and his followers went through Galilee, but he didn't want anyone to know it. <sup>31</sup>This was because he was teaching his disciples, "The Human One<sup>P</sup> will be delivered into human hands. They will kill him. Three days after he is killed he will rise up." <sup>32</sup>But they didn't understand this kind of talk, and they were afraid to ask him.

<sup>33</sup>They entered Capernaum. When they had come into a house, he asked them, "What were you arguing about during the journey?" <sup>34</sup>They didn't respond, since on the way they had been debating with each other about who was the greatest. <sup>35</sup>He sat down, called the Twelve, and said to them, "Whoever wants to be first must be least of all and the servant of all." <sup>36</sup>Jesus reached for a little child, placed him among the Twelve, and embraced him. Then he said, <sup>37</sup>"Whoever welcomes one of these children in my name welcomes me; and whoever welcomes me isn't actually welcoming me but rather the one who sent me."

Recognize your allies

<sup>38</sup>John said to Jesus, "Teacher, we saw someone throwing demons out in your name, and we tried to stop him because he wasn't following us."

<sup>39</sup>Jesus replied, "Don't stop him. No one who does powerful acts in my name can quickly turn around and curse me. <sup>40</sup>Whoever isn't against us is for us. <sup>41</sup>I assure you that whoever gives you a cup of water to drink because you belong to Christ will certainly be rewarded.

<sup>42</sup>As for whoever causes these little ones who believe in me to trip and fall into sin, it would be better for them to have a huge stone hung around their necks and to be thrown into the lake. <sup>43</sup>If your hand causes you to fall into sin, chop it off. It's better for you to enter into life crippled than to go away with two hands into the fire of hell, which can't be put out. <sup>44</sup>If your foot causes you to fall into sin, chop it off. It's better for you to enter life lame than to be thrown into hell with two feet." <sup>47</sup>If your eye causes you to fall into sin, tear it out. It's better for you to enter God's kingdom with one eye than to be thrown into hell with two.

<sup>48</sup>That's a place where worms don't die and the fire never goes out. <sup>49</sup>Everyone will be salted with 9:24 "I have faith; help my lack of faith!": The father uses the language of prayer (see Mark 9:29; Pss 109:26; 119:86).

9:29 prayer: Jesus may be referring to the father's request for help (Mark 9:24).

9:30-37 See Matthew 17:22-23; 18:1-9; Luke 9:43b-48. This passage combines Jesus' prediction of his death and resurrection with instruction about discipleship (see Mark 8:27-9:1).

9:30 didn't want anyone to know it: See sidebar, "Secrecy" at Mark 8.

9:31 delivered: or "handed over." This verse mostly repeats Mark 8:31 but adds a note about betrayal (see Mark 14:11, 18).

9:32 didn't understand... afraid to ask: See sidebar, "The Disciples in Mark" at Mark 5.

9:33 Capernaum: See note on Mark 1:21.

9:35 least... servant: Jesus turns common notions of greatness upside down (see Mark 9:34). In God's kingdom, leaders are the lowest on the social ladder (see Mark 8:34-35).

9:36 little child: Children held a very low social status in the ancient world.

9:37 one who sent me: See John 12:44-45. Jesus is an agent of God. Since his ministry reflects the power structure of God's kingdom, those who welcome him also welcome God.

9:38-50 See Matthew 18:6-9; Luke 9:49-50; 17:1-2.

9:39 powerful acts in my name: Jesus doesn't claim he's the only one who can access God's power. Since he's secured a foothold for God's kingdom on earth, he makes it possible for others to do miracles (see Mark 3:15; 6:7, 13).

9:40 you belong to Christ: Jesus' followers participate in his mission as the Christ.

9:42-47 Jesus warns against causing others or oneself to fall into sin (Mark 9:42, 43, 45, 47).

9:42 little ones: specifically, the children Jesus has just "embraced" (Mark 9:36-37). More broadly, the term may include anyone whose trust in God's kingdom exposes them to abuse by earthly power structures.

9:43 chop it off: Jesus uses a violent image to make his point (see also Mark 9:45, 47). hell: or "Gehenna," a place of eternal punishment (Matt 5:30; Luke 12:5).

9:49 salted with fire: Salt is a preservative. Together, the fire. <sup>50</sup>Salt is good; but if salt loses its saltiness, how will it become salty again? Maintain salt among yourselves and keep peace with each other.”

Divorce and remarriage

10 Jesus left that place and went beyond the Jordan and into the region of Judea. Crowds gathered around him again and, as usual, he taught them. <sup>2</sup>Some Pharisees came and, trying to test him, they asked, “Does the Law allow a man to divorce his wife?”

<sup>3</sup>Jesus answered, “What did Moses command you?”

<sup>4</sup>They said, “Moses allowed a man to write a divorce certificate and to divorce his wife.”

<sup>5</sup>Jesus said to them, “He wrote this commandment for you because of your unyielding hearts. <sup>6</sup>At the beginning of creation, God made them male and female. <sup>7</sup>Because of this, a man should leave his father and mother and be joined together with his wife, and the two will be one flesh.” So they are no longer two but one flesh. <sup>9</sup>Therefore, humans must not pull apart what God has put together.”

<sup>10</sup>Inside the house, the disciples asked him again about this. <sup>11</sup>He said to them, “Whoever divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery against her; <sup>12</sup>and if a wife divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery.”

Jesus blesses children

<sup>13</sup>People were bringing children to Jesus so that he would bless them. But the disciples scolded them. <sup>14</sup>When Jesus saw this, he grew angry and said to them, “Allow the children to come to me. Don’t forbid them, because God’s kingdom belongs to people like these children. <sup>15</sup>I assure you that whoever doesn’t welcome God’s kingdom like a child will never enter it.” <sup>16</sup>Then he hugged the children and blessed them.

A rich man’s question

<sup>17</sup>As Jesus continued down the road, a man ran up, knelt before him, and asked, “Good Teacher, what must I do to obtain eternal life?”

<sup>18</sup>Jesus replied, “Why do you call me good? No one is good except the one God. <sup>19</sup>You know the commandments: Don’t commit murder. Don’t commit adultery. Don’t steal. Don’t give false testimony. Don’t cheat. Honor your father and mother.”

<sup>20</sup>“Teacher,” he responded, “I’ve kept all of these things since I was a boy.”

<sup>21</sup>Jesus looked at him carefully and loved him. He said, “You are lacking one thing. Go, sell images of salt and fire portray the judgment that comes with God’s kingdom (see 1 Cor 3:13).

9:50 peace with each other: God’s kingdom brings harmony to social relationships. Peace among Jesus’ followers in turn reflects the character of God’s kingdom to the world (see Matt 5:13).

10:1-12 See Matthew 19:1-9. Jesus’ view of divorce comes from his belief that God’s coming kingdom will restore creation to its original design.

10:1 beyond the Jordan and into the region of Judea: Jesus and his disciples make their way toward Jerusalem.

10:2 Pharisees: See note on Mark 2:16. test: See Mark 8:11; 12:15.

10:3 “What did Moses command you?”: Jesus appeals to the written Jewish Law (see Mark 7:9-10).

10:4 See Deuteronomy 24:1-4.

10:5 unyielding hearts: or “hardened hearts.” The phrase describes those who belong to the present evil age and resist God’s kingdom.

10:6-8 Jesus combines Genesis 1:27 with Genesis 2:24. Those who looked for God’s coming kingdom considered Genesis a blueprint for the new creation.

10:9 pull apart: Jesus’ concerns about divorce are consistent with the “peace” he’s commanded in Mark 9:50.

10:11-12 Jesus interprets Jewish Law strictly, while introducing equality between men and women. Traditionally, both Jewish and Roman laws restricted women’s right to divorce.

10:13-16 See Matthew 19:13-15; Luke 18:15-17; Mark 9:36-37.

10:14 angry: See Mark 1:41; 3:5; 10:41. Jesus often displays anger when people resist the values of God’s kingdom. Society’s weakest members inherit God’s kingdom because they so freely welcome it (see Mark 10:15).

10:17-31 See Matthew 19:16-30; Luke 18:18-30. Children welcome God’s kingdom (Mark 10:14-16), but a wealthy man walks away from it.

10:17 eternal life: The man asks Jesus about the way of life associated with God’s coming kingdom (see Mark 10:24).

10:18 No one . . . one God: Jesus affirms the Jewish belief in one and only one God.

10:19 commandments: Jesus omits the laws that refer to people’s devotion to God and focuses instead on those that address relationships among people (see Exod 20:12-16; Deut 5:16-20). He adds one law, Don’t cheat, that isn’t among the Ten Commandments (but see Exod 20:17; Deut 24:14).

10:21 the poor: Jewish tradition shows consistent concern for the poor. Jesus’ radical command goes a step further by insisting the man sell what he owns before following Jesus (see Mark 10:28).

what you own, and give the money to the poor. Then you will have treasure in heaven. And come, follow me.”<sup>22</sup> But the man was dismayed at this statement and went away saddened, because he had many possessions.

<sup>23</sup> Looking around, Jesus said to his disciples, “It will be very hard for the wealthy to enter God’s kingdom!”<sup>24</sup> His words startled the disciples, so Jesus told them again, “Children, it’s difficult to enter God’s kingdom!<sup>25</sup> It’s easier for a camel to squeeze through the eye of a needle than for a rich person to enter God’s kingdom.”

<sup>27</sup> Jesus looked at them carefully and said, “It’s impossible with human beings, but not with God. All things are possible for God.”

<sup>29</sup> Jesus said, “I assure you that anyone who has left house, brothers, sisters, mother, father, children, or farms because of me and because of the good news<sup>30</sup> will receive one hundred times as much now in this life—houses, brothers, sisters, mothers, children, and farms (with harassment)—and in the coming age, eternal life.<sup>31</sup> But many who are first will be last. And many who are last will be first.”

Jesus predicts his death and resurrection

<sup>32</sup> Jesus and his disciples were on the road, going up to Jerusalem, with Jesus in the lead. The disciples were amazed while the others following behind were afraid. Taking the Twelve aside again, he told them what was about to happen to him.<sup>33</sup> “Look!” he said. “We’re going up to Jerusalem. The Human One<sup>34</sup> will be handed over to the chief priests and the legal experts. They will condemn him to death and hand him over to the Gentiles.<sup>35</sup> They will ridicule him, spit on him, torture him, and kill him. After three days, he will rise up.”

A request from James and John

<sup>36</sup> James and John, Zebedee’s sons, came to Jesus and said, “Teacher, we want you to do for us whatever we ask.”

<sup>37</sup> “What do you want me to do for you?” he asked.

<sup>38</sup> They said, “Allow one of us to sit on your right and the other on your left when you enter your glory.”

<sup>39</sup> Jesus replied, “You don’t know what you’re asking! Can you drink the cup I drink or receive the baptism I receive?”

<sup>40</sup> “We can,” they answered.

Jesus said, “You will drink the cup I drink and receive the baptism I receive,<sup>41</sup> but to sit at my right or left hand isn’t mine to give. It belongs to those for whom it has been prepared.”

<sup>42</sup> Now when the other ten disciples heard about this, they became angry with James and

<sup>34</sup> Or Son of Man

10:22 dismayed: Jesus’ response deeply offends the man.

10:25 eye of a needle: Wealth prevents entry into God’s kingdom because it’s easier to rely on money and things than on God.

10:26 saved: that is, enter eternal life at the judgment.

10:27 All things are possible for God: See Mark 9:23; Genesis 18:14; Zechariah 8:6.

10:29 because of me and because of the good news: See note on Mark 8:35.

10:30 one hundred times . . . (with harassment): See Mark 13:9-13. Jesus promises his followers both rich reward and public scorn. He omits “father” when repeating the list of Mark 10:29. The community of Jesus’ disciples has God as its Father. See note on Mark 3:32.

10:31 first . . . first: See Mark 9:35; 10:44.

10:32-34 See Matthew 20:17-19; Luke 18:31-33. This is the third prediction of Jesus’ death and resurrection in Mark (See Mark 8:27-29; 9:30-10:31).

10:32 amazed . . . afraid: The Greek text doesn’t say who was amazed, but it does distinguish between amazement (see Mark 1:27; 10:24) and fear (see Mark 4:41; 6:50).

10:34 ridicule . . . spit . . . torture: The final prediction includes graphic details about Jesus’ destiny (see Mark 15:15-32).

10:35-45 See Matthew 20:20-27. For a third time, Jesus’ prediction about his death leads to instruction about discipleship.

10:35 James and John: See Mark 1:19. With Peter, these two brothers belong to the inner circle of Jesus’ disciples. See note on Mark 5:37.

10:37 right: a place of honor (see Ps 110:1). enter your glory: The brothers assume they’ll join Jesus in the heavenly throne room once God’s kingdom arrives.

10:39 cup . . . baptism: Both images belong to the coming kingdom of God. “Cup” is shorthand for destiny (see Pss 11:6; 23:5; 116:13). “Baptism” here refers to the final cleansing of sin in preparation for God’s kingdom. See note on Mark 1:4. Jesus’ disciples will share his destiny.

10:40 it has been prepared: The passive verb suggests God is the one in charge of people’s destinies.

John. <sup>42</sup>Jesus called them over and said, "You know that the ones who are considered the rulers by the Gentiles show off their authority over them and their high-ranking officials order them around. <sup>43</sup>But that's not the way it will be with you. Whoever wants to be great among you will be your servant. <sup>44</sup>Whoever wants to be first among you will be the slave of all, <sup>45</sup>for the Human One* didn't come to be served but rather to serve and to give his life to liberate many people."

Healing of blind Bartimaeus

<sup>46</sup>Jesus and his followers came into Jericho. As Jesus was leaving Jericho, together with his disciples and a sizable crowd, a blind beggar named Bartimaeus, Timaues' son, was sitting beside the road. <sup>47</sup>When he heard that Jesus of Nazareth was there, he began to shout, "Jesus, Son of David, show me mercy!" <sup>48</sup>Many scolded him, telling him to be quiet, but he shouted even louder, "Son of David, show me mercy!"

<sup>49</sup>Jesus stopped and said, "Call him forward."

They called the blind man, "Be encouraged! Get up! He's calling you."

<sup>50</sup>Throwing his coat to the side, he jumped up and came to Jesus.

<sup>51</sup>Jesus asked him, "What do you want me to do for you?"

The blind man said, "Teacher, I want to see."

<sup>52</sup>Jesus said, "Go, your faith has healed you." At once he was able to see, and he began to follow Jesus on the way.

Jesus enters Jerusalem

11 When Jesus and his followers approached Jerusalem, they came to Bethphage and Bethany at the Mount of Olives. Jesus gave two disciples a task, <sup>2</sup>saying to them, "Go into the village over there. As soon as you enter it, you will find tied up there a colt that no one has ridden. Untie it and bring it here. <sup>3</sup>If anyone says to you, 'Why are you doing this?' say, 'Its master needs it, and he will send it back right away!'"

<sup>4</sup>They went and found a colt tied to a gate outside on the street, and they untied it. <sup>5</sup>Some people standing around said to them, "What are you doing, untying the colt?" <sup>6</sup>They told them just what Jesus said, and they left them alone. <sup>7</sup>They brought the colt to Jesus and threw their clothes upon it, and he sat on it. <sup>8</sup>Many people spread out their clothes on the road while others spread branches cut from the fields. <sup>9</sup>Those in front of him and those following were shouting, "Hosanna! Blessings on the one who comes in the name of the Lord!"

10:42 considered the rulers: Jesus hints at the fragile power of earthly rulers. They only seem to be in charge. authority over: Earthly power is top-down power.

10:43 with you: or "among you." Like Jesus, the disciples reflect God's power, which is bottom-up power.

10:45 Human One... people: Like Jesus, his followers will give their lives (see Mark 13:12) as part of God's redemption of the world. See note on Mark 2:10. See sidebar, "The Human One in Mark" at Mark 14.

10:46-52 See Matthew 20:29-34; Luke 18:35-43. The story of Bartimaeus concludes the Gospel's middle section, which began with a story of restored sight (see Mark 8:22-26).

10:46 Jericho: about 20 miles from Jerusalem.

10:47 Son of David: a rare use of this title in Mark. Jewish tradition often linked hopes for God's coming kingdom with the renewal of David's kingdom (2 Sam 7:4-17; Mark 11:10). Elsewhere in Mark, Jesus distances himself from this tradition (Mark 12:35-37), probably because it implies a military and/or political grab for power. show me mercy: See Mark 5:19.

10:52 your faith has healed you: See note on Mark 5:27. on the way: an early Christian expression for the life of discipleship. In the book of Acts, for example, the Christian movement is sometimes called "the Way" (e.g., Acts 9:2; 19:9; 24:14).

11:1-13:37 Jesus and his disciples enter Jerusalem for the Passover Festival (see Mark 14:1).

11:1-11 See Matthew 21:1-11; Luke 19:28-40; John 12:12-19.

11:1 Bethphage and Bethany: The two towns are just outside Jerusalem. Because the city was crowded during Passover, many pilgrims found places to stay in nearby towns and villages.

11:2 colt: This act symbolizes Jesus' humble authority (see Zech 9:9; cf. Matt 21:5; John 12:15).

11:6 just what Jesus said: Mark shows that Jesus knows what lies ahead.

11:8 clothes... branches: The OT associates similar details with Israel's kings (see 2 Kgs 9:13). For Mark, though, Jesus is a different kind of king (see Mark 11:2, 9).

11:9 The reference to Psalm 118:26 draws attention to Jesus' royal status. The shout Hosanna! literally means "Save now!" The people think Jesus will save them from Roman occupation. Ironically, this misplaced hope will ultimately lead to his death.

<sup>12</sup>The next day, after leaving Bethany, Jesus was hungry. <sup>13</sup>From far away, he noticed a fig tree in leaf, so he went to see if he could find anything on it. When he came to it, he found nothing except leaves, since it wasn't the season for figs. <sup>14</sup>So he said to it, "No one will ever again eat your fruit!" His disciples heard this.

<sup>15</sup>They came into Jerusalem. After entering the temple, he threw out those who were selling and buying there. He pushed over the tables used for currency exchange and the chairs of those who sold doves. <sup>16</sup>He didn't allow anyone to carry anything through the temple. <sup>17</sup>He taught them, "Hasn't it been written, My house will be called a house of prayer for all nations?<sup>a</sup> But you've turned it into a hideout for crooks."<sup>b</sup> <sup>18</sup>The chief priests and legal experts heard this and tried to find a way to destroy him. They regarded him as dangerous because the whole crowd was enthralled at his teaching. <sup>19</sup>When it was evening, Jesus and his disciples went outside the city.

Power, prayer, and forgiveness

<sup>20</sup>Early in the morning, as Jesus and his disciples were walking along, they saw the fig tree withered from the root up. <sup>21</sup>Peter remembered and said to Jesus, "Rabbi, look how the fig tree you cursed has dried up."

<sup>22</sup>Jesus responded to them, "Have faith in God! <sup>23</sup>I assure you that whoever says to this mountain, 'Be lifted up and thrown into the sea'—and doesn't waver but believes that what is said will really happen—it will happen. <sup>24</sup>Therefore I say to you, whatever you pray and ask for, believe that you will receive it, and it will be so for you. <sup>25</sup>And whenever you stand up to pray, if you have something against anyone, forgive so that your Father in heaven may forgive you your wrongdoings."<sup>b</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Isa 56:7 <sup>b</sup>Jer 7:11 <sup>b</sup>11:26 is omitted in most critical editions of the Gk New Testament And if you don't forgive, neither will your Father in heaven forgive you your wrongdoings.

11:11 looked around: Although his ride into Jerusalem has drawn a crowd, no one seems to notice Jesus' first visit to the temple.

11:12-25 See Matthew 21:12-22; Luke 19:45-48; John 2:13-22. Mark places the story of the temple incident within his account of the cursing of the fig tree (he uses a similar style in Mark 5:21-43; 14:1-11). The effect is to highlight his criticism of the Jewish leaders.

11:13 season: The Greek word translated here as "season" implies that God orders time for certain purposes. In Mark it's the season for God's kingdom (see Mark 1:15).

11:14 "No one... fruit!": On one level, Jesus' response to the fig tree is disturbing. This is because he seems to punish the tree for not producing fruit out of season (see Mark 11:20). The real point, though, is to show that the coming of God's kingdom marks the end of the time of Jerusalem's temple.

11:15 threw out: See note on Mark 1:34. currency exchange... sold doves: People who came to worship God in Jerusalem exchanged their coins for temple currency to be used within the temple area itself. They then purchased animals (such as doves) to sacrifice (see Lev 1:15; 5:7).

Faith/Trust These two words, along with "belief," are translated from the same Greek word, and they're an important concept in Mark's Gospel. Faith in Mark is active. It isn't simply believing in a set of doctrines; faith is about those things people entrust their lives with. Jesus urges people to "trust this good news" (Mark 1:15) about God's coming kingdom. And throughout the Gospel, he draws a close connection between faith/trust and the power of God at work in the world. When people act as if God's power is available through Jesus, they turn to him for healing (Mark 2:5; 5:34). When they're more skeptical or fail to believe, even he can't do much good (Mark 6:5-6). In Mark, Jesus calls for "faith in God" (Mark 11:22), not faith in himself (cf. John 20:30-31). But Jesus is God's Christ, the one who serves as an authorized agent of divine power. So people turn to him in faith when they trust that power—and they find life.

11:17 My house... crooks: Like OT prophets, Jesus condemns temple activity that violates its sacred purpose (see Isa 56:7; Jer 7:1-11). The crooks probably include those who corrupt the temple by their deeds as well as those who profit from the temple economy at the expense of the poor.

11:18 destroy him: The Jewish leadership wants to destroy Jesus (see Mark 3:6). This time Mark says it's because Jesus has the attention and support of the whole crowd.

11:22-25 These sayings turn from Jesus' power over the fig tree to the power available to those who have faith in God.

11:22 faith: See Mark 2:5; 5:34; 10:52. Compare with Mark 6:5-6a. See sidebar, "Faith/Trust."

11:25 so that... forgive you: See Matthew 6:5; Luke 18:11, 13. Effective prayer depends on forgiveness. In other words, a right relationship with God requires right relationships with other people.

Controversy over authority

<sup>27</sup>Jesus and his disciples entered Jerusalem again. As Jesus was walking around the temple, the chief priests, legal experts, and elders came to him. <sup>28</sup>They asked, "What kind of authority do you have for doing these things? Who gave you this authority to do them?"

<sup>29</sup>Jesus said to them, "I have a question for you. Give me an answer, then I'll tell you what kind of authority I have to do these things. <sup>30</sup>Was John's baptism of heavenly or of human origin? Answer me."

<sup>31</sup>They argued among themselves, "If we say, 'It's of heavenly origin,' he'll say, 'Then why didn't you believe him?' <sup>32</sup>But we can't say, 'It's of earthly origin.'" They said this because they were afraid of the crowd, because they all thought John was a prophet. <sup>33</sup>They answered Jesus, "We don't know."

Jesus replied, "Neither will I tell you what kind of authority I have to do these things."

Parable of the tenant farmers

12 Jesus spoke to them in parables. "A man planted a vineyard, put a fence around it, dug a pit for the winepress, and built a tower. Then he rented it to tenant farmers and took a trip. <sup>2</sup>When it was time, he sent a servant to collect from the tenants his share of the fruit of the vineyard. <sup>3</sup>But they grabbed the servant, beat him, and sent him away empty-handed. <sup>4</sup>Again the landowner sent another servant to them, but they struck him on the head and treated him disgracefully. <sup>5</sup>He sent another one; that one they killed. The landlord sent many other servants, but the tenants beat some and killed others. <sup>6</sup>Now the landowner had one son whom he loved dearly. He sent him last, thinking, 'They will respect my son.' <sup>7</sup>But those tenant farmers said to each other, 'This is the heir. Let's kill him, and the inheritance will be ours.' <sup>8</sup>They grabbed him, killed him, and threw him out of the vineyard.

<sup>9</sup>"So what will the owner of the vineyard do? He will come and destroy those tenants and give the vineyard to others. <sup>10</sup>Haven't you read this scripture, The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone. <sup>11</sup>The Lord has done this, and it's amazing in our eyes?"<sup>c</sup>

<sup>12</sup>They wanted to arrest Jesus because they knew that he had told the parable against them. But they were afraid of the crowd, so they left him and went away.

A question about taxes

<sup>13</sup>They sent some of the Pharisees and supporters of Herod to trap him in his words. <sup>14</sup>They came to him and said, "Teacher, we know that you're genuine and you don't worry about what people think. You don't show favoritism but teach God's way as it really is. Does the Law allow people to pay taxes to Caesar or not? Should we pay taxes or not?"

11:27-33 See Matthew 21:23-27; Luke 20:1-8. This is the first of several exchanges between Jesus and the temple authorities.

11:27 chief priests, legal experts, and elders: On legal experts, see note on Mark 1:22. On chief priests and elders, see note on Mark 8:31. The list combines some of Jesus' opponents from Galilee with Jerusalem leaders.

11:28 authority: People have noticed Jesus' authority from early in the Gospel (see Mark 1:22, 27; 2:10).

11:29-30 question for you: Like a true rabbi, or Jewish teacher, Jesus answers a question with another question. John's baptism: Jesus' words suggest he had a relationship with the prophet John (see Mark 1:4-11; 6:14).

11:32 afraid of the crowd: The Jewish leaders probably fear the crowd's opinion, as well as a possible Roman reaction against a popular uprising.

11:33 "We don't know": Jesus' opponents provide a safe answer. For Mark their reply is probably ironic as well. They truly don't know the nature of John's authority.

12:1-12 See Matthew 21:33-46; Luke 20:9-19.

12:1 in parables: See note on Mark 4:11. vineyard: The comparison of a vineyard to God's people is a familiar one (see Isa 5:1-7).

12:2 When it was time: By highlighting the harvesttime, this parable supports Jesus' claim that God's kingdom is near (Mark 1:15). See note on Mark 11:13. servant: OT prophets are often called God's servants (see Amos 3:7; Zech 1:6).

12:5 beat some and killed others: The messengers' fate fits 2 Chronicles 36:15-16, which says many prophets have warned about Israel's defeat.

12:6 son whom he loved dearly: The contrast between the servants and the son is striking. In Mark, Jesus has now twice been called God's dearly loved son (Mark 1:11; 9:7).

12:7 heir: The tenant farmers recognize the son. Instead of respecting him, they plot to steal his property.

12:9 destroy those tenants: The son's death isn't the end of the story. Rather, the murderers will face judgment. to others: Jesus suggests other people, probably Gentiles, will take their place among God's people.

12:10-11 See Psalm 118:22-23. Early Christians often explained Jesus' death by turning to the OT.

12:12 afraid of the crowd: See note on Mark 11:32.

12:13-17 See Matthew 22:15-22; Luke 20:20-26.

12:13 supporters of Herod: Jewish leaders oppose Jesus. Mark includes groups that represent Galilean interests. See note on Mark 3:6.

<sup>15</sup>Since Jesus recognized their deceit, he said to them, "Why are you testing me? Bring me a coin. Show it to me." <sup>16</sup>And they brought one. He said to them, "Whose image and inscription is this?"

"Caesar's," they replied.

<sup>17</sup>Jesus said to them, "Give to Caesar what belongs to Caesar and to God what belongs to God." His reply left them overcome with wonder.

A question about the resurrection

<sup>18</sup>Sadducees, who deny that there is a resurrection, came to Jesus and asked, <sup>19</sup>"Teacher, Moses wrote for us that if a man's brother dies, leaving a widow but no children, the brother must marry the widow and raise up children for his brother." <sup>20</sup>Now there were seven brothers. The first one married a woman; when he died, he left no children. <sup>21</sup>The second married her and died without leaving any children. The third did the same. <sup>22</sup>None of the seven left any children. Finally, the woman died. <sup>23</sup>At the resurrection, when they all rise up, whose wife will she be? All seven were married to her."

<sup>24</sup>Jesus said to them, "Isn't this the reason you are wrong, because you don't know either the scriptures or God's power? <sup>25</sup>When people rise from the dead, they won't marry nor will they be given in marriage. Instead, they will be like God's angels. <sup>26</sup>As for the resurrection from the dead, haven't you read in the scroll from Moses, in the passage about the burning bush, how God said to Moses, I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?" <sup>27</sup>He isn't the God of the dead but of the living. You are seriously mistaken."

God's most important command

<sup>28</sup>One of the legal experts heard their dispute and saw how well Jesus answered them. He came over and asked him, "Which commandment is the most important of all?"

<sup>29</sup>Jesus replied, "The most important one is Israel, listen! Our God is the one Lord, <sup>30</sup>and you must love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your being, with all your mind, and with all your strength." <sup>31</sup>The second is this, You will love your neighbor as yourself. <sup>32</sup>No other commandment is greater than these."

<sup>33</sup>The legal expert said to him, "Well said, Teacher. You have truthfully said that God is one and there is no other besides him. <sup>34</sup>And to love God with all of the heart, a full understanding, and all of one's strength, and to love one's neighbor as oneself is much more important than all kinds of entirely burned offerings and sacrifices."

12:15 Jesus recognized their deceit: See Mark 2:8. coin: a denarius. See note on Mark 6:37.

12:16 image and inscription: Roman coins bore the imprint of the emperor.

12:17 Jesus doesn't specify what belongs to both Caesar and God, leaving his audience to wrestle with it for themselves. This ambiguity, though, invites the faithful to reflect on the tension between loyalties to political power and religious commitment. Rather than affirming separate-but-equal power for these two spheres, Jesus seems to imply that God's image, reflected in humanity, merits higher devotion than Caesar's, which is found on the face of a coin. wonder: See Mark 5:20.

12:18-27 See Matthew 22:23-33; Luke 20:27-40.

12:18 Sadducees: probably a group of wealthy priests of the Jerusalem temple (see Acts 4:1; 5:17). They don't believe in either the resurrection or the oral interpretation of the Law. See note on Mark 7:3.

12:19 The Sadducees refer to the Law of Moses. See note on Mark 12:18.

12:24 the scriptures or God's power: Jesus detects two levels of ignorance: (1) the Sadducees don't understand the writings themselves, and (2) they deny God's authority over human life.

12:25 God's angels: At the resurrection, people will be changed into a different form altogether (see 1 Cor 15:35-50).

12:27 God... of the living: Jesus stresses God's connection to human beings (Mark 12:26; see Exod 3:6, 15-16). seriously mistaken: Their concern with the afterlife misses the point of living in relationship with God in the here and now.

12:28-34 See Matthew 22:34-40; Luke 10:25-28.

12:28 legal experts: Usually in Mark this group opposes Jesus. See note on Mark 1:22.

12:29-30 Jesus offers an obvious answer, taken from the opening of the Ten Commandments (see Deut 6:4-5; cf. 10:19). Jews in his day routinely memorized and recited these verses. In Mark's account Jesus expands the sacred text by adding with all your mind (see Deut 6:6).

12:31 Jesus names the love of neighbor (Lev 19:18) as the second commandment. Jews and early Christians generally thought one couldn't love God without loving others (see Rom 13:9; Gal 5:14; Jas 2:8).

12:33 more important... sacrifices: See Hosea 6:6. Jesus echoes a common view of the OT prophets.

<sup>34</sup>When Jesus saw that he had answered with wisdom, he said to him, “You aren’t far from God’s kingdom.” After that, no one dared to ask him any more questions.

Jesus corrects the legal experts

<sup>35</sup>While Jesus was teaching in the temple, he said, “Why do the legal experts say that the Christ is David’s son? <sup>36</sup>David himself, inspired by the Holy Spirit, said, The Lord said to my lord, ‘Sit at my right side until I turn your enemies into your footstool.’<sup>b</sup> <sup>37</sup>David himself calls him ‘Lord,’ so how can he be David’s son?” The large crowd listened to him with delight.

<sup>38</sup>As he was teaching, he said, “Watch out for the legal experts. They like to walk around in long robes. They want to be greeted with honor in the markets. <sup>39</sup>They long for places of honor in the synagogues and at banquets. <sup>40</sup>They are the ones who cheat widows out of their homes, and to show off they say long prayers. They will be judged most harshly.”

A poor widow’s contribution

The temple’s fate

13As Jesus left the temple, one of his disciples said to him, “Teacher, look! What awesome stones and buildings!”

<sup>2</sup>Jesus responded, “Do you see these enormous buildings? Not even one stone will be left upon another. All will be demolished.”

<sup>3</sup>Jesus was sitting on the Mount of Olives across from the temple. Peter, James, John, and Andrew asked him privately, <sup>4</sup>“Tell us, when will these things happen? What sign will show that all these things are about to come to an end?”

<sup>b</sup>Ps 110:1 <sup>1</sup>Or two lepta (the smallest Greek copper coin, each worth 1/128 of a single day’s pay), that is, a kodrantes (the smallest Roman coin, equal in value to two lepta)

12:34 “You aren’t far from God’s kingdom”: The statement may have a double meaning. To Jesus, God’s kingdom is fast approaching (see Mark 1:15). The man’s favorable response qualifies him to enter God’s kingdom.

12:35–40 See Matthew 22:41–46; Luke 20:41–47.

12:35 David’s son: Some Jews in Jesus’ day expected a Davidic king to liberate Palestine from the Romans. Early Christians thought Christ had to come from David’s family (see Matt 1:20; Luke 2:4; Rom 1:3). See note on Mark 10:47. 12:36 my lord: Jesus uses Psalm 110:1 to prove that David’s son couldn’t be the anointed one, or “Christ.” Perhaps Jesus wants to dismiss any political hopes people have about the Davidic line. turn your enemies into your footstool: God’s kingdom will defeat all human and spiritual opposition (see 1 Cor 15:25).

12:37 delight: The crowd’s favorable response continues (see Mark 6:20). They may not understand that Jesus’ question has already undermined any hopes they might have had that Jesus would deliver them from Roman rule. 12:38–40 The legal experts have stopped questioning Jesus (see Mark 12:34), but he hasn’t stopped questioning them.

12:38 long robes: The legal experts wore robes that declared how important they were. greeted with honor: Ancient peoples associated honor with privileged social status (see also Mark 12:29).

12:40 widows: OT prophets condemn the powerful for taking advantage of widows (see Isa 10:1–2). show off: See Matthew 6:5–6; 23:5–6.

12:41–44 See Luke 21:1–4. The poor widow is a good example of devotion to God.

12:42 two small copper coins: worth a tiny fraction of a day’s wage.

12:44 spare change: The widow’s offering counts for more than the rich people’s leftovers. what she needed to live on: or “her whole life.” The woman’s offering represents her sacrificial devotion to God (see Mark 8:35–36; cf. Mark 10:22).

13:1–37 See Matthew 24:1–44; Luke 21:5–33. Jesus teaches about the temple and its coming destruction. His message about endurance (13:13) seems especially focused on Mark’s audience.

13:1 awesome stones and buildings: Jesus’ disciples are filled with wonder at the temple complex. Herod the Great had significantly expanded the structure decades earlier.

13:2 Not even one stone: Jesus predicts complete destruction of Jerusalem’s second temple. When Rome destroyed the temple in 70 CE, it left stones and rubble visitors can see today. Jesus’ words echo Jewish prophecy about the destruction of the first temple. Both Jeremiah (26:6) and Micah (3:12) believed that religious abuses by the authorities would lead to such an outcome.

13:3 Peter, James, John, and Andrew: See Mark 1:16–20. See note on Mark 5:37.

13:4 all these things . . . come to an end: Jesus has mentioned only the temple’s destruction. The disciples’ question uses words (“all . . . things” and “end”) that hint at the sweeping impact of God’s coming kingdom.

Keep watch!

<sup>5</sup>Jesus said, "Watch out that no one deceives you. <sup>6</sup>Many people will come in my name, saying, 'I'm the one!' They will deceive many people. <sup>7</sup>When you hear of wars and reports of wars, don't be alarmed. These things must happen, but this isn't the end yet. <sup>8</sup>Nations and kingdoms will fight against each other, and there will be earthquakes and famines in all sorts of places. These things are just the beginning of the sufferings associated with the end.

<sup>9</sup>"Watch out for yourselves. People will hand you over to the councils. You will be beaten in the synagogues. You will stand before governors and kings because of me so that you can testify before them. <sup>10</sup>First, the good news must be proclaimed to all the nations. <sup>11</sup>When they haul you in and hand you over, don't worry ahead of time about what to answer or say. Instead, say whatever is given to you at that moment, for you aren't doing the speaking but the Holy Spirit is. <sup>12</sup>Brothers and sisters will hand each other over to death. A father will turn in his children. Children will rise up against their parents and have them executed. <sup>13</sup>Everyone will hate you because of my name. But whoever stands firm until the end will be saved.

<sup>14</sup>"When you see the disgusting and destructive thing standing where it shouldn't be (the reader should understand this), then those in Judea must escape to the mountains. <sup>15</sup>Those on the roof shouldn't come down or enter their houses to grab anything. <sup>16</sup>Those in the field shouldn't come back to grab their clothes. <sup>17</sup>How terrible it will be at that time for women who are pregnant and for women who are nursing their children. <sup>18</sup>Pray that it doesn't happen in winter. <sup>19</sup>In those days there will be great suffering such as the world has never before seen and will never again see. <sup>20</sup>If the Lord hadn't shortened that time, no one would be rescued. <sup>1</sup>Or Son of Man

13:6 in my name: Elsewhere Jesus praises those who work miracles in his name (see Mark 9:39). Here he warns against those who claim to be the one.

13:8 sufferings . . . the end: Jesus explains that human suffering plays an inevitable part in the unfolding redemption of the world. The end is really the full arrival of God's kingdom.

13:9-13 These verses predict in detail the destiny of Jesus' followers.

13:9 hand you over: See Mark 9:31; 10:33. This prediction suggests some in Mark's audience have been or will be betrayed. beaten in the synagogues: See Mark 14:65.

13:10 good news: News about God's coming kingdom must be shared with all the nations so they can prepare to participate in it. See note on Mark 1:14.

13:11 Holy Spirit: See Mark 1:8. God's Spirit is at work among those who join forces with God's kingdom.

13:12 Earlier Jesus redefined family relationships (see Mark 3:31-35). Here he notes that traditional family units will divide over the question of loyalty to God's kingdom.

13:13 stands firm until the end: See Mark 13:4, 7, 8. "The end" means the end of the world in its present state, not the destruction of the created order. saved: See Mark 10:26. Salvation is a future reality. The faithful will receive it at Judgment Day.

13:14 disgusting and destructive thing: This description recalls the statue placed in the Jerusalem temple in the 2nd century when the Jewish people were under foreign rule (Dan 7:27; 11:31; 12:11). It could also point to corruption in the temple during the Jewish War (66-70 CE), which occurred about the time scholars believe Mark was written. (the reader should understand this): Jesus' words apply not only to the disciples in the story but also to Mark's audience. escape to the mountains: The chaos of the Jewish War left Christians vulnerable to attack. Outsiders saw them as a fringe movement devoted to a leader who had failed (see Mark 13:9-13).

13:18 in winter: This season typically brings heavy rains that make travel more difficult.

13:19 great suffering: Intense suffering is only to be expected as part of God's unfolding plan.

13:20 shortened that time: Those who think God's kingdom is near often count the days until the coming end. By shortening the time span, God has also diminished the suffering. the ones whom God chose: Those who trust in God's kingdom have first been chosen by God (see Mark 13:22). See note on Mark 10:40.

13:21-22 See Mark 13:5. Ancient historians note that there were many in 1st-century Judea who claimed to be the Christ. See notes on Mark 1:1; 8:29.

13:23 watch out: Jesus urges wide-eyed attentiveness to the signs of God's kingdom breaking into the earthly realm (see Mark 4:24; 8:15, 18).

13:24-25 Even heavenly bodies will display the drama of God's coming kingdom (see Ezek 32:7-8; Joel 2:10, 31; Amos 8:9).

13:24 In those days: In the OT the phrase often refers to the "day of the Lord," when God's kingdom will come to earth (see Isa 13:10; 34:4; 50:2-3).

13:26-27 Human One coming in the clouds: In Daniel, the power and splendor. <sup>27</sup>Then he will send the angels and gather together his chosen people from the four corners of the earth, from the end of the earth to the end of heaven.

A lesson from the fig tree

<sup>28</sup>Learn this parable from the fig tree. After its branch becomes tender and it sprouts new leaves, you know that summer is near. <sup>29</sup>In the same way, when you see these things happening, you know that he's near, at the door. <sup>30</sup>I assure you that this generation won't pass away until all these things happen. <sup>31</sup>Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will certainly not pass away.

<sup>32</sup>But nobody knows when that day or hour will come, not the angels in heaven and not the Son. Only the Father knows. <sup>33</sup>Watch out! Stay alert! You don't know when the time is coming. <sup>34</sup>It is as if someone took a trip, left the household behind, and put the servants in charge, giving each one a job to do, and told the doorkeeper to stay alert. <sup>35</sup>Therefore, stay alert! You don't know when the head of the household will come, whether in the evening or at midnight, or when the rooster crows in the early morning or at daybreak. <sup>36</sup>Don't let him show up when you weren't expecting and find you sleeping. <sup>37</sup>What I say to you, I say to all: Stay alert!"

Preparation for burial

14It was two days before Passover and the Festival of Unleavened Bread. The chief priests and legal experts through cunning tricks were searching for a way to arrest Jesus and kill him. <sup>2</sup>But they agreed that it shouldn't happen during the festival; otherwise, there would be an uproar among the people.

<sup>3</sup>Jesus was at Bethany visiting the house of Simon, who had a skin disease. During dinner, a woman came in with a vase made of alabaster and containing very expensive perfume of pure nard. She broke open the vase and poured the perfume on his head. <sup>4</sup>Some grew angry. They said to each other, "Why waste the perfume? <sup>5</sup>This perfume could have been sold for almost a year's pay<sup>k</sup> and the money given to the poor." And they scolded her.

<sup>6</sup>Jesus said, "Leave her alone. Why do you make trouble for her? She has done a good thing for me. <sup>7</sup>You always have the poor with you; and whenever you want, you can do something good for them. But you won't always have me. <sup>8</sup>She has done what she could. She has anointed my body ahead of time for burial. <sup>9</sup>I tell you the truth that, wherever in the whole world the good news is announced, what she's done will also be told in memory of her."

<sup>k</sup>Or three hundred denaria; a denarion was equivalent to a day's pay.

Human One who joins God in the heavenly throne room takes the place of the beasts who have gone before (see Dan 7:13-14). According to Mark, the figure will arrive on earth to establish God's kingdom. See sidebar, "The Human One in Mark" from the four corners of the earth: In God's kingdom the chosen people are those who trust God and reflect God's reign, regardless of nationality, ethnicity, or even religious tradition (see Mark 13:20).
 13:28-31 See Mark 11:12-14, 20-21. Jesus says God's kingdom is in season, that is, the signs of its arrival are all around.
 13:30 this generation... happen: Jesus implies God's kingdom will arrive within a lifetime. Some read "this generation" as a metaphor for the era when evil persists unchecked. See notes on Mark 8:12; 9:1; 13:4.
 13:33 Stay alert!: Since only God knows when the kingdom will arrive (Mark 13:32), Jesus repeats his warning to be ready at any moment (Mark 13:35, 37; 13:34).
 13:34 someone took a trip: See Matthew 24:37-51; 25:13-30; Luke 12:35-46; 19:11-27. God is like an absentee landlord who will soon return to reclaim the estate. In the meantime, the tenants are in charge.
 13:35 in the evening... at daybreak: Romans divided the night watch into four segments. The owner could return at night, so staying awake required people to be especially alert (see Mark 14:32-42; Rom 13:11-14; 1 Thess 5:1-11).
 13:37 to all: See Mark 13:14. This private conversation between Jesus and his disciples (see Mark 13:3) applies to everyone.

 14:1-15:27 See Matthew 26:1-27:66; Luke 22:1-23:56; John 13:1-19:42.
 14:1-11 See Matthew 26:1-16; Luke 22:1-6. Mark contrasts the story of an unnamed woman's sacrifice (14:3-9) with reports about the plot against Jesus (14:1-2, 10-11).
 14:1 Passover and the Festival of Unleavened Bread: See Exodus 12:1-13:16; 2 Chronicles 35:17. These holy days celebrate the miracle of Israel's deliverance from slavery in Egypt (Exod 12:1-13:16).
 14:2 uproar among the people: At Passover both the crowds and the religious excitement made Jerusalem ripe for rebellion.
 14:3 skin disease: Jesus finds himself among those who are unclean by religious standards (see Mark 1:40-45). alabaster... nard: Both the vase and the perfume were very costly.
 14:7 You always have the poor... won't always have me: See Deuteronomy 15:11. Jesus doesn't deny the importance of serving the poor when he affirms the woman's gift (see Mark 2:19-20).
 14:8 She has done what she could: See Mark 12:41-44. She's spent everything on Jesus. anointed my body: In her symbolic act, the woman has shown that this is the Christ, the anointed one.
 14:9 whole world: God's kingdom doesn't have boundaries

Passover meal

<sup>10</sup>Judas Iscariot, one of the Twelve, went to the chief priests to give Jesus up to them. <sup>11</sup>When they heard it, they were delighted and promised to give him money. So he started looking for an opportunity to turn him in.

<sup>12</sup>On the first day of the Festival of Unleavened Bread, when the Passover lamb was sacrificed, the disciples said to Jesus, "Where do you want us to prepare for you to eat the Passover meal?"

<sup>13</sup>He sent two of his disciples and said to them, "Go into the city. A man carrying a water jar will meet you. Follow him. <sup>14</sup>Wherever he enters, say to the owner of the house, 'The teacher asks, "Where is my guest room where I can eat the Passover meal with my disciples?"' <sup>15</sup>He will show you a large room upstairs already furnished. Prepare for us there." <sup>16</sup>The disciples left, came into the city, found everything just as he had told them, and they prepared the Passover meal.

<sup>17</sup>That evening, Jesus arrived with the Twelve. <sup>18</sup>During the meal, Jesus said, "I assure you that one of you will betray me—someone eating with me."

<sup>19</sup>Deeply saddened, they asked him, one by one, "It's not me, is it?"

<sup>22</sup>While they were eating, Jesus took bread, blessed it, broke it, and gave it to them, and said, "Take; this is my body." <sup>23</sup>He took a cup, gave thanks, and gave it to them, and they all drank from it. <sup>24</sup>He said to them, "This is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many. <sup>25</sup>I assure you that I won't drink wine again until that day when I drink it in a new way in God's kingdom." <sup>26</sup>After singing songs of praise, they went out to the Mount of Olives.

Predictions about disciples leaving Jesus

<sup>27</sup>Jesus said to them, "You will all falter in your faithfulness to me. It is written, I will hit the shepherd, and the sheep will go off in all directions." <sup>28</sup>But after I'm raised up, I will go before you to Galilee."

<sup>29</sup>Peter said to him, "Even if everyone else stumbles, I won't."

<sup>30</sup>But Jesus said to him, "I assure you that on this very night, before the rooster crows twice, you will deny me three times."

like a nation or a group of people (see Mark 13:10, 27). good news: See note on Mark 1:14. in memory of her: The gospel isn't just about Jesus; it's also about how others play a role in his mission.

14:10 Judas Iscariot: See Mark 3:19. chief priests: See note on Mark 11:18. give Jesus up: See Mark 9:31; 10:33; 14:11; 13:9.

14:11-26 See Matthew 26:17-25; Luke 22:7-14.

14:12 first day... when the Passover lamb was sacrificed: The timing isn't clear, since the lamb is usually killed the day before the festival begins. Mark may depart from Jewish custom by counting days from sunrise rather than from sunset.

14:16 as he had told them: Jesus' directions about preparing for the meal are flawless (see Mark 11:2-6).

14:18 someone eating with me: In the ancient world shared meals nurtured friendship bonds. Jesus' prediction of his betrayal, then, is tinged with irony (see Ps 41:9).

14:21 just as it is written about him: Jesus doesn't seem to be referring to any particular scriptural texts, since the OT nowhere speaks of the death of the Human One. Instead, he's identifying with traditions in the OT where righteous people are made to suffer.

14:22-25 Jesus' words about the bread and the cup support early Christian worship habits. His followers often shared a memorial meal when they gathered (see 1 Cor 11:23-26).

14:22 my body: The metaphor connects the bread to Jesus' own flesh. In Paul's letters "body" also refers to communities of Jesus' followers after his death (see 1 Cor 12:12-27; Rom 12:4).

14:24 my blood... for many: In the OT blood was used to authorize legal contracts (see Exod 24:6-8). The saying probably recalls Jeremiah's hope for a "new covenant" (see Jer 31:31-34), which is written on the heart, not on stone. It's also wide-reaching; the phrase "for many" echoes Mark 10:45.

14:25 that day: See Mark 13:32. The appointed time for God's reign to arrive. God's kingdom: See note on Mark 1:15.

14:27-31 See Matthew 26:30-35; Luke 22:31-34; John 13:36-38.

14:27 falter in your faithfulness to me: or "stumble" (see Mark 9:42-47). Jesus predicts his disciples will abandon him (see Zech 13:7; 14:50).

14:28 I will go before you: Jesus will lead his disciples even after the resurrection. to Galilee: Mark's audience may have ties to this region (see Mark 16:7).

<sup>31</sup>But Peter insisted, "If I must die alongside you, I won't deny you." And they all said the same thing.

Jesus in prayer

<sup>32</sup>Jesus and his disciples came to a place called Gethsemane. Jesus said to them, "Sit here while I pray." <sup>33</sup>He took Peter, James, and John along with him. He began to feel despair and was anxious. <sup>34</sup>He said to them, "I'm very sad. It's as if I'm dying. Stay here and keep alert."

<sup>35</sup>Then he went a short distance farther and fell to the ground. He prayed that, if possible, he might be spared the time of suffering. <sup>36</sup>He said, "Abba, Father, for you all things are possible. Take this cup of suffering away from me. However—not what I want but what you want."

<sup>37</sup>He came and found them sleeping. He said to Peter, "Simon, are you asleep? Couldn't you stay alert for one hour? <sup>38</sup>Stay alert and pray so that you won't give in to temptation. The spirit is eager, but the flesh is weak."

<sup>39</sup>Again, he left them and prayed, repeating the same words. <sup>40</sup>And, again, when he came back, he found them sleeping, for they couldn't keep their eyes open, and they didn't know how to respond to him. <sup>41</sup>He came a third time and said to them, "Will you sleep and rest all night? That's enough! The time has come for the Human One<sup>o</sup> to be betrayed into the hands of sinners. <sup>42</sup>Get up! Let's go! Look, here comes my betrayer."

Arrest

<sup>43</sup>Suddenly, while Jesus was still speaking, Judas, one of the Twelve, came with a mob carrying swords and clubs. They had been sent by the chief priests, legal experts, and elders. <sup>44</sup>His betrayer had given them a sign: "Arrest the man I kiss, and take him away under guard."

<sup>45</sup>As soon as he got there, Judas said to Jesus, "Rabbi!" Then he kissed him. <sup>46</sup>Then they came and grabbed Jesus and arrested him.

<sup>47</sup>One of the bystanders drew a sword and struck the high priest's slave and cut off his ear. <sup>48</sup>Jesus responded, "Have you come with swords and clubs to arrest me, like an outlaw?"

The Human One in Mark This title is an ambiguous term that appears frequently in Mark (Mark 2:10, 28; 3:28; 8:31, 38; 9:9, 12, 31; 10:33, 45; 13:26; 14:21, 41, 62). Sometimes Jesus uses it indirectly to name himself. In other cases, he seems to refer to humanity as a whole or to a special figure who will preside over God's kingdom. How then might we understand the term? It's helpful to remember that, in Jesus' world, individual figures often represented groups of people. The Human One probably is a symbol—an ideal human being who embodies the new humanity that reflects God's kingdom. From this perspective, Jesus is the Human One because he is the Christ who is entrusted with the task of showing the world what God's power looks like. But his followers, too, get involved in his mission. So they also become part of the Human One. In this way, the Human One is both Jesus—God's anointed one—and the people who, through him, trust the power of God's kingdom.

<sup>o</sup>Or Son of Man

14:32-42 See Matthew 26:36-46; Luke 22:39-46.

14:33 Peter, James, and John: See Mark 9:2; 13:3. Jesus' closest friends witness his prayerful struggle. See note on Mark 5:37. despair . . . anxious: As part of his role as a Christ who suffers, Jesus agonizes as he faces his death.

14:34 keep alert: See note on Mark 13:33.

14:35-36 Jesus asks God to spare him the suffering he expects (see Mark 8:31; 9:31; 10:33-34). If possible: See Mark 9:22-23; 10:27. Abba: an Aramaic word for "father." not what I want but what you want: Jesus finally embraces God's will (see Mark 3:35).

14:38 spirit is eager, but the flesh is weak: A contrast between flesh and spirit as two aspects of a person was common in the ancient world. The spirit was generally viewed as more receptive to the divine will, while the body was more vulnerable to human weakness.

14:41 time has come: See Mark 13:32. Jesus links his betrayal and death to God's coming kingdom (see Mark 1:14).

14:43-51 See Matthew 26:47-56; Luke 22:47-53; John 18:3-12. Judas' betrayal is full of irony. He betrays Jesus with a gesture of friendship, and Jesus responds to a frantic, armed mob with a calm acceptance of his impending, violent end.

14:43 swords and clubs: The mob has violent plans for Jesus (see Mark 14:28). sent by the chief priests, legal experts, and elders: The religious leaders keep a safe distance from the action. See notes on Mark 1:22; 8:31.

14:47 high priest's slave: The high priest was Caiaphas, who ruled from 18 to 36/7 CE. The identity of the bystander is unclear. Jesus doesn't say anything about the deed (cf. Matt 26:52-54).

14:48 like an outlaw: The mob treats Jesus as if he's an armed rebel.

<sup>49</sup>Day after day, I was with you, teaching in the temple, but you didn't arrest me. But let the scriptures be fulfilled.<sup>50</sup> And all his disciples left him and ran away.<sup>51</sup> One young man, a disciple, was wearing nothing but a linen cloth. They grabbed him,<sup>52</sup> but he left the linen cloth behind and ran away naked.

A hearing before the Sanhedrin

<sup>53</sup>They led Jesus away to the high priest, and all the chief priests, elders, and legal experts gathered. <sup>54</sup>Peter followed him from a distance, right into the high priest's courtyard. He was sitting with the guards, warming himself by the fire. <sup>55</sup>The chief priests and the whole Sanhedrin were looking for testimony against Jesus in order to put him to death, but they couldn't find any. <sup>56</sup>Many brought false testimony against him, but they contradicted each other. <sup>57</sup>Some stood to offer false witness against him, saying, <sup>58</sup>"We heard him saying, 'I will destroy this temple, constructed by humans, and within three days I will build another, one not made by humans.'" <sup>59</sup>But their testimonies didn't agree even on this point.

<sup>60</sup>Then the high priest stood up in the middle of the gathering and examined Jesus. "Aren't you going to respond to the testimony these people have brought against you?" <sup>61</sup>But Jesus was silent and didn't answer. Again, the high priest asked, "Are you the Christ, the Son of the blessed one?"

<sup>63</sup>Then the high priest tore his clothes and said, "Why do we need any more witnesses?"

They all condemned him. "He deserves to die!"

<sup>65</sup>Some began to spit on him. Some covered his face and hit him, saying, "Prophecy!" Then the guards took him and beat him.

Peter denies Jesus

<sup>66</sup>Meanwhile, Peter was below in the courtyard. A woman, one of the high priest's servants, approached <sup>67</sup>and saw Peter warming himself by the fire. She stared at him and said, "You were also with the Nazarene, Jesus."

<sup>68</sup>But he denied it, saying, "I don't know what you're talking about. I don't understand what you're saying." And he went outside into the outer courtyard. A rooster crowed.

<sup>69</sup>The female servant saw him and began a second time to say to those standing around, "This man is one of them."<sup>70</sup> But he denied it again.

A short time later, those standing around again said to Peter, "You must be one of them, because you are also a Galilean."

14:50 all his disciples: The report fulfills Jesus' prediction (see Mark 14:27).

14:51-52 Mark leaves no good hints to aid us in our desire to know who this is. Some interpreters identify the young man as the angel in the empty tomb (Mark 16:5), and some think he's actually Mark himself.

14:53-65 See Matthew 26:57-68; Luke 22:63-65; John 18:19-24. Jesus' first trial is before the Jewish council known as the Sanhedrin (see note on Mark 8:31).

14:53 high priest: a reference to Caiaphas. See note on Mark 14:47. chief priests, elders, and legal experts: See notes on Mark 1:22; 8:31.

14:54 from a distance: Peter follows with caution. He's loyal to Jesus but worried about the danger his loyalty might bring.

14:56 false testimony... contradicted each other: Jewish Law required two witnesses to confirm a charge (Num 35:30; Deut 19:15).

14:58 See Mark 11:15-16; 13:1-2.

14:61 Jesus was silent and didn't answer: See Psalm 38:12-14; Isaiah 53:7.

14:62 I am: See note on Mark 6:50. And you will see... heavenly clouds: As the Christ, Jesus announces the coming of the Human One to establish God's kingdom. See note on Mark 13:26-27.

14:64 insult against God: The offense of blasphemy carries a death penalty (Lev 24:16). It's unclear, though, exactly how Jesus has committed this crime.

14:65 "Prophecy!": This taunt reveals Jesus' reputation as a prophet. It may also refer to his prediction about the Human One in Mark 14:62. The hostile treatment he receives resembles the treatment of God's servant in Isaiah 53:7.

14:66-72 See Matthew 26:69-75; Luke 22:54-62; John 18:15-18. Peter's denials fulfill Jesus' prophecy (Mark 14:30). He's the last disciple to fade from view.

14:66 woman... high priest's servants: Caiaphas' household is involved at every turn in the plot against Jesus (see Mark 14:47). Peter denies this servant's accusation twice (Mark 14:68, 70).

14:68 don't understand: Peter's response is ironic, since the disciples repeatedly misunderstand Jesus' mission and teaching (see Mark 4:13; 6:52; 8:17, 12; 9:32). See sidebar, "The Disciples in Mark" at Mark 5.

<sup>71</sup>But he cursed and swore, "I don't know this man you're talking about."<sup>72</sup>At that very moment, a rooster crowed a second time. Peter remembered what Jesus told him, "Before a rooster crows twice, you will deny me three times." And he broke down, sobbing.

Trial before Pilate

15At daybreak, the chief priests—with the elders, legal experts, and the whole Sanhedrin—formed a plan. They bound Jesus, led him away, and turned him over to Pilate.<sup>2</sup>Pilate questioned him, "Are you the king of the Jews?"

Jesus replied, "That's what you say."<sup>3</sup>The chief priests were accusing him of many things.

<sup>4</sup>Pilate asked him again, "Aren't you going to answer? What about all these accusations?"

<sup>5</sup>But Jesus gave no more answers, so that Pilate marveled.

<sup>6</sup>During the festival, Pilate released one prisoner to them, whomever they requested.<sup>7</sup>A man named Barabbas was locked up with the rebels who had committed murder during an uprising.<sup>8</sup>The crowd pushed forward and asked Pilate to release someone, as he regularly did.<sup>9</sup>Pilate answered them, "Do you want me to release to you the king of the Jews?"<sup>10</sup>He knew that the chief priests had handed him over because of jealousy.<sup>11</sup>But the chief priests stirred up the crowd to have him release Barabbas to them instead.<sup>12</sup>Pilate replied, "Then what do you want me to do with the one you call king of the Jews?"

<sup>14</sup>Pilate said to them, "Why? What wrong has he done?"

They shouted even louder, "Crucify him!"

<sup>15</sup>Pilate wanted to satisfy the crowd, so he released Barabbas to them. He had Jesus whipped, then handed him over to be crucified.

Jesus is tortured and killed

<sup>16</sup>The soldiers led Jesus away into the courtyard of the palace known as the governor's headquarters,<sup>17</sup> and they called together the whole company of soldiers.<sup>18</sup>They dressed him up in a purple robe and twisted together a crown of thorns and put it on him.<sup>19</sup>They saluted him, "Hey! King of the Jews!"<sup>19</sup>Again and again, they struck his head with a stick. They spit on him and knelt before him to honor him.<sup>20</sup>When they finished mocking him, they stripped him of the purple robe and put his own clothes back on him. Then they led him out to crucify him.

<sup>21</sup>Simon, a man from Cyrene, Alexander and Rufus' father, was coming in from the countryside. They forced him to carry his cross.

14:72 broke down, sobbing: Mark stresses the story's emotional impact (see Mark 14:33-34).

15:1-15 See Matthew 27:1-2, 11-23; Luke 23:1-5, 13-25; John 18:28-40. The Jewish leaders have condemned Jesus (Mark 14:64), but they don't have the power to kill him. They hand him over to Pilate, the Roman governor, who does.

15:1 daybreak: Mark divides the last day of Jesus' life into four specific time periods (see Mark 15:25, 33, 42) plan: In Mark's view the Jewish leaders' plan is really God's plan. Pilate: the Roman governor (called a prefect) of Judea from 26 to 36 CE.

15:2 king of the Jews: See Mark 15:9, 12, 18, 26. The Jewish leaders indicate that Jesus poses a political threat. Jesus neither confirms nor denies the claim.

15:5 no more answers: Jesus refuses to answer questions directly (see Mark 14:61; 15:2). marveled: See Mark 5:20. Pilate doesn't seem convinced Jesus is guilty.

15:7 Barabbas: Ironically, the crowds want Pilate to release a member of an armed resistance group. Rebellions were common while Rome occupied Palestine. They were both political and religious in nature.

15:10 because of jealousy: Mark suggests Pilate is reluctant to condemn Jesus.

15:13 "Crucify him!": The same crowd that welcomed Jesus (Mark 11:1-11, 18) now demands his execution.

15:15 handed him over: See Mark 3:19; 8:31; 9:31; 14:10, 11. Pilate appears to be a weak ruler who is only following the crowd. According to other 1st-century reports, he was a ruthless tyrant who crucified troublemakers without a second thought.

15:16-41 See Matthew 27:27-56; Luke 23:26-49; John 19:16b-37.

15:16 governor's headquarters... whole company of soldiers: Mark reports that several hundred soldiers watched as Jesus was mocked and tortured.

15:17 purple robe... crown of thorns: The soldiers make fun of Jesus' royal status by dressing him as a king (see Mark 10:34).

15:19 struck his head... spit on him: See Mark 10:34; Isaiah 50:6.

15:21 Simon is probably a Jew in Jerusalem for the Passover. Cyrene: a city in North Africa (modern-day Libya). Alexander and Rufus' father: Mark's audience may have

They divided up his clothes, drawing lots for them to determine who would take what. <sup>25</sup>It was nine in the morning when they crucified him. <sup>26</sup>The notice of the formal charge against him was written, "The king of the Jews." <sup>27</sup>They crucified two outlaws with him, one on his right and one on his left.†

<sup>29</sup>People walking by insulted him, shaking their heads and saying, "Ha! So you were going to destroy the temple and rebuild it in three days, were you?" <sup>30</sup>Save yourself and come down from that cross!"

<sup>31</sup>In the same way, the chief priests were making fun of him among themselves, together with the legal experts. "He saved others," they said, "but he can't save himself. <sup>32</sup>Let the Christ, the king of Israel, come down from the cross. Then we'll see and believe." Even those who had been crucified with Jesus insulted him.

<sup>33</sup>From noon until three in the afternoon the whole earth was dark. <sup>34</sup>At three, Jesus cried out with a loud shout, "Eloi, eloi, lama sabachthani," which means, "My God, my God, why have you left me?"

<sup>35</sup>After hearing him, some standing there said, "Look! He's calling Elijah!" <sup>36</sup>Someone ran, filled a sponge with sour wine, and put it on a pole. He offered it to Jesus to drink, saying, "Let's see if Elijah will come to take him down." <sup>37</sup>But Jesus let out a loud cry and died.

<sup>38</sup>The curtain of the sanctuary was torn in two from top to bottom. <sup>39</sup>When the centurion, who stood facing Jesus, saw how he died, he said, "This man was certainly God's Son."

<sup>40</sup>Some women were watching from a distance, including Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of James (the younger one) and Joses, and Salome. <sup>41</sup>When Jesus was in Galilee, these women had followed and supported him, along with many other women who had come to Jerusalem with him.

known Simon's sons, carry his cross: Convicted criminals typically carried only the crossbar, not the entire cross.

15:22 Golgotha, which means Skull Place: Roman crucifixion usually took place outside the city walls. Executed criminals provided a graphic symbol of Rome's strength. See note on Mark 3:17.

15:23 wine . . . myrrh: The combination was used to relieve pain.

15:24 divided up his clothes, drawing lots: See Psalm 22:18. The story of the crucifixion includes many details from this lament psalm (see also Mark 15:29, 34).

15:25 nine in the morning: See note on Mark 15:1.

15:26 formal charge: Notices often announced the charges leading to crucifixion. The title "The king of the Jews" offers a good reason for Jesus' death, since the Romans dealt violently with those whom they regarded as a threat to Caesar.

15:27 two outlaws: Jesus hangs between two political rebels.

15:29 shaking their heads: See Psalm 22:7. destroy the temple: See Mark 11:15-16; 13:1-2.

15:30 Save yourself: See Mark 11:9. An ironic command, especially in light of Jesus' teaching in Mark 8:35. For Mark, by not saving himself, Jesus saves others.

15:31-32 chief priests . . . legal experts: Jewish leaders appear again, this time to mock Jesus. See notes on Mark 1:22; 8:31. Christ, the king of Israel: The title combines words that make sense to Jews (Christ) and Romans (king). Then we'll see and believe: In Mark authentic faith comes before, not after, evidence that confirms it (see Mark 8:11-12; cf. Mark 16:17-18).

15:33 whole earth was dark: cosmic proof of the coming end (see Mark 13:24-25).

15:34 "My God, my God, why have you left me?": Jesus' words come from Psalm 22:1. They both express his anguish (see Mark 14:32-42) and look forward to the time when "all the nations" will worship God (see Ps 22:27).

15:35 Elijah: See Mark 9:11-13; see note on Mark 1:6.

15:36 sour wine: or "vinegar" (see Ps 69:21).

15:38 curtain . . . was torn: The temple curtain marked the space reserved for God's presence (see Exod 26:31-37). Its tearing from top to bottom means God is loose in the world. See note on Mark 1:10.

15:39 centurion: A Roman soldier—a Gentile—is the first human in Mark to call Jesus God's Son. See note on Mark 1:11.

15:40 watching from a distance: See note on Mark 14:54. Mary Magdalene: See Mark 15:47; 16:1. Mary . . . Joses: possibly Jesus' mother (see Mark 6:3). Mark's audience may know James and Joses. Salome: She appears only in Mark (see Matt 28:1; John 20:1).

followed and supported him: The women are part of a larger group of disciples (see Luke 8:1-3).

15:42-47 See Matthew 27:57-61; Luke 23:50-56; John 19:38-42.

15:42 late in the afternoon: Jewish Law said that all work must be completed before the Sabbath begins at sundown. See note on Mark 15:1.

council member who also eagerly anticipated the coming of God's kingdom.) <sup>44</sup>Pilate wondered if Jesus was already dead. 16 When the Sabbath was over, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome bought spices so that they could go and anoint Jesus' dead body. <sup>2</sup>Very early on the first day of the week, just after sunrise, they came to the tomb. <sup>3</sup>They were saying to each other, "Who's going to roll the stone away from the entrance for us?" <sup>4</sup>When they looked up, they saw that the stone had been rolled away. (And it was a very large stone!) <sup>5</sup>Going into the tomb, they saw a young man in a white robe seated on the right side; and they were startled. <sup>6</sup>But he said to them, "Don't be alarmed! You are looking for Jesus of Nazareth, who was crucified." He has been raised. He isn't here. Look, here's the place where they laid him. <sup>7</sup>Go, tell his disciples, especially Peter, that he is going ahead of you into Galilee. You will see him there, just as he told you." <sup>8</sup>Overcome with terror and dread, they fled from the tomb. They said nothing to anyone, because they were afraid.*

*Or the Crucified One In most critical editions of the Gk New Testament, the Gospel of Mark ends at 16:8.

15:43 Joseph from Arimathea: a Judean who was an active leader in Jerusalem. His request for Jesus' body is risky in many respects. Pilate might execute him as well. Joseph might violate sabbath law if sundown comes too quickly. He might lose status on the council, the group that turned Jesus over to the Romans.

15:46 Archaeology confirms these burial practices. stone... tomb: The tomb was probably a small cave, sealed by a large stone chiseled to fit over its entrance.

16:1-8 See Matthew 28:1-10; Luke 24:1-12; John 20:1-10. This is the earliest existing ending to Mark. See note on Mark 16:9-20.

16:1 Salome: See note on Mark 15:40. anoint Jesus' dead body: Care for the dead required ritual cleansing (see Mark 14:8).

16:3 roll the stone away: The stone was cut in a disk shape so it would roll easily (see note on Mark 15:46). The question implies that its size required physical strength not typical for women.

16:5 young man in a white robe: the clothing of angels (see Mark 9:3). Some interpreters think this young man is the same one who ran away in Mark 14:51-52. His dress, however, suggests he's a divine messenger.

16:6 Don't be alarmed!: The women shouldn't be surprised to find an empty tomb (see Mark 8:31; 9:31; 10:34). raised... isn't here: The man assures them that Jesus' body has been raised.

16:7 tell his disciples, especially Peter: Peter was the first to follow and the last to desert Jesus (see Mark 1:16-18; 14:50, 66-72). ahead of you: See Mark 14:28. Despite their faults and his death, the disciples can still count on Jesus to lead them.

16:8 terror and dread: See Mark 4:41. said nothing to anyone: The women ignore the man's directions to "tell his disciples" (Mark 16:7). because they were afraid: The chapter ends abruptly. Some scholars think Mark wrote an open-ended Gospel on purpose; others think an original ending was lost early on.

[16:9] This is one of two separate endings added to Mark. This verse, called the "Shorter Ending," comes from the 4th century CE at the earliest. It's found without the longer ending in only one ancient copy of the Gospel. sacred and undying message of eternal salvation: This language is atypical of Mark.

[[16:9-20]] Most ancient copies of Mark include this "Longer Ending." Scribes copying the Gospel probably added it sometime in the 2nd century CE, perhaps after the original ending was lost or because they thought Mark's Gospel—compared to the Gospels of Matthew, Luke, and John—was incomplete (see note on Mark 16:8). This ending adapts details from the other NT Gospels to report Jesus' final encounter with his disciples.

[[16:9]] The verse summarizes events found in Mark 16:1-8. seven demons: See Luke 8:2.

[[16:11]] See Luke 24:9-11, 22-25; John 20:19-29.

[[16:16]] This claim is found in later NT writings (see Titus 3:5; 1 Pet 3:21; John 3:18).

[[16:17-18]] The Gospels of Matthew, Mark, and Luke generally view signs with suspicion (see Mark 8:11-12; 13:22). A positive view appears in John (see John 2:23; 4:48; 6:30). The Gospel of Luke was written by an unknown Christian who, after reading other accounts of the life of Jesus and after careful study, decided to write another. The same person also wrote the Acts of the Apostles. Ancient tradition says the author of both books is “Luke, the dearly loved physician” (Col 4:14), who was with Paul during parts of his missionary work. Nothing in the Gospel of Luke confirms or refutes this tradition. The Gospel was probably composed between 70 and 100 CE, after the destruction of the Jerusalem temple but before the Roman government began regularly putting Christians to death.

Luke and Acts are both addressed to the “most honorable Theophilus” (Luke 1:3; see Acts 1:1). The name means “God’s friend” and could have been an imaginary or ideal audience, a kind of godly reader Luke’s author kept in mind as he wrote. But Theophilus was more likely a real person, perhaps a wealthy and influential convert—like Zacchaeus (Luke 19:1-10); Cornelius (Acts 10); or Crispus (Acts 18:8)—who served as Luke’s patron, helping him distribute his book. Luke’s Gospel presents Jesus as good news for Jews and Gentiles.

Luke seems to have had a copy of the Gospel of Mark, which he expands considerably by adding stories of Jesus’ birth and childhood (Luke 1–2); much more of Jesus’ teaching (especially in Luke 10–19); and Jesus’ resurrection appearances (Luke 24:13-53). Luke keeps Mark’s arrangement of a ministry in Galilee (Luke 4:14–9:50); a journey to Jerusalem (Luke 9:51–19:28); and a final ministry in Jerusalem that ends with the crucifixion (Luke 19:29–23:56). Luke stretches out the “journey” section, having Jesus do most of his teaching after his announcement that he’s going to Jerusalem to be crucified. In this way, the traveling Jesus in Luke matches the traveling missionaries of Acts. The story of Jesus is always on the move.

Jesus spends a lot of time eating in Luke. He eats with tax collectors (Luke 5:27-32; 15:2; 19:1-10) and Pharisees (Luke 7:36-50; 11:37-54; 14:1-24); with the wealthy (Zacchaeus, Luke 19:1-10); and the relatively poor (Martha, Luke 10:38-42). Jesus also uses the image of a banquet to describe what God's kingdom will be like (Luke 13:28-29; 22:30). Jesus, in addition to being identified as God's Son (Luke 3:22) and Israel's Christ (Luke 1:32-33), is a prophet. His powerful message and miracles remind others of Elijah and Elisha (Luke 7:16; 9:7-8). He uses his prophetic identity to explain why his own people reject him (Luke 4:24) and why he must die in Jerusalem (Luke 13:33-34). Some of his predictions come true during the course of Luke's story (Luke 13:35 fulfilled in Luke 19:38; Luke 9:22 fulfilled in Luke 22-24), while others had already come true by the time of Luke's readers (Luke 19:41-44 fulfilled by the Roman destruction of Jerusalem, 66-70 CE). These two elements, the banquet and the prophet, were familiar social and religious elements across the 1st-century Roman Empire. By stressing them, Luke makes Jesus accessible to readers in many cultures.

Like John the Baptist before him and the missionaries in Acts after him, Jesus in Luke urges people "to change their hearts and lives" (Luke 5:32) and receive God's forgiveness. This is "the good news of God's kingdom" (Luke 4:43) that Jesus offers to everyone, even enemies (Luke 23:34). He instructs his followers to preach this good news to all nations (Luke 24:47). Luke understands this change to be necessary for everyone (Luke 13:1-5), but especially for the wealthy (Luke 6:24-26; 12:16-21; 16:19-31). Luke's Jesus expects his followers to sell their possessions and accept God's kingdom (Luke 12:32-33; 14:33).

Luke's purpose

1 Many people have already applied themselves to the task of compiling an account of the events that have been fulfilled among us. 2 They used what the original eyewitnesses and servants of the word handed down to us. 3 Now, after having investigated everything carefully from the beginning, I have also decided to write a carefully ordered account for you, most honorable Theophilus. 4 I want you to have confidence in the soundness of the instruction you have received.

John the Baptist's birth foretold

5 During the rule of King Herod of Judea there was a priest named Zechariah who belonged to the priestly division of Abijah. His wife Elizabeth was a descendant of Aaron. 6 They were both righteous before God, blameless in their observance of all the Lord's commandments and regulations. 7 They had no children because Elizabeth was unable to become pregnant and they both were very old. 8 One day Zechariah was serving as a priest before God because his priestly division was on duty. 9 Following the customs of priestly service, he was chosen by lottery to go into the Lord's sanctuary and burn incense. 10 All the people who gathered to worship were praying outside during this hour of incense offering. 11 An angel from the Lord appeared to him, standing to the right of the altar of incense. 12 When Zechariah saw the angel, he was startled and overcome with fear.

13 The angel said, "Don't be afraid, Zechariah. Your prayers have been heard. Your wife Elizabeth will give birth to your son and you must name him John. 14 He will be a joy and delight to you, and many people will rejoice at his birth, 15 for he will be great in the Lord's eyes. He must not drink wine and liquor. He will be filled with the Holy Spirit even before his birth. 16 He will bring many Israelites back to the Lord their God. 17 He will go forth before the Lord, equipped with the spirit and power of Elijah. He will turn the hearts of fathers" back

1:1-4 Serious books in Luke's day often had prologues like this one to give readers confidence in the book's reliability. On the identity of Luke, see the introduction.

1:1 Many people... compiling: other written accounts Luke had read.

1:2 eyewitnesses: The written accounts Luke used were based on the testimonies of those who knew Jesus. servants of the word may be another way to refer to eyewitnesses or to any who passed along the stories and teachings of Jesus.

1:3 Theophilus: See the introduction.

1:5 King Herod: Herod the Great, who ruled Palestine from 37 to 4 BCE. priest: a Jewish male who could lawfully offer sacrifices and perform other ritual acts in the holy spaces of the Jerusalem temple. priestly... Abijah: See 1 Chronicles 24:10. descendant of Aaron: Priests were direct male descendants of Moses' brother Aaron. Elizabeth's father was a priest, making her a "daughter of Aaron."

1:6 righteous: They have been diligent about obeying Moses' Law (Instruction). blameless: They have also been diligent about offering sacrifices for their sins.

1:7 no children: Children were seen as God's blessing, so readers would wonder why such good people couldn't have children. very old: like Abraham and Sarah (Gen 18:11a), an elderly couple whose child was born 25 years after God's promise to give them a son.

1:8 on duty: The divisions took turns serving in the temple for a week twice a year.

1:9 chosen by lottery: Temple leaders shook marked stones or sticks from a jar to allow God to pick the priest to offer the incense. sanctuary: the holy place, containing a menorah, a table for sacred bread, and a small container for burning incense. burn incense: When a priest poured incense on hot coals, the rising smoke symbolized Israel's prayers.

1:10 All the people: People gathered for prayer outside the sanctuary in the Court of Israel and the Court of the Women. They couldn't view the incense altar from there, but they could see and smell the smoke. this hour: around three o'clock in the afternoon (see Acts 3:1).

1:11-12 angel from the Lord: Gabriel (Luke 1:19), understood in ancient Judaism to be one of the seven most important angels. In Luke and Acts angels sometimes bring messages from God to God's chosen servants (e.g., Luke 1:26; 2:8; 24:4; Acts 1:10; 10:3). The servant is often overcome with fear, as one would be in God's presence.

1:13-17 Gabriel's message to Zechariah combines an announcement, commands, and promises; and it blends several OT texts.

1:13 Your prayers: Zechariah and Elizabeth have been praying for a child, probably for years. have been heard: God will grant their request, and they'll have a son. must... John: the angel's first command.

1:14 many... will rejoice: a prediction fulfilled in Luke 1:58. 1:15 great... eyes: God will consider John a great prophet, and so will Jesus (Luke 7:26). must not drink wine and liquor: the angel's second command. Like the nazirites (Num 6:1-4), John must abstain from alcohol. Samuel's mother, Hannah, made this promise when she prayed for a son (1 Sam 1:11). filled with the Holy Spirit: John will be a prophet. God gives messages to prophets, who deliver them to God's people.

1:16 He will bring: a promise fulfilled in Luke 3:3-18.

1:17 equipped... Elijah: Elijah condemned Israelites who to their children, and he will turn the disobedient to righteous patterns of thinking. He will make ready a people prepared for the Lord."

<sup>18</sup>Zechariah said to the angel, "How can I be sure of this? My wife and I are very old."

<sup>19</sup>The angel replied, "I am Gabriel. I stand in God's presence. I was sent to speak to you and to bring this good news to you. <sup>20</sup>Know this: What I have spoken will come true at the proper time. But because you didn't believe, you will remain silent, unable to speak until the day when these things happen."

<sup>21</sup>Meanwhile, the people were waiting for Zechariah, and they wondered why he was in the sanctuary for such a long time. <sup>22</sup>When he came out, he was unable to speak to them. They realized he had seen a vision in the temple, for he gestured to them and couldn't speak. <sup>23</sup>When he completed the days of his priestly service, he returned home. <sup>24</sup>Afterward, his wife Elizabeth became pregnant. She kept to herself for five months, saying, <sup>25</sup>"This is the Lord's doing. He has shown his favor to me by removing my disgrace among other people."

Jesus' birth foretold

<sup>26</sup>When Elizabeth was six months pregnant, God sent the angel Gabriel to Nazareth, a city in Galilee, <sup>27</sup>to a virgin who was engaged to a man named Joseph, a descendant of David's house. The virgin's name was Mary. <sup>28</sup>When the angel came to her, he said, "Rejoice, favored one! The Lord is with you!" <sup>29</sup>She was confused by these words and wondered what kind of greeting this might be. <sup>30</sup>The angel said, "Don't be afraid, Mary. God is honoring you. <sup>31</sup>Look! You will conceive and give birth to a son, and you will name him Jesus. <sup>32</sup>He will be great and he will be called the Son of the Most High. The Lord God will give him the throne of David his father. <sup>33</sup>He will rule over Jacob's house forever, and there will be no end to his kingdom."

<sup>34</sup>Then Mary said to the angel, "How will this happen since I haven't had sexual relations with a man?"

<sup>35</sup>The angel replied, "The Holy Spirit will come over you and the power of the Most High will overshadow you. Therefore, the one who is to be born will be holy. He will be called God's Son. <sup>36</sup>Look, even in her old age, your relative Elizabeth has conceived a son. This woman

1:35 Mt 1:18, Mt 1:20, Mt 4:3, Mt 14:33; Lk 1:32 1:36 Lk 1:7, Lk 1:24 worshipped other gods. He made enemies at court and performed amazing miracles (1 Kgs 17–2 Kgs 2). His return was predicted as a sign of the last days, when he would lead Israel to reform (Mal 4:5–6). John will fulfill this prediction. He will turn: Gabriel quotes Malachi 4:6 and predicts John's ministry will help reconcile families. John will do this in Luke 3:1–20 by urging the disobedient to follow God's ways and adopt righteous patterns of thinking. Thus John will make ready a people prepared for Jesus' preaching.

1:18 Zechariah wants more proof. But if an angel can't convince him, what will?

1:19–20 Gabriel is one of the few beings who can stand in God's presence rather than bowing or falling down in reverence (see Rev 4:10). He has fulfilled his mission to bring this good news to Zechariah, and his predictions will come true. But because the old priest doubted, he will lose his voice until these things happen. This is a pattern in Luke: Good news must be received, or there will be consequences.

1:22 The priest is silenced, but the people realized he had seen a vision and don't seem worried.

1:24–25 Elizabeth's pregnancy begins to fulfill Gabriel's promise in Luke 1:13. She . . . herself. This helps explain why Mary doesn't hear about Elizabeth's pregnancy until Gabriel tells her (Luke 1:36). the Lord's doing: Elizabeth knows her pregnancy is a miracle. In Luke 1:41, Luke will make it clear that Elizabeth is a prophet. disgrace: Many regarded childlessness as shameful, sometimes as evidence of God's displeasure (Gen 16:2; 30:1–2).

1:26–27 Luke compares the announcement to Mary with the announcement to Elizabeth in Luke 1:5–25: same angel, same message, both good news. But the announcement to Mary happens in a village, not in the temple; to a young woman, not to an elderly man; and to an unmarried woman, not to a married man who has been wanting a child for years. Yet Mary believes and becomes Luke's first example of faithful response to God's good news.

1:26 Nazareth: a small, rural village (see Luke 2:39, 51).

1:27 David's house: All the kings of Judah from around 1000 BCE until the Babylonian exile in 587 BCE were David's descendants. The Christ was to be a member of David's house based on the promise in 2 Samuel 7:16. Mary: So far we know nothing about her family; she could be anyone.

1:29 Mary is confused but not afraid as Zechariah was. Gabriel says God holds her in high regard, which surprises her. 1:31 you will name him: or "You must name him," as Gabriel commanded Zechariah to name his son John (Luke 1:13). Jesus: This is the Greek form of the Hebrew name Joshua or Yeshua, meaning "Yahweh saves."

1:33 Jacob's house: the Jewish people. no end to his kingdom: unlike the one that ended in 587 BCE.

1:34 How will this happen: Mary asks about method, whereas Zechariah asked for proof. She may be thinking Gabriel is speaking of a son to be born to her and Joseph. 1:35 Holy Spirit: God will cause her to conceive without sexual intercourse. The two phrases Holy Spirit and power of the Most High both refer to God's presence. come over you and overshadow you: parallel terms for God's approach (see Acts 1:8; 5:15–16). Luke carefully picks words that don't have sexual overtones. His account isn't like Greek or Roman stories in which the gods have sex with women. holy: specially designated for God.

who was labeled 'unable to conceive' is now six months pregnant. <sup>37</sup>Nothing is impossible for God."

<sup>38</sup>Then Mary said, "I am the Lord's servant. Let it be with me just as you have said." Then the angel left her.

Mary visits Elizabeth

Mary praises God

<sup>46</sup>Mary said,

"With all my heart I glorify the Lord!

<sup>47</sup>In the depths of who I am I rejoice in God my savior.

<sup>48</sup>He has looked with favor on the low status of his servant.

Look! From now on, everyone will consider me highly favored <sup>49</sup>because the mighty one has done great things for me.

Holy is his name.

<sup>50</sup>He shows mercy to everyone, from one generation to the next,

who honors him as God.

<sup>51</sup>He has shown strength with his arm.

He has scattered those with arrogant thoughts and proud inclinations.

<sup>52</sup>He has pulled the powerful down from their thrones and lifted up the lowly.

<sup>53</sup>He has filled the hungry with good things and sent the rich away empty-handed.

<sup>54</sup>He has come to the aid of his servant Israel, remembering his mercy,

<sup>55</sup>just as he promised to our ancestors, to Abraham and to Abraham's descendants forever."

1:37 Nothing . . . God: Elizabeth is evidence of this (cf. Gen 18:14).

1:38 servant: or "female slave." Mary is willing to accept her role.

1:39-45 The two mothers-to-be meet at Elizabeth's home. Each woman speaks under God's inspiration.

1:39 Judean highlands: south of Galilee and Samaria, in the central part of Judea.

1:41 leaped: John, the future prophet, recognizes Jesus while each is still in the womb (see the prediction in Luke 1:15). filled with the Holy Spirit: See note on Luke 1:15. Elizabeth is Luke's first prophet, a model for Mary, Zechariah, Simeon, Anna, John the Baptist, and Jesus.

1:43 mother . . . Lord: Elizabeth is the first human to call Jesus "Lord," a term that means "master" and is also a typical way to refer to God.

1:45 Happy: Elizabeth pronounces a blessing on herself and Mary for their faith in God's promises. They anticipate others in Luke's Gospel who will believe.

1:46-55 Mary's words are called the Magnificat, which is the first word in the Latin translation of this poem. Like many psalms that praise God (e.g., Pss 34; 104), and like Hannah's prayer (1 Sam 2:1-10), Mary's Song offers reasons why praise is the right response. Her song can function as either a call to praise or a prayer, even though it's not addressed directly to God. The first part (1:46-50) focuses on what God has done for Mary. The second part (1:51-55) moves on to what God has done for all, especially Israel. Mary is thinking ahead, previewing what Jesus will do by God's direction.

1:46 my heart: with her whole self. glorify: offer praise of God.

1:48 low status: Mary isn't powerful or wealthy. The word translated as "low status" also means "humble," as opposed to "arrogant" (Luke 1:51). servant: or "female slave." highly favored: echoes Gabriel (Luke 1:28) and Elizabeth (Luke 1:42).

1:49 great things: Mary's "glorify" (Luke 1:46) imitates what God has done for her. Holy is his name: See 1 Samuel 2:2; Luke 11:2.

1:50 mercy: Both parts of Mary's song end by noting God's mercy (Luke 1:54) and God's faithfulness to divine promises (see Deut 5:10).

1:51 arm: symbol of God's power exhibited in human events (Deut 4:34).

1:52 the powerful: God is the real power in the world, and God favors the lowly. Mary's personal experience is God's pattern among humans (see 1 Sam 2:7-8).

1:53 filled the hungry: Jesus makes the same promise (see Luke 6:21; 9:10-17), the rich: Jesus also warns the rich of God's judgment (Luke 6:24-25; 12:16-21; 16:19-31).

1:54 aid . . . Israel: Mary expects Israel to receive God's mercy, just as she has, because of God's promises to Abraham (Gen 12:2-3) and Jacob (Gen 28:13-14).

<sup>56</sup>Mary stayed with Elizabeth about three months, and then returned to her home.

<sup>57</sup>When the time came for Elizabeth to have her child, she gave birth to a boy. <sup>58</sup>Her neighbors and relatives celebrated with her because they had heard that the Lord had shown her great mercy. <sup>59</sup>On the eighth day, it came time to circumcise the child. They wanted to name him Zechariah because that was his father's name. <sup>60</sup>But his mother replied, "No, his name will be John."

<sup>61</sup>They said to her, "None of your relatives have that name." <sup>62</sup>Then they began gesturing to his father to see what he wanted to call him.

<sup>63</sup>After asking for a tablet, he surprised everyone by writing, "His name is John." <sup>64</sup>At that moment, Zechariah was able to speak again, and he began praising God.

<sup>65</sup>All their neighbors were filled with awe, and everyone throughout the Judean highlands talked about what had happened. <sup>66</sup>All who heard about this considered it carefully. They said, "What then will this child be?" Indeed, the Lord's power was with him.

Zechariah's prophecy

<sup>67</sup>John's father Zechariah was filled with the Holy Spirit and prophesied, <sup>68</sup>"Bless the Lord God of Israel because he has come to help and has delivered his people.

<sup>69</sup>He has raised up a mighty savior for us in his servant David's house, <sup>70</sup>just as he said through the mouths of his holy prophets long ago.

<sup>71</sup>He has brought salvation from our enemies and from the power of all those who hate us.

<sup>72</sup>He has shown the mercy promised to our ancestors, and remembered his holy covenant,

<sup>73</sup>the solemn pledge he made to our ancestor Abraham.

He has granted <sup>74</sup>that we would be rescued from the power of our enemies so that we could serve him without fear,

<sup>75</sup>in holiness and righteousness in God's eyes, for as long as we live.

<sup>76</sup>You, child, will be called a prophet of the Most High, for you will go before the Lord to prepare his way.

<sup>77</sup>You will tell his people how to be saved through the forgiveness of their sins.

1:56 about three months: Mary returned home just before John's birth.

1:57-66 The story of John's birth parallels the story of Jesus' birth (Luke 2:1-20), accompanied by miracles and surprised witnesses.

1:57 boy: as predicted in Luke 1:13.

1:58 celebrated: as predicted in Luke 1:14b. mercy: See Luke 1:50, 54.

1:59-60 eighth day: Jews circumcise their sons when they are eight days old (Gen 17:12). This marks a boy as belonging to God and to God's people. name: In OT naming stories sometimes the father (Gen 21:3) or sometimes the mother (Gen 30:24) names the son. The angel said that the boy must be named John (Luke 1:13).

1:61-62 gesturing: Zechariah can't talk, but he isn't deaf. This is a comic scene.

1:64 able to speak: Zechariah's first words after he obeys Gabriel's command (Luke 1:13) are words of praise (Luke 1:67-79).

1:65 neighbors: Witnesses spread the news (Luke 2:17, 38; 4:14). Those who hear are interested but still have questions about what it means. This is a pattern in Luke (Luke 3:15; 4:22; 5:26), who distinguishes being amazed from having faith.

1:67-79 This section is called Zechariah's song, or the Benedictus, after the first word in the Latin translation of it. It parallels the Magnificat (Luke 1:46-55), and Luke expects readers to compare the two poems. It's divided into two parts: God's blessings on Israel (1:68-75) and God's blessings on John the Baptist (1:76-79).

1:67 filled... Spirit: See Luke 1:15.

1:68 Bless... Israel: a standard way to begin a Jewish prayer. The phrase closes sections of the Psalter in Psalms 41:13; 72:18; 106:48. has come... has delivered: Zechariah predicts what will happen in John's ministry by describing actions God has already taken. Mary uses the same mode of speaking in her poem.

1:69 mighty savior: Zechariah uses this phrase to refer to Jesus. David's house: See note on Luke 1:27.

1:70 holy prophets: such as Isaiah (Isa 11:1-9); Ezekiel (Ezek 34:23-24); Amos (Amos 9:11); and Zechariah (Zech 12:9-10).

1:71 salvation... enemies: Zechariah hopes for God's blessings for Israel, as Mary did (Luke 1:54-55).

1:72 mercy: See Luke 1:50, 54. covenant: God's promise to Abraham (Luke 1:55, 73; Gen 12:2-3).

1:74 rescued... enemies: The repetition (see Luke 1:71) stresses Zechariah's hope that Israel can be free. In his time that would mean freedom from Roman occupation. The priest, not surprisingly, wants to be able to serve God freely and without fear. Mary's hope is for justice for the poor (Luke 1:51-53).

1:76 prophet: See Luke 7:24-28; 20:6. go... way: See Isaiah 40:3; quoted in Luke 3:4; Malachi 3:1; Mark 1:2-3; Matthew 3:3.

1:77 how to be saved: Luke thinks of John's preaching as the time when the gospel began to be proclaimed (Luke <sup>78</sup>Because of our God's deep compassion, the dawn from heaven will break upon us, <sup>79</sup>to give light to those who are sitting in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide us on the path of peace."

<sup>80</sup>The child grew up, becoming strong in character. He was in the wilderness until he began his public ministry to Israel.

Jesus' birth

2In those days Caesar Augustus declared that everyone throughout the empire should be enrolled in the tax lists. <sup>2</sup>This first enrollment occurred when Quirinius governed Syria. <sup>3</sup>Everyone went to their own cities to be enrolled. <sup>4</sup>Since Joseph belonged to David's house and family line, he went up from the city of Nazareth in Galilee to David's city, called Bethlehem, in Judea. <sup>5</sup>He went to be enrolled together with Mary, who was promised to him in marriage and who was pregnant. <sup>6</sup>While they were there, the time came for Mary to have her baby. <sup>7</sup>She gave birth to her firstborn child, a son, wrapped him snugly, and laid him in a manger, because there was no place for them in the guestroom.

Announcement to shepherds

<sup>8</sup>Nearby shepherds were living in the fields, guarding their sheep at night. <sup>9</sup>The Lord's angel stood before them, the Lord's glory shone around them, and they were terrified.

<sup>10</sup>The angel said, "Don't be afraid! Look! I bring good news to you—wonderful, joyous news for all people. <sup>11</sup>Your savior is born today in David's city. He is Christ the Lord. <sup>12</sup>This is a sign for you: you will find a newborn baby wrapped snugly and lying in a manger." <sup>13</sup>Suddenly

2:13 Ps 148:2; Rev 5:11

3:18; Acts 10:36-37). For specifics on what John preached, see Luke 3:1-20. forgiveness of their sins: one of Luke's key themes. It's part of the message of John the Baptist (Luke 3:3); Jesus (Luke 24:47); and the early Christians in Acts (Acts 2:38).

1:78 deep compassion: This is the fourth time Mary's and Zechariah's poems celebrate divine mercy (Luke 1:50, 54, 72).

1:79 to give light... death: quoting Isaiah 9:2. John's preaching brings greater clarity about God's will to those who listen. peace: Zechariah describes peace as salvation from one's enemies. In Luke peace comes first by being forgiven and second by forgiving others, including one's enemies (Luke 6:27-31).

1:80 This brief summary of John's youth contrasts with the longer story about the 12-year-old Jesus in Luke 2:39-52. Luke wants the reader to understand how much more important Jesus was than John, but without criticizing John. strong in character: or "in spirit"; a double sense of John's normal human development and his growing attention, as a maturing prophet, to the Spirit of God. wilderness: Like Elijah, John lives in unpopulated areas, sustained by God (1 Kgs 17:1-7; 19:4-9).

2:1-7 Jesus' birth, like John's, is accompanied by miracles; and amazed witnesses talk about it widely. But there are some important differences that preview what Jesus' ministry will be like.

2:1 Caesar Augustus: Octavian, nephew and heir of Julius Caesar, emperor from 31 BCE to 14 CE. "Augustus" means "most revered." enrolled: a census that will determine who pays taxes.

2:2 Publius Sulpicius Quirinius: governor of Syria from 6 to 12 CE. Luke's dating must be an approximation.

2:4 Joseph lives in Nazareth but must go to Bethlehem, where David, his famous ancestor, was born. It isn't clear why Mary needs to go with him, since she's close to giving birth. Normally, one would expect her to stay with family, who could help her with the birth.

2:5 promised... marriage: Since they are traveling together, they are legally married. This is Luke's delicate way of saying they haven't yet had sex.

2:7 manger: a place for feeding animals. A family with only a few animals often kept them inside the house at night. guestroom: a spare room inside a house (see Luke 22:11). Joseph and Mary are offered shelter by someone, maybe a relative; but the guestroom is full, so they sleep in the animal stalls. John the Baptist was born at home, surrounded by family. Jesus was born in a borrowed space, previewing the nature of his ministry (Luke 9:58; 10:5-11).

2:8 shepherds: In Jesus' day they were unskilled labor and poor. However, King David had begun as a shepherd (1 Sam 16:11), and some prophets preached that Israel's ideal king would be a true shepherd for God's people (Ezek 34:20-31; Mic 5:2-9). Thus the announcement to shepherds, just outside David's city, is appropriate.

2:10 Don't be afraid!: See Luke 1:13; 1:30. bring good news: The noun "gospel," which in Luke refers to the story of Jesus and the forgiveness God grants to those who accept Jesus, means "good news." The verb "bring," in this context, means "to preach" or "to announce" the gospel. To bring good news is to deliver the story of Jesus. for all people: See Luke 24:47. 2:11 Christ: means "anointed one" in Greek, a translation of the Hebrew word Messiah. the Lord: Normally an address for God, Lord here indicates Jesus' divine origins (see Luke 1:43; 5:17; 10:41).

2:12 a sign: the way the shepherds will recognize Jesus: he will be wrapped snugly, as any baby might, but lying in a manger, an unexpectedly low-status spot. As Mary predicted, God is ignoring rulers (Luke 2:1-2) and taking account of the lowly (Luke 1:52).

2:13-14 heavenly forces: Sometimes angels are presented as God's army (e.g., Rev 12:7); in this case, however, the a great assembly of the heavenly forces was with the angel praising God. They said, <sup>14</sup>“Glory to God in heaven, and on earth peace among those whom he favors.”

<sup>15</sup>When the angels returned to heaven, the shepherds said to each other, “Let’s go right now to Bethlehem and see what’s happened. Let’s confirm what the Lord has revealed to us.”

<sup>16</sup>They went quickly and found Mary and Joseph, and the baby lying in the manger. <sup>17</sup>When they saw this, they reported what they had been told about this child. <sup>18</sup>Everyone who heard it was amazed at what the shepherds told them. <sup>19</sup>Mary committed these things to memory and considered them carefully. <sup>20</sup>The shepherds returned home, glorifying and praising God for all they had heard and seen. Everything happened just as they had been told.

Jesus’ circumcision, naming, and temple presentation

<sup>21</sup>When eight days had passed, Jesus’ parents circumcised him and gave him the name Jesus. This was the name given to him by the angel before he was conceived. <sup>22</sup>When the time came for their ritual cleansing, in accordance with the Law from Moses, they brought Jesus up to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord. (<sup>23</sup>It’s written in the Law of the Lord, “Every firstborn male will be dedicated to the Lord.”) <sup>24</sup>They offered a sacrifice in keeping with what’s stated in the Law of the Lord, A pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons.<sup>b</sup>

Simeon’s response to Jesus

<sup>25</sup>A man named Simeon was in Jerusalem. He was righteous and devout. He eagerly anticipated the restoration of Israel, and the Holy Spirit rested on him. <sup>26</sup>The Holy Spirit revealed to him that he wouldn’t die before he had seen the Lord’s Christ. <sup>27</sup>Led by the Spirit, he went into the temple area. Meanwhile, Jesus’ parents brought the child to the temple so that they could do what was customary under the Law. <sup>28</sup>Simeon took Jesus in his arms and praised God. He said, <sup>29</sup>“Now, master, let your servant go in peace according to your word, <sup>30</sup>because my eyes have seen your salvation.

<sup>32</sup>It’s a light for revelation to the Gentiles and a glory for your people Israel.”

angels are worshipping. in heaven: where angels offer praise. peace . . . favors: As heavenly angels offer praise to God, they also announce peace for humans, whom God blesses; this includes “all people” who accept this baby’s birth as “wonderful, joyous news” (Luke 2:10).

2:17 reported . . . told: The shepherds tell others the baby is meant for everyone and he is Christ the Lord. amazed: can mean impressed as well as confused. It isn’t the same as accepting the message and being changed by it.

2:19 Mary’s thoughtful reflection on God’s activity in her life and in the world is an example for Luke’s readers.

2:20 praising God: Luke often closes episodes by noting how people praised God for what they had experienced through Jesus (e.g., Luke 2:36; 5:26; 7:16).

2:21–24 This episode, parallel to that in Luke 1:59–66, describes how Jesus’ parents, like Zechariah and Elizabeth, were blameless in their observance of all the Lord’s commandments.

2:21 eight days: See Luke 1:59. Jesus: See Luke 1:31.

2:22 ritual cleansing: Following the birth of a son, a woman was ritually unclean for 33 days (Lev 12:4). This meant she couldn’t enter the temple. present . . . Lord: Firstborn sons belonged to God (Exod 22:29); but instead of actually giving the son as a sacrifice to God, sons were redeemed (Exod 34:19–20) by a monetary payment (five shekels, Num 18:16).

2:23 It’s written: See Exodus 13:2; 22:29.

2:24 sacrifice: Childbearing wasn’t a sin, but the ritual impurity resulting from it required an offering (Lev 12:6–8). After the 33 days are up, Mary offers a pair of birds, the animal sacrifice the poor could give (Lev 12:8).

2:25–28 While they’re in the temple, two prophets, Simeon and Anna, come to testify about what Jesus will be.

2:25 Simeon, like Zechariah and Elizabeth, was righteous (careful to obey the commandments) and devout (he led a God-focused life). restoration: echoes passages like Isaiah 40:1–2; 49:13; 51:3, which refer to God rescuing God’s people from their exile in Babylon and restoring them to Judea. Simeon, like Zechariah, hopes God will drive the Romans out of Palestine (Luke 1:71, 74). Holy Spirit rested on him: He is a prophet, like Elizabeth (Luke 1:41), Zechariah (Luke 1:67), and Anna (Luke 2:36).

2:26 the Lord’s Christ: the Christ chosen by God.

2:27 temple area: The temple was a huge place, with covered porches surrounding open courtyards the size of several football fields. the Spirit leads Simeon to just the right spot to meet Mary and Joseph, who are taking care of the offerings described in Luke 2:22–24.

2:29–32 Simeon’s speech is sometimes called the Nunc Dimittis because those are the first two words in the Latin translation of it.

2:29 your servant: or “your slave.” Simeon is referring to himself. your word: God’s promise to him as explained in Luke 2:26.

2:31 all peoples: As in Luke 2:10, Jesus’ birth is good news for everyone. He will reveal God to the Gentiles (non-Jews), and Israel should be glad for this.

<sup>33</sup>His father and mother were amazed by what was said about him. <sup>34</sup>Simeon blessed them and said to Mary his mother, “This boy is assigned to be the cause of the falling and rising of many in Israel and to be a sign that generates opposition <sup>35</sup>so that the inner thoughts of many will be revealed. And a sword will pierce your innermost being too.”

Anna's response to Jesus

<sup>36</sup>There was also a prophet, Anna the daughter of Phanuel, who belonged to the tribe of Asher. She was very old. After she married, she lived with her husband for seven years. <sup>37</sup>She was now an 84-year-old widow. She never left the temple area but worshipped God with fasting and prayer night and day. <sup>38</sup>She approached at that very moment and began to praise God and to speak about Jesus to everyone who was looking forward to the redemption of Jerusalem.

Jesus as a child in Nazareth

<sup>39</sup>When Mary and Joseph had completed everything required by the Law of the Lord, they returned to their hometown, Nazareth in Galilee. <sup>40</sup>The child grew up and became strong. He was filled with wisdom, and God's favor was on him.

Jesus in the temple at Passover

<sup>41</sup>Each year his parents went to Jerusalem for the Passover Festival. <sup>42</sup>When he was 12 years old, they went up to Jerusalem according to their custom. <sup>43</sup>After the festival was over, they were returning home, but the boy Jesus stayed behind in Jerusalem. His parents didn't know it. <sup>44</sup>Supposing that he was among their band of travelers, they journeyed on for a full day while looking for him among their family and friends. <sup>45</sup>When they didn't find Jesus, they returned to Jerusalem to look for him. <sup>46</sup>After three days they found him in the temple. He was sitting among the teachers, listening to them and putting questions to them. <sup>47</sup>Everyone who heard him was amazed by his understanding and his answers. <sup>48</sup>When his parents saw him, they were shocked.

His mother said, “Child, why have you treated us like this? Listen! Your father and I have been worried. We've been looking for you!”

<sup>49</sup>Jesus replied, “Why were you looking for me? Didn't you know that it was necessary for me to be in my Father's house?” <sup>50</sup>But they didn't understand what he said to them.

<sup>51</sup>Jesus went down to Nazareth with them and was obedient to them. His mother cherished every word in her heart. <sup>52</sup>Jesus matured in wisdom and years, and in favor with God and with people.

2:34 a sign that generates opposition: Jesus will provoke strong negative (Luke 4:28-29) and positive (Luke 4:22) reactions, leading to the falling and rising of those who encounter him.

2:35 inner thoughts... revealed: See Luke 5:22; 7:39-43; 9:47. a sword will pierce: predicts Mary's suffering, especially when her son is executed.

2:36 Anna: an elderly female prophet. Her father was descended from Asher, a nonpriestly family line.

2:37-38 never left the temple... fasting and prayer: She is completely devoted to God (Luke 6:12; 24:53). speak about Jesus: Anna spreads the good news to those around her while Simeon blesses Mary and Joseph and makes predictions. Both are doing prophetic work. redemption: to rescue something lost or about to be lost. Anna hopes Jesus will free Jerusalem from the Romans.

2:40 grew up: See Luke 1:80; 1 Samuel 3:19. God's favor: See Genesis 6:8.

2:41-50 Luke previews Jesus' devotion to his God-given vocation.

2:41 Passover Festival: Celebrating the exodus, Passover begins with an evening meal. For that meal and for the next seven days, Jews eat unleavened bread. Passover was one of three festivals ancient Jews were urged to celebrate in Jerusalem (Deut 16:16).

2:44 band of travelers: Jews coming to Jerusalem traveled in groups for safety. Jesus' family travels with relatives and neighbors.

2:46 teachers: Jesus, filled with wisdom (Luke 2:40), learns in typical Jewish fashion by question, answer, and discussion. 2:48 Child... worried: a mild rebuke. Mary and his father, Joseph, have been looking everywhere for him.

2:49 in my Father's house: Luke doesn't clarify this phrase, which could also be translated as “about my Father's affairs.” In either case, Jesus seeks to please God, even if that worries his parents.

2:50 didn't understand: Jesus' disciples often have the same problem (Luke 8:25; 9:33, 54-55).

2:51-52 The birth and childhood stories of Luke 1-2 end with these notes: Jesus was an obedient child who grew into a man who had a good reputation (Luke 4:14-15); and His mother cherished [his] every word (Luke 8:21).

3:1-20 Luke recounts the ministry of John the Baptist before Jesus' ministry begins. This section parallels Jesus' early ministry (Luke 3:21-4:15), just as the announcement of John's birth (Luke 1:5-25) parallels the announcement of Jesus' birth (Luke 1:26-38).

Ituraea and Trachonitis, and Lysanias was ruler* over Abilene, <sup>2</sup>during the high priesthood of Annas and Caiaphas—God’s word came to John son of Zechariah in the wilderness. <sup>3</sup>John went throughout the region of the Jordan River, calling for people to be baptized to show that they were changing their hearts and lives and wanted God to forgive their sins. <sup>4</sup>This is just as it was written in the scroll of the words of Isaiah the prophet,

A voice crying out in the wilderness:

*“Prepare the way for the Lord;
make his paths straight.*

<sup>5</sup>Every valley will be filled, and every mountain and hill will be leveled.

The crooked will be made straight and the rough places made smooth.

<sup>7</sup>Then John said to the crowds who came to be baptized by him, “You children of snakes! Who warned you to escape from the angry judgment that is coming soon? <sup>8</sup>Produce fruit that shows you have changed your hearts and lives. And don’t even think about saying to yourselves, Abraham is our father. I tell you that God is able to raise up Abraham’s children from these stones. <sup>9</sup>The ax is already at the root of the trees. Therefore, every tree that doesn’t produce good fruit will be chopped down and tossed into the fire.”

<sup>10</sup>The crowds asked him, “What then should we do?”

<sup>11</sup>He answered, “Whoever has two shirts must share with the one who has none, and whoever has food must do the same.”

<sup>12</sup>Even tax collectors came to be baptized. They said to him, “Teacher, what should we do?”

<sup>13</sup>He replied, “Collect no more than you are authorized to collect.”

<sup>14</sup>Soldiers asked, “What about us? What should we do?”

He answered, “Don’t cheat or harass anyone, and be satisfied with your pay.”

Tax Collectors Rome collected money from its provinces to pay for the costs of governing them. The governors often put the job of collecting the money out for bids. The person who promised to collect most, and who knew and bribed the right people, would then hire others to collect more than he had promised to submit. The people he hired would have a quota to meet, and whatever they collected above that would be their profit. Zacchaeus, “a ruler among tax collectors” (Luke 19:2), may have been an example of a person near the top of this unjust system, while Levi (Luke 5:27) was a low-level tax collector. Most people disliked tax collectors; but because they exercised considerable power, most people probably also tried to stay on their good side. In Luke, John the Baptist challenges tax collectors not to collect more than is just (see Luke 3:13), and the Pharisees complain that Jesus accepts the hospitality of tax collectors (Luke 5:30; 7:34; 15:2). A tax collector serves as an example of how, if one truly changes one’s heart and life, God forgives (Luke 18:9-14). Zacchaeus is the camel that passes through the needle’s eye (Luke 18:25), giving away his wealth and receiving Jesus’ blessing (Luke 19:1-10).

*Or tetrarch <sup>f</sup>Isa 40:3-5 his term was from 26 to 36. Herod Antipas ruled Galilee from 4 BCE to 39 CE. He and Herod Philip (4 BCE to 34 CE), whose territories were east of Galilee, were sons of Herod the Great. Lysanias: otherwise unknown.

3:2 Annas: high priest from 6 to 15 CE. His son-in-law, Joseph Caiaphas, was high priest from 18 to 36 CE. wilderness: as the angels found the shepherds in the fields (Luke 2:8-20). See Luke 3:4.

3:3 John: See Mark 1:4; Matthew 3:1. baptized: Jews immersed themselves in water to be clean from ritual impurity. John’s immersion, however, promises forgiveness of sins. This is an innovation and very popular. changing their hearts and lives: This radical change of life, with God’s help, is one of Luke’s major themes (see Luke 5:32; 13:1-5; 24:47). 3:7-9 See Matthew 3:7-10.

3:7 crowds: John’s basic message is about the coming day of judgment. children of snakes: John believes they’re insincere.

3:8 Produce fruit: John demands evidence of their change of life. Abraham: Simply being a Jew won’t be enough to escape Judgment Day.

3:9 The ax... at the root: a symbol of God’s judgment, which is just about ready to begin. chopped down: See Luke 13:6-9.

3:10-14 Three sets of would-be followers: crowds, tax collectors, and soldiers (Luke 9:57-62).

3:10 crowds: Ordinary people should share food and clothes with those who have none (Luke 6:29-30). If they do this, then everyone will have enough, but only just enough. 3:12 tax collectors: See sidebar, “Tax Collectors.”

3:13 no more: If they do this, then they’ll be as poor as everyone else.

3:14 Soldiers: These might have been Romans or locals recruited as auxiliary troops. If Romans, then even Gentiles were responding to John’s preaching (see Luke 7:1-10, where a Gentile military commander responds in faith).

Responses to John

<sup>15</sup>The people were filled with expectation, and everyone wondered whether John might be the Christ. <sup>16</sup>John replied to them all, "I baptize you with water, but the one who is more powerful than me is coming. I'm not worthy to loosen the strap of his sandals. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire. <sup>17</sup>The shovel he uses to sift the wheat from the husks is in his hands. He will clean out his threshing area and bring the wheat into his barn. But he will burn the husks with a fire that can't be put out." <sup>18</sup>With many other words John appealed to them, proclaiming good news to the people.

<sup>19</sup>But Herod the ruler had been criticized harshly by John because of Herodias, Herod's brother's wife, and because of all the evil he had done. <sup>20</sup>He added this to the list of his evil deeds: he locked John up in prison.

Jesus' baptism

<sup>21</sup>When everyone was being baptized, Jesus also was baptized. While he was praying, heaven was opened <sup>22</sup>and the Holy Spirit came down on him in bodily form like a dove. And there was a voice from heaven: "You are my Son, whom I dearly love; in you I find happiness."

Jesus' genealogy

<sup>23</sup>Jesus was about 30 years old when he began his ministry. People supposed that he was the son of Joseph son of Heli <sup>24</sup>son of Matthat son of Levi son of Melchi son of Jannai son of Joseph <sup>25</sup>son of Mattathias son of Amos son of Nahum son of Esli son of Naggai <sup>26</sup>son of Maath son of Mattathias son of Semein son of Josech son of Joda <sup>27</sup>son of Joanan son of Rhesa son of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel son of Neri <sup>28</sup>son of Melchi son of Addi son of Cosam son of Elmadam son of Er <sup>29</sup>son of Joshua son of Eliezer son of Jorim son of Matthat son of Levi <sup>30</sup>son of Simeon son of Judah son of Joseph son of Jonam son of Eliakim <sup>31</sup>son of Melea son of Menna son of Mattatha son of Nathan son of David <sup>32</sup>son of Jesse son of Obed son of Boaz son of Sala son of Nahshon <sup>33</sup>son of Amminadab son of Admin son of Arni son of Hezron son of Perez son of Judah <sup>34</sup>son of Jacob son of Isaac son of Abraham son of Terah son of Nahor <sup>35</sup>son of Serug son of Reu son of Peleg son of Eber son of Shelah <sup>36</sup>son of Cainan son of Arphaxad son of Shem son of Noah son of Lamech <sup>37</sup>son of Methuselah son of Enoch son of Jared son of Mahalalel son of Cainan <sup>38</sup>son of Enos son of Seth son of Adam son of God.

Jesus' temptation

4 Jesus returned from the Jordan River full of the Holy Spirit, and was led by the Spirit into the wilderness. <sup>2</sup>There he was tempted for forty days by the devil. He ate nothing

3:15 See John 1:20, 25.

3:16 loosen the strap: a slave's task. baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire: Jesus promises that God will give the Spirit to any who ask (Luke 11:13; 24:49); the promise is fulfilled in Acts 2:1-4. fire: symbolizes God's judgment (Luke 3:17), which can fall even on Jesus' disobedient followers (Acts 5:1-11). John expects the Christ to initiate God's judgment on the wicked.

3:17 shovel: Farmers cut stalks of grain and spread them out on a flat threshing area. Next they separated the kernels from the stalks by beating them or dragging something heavy over them. Then they used a shovel or pitchfork to toss the kernels of wheat and husks into the air. The kernels would fall to the ground to be gathered and stored. The husks and stalks were bundled to be burned as fuel for ovens (see Matt 13:30).

3:18 proclaiming good news: Luke considers John's preaching to be gospel preaching. See note on Luke 2:10.
 3:19 Herod: Herod Antipas, ruler of Galilee from 4 BCE to 39 CE. He married his brother's former wife, a violation of Leviticus 18:16.

3:21 Jesus... was baptized along with others who responded to John's preaching. Jesus often prays (Luke 5:16; 6:12; 9:28; 11:1); and, as in Luke 9:28-29, something miraculous accompanies his prayer. heaven was opened: an image of God revealing something.

3:22 Holy Spirit... dove: God's public demonstration of Jesus' chosen status. You are my Son: See Psalm 2:7; Luke 9:35. whom I dearly love: See Genesis 22:2; Luke 20:13. in you I find happiness: See Isaiah 42:1; Luke 2:14.

3:23-38 Matthew 1:1-17 includes a genealogy from Abraham to "Joseph, the husband of Mary" (Matt 1:16). Luke's goes in reverse, from Joseph all the way to Adam son of God (3:38). It emphasizes how Jesus is for all people, and it connects the first human with God's Son, who is the Christ. The genealogy is composed of 77 names (counting Joseph's and God's), symbolizing the full number of generations of humans from creation to the Christ's arrival.

4:1 full... led by the Spirit: Jesus' words and actions are directed by God (Luke 1:41, 67; 2:27, 40; 3:22).

4:2 tempted: The same word can be translated as "tested" if God, rather than Satan, presents the choice (Luke 4:12).

during those days and afterward Jesus was starving. <sup>3</sup>The devil said to him, "Since you are God's Son, command this stone to become a loaf of bread."

<sup>5</sup>Next the devil led him to a high place and showed him in a single instant all the kingdoms of the world. <sup>6</sup>The devil said, "I will give you this whole domain and the glory of all these kingdoms. It's been entrusted to me and I can give it to anyone I want. <sup>7</sup>Therefore, if you will worship me, it will all be yours."

<sup>8</sup>Jesus answered, "It's written, You will worship the Lord your God and serve only him."<sup>h</sup>

<sup>9</sup>The devil brought him into Jerusalem and stood him at the highest point of the temple. He said to him, "Since you are God's Son, throw yourself down from here; <sup>10</sup>for it's written: He will command his angels concerning you, to protect you <sup>11</sup>and they will take you up in their hands so that you won't hit your foot on a stone."<sup>i</sup>

<sup>12</sup>Jesus answered, "It's been said, Don't test the Lord your God."<sup>j</sup> <sup>13</sup>After finishing every temptation, the devil departed from him until the next opportunity.

Jesus announces good news to the poor

<sup>14</sup>Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit to Galilee, and news about him spread throughout the whole countryside. <sup>15</sup>He taught in their synagogues and was praised by everyone.

<sup>16</sup>Jesus went to Nazareth, where he had been raised. On the Sabbath he went to the synagogue as he normally did and stood up to read. <sup>17</sup>The synagogue assistant gave him the scroll from the prophet Isaiah. He unrolled the scroll and found the place where it was written:

<sup>18</sup>The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because the Lord has anointed me.

He has sent me to preach good news to the poor, to proclaim release to the prisoners and recovery of sight to the blind, to liberate the oppressed,

<sup>19</sup>and to proclaim the year of the Lord's favor.<sup>k</sup>

<sup>20</sup>He rolled up the scroll, gave it back to the synagogue assistant, and sat down. Every eye in the synagogue was fixed on him. <sup>21</sup>He began to explain to them, "Today, this scripture has been fulfilled just as you heard it."

<sup>22</sup>Everyone was raving about Jesus, so impressed were they by the gracious words flowing from his lips. They said, "This is Joseph's son, isn't it?"

4:3 this stone: Satan tempts Jesus to use his divine status to provide for his own needs. Later, Jesus provides bread for a multitude (Luke 9:10-17).

4:4 People... bread: Like the Israelites in the wilderness, Jesus relies on God to guide him (Deut 8:3).

4:6 I will give you: Satan claims to be entrusted with the rule of all earthly kingdoms. Even if this were true, only God could have done such a thing; so to worship Satan would be to choose a second-rate god. Luke's readers faced similar pressure to worship false gods, including the emperor.

4:9 highest... temple: the top of the building containing the holy of holies.

4:12 test: No one, not even Jesus, should try to control God's actions (see Luke 4:2).

4:13 every temptation: Luke thinks of these three temptations as examples of what Jesus went through during his time of testing (Luke 4:2-4, 5-8, 9-12). the next opportunity: See Luke 10:18; 22:3, 31.

4:14-15 Luke includes summaries of Jesus' travels (e.g., Luke 4:44; 8:1; 13:22) in his narrative to remind readers that Jesus stayed on the move, spreading the message about God's kingdom as he went.

4:16-30 The parallel stories in Matthew and Mark occur later in Jesus' ministry (Matt 13:53-58; Mark 6:1-6). Luke places this story here to introduce the major themes of Jesus' ministry.

4:16 Nazareth: a small, rural village (see Luke 1:26; 2:39, 51). Sabbath: lasts from sundown Friday to sundown Saturday. stood: Jesus comes to the front to read a passage aloud.

4:17 synagogue: See sidebar, "The Synagogues" at Luke 20. assistant: brings the scroll from the prophet Isaiah from its storage place to the podium where Jesus is standing.

4:18-19 The passage Jesus reads shows the nature of what he will say and do throughout his ministry.

4:18 Spirit: Jesus (Luke 4:14) and his followers (Luke 11:13) are led by the Holy Spirit; and Jesus is known as a prophet (Luke 7:16). preach good news: See Luke 4:43. to the poor: See Luke 6:20; 7:22. release: Elsewhere in Luke this word is often translated as "forgiveness" (see Luke 24:47). sight: literal (Luke 18:35-43) and figurative (Luke 6:39-42) healing. liberate: literal (Luke 13:16) and figurative (Luke 12:33) freedom.

4:19 the Lord's favor: People can respond to God through Jesus' preaching (see Luke 2:14).

4:20 sat down: Teachers sat to give instruction.

4:21 has been fulfilled: or "God is causing it to happen, even as you listen."

4:22 raving: making positive comments to each other.

<sup>23</sup>Then Jesus said to them, "Undoubtedly, you will quote this saying to me: 'Doctor, heal yourself. Do here in your hometown what we've heard you did in Capernaum.'" <sup>24</sup>He said, "I assure you that no prophet is welcome in the prophet's hometown. <sup>25</sup>And I can assure you that there were many widows in Israel during Elijah's time, when it didn't rain for three and a half years and there was a great food shortage in the land. <sup>26</sup>Yet Elijah was sent to none of them but only to a widow in the city of Zarephath in the region of Sidon. <sup>27</sup>There were also many persons with skin diseases in Israel during the time of the prophet Elisha, but none of them were cleansed. Instead, Naaman the Syrian was cleansed."

<sup>28</sup>When they heard this, everyone in the synagogue was filled with anger. <sup>29</sup>They rose up and ran him out of town. They led him to the crest of the hill on which their town had been built so that they could throw him off the cliff. <sup>30</sup>But he passed through the crowd and went on his way.

Jesus in Capernaum

<sup>31</sup>Jesus went down to the city of Capernaum in Galilee and taught the people each Sabbath. <sup>32</sup>They were amazed by his teaching because he delivered his message with authority.

<sup>33</sup>A man in the synagogue had the spirit of an unclean demon. He screamed, <sup>34</sup>"Hey! What have you to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are. You are the holy one from God."

<sup>35</sup>"Silence!" Jesus said, speaking harshly to the demon. "Come out of him!" The demon threw the man down before them, then came out of him without harming him.

<sup>36</sup>They were all shaken and said to each other, "What kind of word is this, that he can command unclean spirits with authority and power, and they leave?" <sup>37</sup>Reports about him spread everywhere in the surrounding region.

<sup>38</sup>After leaving the synagogue, Jesus went home with Simon. Simon's mother-in-law was sick with a high fever, and the family asked Jesus to help her. <sup>39</sup>He bent over her and spoke harshly to the fever, and it left her. She got up at once and served them.

<sup>40</sup>When the sun was setting, everyone brought to Jesus relatives and acquaintances with all kinds of diseases. Placing his hands on each of them, he healed them. <sup>41</sup>Demons also came out of many people. They screamed, "You are God's Son." But he spoke harshly to them and wouldn't allow them to speak because they recognized that he was the Christ.

<sup>42</sup>When daybreak arrived, Jesus went to a deserted place. The crowds were looking for him. When they found him, they tried to keep him from leaving them. <sup>43</sup>But he said to them, 4:23 Capernaum: This statement assumes Jesus did miracles at Capernaum during the period covered in Luke 4:14-15 (see Luke 4:31-44).

4:24 no... welcome: So far, Jesus has been welcome, but soon he won't be (Luke 4:28-29). He's predicting this eventuality.

4:26-27 Elijah: See 1 Kings 17:8-24. Elisha: See 2 Kings 5:1-19. Jesus helps a widow and a Gentile military man in Luke 7:1-17, and some people think he's Elijah (Luke 9:19).

4:28 The congregation's anger is sparked by Jesus' suggestion that as a prophet he'll bring God's good news to others, not to his own hometown. As a prophet, Jesus both stirs up and predicts negative responses.

4:30 passed through: Jesus escapes (see Luke 9:9; 13:31).

4:31-37 Jesus gets a different reaction from the Capernaum congregation.

4:31 Capernaum: a village of about 1,000 people, larger than Nazareth, on the northwest end of the Sea of Galilee (see Luke 7:1).

4:33 spirit of an unclean demon: Evil spirits (Luke 7:21); unclean spirits (Luke 8:29); and demons (Luke 11:14) were considered by some in Jesus' day to be the offspring of angels and human women (Gen 6:4; Jude 6) and the servants of Satan (Rev 12:7-9). People believed they caused others to do shameful or self-destructive things (Luke 8:27) or caused disabling conditions (Luke 9:39; 13:11).

4:34 us: Jesus' appearance means God's kingdom is overtaking the power of evil (Luke 11:20). destroy: The demon wonders if Jesus is about to start the last judgment (see Jude 6; Rev 20:2-3).

4:35 threw the man down: visibly indicating the demon's exit, as the dove indicated the Spirit's descent on Jesus (Luke 3:22).

4:38-39 Jesus' first contact with Simon (Peter) in Luke. Peter must have invited Jesus home after worship.

4:39 spoke harshly: Jesus treats the fever as if it's been caused by a demon (see Luke 4:35). served them: See Luke 8:3; 22:26-27.

4:40-44 Jesus, still a guest in Simon's house, heals many diseases and throws demons out of many.

4:42 deserted place: for prayer (see Luke 5:16). tried to keep him: The people of Nazareth wanted to kill him, but the people of Capernaum want to keep him as their local healer.

4:43 other cities: Jesus' mission will keep him moving (Luke 9:23, 57-62). God's kingdom: In contrast to the world's kingdoms (Luke 4:6), ruled by Satan and/or the emperor (Luke 3:1-2), God's kingdom is a place of healing and freedom (Luke 4:18-19) for everyone, even the poor (Luke 6:20). It began in Jesus' ministry (Luke 11:20; 17:21) and will be completed when Jesus returns (Luke 21:27; 22:30).

44 So he continued preaching in the Judean synagogues.

Jesus calls disciples

5 One day Jesus was standing beside Lake Gennesaret when the crowd pressed in around him to hear God's word. 2 Jesus saw two boats sitting by the lake. The fishermen had gone ashore and were washing their nets. 3 Jesus boarded one of the boats, the one that belonged to Simon, then asked him to row out a little distance from the shore. Jesus sat down and taught the crowds from the boat. 4 When he finished speaking to the crowds, he said to Simon, "Row out farther, into the deep water, and drop your nets for a catch."

5 Simon replied, "Master, we've worked hard all night and caught nothing. But because you say so, I'll drop the nets."

6 So they dropped the nets and their catch was so huge that their nets were splitting. 7 They signaled for their partners in the other boat to come and help them. They filled both boats so full that they were about to sink. 8 When Simon Peter saw the catch, he fell at Jesus' knees and said, "Leave me, Lord, for I'm a sinner!" 9 Peter and those with him were overcome with amazement because of the number of fish they caught. 10 James and John, Zebedee's sons, were Simon's partners and they were amazed too.

Jesus said to Simon, "Don't be afraid. From now on, you will be fishing for people." 11 As soon as they brought the boats to the shore, they left everything and followed Jesus.

A man with a skin disease

12 Jesus was in one of the towns where there was also a man covered with a skin disease. When he saw Jesus, he fell on his face and begged, "Lord, if you want, you can make me clean."

13 Jesus reached out his hand, touched him, and said, "I do want to. Be clean." Instantly, the skin disease left him. 14 Jesus ordered him not to tell anyone. "Instead," Jesus said, "go and show yourself to the priest and make an offering for your cleansing, as Moses instructed. This will be a testimony to them." 15 News of him spread even more and huge crowds gathered to listen and to be healed from their illnesses. 16 But Jesus would withdraw to deserted places for prayer.

Jesus heals a paralyzed man

17 One day when Jesus was teaching, Pharisees and legal experts were sitting nearby. They had come from every village in Galilee and Judea, and from Jerusalem. Now the power of 4:44 Judean synagogues: In the Roman Empire "Judea" sometimes meant the whole country. Jesus is still in Galilee.

5:1 Lake Gennesaret: the Sea of Galilee. God's word: It's the same as "the good news of God's kingdom" (Luke 4:43).

5:3 Simon: Earlier Jesus ate a meal with Simon (also called Peter) and healed Simon's mother-in-law (Luke 4:38-39), so they are already acquainted.

5:4 drop your nets: Jesus, a prophet (Luke 4:24), knows what's about to happen.

5:5 Master: a respectful address (see Luke 5:8). all night: Net fishing often happened at night, when fish would come to warmer, shallower parts of the lake.

5:8 Leave me: Peter reacts as if Jesus were an angel (Luke 1:12; 2:9), and his fear is a sign he believes Jesus is divine or divinely gifted. Lord: Peter's being not merely respectful but reverent. sinner: In Luke everyone (except Jesus) needs to repent in order to come to God (Luke 13:3, 5). Peter is the first of many to "change their hearts and lives" (Luke 5:32) in order to follow Jesus (Luke 19:8; 23:39-43).

5:10 James and John: Along with Peter, they're sometimes singled out (Luke 8:51; 9:28, 54). Don't be afraid: See Luke 1:13; 2:10. fishing for people: sharing in Jesus' mission. The disciples are first sent out in Luke 9:1-6.

5:11 left . . . followed: See Luke 18:28; 12:33; 14:33.

5:12 skin disease: Various kinds of rashes or scales (in some translations, "leprosy") made a person unclean—not sinful, but ceremonially unfit to enter the temple or other sacred places. Persons in this condition were required to stay away from others until a priest declared them healed and they'd gone through the cleansing ceremonies required by Leviticus (see Lev 13-14). on his face: a posture of reverent submission. make me clean: Healing the skin condition is the first step to becoming ceremonially clean.

5:13 touched him: Touching a leper made a person unclean. Leviticus 13:45-46 requires people with skin diseases to warn others to stay away but doesn't prohibit a clean person from touching them, so Jesus wasn't disobeying the Law. Since the skin disease disappears when Jesus touches him, Jesus doesn't become unclean.

5:14 not to tell: Jesus wants to avoid being a local healer (Luke 4:42-43), so he commands the healed man not to spread the news. But the man does anyway (Luke 5:15). priest: He would perform a physical exam to declare the man free of his skin disease (Lev 13-14). offering: a sacrifice, made in the Jerusalem temple (Lev 14:1-32). testimony: The physical exam and the sacrifice are all the healed man needs to do or say.

5:15 News: The story can't be kept quiet, and huge crowds became a problem (Luke 5:19; 8:19) and even a danger (Luke 9:7-9; 13:31).

5:16 would withdraw: or "was accustomed to withdraw." This is his standard practice.

5:17 Pharisees: See sidebar, "Pharisees" at Luke 6. legal experts: professionals, experts in Moses' Law and how it was

The Human One in Luke In Matthew, Mark, and Luke, Jesus never calls himself “Son of God” or “Messiah”; instead, he calls himself “the Human One,” often translated as “the son of man.” Jesus’ native language was Aramaic. In this language bar enosha can mean “human being.” God addresses Ezekiel that way (Ezek 4:1), meaning “you mortal” as opposed to the immortal God. In Daniel 7:13-14 a human-looking figure ascends to God and is given power to rule the nations after God destroys the monstrous thing oppressing God’s people. In Luke’s Gospel, Jesus often called himself “the Human One” (Luke 5:24; 6:5; 7:34; 9:26, 44, 58; 11:30; 12:8, 10, 40; 17:24, 30; 18:8; 19:10; 22:22, 69). With this title, he claims the authority “to forgive sins” on earth (Luke 5:24) and, on Judgment Day, to decide who will receive eternal life (Luke 9:26; 12:8-9). He uses the title to predict his death (Luke 9:22); resurrection (Luke 22:69); and return (Luke 21:22). Therefore, this title gives us the most complete picture of Jesus in the Gospel of Luke.

the Lord was with Jesus to heal. <sup>18</sup>Some men were bringing a man who was paralyzed, lying on a cot. They wanted to carry him in and place him before Jesus, <sup>19</sup>but they couldn’t reach him because of the crowd. So they took him up on the roof and lowered him—cot and all—through the roof tiles into the crowded room in front of Jesus. <sup>20</sup>When Jesus saw their faith, he said, “Friend, your sins are forgiven.”

<sup>21</sup>The legal experts and Pharisees began to mutter among themselves, “Who is this who insults God? Only God can forgive sins!”

<sup>22</sup>Jesus recognized what they were discussing and responded, “Why do you fill your minds with these questions? <sup>23</sup>Which is easier—to say, ‘Your sins are forgiven,’ or to say, ‘Get up and walk’? <sup>24</sup>But so that you will know that the Human One<sup>1</sup> has authority on the earth to forgive sins” —Jesus now spoke to the man who was paralyzed, “I say to you, get up, take your cot, and go home.” <sup>25</sup>Right away, the man stood before them, picked up his cot, and went home, praising God.

<sup>26</sup>All the people were beside themselves with wonder. Filled with awe, they glorified God, saying, “We’ve seen unimaginable things today.”

Jesus calls a tax collector

<sup>27</sup>Afterward, Jesus went out and saw a tax collector named Levi sitting at a kiosk for collecting taxes. Jesus said to him, “Follow me.”

<sup>28</sup>Levi got up, left everything behind, and followed him. <sup>29</sup>Then Levi threw a great banquet for Jesus in his home. A large number of tax collectors and others sat down to eat with them. <sup>30</sup>The Pharisees and their legal experts grumbled against his disciples. They said, “Why do you eat and drink with tax collectors and sinners?”

<sup>31</sup>Jesus answered, “Healthy people don’t need a doctor, but sick people do. <sup>32</sup>I didn’t come to call righteous people but sinners to change their hearts and lives.”

traditionally interpreted, who could give advice to public officials and temple leaders (Luke 20:1) as well as to the Pharisees. from every village: They are numerous, a part of the crowd in Luke 5:19. power... to heal: a reminder that Jesus’ miracles aren’t magic or some superhero type of power. Jesus can heal because of his relationship with God (Luke 4:3-4, 14, 17-18; 5:16; 6:18-19; 8:46).

5:19 couldn’t reach him: The crowd (including the legal experts and Pharisees) is blocking the way, but it doesn’t stop these resourceful people.

5:20 their faith: They don’t give up. His friends’ efforts demonstrate how committed they are. “Friend... forgiven”: God forgives him. Luke doesn’t suggest the man is paralyzed because of his sins; everyone needs to repent and be forgiven (Luke 13:3, 5).

5:21 Who is this: The legal experts don’t yet agree that Jesus is a prophet.

5:22 Jesus recognized: See Luke 2:35; 6:8.

5:23 “Get up and walk”: If Jesus claims to heal in God’s name but fails, he proves he’s a false prophet.

5:24 the Human One: See sidebar, “The Human One in Luke.” authority... to forgive: See Luke 7:48; 19:9; 23:43. The healed man and the crowd praise God. The legal experts become witnesses to God’s power exercised through Jesus.

5:27 tax collector: Levi quit a job that made him wealthy by oppressing others. See sidebar, “Tax Collectors” at Luke 3.

5:29 great banquet: See sidebar, “1st-Century Dinner Parties” at Luke 7. in his home: In Luke’s time most congregations met in homes like this one.

5:30 grumbled... disciples: In Luke 5:21 they “mutter among themselves,” and now they’re complaining to the disciples. eat and drink: Being their guest means Jesus accepts them. sinners: The Pharisees refer here to people, like the tax collectors, who they think disobey God’s laws all the time. But in Luke, Jesus can’t avoid eating with sinners, since all, including Pharisees, are sinners.

5:31-32 Another purpose statement by Jesus (see Luke 4:43; 5:24). He came to call everyone to change.

The old and the new

<sup>33</sup>Some people said to Jesus, “The disciples of John fast often and pray frequently. The disciples of the Pharisees do the same, but your disciples are always eating and drinking.”

<sup>34</sup>Jesus replied, “You can’t make the wedding guests fast while the groom is with them, can you? <sup>35</sup>The days will come when the groom will be taken from them, and then they will fast.”

<sup>36</sup>Then he told them a parable. “No one tears a patch from a new garment to patch an old garment. Otherwise, the new garment would be ruined, and the new patch wouldn’t match the old garment. <sup>37</sup>Nobody pours new wine into old wineskins. If they did, the new wine would burst the wineskins, the wine would spill, and the wineskins would be ruined. <sup>38</sup>Instead, new wine must be put into new wineskins. <sup>39</sup>No one who drinks a well-aged wine wants new wine, but says, ‘The well-aged wine is better.’”

Activities on the Sabbath

6 One Sabbath, as Jesus was going through the wheat fields, his disciples were picking the heads of wheat, rubbing them in their hands, and eating them. <sup>2</sup>Some Pharisees said, “Why are you breaking the Sabbath law?”

<sup>3</sup>Jesus replied, “Haven’t you read what David and his companions did when they were hungry? <sup>4</sup>He broke the Law by going into God’s house and eating the bread of the presence, which only the priests can eat. He also gave some of the bread to his companions.” <sup>5</sup>Then he said to them, “The Human One<sup>m</sup> is Lord of the Sabbath.”

<sup>6</sup>On another Sabbath, Jesus entered a synagogue to teach. A man was there whose right hand was withered. <sup>7</sup>The legal experts and the Pharisees were watching him closely to see if Pharisees According to the 1st-century Jewish historian Josephus, Pharisees were active in Jewish public life from about 150 years before the birth of Jesus. Their roots probably go back even further to the Persian or Hellenistic periods (i.e., as far back as the 6th century BCE). Putting together evidence from Josephus, the NT, and Jewish writings known as the Mishnah, we know the Pharisees were a group within 1st-century Judaism that wanted to obey God’s rules as fully as possible. They believed the Law could be interpreted so as to uncover God’s opinions about things not directly addressed in scripture. For instance, while the Law forbids work on the Sabbath (Exod 20:10), it isn’t very specific about what counts as work. In Luke, Jesus and the Pharisees differ on whether healing (Luke 6:7) or snacking on wheat kernels (Luke 6:1-2) counts as work. Their definition of restricted activities is broader than his. Jesus and the Pharisees agree, however, that angels and demons are real, that God has appointed a future day of resurrection, and that God’s coming kingdom will be like a great banquet (Luke 14:15). The Pharisees cast out demons (Luke 11:19) and are diligent about praying, tithing, and fasting (Luke 18:11-12). Three times in Luke, they host Jesus for dinner (Luke 7:36-50; 11:37-54; 14:1-24). They also warn him about Herod (Luke 13:31), and some Pharisees later join the church at Jerusalem (e.g., Acts 15:5).

<sup>m</sup>Or Son of Man

5:33 disciples of John: John the Baptist has devoted followers (Luke 7:18; Acts 19:1-7). fast often: as a sign of their turning to God from the world. pray frequently: See Luke 11:1. disciples of the Pharisees: Luke says Paul is a disciple of Gamaliel the Pharisee (Acts 22:3). eating and drinking: Jesus’ disciples don’t look as serious about their devotion to God.
 5:34 wedding guests: It wouldn’t be polite to refuse to eat and drink at a wedding banquet. God’s kingdom is like a wedding banquet, with Jesus as the groom/host.
 5:35 days will come: a prediction of Jesus’ crucifixion, resurrection, and ascension. In Acts Jesus’ followers do fast (Acts 13:2; 14:23).
 5:37 new wine: Fermenting wine produces gases that will burst an old leather wineskin, so it’s put into new wineskins that can still stretch. Jesus means that new forms of devotion are appropriate, since God’s kingdom has arrived. But many people dislike change and prefer the older ways; this helps explain all the objections (Luke 5:21, 30, 33).

6:1-2 Sabbath: On the Sabbath (Friday sundown to Saturday sundown), Jews were commanded not to work (Exod 20:8-11; Deut 5:12-15). picking: They aren’t stealing, according to Exodus 23:25. breaking the Sabbath law: The Pharisees are counting picking and rubbing as work and thus forbidden on the Sabbath.
 6:3 Haven’t you read: Hungry people may eat, even if that seems to break the Law.
 6:4 the bread of the presence David gave to his companions was holy, off-limits for nonpriests (1 Sam 21:1-6; Lev 24:5-9).
 6:5 The Human One: See sidebar, “The Human One in Luke” at Luke 5. Lord of the Sabbath: Jesus exercises God’s authority and can decide what’s appropriate on the Sabbath.
 6:6 Sabbath: See Luke 6:1. synagogue: See sidebar, “The Synagogues” at Luke 20.
 6:7 legal experts: See Luke 5:17. if he would heal: Healing, or treating illness or injury, counted as work. Some Jews believed such work should be avoided on the Sabbath unless a person’s life was at stake (Luke 13:14). looking... to he would heal on the Sabbath. They were looking for a reason to bring charges against him. <sup>8</sup>Jesus knew their thoughts, so he said to the man with the withered hand, "Get up and stand in front of everyone." He got up and stood there. <sup>9</sup>Jesus said to the legal experts and Pharisees, "Here's a question for you: Is it legal on the Sabbath to do good or to do evil, to save life or to destroy it?" <sup>10</sup>Looking around at them all, he said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." So he did and his hand was made healthy. <sup>11</sup>They were furious and began talking with each other about what to do to Jesus.

Jesus chooses apostles

<sup>12</sup>During that time, Jesus went out to the mountain to pray, and he prayed to God all night long. <sup>13</sup>At daybreak, he called together his disciples. He chose twelve of them whom he called apostles: <sup>14</sup>Simon, whom he named Peter; his brother Andrew; James; John; Philip; Bartholomew; <sup>15</sup>Matthew; Thomas; James the son of Alphaeus; Simon, who was called a zealot; <sup>16</sup>Judas the son of James; and Judas Iscariot, who became a traitor.

Jesus' popularity increases

<sup>17</sup>Jesus came down from the mountain with them and stood on a large area of level ground. A great company of his disciples and a huge crowd of people from all around Judea and Jerusalem and the area around Tyre and Sidon joined him there. <sup>18</sup>They came to hear him and to be healed from their diseases, and those bothered by unclean spirits were healed. <sup>19</sup>The whole crowd wanted to touch him, because power was going out from him and he was healing everyone.

Happy people and doomed people

<sup>20</sup>Jesus raised his eyes to his disciples and said:

"Happy are you who are poor, because God's kingdom is yours.

<sup>21</sup>Happy are you who hunger now, because you will be satisfied.

Happy are you who weep now, because you will laugh.

<sup>22</sup>Happy are you when people hate you, reject you, insult you, and condemn your name as evil because of the Human One.<sup>a</sup> <sup>23</sup>Rejoice when that happens! Leap for joy because you have a great reward in heaven. Their ancestors did the same things to the prophets.

<sup>24</sup>But how terrible for you who are rich, because you have already received your comfort.

bring charges: From this point on in Luke, Jesus usually has enemies around him as well as disciples and crowds (see Luke 6:11).

6:8 knew their thoughts: as Simeon had predicted (Luke 2:34-25; 5:22; 11:17).

6:9 Is it legal: God's Law always forbids evil and allows good. For Jesus, saving a life is doing good, and thus healing is permitted.

6:10 Stretch out: Jesus does nothing physical to cause the healing. God heals the man's hand, proving Jesus correct. 6:12 out . . . to pray: See Luke 4:42; 5:16. Jesus experienced God's presence in prayer (Luke 3:21; 9:28-29).

6:13 The disciples, those who followed him, were more numerous, and included women (Luke 8:1-3). From this larger group, Jesus chose twelve apostles: those sent out with a task to do for the sender.

6:15 zealot: designates this Simon as someone other than "Simon, whom he named Peter" (Luke 6:14). Luke tells us this Simon is zealous but doesn't tell us what he's zealous for (cf. Acts 21:20; 22:3).

6:16 Iscariot: might mean "from Kerioth," or it might mean "sicarius-user" (a sicarius was a knife). traitor: See Luke 22:1-6, 47.

6:17-49 This section, often called the "Sermon on the Plain," has much in common with the more famous "Sermon on the Mount" in Matthew 5-7. Jesus instructs disciples (6:20) on some of his expectations for those who follow him.

6:17-19 The setting for the sermon. Luke imagines three groups: (1) the Twelve, just chosen; (2) a larger company of his disciples (Luke 8:1-3; 10:1); and (3) a huge crowd of people who are attracted to Jesus but haven't joined him yet. Judea and Jerusalem: south of Galilee, where Jesus is teaching. Tyre and Sidon: north of Galilee. power was going out: See Luke 4:14; 5:17; 8:46; Acts 5:15.

6:20-26 Words of happiness (6:20-23) and regret (6:24-26) introduce the sermon.

6:20 Happy: the quality of life enjoyed by those who live in God's favor. you: Each you in Luke 6:20-26 is plural in the Greek, indicating types or groups of people. poor: Needy people receive the good news. God's kingdom: See Luke 4:43.

6:21 hunger . . . weep: Jesus feeds the hungry (Luke 9:13) and comforts the grieving (Luke 7:13), but the terms can also apply to any who urgently seek God's word (Luke 9:11).

6:22 hate you: Early Christians were hated and slandered (Luke 21:12-17; 1 Pet 3:16; 4:4) because they didn't worship Greek and Roman gods.

6:23 the prophets: OT heroes who delivered God's message and were mistreated because of that (Luke 11:47-51).

6:24 how terrible: Jesus both predicts and expresses

25 How terrible for you who have plenty now, because you will be hungry.

How terrible for you who laugh now, because you will mourn and weep.

26 How terrible for you when all speak well of you.

Their ancestors did the same things to the false prophets.

Behaving as God's children

27 "But I say to you who are willing to hear: Love your enemies. Do good to those who hate you. 28 Bless those who curse you. Pray for those who mistreat you. 29 If someone slaps you on the cheek, offer the other one as well. If someone takes your coat, don't withhold your shirt either. 30 Give to everyone who asks and don't demand your things back from those who take them. 31 Treat people in the same way that you want them to treat you.

32 "If you love those who love you, why should you be commended? Even sinners love those who love them. 33 If you do good to those who do good to you, why should you be commended? Even sinners do that. 34 If you lend to those from whom you expect repayment, why should you be commended? Even sinners lend to sinners expecting to be paid back in full. 35 Instead, love your enemies, do good, and lend expecting nothing in return. If you do, you will have a great reward. You will be acting the way children of the Most High act, for he is kind to ungrateful and wicked people. 36 Be compassionate just as your Father is compassionate.

37 "Don't judge, and you won't be judged. Don't condemn, and you won't be condemned. Forgive, and you will be forgiven. 38 Give, and it will be given to you. A good portion—packed down, firmly shaken, and overflowing—will fall into your lap. The portion you give will determine the portion you receive in return."

Avoiding self-deception

39 Jesus also told them a riddle. "A blind person can't lead another blind person, right? Won't they both fall into a ditch? 40 Disciples aren't greater than their teacher, but whoever is fully prepared will be like their teacher. 41 Why do you see the splinter in your brother's or sister's eye but don't notice the log in your own eye? 42 How can you say to your brother or sister, 'Brother, Sister, let me take the splinter out of your eye,' when you don't see the log in your own eye? You deceive yourselves! First take the log out of your eye, and then you will see clearly to take the splinter out of your brother's or sister's eye.

43 "A good tree doesn't produce bad fruit, nor does a bad tree produce good fruit. 44 Each tree is known by its own fruit. People don't gather figs from thorny plants, nor do they pick sorrow for the judgment coming on those who've chosen to live outside God's favor. rich: those who have more than they need and don't share it with the poor (see Luke 12:15-21; 16:19-31; 18:18-30). received your comfort: See Luke 16:25.

6:25 have plenty... laugh: people who, like the rich, don't desire God's kingdom because they're happy in "the kingdoms of the world" (Luke 4:5-6). When Judgment Day comes, they will mourn and weep.

6:26 speak well: In Luke's time a Christian was unlikely to be praised publicly (see Luke 6:22).

6:27 Love your enemies: the topic for Luke 6:27-36. All that follows defines the word "love," which is more about actions than emotional connections. Do good: generous acts (Luke 6:33-35).

6:28 Bless: ask God to do good to them (Luke 2:34; see Rom 12:14).

6:29 slaps you: an insult, treating someone like a child or slave. takes your coat: taken by force by a person with more power, perhaps to secure a loan or pay a debt (see Exod 22:25-27). your shirt: a tunic worn by men and women as a first layer of clothing. Offering to go naked might embarrass the one who takes the coat.

6:30 asks... take: Jesus' followers shouldn't be attached to things (Luke 12:22-34), so it really doesn't matter whether they give to beggars or have their things seized by the powerful.

6:32 sinners: In Luke everyone needs to change their lives and receive the good news. Anybody can return good treatment, but God expects more of Jesus' disciples.

6:35 lend expecting nothing: give freely. great reward: namely, entrance into God's kingdom (Luke 18:28-30).

6:36 Be compassionate: Imitating God's compassion means being kind to enemies.

6:37 Don't judge... Don't condemn: Only God can legitimately condemn anyone, so leave judging to God. won't be judged... won't be condemned: If you wrongly condemn someone, God may condemn you. Forgive: See Luke 17:3-4; 23:34.

6:38 good portion: A good employer who pays the harvester with grain fills the measuring jar, shakes it to make more room, presses it down to make still more room, and then fills it to overflowing before pouring it into the worker's shirt, which the worker is holding out like a sack.

6:39 blind: a warning against choosing the wrong teacher. A bad teacher may lead you into trouble, and a poor teacher won't help you improve that much.

6:41 splinter: Correct your own faults first before trying to help others. Then, when you are able, help them, too (see Luke 22:31-32).

grapes from prickly bushes. <sup>45</sup>A good person produces good from the good treasury of the inner self, while an evil person produces evil from the evil treasury of the inner self. The inner self overflows with words that are spoken.

<sup>46</sup>“Why do you call me ‘Lord, Lord’ and don’t do what I say? <sup>47</sup>I’ll show what it’s like when someone comes to me, hears my words, and puts them into practice. <sup>48</sup>It’s like a person building a house by digging deep and laying the foundation on bedrock. When the flood came, the rising water smashed against that house, but the water couldn’t shake the house because it was well built. <sup>49</sup>But those who don’t put into practice what they hear are like a person who built a house without a foundation. The floodwater smashed against it and it collapsed instantly. It was completely destroyed.”

A servant is healed

7After Jesus finished presenting all his words among the people, he entered Capernaum. <sup>2</sup>A centurion had a servant who was very important to him, but the servant was ill and about to die. <sup>3</sup>When the centurion heard about Jesus, he sent some Jewish elders to Jesus

6:45 treasury: a storeroom or treasure box. Good conduct comes from a good character.

6:46 Lord: or “Master.” This is how slaves addressed their owners, and it’s one of the ways Jews prayed to God. Calling Jesus Lord should indicate readiness to obey his teachings.

6:47 comes... hears... puts: Crowds come to hear him, and he challenges them to become disciples (see Luke 6:17-18).

6:48 flood: an image for hard times (see Isa 43:2; Ps 69:2). Living by Jesus’ instructions prepares a person to survive life’s trials.

7:1-17 The next two miracles form a pair: one done at the request of a Gentile male and one done for a Jewish woman who asks for nothing. The first reminds us of Elisha curing Naaman (2 Kgs 5; Luke 4:27); and the second is like Elijah raising the widow’s son (1 Kgs 17:8-24; Luke 4:26).

7:1 Capernaum: See Luke 4:31.

7:2 centurion: like an infantry company or platoon sergeant. servant: a slave, perhaps a personal assistant.

7:3 sent some Jewish elders: Although the centurion wasn’t Jewish, some of the Jewish town leaders owe him a favor (Luke 7:5) and are willing to contact Jesus for him.

to ask him to come and heal his servant. <sup>4</sup>When they came to Jesus, they earnestly pleaded with Jesus. "He deserves to have you do this for him," they said. <sup>5</sup>"He loves our people and he built our synagogue for us."

<sup>6</sup>Jesus went with them. He had almost reached the house when the centurion sent friends to say to Jesus, "Lord, don't be bothered. I don't deserve to have you come under my roof." <sup>7</sup>In fact, I didn't even consider myself worthy to come to you. Just say the word and my servant will be healed. <sup>8</sup>I'm also a man appointed under authority, with soldiers under me. I say to one, 'Go,' and he goes, and to another, 'Come,' and he comes. I say to my servant, 'Do this,' and the servant does it."

<sup>9</sup>When Jesus heard these words, he was impressed with the centurion. He turned to the crowd following him and said, "I tell you, even in Israel I haven't found faith like this."

<sup>10</sup>When the centurion's friends returned to his house, they found the servant restored to health.

Jesus raises a widow's son

<sup>11</sup>A little later Jesus went to a city called Nain. His disciples and a great crowd traveled with him. <sup>12</sup>As he approached the city gate, a dead man was being carried out. He was his mother's only son, and she was a widow. A large crowd from the city was with her. <sup>13</sup>When he saw her, the Lord had compassion for her and said, "Don't cry." <sup>14</sup>He stepped forward and touched the stretcher on which the dead man was being carried. Those carrying him stood still. Jesus said, "Young man, I say to you, get up." <sup>15</sup>The dead man sat up and began to speak, and Jesus gave him to his mother.

<sup>16</sup>Awestruck, everyone praised God. "A great prophet has appeared among us," they said. "God has come to help his people." <sup>17</sup>This news about Jesus spread throughout Judea and the surrounding region.

John the Baptist and Jesus

<sup>18</sup>John's disciples informed him about all these things. John called two of his disciples <sup>19</sup>and sent them to the Lord. They were to ask him, "Are you the one who is coming, or should we look for someone else?"

<sup>20</sup>When they reached Jesus, they said, "John the Baptist sent us to you. He asks, 'Are you the one who is coming, or should we look for someone else?'"

<sup>21</sup>Right then, Jesus healed many of their diseases, illnesses, and evil spirits, and he gave sight to a number of blind people. <sup>22</sup>Then he replied to John's disciples, "Go, report to John

7:4 He deserves: The elders assume Jesus needs to be talked into helping a Gentile, especially an army official.

7:5 He loves: "Love" means doing good, like giving generously to the synagogue building fund (see Luke 6:27).

7:6 Jesus went: He would have entered the centurion's house. friends: a second group that delivers the centurion's actual words. I don't deserve: He's a Gentile and may think Jesus, who's Jewish, would hesitate to accept his hospitality.

7:7 worthy: He knows Jesus owes him no favors but hopes Jesus will say the word. If Jesus asks God to heal the slave, the centurion believes God will do it.

7:9 even in Israel: Jesus' first encounter with a Gentile in Luke shows how the good news will be preached "to all nations" (Luke 24:47).

7:11 Nain: a small village, like Nazareth, southwest of the Sea of Galilee and almost on the Samaritan border. disciples . . . great crowd: See Luke 6:17.

7:12 a dead man: one of three children Jesus heals (Luke 8:41-42, 49-56; 9:37-43). widow: According to Moses' Law, widows, orphans, and immigrants are under God's special protection (e.g., Exod 22:21-24; Luke 18:1-8; Acts 6:1).
